There will be a film festival 7-8:30 tonight at the First Congregational Church at Juliette and Poyntz avenues, for National Coming Out Day. The film, "Fish Can't Fly," explores the lives of gay men and lesbians of faith as they recall their journeys to put their sexuality and spirituality in harmony. The film is sponsored by the Kansas Equality Coalition.

Campaign closing

K-State will have a closing celebration for the All-University Campaign at 7 a.m. today in Bosco Student Plaza. All faculty and staff who participated are invited to a pancake feed for the event. The celebration will be moved to Ahearn Field House in the event of inclement weather.

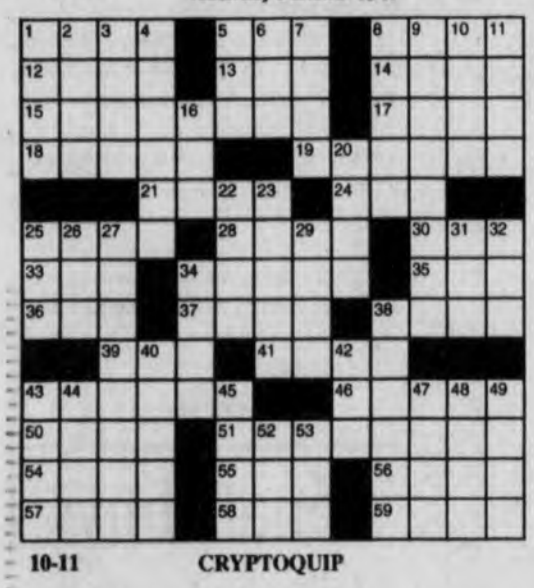
The Foley scandal

After finding out that at least some members of the House of Representatives were aware of Congressman Mark Foley's sexual communications with pages, many Americans feel Republican leadership covered it up for political reasons.

Source: The USA Today/Gallup Poll

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Charitable donations
5 Suitable
8 Cattle drive tool
12 Christmas refrain
13 Crucial
14 Earring location
15 Weapon resembling a small ax
17 Largest of the seven
18 Overact
19 Surpass
21 Formerly, formerly
24 CSA soldier
25 Hardly hirsute
28 PBS science series
30 On in years
33 Salt Lake tribe
34 Happy companion?
35 Court
36 Longing
37 Last writes?
38 Despondent
39 Shapely leg
41 Anthracite, e.g.
43 Temporary guardian
46 Alamo casualty
50 Hearty laugh
51 Held by a third party
54 Actor Wilson
55 Aphorism
56 Diamond in the sky?
57 Subside
58 Keep tabs on
59 Name above the title

DOWN
1 Initial stake
2 Weaving apparatus
3 Note from a co-worker
4 On the schedule
5 Alias (Abbr.)
6 Church seat
7 Youngster
8 Location
9 Pasadena event
10 Stage statuette
11 Conked out
16 That girl
20 Picture of health?
22 Uppity one
23 Subject
25 Purchase
26 Consumed
27 Stretch out
29 Kill a bill
31 "Skip to My —"
32 Buck's mate
34 Cupola
38 Obstructs
40 Expiate
42 Tummy muscles, briefly
43 Demonstrate
44 Davenport's setting
45 Obey reveille
47 Legal document
48 Teensy bit
49 Water pitcher
52 Aye canceler
53 Lamb's dam

Solution time: 21 mins.

F	L	A	B		P	E	A		A	T	O	P
L	E	G	O		L	O	B		L	O	G	E
U	T	O	P	I	A	N	S		K	A	L	E
			P	R	Y		T	R	A	D	E	R
T	H	R	E	E		S	A	I	L
H	E	I	R		U	T	I	L	I	Z	E	D
R	A	T		I	N	A	N	E		E	A	U
U	T	E	N	S	I	L	S		P	A	R	T
			O	M	S	K		B	U	L	L	Y
V	A	L	U	E	S		B	A	N
A	G	O	G		U	T	A	H	J	A	Z	Z
M	E	S	H		E	A	R		A	L	E	E
P	E	S	T		D	U	N		B	A	N	D

Yesterday's answer 10-11

10-11 CRYPTOQUIP

ON MKX IRLLQH AK FKGQ TKKFOHC EQGOTQD, MKX DIKXFE EQNOHOAQFM VQFKHC AK R NRH TFXV.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: PRESIDENT CLINTON TRIED ON HIS OLD THREE-PIECE OUTFIT, BUT IT DIDN'T FIT THE BILL.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: M equals Y

ON THE WEB

The version of the Collegian that doesn't leave ink on your fingers

Your picks for Photo of the Week

1st: "Superman Hit," 56 votes, 31%

2nd: "Mashed Potatoes," 52 votes, 29%

3rd: "Hopper Hunters," 41 votes, 23%

Don't forget to vote for this week's photos at www.kstatecollegian.com

TABERNACLE WOODS By Donnie Jay

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of C.R. Macchi at 8:45 a.m. today in Dole Hall 137.
- Walk-in Wednesdays will be noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, go to www.k-state.edu/ces.
- "Global Warming and the Kansas Connection" will feature attorney Charles Benjamin, lobbyist for the Kansas chapter of the Sierra Club. Benjamin will present "Coal-Fired Power Plants Versus Kansas Renewable Wind Energy — You Decide" 7-8:30 tonight in the K-State Student Union Staterooms 1 and 2. The event is sponsored by Students for Environmental Action.
- Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 to 4 p.m. Thursdays through Nov. 16 at Lafene Health Center. Vaccines cost $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.
- Richard A. Marston, distinguished professor and head of the Department of Geography will present "Himalayan Geoscience: A Geographer's Perspective on the MCT Shear Zone" at 4 p.m. Thursday in Thompson 213. The event is sponsored by the geology department.
- The Fall Education Career Fair is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jin Soo Lee at 1 p.m. Friday in Justin 115.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.
© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

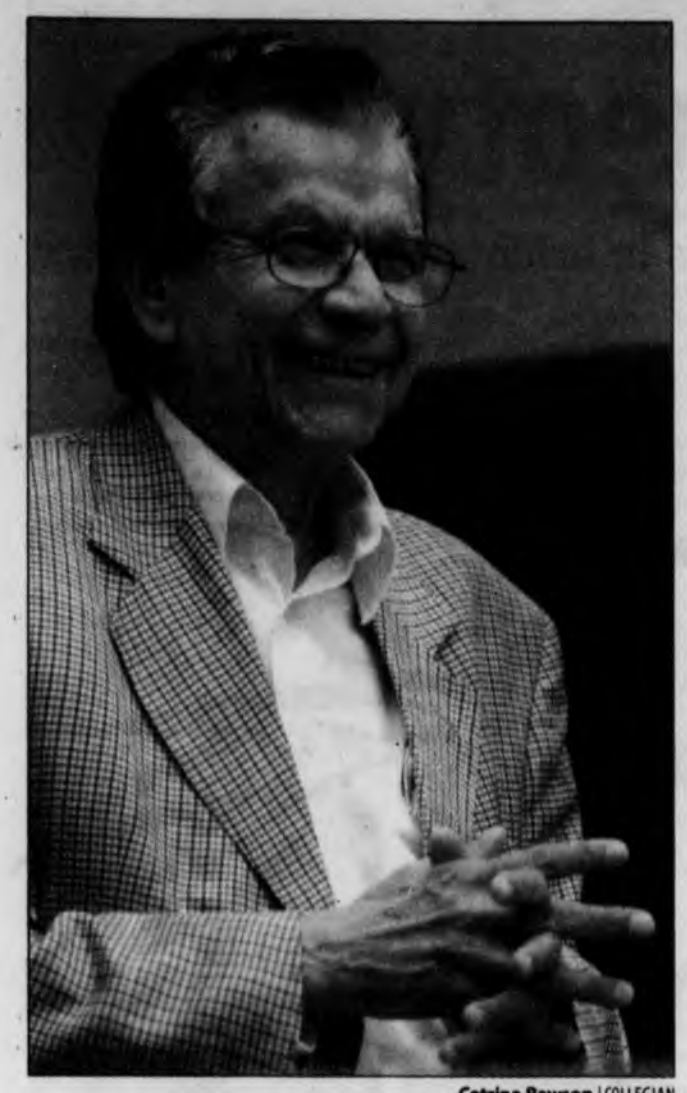
Porter's 706 N. Manhattan Ave. 537-7151
20¢ WINGS Hot, Mild, BBQ, Honey Mustard, Hot BBQ
$2 BIG BEER
$2 UV DRINKS
FREE UV GIVEAWAYS
Open @ 4

AGGIE LOUNGE 712 12th St. 537-8585
$2 YOU CALL IT (premiums, bottles, wells, calls, shots)
$3 Redbull & Vodkas Grape, Cherry, Jager Bombs

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma, and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

GUMBY'S Pizza We roll ours fatter... We are talking about our 50¢ Pizza rolls All Day sauce extra
$1 Bud & Bud Light Draws
50¢ Pool All Day



WALK-ON TRYOUTS OCTOBER 16, 7:30PM BRAMLAGE COLISEUM
PICK UP A REGISTRATION FORM IN THE MEN'S BASKETBALL OFFICE & RETURN IT BY NOON OCTOBER 13
KANSAS STATE BASKETBALL

WIN A FREE PITA A WEEK FOR A YEAR!
Design our LOCAL Pita and win one FREE Pita a week for a YEAR!
Stop by Pita Pit and fill out an entry form by 10/15.
537-3995
Aggieville • 1131 Moro
The Pita Pit FRESH THINKING HEALTHY EATING

Advertise here. Kansas State Collegian 118 Kedzie 785-532-6560

OUR PIGS DON'T GET ADDED GROWTH HORMONES, ANTIBIOTICS, OR MULLIGANS.
HONEST INGREDIENTS. Chipotle
IN AGGIEVILLE

Exiled professor advocates equality, democracy

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Antonio Riquelme, associate professor of sociology, teaches during his class last week in Waters Hall.

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Not many people know what it's like to be accused of being a subversive agent and banished from their homeland, but Antonio Riquelme, associate professor of sociology, knows the experience firsthand.

Of course, not many people can say they are suing the Central Intelligence Agency, but he's doing that, too.

Born in Asunción, Paraguay, Riquelme witnessed the military coup that began the 35-year term of authoritarian Alfredo Stroessner as president of Paraguay. Riquelme said at first the new boss seemed much like the old boss, but as Stroessner grew more autocratic and less tolerant of opposition, Riquelme began what would become a lifetime of advocacy for equality, participatory democracy and peace.

"As I grew older, it was rough for (my family) and rough for me because I was active in university politics," he said. "I was, sometime, in jail, and the last time was the exact time I left the country."

His last time in a Paraguayan jail was marked by torture, Riquelme said, and ended after a hunger strike that lasted 26 days and did irreparable damage to his stomach.

Prior to his final prison sentence, he finished his law degree and hoped to go to France to study and practice his second language. However, he had no offers to travel or study in France. But when he least expected it, an offer appeared.

"While I was in jail, I got a response to an application I had almost forgotten about," he said.

Riquelme met with a "third way" delegation from the United States. The group was standing against both the United States' and the Soviet Union's interventionist policies during the cold war. He filled out, and forgot about, an application that would shape his life.

"While I was in jail my mother got a telegram to say I was approved."

He was given a safe conduct form, the equivalent of an exit visa, and was stripped of all other official identifications. He left for the U.S. in 1962 and would not return home for 20 years.

"I could not go back home because I did not have a passport, my passport was taken away from me," he said.

Having left one challenging situation, Riquelme soon found himself in another.

"I was coming to a country I had no feeling for. I didn't know English. I'd never thought about coming here," he said.

Riquelme adapted quickly, though. He took an eight-week English course in Washington, D.C., followed by earning a master's degree in political science at the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis and a doctorate in sociology from the University of California at Santa Barbara.

After his student visa expired, and with nowhere to call home, Riquelme taught, studied and worked throughout Latin America.

In 1969, he arrived at the National University of Colombia in Bogata hoping to do research in the turbulent nation, but the Colombian government was less enthusiastic about his topic.

"I wanted to study social change in a violent country, but I was really quickly told that was off limits," he said.

After three years in Colombia, he taught in Puerto Rico for a year before moving to Brazil to work as a planning and evaluation officer for rural development at the United Nations Development Programme and the United Nations Children's Fund, which later took him back to Colombia.

In 1975, he found his home away from home, or at least another passport.

"I went to Mexico on my own, because Mexico is where all the people that were fighting the military dictatorships in Latin America ended up," he said. "We just went and met in Mexico. There were fellow exiles from Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, Bolivia, Paraguay, Brazil."

Riquelme lived in Mexico from 1975-85, and the Mexican government issued him a passport. It was during his stay in Mexico that he went home for the first time.

The trip was in 1982, for a conference on urbanization. He was briefly detained at the border for not having proper identification, but Strossner's authoritarianism had loosened since he left, and Riquelme was allowed entry. In 1987 he began returning regularly to his home country.

The first trip back to his homeland was an emotional one, he said, even though most of his family had fled to the surrounding countries to escape the Paraguayan government.

After the devastating Mexico City earthquake of 1985, he moved to San Diego, Calif., for his new job at the U.S.-Mexico Center, which had him teaching and researching in both San Diego and Tijuana, Mexico – a position which gave him an unusual view of the two countries' relationship.

"I had an incredible feeling for that type of thing, because I was crossing the border between the first and the third world every day," he said.

From there he went to Cornell University for a year, and, in 1991, abandoned the Ivy League for the wheat belt and came to K-State as the director for the Center of Latin American Studies.

He's been here ever since, and one focus of his research, state-sponsored terrorism, has led him to some unexpected finds and some imposing barriers.

"We are talking about violence produced at the level of the state," he said. "[In the U.S.] terrorism is always some kind of an individual, evil group."

In 1992, the archive of Paraguay's secret police, known as the "Archive of Horror," was discovered. The archive detailed the working of Operation Condor, the collaboration between South America's right-wing dictatorships cooked-up as an intelligence sharing operation to combat "leftists." The role of the controversial operation, though, soon expanded and became a cross-border operation at state-sponsored terrorism.

"There were exchanges of information, there were exchanges of prisoners and then there were executions," Riquelme said.

Riquelme said when examining the Paraguayan archives he found information not only on Paraguayans but also on citizens of other South American nations. He also found information on exchanges between the government of Paraguay and the American embassy. Along with the records he found the name of one U.S. Army officer, Lieutenant Colonel Robert Thierry, a man sent to build a detention and interrogation center named "La Technica."

The search led him to the National Archives and Records Administration where he uncovered more evidence of U.S.-Paraguay relations during Operation Condor. But after coming this far he found an administrative brick wall.

"When I inquired they told me I could not see. Some things that were already in open files

See RIQUELME Page 8

EVENT PASSPORTS ON SALE NOW AT
Sisters of Sound, Rockstar & Rogers, On The Wildside, & Dusty Bookshelf
BUY A TICKET, ENTER TO WIN PRIZES! ONLY $10
AGGIE 06 FEST
Annual Multi-Genre LIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL!!
Saturday October 21, 2006
10am - 2am
ALL OVER AGGIEVILE, Manhattan, KS
www.myspace.com/mmcaggiefest

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 Moro Manhattan 776-8770
$2 DRINKS $2.25 BOTTLES
KARAOKE NIGHT
Thursday • Oct. 12 • Roger Creager with speical guest Phil Pritchett
Tickets $8 • on sale now

PLANET SUB
537-8SUB
WE DELIVER

Need help with your resume?
Got a couple of quick questions?
WALK-IN WEDNESDAYS
Come in between Noon - 4 pm and meet with a career advisor.
No appointment necessary!
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career
www.k-state.edu/ces

Got a News Tip or Story Idea
Call 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu
Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Aggieville • Manhattan, KS
WEDNESDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 Flavored Long Islands
$3.50 Carbombs
$3.50 Summerbeer
$2.00 Any Draw Wells
$2.50 UV Blue Bombs
$5.50 Queso Burger
Mon & Tues 4PM-2AM • Wed-Sun 11:30AM-2AM

Mary Kay
Racheal Nekuda
Independent Beauty Consultant
(785) 313-1629
RNEKUDA@MARYKAY.COM
WWW.MARYKAY.COM/RNEKUDA

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
K-State
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 18 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword. . .
Now that's something you can bank on.

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm
The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.
Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

TO THE POINT

Media buyouts endanger objectivity

On Oct. 9, Google announced plans to acquire YouTube, a video clip Web site, for $1.65 billion in stock.

While Google promises to allow YouTube to continue independent operations, the situation demonstrates a need for government involvement in media takeovers.

TO THE POINT is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Google is contributing to the trend of significant media conglomerates like Viacom, AOL Time Warner and Newscorp owning nearly all forms of media.

If media corporations own all media outlets in one market, the audiences for these media outlets won't always receive unbiased coverage. Audiences might see the same stories from the same angles on each branch of media.

To preserve media diversity, the government must reword current media monopoly laws to include new forms and branches of media like YouTube and other Web sites.

YouTube and Google seem like safe companies without political or social agendas, but after Newscorp purchased MySpace this summer, the advertisements on the site began to push Newscorp's agenda.

Converging media is the way of the future, but there needs to be stronger legislation to protect media objectivity.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

So exactly how long do you go to jail for having sexual relations with a minor?

I want to have Leon Patton's babies.

Prins, P R I N S, could so beat up Chuck Norris.

Mustangs Gentlemen's Club, all for a dollar.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Beyond stereotypes

On Coming Out Day, accept differences in orientation with tolerance

LOLA SHRIMPLIN

Today is National Coming Out Day, which allows lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender people to live full and complete lives, said Mark Shields, director of the Coming Out Project.

So in that spirit, I thought I would dispel some myths about people who are gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender.

First, as a bisexual, I don't lust after every woman I talk to, just the same as I don't want every man I see.

I see some women and wish I looked like they do. I do that a lot, actually. I see a woman with long blonde hair and wish my hair looked the same, or I wish I was as thin or as pretty as some other women.

Then there are the people to whom I am attracted. They vary. I have noticed I'm only attracted to certain women, though. Men are more random.

It's the same with most people, I imagine.

I've had girl crushes, and that's different from being bisexual or lesbian. Girl crushes are when you see someone who has it so together, you wish you could be like her. You try to be close to her just to feel better about yourself.

I imagine some men do the same with other men, but it's called male bonding or something.

Secondly, just being a homosexual doesn't make you a pedophile, no matter what some lawmakers think.

I have never seen a man or a woman who has sex with a minor of the opposite sex simply claim that he or she is heterosexual, and that is the reason he or she chose to violate a child.

Thirdly, being homosexual doesn't cause AIDS. Promiscuous sexual behavior has been linked to the disease. There are many ways you can get AIDS, but the cause is not homosexuality. Straight people can get the disease if they practice risky behavior, like having sex with someone they don't know.

Finally, all people are essentially the same. Homosexual or heterosexual, they all want love and acceptance. They all deserve to live a full and complete life without having to hide who they are and who they love.

The more people talk about the differences between themselves, the more society moves toward tolerance and acceptance. People have the right to live how they want and love who they want, as long as it isn't hurting someone else.

I fail to see how loving someone of your own gender can hurt someone of the opposite gender so badly that some gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people are tortured and killed by those who disagree with others' definition of love.

This year I hope people who choose to show the world who they truly are and come out are accepted with more tolerance and acceptance than in previous years.

We need to move past the stereotypes into a world in which differences are not only accepted, but also treated with respect.

Lola Shrimplin is a senior in pre-journalism and mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell | COLLEGIAN

Diversity, teeth would provide weapons U.N. needs

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

It finally happened. Earlier this week, North Korea admittedly test-fired an atomic weapon underground.

Immediately, the superpowers of the world united to condemn North Korea's actions. They have called for harsh sanctions against North Korea, and many fear how our responses could influence negotiations with Iran.

But North Korea hasn't always been this hostile toward our country. Its current hatred of the United States, like a majority of our other problems, can be traced back to President George W. Bush.

Under former President Bill Clinton, our relations with North Korea peaked.

Not only had North Korea agreed to freeze and dismantle its nuclear weapons program, but it even let us inspect huge underground sites.

When Bush came along, he started ignoring North Korea.

The response by the country's leader, Kim Jong-Il, who seems to suffer from an inferiority complex, was to once again get attention through nukes.

It's not right, but it definitely did not deserve Bush's retaliation: North Korea was labeled a part of the axis of evil with Iraq and Iran.

Of course, we can't blame Bush for discontinuing Clinton's efforts. Good policies never seem to fit into that course we continue to stay. However, like Bush, I agree that the solution to many world problems is democracy.

The difference is that I believe if democracy is really a right for people to choose for themselves, we must let countries like North Korea decide for themselves what form of government they want.

So rather than try to force peace, we must first set a good example. We need to make the United Nations an organization North Korea wants to be a part of. But, to do that, the U.N. needs two things: teeth and diversity.

Both of these would be easy to achieve by establishing a democracy in the U.N.

It's simple. If all five permanent seats are put up for vote – banning countries from voting for themselves – the power of the U.N. could switch hands every select number of years.

With the chance for any member to be on top, the U.N. automatically would become more diverse. But it would also regain its teeth.

Do you really think the United States could get enough votes to keep its seat if an election were today? At the very least, we wouldn't have ignored the U.N. when it told us not to go into Iraq.

And when the U.N. is able to tackle huge problems like unjust wars by the world's most powerful country, an atomic weapon from North Korea will be no problem.

Zachary T. Eckels is a senior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Fuel your exercise routine

So you're past the point of "talking the talk," and you're ready to make bigger strides.

MELISSA HAUG

You've been maintaining a balanced workout routine, but in order to keep your body in tip-top condition between and during each grueling or leisurely physical activity, adequate and healthy eating habits must become a way of life.

The USDA MyPyramid Food Guidance System recognizes the balancing act between healthy eating and physical activity by emphasizing the importance of food before and after workouts.

MyPyramid suggests consuming at least 55-65 percent of your daily caloric intake from carbohydrates. Those exercising close to one hour a day should be getting closer to 65 percent.

Carbohydrates are a vital energy source for your exercising muscles and aid in a more efficient use of body fat. Those stored in the form of glycogen are the primary fuel for exercising. If adequate glycogen is not stored or replenished after exercise, your performance will deteriorate and continue to do so – leading to fatigue, even at low intensities.

MyPyramid recommends an intake of four to six grams of carbohydrates per kilogram (1.8 to 2.7 grams per pound) of body weight, depending on activity level.

It is best to consume complex carbohydrates like fresh fruits and vegetables, as well as whole grain breads, cereal, rice and pastas. These are loaded with vitamins, minerals and fiber.

To maximize your performance levels and energize your body, consume a small carbohydrate snack 30 minutes before, as well as 30 minutes after exercise. This is important to refuel muscle glycogen.

Three days of reduced carbohydrate intake can result in hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) and ketosis (increased blood acids), which are associated with nausea, fatigue, dizziness and irritability.

A carbohydrate-rich diet usually means lower fat consumption. Although fat is the primary fuel for light to moderate activities, it supplies more than two times as many calories as a food source.

The 2005 USDA Dietary Guidelines for Americans recommends consuming 20-30 percent of daily calories from fat. Because fat is most often present but not visible in many food sources, no additional attempts should be

See NUTRITION Page 7

Your health | Abdominal workout

Tougher tummy

Develop little-known abdominal muscles with 3 basic moves

By Trent Scott
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

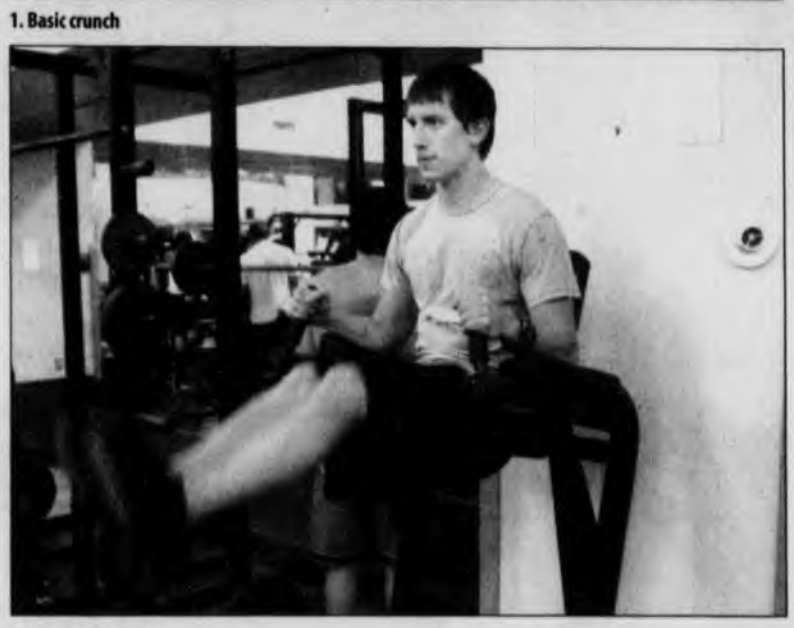
Actor Brad Pitt has them. So does actress Jessica Alba. That ripped guy sitting two tables down from you in Hale Library has a six-pack too, and so do you.

You just don't know it yet.

The truth is everyone can have a great midsection. All it takes is a little patience and dedication. Here are three exercises to get you going. But before you skip your next class to get started on your torso, get your facts straight.

First, there are no such things as upper and lower abs.

Your abs are three different abdominal muscle groups. They are the external and internal obliques (the muscles visible on the sides of your belly), the transversus abdominis and the rectus abdominis (the six-pack muscles). Your six-pack is only made of two muscles, each running vertically on either side of your belly button. The six-or-eight-pack look comes from small insertions of tendons that stretch horizontally across those muscles.



Second, it does not matter how many abdominal exercises you do or how many repetitions you perform in each set. If you have fat covering the muscles of your abdomen, you are not going to be able to see them. This means cardiovascular exercises and nutrition are still important.

Third, the transversus abdominis is the most forgotten, but arguably the most important, abdominal muscle. It helps make up your "natural weight belt," a band of deep muscles that wrap around your midsection to support your body in various movements.

The transversus abdominis is easy to work, too. Instead of letting someone punch you repeatedly in your stomach or pushing like you have to go to the bathroom, just remember to exhale deeply during every contraction of abdominal exercise.

1. Basic crunch

2. Hanging leg raise

3. Side bridge

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

1. Basic crunch: rectus abdominis and transversus abdominis, 12-15 reps, three sets

Starting/ending position: Lying with your back on the floor, place your feet flat on the ground and bend your knees at a 45-degree angle. Place your hands at your sides with your palms facing the floor. Do not bend at the neck and look straight up at the ceiling. Inhale deeply.

Contraction: Bring your shoulders and back up off the floor, bending only at your waist. Let your arms slide down your body as your abdominal muscles contract. Exhale forcefully. In one to two seconds, lift your torso off the floor as far as your abs will take you. Bend only at your waist, not at your hips. Take two to four seconds to return to the starting position.

2. Hanging leg raise: rectus abdominis and transversus abdominis, 12-15 reps, three sets

Starting/ending position: Suspend your elbows in a dip/abs rack and let your legs hang toward the floor. Rest your back against the back support. Grasp the handles firmly and take a deep breath.

Contraction: Slowly bring your legs up to your chest. Bend your knees slightly.

Exhale completely. Take one to two seconds to bring your legs as close to your chest as possible. Hold for a second, then slowly return your legs to the starting position in two to four seconds.

3. Side bridge: external and internal obliques, 30-60 seconds, three sets

Starting/ending position, contraction: Lie on your side. Rest your upper body on your elbow with your arm at a 90-degree angle from your body. Bring your lower body off the ground so the side of your foot and your elbow are the only things touching the floor. Make a straight line with your body from your underarm to your foot. Breathe continuously throughout the exercise.

Trent Scott is a junior in nutrition and exercise science and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | Wildcats to battle Kansas for in-state win, end of streak

Just because the K-State women's volleyball team is at the bottom of the Big 12 Conference does not mean it can't play its way to the top of the state.

The Wildcats (8-9, 0-7 Big 12) already beat Wichita State earlier this year and will look to make it 2-for-2 against in-state rivals when it takes on the Kansas Jayhawks at 7 tonight in Lawrence.

A win against the Jayhawks would put an end to an eight-match losing streak for the Wildcats, and it also would give the Wildcats their first win in conference play this season.

"I think because we have so many Kansas kids on our roster that it will be a big match for them," coach Suzie Fritz said.

K-State at Kansas
Where: Horejsi Family Athletics Center
Time: 7 tonight
Radio: 1350 KMAN in Manhattan
Live stats available at k-statesports.com

The Wildcats have dominated the series over the last decade, winning 19 of the last 20 meetings against the Jayhawks, including 11 straight in Lawrence. Though the Wildcats have struggled lately, the Jayhawks haven't fared much better.

The Jayhawks (8-9, 1-7 Big 12) have lost five-straight matches and eight of their last nine. KU's lone conference win came against Texas A&M Sept. 20.

"KU has always been our biggest rival," junior libero Angie Lastra said. "We just need to stay together, go out with nothing to lose and have a good time."

After playing against some of the best teams in the Big 12 recently — No. 1 Nebraska, No. 10 Texas and Colorado — the Wildcats are hopeful they can beat a team that, right now, seems at their level.

Two players who should give the Wildcats problems are outside hitters Jana Correa and Emily Brown. Correa leads the Jayhawks with a team-high 255 kills and has 21 services aces. Brown averages 3.54 kills per game.

"We feel like if we can do a good job on their outside hitters ... that we can play with them," Fritz said. "We need kind of that 'refuse to lose' type of attitude and enthusiasm."

— Jeffrey Rake

VOL | K-State changes start time for Saturday's match against OU

Saturday's Big 12 volleyball match between K-State and Oklahoma in Ahearn Field House has been moved to 1 p.m. The original time was set to be at 7 p.m., but it would conflict with the 6 p.m. football start time.

The match is part of another "Wildcat Weekend." Fans can bring their football game ticket for Saturday's K-State-Nebraska game and receive entry to the volleyball match in Ahearn Field House for $1.

GLF | Led by Kyle Yonke, Wildcats finish 13th in Alister MacKenzie

FAIRFAX, Calif. — Following a final-round score of 19-over par 303, the K-State men's golf team fell three spots to finish 13th at the Alister MacKenzie Invitational Tuesday.

The Wildcats carded a 54-hole score of 20-over par 872, their second-lowest output of the season. However, low scores were plentiful on the par-71, 6,606-yard Meadow Club. California, who had a 10-stroke lead heading into the final round, held on to take home the team title at 26-under par 826. It's the Bears' second-consecutive victory at the event.

"The guys battled hard," head coach Tim Norris said. "We just had a couple of mishaps here and there, and when the field is so tightly packed together, those add up. The parts are there, but we just need to put it together team-wise in a whole tournament."

California's Michael Wilson carded a 65-67-70—202 (-11) en route to taking home individual honors. He was one of only three golfers in the field to shoot sub-par golf in all three rounds.

Junior Kyle Yonke led the Wildcats after a career-best 54-hole score of 2-under par 215, tying for 22nd overall. The Lubbock, Texas, product originally set his career low of 216 at the Alister MacKenzie last year and matched that score at the Wolverine Intercollegiate this year. It also marks just the second time in his career that he led the Wildcats in an event.

News & Notes

K-State to look for offensive repeat against Nebraska

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The morale of the K-State football team was noticeably higher Tuesday afternoon following a come-from-behind 31-27 victory over Oklahoma State last Saturday. For an offensive unit that has struggled for the majority of the season, K-State will need more of what it saw at the end of that game if it hopes to compete with the high-scoring offense of Nebraska this week, coach Ron Prince said.

"(Nebraska) has a terrific running game, averaging nearly 200 yards per game," Prince said. "It's also a team that has terrific passing efficiency and turnover margin."

Nebraska is leading the conference in scoring offense and total offense, averaging 39.7 points and more than 460 yards per game.

In December 2005, freshman quarterback Josh Freeman, who had verbally committed to Nebraska, signed on instead to play at K-State with new coach Ron Prince.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

FACING AN OLD FRIEND

Quarterback Josh Freeman obviously will have a lot on his mind on Saturday.

Freeman committed to Nebraska the summer before his senior year in high school. However, when Prince was hired by K-State in December, Freeman quickly changed his mind and committed to the Wildcats.

The decision caused a slight feeling of betrayal in "Big Red" country, but Freeman said he will try not to think about the situation during the game.

"I'm not really looking into all of that," Freeman said. "To me, it's just another team. I'll just try to go out and prepare as best I can."

YOU'LL HAVE TO PAY TO SEE

Those who don't have a ticket to Saturday's sellout won't be able to see the game on TV without paying. The game was not picked up by any of the large networks, but it will be shown on a pay-per-view basis on a division of Fox Sports Net.

FISHER SUSPENDED

Prince announced that sophomore running back Parrish Fisher, who has been out with a knee injury for the entire season, has been suspended indefinitely. Prince would not give a reason for the suspension.

GAY POP CULTURE

From a steamy sex scene to a new line of body products, these celebrities have made 2006 a year to remember for the gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender community.

Ellen Degeneres

Occupation: Talk show host, comedian, actor
Best moment in 2006: "The Ellen Degeneres Show" premiered with its highest ratings this September.
Birthdate: Jan. 26, 1958
Hometown: Metairie, La.
Her story: One of Degeneres' first big breaks was on prime-time TV show "Ellen," on which she played fictional character Ellen Morgan. After months of speculation and media frenzy, the character Ellen finally spoke words rarely heard during prime time: "I'm gay." No lead character on a prime-time show had done that before. According to the Associated Press, the episode scored a 26.5 rating and 37 share in Nielsen Media Research's measurements. Although she experienced some backlash for her efforts, Degeneres has remained a hero to most gay and lesbian Americans. According to a 2006 Los Angeles Gay and Lesbian Center poll, DeGeneres' coming out had more effect than any other public figure's.

Rosie O'Donnell

Occupation: Talk show co-host on "The View," actor, comedian
Best moment in 2006: O'Donnell had a juicy sex scene with Julian McMahon on FX Networks' "Nip/Tuck" last week. She played the role of a redneck lottery winner who turned to plastic surgery, pulling the moves on her doctor in revenge against her husband, who is cheating on her with their daughter.
Birthdate: March 21, 1962
Hometown: Queens, N.Y.
Her story: Right before leaving "The Rosie O'Donnell Show" in 2002, O'Donnell confirmed the rumors about her sexuality, declaring she is a lesbian. After some time away from television, O'Donnell returned on Sept. 5 as a replacement for Meredith Vieira as the moderator on "The View."

Elton John

Occupation: Singer, composer, pianist
Best moment in 2006: John started a new candle and potpourri line at Bath and Body Works out last week. About 10 percent of the sales will go to the Elton John AIDS Foundation.
Birthdate: March 25, 1947
Hometown: London
His story: While married to wife Katie, John disclosed his bisexuality in 1976 in a Rolling Stone magazine interview. He married a recording engineer, Renate Blauel, on Valentine's Day 1984, but reportedy divorced four years later. Later, John renounced the bisexual claim and announced he was gay. In 1993, he met his partner David Furnish, a former advertising executive and now film maker, in 1993. On Dec. 21, 2005, they entered into a civil partnership. While John does not have children, he does have 10 godchildren.

Lance Bass

Occupation: Singer, actor
Best moment in 2006: In an interview with People magazine in June 2006, Bass officially announced he is gay.
Birthdate: May 4, 1979
Hometown: Clinton, Miss.
His story: After the media spotlight from 'N Sync ebbed, Bass felt less pressure and told all to People this year. He reportedly plans to tell more in a book about his life as a gay celebrity.

POP CULTURE QUIZ

Test your knowledge of gay pop culture history

1. The Stonewall Inn, a popular gay bar at the time, was raided by the police on June 27, 1969. Instead of passively enduring another raid, the patrons started a riot that marked the beginning of a more public fight for gay rights. The Stonewall Inn was in which city?

A. Washington, D.C.
B. New York City
C. San Francisco
D. Philadephia, PA

2. Dr. Tom Waddell, a member of the 1968 Olympic team, started the Gay Games, an international sporting event held every four years. Originally, it was to be called The Gay Olympics, but the name was changed for which reason?

A. The gay flag contains six colors, and there are only five Olympic rings.
B. "The Gay Games" had a better ring to it.
C. It avoids confusion with the Special Olympics.
D. The United States Olympic Committee requested a federal injunction against using the name "Olympic" for this group.

3. Which is the only city in Kansas to have legislation to prevent discrimination based on sexual orientation in the workplace?

A. Kansas City
B. Wichita
C. Lawrence
D. Salina

4. The first same-sex kiss between two people aired on what TV show?

A. "Ellen"
B. "Will and Grace"
C. "The Simpsons"
D. "Roseanne"

5. The now-familiar Rainbow Flag was first designed by Gilbert Baker in 1978 in San Francisco. The flag now has how many stripes?

A. 5
B. 6
C. 7
D. 8

6. True or False. In 2001, and for the first time in eight years, President George W. Bush refused to proclaim June to be "Gay & Lesbian Pride Month."

A. True
B. False

7. In April 2000, which was the first state to extend marriage rights to same-sex couples?

A. Vermont
B. Hawaii
C. New York
D. Connecticut

Answers: 1. B, 2. D, 3. C, 4. D, 5. B, 6. A, 7. A. Source: www.gay.com.

THIS YEAR... A look at events that influenced the sexual minority population this year in history

1923 1st use of the word "fag"

The word fag is first used in print in reference to gays in Nels Anderson's The Hobo: "Fairies or Fags are men or boys who exploit sex for profit."

The use of the term "gay," as it relates to homosexuality, arises from an extension of the sexualised connotation of "carefree and uninhibited," implying a willingness to disregard conventional or respectable sexual mores. This usage was initially more commonly used to imply heterosexually unconstrained lifestyles.

1924 Founding of 1st American gay rights organization

The first gay rights organization in America is founded in Chicago and is called the Society for Human Rights. The movement exists for a few months before being shut down by the police. Today, there are thousands of local gay rights organizations that have taken its place, including K-State's Queer Straight Alliance.

1978 California man creates 1st version of gay-affiliated flag

The now-familiar Rainbow Flag was first designed by Gilbert Baker in 1978 in San Francisco. The gay flag originally had eight stripes — pink, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. These represented, in order, sexuality, life, healing, sun, nature, art, harmony and spirit. Pink was later dropped because the color was not commercially available for flag manufacturing. Upon the murder of Harvey Milk in 1978, the indigo strip was dropped so the flag could be used in a parade with an equal number of stripes (three per side) on each side of the parade route. The resulting flag has six stripes.

1989 Denmark legalizes same-sex civil unions

Denmark is first country in the world to enact registered partnership laws for same-sex couples, with most of the same rights as marriage (excluding the right to adoption and marriage in a church). Civil unions or domestic partnerships are available in Andorra, Argentina, Brazil, Croatia, Czech Republic, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Iceland, Israel, Luxembourg, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Slovenia, Sweden, Switzerland and the United Kingdom; the Australian state of Tasmania, and the U.S. states or districts of California, Connecticut, Hawaii, Maine, New Jersey, Vermont and Washington, D.C.

1994 ABC's 'Roseanne' airs 1st lesbian kiss

In March 1994, ABC's "Roseanne" became the first prime-time TV show to show a kiss between two women. Some ABC executives were uncomfortable with airing this episode due to the kiss.

The episode shows characters Roseanne and Jackie meeting Nancy's new girlfriend, Sharon. After dancing at a gay bar, Sharon kisses Roseanne, and Roseanne is discomforted by the kiss.

Source: History Channel; Photos: Courtesy art

NUTRITION | Combine protein, carbohydrates for faster refueling

Continued from Page 5

made to increase fat consumption. Limiting intake by consciously consuming low-fat or non-fat foods is important in decreasing excess body fat.

Protein, too, has many contributing functions in exercise and athletic performance. It serves as the structural basis for muscle and other tissue and is necessary for the growth and repair associated with exercise. Although protein can be used as an energy source during exercise, it is not your body's preference. MyPyramid suggests consuming 1.2 to 1.8 grams per kilogram of body weight (your weight in pounds/2.2 = your weight in kilograms).

Consuming carbohydrates with protein, as suggested by the American Council on Exercise, induces faster rates of glycogen refueling within four hours of physical activity than eating one of the two alone.

A small bagel with peanut butter and handful of raisins, a turkey sandwich on whole wheat bread with a cup of applesauce, or spaghetti with meat sauce and garlic bread fulfill the requirements of a snack or meal loaded with the necessary carbohydrates.

If you're looking to increase exercise performance and maximize fitness results, it's time to analyze your eating habits. Take your health to the next level by documenting your food intake for three to five days and compare them to your recommended intakes, which can be found at MyPyramid.gov.

Melissa Haug is a senior in public health nutrition and dietetics and a nutrition consultant and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

FOOD | Investigation finds no link between tainted lettuce, spinach

Continued from Page 1

"The recalled lettuce is marketed under the brand name Foxy Lettuce," said Doug Powell, scientific director of K-State's Food Safety Network. "This is a very proactive and presumptive recall."

The recalled lettuce was sold to grocery stores, restaurants and distributors in six states. Kansas did not receive any of the lettuce in question.

At press time there had been no reports of illnesses or deaths resulting from the recalled lettuce.

The same area in California is still reeling from the mass spinach recalls issued on Sept. 15. The spinach was recalled when E. coli 0157:H7 was traced to fresh spinach sold by Natural Selection Foods in San Juan Bautista, Calif.

"The spinach issue is still not over," Powell said. "Right now there have been 199 people sick. Three, probably four, have died."

Investigators have found no connection between the lettuce and contaminated spinach shipments.

Though there has been no reliable estimate on when California spinach will be safe to eat, the local Dillons food store has put spinach back on its shelves, posting a sign that notes it comes from Colorado.

YOUTUBE | Professors note Google's advantageous move into video

Continued from Page 1

works and movie producers didn't make the purchase.

"What I find interesting is that the major television networks and movie producers didn't buy YouTube, and Google did," MacFarland said. "The traditional TV and movie people probably think the videos on YouTube are unprofessional and silly, and some of them are. But that's not the point.

"The point is, where do people spend the time they allocate for watching videos or movies? Increasingly, it's to online sources. I can imagine Google making YouTube the one-stop, go-to place for anything in video or film. That means that the revenue stream the traditional media could have had will be smaller. They are the only losers I see so far."

Thomas Gould, associate professor of journalism and mass communications, said the key benefit of Google's purchase is that it brings the company into the realm of video.

"I think the real impact on Google is that they finally get into the video area," Gould said. "This is probably a required move on their part, because you know Microsoft will be big in this area. The market seems to be pretty happy in general."

When asked about a comment from Google's Chief Executive Officer Eric Schmidt, in which Schmidt said, "This is the next step in the evolution of the Internet," Gould said the statement was a bold one.

"If it's a step, it's a small step. They've got a long way to go with YouTube to get where they want with that. That's just my opinion. They have a lot of work to do with marketing that. I'd like to see what it is that they plan to do with it, because the word is that they're not making money."

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

KSU - CU Game. Join us for a Buffalo hunt in Boulder! Our chartered bus will leave at 11:00 am, Friday, November 3 and return after the game on Saturday. Travel package includes chartered bus, a double occupancy room at the Westin in Boulder (the team hotel) and game ticket for $220. For reservations please call Kathy Dahnke at GTM Sportswear at 785-537-8822 ext. 1120.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/kstc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

120 Rent-Houses

COUNTRY HOME, 3 bedroom, 2 bath, 2 car garage, outside pets permitted. $475 per month. NE 28 miles. Call 785-532-7569 or 785-396-4577.

130 Rent-Mobile Homes

LOT FOR rent. Private, no other trailers. All utilities, hook- ups. Near Wamego, KS. $175/ month. 785-494-8229.

150 Sublease

2 BEDROOM 1 bath apartment sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600 month, available now, 785-410-7266.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. Four-bedroom duplex. Washer/ Dryer/ Dishwasher. Close to campus. $285 plus utilities call 785-532-9706.

200 Service Directory

235 Child Care

CHILD CARE needed in home, for toddlers ages two to four. Two days per week. 785-341-1550.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

BUSINESS INTERNSHIP! College Pro is a student development company. We coach, train and teach students how to manage a business while in school. Resume builder, valuable skills, competitive money. www.iamcollegepro.com to apply.

COACH: MIDDLE School Assistant Girl's Basketball Coach for Riley County Middle School. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org with mailing address or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HARRY'S SERVER and daytime dishwasher WANTED. Experienced server with friendly, upbeat, eager personality. Flexible availability required. Daytime Dishwasher needed, some night - weekend availability. Apply within 418 Poyntz Avenue.

HELP WANTED for cleaning barn with seven horses. One to one and a half hours daily, except Sundays. Contact Janice Edwards, 785-539-6963.

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

MILL CREEK Valley Schools USD #329 is accepting applications for a Freshman Boys Basketball Coach at Wabaunsee High School. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315 or the District Office at 785-765-3394 for an application.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Kennel, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, Manager, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.-com. Conducting interviews at the Holiday Inn formerly the Ramada Inn 1641 Anderson, October 11th and 12th from 8:30 to 4:30. Visit our site for details.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PART-TIME RETAIL Store Supervisors. If you have retail experience and leadership skills, the K-State Super Store is looking for you! This is a great opportunity if you are currently working in retail and want to get more supervisory responsibility. Pay rate is $8.00 - $9.00 per hour based on experience. Call today, these positions won't be open for long! Please stop by or send resume to K-State Super Store, Attn. Human Resources, 520 McCall Rd. Manhattan Ks, 66502, or e-mail humanresources@igtm.com. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PLANNING COMMISSION / Board of Zoning Appeals Secretary The City of Ogden is accepting applications for the part - time position of Planning Commission / Board of Zoning Appeals Secretary. Duties include attending meetings, taking, preparing and maintaining minutes of the meetings. A pre - employment drug screening may be conducted. Wage is $8.50 per hour. Applications are available at City Hall, 222 Riley Avenue, Ogden, Kansas 66517. Applications are due before Noon, October 17, 2006.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. is accepting applications for a part-time position for a Macintosh technician. to start near the end of October 2006. Work about 10 scheduled hours per week with some additional emergency, maintenance and on-call hours as needed, some of which are at night and weekends. The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance. Troubleshoots and repairs equipment. Assists with maintaining all written and electronic records. Assists with ordering when needed and approved by tech manager or supervisor. Applicants should be familiar with Mac OS X. Unix experience is helpful. Any other knowledge with programming, web page design, Lan, networking would be beneficial. Some familiarity with design software such as Adobe Photoshop, Adobe InDesign and Imageready is helpful. Must be able to follow written and verbal instructions and work well under pressure of a daily deadline and other crisis situations. Dependable and on time for scheduled hours.
Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolled in fall semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.
Application deadline is 5 p.-m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, 2006. Please include your fall 2006 class schedule. Pick up applications in 113 Kedzie. Return applications to 113, 115 or 103 Kedzie.

SWINE HERDSMAN position 15 miles from Manhattan. Full or part-time. Duties include managing finishing units and some crop farming. Mechanical ability and farm experience desirable. Call 785-494-8330 for more information.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

COLD STONE CREAMERY
Now accepting applications for crew members.
Apply at www.coldstonecremery.com

Taking applications for all positions
QUIZNOS SUB MMMH...TOASTY!

400 Open Market

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

WANTED: ONE I-Cat Iowa State ticket. Willing to pay $30. 785-806-1344.

500 Transportation

530 Motorcycles

2002, BUELL Blast, black, 1,000 miles, like new condition. $2350 or best offer. Call 785-458-9105.

Found something
You can place an ad FREE for three days!
Kedzie 103 785-532-6555

785 532 6555

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

INVENTORY PERSONNEL NEEDED
HELP NEEDED to take inventory in retail stores. offering up to 40 hours
STARTING at $8.50/ Hr
If interested, Apply in Person
Wednesday, October 11, 2006
4:30 or 6pm @ the Ramada Inn State Room
QUALITY INVENTORY SERVICES

ADVERTISE.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS • 785.532.6555

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

Reach more readers
Place your classified ad online. Get more bang for your buck.
Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for $2 more.
www.kstatecollegian.com

Reach more readers
www.kstatecollegian.com
Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for an additional dollar.
Place your classified ad online
Get more bang for your buck.

QUIZNOS SUB MMMH...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

6			2		4			8
	8	4	1		7	3	5
		3	8	2	9	6
	7						1
		5	7	1	3	8
	1	2	6		5	9	8
7			4		2			6

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Shay Dodson, senior in history, and Erica Foster, senior in art, have been together for five years.

COMING OUT | Individuals face mixed responses from family, friends

Continued from Page 1

"You often chalk it up to be this huge hype," he said. "People understand that being gay is a small part of your life."

MAGGIE SEBELIUS

Maggie Sebelius, 2005 K-State graduate, came out when she was 21 years old, and one of the biggest obstacles, she said, was herself.

"It took me a very long time to figure out if I was gay," she said. "It just didn't even occur to me."

Sebelius, like Reed, said her response since coming out has been largely supportive.

Even before coming out, Sebelius said her mother and brother had some suspicions.

She came out to her mother before leaving for a study-abroad experience and said her mother took care of telling others while she was gone.

"Well, she knows we love her," was her father's response before he walked out of the room.

K-State's Queer Straight Alliance helped Sebelius in the process of coming to know herself, Sebelius said.

"It helped me find friends, and it helped me realize I'm not alone," she said.

In a sense, Sebelius said, coming out never stops in day-to-day interactions with people.

"It's kind of like you come out every day," she said. "The hard thing would be not being myself."

SHAY DODSON AND ERICA FOSTER

Shay Dodson, senior in history, and Erica Foster, senior in art, have been together for five years. In addition to the standard problems of a long-distance relationship, Dodson and Foster still grapple with coming out.

"Our experiences, in part, were different, because we came out at different levels at different times," Foster said.

When two people in a relationship are at different stages of coming out, such common couple behavior as holding hands in public or dancing together at clubs can take on a new complexity.

"It's really difficult, because it's different levels of comfort," Dodson said.

Comfort is not the only issue. Once when the two were dancing together, they were approached by two men. When they told the men they were a couple, the atmosphere changed, and the two women were asked to leave the establishment.

Since then, Dodson and Foster said they leave most signs of affection at home.

Dodson and Foster said when they first arrived at K-State, it was difficult to find other gay and lesbian couples, but since then, opportunities to meet people have increased.

The couple has founded a group for lesbian, bisexual and transgendered women.

Online

■ See a schedule of events going on today and throughout the rest of October on the web.
www.kstatecollegian.com

Though relationships present their own challenges, Dodson and Foster said having support makes difficult times easier.

"At least we have each other," Dodson said.

Although they are out to their friends, neither has come out to their families and do not think the news will be taken well.

"I know I won't have the support of my parents," Dodson said.

The couple said they hope their experiences will help others who feel they are alone at K-State, and, like all who come out, they hope to take people past the concept of being gay.

"We're not some fringe group of people," Foster said. "We're just people."

RIQUELME | Associate professor researches social issues in Paraguay, state terrorism, Operation Condor

Continued from Page 3

were reclassified," he said.

Riquelme said about 260 documents were removed from the archives, and since then the CIA has issued a "Glomar Response" to many of his requests, which is an official statement that neither confirms nor denies the existence of the documents in question.

Frustrated with the lack of response and continued defeats of Freedom of Information Act requests, Riquelme did what no Hispanic has ever done – he sued the world's largest intelligence agency.

All the work for the case is being done pro bono, or free of charge, by Richard Wilson of American University's Washington College of Law and a contingent of graduate students.

For all his hard work, so far his only reward is a mysterious increase in inspections and interrogations at U.S. airports, resulting in missed flights.

When not relentlessly pursuing government agencies, Riquelme continues his research. He currently is focusing on social issues in rural Paraguay and continuing his research on state terrorism and Operation Condor. In January he will begin phase retirement, where he will teach one semester at K-State and one semester in Paraguay, which is home once again.

"I continue to be a citizen of that country," he said.

For those who work with him, Riquelme's experience and passion make him an indispensable asset.

"I think that he is a very important figure not only for the sociology department but for K-State," Daniel Aguilar, graduate student in sociology, said.

Aguilar, originally from Colombia, said Riquelme helped him with the information and application to come to K-State. He also said Riquelme's point of view, often different from many here in the heartland, has helped open dialogue.

"He's always open for a good discussion," Aguilar said. "That's good from an academic perspective and for the students."

Additionally, Aguilar said Riquelme's teaching style makes occasionally difficult subjects accessible.

"(He can) explain it in a way that you say, 'Oh, now it makes sense,'" he said. "And that's special, not everybody has that."

Regardless of his location, Riquelme said he continues to champion the causes that landed him in a dictator's prison – equality, peace, the environment, democracy and Latin American integration.

"I was not a combatant... I was a progressive scholar, and I continue to be that way," he said.

After years of traveling and two decades of exile from his country, he said the idea of home has changed.

"The term home could be redefined," he said. "Because I was not allowed to go home – home was Paraguay."

And although he never studied there, he finally went to France.

Dependable quality service
✓Let us print your overheads in color.
Claflin Books and Copies

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
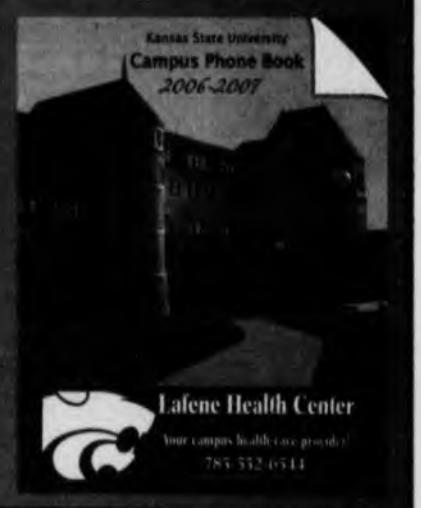
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.



The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS

for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm
Student Legal Services Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 4:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.

HUNAN
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
10% Off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

$1.50 Drinks
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Attention
KSU Departments
Campus Phone Books are NOW available at KSU Office Supplies
Mon. - Fri.
9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

• e-mail listings • phone numbers • campus organizations listings • student handbook • great coupon deals • menu guide • greek guide

The best K-State Football coverage in the land, is in your campus paper.
GAMEDAY 2006
Coming at you every Friday this football season.

K-STATE IDOL

* ALL TYPES OF TALENT WELCOME *
Winner of K-State Idol receives a check for $250
AUDITIONS
Tues OCT 30, 2006
8:00PM • BIG 12 ROOM
K-STATE STUDENT UNION
Entry form must be submitted by OCTOBER 25 by 4:00PM in the UPC Office
APPLICATIONS & INFORMATION AVAILABLE IN THE UPC OFFICE
3RD FLOOR • K-STATE STUDENT UNION • 532-6571
www.ksu.edu/upc

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, October 12, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 39

INSIDE

Like satire? The musical "Urinetown" has plenty of it.

Page 3

Frustration, grudges motivate North Korea's nuclear testing

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The reports of a possible nuclear test in North Korea on Monday have left many wondering about the country's motives.

"There is a little bit of prestige, and they have openly said they want it for defense against the United States, who is making threats," William Richter, professor of political science, said.

Richter, whose area of expertise is South Asian politics, said prestige has been the issue for many countries who have sought nuclear weapons, including India.

"Having nuclear weapons is a sign of being a major power," he said.

It also can be a way to stir up international interest.

President Bush called North Korea's testing a provocative act when he addressed the nation Monday.

In his press conference Wednesday, Bush said there should be serious repercussions for North Korea's actions.

"The United States is working to confirm North Korea's claim, but this claim itself constitutes a threat to international peace and stability," he said.

North Korea's actions also might be a way to return the country to the international spotlight, said Stephen Long, assistant professor of political science, who specializes in international conflict and security studies.

"I think North Korea has been frustrated with the pace of progress in terms of getting things out of the international community," Long said.

"It's a wake-up call and a reminder of how serious this dispute is and how serious North Korea is about changing its relationship with the United States and the international community."

To truly understand the reason behind the proclaimed nuclear test, it is important to look at the history of North Korea, said Randall Cuthbert, author of the book "Peace with North Korea," which is yet to be released.

Relations between the United States and North Korea have been

See KOREA Page 8

Catching cakes

Gary Leitnaker, assistant vice president of the Division of Human Resources, catches a pancake thrown by Gregg Zimmerman, office manager of Chris Cakes, at the All-University Campaign Closing Celebration.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

Pancake breakfast thanks campaign donors

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Pam Boller stepped up to the X-marked spot on the floor and held her plate steady as flying flapjacks came her way. Each one landed with a soft thud, ready to be stacked and smothered in syrup.

Boller, office clerk for the Journalism Education Association, was served breakfast along with other K-State faculty and staff Wednesday morning at Ahearn Field House for the All-University Campaign Closing Celebration.

Boller said she was one of the first people to get pancakes and was a target for the pancake flipper, Gregg Zimmerman, to practice his shots.

"There was wonderful food, and the guy was great at flipping pancakes onto my plate. I think it was a great idea," Boller said.

She said she has family that has donated to the campaign.

Susan Shipman, director of events for KSU Foundation, said the closing celebration was for the campus portion of the Changing Lives Campaign for the month of September.

"We're saying 'thank you' to faculty and staff for their tremendous support of the campaign," Shipman said.

According to the KSU Foundation Web site, the Changing Lives Campaign is the university's first internal fundraising initiative that aims to benefit the university in many ways, including creating scholarship opportunities and ensuring K-State's ability to attract faculty of the highest quality.

See PANCAKES Page 8

Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

Nancy DeWeese, director of donations for the KSU Foundation, prepares to catch a flapjack thrown to her during the All-University Campaign Closing Celebration, Wednesday morning at Ahearn Field House. Attendees had the option to catch flying pancakes.

Health department offers free breast exams to public

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Free breast examinations and instruction on self-examinations will be provided 4-6 p.m. today at the Riley County Health Department, 2030 Tecumseh Road.

The exams are open to the public, and no appointment is necessary. The breast examinations are sponsored through the health department and the American Cancer Society.

Kathy Dickey-Wilson, clinic supervisor at the health department, said women need only come in and be administered a clinical breast examination. If they have insurance, Dickey-Wilson said the health department will give the person a requisition form to make an appointment for a mammogram with their own physician.

Anyone who qualifies for the health department's Early Detection Program will receive assistance through the department to have a mammogram, Dickey-Wilson said.

She said the breast exam does not take more than 15 minutes.

For women older than 50, Dickey-Wilson said it is necessary to have a breast exam annually. For women who are between 40 and 50 years old, the frequency of checks depends on what is found. Family history is also a variable to consider.

Kirsten Bruce, health community manager for the American Cancer

See EXAMS Page 8

K-State receives $12 million to fund defense, biosecurity research projects

By Katelynn Hasler
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State will receive more than $12 million to fund defense and biosecurity research this year.

The U.S. Senate unanimously approved this year's defense appropriations conference report. Kansas will receive more than $4 billion dollars of funding, according to the report. With its money, K-State will conduct research and perform laboratory operations in the areas of food safety, biosecurity and military equipment technology. Surrounding areas, including Fort Riley, also will receive funding.

Each year, K-State requests funding from the federal government in the form of agricultural, educational and defense bills, said Sue Peterson, assistant director to the president and director of governmental relations. With these requests in mind, the government appropriates money to programs all over the country, she said.

The programs for which both K-State and Fort Riley have received funding were pre-existing. K-State has received millions for its projects for several years now, Peterson said.

In part, Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., helped to secure funding for Kansas programs.

"I am proud of the contributions that Kansas makes to our national defense," Roberts said in a press release from his office. "These projects reflect my focus on modernizing and transforming our forces and giving our men and women in uniform the necessary training and equipment to confront future treats, be they conventional or unconventional."

The following are specific programs K-State and Fort Riley will continue with their allotted funding.

Armed Forces Medical and Food Research: $4.03 million

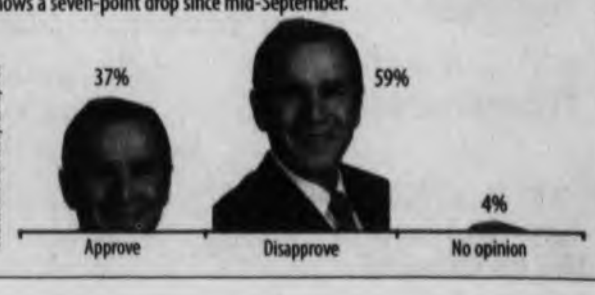
Researchers at K-State's National Agricultural Biosecurity Center

See DEFENSE Page 7

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 54 Low: 31

INSIDE

Childhood fun
Collegian columnist Cedrique Flemming played dodgeball with the K-State Dodgeball Club Tuesday night. Read his story, and how he felt like a child again.
See Sports, Page 6



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Online workshops
There will be two workshops for Internet users today. "Creating online quizzes and exams" will be 3:30-4:30 p.m. today in Fairchild 202. "Creating timed assignments" is 4:30-5 p.m. today in Fairchild 202. Registration is free but required for both events.

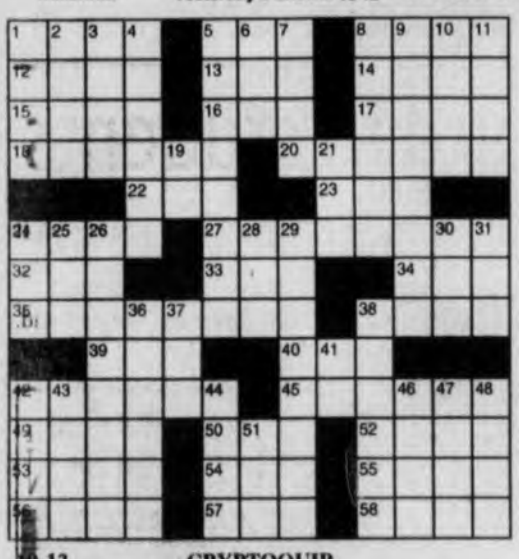
Represent yourself
The Black Student Union and other campus organizations will have a program titled "Represent" 7-10 tonight in Union Station. The free program is to introduce the different multicultural student organizations on campus.

Career services
There will be presentations on student readiness, needs and services 2-4 p.m. today in the K and S Ballrooms at the K-State Student Union. Faculty and academic advisers are encouraged to attend. This is sponsored by the Academic Advising Council.

Bush's job approval rating
The most recent poll on how President George W. Bush is handling his job shows a seven-point drop since mid-September.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Insurrection
5 Light application
8 Logical
12 Start a hand
13 Under the weather
14 Shuffleboard sticks
15 Condescending type
16 Romanian money
17 Big deals
18 Jipijapa hat
20 Winter weasel
22 Snitch
23 Choose
24 Moolah
27 Speeches
32 Eggs
33 Prot. or Cath.
34 Wish otherwise
35 False friend's action
38 Bobcat
39 Many millennia
40 Consciousness component
42 Fancy car
45 Light open carriage
49 Press agent?
50 Faraway transport
52 State with confidence
53 Ptarmigan, for one
54 Neither mate
55 Occupation
56 Emulates Simon
57 Give it a go
58 Vortex

DOWN
1 Grate
2 Kournikova of tennis
3 Pour — (exaggerate)
4 Go ashore
5 Causing delay
6 Pub mugful
7 Off-color
8 Shrimp recipe
9 Perceived by hearing
10 Night light
11 Existence (Lat.)
19 Mid-May honoree
21 Decay
24 Exemplar of patience
25 St.
26 "Jeopardy!" choice
28 Stephen of "The Crying Game"
29 Symbolic tale
30 Conventual
31 Driver's license datum
36 Bout segments
37 Literary collection
38 Venue
41 "Monopoly" corner
42 Triangular sails
43 Met melody
44 Litter's littlest
46 Insatiable
47 Tear in two
48 Deuce beater
51 In favor of

Solution time: 25 mins.

A	L	M	S		A	P	T		P	R	O	D
N	O	E	L		K	E	Y		L	O	B	E
T	O	M	A	H	A	W	K		A	S	I	A
E	M	O	T	E			E	X	C	E	E	D
			E	R	S	T		R	E	B
B	A	L	D		N	O	V	A		O	L	D
U	T	E		D	O	P	E	Y		W	O	O
Y	E	N		O	B	I	T		B	L	U	E
		G	A	M		C	O	A	L
S	I	T	T	E	R			B	O	W	I	E
H	O	H	O		I	N	E	S	C	R	O	W
O	W	E	N		S	A	W		K	I	T	E
W	A	N	E		E	Y	E		S	T	A	R

Yesterday's answer 10-12

10-12 CRYPTOQUIP

MDFBS WRDWHJGLDN CFY LFJDC FB G AKV, FL'C BK VKBNDA F MDSGB LK DYODAFDBWD WRDCC OGFB.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF YOU HAPPEN TO LOVE COOLING DEVICES, YOU SHOULD DEFINITELY BELONG TO A FAN CLUB.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: C equals S

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

What kind of weather are you?

Changing weather could mean changing attitudes. What kind of weather are you?

1. On a rainy day, you're most likely to ...

a. Go play in it, as long as it's a warm rain.
b. Read a good book while snuggled under your covers.
c. Watch the rain push the leaves off the trees.

2. When you woke up Monday morning, you thought ...

a. Ugh, it's too cold outside.
b. Great, my first chance to turn on my space heater and electric blanket.
c. Finally, it's beginning to feel like fall.

3. Your thoughts about the weather during the Oklahoma State game were ...

a. Ah, it's so nice. I can finally show off my beautiful sunburn.
b. It should cool down at least 50 degrees so I can bundle up.
c. Isn't it supposed to be fall?

4. All summer long you were ...

a. Soaking up the rays. You still have the tan to prove it.
b. Thinking you should move to Alaska.
c. Wanting it to be 70 or so degrees every day.

5. Your birthday is ...

a. In the summer.
b. In the winter.
c. In the fall or spring.

6. Your favorite clothes to wear are ...

a. Shorts, a tank top and flip-flops.
b. Jeans with tights underneath and a sweatshirt.
c. Jeans and a long-sleeved shirt.

7. Your favorite sport is ...

a. Baseball.
b. Basketball.
c. Football.

8. Your favorite holiday is ...

a. Independence Day.
b. Christmas.
c. Easter.

If you answered mostly A's, you are a summer person. You would rather soak up some rays than go skiing. It's also not bad because you don't have to go to school.

If you answered mostly B's, you are a winter person. When the first snow crystal drops, you are outside with your sled and snowboots hoping for some fun.

If you answered mostly C's, this is your favorite time of year. You love watching the leaves change colors, and you are always ready for some Wildcat football.

Written by Kristen Roderick | COLLEGIAN

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. Thursdays through Nov. 16 at Lafene Health Center. Vaccines cost $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ Richard A. Marston, distinguished professor and head of the Department of Geography will present "Himalayan Geoscience: A Geographer's Perspective on the MCT Shear Zone" at 4 p.m. today in Thompson 213. The event is sponsored by the geology department.

■ The Fall Education Career Fair is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy is facilitating a public national issues forum on immigration 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday in Union 212. The topic of the forum is "The New Challenges of American Immigration: What Should We Do?" Feel free to bring your lunch and enjoy the discussion.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jin Soo Lee at 1 p.m. Friday in Justin 115.

■ Fans are encouraged to donate canned goods to Cats for Cans Saturday at the Nebraska football game at Snyder Family Stadium. All donations will go to the Flint Hills Breadbasket.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Brian Flock at 1:30 p.m. Monday in Chalmers 36.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Eric Carter at 3 p.m. Monday in Justin 137.

■ The Career and Academic Success Carnival is 4:30-6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Derby ARC. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2005

Are you catching Basketball Fever?

Cure it! Check out the "Madness in Manhattan" issue this Friday with the Collegian!

RAMBLERS Steakhouse & Saloon
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner- 2 complete dinners
$2.00 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

PLANET SUB
537-8SUB
WE DELIVER

The Salty Rim
1204 MORO 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$1 SPIKES
1/2 PRICE MARGARITAS
$2 MICROS & IMPORTS
$2 DOMESTIC BOTTLES
PARTY PIC NIGHT

Thursday Nights @ TUBBY'S Sports Bar
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$2.00 Shots, Wells & Bottles
$2.50 Pounders on Patio
Mon-Tues 4pm-2am
Wed-Sun 11:30-2am
$5.50 Fajita Burger

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

The Wesley at KSU
A United Methodist Campus Ministry
Join us after the Jars of Clay concert for pizza and a celebration with music and scripture.
Sunday, October 15
Immediately following the concert.
College Avenue UMC, 1609 College Ave
(across from the baseball stadium)
www.ksu.edu/umcm

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian's Gameday
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

'Urinetown' songs spoof other Broadway musicals

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The musical satire "Urinetown," presented by K-State Theatre and Dance and the Department of Music, is now playing.

"It's a musical comedy," Elizabeth Sykes, senior in music, said. "It's very, very funny and ironic."

"Urinetown" is the story of one city's struggle with water deprivation after a 20-year drought. As a way to conserve water, the government has banned private toilets.

"All the private toilets are now public toilets," Price Messick, senior in theater, said. "Many of the people are really poor, so a lot of the time they don't have enough money to pee."

If the citizens of the city are caught not using the public amenities, they are sent to the dreadful Urinetown. Finally, a hero emerges to lead a revolution against this corruption.

"'Urinetown' is about big business. It's about love and a struggle between good and evil," Messick said. "A lot of times evil isn't that evil, and the good isn't that right."

Messick will play the role of Bobby Strong, the hero in the musical. He falls in love with Sykes' character, Hope Cladwell, the daughter of the man monopolizing the town, without realizing the girl's identity.

"Hope is a very innocent girl who has a lot of hope for the world," Sykes said. "To her, there's hope for everyone. Everyone has a heart, and everyone is good in her life."

One of the show's playwrights, Greg Kotis, came up with the idea for "Urinetown" while traveling in Europe, where he had to pay to use the restroom.

Along with Mark Hollmann, who wrote the music and lyrics, Kotis worked outside of the box to create an unconventional musical, said Kate Anderson, director of "Urinetown" and director of theater at K-State.

The team did not think the idea would run on Broadway.

"Urinetown" did, however, make it to Broadway, and it has won three Tony Awards.

The musical is full of spoofs on songs from other famous Broadway musicals.

"It's a satire of a lot of other musicals, like 'Fiddler on the Roof,' 'Evita' and 'Les Miserables,'" Messick said.

The cast and crew said "Urinetown" is a show everyone will enjoy and relate to.

"It's hilarious. All the characters have a twist to them," Anderson said. "It's about how problems in life don't always have simple solutions, so I think it's something everyone can identify with."

The cast said it is looking forward to performances after weeks of practicing.

"We're definitely ready; the cast is itching to open the show for the audience," Messick said. "It's probably one of the strongest casts I've ever worked with. The cast is stacked."

"Urinetown" will show in Nichols Theatre.

"We wanted to do it in Nichols Theatre, because it's a very physical show," Anderson said. "The actors are all over the place; they don't stay on the stage."

Elizabeth Sykes, senior in music, plays the part of Little Sally, while Ben Byard, junior in applied music, plays the part of Hot Blades Harry in the musical "Urinetown" Tuesday evening in Nichols Theatre. The show runs at 8 p.m. Oct. 11-14 and Oct. 18-21 with shows at 2 p.m. Oct. 15 and 22.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

High costs for graduate school applications burden students

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After Casey Dobbins finished her undergraduate degree at K-State, she decided to stay at the university to complete her master's degree.

Because she knew which school she wanted to attend for higher education, Dobbins, graduate student in animal science, said the admission process was easier and the cost was lower than they could have been.

"The process was extremely easygoing right into this graduate program," she said. "One application and one application fee."

The total cost of application and fees was less than $100, Dobbins said.

For students interested in the Graduate School at K-State, Scott Schlender, assistant to the dean of the Graduate School, said the process is fairly simple.

"Here, it's not that big of an ordeal," he said.

Schlender said the Graduate School application fee is about $30, and most of the application process happens in various departments, which keeps administrative fees low.

K-State's graduate program does not require the Graduate Record Examination to be taken for all graduate programs, but individual departments may require it.

But now, Dobbins is preparing to finish her master's degree and is looking to continue her education at the College of Veterinary Medicine to obtain a doctorate of veterinary medicine degree.

Dobbins has applied to six veterinary schools across the country – that's six applications, six transcripts and six times the cost.

Dobbins said she has paid about $1,200 for applications, tests and other fees.

The price is increased, Dobbins said, when many of the schools to which she has applied tack on a supplemental application in addition to the main application. The supplemental application requires its own fee.

To add to the cost, Dobbins had to pay to take the GRE.

Dobbins said K-State's new policy allowing current students to get transcripts for free has decreased the overall cost, but one course Dobbins took at the University of Missouri-Kansas City has required about $100 in transcript fees to send documentation to the veterinary schools to which she has applied.

Dobbins said the most difficult part of the process has been checking on all six of her applications simultaneously, ensuring everything is covered.

"The hardest part is making sure you have six of them done," she said. "You're answering essay equestions that are similar. You have to make your own little checklist."

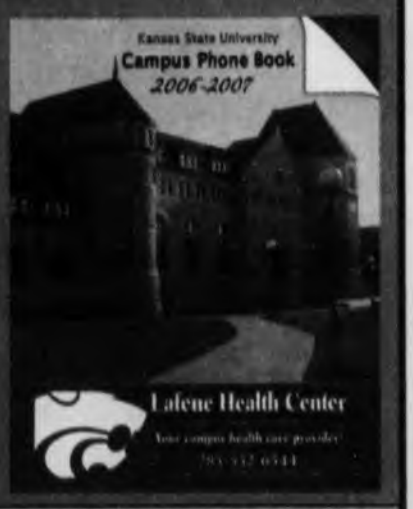
Laura Snyder, senior in biology, applied to five medical schools this fall and said she tried to complete the application process during the summer.

"It's really expensive applying to so many schools," she said.

Snyder said the cost for preparing applications alone has cost her about $600, not including the medical college admission test, which costs $210 to take.

Students also can take an MCAT preparatory class, which costs about $1,000.

So why spend the big bucks?

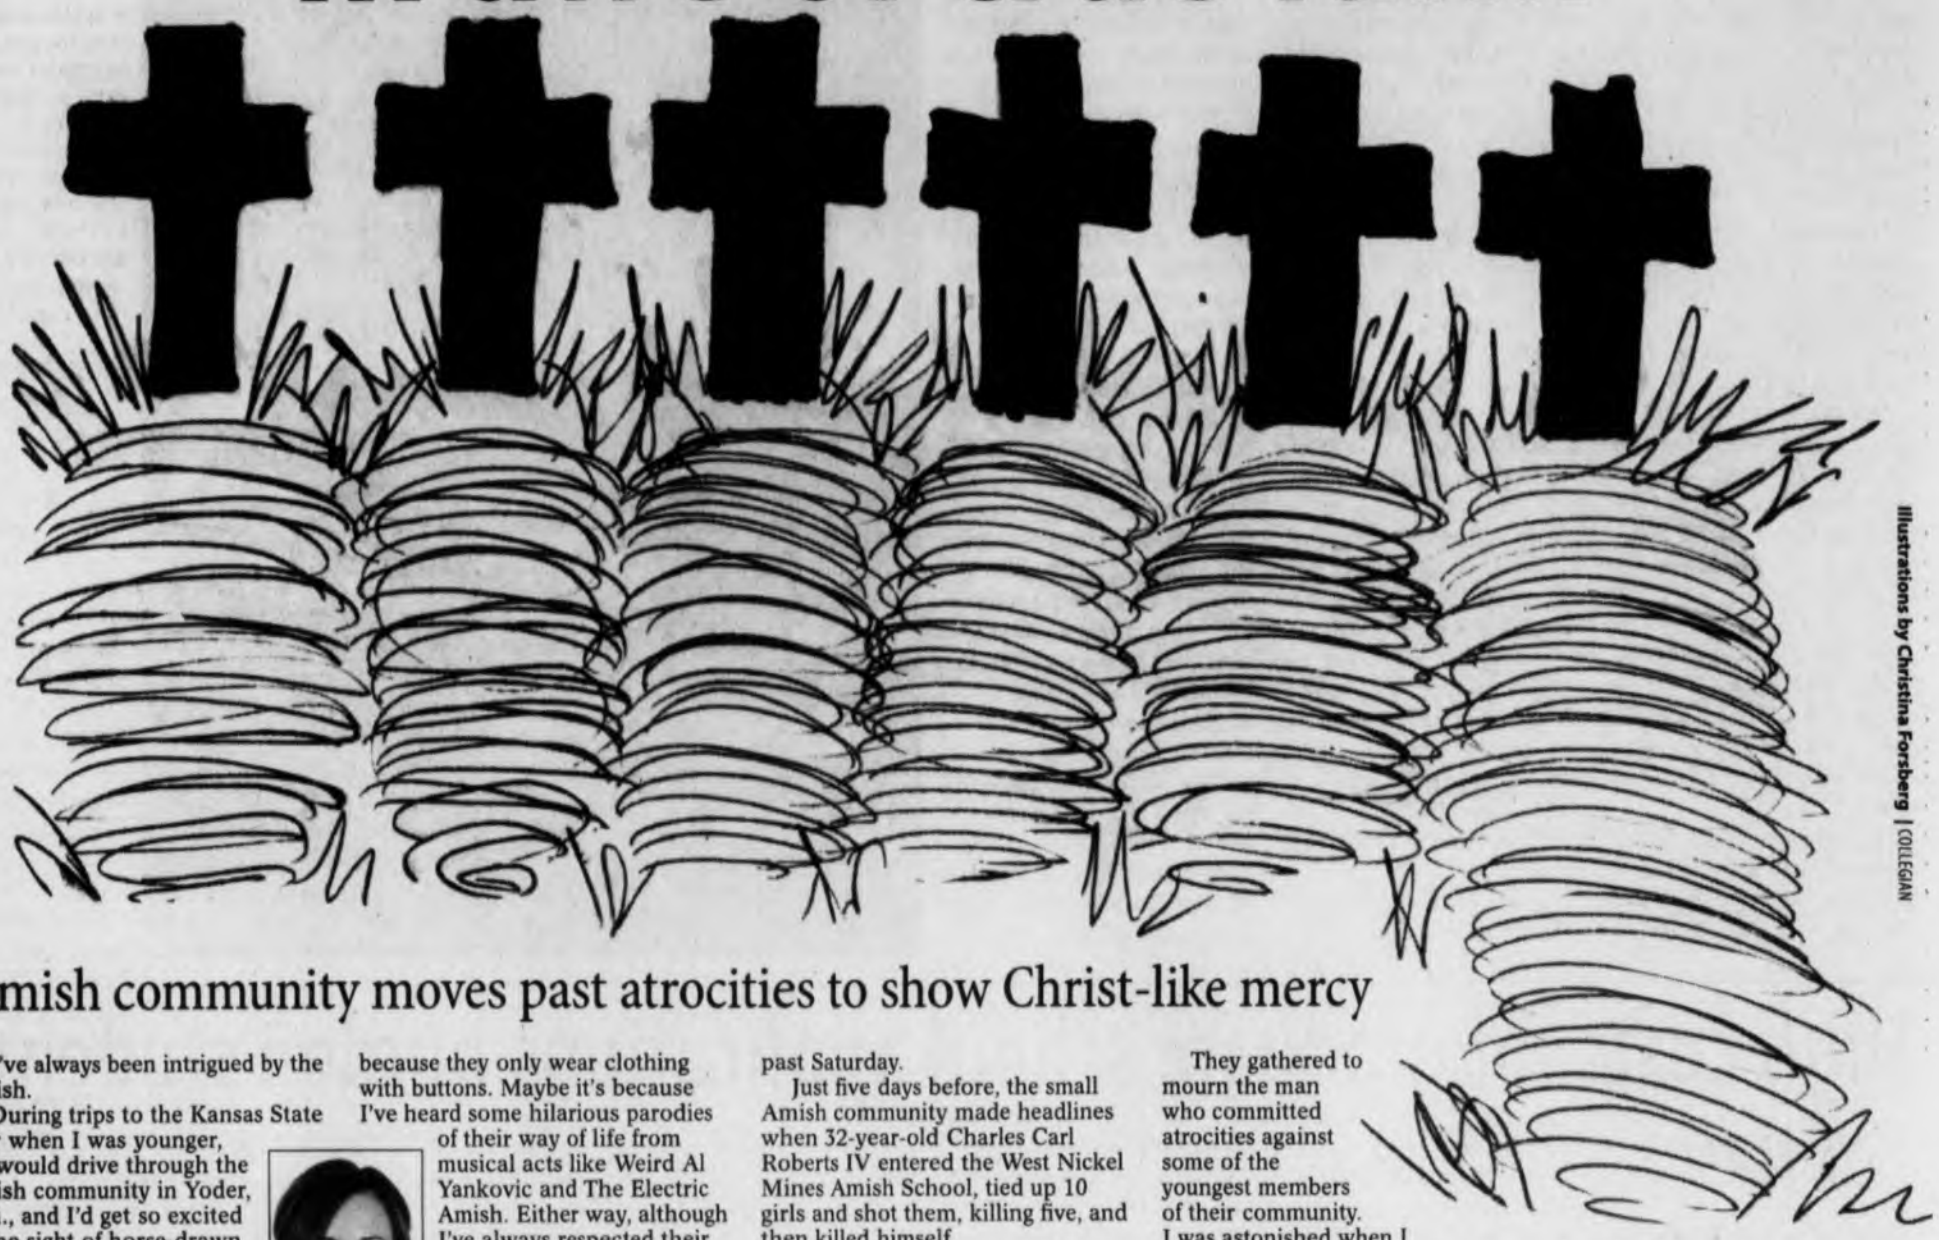


"I think you have to look at the future, and if you get in, it's worth it," she said. "If you don't, then you realize it wasn't meant to be."

But is it worth the cost?

"It better be," Snyder said. "It better be."

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6560
ADVERTISE.



BOO!
To advertise in The Collegian's Halloween editions call 785-532-6560
Halloween is quickly approaching, so check out some of the great deals on costumes, food, and fun in this Friday's HALLOWEEN edition!

Attention
KSU Departments!
Campus Phone Books are NOW available at KSU Office Supplies
Mon. - Fri.
9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

• e-mail listings • phone numbers • campus organizations listings • student handbook
• great coupon deals • menu guide • greek guide comb your hair.

Then, you won't be so worried about how your free Royal Purple yearbook picture turns out.
Come to Rusty's Last Chance Friday, Oct. 13 from 4 - 9 p.m. and take advantage of a $1.50 burger after you get your free picture taken.
Plus, your hair probably deserves it.
Your book. Your story. | royalpurple yearbook.dvd

In awe of true faith

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

Amish community moves past atrocities to show Christ-like mercy

JESSI HERNANDEZ

I've always been intrigued by the Amish.

During trips to the Kansas State Fair when I was younger, we would drive through the Amish community in Yoder, Kan., and I'd get so excited at the sight of horse-drawn buggies and girls my age who looked like they belonged in a book by Laura Ingalls Wilder.

There was a kind of romance to that town, as though time had stopped and protected it from all of the problems associated with modern living.

That's not to say I'm completely in awe of the Amish. Maybe it's because they only wear clothing with buttons. Maybe it's because I've heard some hilarious parodies of their way of life from musical acts like Weird Al Yankovic and The Electric Amish. Either way, although I've always respected their resilience, I find them, quite frankly, a bit odd.

I doubt I am alone in my amused appraisal of the Amish as interesting yet unsophisticated. Access to technology is easily misinterpreted as intellectual superiority, yet nothing could prove just how wrong such attitudes are as what happened in a Georgetown, Penn., cemetery this past Saturday.

Just five days before, the small Amish community made headlines when 32-year-old Charles Carl Roberts IV entered the West Nickel Mines Amish School, tied up 10 girls and shot them, killing five, and then killed himself.

The victims ranged in age from 6 to 13. The funerals for the girls who were killed took place Thursday and Friday, and the other five remain in the hospital, according to CNN.com.

Saturday marked another funeral – this time for the gunman. According to CNN, about 75 people gathered at the small family plot where Roberts was buried.

Half of them were Amish.

They gathered to mourn the man who committed atrocities against some of the youngest members of their community. I was astonished when I read about such an act of forgiveness.

I've never thought it necessary to forego modern conveniences in order to exercise true faith. After this gesture by the Amish, which could only be described as Christ-like, I'm not so sure. Maybe they've got the right idea.

Even with all of my modern superiority, I wouldn't be capable of such old-fashioned love and mercy. I doubt most people would.

I have a different attitude toward the Amish now – total respect and complete humility. Those black buggies with the big orange triangles aren't so funny anymore.

Jessi Hernandez is a junior in English. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Democrats can use Foley scandal to prove Republican misconduct

SCOTT GIRARD

My political dreams are actually starting to come true. The Republicans are being bombarded with a variety of sex scandals and financial issues. Many are starting to lose ground in their races for the U.S. Congress and Senate, and they are becoming the poster children for a need for change on Capitol Hill.

Although the stage has been set for a Democratic takeover, in light of the Foley scandal, Democrats need to be careful how they use the issue as leverage in the upcoming election.

However, Democrats cannot use this issue as a political crutch. This is not a significant issue compared to healthcare, education and the economy.

If Democrats want to leave a real impression on their constituents, they need to link the actions of Foley to other situations that will prove Republican misconduct. They then will need to explain specifically how they will change the process, but the traditional issues should remain the focal point.

Too often, politicians do not explain their true intentions and views to the people, especially with these issues. That was one of John Kerry's many campaign problems.

Democrats cannot generalize the Foley issue to all Republicans. Even if conservatives are shady characters, most of them don't molest Congressional pages. Some are actually quite good people.

Many liberal blogs and Web sites have been attacking conservatives, and many of these attacks are unwarranted.

"Do conservative Christians have a predilection toward pedophilia?" was one of the titles that really struck me. Claims like this one from Americablog, a predominant liberal blog, are the reason many people ridicule and dislike the liberal public.

Voters should not vote against a candidate just because they do not want him or her in Congress. Politicians must grab the attention of voters, not manipulate their emotions to garner as many votes as they can.

There is no question the Foley scandal will hurt the Republican party. According to a NY Times/CBS poll, Bush's approval rating is at 34 percent, down from 37 percent in September, and half of the people responding said they would vote for a Democrat.

Yet Democrats need to understand this is not a long-term political issue. This is an issue for former Congressman Foley and the boys toward whom he acted inappropriately.

Politicians have lost many citizens' interests because they have not been able to connect with the average person. Many see politicians as rich snobs who do not care to help them.

People need to look through the political smut, examine the true issues and vote according to their own views.

Scott Girard is sophomore in pre-journalism and mass communication. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Current, future students responsible to maintain success of alumni campaign

The K-State alumni have spoken by donating nearly $1 million to the Changing Lives Campaign since last month.

Their contributions will be an asset to both current and prospective students.

Nearly $420 million has been raised through the campaign since July 2000.

Students will see these donations in scholarships and facilities upgrades. It is greatly appreciated by those who need scholarships.

Many students have at least three years remaining at K-State, and many depend on scholarships, some of which are given by the KSU Foundation.

If the Changing Lives Campaign didn't exist, there are students who wouldn't be able to study at this university.

After graduation, students go their separate ways, but we encourage them to donate to the foundation. They might have loans to pay off, but after they do, they should use part of their paychecks to do what alumni are doing now.

It is the students' duty to keep this tradition going.

If someone paid for their education through scholarships, they should want to do the same for a future student someday.

Students need to keep the Changing Lives Campaign a successful tradition at K-State.

The students who go to K-State now can help change future students' lives by donating to the campaign.

CAMPUS FOURUM
395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

To the Australian exchange student in the Derb: hello.

Pedestrians beware. I have a bicycle, and I'm dangerous when on it.

I answered a question on my Psych 430 test today with "Chuck Norris" and got full points.

There goes Scott Girard again, whining about stuff he doesn't know about.

To the guy who always harasses the ice cream girl outside of Ackert, just so you know, as soon as you left, she and her friend were making fun of you.

If the Yankees fire Torre, hopefully Kansas City can get him.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

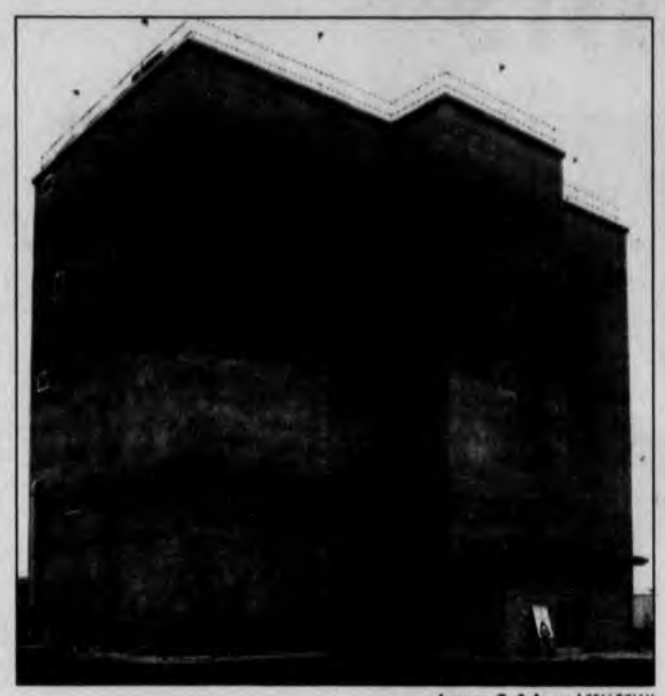
Clue Me In:
Flour mill added to complex

By Logan C. Adams
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN



What is that tall building being constructed north of Snyder Family Stadium on Kimball Avenue? – John Ford, freshman in open option

It's a flour mill. The five-story mill was built for K-State's Department of Grain Science and Industry and will be the third of five buildings in the department's Grain Science Complex.

Two buildings in the complex, the Bioprocessing and Industrial Value Added Program building and the International Grains Program Conference Center, are complete.

Fred Fairchild, professor of grain science, said the department has a flour mill in Shellenberger Hall, but it was built in 1960. He said the new one will have twice the capacity and the latest milling technology.

K-State is the only university in the world with a grain science department, Fairchild said, and it is well-known in the industry.

Logan C. Adams | COLLEGIAN
The Department of Grain Science's new flour mill north of Snyder Family Stadium, across Kimball Avenue.

"We're looked at worldwide for people to run the mills and manage mills," he said.

Representatives of global companies will be at K-State when the mill is dedicated Oct. 20, Fairchild said.

He said the last two buildings for the complex, a feed mill and a teaching and research building, will be completed once funding has been secured.

Clue Me In is the Collegian's question column. If you have a question you need answered, send it to Public Editor Logan C. Adams.

Documentary examines struggle to balance sexuality, spirituality

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After he told his father he was giving up on trying to "go straight" by participating in an ex-gay program, Peterson Toscano was surprised by his father's response.

"Well, son, you did your best," his father said. "Besides, you can't make a fish fly."

That was the central message of the documentary film "Fish Can't Fly," which shows people struggling to find peace as both homosexuals and Christians.

More than 20 people gathered last night at the First Congregational Church to watch the movie as a part of National Coming Out Week.

"I really enjoyed it," Anthony Garcia, junior in mass communications, said. "It showed a lot of aspects of coming out - the good side and the bad side.

"One of the big things we struggle with in the gay community is religion. It's nice to see what's happening."

The 2005 film, directed by T. Joe Murray, explores the struggles of gay men and lesbian women as they attempt to reconcile their sexuality and their spirituality. Specifically, the movie examines people who attempted to become straight, because they thought homosexuality was wrong.

"I worried that I had let God down," Wade Richards said, crying, in the movie. "Why would such a loving God give me such attractions? I didn't ask for this. I didn't ask to be gay.

"Now, I've made the proactive choice to say, 'You know what? I'm not a sinner because I'm a homosexual.'

"It was just such a relief to know that it was OK, that I was OK."

Many in the audience felt they could relate.

"Whether you are involved in an ex-gay movement or not, you lose time reconciling your faith with your sexual orientation," Jo Foy, instructor in secondary education, said. "I lost 17 years from the church. I was a faithful person, but I could not reconcile the church with my sexual orientation."

Foy said when she first returned to a church, the Metropolitan Community Church in Wichita Falls, Texas, in 1997, she burst into tears.

"God, I thought I had died and gone to heaven," she said. "Those kinds of movements, as well as the growth of open and affirming congregations, are making the difference, telling people that God loves everyone."

Mary Ray, senior in psychology and member of the First Congregational Church, said the movie had a good message for people who are trying to come out or who are questioning their sexuality.

"I'm glad to see there are things helping people to see that being gay is not related to devil worship or sin," she said. "Some of the best Christians I know are in the gay community."

Alley Stoughton, associate professor in computing and information science, organized the event. He said the church showed a film called "Shades of Gray" last week, which addressed the fight against Lawrence's anti-discrimination policies related to sexual orientation.

"It was interesting, because it was so similar to what is happening in Manhattan now," he said.

Many of the conservative Christians who spoke out about the proposed ordinance were hateful, Stoughton said.

"They compared homosexuality to necrophilia and bestiality," he said. "They say to love the sinner and hate the sin, but I think it must be hard for gay Christians to feel like they aren't being hated."

Stoughton said he knows of a few churches in Manhattan that are openly accepting of gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender people, including First Congregational Church, Unitarian Universal Fellowship and the Lutheran Campus Ministry. He said there probably are varying degrees of welcome.

"Being in Kansas, maybe you have to look a little bit harder," Garcia said of finding an accepting church. "Not one church has all the answers."

Ray said one of the most powerful moments of the film was the mention of a poem by Audre Lorde, a self-described black lesbian, mother, warrior and poet.

"Be who you are, and you will make a powerful message for change," Ray said.

A movie about Lorde, called "The Edge of Each Other's Battles: The Vision of Audre Lorde" will be shown at 7 p.m. Friday at First Congregational Church.

225 people to taste food, wine in 2nd Promenade on Poyntz

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tickets sold out in four days for the second annual Promenade on Poyntz, which is 5:30-8 p.m. today.

The wine and food tasting event that takes place at 10 downtown businesses sold 225 tickets at $25 each, only four days after they went on sale, just after Labor Day.

Promenade on Poyntz is a part of the Flint Hills Festival of Wines and benefits Manhattan's Homecare and Hospice. The money is almost entirely profit, since all food and wine is donated.

Ten businesses will participate in the event, and local restaurants cater food at each of the stops. Standard Beverage Corporation will provide wine for each of the businesses.

"There has been a lot of interest in the event," said Chris Nolte, director of foundation development for Homecare and Hospice.

"Each business will have a different red and white wine and hors d'oeuvres to match. It's fun for people to walk around downtown and get to try different wines."

Participating businesses and their caterers

Celebrations of the Heart: chocolate fountain
Danenberg Jewelers: Mercado
GAIA: Emerald City Market
Geometrics: Fourth Street Cafe
J&C Imaging: J&C Imaging
Lilacs on the Prairie: The Li'l Grill
Steve's Floral: Carlos O'Kelly's
Strecker-Nelson Gallery: 4 Olives Wine Bar
The Trust Company: Ramada Plaza
Wildflower Yard & Knitwear: Magpie Market
Homecare and Hospice: coffee and desserts

Nolte said the event sold 200 tickets in its first year, so organizers decided to add another 25 tickets to accommodate people who wanted to attend.

"It's a really neat atmosphere," Nolte said. "It's a neat way to learn about wine."

She said most attendees are from Manhattan, but since the hospice serves people in a 30-mile radius, many also come from surrounding areas.

"We have people come from even as far away as Clay Center," Nolte said.

Though tickets are no longer available for Promenade on Poyntz, Nolte said there will be two larger Flint Hills Festival of Wines events at the beginning of March. There they serve a larger dinner and wine tasting.

Patrons may reserve tickets now by calling Homecare and Hospice at (785) 537-0688.

ROYAL PURPLE
we've got the stories you've got to read
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103.

Read the Gameday edition Fridays before home games.

hungry? check out the Menu Guide in back of the Campus Phone Book Available in Kedzie 103 Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

XL
Extra-Large Cheese Pizza
only $5.99
GUMBY'S Pizza
DELIVERY HOTLINE!
770-333

L O C A T E D
THE CROSSWORD ON PAGE TWO
YET ANOTHER DIVERSION FROM A PRODUCTIVE DAY
THE COLLEGIAN, 110 YEARS OLD AND STILL RUNNING STRONG

WIN A FREE PITA A WEEK FOR A YEAR!
Design our LOCAL Pita and win one FREE Pita a week for a YEAR!
Stop by Pita Pit and fill out an entry form by 10/15.
537-3995
Aggieville • 1131 Moro
The Pita Pit
LESS THINKING HEALTHY EATING

The Columbian Theatre
In Partnership with PRESENTS:
The Wizard of Oz
"Are you a Good witch... or a Bad witch?"
Show Dates and Times
October 6-8, 12-15, 19-22, 26-29, 2006
Thursday, Friday, Saturday: Dinner at 6:00 pm. Show at 7:30 pm.
Sunday: Dinner at 12:30 pm and Show at 2:00 pm.
Become a Member :: Select Your Seats Purchase Your Tickets Online at: www.columbiantheatre.com
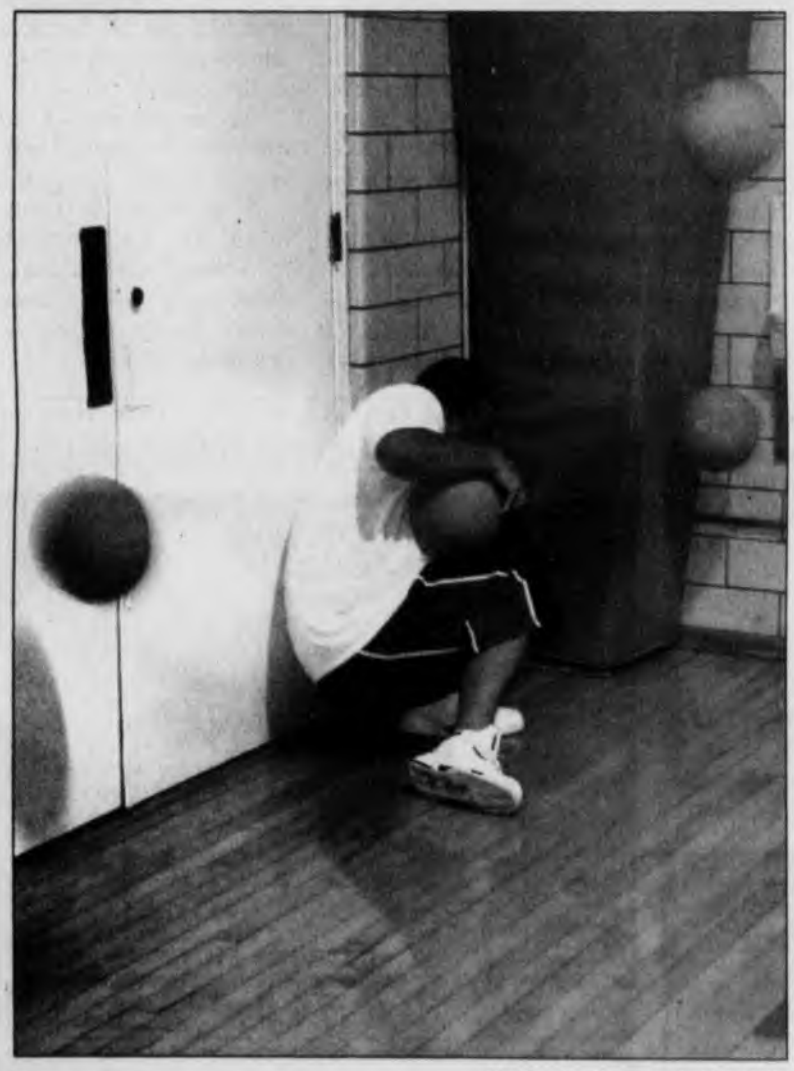
THE COLUMBIAN THEATRE :: 521 LINCOLN :: WAMEGO, KS
785.456.2029 :: 800.899.1893
Music and Lyrics of MGM Motion Picture Score by: Harold Arlen and E.Y. Harburg
Based on the book by L. Frank Baum

WHEN YOU'RE DONE READING ALL THE ARTICLES, DON'T FORGET TO WASTE MORE TIME IN LECTURE BY DOING THE
SUDOKU
LOCATED IN THE COLLEGIAN'S CLASSIFIEDS SECTION



Dodge this

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Levi Rokey, junior in American history and political science, takes balls from the center line during a round of dodgeball Tuesday evening. Rokey has been a member of the Dodgeball Club for a little more than a year.

Dodgeball Club gives columnist bumps, bruises, recess from real world

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Collegian sports reporter Cedrique Flemming dodges an array of balls thrown at him during Dodgeball Club Tuesday evening.

I felt like a heavyweight boxer after a 15-round bout.

My arms were weary from throwing so many punches, and my legs were weak from dancing around the ring for so long.

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

I even have a nasty cut above my right eye that was bleeding pretty badly at the time. The blood started to seep into my eye and was blurring my vision.

These were just some of the highlights of my first experience with K-State's Dodgeball Club.

I heard about the club from a friend of mine and figured it would be pretty cool to take a night away from my busy life and go back to being a kid again.

I miss those days when we didn't have a care in the world, and for a couple hours of the day, we were able to participate in physical education class and have recess.

So Tuesday night I laced up my fighting shoes and made my way to Ahearn Field House to take on some of the weekly regulars.

The first couple of games went by pretty fast, and I just stayed towards the back to get a feel for the opponents.

Dodgeball Club

When: 9-11 p.m. Tuesdays
Where: Ahearn Field House
For more information, contact Dodgeball Club President Brian Yates at bmy@ksu.edu.

My team won the first two games, and I would like to think I contributed to those victories.

We had some pretty aggressive guys, but I was most impressed by the fact that nobody got frustrated when we were low on players. Everybody just kept fighting and trying hard to get the win.

My approach to the game has not changed since I began playing way back when.

I know I don't have a cannon for an arm, so I like to hang out and wait for the other players to come after me.

I don't know what it is, but I can catch almost anything thrown at me. It's this uncanny ability I have always had, which probably stems from my younger years when everybody was always gunning for me. I had to learn how to catch really well, and it's paid off.

Now don't get me wrong; I got a few good throws in there, too, but I usually just waited to catch a ball.

See DODGEBALL Page 8

Wildcats lose hard-fought Sunflower Showdown

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The losing streak continues.

After more than a month without a win, the K-State women's volleyball team was hoping for one against its in-state rival Wednesday night.

It didn't happen.

The Wildcats (8-10, 0-8 Big 12) lost to Kansas 3-1 (30-26, 28-30, 28-30, 20-30) in Lawrence, extending its losing streak to nine matches. The Wildcats have not won since Sept. 9, and they are in the middle of their longest losing streak since 1993, when they lost 16 straight matches.

But the Jayhawks didn't win easily.

The win was only the second in the last 12 games at home for Kansas (9-9, 2-7 Big 12) against K-State.

The Wildcats got off to a fast start in the opening game, something they have been unable to do since conference play began.

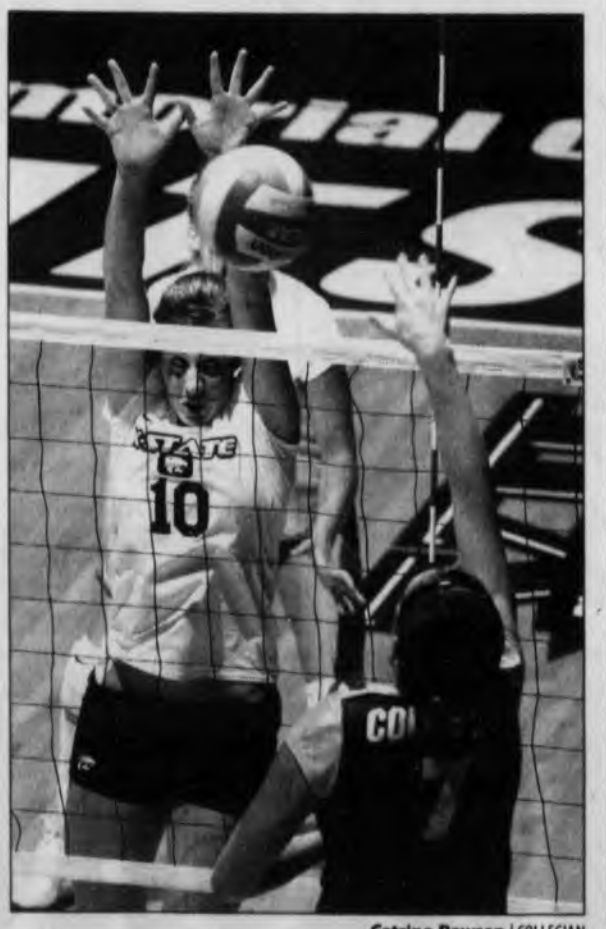
They took leads of 10-4 and 19-15, outhitting the Jayhawks and forcing them into several errors. The Jayhawks were able to pull within one at 22-21, but the Wildcats went on a small run and never lost the lead.

Junior libero Angie Lastra and freshman middle blocker Kelsey Chipman combined for seven kills in game one.

Game two was perhaps the most back-and-forth game the Wildcats have played all season. Neither team led by more than three points throughout, and the score was tied 13 times.

Late in the game and clinging to just a 23-21 lead, the Wildcats gave up four straight points to the Jayhawks and trailed 25-23. A few Jayhawk attack errors and kills by Lastra and sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker tied the game at 27. But the Jayhawks scored three of the next four points and won 30-28.

After the break, the Wildcats could not regroup in the third game, losing 30-28 despite out-hitting the Jayhawks (.273 to .256) and committing fewer errors (six to eight).



Lastra had a season-high seven kills in the game, but the Wildcats did not have an answer for a pair of Jayhawk outside hitters – Emily Brown and Brittany Williams – who finished the night with a combined 36 kills.

The fourth game belonged to the Jayhawks, who took an early 10-3 lead and never looked back.

The closest the Wildcats came the rest of the way was 11-9, but the Jayhawk attack proved too much.

Lastra finished the game with a double-double, recording a team-high 20 kills and notching 17 digs for the Wildcats.

Coach Fritz and players were unavailable for comment after the game.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Sophomore outside hitter Jenny Jantsch goes up for a block during K-State's three set loss to Colorado on Oct. 7.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | K-State game at Missouri scheduled for 1 p.m. start time

The K-State Athletics Department learned Wednesday that the Wildcats' football game at Missouri on Oct. 21 has been set for a 1 p.m. (CST) kickoff at Ferrot Field by MU Athletics officials.

The game was not selected for either over-the-air or cable television distribution by the Big 12's television partners, and there is no live television available for the contest.

Missouri did consider the option of a pay-per-view telecast but eventually decided against it, as plenty of tickets remain available for the game, according to the MU Athletics Department.

The game will air live over the 31-station K-State Sports Network, with Wyatt Thompson calling the action and former K-State quarterback Stan Weber providing the analysis.

K-State will put a 13-game winning streak vs. Missouri on the line when the Wildcats visit Columbia, Mo., on Oct. 21.

HKC | K-State roller hockey club wins 1 of 4 games in tournament

The roller hockey club traveled to Denver on Oct. 1 and came away with one victory and three losses in its pre-season tournament.

"It was not as good as we had hoped, but for a pre-season event, it was good," said Jerry Remsbecker, coach and faculty adviser for the roller hockey club.

In the first game of the tournament, K-State tied 5-5 with Arapahoe Community College, in Littleton, Colo., but allowed a goal in the last 30 seconds, ant lost by a goal.

In the second game, the Wildcats lost 8-0 to Colorado's A team.

The lone win during the tournament came in the third game against Colorado's B-1 team. K-State won 10-6.

"We could have beat them 20-6, but I played everyone," Remsbecker said. "Once we had a lead, I started using people that could use the experience. You could see the relief (of winning) in the players."

The final game was a 4-2 loss played against Colorado's B-2 team. It was a close game that could have gone either way, Remsbecker said.

"They got the bounces, and we didn't," he said. "We out-shot them 36-12 in that game. We controlled the game, but they had some unbelievable luck."

— Wendy Haun

Associated Press

MLB | Yankees' pitcher Lidle killed in single-engine plane crash

NEW YORK — A small plane carrying New York Yankee Cory Lidle slammed into a 50-story apartment building Wednesday after issuing a distress call, killing the pitcher and a second person in a crash that rained flaming debris onto the sidewalks and briefly raised fears of another terrorist attack.

Lidle

A law enforcement official in Washington said Lidle — an avid pilot who got his license during last year's offseason — was aboard the single-engine aircraft when it plowed into the 30th and 31st floors of the high-rise on Manhattan's Upper East Side. Mayor Michael Bloomberg said both people aboard were killed.

Lidle's passport was found on the street, according to a federal official, speaking to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity. It was not immediately clear who was at the controls and who was the second person aboard. There was no official confirmation of Lidle's death from city officials.

Federal Aviation Administration records showed the plane was registered to Lidle, who had repeatedly assured reporters in recent weeks that flying was safe and that the Yankees — who were traumatized in 1979 when catcher Thurman Munson was killed in the crash of a plane he was piloting — had no reason to worry.

"The flying?" the 34-year-old Lidle, who had a home near Los Angeles, told The Philadelphia Inquirer this summer. "I'm not worried about it. I'm safe up there. I feel very comfortable with my abilities flying an airplane."

"No matter what's going on in your life, when you get up in that plane, everything's gone," Lidle told a Comcast SportsNet interviewer while flying his plane in April.

House given as prize for essay

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

College students can do a lot with $100. They could get a $500,000 house, for instance.

In Naples, Fla., the average home price is $269,338, almost $100,000 above the national average. But the home of Ruth Lundi and David Chatwick far exceeds normal.

It's a 1,500-square foot, three-bedroom, two-bath, bamboo-floored house, sitting on a 5.15-acre piece of property flanked on two sides by creeks.

This potential Margaritaville is up for grabs, and the new owner will pay the princely sum of $100.

That's no typo; all the zeros are in place – $100.

According to Lundi and Chatwick's Web site, a March 2005 appraisal valued the property at $450,000. After the appraisal was finished, the couple poured $100,000 into renovations.

Chatwick and Lundi are moving to Europe. Rather than sell their house, they are having an essay contest. Convince them in 250 words or less that the house should be yours, and it will be.

All entrants need is a compelling reason and the $100 entrance fee. Chatwick and Lundi even pay the closing costs. For those with more than one reason in mind and more than one Ben Franklin in their wallet, multiple entries are accepted.

Of all the ways to move a half-million dollar house, why did the couple choose an essay contest?

"Quite frankly, we stand to make more money on it," Lundi said.

Naples, like many communities, is facing a glut of housing. So much, in fact, that there are more houses for sale than potential buyers.

Sound easy? Careful. A 250-word essay ends, exactly, here.

But the couple is not looking to lose money on the house, and if fewer than 6,000 entries are received, the winner will receive 25 percent of the gross collected entry fees, and as a last resort, the house will be put on the market.

Although this is the couple's first experience running a contest like this, Lundi has experience from the other side.

"I actually entered one 13 years ago for a bed and breakfast in Maine," she said.

Lundi and Chatwick have even gone to extra lengths to prove the authenticity of the contest. The couple had local news stations out for an investigative report.

As part of a continuing media campaign, Chatwick will interview with the BBC on Oct. 23, and a network television morning show will broadcast live from their house 6-9 a.m. Nov. 20.

"It's a fun, creative thing to do," Lundi said. "We're working our tails off."

The effort is, admittedly, Lundi's brainchild, but Chatwick said being along for the ride is great fun as well.

"I'm game," he said. "I love my wife, and she's extremely enthusiastic about it."

The deadline to enter the contest is Jan. 31, 2007, and winners will be published by March 14, 2007. For every online registration, $1 will be donated to Eric's Friends, an American Cancer Society Relay for Life team named after Lundi's son, who died of cancer at age 11.

"It's a fun idea; it's unique; it's clever; we've got time," Lundi said.

Although no entries have come in yet, Lundi said 90-95 percent of entries for these contests are received within the last two weeks.

"I just like the whole idea," Chatwick said. "I like the idea of someone being able to win this place."

On wheels

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
K-State President Jon Wefald rides his bike near Ward Hall Monday evening. Wefald rides his bike around campus as his daily workout.

DEFENSE | Federal funding used to study food safety, weaponry

Continued from Page 1

are investigating diseases that could affect soldiers' food and health while abroad.

"We have military personnel stationed all over the world," said Marty Vanier, associate director of the biosecurity center. "We need to be aware of threats or diseases that could affect our soldiers in other countries."

Right now, a significant concern is zoonotic diseases, Vanier said. These are diseases that can be transfered between animals and humans.

At this point, researchers are just looking at reports and continuing ongoing research, Vanier said. Laboratory work within the biosecurity center will be conducted later, as the project progresses.

Biosecurity Research for Soldier Food Safety: $1.3 million

This project is different from, but closely related to, the previous one, Vanier said.

The government has specific, required tests and guidelines to ensure the safety of military food. Right now, researchers from K-State's biosecurity center are working in cooperation with researchers at a government lab in Massachusetts. Together, they are looking for ways to improve existing food safety tests and to create more, Vanier said.

This project also is still in the researching and reporting stage.

"As we extend the project, it is very likely that we will move into the biosecurity research center for lab work," Vanier said.

Urban Operations Laboratory: $7.15 million

For this project, teams of faculty and students are organized to complete research in labs around campus, said Blase Leven, assistant director of the Urban Operations Laboratory. They develop technologies that are used to create new military weaponry or to improve existing ones.

"We evaluate and develop new military technology to give our military forces an advantage when they're fighting in urban environments," Leven said.

Some projects in progress include work on improved bomb detection and new use of nanotechnologies, which focus on materials and devices on an especially small, or nano, scale.

Researchers are looking for ways to use nanotechnology to create luminescent capsules, Leven said. These capsules could be spread across the ground and observed from a safe distance. When a person or vehicle passes over, they will emit a low light that can be seen with night vision goggles. This could allow soldiers to know when areas have been tampered with and perhaps set with bombs, so they can exercise more caution in those areas, Leven said.

The defense appropriations funding will allow several new research projects to be started. The same nanotechnology could be used to create smoke that hides military personnel, stops vehicle engines or stuns and disorients with flashes and loud noises, Leven said.

The laboratory also develops software to ensure new weaponry is environmentally friendly and won't contaminate the area in which it is used.

Fort Riley Parents as Teachers: $1 million

This program is coordinated in cooperation with Unified School District 475.

Its goal is to work with parents to help them realize how they can better be a pre-schooler's first teacher, Charles Volland, the district's communication coordinator, said.

The school organizes training sessions and informational meetings for parents to give them ideas on how to do this, Volland said. Supervised play time for the children is provided during parent meetings.

A LOT CAN BE SAID ABOUT A LITTLE BIT OF SPACE.....
IT WORKS
To give it a try, call or stop by Collegian advertising
103 Kedzie 532-6560

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
"She was a beautiful bride."
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103.
To advertise, call 532-6560.

WALK-ON TRYOUTS
OCTOBER 16, 7:30PM
BRAMLAGE COLISEUM
PICK UP A REGISTRATION FORM IN THE MEN'S BASKETBALL OFFICE & RETURN IT BY NOON OCTOBER 13
KANSAS STATE BASKETBALL
YOU MUST HAVE A PHYSICAL & PROOF OF INSURANCE. FOR MORE INFO, CALL BRENDAN FOLEY AT 532-6531

dependable, quality service
color copies
Claflin Books and Copies

Porter's
50¢ TACOS Hard & Soft
$3.00 Jager Bombs & Red Bull and Vodkas
$2.00 Import Bottles & Micros
$1.50 Any Pint
$3.00 Any Sandwich
11-2 (Open @ 11)

Mondays mean Menu Mania
Every Monday look in the Collegian for the hottest deals from the hottest restaurants
To advertise in Menu Mania, Call 785-632-6560

THURSDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 FISH BOWLS
$2.00 BOTTLES
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
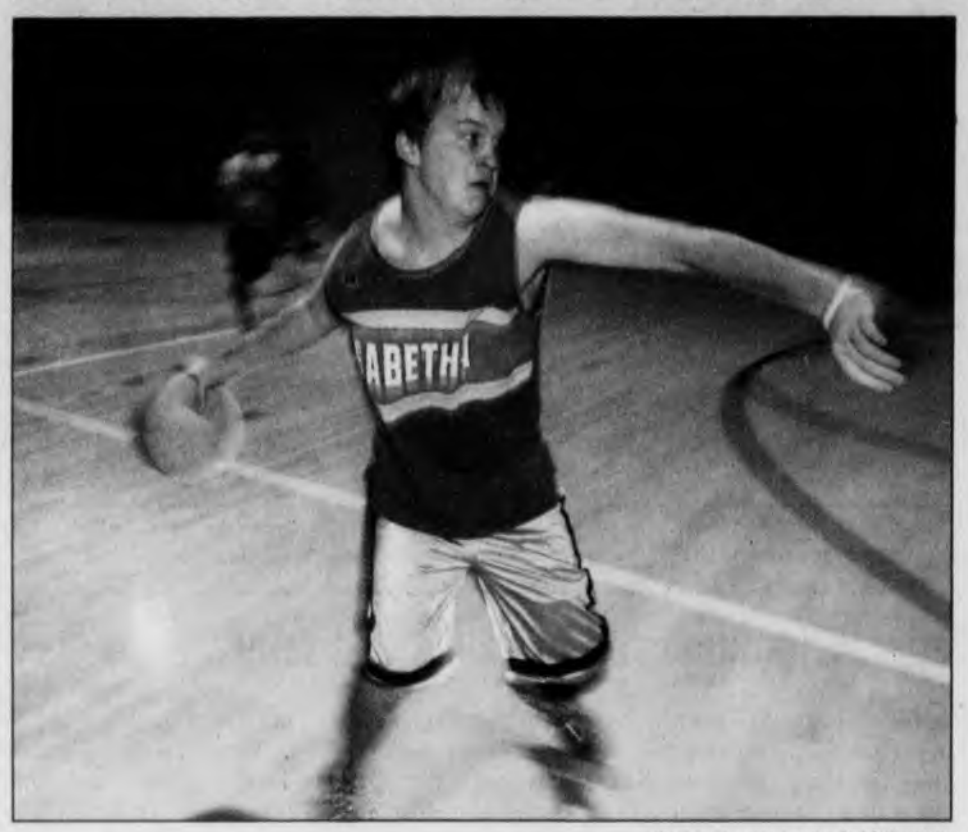
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.50 Michelob Family Pints
$1.99 Margaritas
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

DODGEBALL | Game worth risk of injury

Continued from Page 6



The best catch I made was in the fourth game. It was down to me versus about nine opposing players. They all threw their dodgeballs at me at the same time, and I hit the ground to avoid being drilled. Three whizzed over my head, two went to the left of me, and two more went to my right. I caught one, threw it aside and caught another one, knocking out two opponents and bringing two of my teammates back into the game in the process.

Of course, we still lost the game, but avoiding the barrage of dodgeballs was the highlight of my night.

I walked away with a few bumps and bruises, but that's the risk you take if you want to play dodgeball. I had a fun time, and I recommend that you go to one of the sessions if you want to remember what it's like to be a kid again.

It's a nice break from the real world.

Cedrique Flemming is a senior in print journalism and business. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Matt Tyler, freshman in criminology, winds up to throw a dodgeball at members of the other team. The dodgeball club meets every Tuesday evening in Ahearn Field House.

PANCAKES | More than $400 million raised

Continued from Page 1

Kristin Holt, campaign coordinator for the Foundation, said $417,500,212 has been raised for the Changing Lives Campaign since July 2000, and nearly a million was raised for the All-University Campaign since Sept. 1.

People invited to the all-you-can-eat breakfast were those who participated in the campaign since July 2000, Shipman said.

"We wanted to do something to recognize that the faculty and staff have a choice in how they give philanthropically. We appreciate that they recognize the importance of what's going on at K-State," she said.

The breakfast was cooked by Chris Cakes, a company out of Louisburg, Kan., and the orange juice, coffee and water were provided by the K-State Student Union.

Zimmerman, Chris Cakes employee, stood behind the Chris Cakes' grill and greeted breakfast eaters as he flipped and served pancakes.

He said he placed the X on the floor so he could practice hitting the same spot.

Zimmerman said occasionally ambitious people will hold several plates at once while trying to catch the pancakes, but some do miss the ones tossed at them.

"They always blame it on me, but it's their fault," Zimmerman joked.

The long grill can cook 44 pancakes in two minutes, or 1,320 an hour, he said.

Originally the event was to be in Bosco Student Plaza, but the weather caused the change in location, Shipman said.

"It's just too cold to sit outside and eat pancakes," she said.

The all-campus campaign included K-State-Salina, which had the breakfast Tuesday, Shipman said.

EXAMS | Self-tests should be performed regularly

Continued from Page 1

Society, said lumps in breasts are often found by women who perform self-examinations. Bruce said it is important for women to do self-examinations monthly so they can determine any changes.

"There are specific steps you need to do to make it easier to help you detect lumps in better ways," she said.

Dickey-Wilson said young women need to make sure they do self-examinations, but they do not have to worry about additional breast examinations.

While many women who go in for a Pap smear test also have a breast exam, Dickey-Wilson said the free exams will teach women how to give themselves a self-examination.

While the health department has provided the Early Detection Program for several years, Dickey-Wilson said this is the first year the breast examinations will be free.

Despite increased breast cancer awareness, Dickey-Wilson said many women still have difficulty doing something as simple as a self-examination regularly.

"Women are notorious for (thinking) if it doesn't hurt, and it's nothing you can visibly see, it's easier for you to put other people's needs in front of that," she said. "Some women aren't comfortable with doing self-breast exams."

KOREA | United States, North Korea signed, then violated Agreed Framework; professor asks, 'What next?'

Continued from Page 1

rocky since the messy Korean War in the early 1950s, Cuthbert said.

"The U.S. couldn't tell South Koreans from North Koreans, and so they tended to erred on the side of killing everyone," Cuthbert said. "North Korea has, in their view, very legitimate grievances against the U.S. and what they considered massacres of their people."

The United States also threatened North Korea with nuclear invasion in the 1950s – a threat the United States has never removed from the table, Cuthbert said.

"They have always perceived that the next invasion of their country is right around the corner," he said.

In 1994, the United States and North Korea signed the first international agreement, called the Agreed Framework, between the two countries.

In the first article of this agreement, the United States dedicated itself to providing two nuclear reactors to North Korea to help solve the country's energy crisis and to delivering heavy fuel oil for heating and energy production until the completion of the two nuclear reactors.

The agreement said the United States would provide formal assurances against the threat or use of nuclear weapons and that North Korea will implement the De-nuclearization of the Korean Peninsula.

Finally, the agreement stated that both countries would work together to strengthen international nuclear non-proliferation regime.

The international nuclear non-proliferation regime consists of international treaties, bilateral undertakings and multilateral inspections with the goal of preventing and stopping the spread of nuclear weapons. Members of the NPT pledge not to manufacture or receive nuclear explosives.

This agreement between the United States and North Korea has been under scrutiny in light of North Korea's declared nuclear test. The current rhetoric says North Koreans signed this agreement and then violated it whole-heartedly. However, Cuthbert said that is not true.

"Article one says that the nuclear power plants would be built, as arranged by the United States, and we didn't do it," he said. "If you look at who violated the Agreed Framework, the United States did."

In October 2002, the United States accused North Korea of secretly developing a program uranium-enriched weapon, and Bush said the Agreed Framework was broken.

"They walked in and said, 'You cheated,' and North Koreans went, 'Prove it,' and the United States said, 'We have our sources and methods that we are not going to tell you,'" Cuthbert said. "We have never made any effort whatsoever to prove it."

In September 2005, six-party talks between China, Japan, Russia, South Korea, the United States and North Korea resulted in a brief agreement, that was dismantled by some of the countries shortly thereafter.

Now that North Korea has declared it has tested nuclear weapons, the United Nations is interested in returning to six-party talks. If North Korea does have nuclear weapons, it might result in more sanctions or military action. However, Long said neither likely will be useful.

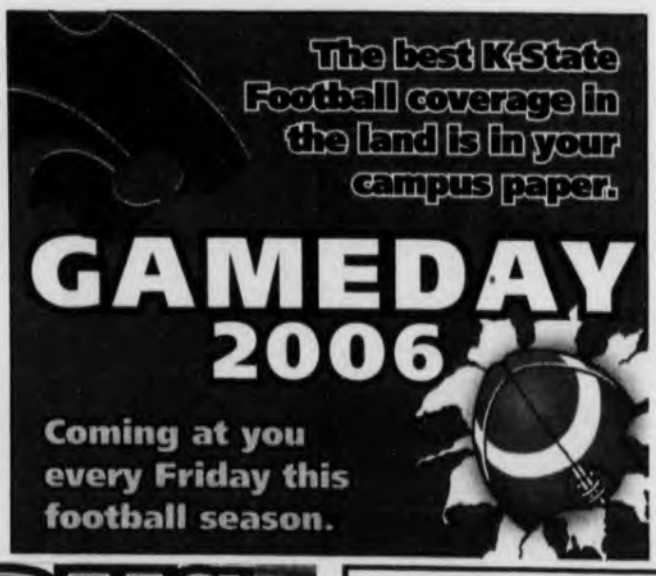
"We can't sit and do nothing, but economic sanctions won't have much of an effect, and the military options are very dangerous," he said.

Some are still skeptical North Korea has tested nuclear weapons because of the impoverished state of the country.

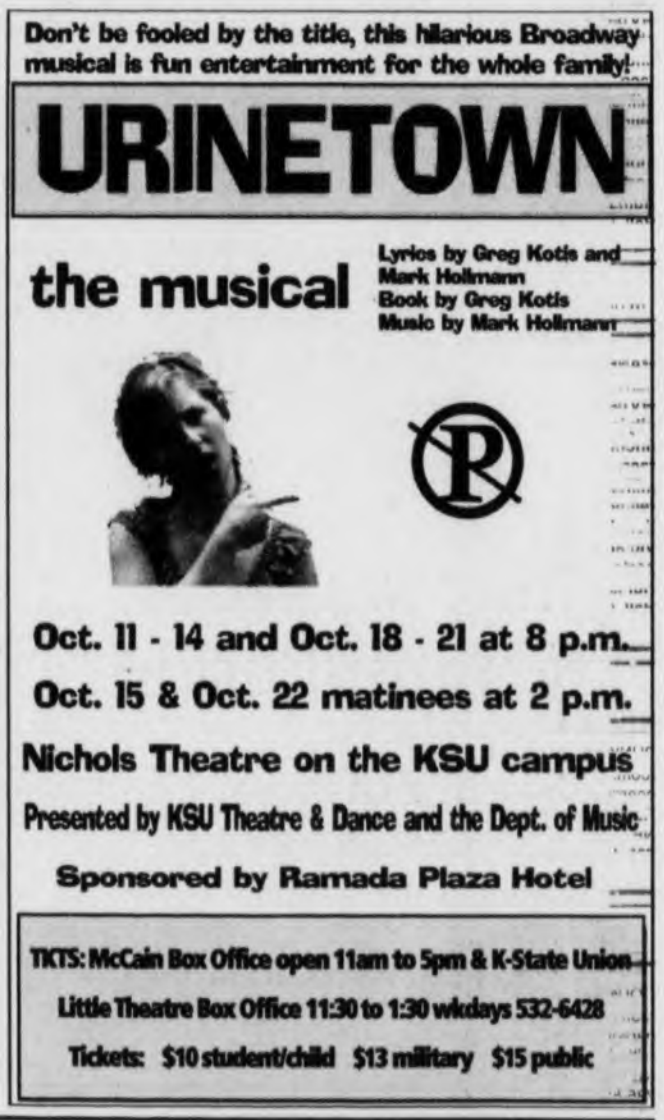
"I was kind of astonished, because the things I had read led me to feel that they didn't have the technology to do a bonafide nuclear reaction," Cuthbert said.

However, a country's poverty doesn't necessarily indicate an inability to develop nuclear capabilities, Long said.

"Just because a country is poor, doesn't mean a government can't allocate a large portion of its resources toward a specific effort," he said.

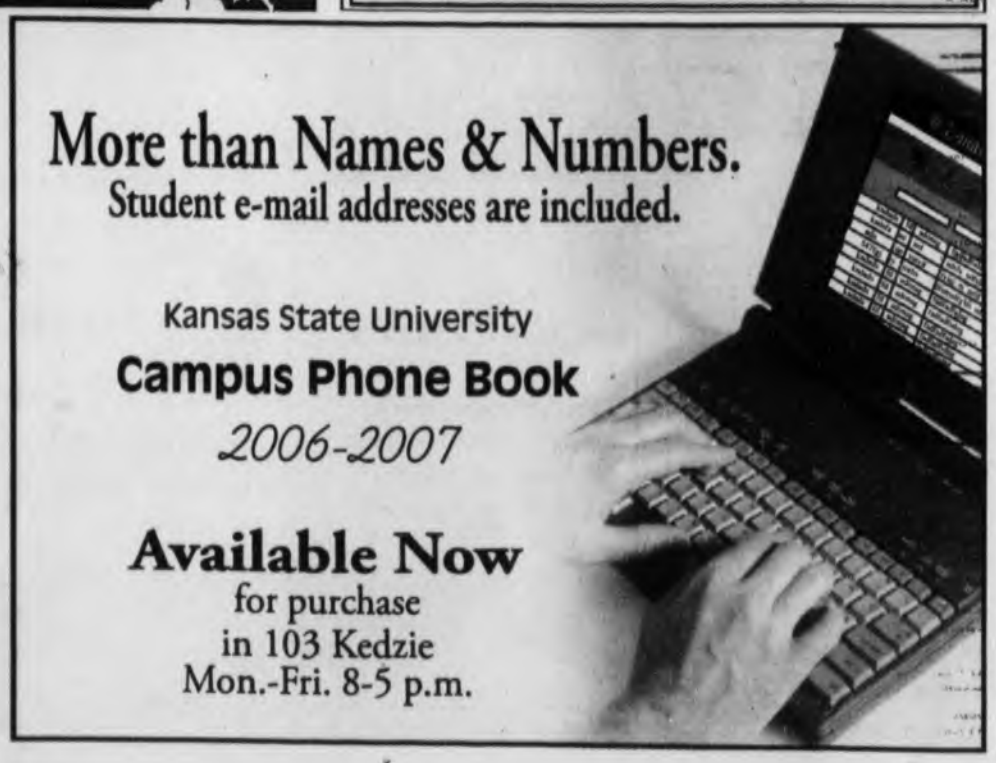


Richter said the real question that should be asked is "What next?"



"If terrorists could come up with the money to alleviate North Korea's economic problems, which would take a lot of money, would North Korea sell its soul for the money?" he said.

Long said it is important that young people understand the reasons behind this dispute and the kinds of policies being considered.



"These events like this, Sept. 11, 2001, and Vietnam frame the way we think about what happens in the future," he said. "It is crucial to understand what really is going on, what worked and what didn't work, what made sense and what didn't make sense, so we don't screw it up again."

25 U.S. companies to make trade mission to China

By Martin Crutsinger
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON – Executives from 25 U.S. companies, from Home Depot to Westinghouse Electric, will travel to China next month as part of a trade mission aimed at boosting exports and trimming the United States' huge trade deficit.

The Commerce Department announced on Wednesday the companies selected to make the Nov. 13-17 trip to Beijing and Shanghai in search of sales opportunities and possible partnerships with Chinese companies.

Commerce Secretary Carlos Gutierrez, who will lead the mission, said the companies chosen for the trip represent a cross-section of U.S. companies seeking to do business in China.

He said the companies were chosen to highlight various issues U.S. companies face in trying to crack the Chinese market.

"We wanted to get companies that would help us in some of our key areas of focus, such as intellectual property rights, market access and direct sales," Gutierrez said in an interview with the Associated Press.

The trade mission is the latest effort to combat a soaring U.S. trade deficit with China, which last year hit an all-time high of $202 billion and is on track to set a new record this year.

Even with the sizable gap, China currently represents the United States' fourth-largest export market and one of the fastest growing. U.S. exports last year totaled $41.8 billion, an increase of 20.5 percent from the previous year. This year, exports have been running 35.7 percent above last year's pace.

"Huge opportunities exist in China, but so do some major challenges," Gutierrez said. "This trip is designed to help U.S. companies to identify the opportunities and address the challenges."

The delegation is scheduled to meet with key government officials, business leaders and potential business partners during the talks.

Among the companies selected for the trip were pharmaceutical manufacturer Eli Lilly and Co., the telecommunications company Lucent Technologies and power plant builder Westinghouse Electric Co.

Other companies were Altec Inc., Alticor Inc., American Tours International, Aon Corp., ArrayComm Inc., Baxter Healthcare Corp., Behlen Manufacturing Co., Eaton Corp., Energy Conversion Devices Inc., Leo A. Daly engineering firm, McGraw-Hill Companies Inc., MeadWestvaco Corp., Medtronic Inc., Oshkosh Truck Corp., the Shaw Group Inc., Studios Architecture, Sybase Inc., ThermoEnergy Corp., the Timken Co., Tyco Telecommunications and VeriSign Inc.

Collegian xplore it!
kstatecollegian.com

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

120 Rent-Houses

COUNTRY HOME, 3 bedroom, 2 bath, 2 car garage, outside pets permitted. $475 per month. NE 28 miles. Call 785-532-7569 or 785-396-4577.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

150 Sublease

2 BEDROOM 1 bath apartment sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600 month, available now. 785-410-7266.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. Four-bedroom duplex. Washer/ Dryer/ Dishwasher. Close to campus. $285 plus utilities call 785-532-9706.

200 Service Directory

235 Child Care

CHILD CARE needed in home, for toddlers ages two to four. Two days per week. 785-341-1550.

CHILDCARE NEEDED in my home. Close to campus, flexible part-time, mostly evening or late afternoon hours. 913-306-3378.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

Taking applications for all positions
Apply within
Quiznos Sub
HHHH...TOASTY!

NOW HIRING!
• Wait Staff
• Bartender
Los Portillos
Stop by for an application today!
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

BUSINESS INTERNSHIP! College Pro is a student development company. We coach, train and teach students how to manage a business while in school. Resume builder, valuable skills, competitive money. www.iamcollegepro.com to apply.

COACH: MIDDLE School Assistant Girl's Basketball Coach for Riley County Middle School. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org with mailing address or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HARRY'S SERVER and daytime dishwasher WANTED. Experienced server with friendly, upbeat, eager personality. Flexible availability required. Daytime Dishwasher needed, some night - weekend availability. Apply within 418 Poyntz Avenue.

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

INTERNET WORK! $9-$150/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ Summer. Studentserveysite.com/kscollegian

MILL CREEK Valley Schools USD #329 is accepting applications for a Freshman Boys Basketball Coach at Wabaunsee High School. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315 or the District Office at 785-765-3394 for an application.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NANNY POSITION available for widow with delightful 8-year-old daughter. Room, board plus salary for approximately 15- 20 hours a week including early mornings and some late afternoons, evenings (weekends negotiable). Must have experience and inclusive, joyful attitude about working with children. Anticipated starting date January 2, 2007, but flexible for the right person. If interested please call 785-539-9067 evenings before 9 p.m.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Kennel, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, Manager, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com. Conducting interviews at the Holiday Inn formerly the Ramada Inn 1641 Anderson, October 11th and 12th from 8:30 to 4:30. Visit our site for details.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PART-TIME RETAIL Store Supervisors. If you have retail experience and leadership skills, the K-State Super Store is looking for you! This is a great opportunity if you are currently working in retail and want to get more supervisory responsibility. Pay rate is $8.00 - $9.00 per hour based on experience. Call today, these positions won't be open for long! Please stop by or send resume to K-State Super Store, Attn. Human Resources, 520 McCall Rd. Manhattan Ks, 66502, or e-mail humanresources@igtm.com. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PLANNING COMMISSION / Board of Zoning Appeals Secretary The City of Ogden is accepting applications for the part - time position of Planning Commission / Board of Zoning Appeals Secretary. Duties include attending meetings, taking, preparing and maintaining minutes of the meetings. A pre - employment drug screening may be conducted. Wage is $8.50 per hour. Applications are available at City Hall, 222 Riley Avenue, Ogden, Kansas 66517. Applications are due before Noon, October 17, 2006.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. is accepting applications for a part-time position for a Macintosh technician. to start near the end of October 2006. Work about 10 scheduled hours per week with some additional emergency, maintenance and on-call hours as needed, some of which are at night and weekends. The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance. Troubleshoots and repairs equipment. Assists with maintaining all written and electronic records. Assists with ordering when needed and approved by tech manager or supervisor. Applicants should be familiar with Mac OS X. Unix experience is helpful. Any other knowledge with programming, web page design, Lan, networking would be beneficial. Some familiarity with design software such as Adobe Photoshop, Adobe InDesign and Imageready is helpful.. Must be able to follow written and verbal instructions and work well under pressure of a daily deadline and other crisis situations. Dependable and on time for scheduled hours. Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolled in fall semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered. Application deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, 2006. Please include your fall 2006 class schedule. Pick up applications in 113 Kedzie. Return applications to 113, 115 or 103 Kedzie.

SWINE HERDSMAN position 15 miles from Manhattan. Full or part-time. Duties include managing finishing units and some crop farming. Mechanical ability and farm experience desirable. Call 785-494-8330 for more information.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

CHRYSLER SEBRING Convertible, V6, black, 118,000, Automatic, Leather, power seat, security system, new timing belt and coolent kits. $4000. 785-317-5043.

530 Motorcycles

2002, BUELL Blast, black, 1,000 miles, like new condition. $2350 or best offer. Call 785-458-9105.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.gbski.com

ADVERTISE IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS.
785 532 6555

Got old stuff?
GET RID OF IT!
in the
Kansas State Collegian
103 Kedzie
532-6555

ADVERTISE.
Kansas State Collegian Classifieds • 785-532-6555

Dillons Food Stores
Current applications are being accepted at Dillons Westloop
1000 Westloop, Manhattan
for the following positions:
• Daytime Cashier
• Daytime Courtesy Clerk
• Clerks for Bakery and Deli
Must be 18 years of older, with daytime availability
Apply online at www.dillons.com or Store Kiosk at Dillon's Westloop

KMAN K-ROCK 104.1 96.1
Office/Marketing Assistant
Northeast Kansas' most respected Broadcast Company is looking for that unique individual to become a part of our outstanding team. Manhattan Broadcasting is seeking a qualified person to fill the position of Office/Marketing Assistant. Applicants should be well organized, computer literate with data entry experience and be able to meet deadlines. Experience with Adobe Photoshop, Adobe Illustrator and Microsoft Publisher as well as layout and design experience is a plus. Responsibilities include answering multi-line telephone system, taking detailed messages, greeting customers, and assisting Manhattan Broadcasting Staff with various projects. Resume's can be sent to:
Manhattan Broadcasting Company
Attn: Business Manager
2414 Casement Road
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 776-1350
Manhattan Broadcasting Company is an Equal Opportunity

Management Career Opportunity
Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.
Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.
Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

Quiznos Sub
HHHH...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

	7					2
	1				8		6
		6	5		2	4
7				5			4	9
	5						8
4	6			1				2
		1	4		6	3
	2		3				9
		7					1

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

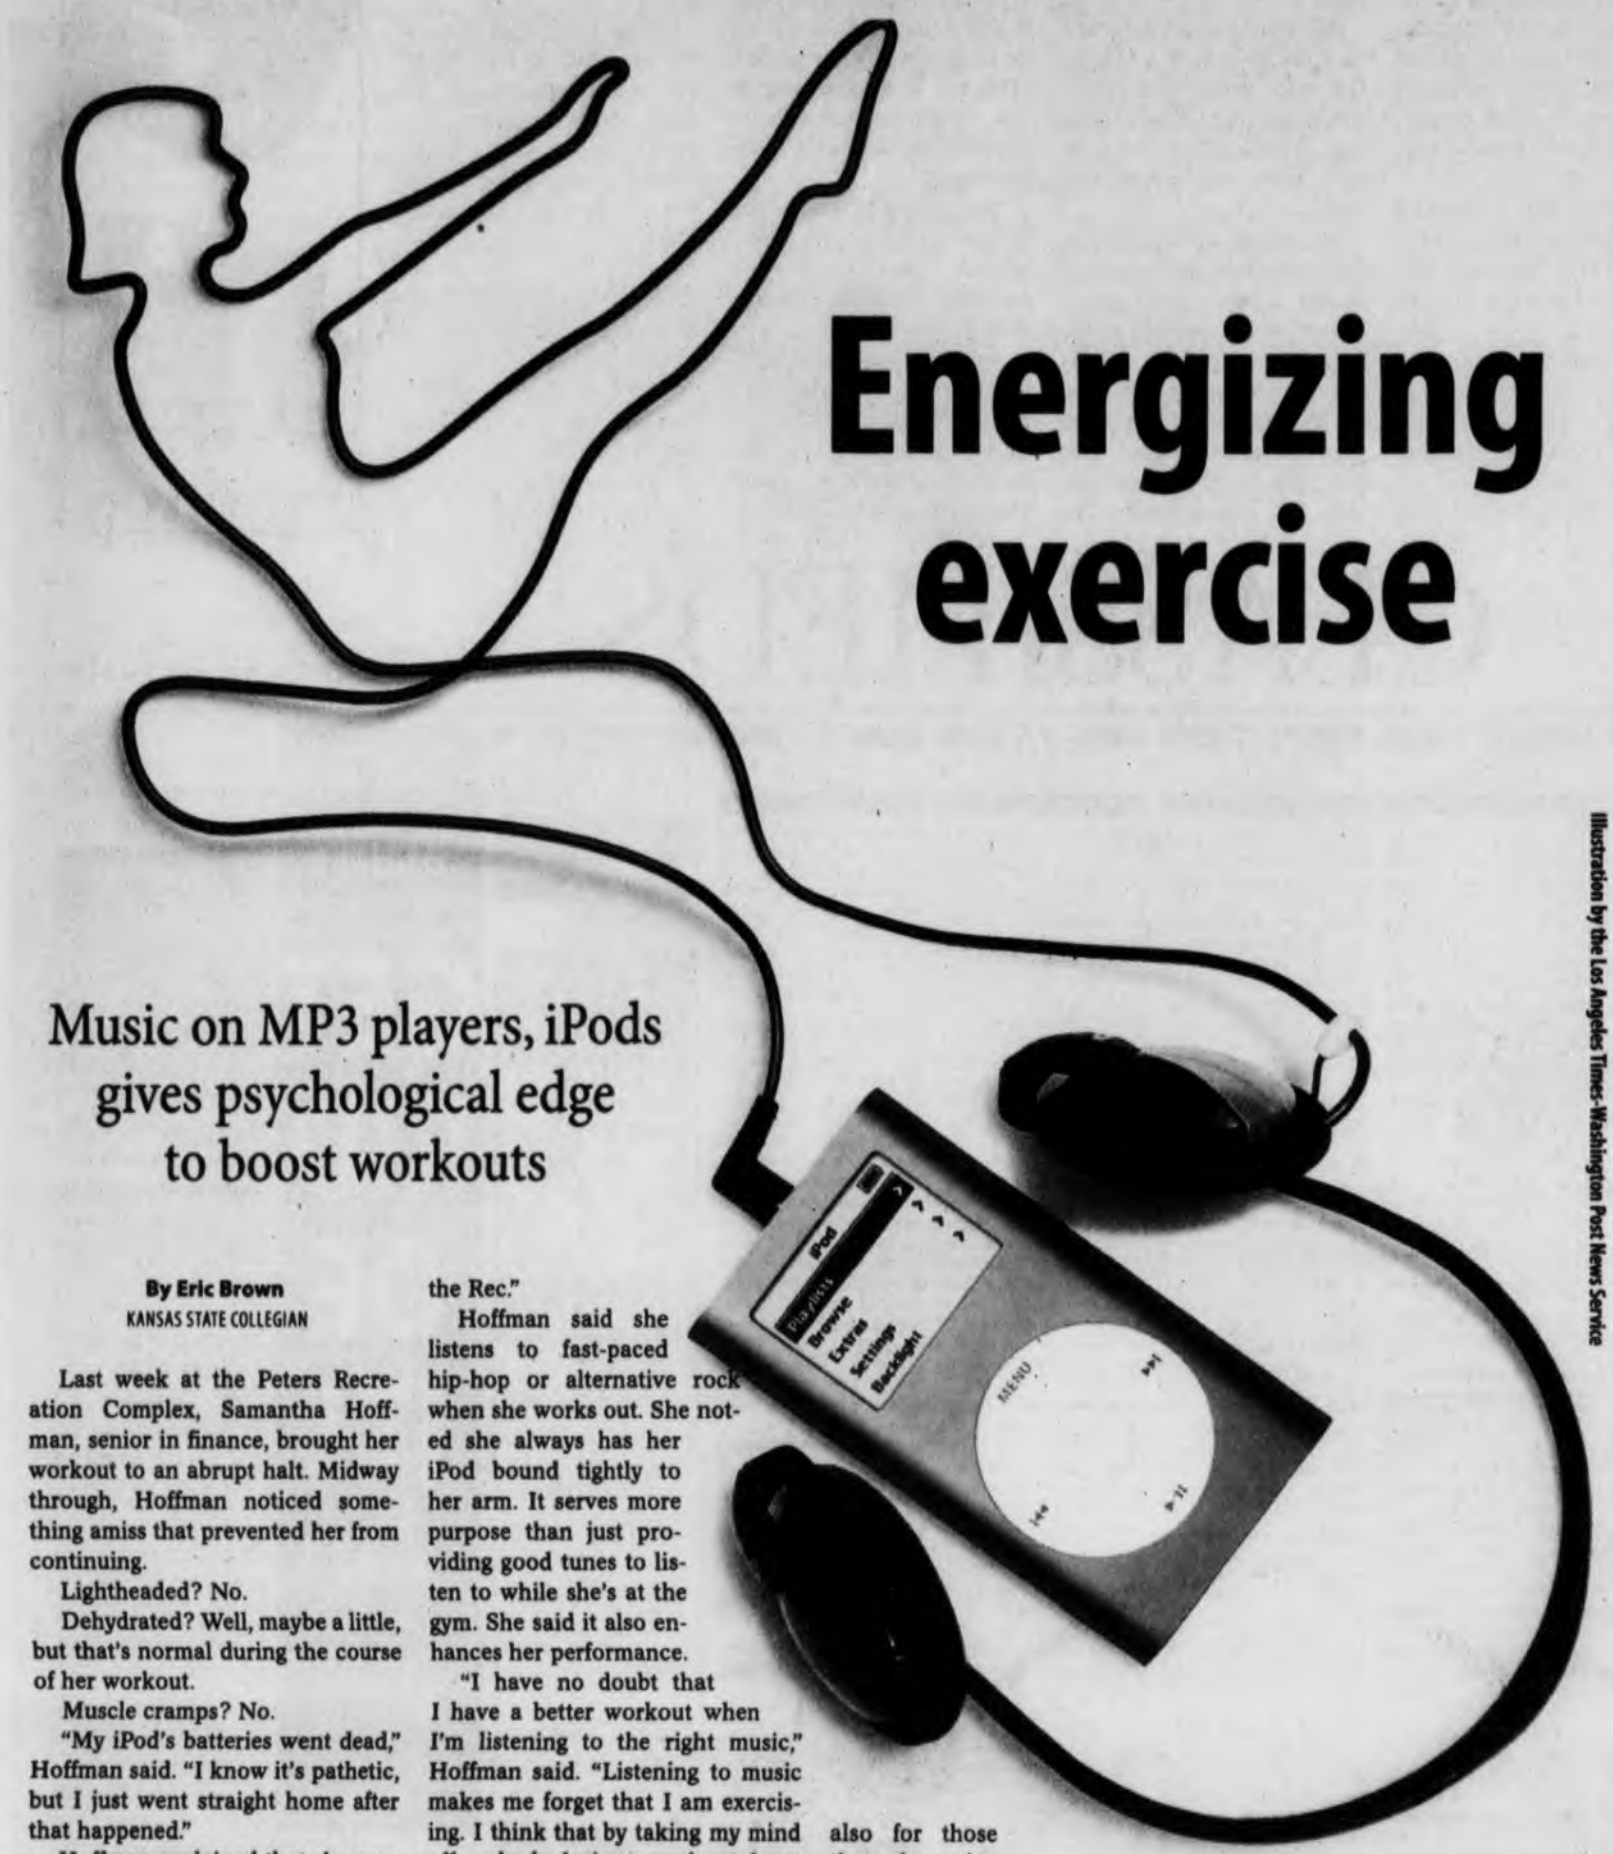
How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections



If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Energizing exercise

Music on MP3 players, iPods gives psychological edge to boost workouts

Illustration by the Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

By Eric Brown
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Last week at the Peters Recreation Complex, Samantha Hoffman, senior in finance, brought her workout to an abrupt halt. Midway through, Hoffman noticed something amiss that prevented her from continuing.

Lightheaded? No.

Dehydrated? Well, maybe a little, but that's normal during the course of her workout.

Muscle cramps? No.

"My iPod's batteries went dead," Hoffman said. "I know it's pathetic, but I just went straight home after that happened."

Hoffman explained that she never makes a trip to the gym without a little music for inspiration.

"I cannot work out without my iPod," she said.

This trend Hoffman speaks of is one that has been growing for som time. With iPods and MP3 players allowing greater amounts of music to be placed on smaller, lighter electronic devices, more and more gym-goers are strapping them on to sweat it out.

Evan Jones, an employee of the Rec Complex from January 2003 to August 2006 and K-State graduate, said he definitely witnessed an explosion of MP3 players and iPods used during workouts in the last couple of years.

"When I first started working at the Rec a couple of years ago, I would still see people bringing in the old, big, bulky Discman CD players and running around holding on to those," Jones said. "It didn't look very convenient. You would see a few MP3 players here and there back then, but now you see those and iPods everywhere at the Rec."

Hoffman said she listens to fast-paced hip-hop or alternative rock when she works out. She noted she always has her iPod bound tightly to her arm. It serves more purpose than just providing good tunes to listen to while she's at the gym. She said it also enhances her performance.

"I have no doubt that I have a better workout when I'm listening to the right music," Hoffman said. "Listening to music makes me forget that I am exercising. I think that by taking my mind off my body during a workout, I can go for even longer than I normally could."

Alex Ramos, senior in kinesiology, said his MP3 player provides the extra push he needs for an optimum workout.

"I need upbeat music if I'm going to get a good workout in," Ramos said.

He also said he has been working out with his MP3 player for about four years and uses it only for that purpose.

"I definitely think that the right kind of music can provide that psychological edge you need for a better workout."

Melissa Todd, post-doctoral fellow with University Counseling Services, has a concentration in sports psychology. She said music can improve one's workout in a number of ways.

"For those that don't enjoy their workout but do it because they feel obligated, music definitely serves as a way of disassociating, or focusing their attention away from the hardships of exercise," Todd said. "But also for those that do enjoy working out, music can enhance the enjoyment of exercise and can help people get 'in the zone' or create a euphoria, or 'runner's high,' during their workouts."

Todd also teaches Performance Enhancement for Athletes. In this class, Todd conducts research on athletes from the university's football, baseball, track and cross-country teams.

"This week for our lab sessions in the class, we are actually having athletes bring in the music that they listen to before competition. We then hook them up to computers that enable us to see how they are affected physiologically," she said.

Ramos said he listens to Rage Against the Machine and Tool when he hits the weights.

"I highly recommend using (an MP3 player) to anybody who doesn't already use one when they workout," he said. "The Rec provides the radio for you to listen to during your workouts, which is better than nothing, but I prefer my MP3 player because then I can listen to the music that I know will get me going."

Top 10 Workout Songs

1. Black Eyed Peas - Hey Mama
2. Blackstreet - No Diggity
3. Bow Wow - Let's Get Down
4. Chingy - Right Thurr
5. Jay Z - Dirt Off Your Shoulder
6. Kanye West - Gold Digger
7. Mystikal - Shake It Fast
8. Nelly, P Diddy, Murphy Lee - Shake Your Tailfeather
9. Outkast - B.O.B.
10. Shaggy - In The Summertime

Source: www.running.about.com

4 types of often-overlooked guys have potential

LAUREN ROHRER

We focus a lot on the negative. People are always telling you the types of guys to avoid. He's too short, he's not motivated, he's got mommy-attachment issues – the list is infinite. So, while I will never be a cockeyed optimist (cynicism and sarcasm suit me better), this column is my one and only shout-out to the guys who can be good for you. You know, other than the obvious ones.

THE SHY GUY

So many times, our eyes rove to the center of attention in a group of guys, when we might be overlooking the best one there. These are the guys who hang back because they don't have to try hard. This might also tell you something about the loud ones (perhaps they're overcompensating for something). The point is, a guy doesn't have to come with his own one-act "this is my life" routine to be attractive. Besides, if he's quiet, there's less opportunity for him to make typical, obnoxious guy comments.

THE INTELLECTUAL GUY

You know where these guys are while we're wasting our money at the bars? There at Fiedler or Seaton halls not drinking and preparing to count their fat stacks of cash one day. They can form a sentence without using the words "Dude," "Hollaback" or the ever-popular "Damn, girl." They are motivated, have interests of their own and are dedicated to something other than constant video games and beer. Not too shabby, ladies.

THE YOUNGER GUY

OK, I know. Anyone who has so much as glanced at my column knows how I feel about my young boys. They're just so freaking cute. You have to love them. They are genuine, they really try to earn your respect, and they're just so bright-eyed. Sure, they might lack a little of your own dating experience, but it's such a great boost to the ego to be adored. And they lack that cockiness that tends to show up in guys that have been around awhile.

THE ARTSY GUY

Shameless plug for my boys, but there are some mighty fine men in the arts. It's not always easy to pull off "macho" in marching band or theater, but I know many who do. They're dedicated to their work and genuinely love what they do. They are attractive, stand-up guys. Some might ask why I am not dating one of them. There are two possible reasons for that, one being that I am much too busy hunting down some defenseless freshman boy. Or two, my artsy buddies don't want to read what I really think of them in the Collegian.

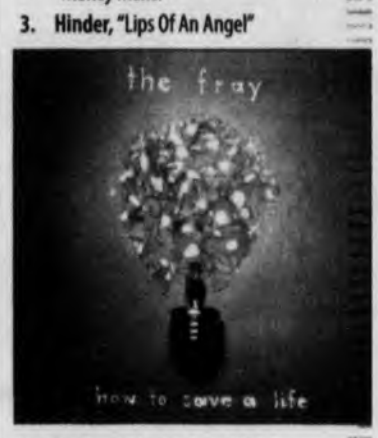
Lauren Rohrer is a junior in music appreciation. Please send comments to edge@spub.ksu.edu.

CELEB NEWS

Jeopardy champion writes book about $1 million win

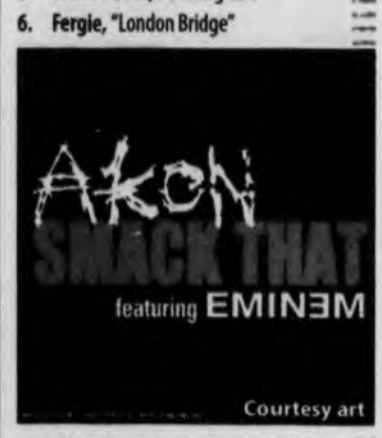
LOS ANGELES (AP) — During his run as a "Jeopardy!" contestant, Bob Harris learned that John Quincy Adams was the only president to later serve in the U.S. House of Representatives, that Lord Peter Wimsey is a fictional British sleuth and that mollusks include chitons, cowries and limpets.

Harris' game-show education also taught him that keeping your eye on the prize is what counts, and he's not talking bundles of cash or a shiny new car — although he won both.



"Every single player I've spoken to has ultimately said that what they value is not the money but the memory. What they value is not how they played but who they met," said Harris, 42, a comedian, screenwriter and radio commentator.

Harris, who ascended to a $1 million Masters Tournament on the game show hosted by Alex Trebek, details his experiences in "Prisoner of Trebekistan: A Decade in Jeopardy!", a book that is a combination of how-to primer, autobiography and musings on life and love.



BILLBOARD CHARTS TOP 10

The Hot 100

1. Justin Timberlake, "SexyBack"
2. Ludacris featuring Pharrell, "Money Maker"
3. Hinder, "Lips Of An Angel"

4. The Fray, "How To Save A Life"
5. Snow Patrol, "Chasing Cars"
6. Fergie, "London Bridge"

Courtesy art

7. Akon Featuring Eminem, "Smack That"
8. Jibbs, "Chain Hang Low"
9. Nickelback, "Far Away"
10. Chingy Featuring Tyrese, "Pullin' Me Back"

Source: www.billboard.com

TV RATINGS

■ For the week of Oct. 2-8, 2006
■ Viewers measured in millions

Top TV shows	Viewers
1. "Grey's Anatomy" ABC, Thursday, 8 p.m.	22.8
2. "CSI" CBS, Thursday, 8 p.m.	21.5

Courtesy art

3. "Desperate Housewives" ABC, Sunday, 8 p.m.	20.9
4. "Lost" ABC, Wednesday, 8 p.m.	18.8
5. "Dancing wth the Stars" ABC, Tuesday, 7 p.m.	18.3
6. "CSI: Miami" CBS, Monday, 9 p.m.	17.8
7. "Dancing wth the Stars" ABC, Wednesday, 7 p.m.	17.4
8. "NCIS" CBS, Tuesday, 7 p.m.	15.8
8. "Survivor: Cook Islands" CBS, Thursday, 7 p.m.	15.8
10. "CSI: New York" CBS, Wednesday, 9 p.m.	15.7
10. "Two and a Half Men" CBS, Monday, 8 p.m.	15.7

Source: www.ew.com

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, October 13, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 40

INSIDE

Bob Huggins brings high hopes of winning to Manhattan

Sports, Page 6

Paying the price

Photo Illustration by Zachary T. Eckels | COLLEGIAN

Students violate policy, undermine privilege fee through ticket resale

By Rebecca Vitztum
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"Tickets for sale. Get 'em while you can!" shouts a man wearing a black T-shirt, waving a handful of tickets outside Snyder Family Stadium last Saturday, as hundreds of fans filed past.

The scalping of athletic event tickets might arouse legal questions on campus. The reselling of tickets has become a way for many students and community members to gain extra cash.

The question is, are they doing something illegal?

Technically, no.

"There are no Manhattan city laws regarding the sale of tickets over face value," said Jim Muller, associate athletic director of operations.

Selling tickets on campus property, however, is against university policy. Campus police patrol the stadium during the games and ask scalpers to leave the premises. If they don't comply, they will be arrested, Muller said.

"Campus policy stated in the student handbook doesn't allow anyone to solicit tickets on public property," Muller said. "The policy is no resale, but they do it anyway. If it is off our premises, it is out of our control."

Students said they feel it is not a big issue to resell their tickets if they can't make it to the event or need money.

"I believe it's all right to sell my ticket if I can't make it to a game. It is a waste, and I gain profit off of it," Crystal Payton, freshman in open option, said. "I don't sell it for over face value. I got my tickets for a reasonable price, so I usually sell it for less than I paid."

Some students, however, charge a large amount of money for their tickets for high-demand games.

"I don't think it is a problem to sell your ticket for more than face value," said Nellie Feehan, freshman in hotel and restaurant management. "If a ticket is in large demand, then you can make a big profit off of it. Why not get a good amount of cash if people are willing to pay what you ask?"

Although students feel it is not a problem to sell tickets, it does affect some people in the long run.

Students receive tickets for less than half of the regular price through the student privilege fee. If tickets are sold for a much higher price, scalpers undermine the purpose of the student privilege fee.

"The policy is no resale, but they do it anyway. If it is off our premises, it is out of our control."

Jim Muller
ASSOCIATE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR OF OPERATIONS

"I have no opinion on the fact that students think it is right or wrong," Muller said. "I do what I am asked to do by campus policy, and that is to make sure no one is being cheated out of their money."

Multicultural groups collaborate, inform

Kyrie Graves, junior in family life and community services, performs a step routine for Alpha Kappa Alpha at the Black Student Union cultural event Thursday evening in Union Station.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Represent, a showcase of K-State multicultural organizations, took center stage in the K-State Student Union Thursday night.

The event, sponsored by the Black Student Union, acts as both a recruitment tool and a social outing.

"I believe Represent was an opportunity to really show other students what is available and what these organizations are all about," said Akilah Mahon, BSU president and senior in finance.

Thirteen organizations entertained and informed the crowd of nearly 250 students. These organizations included fraternities and sororities, praise dancers, Multicultural Ambassadors and MANNERS, a multicultural agriculture society. Mahon said it was important for these organizations to share the night's spotlight.

"We try to make it a collaborative effort, because there aren't a lot of multicultural students at K-State and even fewer that are actually involved," Mahon said. "Being on a predominantly white campus, it's hard for these students to know about all of the opportunities available."

K-State's student population is 88 percent Caucasian, according to K-State's Web site. This makes it difficult for many multicultural organizations to recruit members and spread knowledge of their efforts, Mahon said. However, events like Represent provide a great opportunity.

"Seldom do we get the opportunity to showcase our talents and our efforts on campus, but also the opportunity to let the organizations learn from each other," said Abdul

See REPRESENT Page 8

Game-day cell service unreliable

By Ericka Brunson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

One phone call during a football game might alter plans for the entire day, so reliable service is important to cell phone users.

However, many students have experienced difficulties with their phone service on game days and are eager to know if and when the problem will be corrected.

Alltel has started to bring in portable service towers called "cows" and place them next to the stadium in an attempt to pick up the slack. These are the same type of "back-up" towers the company brought to the Gulf Coast area after Hurricane Katrina to maintain steady service availability for southeastern Alltel customers, a representative from Alltel's customer care line said.

However, with the large number of phone calls made on game days, it is only a matter of time until the towers overload, causing poor services for users.

"The problem is related to the fact that so many people, not necessarily

See ALLTEL Page 8

Cats for Cans benefits Breadbasket

By Lauren Tice
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

More than 180 student athletes will be collecting food and monetary donations from tailgaters before Saturday's football game.

The Student-Athlete Advisory Committee is the main sponsor of the event, which benefits the annual Cats for Cans program, Brett Scott, president of the committee, said.

"It's our major philanthropic event, and it's an annual tradition," Scott, senior in finance, said. "Fans bring canned goods. Student athletes go around and pick up the food and money."

Cats for Cans has run through the month of October for at least the past seven years, said Natascha Philip, Flint Hills Breadbasket Executive Director.

"It started as an incentive for students to fill holiday food baskets for residents of Manhattan and Ogden," Philip said.

The Flint Hills Breadbasket will accept any non-perishable food items to distribute to area families. However, for the holiday baskets, the Breadbasket needs donations of:

- canned meat
- canned pumpkin
- canned cranberry sauce
- canned sweet potatoes or candied yams
- stuffing mix
- canned fruit

According to its Web site, breadbasket.manhattanks.org, the Flint

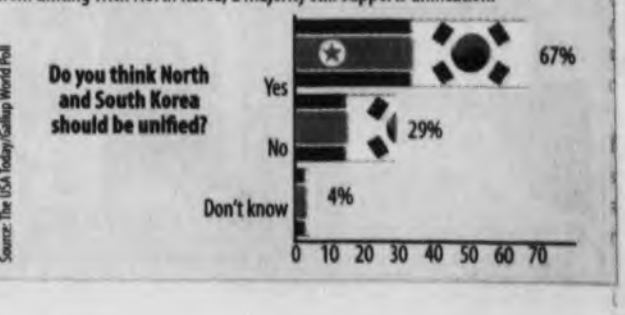
See CANS Page 8

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 62 Low: 34

ONLINE

SGA meeting
A bill was voted to a second reading on Thursday that would allocate $10,000 in emergency funds for SafeRide.

www.kstatecollegian.com



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Visiting speaker
Beverly Lyon Clark will speak about "Why I love and hate Tom Sawyer," at 4 p.m. today in Union 212. Clark is a professor of English at Wheaton College and just finished editing the Norton Critical Edition of Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer."

'Urinetown'
The musical "Urinetown" will play at 8 tonight in Nichols Theatre. The play is about greed, corruption, love and revolution when water is worth its weight in gold. "Urinetown" also will play at 8 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

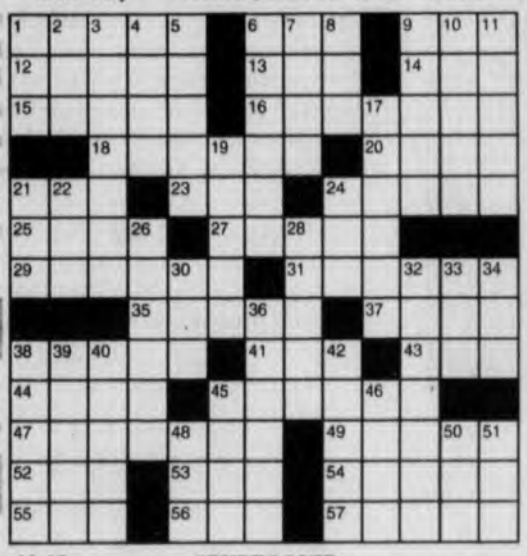
Community service
K-State's community service week is Oct. 16-21. Abut 250 students are expected to help during the week. It will include students in University Experience and students in leardership courses. Students interested in helping should contact Patrick Simpson at (785) 532-3650 or at pcs@ksu.edu.

A great divide
Even though 56 percent of South Koreans say they have more to lose than gain from uniting with North Korea, a majority still supports unification.

Source: The USA Today/Gallup World Poll

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Half a 1960s quartet
6 Skilled player
9 Put away
12 Insignificant one
13 Oft-tattooed word
14 Illumination measure
15 Avian penthouse
16 Superior in quality
18 "— in the Wind"
20 Eastern potentate
21 Greek vowel
23 Fairway start
24 Take as one's own
25 Unaccompanied
27 Step
29 Man with all the answers?
31 Penguin's adversary
35 "If You Knew —"
37 A few
38 Michaelmas daisy
41 Chart
43 Catch red-handed
44 "— there?"
45 Peanut butter, e.g.
47 Realty sign
49 In any way whatsoever
52 Spoon-bender Geller
53 Conned
54 "Unforgettable" duo
55 Writer Buscaglia
56 Copper head?
57 Tend texts

DOWN
1 Harper Valley grp.
2 Shock partner
3 Sheet material
4 Carreras rendition
5 Exhausted
6 Magic charm
7 Manage somehow
8 North Sea feeder
9 Crockett's last stand
10 Tiny Tim's flower
11 Work the muscles
17 West Point newbies
19 Classroom array
21 "Guinness Book" suffix
22 Anderson's "High —"
24 Khan title
26 Haunt one's mind
28 As cross as —
30 One side of the Ural Mts.
32 Carter's veep
33 "I — Camera"
34 Kans. neighbor
36 Block
38 Terrible
39 Coastline
40 "Flying Down —"
42 U.N. goal
45 Thick chunk
46 Fermi's unit
48 "Eureka!"
50 Actor Cariou
51 Hallucinogen letters

Solution time: 25 mins.

R	A	I	D		D	A	B		S	A	N	E
A	N	T	E		I	L	L		C	U	E	S
S	N	O	B		L	E	U		A	D	O	S
P	A	N	A	M	A		E	R	M	I	N	E
			R	A	T		O	P	T
J	A	C	K		O	R	A	T	I	O	N	S
O	V	A			R	E	L			R	U	E
B	E	T	R	A	Y	A	L		L	Y	N	X
		E	O	N		E	G	O
J	A	G	U	A	R		G	O	C	A	R	T
I	R	O	N		U	F	O		A	V	E	R
B	I	R	D		N	O	R		L	I	N	E
S	A	Y	S		T	R	Y		E	D	D	Y

Yesterday's answer 10-13

10-13 CRYPTOQUIP

VACX ZRJDXM R HRJC, KWQ YAWQBE REE LQHA YQMRG. DP VDBB LRJC KWQG ZDPPCG ZRPPCG ZCPPCG.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: BEING CHECKMATED SIX TIMES IN A ROW, IT'S NO WONDER I BEGAN TO EXPERIENCE CHESS PAIN.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: P equals T

BEST BETS

Your social calendar for the weekend

13 Friday

UPC After Hours
10:30 p.m. Forum Hall

UPC brings in Comedy Hypnotist Dale K to entertain and wow students for this week's After Hours. Bring a friend and enjoy the fun.

Feature Film: "The Devil Wears Prada"
8 p.m. Forum Hall*
Admission: $1

Based on the popular book, a young woman just out of college (Anne Hathaway) comes to New York and gets a job as an assistant to an important fashion magazine editor (Meryl Streep), a position she sees as a stepping stone to another journalism job. She soon discovers the fashion world is not all it's cracked up to be.

* Movie also shows at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Saturday and at 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission for Saturday and Sunday is $2.

Tom Kimmel and Buddy Mondlock
8 p.m. Manhattan Arts Center

The two BirdHouse alumni will perform their songs in Manhattan. They represent the best in modern songwriting, and both have had songs picked up by recording artists like Peter, Paul and Mary, and Shawn Colvin. Kimmel also has written songs for the movies "Runaway Bride" and "Serendipity."

14 Saturday

K-State vs. Nebraska
6:10 p.m. Snyder Family Stadium

After pulling off a nail-biting win against Oklahoma State last weekend, the Wildcats face the Cornhuskers in what surely will prove to be an exciting game. Your best bet is to arrive at the stadium early and get in some tailgating before scoring great seats for the game.

Red State Blues Band
10 p.m. P.J.'s Bar

Come see this local band perform its mix of rock-infused blues music. The band's musical influences range from Louis Armstrong and the Allman Brothers to Eric Clapton and ZZ Top. Cover charge is $3 for anyone 21 years old and older and $5 for those 18-20 years old.

15 Sunday

Changing Weather

The weather is changing and fall is nearly here. Take advantage of the cooler weather and jump into piles of raked leaves or curl up on the couch with a good book and a cup of hot chocolate.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Fall Education Career Fair is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy is facilitating a public national issues forum on immigration from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in Union 212. The topic of the forum is "The New Challenges of American Immigration: What Should We Do?" Feel free to bring your lunch and enjoy the discussion.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jin Soo Lee at 1 p.m. today in Justin 115.

■ Fans are encouraged to donate canned goods to Cats for Cans Saturday at the Nebraska football game at Snyder Family Stadium. All donations will go to the Flint Hills Breadbasket.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Brian Flock at 1:30 p.m. Monday in Chalmers 36.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Eric Carter at 3 p.m. Monday in Justin 137.

■ The Career and Academic Success Carnival is 4:30-6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Derby ARC. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ Chimes Junior Honorary is accepting applications for the K-State Family of the Year. Applications are available online at www.k-state.edu/familyday and are due Wednesday. For more information, contact Amanda Brookover at amandajb@ksu.edu.

■ The Academic Majors Fair will be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday in the K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

dependable. quality service. ✓We can print from your Zip Disk, CD-Rom, or USB flash drive. Claflin Books and Copies

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 785-532-6560 ADVERTISE.

FREE SEMINAR
Understanding Bike Shifting Systems
Saturday, Oct. 14
11:00 a.m.
everyone welcome!
the PATHFINDER OUTDOOR EQUIPMENT SPECIALISTS
304 Poyntz. Downtown Manhattan
785.539.5639

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma, and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

Lee's Western Wear
20% off Long Sleeved Shirts
until Oct. 31, 2006
(Time to make room for new inventory!)
8426 E Hwy 24 • 785-776-6715 • Mon-Fri 9-6 Sat 9-5

BEVERLY BERNARDI POST
CONSERVATORY OF DANCE & POM
DELUXE 1-OF-A-KIND HALLOWEEN COSTUMES!
20% OFF COSTUMES!! (WITH THIS AD) ★TOPEKA 17TH & WANAMAKER ★RENAISSANCE★COUPLE COSTUMES★6'WIGS CHARACTER★
★50'S★"GIANT" COSTUMES★SEE IT TO BELIEVE IT★
UNBELIVIABLE! HATS, WIGS, MASKS
17TH & WANAMAKER • 273-2454 • 478-0800 • 267-1097
5936 SW 17th  $2.99 TY BEANIES, BUDDIES & POKEMON SALE!

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

See a photo opportunity?
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Call 785-532-6556

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station
at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

Wine, food samples impress Promenade on Poyntz patrons

Anna Bolmeier, senior in interior design, pours wine for Larry Parker, of Manhattan, Thursday evening at Geometrics during Promenade on Poyntz.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Even though it was below 50 degrees, and a slight wind was blowing, more than 200 people showed up for the second-annual Promenade on Poyntz Thursday evening.

The wine and food tasting event, which benefits Homecare and Hospice Inc. and is part of the Flint Hills Festival of Wines, invited businesses on Poyntz Avenue to participate in the event. The first 10 businesses to respond opened their doors to the 225 people who bought tickets. The $25 tickets sold out in four days.

"I called the first day they were available," Jill Bowman, Manhattan resident, said.

Patrons weren't the only ones hurrying to take part.

"We tried to be a part of it last year," said Laura Rothlisberger, owner of Celebrations of the Heart. "But I was the 11th caller. I called as soon as I could this year."

Balloons and a blackboard with information and pictures about the Manhattan Area Arts and Humanities Coalition helped patrons find each of the 10 participating businesses. Caterers provided food at each business, and Standard Beverage Corporation donated both red and white wines.

"I'm a big supporter of Homecare and Hospice," Rothlisberger said. "I know people who have used it, and I know what a great benefit it is for the families."

Some businesses paid for caterers, and some caterers donated the food. Others provided the food themselves.

"We tried to pair the food with the wine," said Linda Vescio, owner of catering business Magpie Market in Olsburg, Kan. "It's a good cause, and it's obviously good for us, because we are out of town, and we're new. It lets the people of Manhattan know about us."

Standard Beverage Corporation volunteers poured one ounce of wine into each patron's glass at each business. There were different red and white wines at each venue.

"It's very relaxing," Garry Bowman, Manhattan resident, said. "There's good music, good food and good people. It's a great night to be out, and we'll be back next year."

K-State student greeters at each business directed people to the wine and food.

"Lots of students are interested in event planning, and volunteering gives them an idea of what it's like," said Pat Pesci, director of K-State's hotel and restaurant management program. "They learn a lot about wine. We have students who come back every year. It's so much fun."

Each patron began his or her wine-tasting adventure at Manhattan Town Center and received a wine glass, provided by Varney Mills and Associates and BHS Construction, with 20 tickets for wine, an event program detailing the wines, food and businesses involved, and a "know your limits" chart, which is a "chart for responsible people who may sometimes drive after drinking."

This wasn't all the patrons received. Many businesses gave away goodie bags and coupons.

J&C Imaging Inc. gave free portraits on site and a half-off coupons for family sessions.

"We've taken just about 60 pictures so far," said Laura Schneider, part-time assistant at J&C Imaging. "It's been awesome."

Some patrons only went to the businesses where the wine and food sounded interesting. However, other patrons wanted to try all 20 wines.

"It's our second time doing this," Pat Parker, Manhattan resident, said. "It's a neat way to taste lots of wines. We're going to try them all."

The food and wine tasting event ended at the Homecare and Hospice's office on Poyntz Avenue, where desserts were served, and a saxophone player provided music.

"Last year we made more than $60,000 combined with the Flint Hills Festival of Wines," said Bonnie Nespor, member of the wine committee. "When the wine festival moved to the spring two years ago, Homecare and Hospice decided to start our own event in the fall since people were so used to having it then."

Both business owners and patrons said the event was a success.

"There are tons of people," Schneider said. "Nobody's drunk yet, but they're getting there."

Participating businesses and their caterers

Celebrations of the Heart: chocolate fountain
Danenberg Jewelers: Mercado
GAIA: Emerald City Market
Geometrics: Fourth Street Cafe
J&C Imaging Inc.: J&C Imaging Inc.
Lilacs on the Prairie: The Li'l Grill
Steve's Floral: Carlos O'Kelly's
Strecker-Nelson Gallery: 4 Olives Wine Bar
The Trust Company: Ramada Plaza
Wildflower Yard & Knitwear: Magpie Market
Homecare and Hospice: coffee and desserts

Security stays same for sold-out games

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A large crowd is expected for Saturday's football game against the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

"The game is considered a sellout," said Jenna Sims, senior in family studies and human services and employee at the K-State ticket counter.

Many K-State students feel a strong rivalry between K-State and Nebraska.

"I think the rivalry strengthens our school spirit and makes us more excited for the game," said Jarah Casten, sophomore in agricultural economics. "I think the fans might be a little crazier than normal because it's the Nebraska game."

This rivalry, combined with a sold-out stadium and a late kickoff time, could be a problem for Snyder Family Stadium security.

"Our challenge is that the stadium will be at capacity," said Casey Scott, associate director of operations for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics. "Also, it's a 6:10 p.m. start, which tends to create more issues for our security, in terms of alcohol use. People have longer to party before the game."

Regardless of kickoff time or amount of tickets sold, security procedures remain the same for every game.

"We always handle things in the same fashion," Scott said. "Our security procedures are the same whether there's 50,000 people in attendance like expected for this week or 46,000 like last week."

Security for each game includes officers from the K-State Police, the Riley County Police Department, the Pottawatomie County Sheriff's Department and the Kansas Highway Patrol. The athletics department also has its own security staff present at all games.

"We have a staff that assists with crowd issues, whether it be a medical need or an objection issue from a rowdy fan," Scott said. "All of the staff is ultimately backed up by uniformed police officers."

There are 60-70 officers and 40 stadium security staff at every game, so a lack of security should not worry fans, Scott said.

"Nebraska is a rival, but for the most part, our fans are viewed as a hospitable and first-class group," Scott said. "Yeah, they work hard for the Cats, but I don't anticipate anything out of the ordinary. We come in every week needing to perform at our best to provide the safest environment we can."

We Kick Ads!
532.6560

HALLOWEEN 2006

FEEL BOOTIFUL with a Relaxing Full Body Massage with Molly or Morgan only $35
or
Deep Tissue Massage with Mary only $45
shear dynamics
coupon expires 10.31.06
776.9100 12th & Laramie (Aggieville) www.sheardynamics.net

CLAIRE & HARLEY'S
a dog bath & boutique
Do you have your pet's costume yet?
785.537.4805
108 N. 3rd
(1/2 block N of Poyntz)

TIRED OF THE OLD AGGIEVILLE SCENE?
FRIDAY IS Ladies NIGHT @ BOWINKLE'S
featuring DJ LUIS women 18+ FREE
Free Prizes and Final Cash Prize
$3.00 32 oz. Domestic Moose Beers
3034 W. Anderson Ave

Don't be fooled by the title, this hilarious Broadway musical is fun entertainment for the whole family!
URINETOWN
the musical
Lyrics by Greg Kotis and Mark Hollmann
Book by Greg Kotis
Music by Mark Hollmann
Oct. 11 - 14 and Oct. 18 - 21 at 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 & Oct. 22 matinees at 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre on the KSU campus
Presented by KSU Theatre & Dance and the Dept. of Music
Sponsored by Ramada Plaza Hotel
TKTS: McCain Box Office open 11am to 5pm & K-State Union
Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 wkdays 532-6428
Tickets: $10 student/child $13 military $15 public

Coffee & The Collegian
The perfect way to start your day!

Student Phone Numbers at your Fingertips.
Kansas State University
Campus Phone Book
2006-2007
Available Now
for purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

TO THE POINT

Editors reveal superstitions to readers

In honor of Friday the 13th, we thought we'd share some of our superstitions and weird habits with Collegian readers.

TO THE POINT is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Kristen Roderick – When I was in cross country, my teammates and I would put a blade of painted grass from the starting line in our spikes before we ran. Then we would pray.

Anthony Mendoza – The number 13 frightens me.

Leann Sulzen – I never open an umbrella inside.

Kerry Fischer – I always kiss my car rooftop when I run a yellow light.

Owen Kennedy – I can't watch the kickoff of a Chiefs game.

Megan Moser – I think it's a good sign when one of my favorite songs comes on the radio.

Abby Brownback – I can't get on a plane without touching the outside as I board.

Steven Doll – On the final time I leave a room, I always grab the top of the door frame.

Emily Lawrence – I think the number 12 is lucky.

Zachary T. Eckels – When a sports game is close and comes down to the wire, I have to hold my breath.

Annette Lawless – I don't believe in superstitions. I have nothing to lose.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-

fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Hey Fiji, is there a reason you have so many trucks in your parking lot? Oh, I forgot — you're all rich kids from K.C.

Thomas Clayton Just asked my criminology teacher if people are like chickens and have white meat.

Thanks a lot, Collegian. My roommate just came out.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Nation's best

K-State's yearbook tops all other universities', so why aren't we buying?

MEGAN GREEN

Being a fifth-year student, one would think I know almost everything about K-State. Not to toot my own horn, but for the most part, I do. However, I just found out something not many people know about our school, myself included.

This university has the best college yearbook in the nation.

I'd like to answer, Alex. What is the K-State Royal Purple yearbook?

That's right. K-State has the top-ranked yearbook of all colleges and universities. That's the equivalent of when we won the Big 12 Conference Championship against Oklahoma in 2003, except the yearbook has won it consecutively for the last 17 years, not to mention it also has received the Associated Collegiate Press Pacemaker and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association Gold Crown 16 awards as well.

But here's the sad part. Yes, we have one of the best yearbooks in the nation, but we also win the award for the lowest number of yearbooks purchased by students. That's just sad.

"In the 1970s, our campus was smaller, and we sold 16,000 yearbooks," marketing researcher Sarah Erskine, senior in mass communications, said. "Now we only sell about 4,000 yearbooks, and our campus is huge."

Think back to the days of Zach Morris, the big cell phone, and how horrible you looked in your school picture (what were you thinking with that haircut anyway?). How would you remember all that stuff if you didn't have a yearbook with which you could travel back in time?

Who would want to forget when President Bush spoke to our campus, when your friend was, against his will, lifted up and crowd-surfed to the top of the stadium during a game, or when one of your friends got his picture taken going down a slip'n'slide with the funniest face ever?

I know there are those who say they'll get a yearbook when they are a senior, but think about it – don't you want to know what you looked like when you were a freshman and see how far you've come?

Gone are the stinky yearbooks from high school that cost a lot for few pages and poor printing quality. We're on to bigger and better things. We have big, glossy, colored photos, in-depth stories and something that no other college yearbook has: a double-sided DVD.

"We have 26 stories on one side. They range in topic from roller hockey to Miss Black and Gold, to Big 12 sports to the Bakery Science Club," Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., said. "The other side has coverage of the Fort Riley influx, changes in the community and room for people to tell their own personalized stories."

Did you know you can purchase pictures from the yearbook? If you see a picture you like in the yearbook, you can order it online from the yearbook's Web site. And to personalize it even more, the staff will print a yearbook cover personalized for you. You choose the pictures – whether they are in the yearbook or not – send them to the staff, and staff members turn your photos into a dust jacket. There's even room to write on your end flaps.

And don't forget, while you are purchasing your yearbook, remember that you want to be in it. Today is the last day to get your portrait taken. Do your hair and go to Rusty's Last Chance 3-9 p.m. You know you'll look back on it and say, "What was I thinking?"

Illustration by Ashley Burks

Megan Green is a fifth-year student in mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Small talk gives acquaintances common ground

BECKY STEINERT

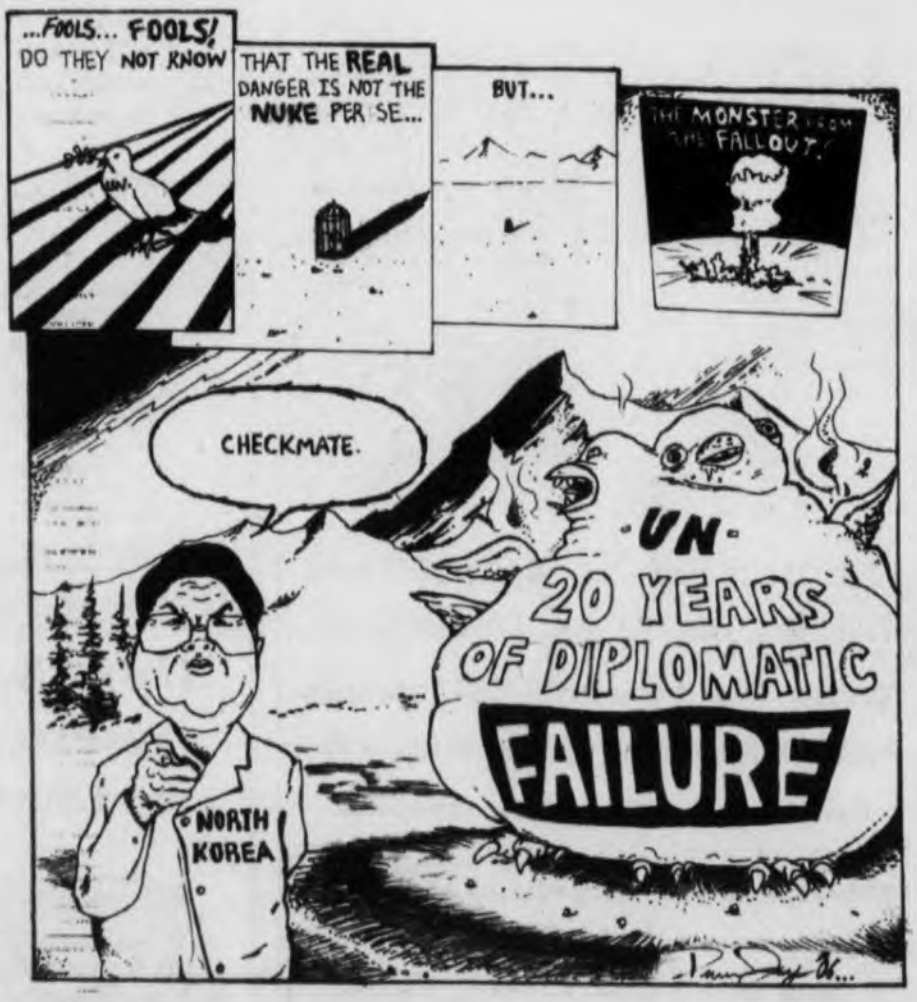
Afraid of being rejected based on your true personality? Terrified your real sense of humor might isolate you from the rest of the civilized world? Completely devoid of anything worthwhile to say? Well, the cure's right here, see, and it's all in this thing called "small talk."

Ah, small talk. Nothing stimulates the brain quite like it. Who isn't happiest when discussing a bland story with someone you barely know and exaggerating your laughter?

What is this wonder, this miracle of nature? What makes up this smallest of talk? It's a concept used when attempting to make a soul mate of a newly met friend. Upon first meeting a person, each eager conversationalist will discuss riveting topics like name, hometown and major.

This provides a weak foundation for feeble jokes about the answers given. "Oh, engineering, huh? Man, sounds like fun!" (Note: Small talk sarcasm is the worst kind.) For future, follow-up small talks, potential topics include how each person feels ("Tired, ha ha"), how each person's weekend was ("Good, but too short"), whether each is looking forward to that algebra test, whether each has even attempted the homework yet, and at least today is Friday. This lively camaraderie is a morale-booster and can make the day go by a little faster.

The supplement to small talk, in all its friendship-building glory, is the raised eyebrow, tight-lipped smile. This occurs when the two kindred spirits notice each other from across the dining hall or, my personal favorite, the awkward spotting on the way to class from far away. The latter is when one party is walking on his or her merry way to class, sees the second party walking and realizes that in a few moments, the two will pass each other, and an obligatory smile will be exchanged.



The second party realizes this also. They both will look away as if they don't see one another, glance back to see if the other is ready to acknowledge and be acknowledged, glance back away and repeat. This continues the entire length of the walk, until the two are close enough to submit to eye contact – as if they have just noticed one another – and smile.

However, small talk is not for every situation. Elevators, for example. Do not attempt to make small talk with someone on the elevator. This setting has its own protocol: initially look at the person, give a weak smile, and then both people will pretend to look at something else until the sweet release of one person's floor being reached.

The sound of a high-pitched, unnatural tone of voice in a conversation buddy is a sign the rapport will go the distance. Each feeble, "Hey, what's up?" is a reinforcement of that. From the inherently plain-vanilla humor to the half-hearted banter, small talk is the ultimate common ground.

Becky Steinert is a freshman in psychology. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

POLITICAL CARTOON | By Donnie Jay

From the Public Editor:

You're on record unless prior agreement made

Interviews are fun.

I've done hundreds. My shortest was 20 seconds long; my longest was more than two hours. All have their challenges.

LOGAN C. ADAMS

Some take slow, tedious work to yield useful information. With others, it's like catching a thunderstorm in a bucket. There are times, though, when they are more difficult than they have to be.

I spoke with a few Collegian writers this week about their time on the job. Specifically, what should you not do while talking to a reporter?

Above all, they said you need to understand what it means to be "on the record," a term that indicates your words can be quoted. If you are talking with someone you know is a reporter, you are on the record unless you've made an agreement otherwise.

"I hate it when they say something – it's quotable, it's beautiful, it's magical," Lacey Mackey, staff writer, said. "Then they say, 'don't quote me on that,' and then they give me something terrible."

It works like this: if you want to say something off the record, which means a reporter can't publish it, the reporter must first agree to go off the record.

A reporter is under no ethical obligation to obey when you add "don't quote me" to the end of a sentence. Only mercy will keep your words unprinted then.

In the words of news editor Leann Sulzen, think before you speak.

Another common misstep is when someone says goodbye after an interview and says, "Make me look good."

"I'll clean up 'umms' and coughs," Jonas Hogg, staff writer, said, but that's all. Reporters aren't supposed to be doing public relations for anyone, he said.

Collegian writers also wish sources would return more messages, saying it sometimes takes multiple calls before they get the person they need. Most often it's accidental, but it still bugs writers.

"You feel like you're stalking them," Sheila Ellis, staff writer, said.

The scribblers aren't the only ones with a wish list. There are things that make our photographers tick, too.

One source of frustration is when people watch them take pictures, then refuse to give their names for captions.

"Tell us at the beginning and not when we walk up and ask for your name," Christopher Hanewinckel, staff photographer, said.

It's also troublesome when people notice the camera and start posing, be it cute, dramatic or rude. The photographers are photojournalists; all they want is for their subjects to carry on as they would normally.

They also say they would like people to understand it is their job to photograph student life and their right to record images in public without catching attitude for it. There's no need to get angry over it.

HERE IS THE FUN PART

Now you get to tell me things you think Collegian staff shouldn't do.

Let me know what you've witnessed. I need your stories for my coming column on journalists who behave badly.

Logan C. Adams is the Collegian's public editor and a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu or catch him in person 10 a.m. to noon Wednesday on the first floor of the K-State Student Union.

TO THE EDITOR

Blood donors, volunteers are heroes who give another chance for people in need to live

Editor,

Heroes come in all shapes and sizes, and the American Red Cross would like to thank the heroes who donated blood at the American Red Cross K-State blood drive last week. The students and staff of the university turned out in record numbers during this five-day blood drive. Nearly 1,000 Wildcat supporters showed up to share their gift of life, and 809 productive units were collected.

Blood donors and volunteers are essential to the success of the Red Cross. Thank you to everyone who made this blood drive a success. We cannot fulfill our mission without each and every one of you. The Red Cross is proud to be the preferred provider of blood to Manhattan's Mercy Regional Health Center.

Our next blood drive is scheduled for Dec. 5 and 6. If you're interested in donating, please call Kristi at (785) 456-9773.

Thank you for your contributions to this critical and lifesaving cause. When you bleed purple, you give another laugh, another smile, another chance at life for someone in need.

Kristi Ingalls
DRD REPRESENTATIVE
Pam Heed
CENTRAL PLAINS REGION CEO
AMERICAN RED CROSS

Coach encourages Wildcat fans to donate canned food, funds at Saturday's game

Wildcat fans,

I would like to ask all Wildcat fans to help make sure no one in our community will go hungry this holiday season. The K-State versus Nebraska game on Saturday has been designated for the Cats for Cans food drive.

Please bring a donation of canned food to the game. Cash contributions also are welcome and will be matched by a local foundation. Checks can be made payable to The Mayor's Holiday Food and Fund Drive. Wildcat student athletes and alumni will be in the parking lots seeking donations prior to the game. Cats for Cans has been a university-sponsored food and fund drive for the past 10 years.

These donations will go to the Flint Hills Breadbasket in Manhattan. The Breadbasket serves Northeast Kansas non-profit agencies that help feed the hungry. The foods and funds collected will help provide holiday meals for financially challenged families. Last year the Flint Hills Breadbasket served more than 2,000 families with holiday food baskets. Please help me and the Wildcat teams create another holiday season in which no one will go hungry.

I am thanking you in advance for your help in this drive.

Go Cats.

Ron Prince
HEAD FOOTBALL COACH
K-STATE

Check Out sudoku in the Classifieds

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
Need to know if he's single?
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

RELIGION Directory

Your Religion Directory Ad Could Be Here! 785-532-6560

Services & Events:
Sunday Morning Service @ 10:30 a.m.
College Ministry (Happy Hour)
Sunday Evening Service @ 7 p.m.
Free Meal @ 6 p.m.

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
10:45 a.m. Children's Church
11:45 a.m. Contemporary Worship Service
Fellowship meal to follow service
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Welcome to FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Saturday Service 5:30 p.m.
Sunday Worship 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Church School for all ages 9:45 a.m.
www.firstlutheranmanhattan.org
10th & Poyntz 785-537-8532

CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
ecm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/ecm
David Jones, Pastor
Sundays 5:30 pm Table Fellowship
Mondays 7 pm Prayer and Motion 9 pm Money Matters
Thursdays 8 pm Faith Forum
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

Peace Lutheran Church
P-E-A-C-E
Worship Sundays 8:30 and 11:00 Contemporary Service 5:00 p.m.
Pastor Michael Ide
2500 Kimball
539-7371
www.peace-to-you.org
With Christ . . . Gather . . . Grow and Go Forth!

Muslim Student Association (MSA)
785-776-1033

First United Methodist Church
612 Poyntz Ave
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-776-8821
www.fumcmanhattan.com
www.ksu.edu/umcm
Traditional Worship: Sun 8:30 & 11am Sanctuary
Contemporary Worship: Sun 8:45am - Harris Activity Center Casual dress, free donuts
Sunday School - 9:45am
Communion Service 5:30 pm Wed

Join the Directory 785-532-6560

MANHATTAN JEWISH CONGREGATION
Worship: Fri. 7:30 pm
1509 Wreath Ave, Manhattan
Everyone welcome!
www.manhattanjewishcong.org
In association with HILLEL the Jewish student organization
www.k-state.edu/hillel

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:00, 9:30, 11:00 a.m.
Collegiate Bible Hour Class 11:00 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
785-776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

Celebration Service
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..."
Contemporary Worship Service
Sundays at 11:45 a.m.
Everyone is Welcome
College Fellowship Dinner to follow service
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Trumpeters of God Ministries
P.O. Box 772, Manhattan, KS 66505-0772
Vision: Gospel of Christ, Power of God, Salvation for Believers
Worship Service @ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
Sunday School: 9:30-10:15 a.m.
Sunday Service: 10:15-12:00 Noon
Good Morning Jesus @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Monday: 5:30-6:30 a.m.
Bible Study @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Thursday: 7:00-8:30 p.m.
Prayer Vigil @ CrossRoads of ECM 1021 Denison Ave.
Friday: 10:00-12:00 Midnight
Monthly Holy Ghost Conference @ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
First Friday of every month @ 7:00-10:00 p.m.
Quarterly Fasting & Prayer Meeting
First Seven days of every quarter. Venue varies
Contact: Pastor Ebenezer Oguntyinka
Phone: 785-317-5160
Web page: www.ksu.edu/trumpeters
Email: trumpeters@ksu.edu

MANHATTAN MENNONITE CHURCH
1000 Fremont 539-4079
Worship: 10:45 SS: 9:30
Richard & Barbara Gehring, Pastors
K-State Student Group
www.manhattan.ks.us.mennonite.net
Potluck 1st and 3rd Sunday after worship

newhope CHURCH
Pursuing relationships that change the world
WORSHIP SERVICE 9 A.M
3905 Green Valley Rd.

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening 6p.m. Danforth Chapel
Your Invited!
Tuesday 7-8pm
Bible Study @ Luther House
Good vs. Evil with the Chronicles of Narnia
Thursday 6pm
Meal and Conversation
Sunday 5pm
Spaghetti Meal @ Luther House
Worship 6pm with Holy Communion
Danforth Chapel
• On Campus •
Everyone is Welcome!
www.ksu.edu/lcm-elca
lcmelca@ksu.edu
Any Questions? 313-3895 or 539-4491
LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
1745 Anderson
•SE Corner of Denison & Anderson•
ELCA

Christian Science Society
Sunday 10:30 a.m.
Danforth Chapel
KSU Campus
Wed. 7:30 in Reading Room
Reading Room open Tues.-Thurs. 11-1
105 N. 4th St.

Harvest Fellowship
We gather for worship Sundays at 10:00 a.m. @ the Ramada Plaza Hotel (across from the K-State Union)
Harvest is an emerging church whose ancient faith is lived out in our current culture.
Curious?
Contact Pastor David at 317-4538
Harvestfellowship.manhattanks.org harvestfellowshipefc@juno.com

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00,10:30, 10:40
• Sunday School at 9:15
Steve Ratliff, Senior Pastor
Brian Anderson, Assoc. Pastor
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086
N W E S Barnes Kimball Bluemont Tuttle Creek Blvd

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
2121 Blue Hills Road
539-8691
9:45 am Sunday School
11:00 am Sunday Worship
Praise Team Twice Each Month
1801 Anderson Ave 539-3051
Baptist Campus Center

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (Where reason and intuition guide our personal journey)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Child Care Provided.
A Welcoming Congregation.
Rev. Michael Nelson
For information call (785) 537-2349
www.uufm.net

Agape Family Church
121 S. 4th—Downtown
An Affiliate of RHEMA Bible Church aka Kenneth Hagin Ministries
Sunday 9:30 a.m. School of the Bible
Sunday 10:30 a.m. Worship
Sunday 7:00 p.m. Evening Worship
Wednesday 7:30 p.m. Hour of Power
Youth, Children's and Nursery Services
STERLING HUDGINS - PASTOR
Office: 121 S. 4th Suite 205
www.agapefamily.org
Monday Nite Lite 7:15 p.m.
College Fellowship 207 Union
(785) 539-3570

You are welcome at... First Assembly of God
Weekly Services
Sunday
Traditional Service 8:00 am
Sunday School 9:30 am
Contemporary Service 10:45 am
Prayer Meeting 6:00 pm
Wednesday
Bible Study 7:00 pm
Youth Group (grades 7-12)
Royal Rangers (Boys Clubs)
Missionettes (Girls Clubs)
Chi Alpha Campus Ministries 7:00 pm
(KSU Little Theater)
Gary Av Candlewood Dr. Seth Child Rd Kimball Av
Nursery Provided for All Services
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr. Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

WALKING TALL

Bob Huggins' confident swagger will revolutionize the men's basketball program

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State men's basketball coach Bob Huggins walks onto the court at Bramlage Coliseum with Director of Intercollegiate Athletics Tim Weiser before Weiser introduced Huggins as the new coach on March 23. Huggins replaced Jim Wooldridge, who was fired on March 9 after the Wildcats' first-round loss in the Big 12 Conference Tournament.

About this time a year ago, as I was preparing for the first men's basketball practice and the upcoming season, one question became a recurring theme: "Are you going to beat KU?"

SCHYLER THOMAS

After hearing this for the previous three years and allowing "The Streak" to continue since 1994, we finally lifted the burden off the shoulders of the Wildcat nation on Jan. 14.

But by the end of the season we reverted back to the good team that couldn't win the close game – breaking fans' hearts, along with our own, over and over again.

For that, I apologize.

So what's going to make this year different from the last?

Yes, we've added a future Hall of Fame coach and some talented players. But we have always had good personnel, and this team will have the same basic roster as last season.

The name Bob Huggins speaks for itself, so I don't have to reel off statistics and facts.

But the element I believe people might overlook is the winning swagger and attitude that comes with a great coach.

New offensive and defensive strategies, plus jerseys that will be unveiled tonight will be the obvious differences this year, but it's Huggins' confident swagger that ultimately will change the Wildcats.

It always has seemed like we've had the "I hope we win" mentality around here, or players were worried about things other than just winning the ball game.

Huggins brings that killer instinct, that "I know we're going to win" attitude, which is necessary to be a Top-25 team.

And the reason I don't hear, "Are you going to beat KU this year?" is because the fans also have the Huggins swagger.

We are not a Top-25 team right now, but there's nothing stopping K-State from becoming one.

Another key aspect is playing a legitimate non-conference schedule with the tougher teams on the road – not to mention the multiple televised games on ESPN and ABC. It has created a buzz I've never seen before, and K-State fans are getting more excited than ever. But more importantly, the players are, too.

Huggins will get the most out of every player while still allowing them to be themselves. Being extremely confident and maybe a little cocky might not be attractive characteristics in the everyday world, but the teams that win championships posses these qualities on the basketball court.

I can't predict the way the season will turn out, but I do believe we'll be dancing in March.

And the reason I don't hear "Are you going to beat KU this year?" is because the fans also have the Huggins swagger.

They know K-State will.

So let's get out tonight in strong support of our Wildcats and show everyone that in Manhattan, the madness will last from midnight until March.

Schyler Thomas is a fifth-year student in finance and management and a former guard on the K-State men's basketball team in 2002-06. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

MADNESS | Basketball programs drops "Fright Night," hopes to raise profile of teams

Continued from special section

Last year, "Fright Night" was K-State's preseason basketball introduction. Laura Tietjen, associate director of athletics, said "Fright Night" had been successful, but it was the right time to try something different.

"Madness in Manhattan is something we wanted to do to raise the profile of both the programs," Tietjen said. "We just felt the timing was right with the coaching change, and both coaches have responded positively."

Fans have been interested in the idea, too.

"I think we're going to be packed," Tietjen said. "We've heard a lot of responses from people saying they're going to show up at seven so they can get in first."

But can Huggins turn around the K-State program and lead it to its first NCAA tournament appearance in 10 years? Blake Young, a junior college transfer, thinks that is setting the bar too low.

"(The NCAA tournament) is a real big step, but you've got to set your expectations higher than that," Young said. "We got a real good team. I don't see no reason why we don't have a chance of making a real big run."

K-State to face Oklahoma Saturday

By Jessi Hernandez
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

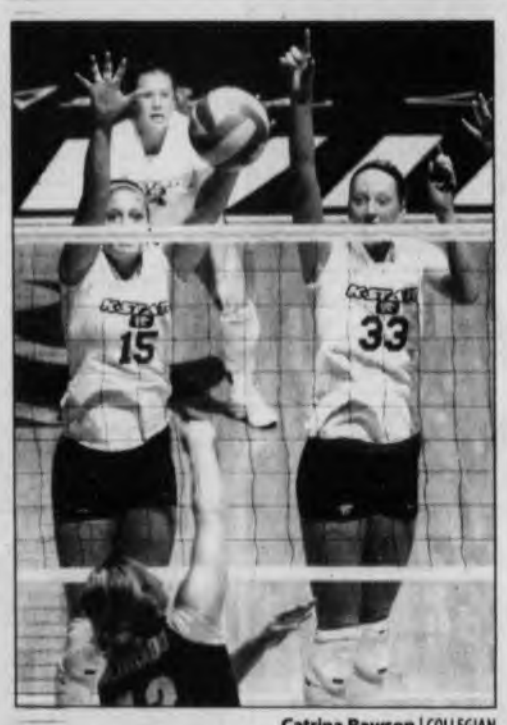
K-State vs. No. 24 Oklahoma
When: 1 p.m. Saturday
Where: Ahearn Field House
■ Non-K-State students who present their K-State/Nebraska football ticket at the door will receive admission for just $1 as a part of "Wildcat Weekend."

The K-State volleyball team is still working toward an ever-elusive Big 12 Conference win, and it will get its next shot Saturday against the No. 24 Sooners of Oklahoma.

While the Wildcats (8-10, 0-8 Big 12) can't seem to shake their Big 12 cold streak, the Sooners are on a hot six-match winning streak and have not lost since Sept. 16 against No. 1 Nebraska. On Sept. 28, Oklahoma pulled off a five-game upset against No. 8 Texas – the first win for the Sooners in the series.

On Wednesday, the Sooners (15-3, 7-1 Big 12) won against Texas Tech in Lubbock, Texas, for the first time since 1997 and moved into second place in Big 12 standings.

K-State, on the other hand, lost to Kansas in Lawrence for the first time since 1994.



Oklahoma's powerful offense is led by senior outside hitter Joanna Schmitt, who has a team-leading 4.25 kills per game average, and senior middle blocker Laura Tomes, who averages 3.35 kills per game.

For the Wildcats, senior outside hitter Sandy Werner and sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker lead the team offensively. Werner leads the team in kills with 253. Kroeker leads in hitting percentage with .308, and she ranks third in the Big 12 in blocks per game.

Junior setter Stacey Spiegelberg continues to climb in the K-State record books and is now fifth on the K-State career assists list.

Though Oklahoma leads the series 40-23-1, K-State has won 15 of its last 16 matches against the Sooners.

Coach Suzie Fritz and players did not practice on Thursday and were unavailable for comment.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Stacey Spiegelberg and Megan Kroeker make a block against Colorado on Oct. 7.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

Where to watch the Wildcats this season

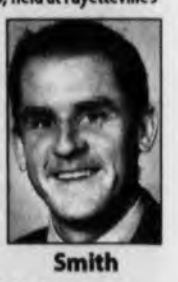
Coco Bolos Bar Report Card:
Atmosphere: A
Food selection: A
Drink (choices): B
Entertainment: C

With an atmosphere unlike any other and a menu consisting almost entirely of original creations, Coco Bolos offers K-State fans a different environment for watching football games this season.

More than anything else, Coco Bolos, 1227 Bluemont Ave., is a restaurant. The menu offers a wide variety of interesting food choices that blend Caribbean, Mexican and even a bit of Italian influences. From pasta with black beans to sandwiches topped with guacamole, the menu is sure to surprise even the most adventurous food connoisseur.

The drink selection also is quite different than one would expect to find at a typical bar. While Coco Bolos offers six beers on tap and a good selection of bottled beers, it also has a nine-item wine list.

The atmosphere is consistent with the menu. A cozy interior is decorated with colorful tile, and the music is something one would expect to find on a cruise ship bound for Jamaica. This sophisticated interior in conjunction with the menu and drink selection makes Coco Bolos an ideal place for low-key K-State fans to watch the Wildcats in a relaxed atmosphere.



In terms of actually watching the game, Coco Bolos only has two televisions, but it is small enough they can be seen from anywhere in the restaurant. Both televisions are flat screens and offer excellent picture quality.

Unfortunately, Coco Bolos does not subscribe to any sports packages and only broadcasts games that are shown on cable. However, if the game is on cable and food is high on the priority list, there are few better places in Manhattan to catch a game.

— Reviewed by Dayne Logan

RUN | K-State travels to Arkansas for Chile Pepper Invitational

After a week off, the K-State cross country teams will travel to Fayetteville, Ark., this Saturday for the University of Arkansas' Chile Pepper Invitational. The races, held at Fayetteville's Agri Park, will begin with the men's 10K race at 9:45 a.m. followed by the women's 6K race at 10:30 a.m.

Smith

The Wildcat women's team will look to build off its fifth-place team finish two weeks ago at the Oklahoma State Cowboy Jamboree. Coach Michael Smith would like to see his team take some big steps this weekend in preparation for the Big 12 Conference meet on Nov. 11.

"I would really like to see all six of our women run what they're capable of running," Smith said. "I don't think that all six have put together their best races on the same day so far this season."

Coming off of a 44th-place finish, and his fastest 8K-time of the season (26:21) at the Cowboy Jamboree, sophomore Colin Swaney will once again look to lead the Wildcat men's team. Swaney has finished as K-State's top runner in three of four events this season. The men's 10K race will be the longest race the Wildcats have competed in this season.

EQU | Equestrian team plays host to Baylor at Fox Creek Stables

The K-State equestrian team will kick off its 2006-07 home schedule at noon Friday as it battles the Baylor Bears at Fox Creek Stables.

The head-to-head English and Western match-up will be the second time these two teams have faced one another this season.

Baylor defeated K-State 8-7 at the Bulldog Invitational on Sept. 24.

"It's a big weekend for us," head coach Teresa Slough said. "We have the home show Friday, and we go to Oklahoma State on Sunday. It's the first show for a lot of our riders, and we are excited to see them ride."

The match-up will feature 37 K-State riders in both English and Western styles.

Many new riders will make their debut, including seven freshmen. Bridget Doyle, Jessica Hensley, Paige Sullivan and Rhiannon Truax will join the English team, while Kyla Copple, Danielle Petra and Mikaela Sundgren will make their debuts with the Western Squad.

After Friday's show, the Wildcats will travel to Stillwater, Okla., for a Sunday show against the Oklahoma State Cowgirls.

Ancient tales lend foreboding to Friday the 13th

Katelynn Hasler
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

They call it paraskevidekatriaphobia. Those who refuse to drive a car, fly in an airplane, or even leave their home for a walk down to the mailbox on a certain calendar day might be its victims.

The superstitions, fears and bad luck associated with a day just like today elicit this phobia – an intense fear of Friday the 13th.

Fear of Friday the 13th is believed to have stemmed from ancient and separate associations with the number 13 and the day Friday as unlucky, according to nationalgeographic.com.

There are a number of legends and even a biblical reference explaining the bad-luck associations surrounding this day.

One Norse myth describes 12 gods having a dinner in their heaven.

A 13th, uninvited god arrives and arranges to have another of the guests killed.

Believers associated the day of this incident with bad luck, making the number 13 ominous and foreboding, according to nationalgeographic.com.

While some are quite superstitious about Friday the 13th, many people like to celebrate it with a night of scary movies with friends.

The majority of movie renters around Friday the 13th, especially because it is so close to Halloween, look for horror movies, said Kelsey Dipman, video team leader at Hastings Entertainment.

The store stocks up on extra scary movies around this time, she said.

"Most of the people coming in tomorrow will probably be looking for the classic scary movies," Dipman said. "They're movies like 'The Rocky Horror Picture Show' or 'Nightmare on Elm Street.'"

Jim Callahan, shift manager at Blockbuster, said the week before Friday the 13th sees the highest demand for horror films.

"Everyone wants to make sure they have the movie they want," Callahan said. "They all come in the week before to get it, and then Friday is pretty much just a normal day for us."

One group of K-State students plans to follow suit by arranging a get-together to spend the night watching several scary movies.

"This day doesn't come around very often," Rachael Barnett, junior in speech pathology, said. "So when it does happen, you've got to get yourself in the mood with some scary movies."

Another student said she doesn't believe in bad luck on Friday the 13th.

"I guess it's kind of the reverse for me," Anne Wertzberger, junior in psychology, said. "It's always been a pretty good day for me. My friends and I figured we'd rent some scary movies and have fun."

Jars of Clay to play at McCain Sunday

By Alex Peak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Jars of Clay, a Dove Award-winning contemporary Christian band, will perform at 5 p.m. Sunday at McCain Auditorium.

Thomas Jackson, marketing and development officer for McCain, said there has been a steady stream of tickets being sold.

"Tickets went on sale about three months ago," he said. "I expect there will be a good turn-out for the show."

Jackson said tickets will be available for purchase through the ticket box until the show begins.

The show itself is not sponsored by K-State, Jackson said. It's not part of the McCain performance series, so the auditorium is serving as a rental space for the event.

Since there has been a lot of promotion within the community, Jackson said there should be a mixed audience.

"There has been quite a lot of promotion through local churches," he said. "We will be seeing a lot of local community, as well as students and faculty."

Kelly Huerter, senior in marketing, who has been listening to Jars of Clay for more than a decade, said he plans to attend the concert.

"It's good to hear music that's not just your typical praise and worship but still has good Christian values," he said.

Huerter said he has enjoyed the band's music for a long time.

"I think I probably bought my first Jars of Clay cassette in first grade," he said. "I don't own a whole lot of their music, but I do have a couple of CDs."

He said he's glad the band is able to come to K-State.

"I've really enjoyed their music in the past, and I've never seen them in concert," he said. "I'm really pumped."

Game to bear contest winner's name

By Lauren Tice
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Chaz Clark was 4 years old, she chose to become a Wildcat fan. But she didn't know that one day, she would win a contest for it.

In her essay for the Alltel Wireless "My Own Gam" contest, Clark wrote it was her destiny to be a Wildcat fan. The essay explained why she deserved to have a football game named after her.

While the rest of her family cheered for the University of Kansas, Clark opted to support the Wildcats.

"I loved purple," Clark, junior in criminology, said. "I think that's how it all got started."

A couple of weeks after submitting her essay, Clark learned she had been chosen as one of the 10 finalists in the contest.

The 10 finalists each won a Schwinn High Timber Mountain Bike, a Samsung U420 cell phone with service and a campaigning "tool kit."

According to the contest's Web site, www.alltelvote.com, the tool kit included buttons, T-shirts, flyers and other materials the finalists could use to campaign for votes.

The finalist with the most votes won the contest.

"I pretty much made my family and friends stop their lives for a week," Clark said.

In addition to rallying her family and friends for support, Clark distributed flyers and buttons and explained the contest to other tailgaters to get their votes.

Loni Woolery, a close friend of Clark, campaigned.

Woolery, a recent K-State graduate, convinced most of the newsroom at the Tulsa (Okla.) World to vote for Clark. She also had her family and other Tulsa friends vote.

"I would do anything for her – she's my best friend," Woolery said. "I had to do it for her; I know she would do it for me."

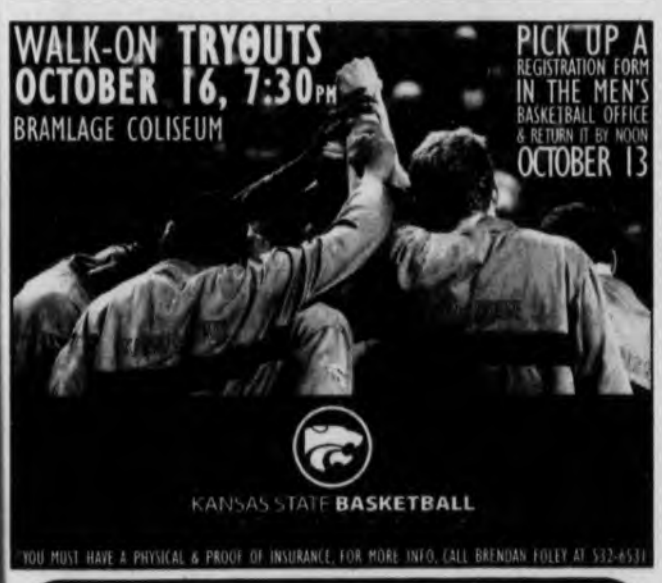
The campaigning literally paid off. In the first day of voting, Clark received the most votes and won $1,000.

Then, after voting ended seven days later, Clark was informed via e-mail that Saturday's football game against Nebraska will be known as the "Chaz Clark Game."

Clark's friends and family who helped the most will accompany her to the game, while the others will attend her tailgate party.

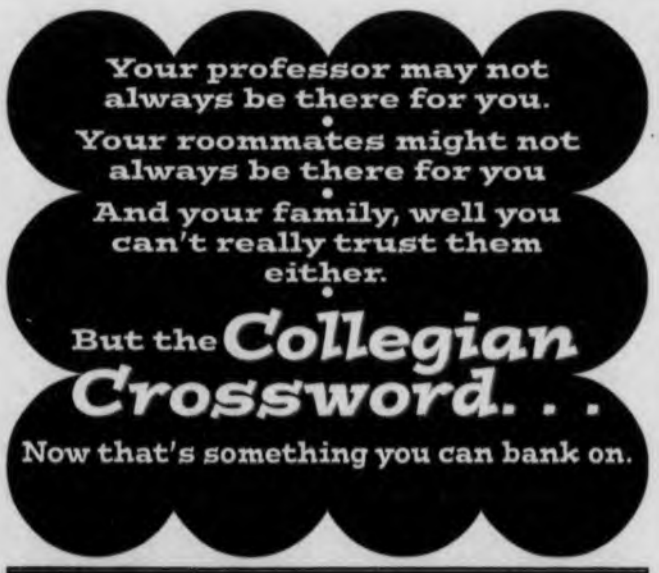
Woolery will make the trip from Tulsa to enjoy Clark's victory at the game.

"I have been going to K-State football games for four years," Woolery said. "There's no way I would miss this one."

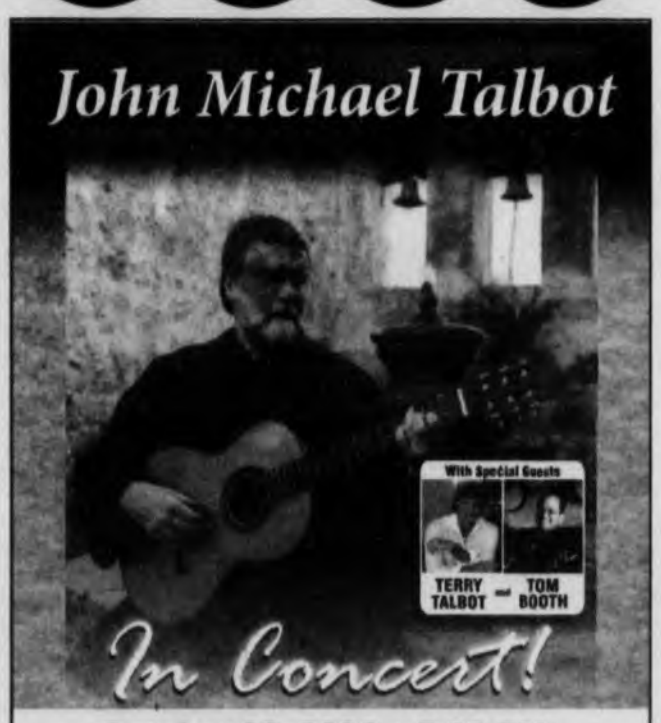


Clark already has enjoyed spending the $1,000 and watching television on her new 42"-screen television, but she is excited to attend the game named for her.

"Now I really am KSU's No. 1 fan," she said.



Clark won:



- The naming of the football game after her
- A tailgate party for her and 100 friends
- Box seats in the Alltel suite for her and 10 friends
- On-field access for her and four friends
- A Samsung 42" flat-screen high definition television
- A Samsung U420 cell phone with service
- A Samsung one giga-byte MP3 Player
- A personalized replica football jersey
- A football autographed by coach Ron Prince
- A photo opportunity with Willie the Wildcat
- Her name on the cover of the program
- In-stadium recognition with her name and picture on the videotron

No such thing as 'flawless'

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Andrea Dugan, senior at Manhattan High School, attempts to draw model Leah Cunnick, 1998 K-State graduate, during a free art class at Varney's Book Store Thursday evening. The class is offered both Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Free classes encourage artistic expression

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

For some people, art is supposed to be perfect, but for others, like art instructor James Taylor, the term "flawless" isn't in their vocabulary.

Taylor encourages his students, who attend his free art seminars every Tuesday and Thursday at Varney's Book Store, to draw what they see in front of them.

Students bring or buy their own supplies for a different type of art each week. This week's topic was figure drawing, and students drew a live, clothed model.

Cashier Andrea Dugan, senior at Manhattan High School, was asked to take part in the class because only one other person attended.

Dugan was concerned about her ability, so after handing out the materials and explaining the creative effects of each piece of charcoal, Taylor reassured her.

"Loosen up. Relax," Taylor said. "You're not going for a perfect drawing. You're just going for a shaper here and there."

The first set of poses, by model Leah Cunnick, K-State graduate, were "one-minute drawings," as he called it.

Participant Kay Ring said art is a therapeutic process, and it hasn't stopped at drawing.

"It gives you more confidence or eventually develops confidence," Taylor said. "I'm trying to be an art quilter. We artists use quilts as our medium."

Ring said she has attended the classes for four or five years.

"On their schedule they were doing something that I was interested in, and I decided to come for a couple of weeks," she said. "I just kept coming. I got hooked.

"I noticed that my art has definitely improved since I've started this class. I'm a lot more aware of design, color and texture. I see a lot of things in others' art that I can appreciate."

Taylor said art is his passion, and he proved this in 2000 when he left a job in Louisiana that paid $30,000 a year to move back to Kansas and attend K-State.

"It's been my life," he said. "I graduated in spring of 2005 in painting and ceramics, and now I'm done. But after five years of college, I'm $30,000 in debt, but I'm happy."

Taylor said the purpose of the class is to incite artistic expression.

"It's actually to encourage art, except Varney's helps out a lot," Taylor said. "It's to get the community involved, and we cater to everyone. It's not just college students that are just interested in art."

Taylor offers classes 6:30-8 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday on the second floor of Varney's. People are welcome to come to any class without a reservation.

Tuesday's class will be on abstract acrylics.

REPRESENT | Event one of many planned by BSU

Continued from Page 1

Yahaya, president of the Kappa Tau chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity and junior in civil engineering.

The highlights of the night included a presentation by Phi Beta Sigma fraternity, a performance from the POISE dance team, and a preview of BSU's "Pant the Chant" All-University Homecoming performance. But it was a step show by Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity that truly ignited the crowd. Audience members rose from their seats and inched closer to the stage as the beat of stomps cascaded through Union Station. People cheered as the dancers moved with fluid motion and pristine timing.

"We're proud of our step team," Yahaya said. "They travel throughout the Midwest to give performances and raise awareness."

Represent is one of many opportunities BSU plans to provide this year. Along with community service projects and social events, the group said it hopes to provide students with a sense of belonging.

"BSU is an organization whose mission is to make students of all persuasions and ethnicities, but primarily African-American students, feel comfortable and welcome here at K-State," Keener Tippin, BSU faculty adviser, said. "It's kind of a home away from home for students of color."

Mahon said BSU plans to unite its students under its acronym for the year: B.L.A.C.K. by popular demand. B.L.A.C.K. stands for "building leaders and continual knowledge."

"Leadership is in popular demand, and that is what people will need to achieve success," she said.

ALLTEL | Plans made for more reliable service

Continued from Page 1

in a certain area, are draining that tower," the representative said.

It is the same for any phone company. Too many call requests through the circuits will result in an overload, temporarily suspending the service, the representative said.

"I have never had a problem getting or making calls during football games," Chris Hair, senior in sociology, said of his Sprint phone. "I didn't know it was an issue."

But for those who have plans to meet up with friends, finding there is no service is aggravating, Greg Nelson, junior in engineering, said.

"I made plans with friends to tailgate for an early game, but they couldn't get through to me 'cause, once again, Alltel had no service," he said, "I did finally meet up with them... eight hours and a case of beer later."

A representative from an Alltel store in Manhattan said the company has received quite a few complaints similar to Nelson's related to lack of service on game days.

"There is really nothing we can do," the representative said. "We don't control the service, and those who can do something probably don't realize there is a problem."

There are representatives who have recognized the problem, however, and a representative said improvements are in progress to solve the service issues.

CANS | Collection to occur during Nebraska game

Continued from Page 1

Hills Breadbasket has been collecting and distributing food for the past 20 years.

Cats for Cans is just one program that helps the Flint Hills Breadbasket complete its mission "to minimize hunger and poverty through the distribution of available food and to nurture projects that help alleviate hunger and poverty."

The Breadbasket received more than 4,000 pounds of food and more than $5,000 last year during its Cats for Cans campaign, Philip said. This year, she hopes for more.

"We're trying to top last year's donations so that we can feed more people," Philip said.

This year, the Breadbasket will receive a matching bid from Thrivent Financial for Lutherans for all monetary donations.

For those who can't make it to the football game, there are several ways to participate in the Cats for Cans collection.

"People can donate to the students who go door-to-door for the interpersonal skills class that is collecting in all neighborhoods, or they can bring donations directly to us," Philip said.

remember:
brush your teeth.

Then, you won't be so worried about how your free Royal Purple yearbook picture turns out. Come to Rusty's Last Chance on Friday, Oct. 13 from 4 - 9 p.m. and take advantage of $1.50 burgers and free pictures.

Plus, your breath will smell better.

Your book. Your story. | royalpurple yearbook&dvd

Brazilian orphans' works sold to aid artists themselves

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students from the K-State Community Service Program watched as a group of Brazilian children sat, laughing and drawing pictures of each other.

It was portrait day in art class, and the children spent about three hours creating their masterpieces during an art class facilitated by K-State students on a trip to Brazil.

"They didn't want to stop," said Anna Wetzel, 2006 graduate in fine arts.

Pieces from a summer of art and learning now will be used to continue to help this group of Brazilian children.

Art pieces and photographs will be for sale at "Brazilian Art Night" 4:30-7:30 p.m. today at the Varney's Book Store gallery in Aggieville.

All proceeds from the pieces, created by a group of at-risk youth from Jacunda, Brazil, will benefit Project Rescue of Amazon Youth (P.R.A.Y.) and will go directly to the group of child artists who made the pieces. The event is free and open to the public.

Art pieces range in size and have suggested donations of $25 for large pieces to $15 for small pieces. Photographs from the trip taken by the group will be available for a suggested price of $5.

Wetzel said the group worked on a variety of projects while at the orphanage.

"A lot of the projects on the surface were relationship-building, cultivating life skills and confidence building," Wetzel said. "Having such a tumultuous background, they didn't have a lot of self-confidence. Simple things like art projects, they could see a goal and accomplish it, even if it was really small."

The children with whom the K-State group worked at the shelter in Brazil included infants to 14-year-olds. Twelve to 20 children were at the art classes, and Wetzel said each came from a different background. Some were abused, others were abandoned, and still more were orphaned.

Chance Lee, senior in sociology and political science, said the community service program has several opportunities for eight- to 10-week programs for next summer. Students interested can contact the service program and the Leadership Studies and Programs through civic leadership.

Lee said the art event will be a time for people to see one of K-State's programs and the opportunities available to students.

Wetzel said the art projects were based on material from a Wamego art teacher. As the classes began, the group taught the children about U.S. artists and popular art, but as the project continued, Wetzel said she started to research Brazilian artists to weave in a native influence. The projects began to mesh U.S. and Brazilian themes.

The end product is a series of layering techniques, Wetzel said, including tracing and coloring.

When the children began their projects, Wetzel said she noticed how many children traced what others had done. As the classes continued, however, the children started to express themselves. Wetzel said she watched as the tracing started to disappear. In its place appeared the art of a child.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6560
ADVERTISE.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

200 Service Directory

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

120 Rent-Houses

COUNTRY HOME, 3 bedroom, 2 bath, 2 car garage, outside pets permitted. $475 per month. NE 28 miles. Call 785-532-7569 or 785-396-4577.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

150 Sublease

2 BEDROOM 1 bath apartment sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600 month, available now, 785-410-7266.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

235 Child Care

CHILD CARE needed in home, for toddlers ages two to four. Two days per week. 785-341-1550.

CHILDCARE NEEDED in my home. Close to campus, flexible part-time, mostly evening or late afternoon hours. 913-306-3378.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

COACH: MIDDLE School Assistant Girl's Basketball Coach for Riley County Middle School. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org with mailing address or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

COMPUTING AND Network Services - Part-time - Student Computer Operator, Production Control Operator or Web Specialist. For further information, please refer to http://www.k-state.edu/cns/employment/. Paid for by Kansas State University.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HARRY'S SERVER and daytime dishwasher WANTED. Experienced server with friendly, upbeat, eager personality. Flexible availability required. Daytime Dishwasher needed, some night - weekend availability. Apply within 418 Poyntz Avenue.

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

INTERNET WORK! $9-$150/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ Summer. Studentserveysite.com/kscollegian

MILL CREEK Valley Schools USD #329 is accepting applications for a Freshman Boys Basketball Coach at Wabaunsee High School. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315 or the District Office at 785-765-3394 for an application.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NANNY POSITION available for widow with delightful 8-year-old daughter. Room, board plus salary for approximately 15- 20 hours a week including early mornings and some late afternoons, evenings (weekends negotiable). Must have experience and inclusive, joyful attitude about working with children. Anticipated starting date January 2, 2007, but flexible for the right person. If interested please call 785-539-9067 evenings before 9 p.m.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Kennel, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, Manager, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com. Conducting interviews at the Holiday Inn formerly the Ramada Inn 1641 Anderson, October 11th and 12th from 8:30 to 4:30. Visit our site for details.

looking for a job?
CHECK THE
COLLEGIAN
CLASSIFIEDS

Management Career Opportunity

Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.

Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.

Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PART-TIME RETAIL Store Supervisors. If you have retail experience and leadership skills, the K-State Super Store is looking for you! This is a great opportunity if you are currently working in retail and want to get more supervisory responsibility. Pay rate is $8.00 - $9.00 per hour based on experience. Call today, these positions won't be open for long! Please stop by or send resume to K-State Super Store, Attn. Human Resources, 520 McCall Rd. Manhattan Ks, 66502, or e-mail humanresources@igtm.com. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PLANNING COMMISSION / Board of Zoning Appeals Secretary The City of Ogden is accepting applications for the part - time position of Planning Commission / Board of Zoning Appeals Secretary. Duties include attending meetings, taking, preparing and maintaining minutes of the meetings. A pre - employment drug screening may be conducted. Wage is $8.50 per hour. Applications are available at City Hall, 222 Riley Avenue, Ogden, Kansas 66517. Applications are due before Noon, October 17, 2006.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. is accepting applications for a part-time position for a Macintosh technician. to start near the end of October 2006. Work about 10 scheduled hours per week with some additional emergency, maintenance and on-call hours as needed, some of which are at night and weekends. The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance. Troubleshoots and repairs equipment. Assists with maintaining all written and electronic records. Assists with ordering when needed and approved by tech manager or supervisor. Applicants should be familiar with Mac OS X. Unix experience is helpful. Any other knowledge with programming, web page design, Lan, networking would be beneficial. Some familiarity with design software such as Adobe Photoshop, Adobe InDesign and Imageready is helpful. Must be able to follow written and verbal instructions and work well under pressure of a daily deadline and other crisis situations. Dependable and on time for scheduled hours.
Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolled in fall semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.
Application deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, 2006. Please include your fall 2006 class schedule. Pick up applications in 113 Kedzie. Return applications to 113, 115 or 103 Kedzie.

SWINE HERDSMAN position 15 miles from Manhattan. Full or part-time. Duties include managing finishing units and some crop farming. Mechanical ability and farm experience desirable. Call 785-494-8330 for more information.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

ADVERTISE.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS • 785.532.6555

Dillons FOOD STORES

Current applications are being accepted at Dillons Westloop
1000 Westloop, Manhattan
for the following positions:

- Daytime Cashier
- Daytime Courtesy Clerk
- Clerks for Bakery and Deli

Must be 18 years of older, with daytime availability
Apply online at www.dillons.com or Store Kiosk at Dillon's Westloop

310 Help Wanted

Taking applications for all positions

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

NOW HIRING!
• Wait Staff
• Bartender

Petrillos
Stop by for an application today!
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

400 Open Market

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

LOOKING FOR Nebraska vs K-State football tickets. Will consider any seats. Call 620-874-1131.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

CHRYSLER SEBRING Convertible, V6, black, 118,000, Automatic, Leather, power seat, security system, new timing belt and coolent kits, $4000. 785-317-5043.

530 Motorcycles

2002, BUELL Blast, black, 1,000 miles, like new condition. $2350 or best offer. Call 785-458-9105.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.usskiwild.com

Need Some Help?
Advertise it in the Collegian.
HELP!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

Reach more readers
www.kstatecollegian.com
Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for an additional dollar.
Place your classified ad online. Get more bang for your buck.

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

			5		7	9	3
7	1		8			6	5
9	5			1
2				5			1	3
		4	6		2	5
8	9			3				6
				6			9	8
	8	6			3		7	4
	2	9	7		4

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail class@kspub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

The End is here

Last installment provides closure for Snicket's Series of Unfortunate Events

Book the Thirteenth: The End
By Lemony Snicket
Grade: A
Reviewed by Emily Lawrence

Before one reads the beginning of "The End," one should read the back cover, where Lemony Snicket writes, "The end of THE END is the best place to begin THE END, because if you read THE END from the beginning of the beggining of THE END to the end of the end of THE END, you will arive at the end of the end of your rope."

This humorous tone is what any Snicket fan would expect from the books in this series. The last book, which hits stores today, takes the tone to a new level.

The book begins where the 12th left off, with the three Baudelaires at sea in a boat with Count Olaf. They encounter a storm and end up as castaways on an island where they begin finding answers to all their questions about their parents and the V.F.D.

Finally, the story 13 books in the making, leaves readers with just enough closure and answers.

Despite Snicket's warnings, whether you are 8 years old or 80 years old, A Series of Unfortunate Events is worth reading in its entirety.

The end of THE END, however, is something readers should wait to read until they have read the first 12 books. The 13th book couldn't have the conclusion it does without the complete Series of Unfortunate Events.

The first 12 books

1.The Bad Beginning: In this book we are first introduced to the Baudelaire children. Just a few pages into the story, the child find out their parents have been killed in a fire and their home burned down. Orphaned, they go to live with their new guardian, villian Count Olaf.

2. The Reptile Room: In the second book, the orphans seem to have gotten away from Count Olaf, who just wanted their family's money. They go to live with Dr. Mongomery (Unkle Monty) who is a herpetologist, but Count Olaf apears again.

3. The Wide Window: In the third installment, the children go to live with Mrs. Anwhistle, otherwise known as Aunt Josephine, who lives on Lake Lachrymose and is afraid of almost everything. The children face a hurricane and a mysterious man named Captain Sham, who is none other than Count Olaf in disguise.

4. The Miserable Mill: With no more relatives to take them in, the orphans go to live with a caretaker at the Lucky Smells Lumber Mill. The children are put work under a mean foreman. An accident at the mill just adds to their misery, and, yes, Count Olaf makes another appearance.

5. The Austere Academy: This time the kids' family friend Mr. Poe gets them spots at Prufrock Prepatory School. One would think they would love this school, but they face mean teachers and bratty kids, and they are forced to live in the orphans' shack. They do meet the Quagmire triplets, who were orphaned in the same way they were. One of the triplets reads an article with a description of an escaped murderer that seems to describe Count Olaf.

6. The Ersatz Elevator: In this book the children are adopted by Esmé Gigi Genivev Squalor and Jerome, who live in a penthouse close to where their family lived before the fire. There is adventure, imprisonment in a dark underground cage, an elevator shaft rescue, and, of course, another appearance by a costumed Count Olaf.

7. The Vile Village: In this book the children are sent to be raised by a village. Hoping to find out more about their parents' deaths, they choose to be raised at V.F.D., but soon learn the letters stand for Village of Fowl Devotees. They are, however, forced to do all the chores for the town. The children find the Quagmires, who Count Olaf, disquised as Detective Dupin, had hidden.

8. The Hostile Hospital: On the run from the police, the children are falsely accused of the murder of Jacques Snicket at the end of the previous book. They end up working at Heimlich Hospital and work in the library with Hal. He finds them familiar from a file about the Snicket fires. The children try to obtain the Snicket file but fail. Olaf and Esmé return, and Violet almost suffers an unwanted surgery, and the children are acussed of setting fire to the hospital library.

9. The Carniverous Carnival: The children escaped the previous predicament by stowing away in Olaf's car, where they over hear him talking of a woman named Madam Lulu, who has told him of the Baudelaires' location each time they move. The children, disguised as freaks, are almost fed to lions and then find out one of their parents might still be alive. Lulu ends up being Olivia and a member of the V.F.D. She tells them about the disguise kit and the Schism that happened in the V.F.D. They are then forced to continue on with Olaf, seemingly heading toward their deaths.

10. The Slippery Slope: This book picks up right where the last left off, as the children's caravan is tumbling down a hill, but Violet is able to a invent a way to save their lives — they hide as snow scouts. The children meet Quigley Quagmire, who Violet might have kissed. They are reunited with with Sunny, who Olaf had been treating poorly on the mountain top at the headquarters.

11. The Grim Grotto: Continuing on, the orphans find themselves heading downhill on a toboggan. Quigley has been carried away, down another tributary of the stream. Before long, they are rescued by a submarine, The QueQueg. Its crew consists of Captain Widdershins, his stepdaughter Fiona and their long-lost friend, Phil. Together they continue downstream in search of a sugar bowl that holds some mysterious power. The children meet Kit Snicket, encounter dreaded Medusoid Mycelium (a poisonous mushroom), and barely escape Count Olaf again.

12. The Penultimate Peril: The book begins with the children riding in Kit Snicket's car she gives them concierge outfits and drops them off at the Hotel Denouement, where they encounter almost every living character from the previous novels. In an attempt to stop Olaf from releasing the poisonous mushroom in the hotel, they set fire to the hotel and escape by boat with Count Olaf.

Who is Lemony Snicket?

Almost as entertaining as the books is the man behind them. Lemony Snicket himself is a character who has spent years chronicling the live of the Bauledairs. People still wonder who is the man behind Lemony Snicket. Many theories exist that Daniel Handler is, in fact, Lemony Snicket. However it is still maintained by Snicket that Handler simply represents Snicket "in all literary, legal and social matters." In an interview with Snicket, the question of whether he is, in fact, a real person was asked, and his reply was, "Of course. Aren't you?"

Photos courtesy of Harper Collins, Source: LemonySnicket.com

MOVIE TIMES

- Times for today through Sunday.
- () denotes times playing Saturday and Sunday only.
- ★ New movies at Seth Childs Cinema this week.

★ "The Marine," PG-13, 93 min.
(1:00, 3:15), 5:30, 7:45, 10:00
A Marine returns from battle to find that his wife is ensnared in a kidnapping plot.

★ "The Grudge 2," PG-13, 95 min.
(1:30), 4:15, 7:10, 9:40

In Tokyo, a young woman (Amber Tamblyn) is exposed to the same mysterious curse that afflicted her sister (Sarah Michelle Gellar). The supernatural force, which fills a person with rage before spreading to its next victim, brings together a group of previously unrelated people who attempt to unlock its secret to save their lives.

★ "Man of the Year," PG-13, 115 min.
(1:20), 4:30, 7:10, 9:42

On a lark, the host of a late-night political talk show (Robin Williams) decides to run for president. The thing is, he never expected to win.

★ "One Night With the King," PG, 116 min.
(1:15), 4:10, 7:00, 9:30
The movie chronicles the life of the young Jewish girl, Hadassah, who goes on to become the biblical Esther, the Queen of Persia, and saves the Jewish nation from annihilation at the hands of its arch enemy while winning the heart of the fiercely handsome King Xerxes.

"Employee of the Month," PG-13, 103 min.
(1:10), 4:20, 7:25, 9:50

"The Texas Chainsaw Massacre: The Beginning," R, 84 min.
(1:15, 3:20), 5:25, 7:30, 9:35,

"The Departed," R, 149 min.
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 10:00

"The Guardian," PG-13, 126 min.
(1:05), 4:00, 7:05, 9:50

"School for Scoundrels," PG-13, 100 min.
(1:10, 4:05), 7:20, 9:50

"Jackass: Number Two," R, 92 min.
9:45

"Open Season," PG, 86 min.
(1:15, 3:20), 5:25, 7:30

Source: www.carmike.com. Call (785) 776-9886 for show times.

MOST POPULAR MOVIE RENTALS

These are the most popular DVDs rented and sent to Manhattan through Netflix.com

Top movie rentals this week

1. "West Side Story"
2. "Dead Like Me: Season 2"
3. "Larry the Cable Guy: Health Inspector"
4. "Assault on Precinct 13"
5. "The Prince and Me"
6. "Just My Luck"
7. "House, M.D.: Season 1"
8. "I'll Always Know What You Did Last Summer"
9. "Scary Movie 4"
10. "Blue Collar Comedy Tour: One for the Road"

THIS YEAR... A look at events that influenced popular children's literature these years in history

1658 1st illustrated children's book

The book "Orbis Pictus," written by Czech educator Jan Ámos Komenský, was the first known illustrated children's book. It is considered equivalent to a modern children's encyclopedia. With about 150 chapters, the book covered a wide range of topics, including biology, botanics, zoology and anthropology.

The book was originally published in Latin and German in 1658. It was adopted by many German schools. The first English edition of the book was published a year later.

1812 Grimm Brothers produce 1st book series of fairy tales

On Dec. 20, 1812, brothers Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm first publish their series of German fairy tales Kinder-und Hausmärchen, commonly known as Grimm's Fairy Tales. These tales, however, were not quite suitable for children; they were even considerably grotesque for adult audiences. Later, the tales were adapted to child-friendly classics like "Hansel and Gretel," "Sleeping Beauty," "Snow White" and "Rumpelstiltskin."

1864 The release of 'Adventures in Wonderland'

In 1864, English author, mathematician and logician Lewis Carroll published his well-known creation of the immortal fantasy, "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." The book takes readers to a world where Alice enters Wonderland and has many strange adventures — meeting a baby who changes into a pig and a cat that disappears, leaving only his smile behind; going to a never-ending tea party; attending a court trial of the Knave of Hearts; and being accused of stealing tarts. Her adventures with March Hare, the Mad Hatter, the Cheshire Cat and the White Knight take her through a whirlwind of challenges. The book has been reinvented through a TV show, movies and other follow-ups to the novel.

1957 Seuss publishes 'The Cat in the Hat'

In a world of vivid imagination, Theodore Seuss Giesel, penned Dr. Seuss, brings an entertaining cat into the lives of a bored brother and sister. "The Cat in the Hat," dubbed as one of the most popular children's books in history, involves two children, one pesky cat and his sidekicks, Thing One and Thing Two. Together, they create mischief until things get way out of hand, and mom is on her way home. Other popular books Seuss has written include "Green Eggs and Ham," "One Fish, Two Fish, Red Fish, Blue Fish" and "Hop on Pop." In 1984, Seuss received a Pulitzer Prize for his children's books.

1997 1st 'Harry Potter' release

Upon the release of J.K. Rowling's "Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone," many wouldn't have imagined the influece she would have on children's literature today. More than 103 million books from this series have printed since 1997, inspiring children and adults around the world.

Source: History Channel; Photos: Courtesy art

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
K-State men's basketball coach Bob Huggins addresses the media on Oct. 10 in the Legends Room at Bramlage Coliseum. Huggins' tenure as coach will begin on Nov. 11 when K-State plays William & Mary.

Madness, teams unveiled

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Coach Bob Huggins does not know what to expect from tonight's "Madness in Manhattan."

He said he has been so busy on the recruiting trail, he hasn't been able to think about it. Huggins was in three states on Monday.

"I'm ready to stop traveling," Huggins said. "I'd kind of just like to go home and sleep in my own bed."

Huggins has his work cut out for him, with six roster slots to fill for next season. So far he's had a good start, getting verbal commitments from the nation's top high school recruit, Michael Beasley, and guards Jacob Pullen and Fred Brown.

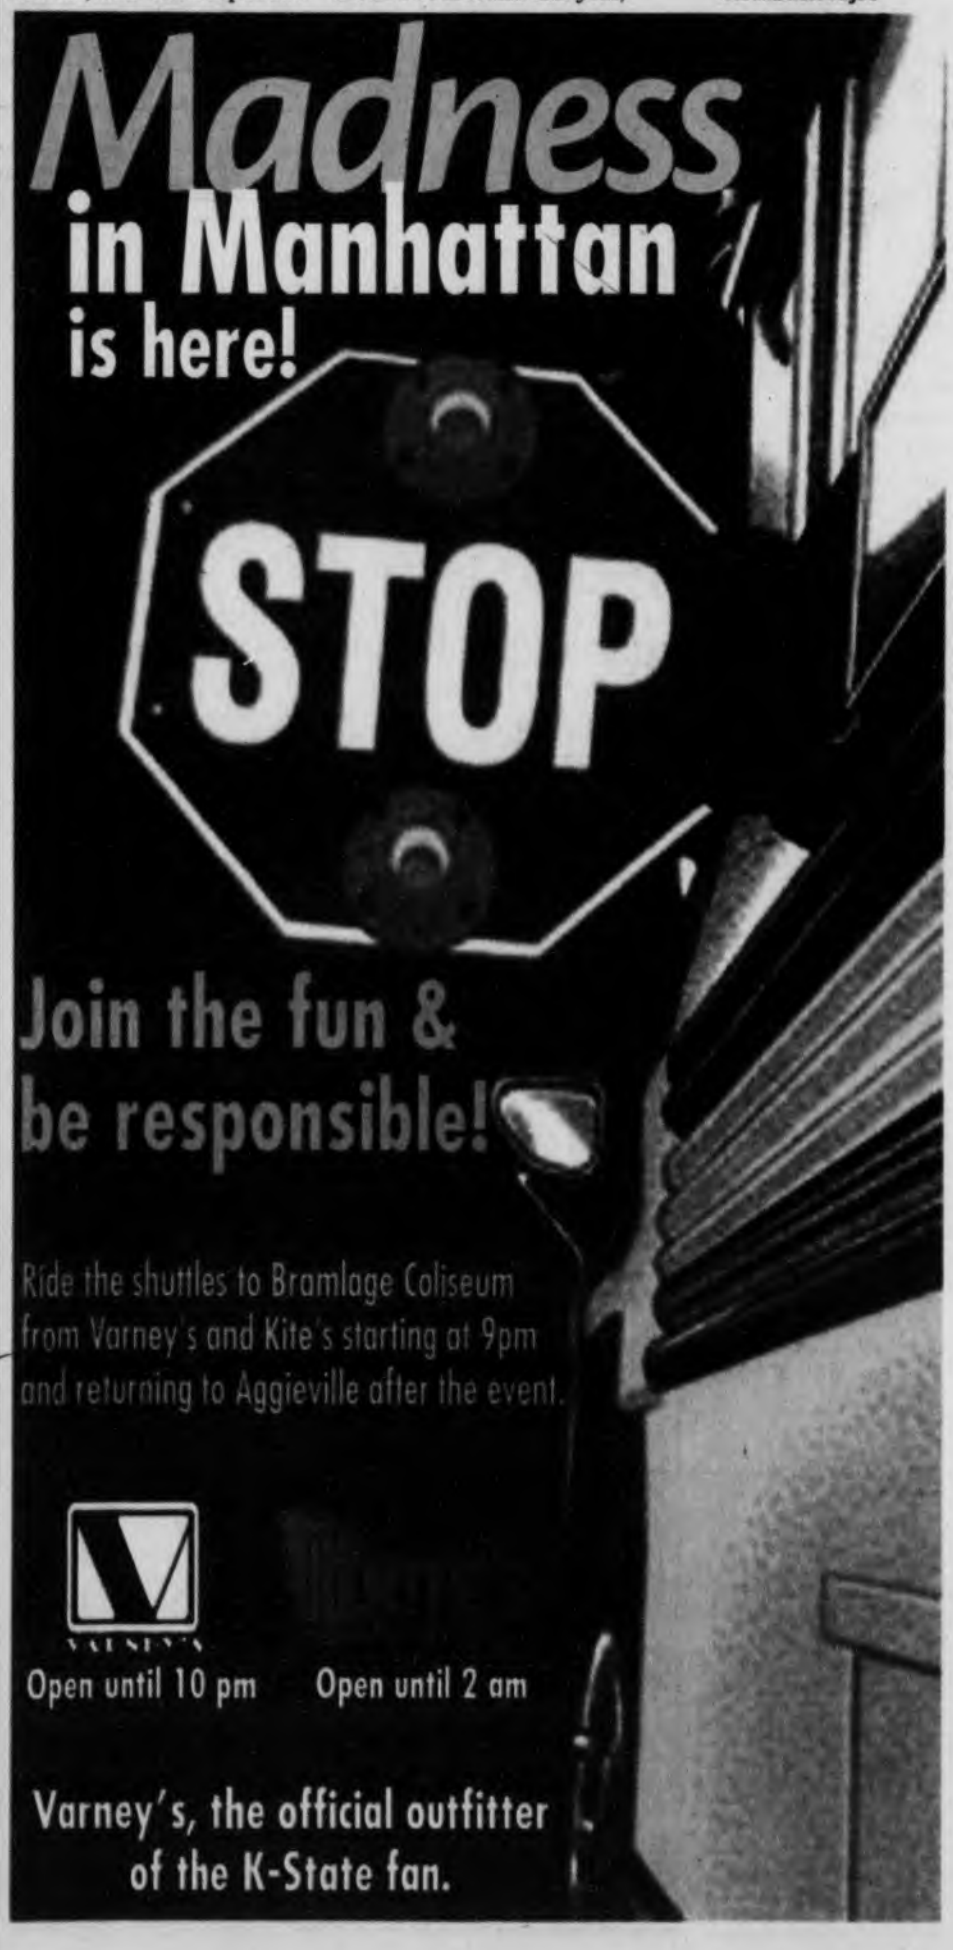
He admitted that between traveling, recruiting and putting on clinics, he really has not had time to think about the "madness."

However, Huggins said he hoped to reinstate Cartier Martin, who was suspended indefinitely, for tonight's scrimmage. Last year, Martin was K-State's leading scorer with an average of 18 points per game.

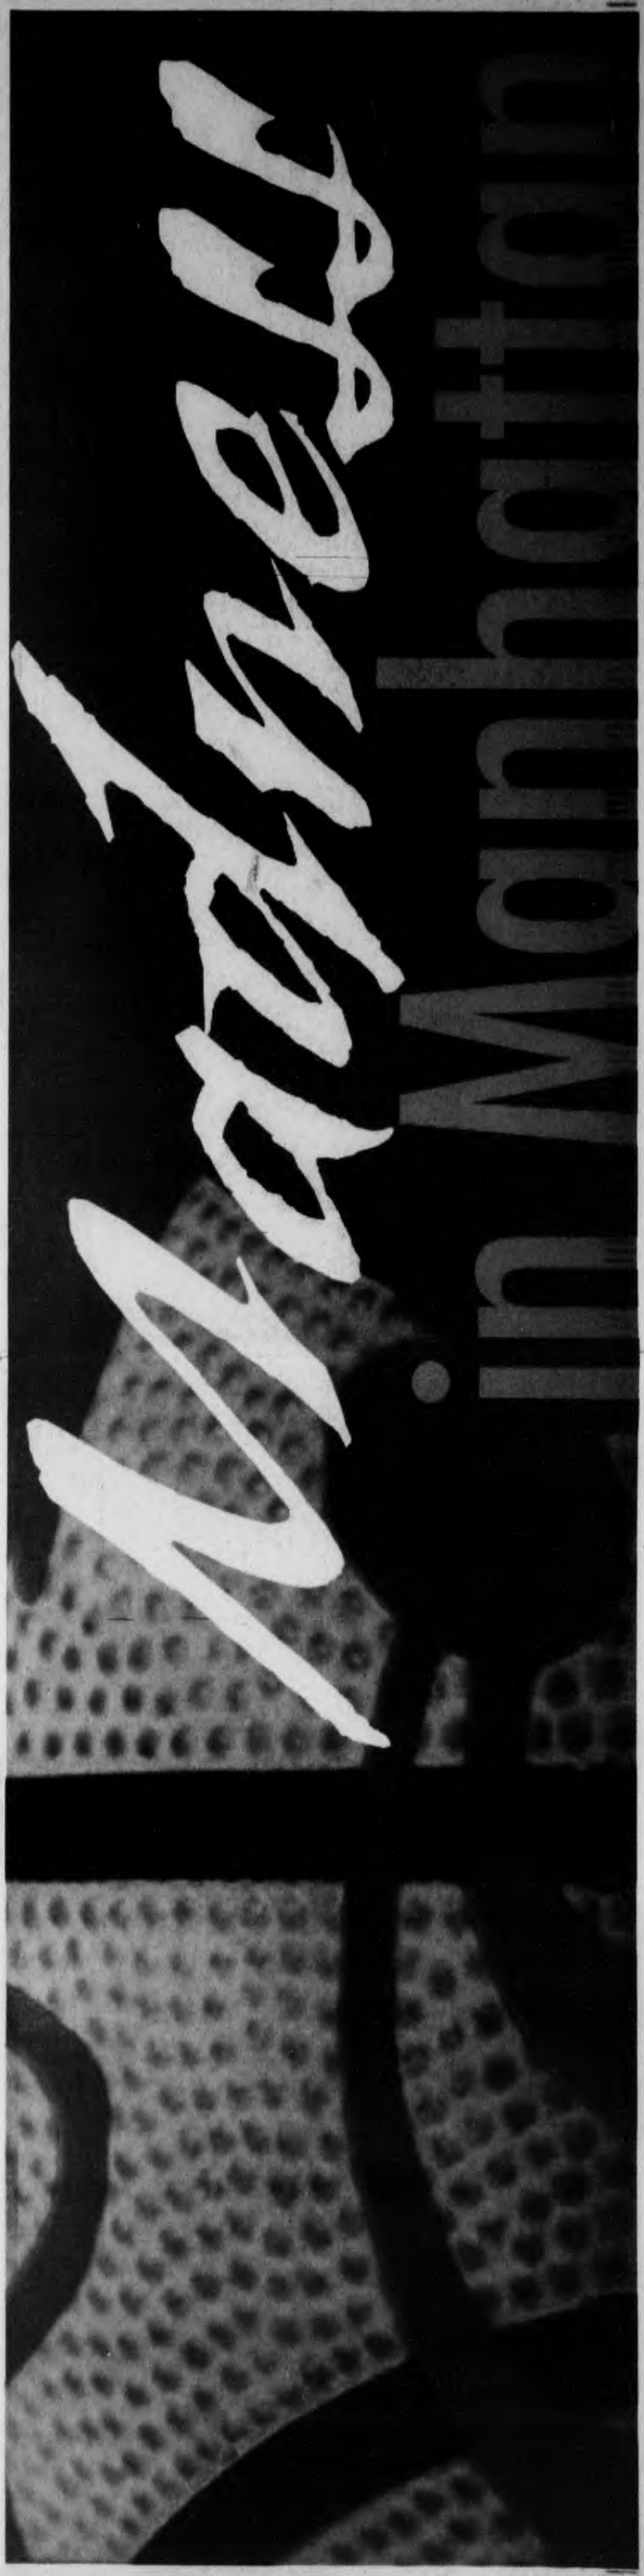
Joni Weinman, assistant director of marketing and promotions, and the marketing staff have been working on "Madness in Manhattan" since last summer. Weinman said the staff had thought about doing something like this for years.

After the doors of Bramlage Coliseum open at 10:25 tonight, fans will be treated to a laser-light show followed by introductions of both the men's and women's teams. Coach Deb Patterson then will address the crowd.

Select members of the men's team will participate in a slam dunk competition, followed by a 20-minute scrimmage by the men's squad. Huggins is expected to wrap up the night by speaking to the crowd.



"With the excitement around both teams this year, we just thought our fans would really enjoy something like this," Weinman said. "We've heard positive responses so far, and we hope to have a full house."



Madness in Manhattan
Where: Bramlage Coliseum
When: Doors open at 10:25 tonight
Cost: none

The Wildcats will need to get used to playing in front of packed arenas, with 12,700 men's basketball season tickets already sold. This dwarfs last year's total of 6,750. Capacity at Bramlage is 13,344.

Adding to the hype surrounding the first practice of the season will be the unveiling of the new men's jerseys. The jerseys, designed by Nike, will come in the traditional K-State purple road and white home colors. But a third option, black-colored jerseys, will be added this season.

See MADNESS Page 6

Meet Blake Young

Making the transition

After adjusting to life in Manhattan, Young prepares to play at point guard

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With junior point guard Clent Stewart out with a knee injury for at least the first part of the season, it looks like K-State will have to turn to at least one new face to handle the point guard duties early in the year.

Blake Young, a junior college transfer from Daytona Beach (Fla.) Community College, will be expected to handle the ball a lot, something he said he is fine with. Recruited as more of a combo guard based on his ability to score the ball, Young said he still will be able to put up points from the point position.

"I'm comfortable with it," the 6-foot-2, 180-pound guard said.

"I played point guard in high school. In open gym I play point guard, so I'm really comfortable with it. I'm getting used to the players and what they do, how they play."

The other players aren't the only thing to which Young has had to adjust.

After spending all of high school and his first two years of college in Orlando, Fla., Young has had to adjust to the change in scenery.

"It's a great place, nice people," Young said. "It's a little smaller than what I'm used to. Everybody's really close with each other. It's like family for me. I'm a long way from home, so they're like family."

Young – who committed to the Wildcats a month after coach Bob Huggins was hired – was one of the most sought-after junior college guards in the nation after averaging 23.2 points per game his sophomore year.

Young was third in the NJCAA in scoring, and he was honored as the Mid-Florida Conference Player of the Year. He received interest from schools like Creighton, St. John's, Washington, Alabama, Iowa State, Minnesota and Mississippi State before deciding to attend K-State.

"(Huggins) wants at least a shot at the Sweet 16. The Sweet 16 is fine, but I'd rather go farther — at least the Final Four for me. It's a really big step, but you have to set your expectations high. We've got a really good team, so I don't see a reason why we couldn't make a really big run."

Blake Young
GUARD

The new guard already is drawing attention from his teammates.

"(Blake) is an explosive little guard with quick hops," senior guard Akeem Wright said. "He's really quick on defense. He can get up and down the court. He has a nice jump shot, and he can stick a lot of people."

Stewart primarily took care of the ball last season, but Huggins said the target date for him to be able to start playing again is Nov. 1.

That means Young, along with Wright and fellow newcomer Jermaine Maybank, will have to step up.

Maybank is a graduate of St. John's, but he is enrolled as a K-State graduate student in the College of Education.

He is eligible to compete this season because of an NCAA bylaw, which allows student-athletes who are enrolled in a graduate degree program and still have remaining eligibility to participate.

"I think Jermaine has helped," Huggins said. "He's more of a combo than a point guard, but Blake is too. Jermaine has helped out with Blake a lot, though."

The addition of many new players is just one reason this is one of the most highly-anticipated basketball seasons in K-State history. However, the main reason seems to be Huggins, Young said.

"Around campus, they always ask how coach Huggins is doing," Young said. "He's doing great."

When asked what he thought the Wildcats could do this season, Young wasn't shy about his expectations.

"(Huggins) wants at least a shot at the Sweet 16," he said.

"The Sweet 16 is fine, but I'd rather go farther – at least the Final Four for me. It's a really big step, but you have to set your expectations high. We've got a really good team, so I don't see a reason why we couldn't make a really big run."

Fresh faces

Jason Bennett — 7-foot-3, 265 pounds, freshman, center

Bennett is the tallest player in K-State history and should provide instant help on the defensive end. He was rated the No. 30 overall player by Rivals.com and averaged eight blocks per game as a senior at Arlington Country Day High School in Jacksonville, Fla.

Bennett

Luis Colon — 6-foot-10, 260 pounds, freshman, forward/center

Colon adds another huge body to the Wildcats' frontcourt and is a bit more polished on the offensive end than Bennett. Originally from Puerto Rico, Colon averaged 15.5 points and 9.8 rebounds as a senior at Dr. Michael M. Krop High School in Miami, Fla. He also was recruited by Connecticut and Pittsburgh, among other schools.

Colon

Fans anticipate Madness in Manhattan, preseason chance to see basketball teams

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tory Fischer is the kind of fan who can't sit still on game days because of his excitement.

"I am a genuine fan," Fischer, junior in athletic training, said. "If I can't watch the game, I listen to it on the radio."

That is why tonight's Madness in Manhattan event has Fischer pumped.

"I am excited just to see the new atmosphere with the new coach since he is a big-name coach," Fischer said.

Madness in Manhattan showcases the men's and women's basketball teams so fans can get a look at the teams before the season begins.

This is the first year for the event that is sponsored by the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Tickets were not sold or distributed for the event at Bramlage Coliseum.

Fans will be admitted on a first-come, first-served basis when the doors open at 10:25 p.m.

If the 13,344 seats in Bramlage are filled, fans will be turned away, Tom Gilbert, sports information director, said.

"I think everyone hopes that it is filled," he said. "We all want a packed crowd for tomorrow night. I wish we had more seats."

Fischer said he hopes Madness in Manhattan becomes an annual event.

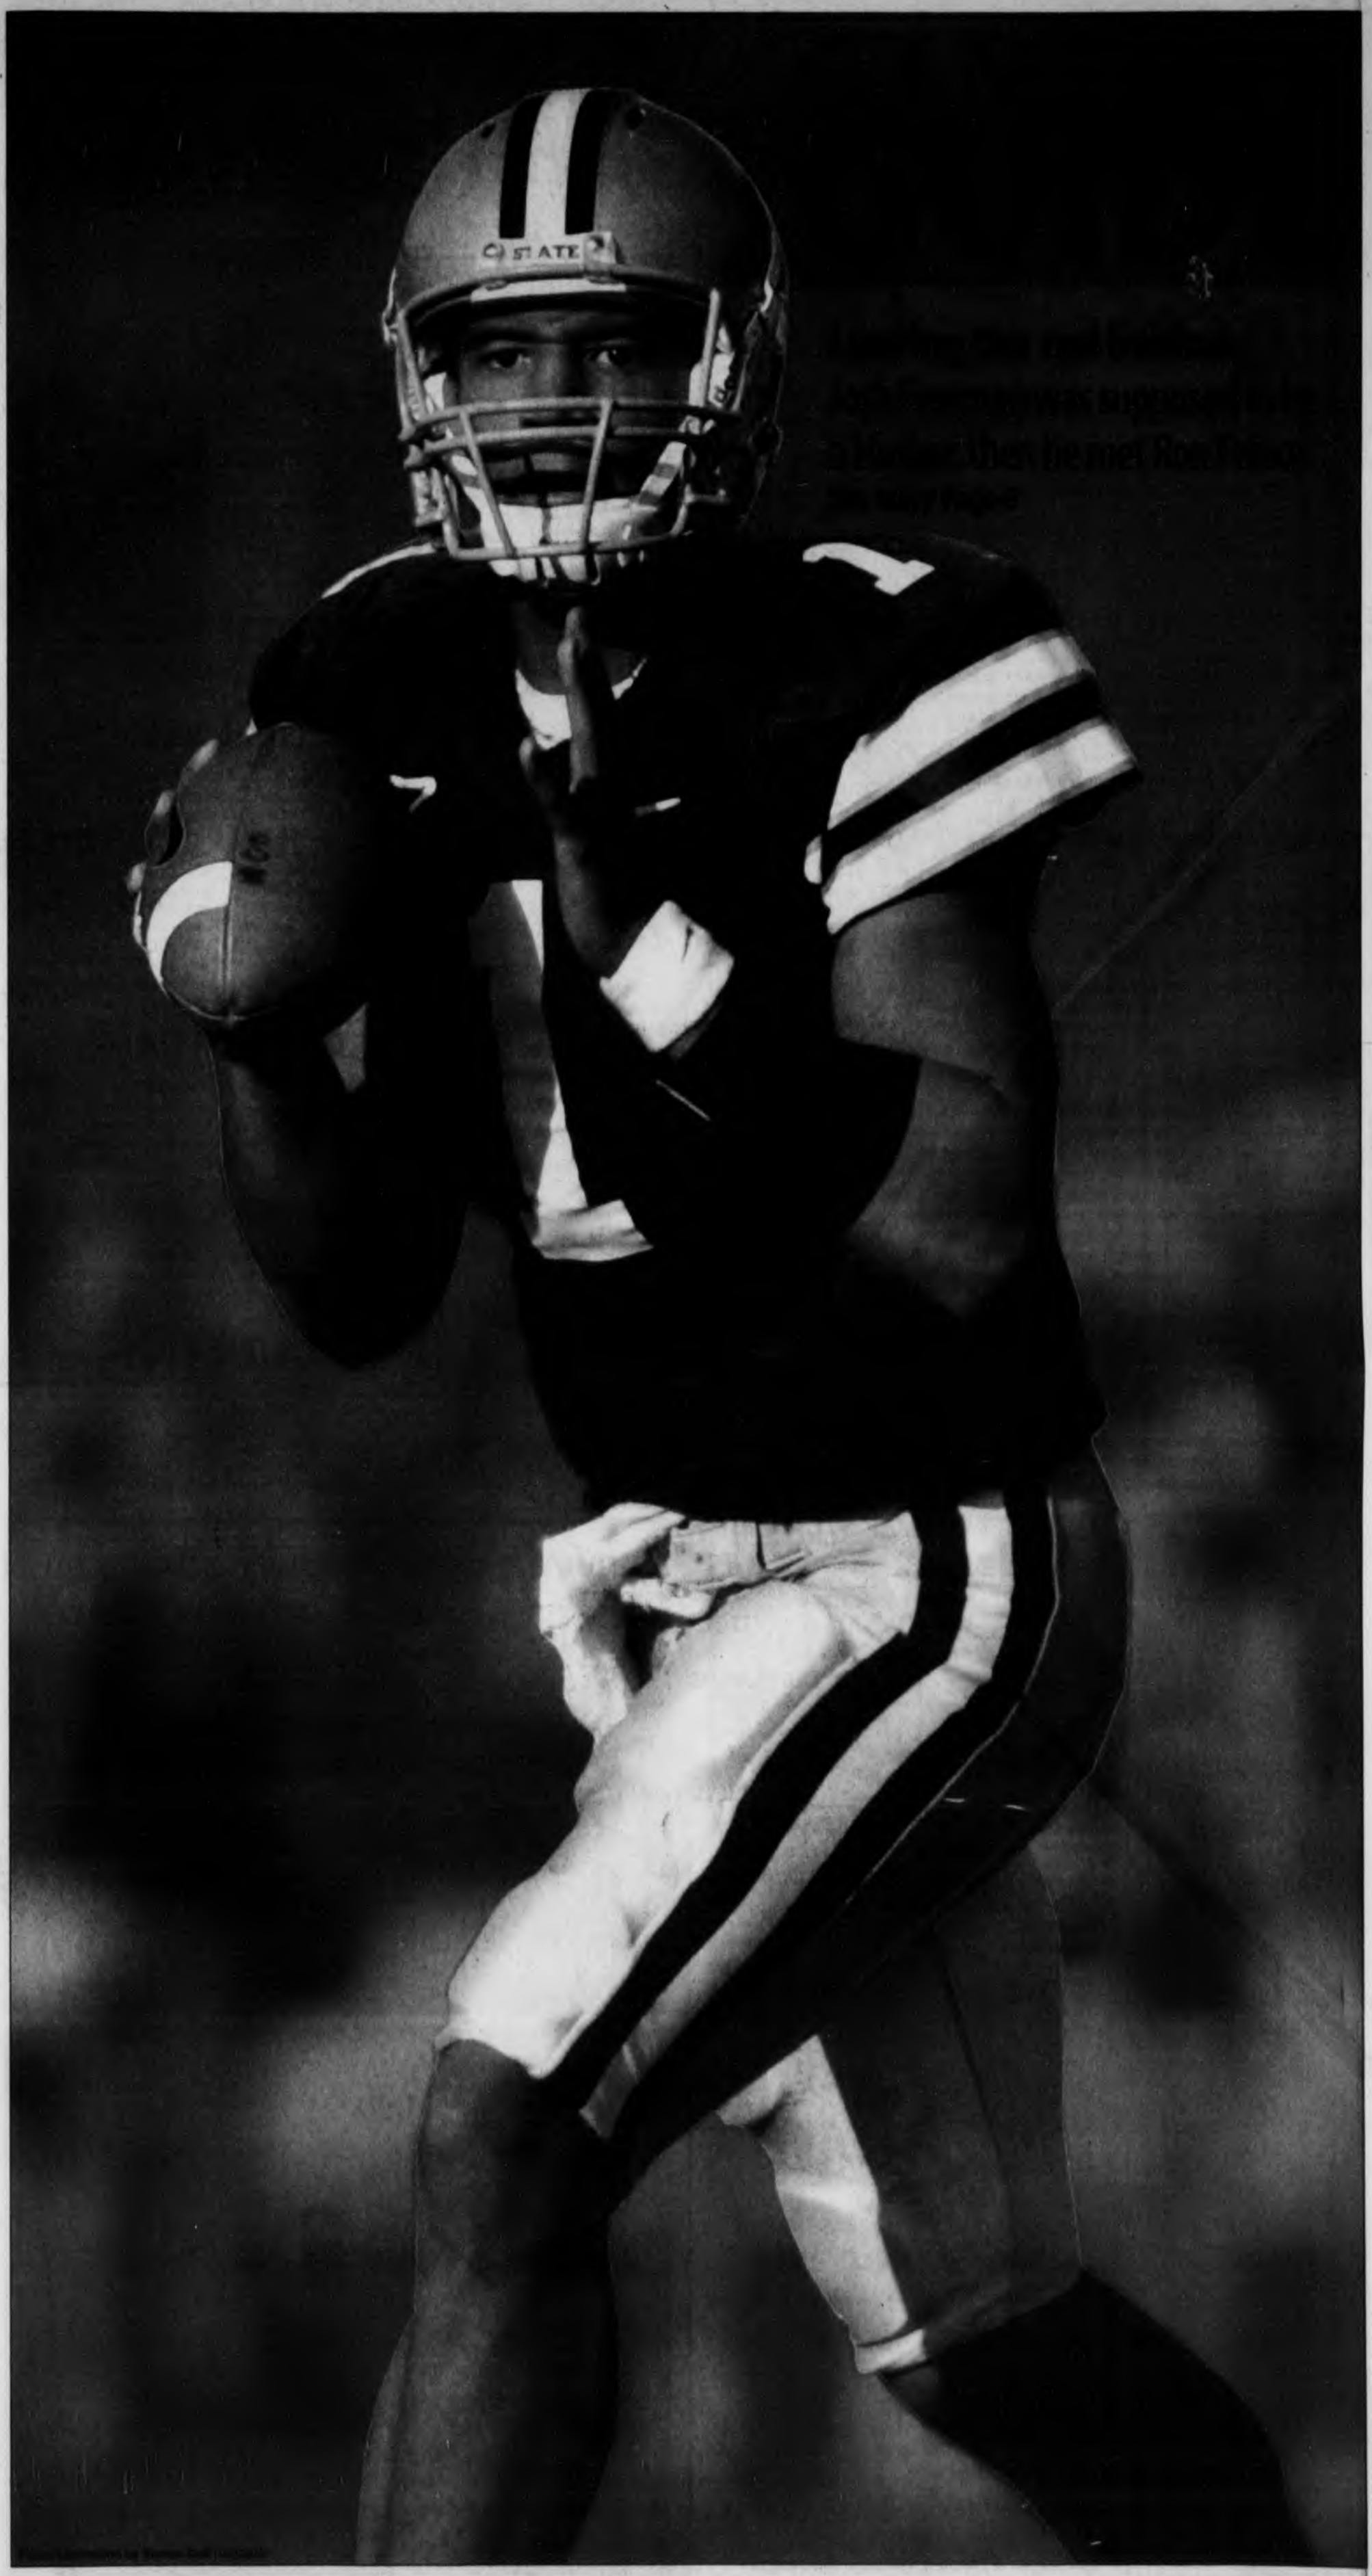
"I think they should continue to have it, because what I am getting from the rest of the student body or all the people I talked to is that everybody is pretty pumped to see the new teams," he said. "Going to see this is going to get me excited for the upcoming season."

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our advertising sales representatives by calling...
532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

WE DELIVER!
1800 Claflin St. Suite 170
785.537.2411
Open 10am-10pm
SUBS N SUCH
$2 OFF any footlong sub
This Fri. Only!
limit 1 per customer. Not valied for deliveries

Collegian
xplore
it!
kstatecollegian.com

Glass Impressions
Lots of New Arrivals
(and more on the way!)
Hand Blown Glass
• Oversized Platters with Iron Stands
• Romanian Rhombus Ornaments (Gorgeous Colors)
• Martini Shaker and 2 Glass Sets
• More Unusual Vases
Tues-Fri 11-6 • Sat 10-5
Glass Impressions • 329 Poyntz Ave



LIVE MUSIC FESTIVAL
SATURDAY OCT.21
70+ BANDS
10 AM-2 AM
AGGIE 06 FEST
RIGHT HERE IN AGGIEVILLE!
EVENT PASSPORTS, SCHEDULES & GIVEAWAYS GO TO:
www.myspace.com/mmcaggiefest

Britt's Garden Acres
9a.m.-7p.m. Mon.-Sat.
10a.m.-6p.m. Sun.
Hay Rack Rides • Corn Maze • Pumpkin Patch
Schedule your group event with a bonfire!
Events run on the weekends
Saturday 10-6 • Sundays 11-6
1400 S. Scenic Dr. • 539-1901

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

National Business Women's Week
October 15-21, 2006
Business & Professional Women
the voice of working women
Manhattan 539-4948 ♦ K-State Club 532-6525
• The power of connecting
• The power of voices united
• The power to change workplaces...and the world
www.bpwusa.org www.bpwkansas.org

Get your Game On order
The BIG ASS
Largest Pie In Manhattan
$11.99 20" one topping
or 2 FUR $21.99
GUMBY'S Pizza
770-3333

The West Coast Offense Page 3 | The Rivalry Page 4 | Leon Patton Page 5 | Harley Day Page 7 | Dr. Larry Moeller Page 8

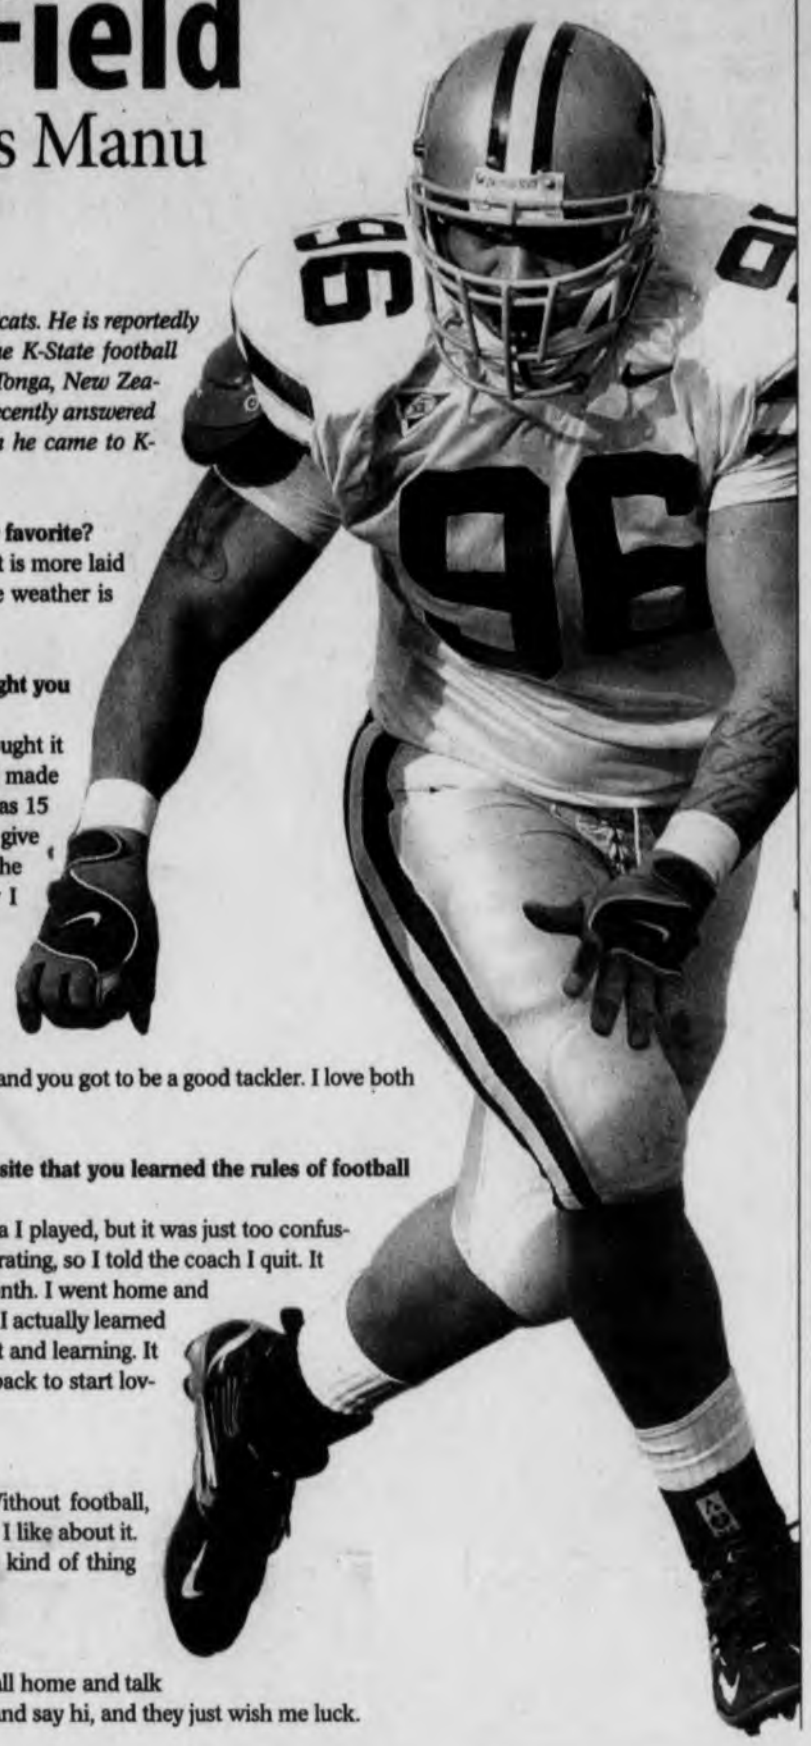
Gameday forecast

Mostly sunny, 20 percent chance of rain
High: 68 Low: 46

K-State vs. No. 21 Nebraska
6:10 p.m. Saturday
History: Nebraska leads the all-time series 73-15
Radio/TV: K-State Sports Network/pay-per view



Player to watch

In last Saturday's win over Oklahoma State, running back Leon Patton set a freshman record with 301 all-purpose yards. In his starting debut, Patton rushed for 151 yards.

Off the Field
with Moses Manu

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Moses Manu is a junior defensive end for the Wildcats. He is reportedly the third player of Polynesian descent to play for the K-State football team. He has lived all over the world in places like Tonga, New Zealand, Australia, California and now Manhattan. He recently answered questions about his favorite place to live, the reason he came to K-State and more.

Q. Of all the places you have lived, which was your favorite?
A. New Zealand. It was nice, the air was clean, and it is more laid back. It was beautiful. Everything was green, and the weather is really nice.

Q. You were a rugby player growing up. What brought you to football?
A. In Los Angeles, rugby was not as popular as I thought it was going to be. I did try out for a rugby team, and I made it. It was too much, because it was quite a drive. It was 15 miles every day after school, so I thought I would give football a try since I am out here. I loved it, and the coaches started working on me, because they knew I could be a good player.

Q. Which is a tougher sport: rugby or football?
A. If I had to choose, I would say rugby. You have to learn both ways, while in football you have to learn just one. You have got to be able to run with the ball, and you got to be a good tackler. I love both offense and defense.

Q. I saw in an article on the CBS SportsLine Web site that you learned the rules of football from Madden NFL 2003. Can you explain that?
A. It was pretty weird. When I first came to California I played, but it was just too confusing for me to learn the rules of football. That got frustrating, so I told the coach I quit. It was during a summer camp, so I quit for almost a month. I went home and bought the game just to see what it would be like, and I actually learned something. All of a sudden, I started getting good at it and learning. It taught me everything about football. It made me go back to start loving the game and getting competitive.

Q. Why did you decide on K-State?
A. Football is like the No. 1 thing around here. Without football, this school would not be where it is, and that is what I like about it. Everything revolves around football, and that is the kind of thing I like.

Q. What do you usually do to get ready for games?
A. Before we get on the bus to come here, I like to call home and talk to my parents. I call my brother and all my relatives and say hi, and they just wish me luck.

K-State vs. Nebraska

OFFENSE

☐ Last week's depth chart shuffle seems to be exactly what the Wildcats needed to jump-start their season. Quarterback Josh Freeman provided some late game heroics, and Leon Patton made a name for himself by torching Oklahoma State for more than 300 total yards. Both need repeat performances to win this week.

☑ The Huskers come into Manhattan boasting one of the best offenses in the nation. The onslaught is led by quarterback Zac Taylor, who has the third highest quarterback rating in college football. Add to that a pair of running backs who combined for more than 250 yards last week, and Nebraska's offense looks almost unstoppable.

DEFENSE

☐ Last weekend the Wildcats surrendered 27 points to Oklahoma State. The defense, however, deserves little criticism due to the fact that several of the Cowboy's points can be attributed to poor special teams play. K-State's defense is still the team's keystone and will need to come up big this weekend if the Wildcats want to come out of this encounter unscathed.

☑ In terms of scoring defense, Nebraska ranks third in the Big 12 Conference, allowing only 15.2 points per game this season. The Huskers are masters at stopping the run, but they have struggled at times when it comes to defending the pass. K-State will have to hope Freeman stays hot if it wants to keep up with a high-powered Nebraska offense.

SPECIAL TEAMS

☑ Last week the K-State special teams were both a gift and a curse. Patton showed his big play ability with a 95-yard kickoff return for a touchdown, but the Wildcats gave it right back with a big return the other way. Expect the Wildcats to be more polished this weekend against a far more dangerous opponent in Nebraska.

☐ The Nebraska special teams have been average at best this year. The Husker return men have yet to return a kick for a touchdown and, in fact, haven't had a return of 35 yards or more. Both kicker Jordan Kongden and punter Dan Titchener have seen limited action and really haven't factored much into the Husker's season thus far.

PREDICTION

On paper, this match-up appears to have David and Goliath-like implications, but that might be one area where K-State's inexperience actually could work in its favor. Big expectations will be riding on the shoulders of K-State's freshman duo, but fans need to keep in mind that a win against Oklahoma State is a lot different than a win against Nebraska.

Nebraska 24, K-State 14

2001 Escort
4 cyl, Auto Loaded
$4,995

'02 Saturn L200
4 Dr, Auto, 74k $6,995
'00 Ford Ranger
4 Cyl, 5 Spd $4,750
'00 Dodge Grand Caravan Sport
Quad Stow&Go, 3rd Seat $4,995
'01 Ford Taurus Combination
Low Miles, Power $4,300
'02 Kenworth SLET
Hi Roof, Sleeper $3,995
'94 Toyota Pickup
V6, Auto $5,495
'99 Jeep Wrangler
2 Dr, 6 Cyl, 5 Spd $9,495
'97 Chrysler LHS
V8, Leather $2,995

Southside Auto Sales
425 Yuma, Manhattan, KS
785-776-2170 800-837-2170

Candlewood Shopping Center 785.776.8830
3204 Kimball Avenue
Studio 32 for Hair
Call for an appointment with
Allysa, Connie, Kelly, Tina, or Verna Lee

Fast, fair and reliable.
(785) 539-6949
Count on American Family claim service. As your agent, I'm there for you when you need me most. Call for details.
C Clay Taylor Agency
315 Houston St Ste G
(785) 539-6949 Bus
Manhattan, KS 66502
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
All your protection under one roof
© 2005 American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office - Madison, WI 53783 • www.amfam.com
MI 18567

Fat's
BAR & GRILL
Go CATS!
Saturdays
Free T-Shirts
$2.75 Miller Pounders
Sundays
1/2 Price Drinks
$2.25 Big Beers
$1.50 Wells
$3.50 Fishbowls & Labrats
12th & Laramie
Aggieville

Over 850 rentals in the Manhattan & Junction City area
McCullough Development
mdiproperties.com • 785.776.3804

Wash Palace
Don't Sweat It!
We'll Clean Your Sweaters For You.
Coin Laundry
Drive-up window & Door
Jumbo Computerized Dryers & Large Capacity Washers
Big Screen TV & Pool Table
Wash, Dry and Fold Service
"Largest & Cleanest Facility in Manhattan"
3216 Candlewood 537-9833
Coin-op Open 24 Hours
Dry Cleaning & Drop off
Monday - Saturday: 7am-7pm
Sunday: 12pm - 7pm

Everyday Low Prices
If You Didn't Buy It At Classic You Probably Paid Too Much!!!
Best 30 Pack Cans -$11.45
Natural Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Keystone Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Miller High Life 30 Packs - $12.85
Busch and Busch Light 30 Packs - $14.10
Miller Lite and MGD 30 Packs - $15.99
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans - $15.99
Coors Light 30 Pack - $16.30
Celebrate Our Win With
Andre Champagne 750ML - $3.99
Be The Prince of Your Tailgate
On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, and Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99
Kentucky Deluxe 1.75L $10.99
UV Flavored Vodka Liters $11.49 and 750ML $8.99
Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

Analysis

The (Mid) West Coast Offense

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Before legendary coach Bill Walsh won three Super Bowls with the San Francisco 49ers in the 1980s, he worked as an offensive assistant for the Cincinnati Bengals. It was his job to come up with an offensive system that could be effective despite the many shortcomings of the Bengals' offensive personnel.

Walsh knew his offensive line was terrible, which negated the time-tested approach of running the ball down the throat of opposing defenses. He was forced to create a new offense, one that would take advantage of his team's strengths and hide its weaknesses.

His new approach called on quick quarterback reads to complete short passes and using his receivers' speed to gain yards after the catch. This attack kept opposing defenses on the field with long methodical drives that featured easy third-down conversions.

It became known as the West Coast Offense, and it's been used by countless teams in professional and college football ever since.

K-State and Nebraska are two teams that run variations of the offense, but what exactly is the West Coast Offense?

It is an offensive system that goes against conventional football wisdom and keeps defenses constantly guessing. While most offensive systems like to use the running game to set up the pass, the West Coast Offense is just the opposite.

Because Walsh had a bad offensive line in Cincinnati, he knew he would not be able to control the clock with the run. He didn't have a line capable of overpowering defenses for an entire game. So instead, he controlled the clock with a high-percentage, short-passing game.

Quarterbacks took three- and five-step drops, focusing on quick throws. The idea was to control the clock with short passes – for just 3 yards and 5 yards at a time – to keep defenses on the field and keep them guessing.

This frustrates a defense and takes it out of its game. It starts to play against the pass and becomes worried about having enough coverage. It plays aggressive, which often leads to over-pursuit, missed assignments and a failure to execute the defensive play call. These elements are what have made the West Coast Offense so successful.

With so much attention paid to the passing game by the defense, the offense can begin establishing the run. As long as the play-calling is balanced and unpredictable, the offense is in control. A run or pass can be called on any down or distance and keeps defenses honest.

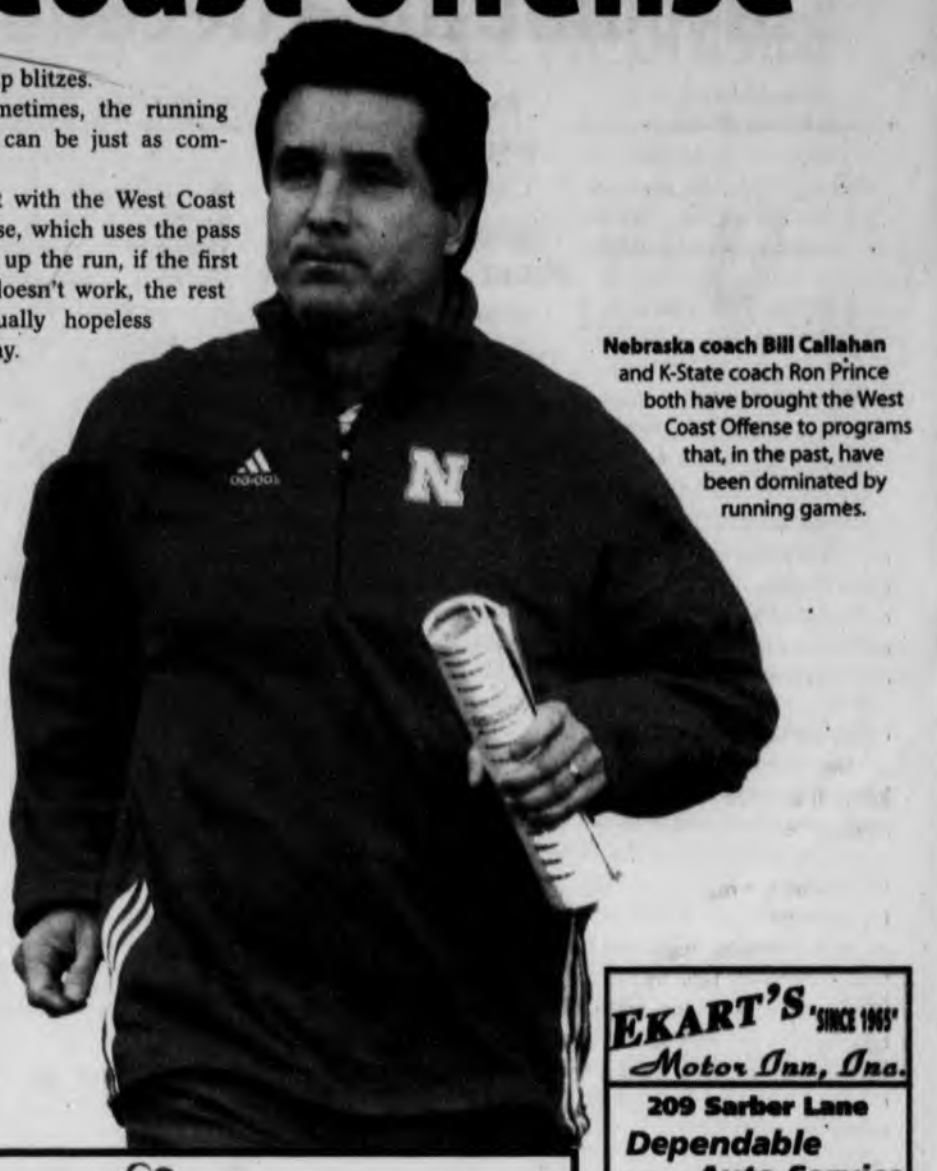
When Nebraska coach Bill Callahan took over for Nebraska two years ago, he changed Tom Osborne's run-heavy offensive system, which had produced three national championships since 1994.

Callahan's offenses struggled at first, but they finally have started to come together now that he has had time to get the right players to fit his system. The Huskers have the No. 7 offense in college football, averaging 463 yards per game.

Online

■ Zac Taylor has excelled in coach Bill Callahan's West Coast Offense. Taylor set a Husker record last season passing for 2,653 yards.

www.kstatecollegian.com



At K-State, coach Ron Prince is installing his version of the West Coast Offense, and it is coming along slowly. The Wildcats are 87th in total offense and have not been able to beat teams the way Walsh's offenses did for so many years.

Part of the problem is the Wildcats' inability to grasp the offense and execute it properly. In a timing-based offense, quarterbacks generally throw the ball to a spot, rather than to where the receiver actually is. In order to do this successfully, the quarterback and receiver must act as one.

When the quarterback is ready to throw, the receiver must be in the correct spot on the field. The throw must be precise and accurate, and the receiver needs to be balanced and under control. Running backs need to be exceptional pass-blockers and be able to pick up blitzes.

Sometimes, the running game can be just as complex.

But with the West Coast Offense, which uses the pass to set up the run, if the first part doesn't work, the rest is usually hopeless anyway.

Nebraska coach Bill Callahan and K-State coach Ron Prince both have brought the West Coast Offense to programs that, in the past, have been dominated by running games.

Enjoy The Game
8 TVs
and some room to move
Finn's Pub
317 Poyntz Ave. • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 776-2119

Celebrations of the Heart
Trivia Question:
On average, how many hotdogs are sold per game to KSU fans?
find the answer at
www.shopcelebrationsoftheheart.com
and enter a drawing
For a Once In a Lifetime Opportunity!

EKART'S "SINCE 1965"
Motor Inn, Inc.
209 Sarber Lane
Dependable Auto Service
776-9058
•Oil Changes
•Brake Service
•Tire Rotation
•Computer diagnostics
•30-Pt. System Check
•Complete automotive repair
Go Cats!

BRIGGS
AUTO LANE
Is Cheering On The Cats
'06 JEEP GRANDE CHEROKEE
• 3 available 4WD systems
• Standard with 3.7 L V6
• Available 330 Horsepower 5.7 Hemi with MDS
• Best in class track management system
'07 G6 Pontiac
• 2.4 L 4 cylinder ECOTEC
• 23/34 MPG+
• 167 Horsepower
• Dualstage frontal, driver & passenger air bags

LONGHORNS
SALOON
1115 Moro 776-8770
Friday & Saturday
$2.50
MILLER LITE POUNDERS
Friday Oct. 20th • Full Throttle
With Special Guest Ryan Bales Band
Tickets $5 On Sale Now

Dine at the finest Italian restaurant in town!
Valentino's
Grand Italian Buffet
3003 Anderson Ave. Plaza West • 539-6444
Lunch Buffet Only $4.99 — Over 100 Items! The Best Deal in Town!
Lunch Buffet Only $4.99 — Over 100 Items! The Best Deal in Town!
Lunch Buffet Only $4.99 — Over 100 Items! The Best Deal in Town!
Dinner Buffet Only $6.99 — Over 100 Items! The Best Deal in Town!
Don't Forget: Kids eat FREE Buffet* on Tuesday!
*Some restrictions apply.

K-State-Nebraska rivalry stays hot for a decade

By Austin Meek
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

How big is the K-State-Nebraska rivalry? When K-State nose tackle Quintin Echols' wife gave birth to the couple's second child on Oct. 9, even the anesthesiologist had to weigh in.

"He's a Nebraska fan," Echols said Tuesday, a day after his daughter Tori was born.

The doctor, however, was courteous enough to keep quiet while Ty Echols was in labor, Quintin added.

"I'm sure he's probably telling my wife right now since I'm gone," he joked.

All joking aside, this game is serious business. Even though Ron Prince has never coached against Nebraska, he said the K-State community makes sure he understands the significance of the game.

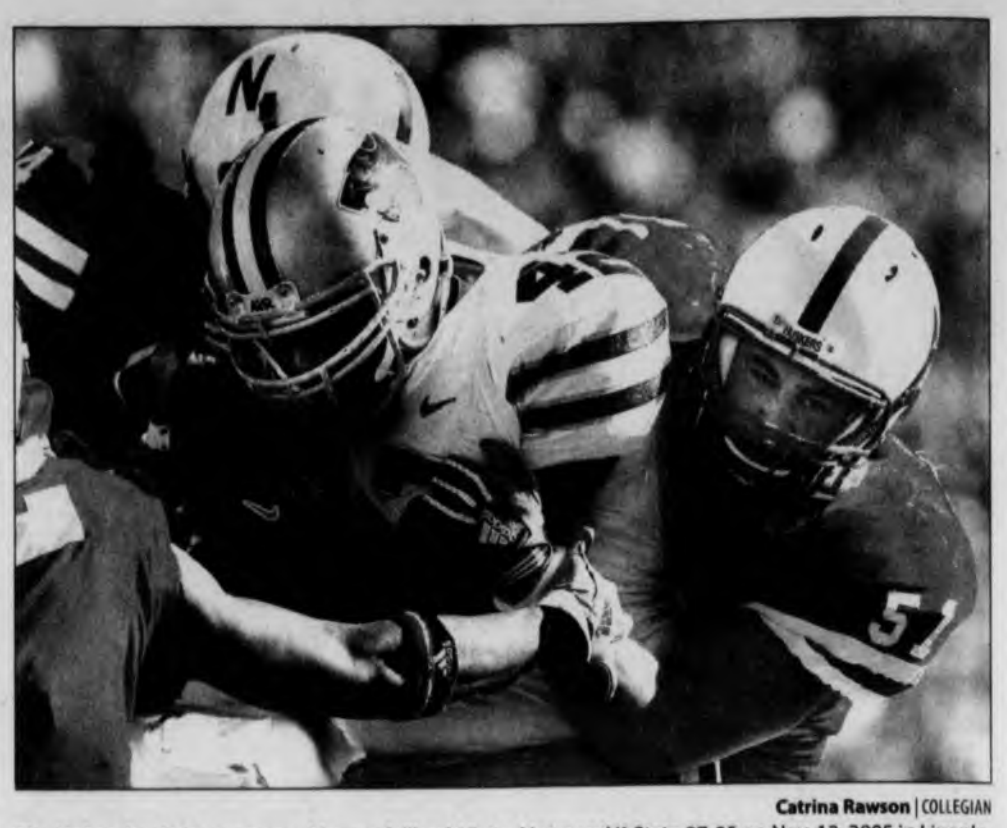
"I get a very clear picture of that by the number of letters I get from our fans," Prince said.

"Reading in the paper that (Bill) Callahan made some statements about Josh Freeman being a prima donna, it just adds fuel to the fire."

Jonathan Beasley
FORMER K-STATE QUARTERBACK

"That's what's so neat when you have two teams playing who have a history like this."

For K-State, the history book reads like this: 29 years of futility, followed by one monumental win. In 1998, Michael Bishop and company beat the Huskers for the first time since 1969, and the Wildcats have not lost to Nebraska at home since.



In the last 10 meetings, K-State is 5-5 against the Cornhuskers. Not exactly a decade of dominance, but a decade of competitiveness, at least.

"It's just the fact that they beat us for so many years," said Jonathan Beasley, who was the Wildcat quarterback in two Nebraska showdowns in 1999 and 2000. "From (19)96 on, the games got a little closer, and then we finally beat them in (19)98. For us to be considered a real program, we had to beat them."

Beasley led the Wildcats to a 29-28 victory against Nebraska in 2000, a game fondly remembered as the "Snow Bowl." At the time, Nebraska was ranked No. 4 in the nation, while K-State was ranked 16th.

However, 2000 marked the last time the two teams met as ranked opponents. Nebraska's power-option attack was replaced by Bill Callahan's West Coast Offense, the same philosophy Prince brought to Manhattan this season.

So have those changes diminished the intensity of the rivalry?

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
The Nebraska defense stopped former fullback Victor Mann and K-State 27-25 on Nov. 12, 2005 in Lincoln, Neb. However, the Huskers have not beaten the Wildcats in Manhattan for more than 10 years.

"I don't think so," Beasley said. "Every team has a down year or two. This is going to be a big game. Reading in the paper that Callahan made some statements about Josh Freeman being a prima donna, it just adds fuel to the fire."

On Saturday, Freeman will attempt to do something Beasley, Bishop and Ell Roberson could not – beat Nebraska on his first try.

Beasley, who coaches high school football and works as a home-mortgage broker in Wichita, offered some words of advice for K-State's true freshman quarterback.

"Just go out there and play within the game plan," Beasley said. "Eliminate the penalties and mistakes. We've got a great defense, and the offense is coming around. If the offense can put up a few points, we've got a good chance to win."

TV stations pass up chance to corner large Midwest fan base

JONATHAN GARTEN

There are really too many bizarre shows on television.

Do you like watching guys playing darts in a bar? Thanks to ESPN, you don't even have to leave your couch. You want to keep track of every one of your senator's yays and nays? C-SPAN has you covered. Country music? You get your own channel.

However, there still seems to be plenty of things that slip through the cracks, like the K-State vs. Nebraska game that was left off this week's Big 12 TV package.

There's no way of predicting if a game will be close or a blowout, which is why TV networks choose games based on how much hype they can generate. With K-State and Nebraska, networks wouldn't run short on material.

The Wildcats suffered 29 straight losses to the Huskers before finally ending the streak in 1998. That's the kind of domination that scars generations of fans. Since that win, Nebraska hasn't won in Manhattan.

But the bad blood isn't just in Snyder Family Stadium. In 2003, K-State marched into Lincoln and smacked the Huskers around on their senior day, 38-9. Nebraska fans accused Bill Snyder of running up the score, especially when he refused to yank his starters in the fourth quarter. After years of being on the wrong end of one-sided games, there weren't many sympathetic Wildcats.

The last few years, both teams have struggled and the rivalry has lost some of its luster. That is, until the Josh Freeman and Bill Callahan soap opera began.

Callahan played his cards perfectly. Freeman was groomed at the Nebraska quarterback academy. They even got him to verbally commit months before signing day by guaranteeing they wouldn't recruit any other quarterbacks. Then, a couple of weeks after being hired at K-State, Ron Prince convinced Freeman to switch schools.

America's "classiest fans" took the high road and spent months venting on Husker message boards. These are the same fans who vandalized Allan Evridge's car after he switched to K-State.

Callahan wasn't too happy either. At a Special Olympics fund-raising breakfast in March, he took a stab at Freeman, saying "drama queens" and "prima donnas" could go to K-State because there is no room for them at Nebraska.

What's most confusing about this week's Big 12 television schedule is that one of the games has no business being on over the K-State-Nebraska game. Missouri at Texas A&M is obviously the conference game of the week, so it deserves to be on ABC. And you always can justify putting Texas on national television. But there's no way Iowa State at Oklahoma should have gotten the green light.

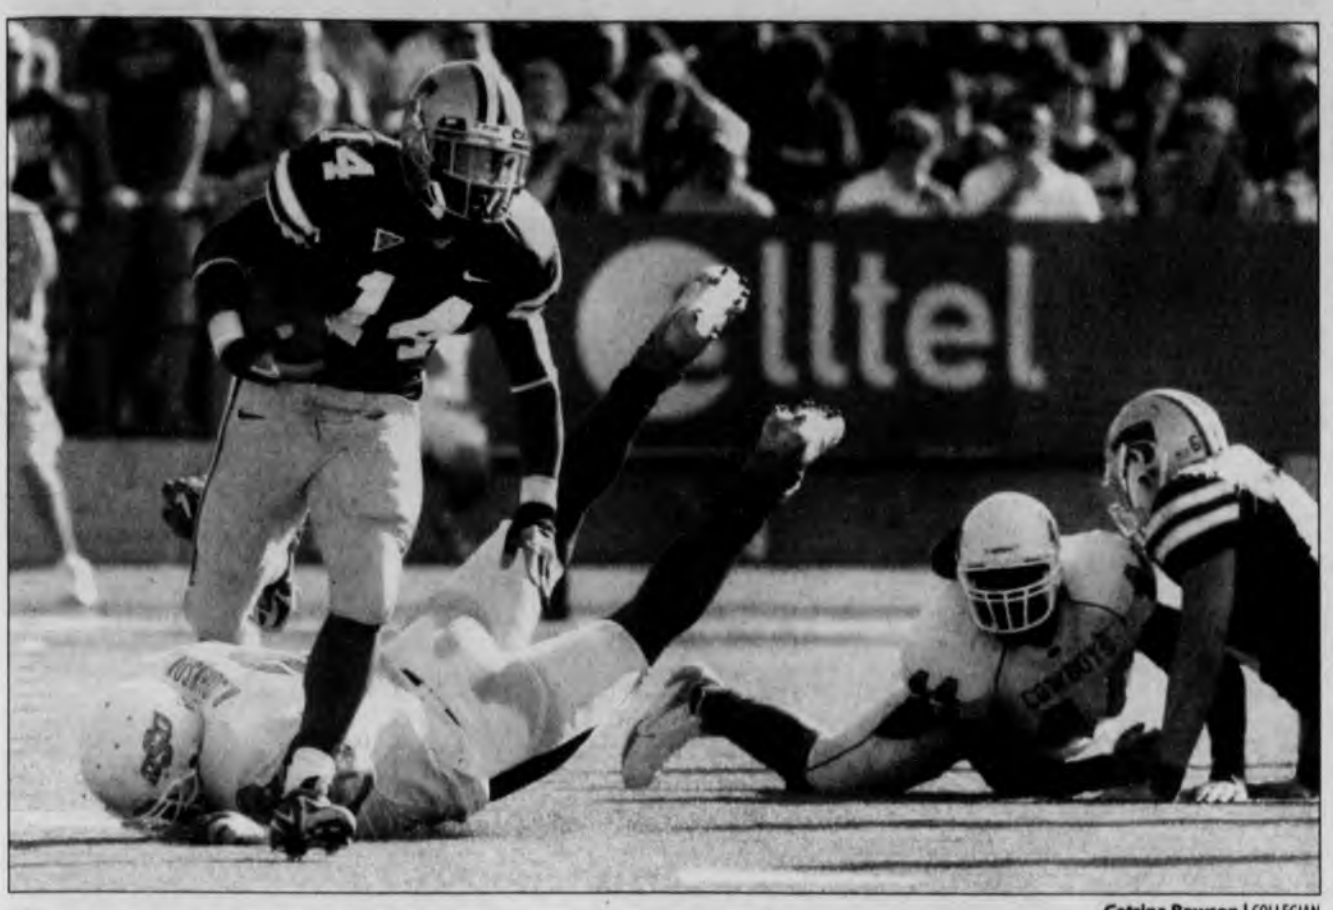
Not only is the history lacking between Iowa State and Oklahoma, but it won't draw as many viewers. Nebraska has one of the nation's largest fan bases, and while thousands of them will be in Manhattan, there will still be plenty who will not make the trip.

Now, if they want to see it, fans will have to order it for $30 on pay-per-view. That's too much to pay to watch a game on television, especially one that deserves to be televised in the first place.

Jonathan Garten is a junior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

SALON ESSENTIALS
Salon • Spa • Tanning Resort
½ PRICE FACIALS
(select therapists only) Exp. 10.31.06
121 S. SETH CHILDS 539-5752

Come Get Your Shag On At Shaggieville Salon!
612 N. 12th 539-2277



Krystallos
AGGIEVILLE
1218½ MORO
Jewelry
Clothing
Accessories
Mon-Sat: 10-6
Thurs-Fri: 10-8
Sun: 12-5

discover
[gopowercat.com]
beLoud, beProud, bePurple

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

COLLEGE PARK
UNIVERSITY CROSSING
NEW CLUBHOUSE
University Crossing
2215 College Ave.
Manhattan, KS 66502
785.539.0500 tel
collegeparkweb.com
coming in fall 2006
FEATURED
• fitness center
• computer lab
• game room
COLLEGE PARK

Saturday Night Salsa
with DJ Luis
$2.50 • Sangria • Margaritas • Coronas
$2.75 • Pounders
BOWINKLE'S
Sports Bar
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022
Ask for our GREAT daily food and drink specials
College Football Package
ESPN Game Plan:
Catch all your major games on our 120" TVs!

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Running back Leon Patton gained 301 all-purpose yards and scored two touchdowns in his first career start against Oklahoma State last Saturday. The Wildcats will try for their second win in a row this Saturday when they square off against rival Nebraska at Snyder Family Stadium.

Patton sets freshman record, establishes self as top running back

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When coach Ron Prince took over the K-State football program from Bill Snyder, he had a lot of work to do on the recruiting trail.

Snyder, known for neglecting recruiting until a few months before signing day, had only six verbal commits when he retired in November 2005.

After watching the tapes of the Snyder recruits, one player caught Prince's attention. He noticed Leon Patton, an undersized running back from Texas, had a knack for making big plays.

Once Patton arrived at K-State, Prince witnessed firsthand what he had seen on film.

"When we had a chance to get him up here for early practices, we ran a couple of plays, and everybody kind of stopped and said, 'Wow, that guy's fast,'" Prince said.

While Patton's coaches and teammates were exposed to his abilities on a daily basis, the fans had to wait. Through the first five games, Patton rushed for 57 yards on 13 carries in a back-up role to Thomas Clayton.

But the K-State offense needed a spark heading into the Oklahoma State game. The Wildcats had scored only nine points in the previous two games combined, and, other than a 69-yard run from Clayton, the running game had been ineffective.

The answer to the Wildcats' offensive miscues was to start five new players against the Cowboys. Patton was chosen to replace Clayton at running back.

He took full advantage of his first start, leading the team with 301 all-purpose yards – a freshman record at K-State.

"I give credit to the offensive line today," Patton said after the 31-27 win over Oklahoma State. "I couldn't do it by myself. They created the holes, and I just hit them."

Up until the final five minutes of the game, Patton was responsible for six of the Wildcats' eight first downs and 183 of the team's 207 total yards. He showed an ability to pick up big chunks of yards, gaining 20 yards or more on four plays.

"He's definitely an explosive player in space," running back John McCardle said. "Once you get him in the open, he has great speed, and he's really shifty, so he can make people look stupid out there."

With K-State trailing 13-10 in the third quarter, Patton put his team back in the lead with a 95-yard kickoff return. He nearly was stopped when a defender grabbed him from behind near midfield, but the 5-foot-7, 185-pound Patton broke free and sped his way into the end zone.

"I remember seeing a hole and coming through it," Patton said. "Someone grabbed onto my foot, and our team needed to score, so I tried my best to get free and get into the end zone."

The other true freshman in the Wildcat backfield, Josh Freeman, also had success in his first start. Freeman led K-State on its final two touchdown drives to come back from a 10-point deficit in the fourth quarter.

With more than three years of eligibility remaining for both Freeman and Patton, the freshman running back seemed optimistic about the future.

"Being freshmen, we have a long way to go," Patton said. "We can't do anything but get better."

5 Keys to Victory

Mimic KU's offense to beat Nebraska

By Austin Meek
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Years ago, Nebraska commanded the series with K-State, but in the last 10 years, things have changed. Since then, the two teams have split the series at five, and the Cornhuskers have not won in Manhattan since 1996. K-State has dominated Nebraska at home, winning by an average of 17.8 points per game during the streak and by 30 points in the last two games. If the Wildcats hope to continue their streak over the Huskers, they will need to do the following:

1. CONTAIN THE COMMITTEE

Nebraska's quartet of running backs – Marlon Lucky, Cody Glenn, Brandon Jackson and Kenny Wilson – have accounted for 1,300 rushing yards and 17 touchdowns. In addition, each running back has topped the 100-yard mark this season.

2. SLOW DOWN THE NEBRASKA SACK ATTACK

In 2005, the Huskers led the nation in sacks and tackles for loss. While those numbers have declined a bit this season, Josh Freeman will definitely have a big red target on his back. Freeman needs to make quick, smart decisions in the pocket.

3. SCORE ON SPECIAL TEAMS

The Wildcats have scored a special teams touchdown in three games this season, and they've won all three. Facing the conference's top offense, K-State will need those points on Saturday.

4. 2 WORDS: LEON PATTON

Patton showed his game-changing ability last week when he rushed for 151 yards and returned a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown. With Patton in the line-up, the Wildcats have the potential to break a big play at any time.

5. WATCH KANSAS FILM

Normally, this is not a recipe for offensive success. But the Jayhawks piled up 574 yards of offense against the Huskers two weeks ago, including 405 through the air. If K-State can achieve similar success, the Wildcats will have a good chance to knock off Nebraska at home for the fifth consecutive time.

Freeman factor hypes game

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Josh Freeman expected it would come to this. He might not have known how it was going to come about, but Freeman envisioned he would be the starting quarterback by the time Nebraska came to Manhattan this season.

"I expected to be the starter going into week one," Freeman said. "So I definitely planned on being a starter this game."

For the freshman quarterback from Grandview High School in Kansas City, Mo., Saturday's game against the Huskers will be a rather interesting one considering his history with Nebraska.

A year ago, Freeman was torching prep defenses at Grandview on his way to 2,622 yards passing and 33 touchdowns. He was ranked the No. 4 pro-style quarterback in the country by Rivals.com, and the top player in the state of Missouri.

His high-school success brought attention from schools all over the nation, including K-State, Nebraska and Virginia, where Ron Prince was still offensive coordinator. However, Freeman was sold on Nebraska. He had gone to quarterback camps in Lincoln and had been on several official visits.

"They have great tradition up there," Freeman said. "The 80,000-some odd fans in all red - it was breathtaking."

Freeman planned to be the next in line to run coach Bill Callahan's developing West Coast Offense. Nebraska offered him a scholarship the summer before his senior year, and Freeman accepted. His plans were to graduate in December from high school and head to Lincoln in January.

But in the blink of an eye, everything changed. In early December, Prince, the man who had been sending letters to Freeman from Virginia, was hired at K-State to succeed Bill Snyder. Prince started contacting Freeman, and soon the two met. Prince made an immediate impression on Freeman.

"The way coach Prince came in, you could just tell he was a special man and had some special things going for him," Freeman said.

Two weeks after Prince's arrival at K-State, Freeman made the decision to de-commit to Nebraska and head to Manhattan instead. He was Prince's first hyped recruit as the Wildcat coach, but the Cornhuskers felt betrayed.

They felt so betrayed that Callahan, without mentioning Freeman by name, took a stab at the young quarterback a few months later.

"We want players who want us, because we feel Nebraska is a special, special situation," Callahan said during his keynote speech at a Special Olympics fund-raising breakfast in March in Omaha, Neb. "If you're a prima donna, if you're a drama queen, there's no room for you at Nebraska. You can go to Kansas State."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Freeman enrolled at K-State for the spring semester and began to learn the offensive system Prince was trying to establish. He entered the spring locked in a five-man quarterback race, but with the transfers of Kevin Lopina, Allan Evridge and Allen Webb, the candidates quickly dwindled to two - Freeman and fifth-year student Dylan Meier.

The two quarterbacks fought a neck-and-neck race during fall practice, but Prince named Meier the starter before the first game of the season.

"I was a little surprised, given that the competition was so tight," Freeman said. "I dealt with it and just kept grinding on plays, trying to do as good as I could at practice."

The hard work took a while to pay off, but after Meier struggled in the first few weeks of the season, Prince made a somewhat surprising move by naming Freeman the starter before the game against Oklahoma State.

Some thought Prince was desperate. Many wondered if the freshman signal-caller could handle the pressure of starting in the Big 12. Freeman responded by silencing all of his critics.

His statistics weren't astounding - 10-of-15 passing for 177 yards - but it was the way Freeman played when the game was on the line that impressed his teammates most. The game-winning 21-yard touchdown run didn't hurt either.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Quarterback Josh Freeman took over for senior Dylan Meier after the Wildcat offense scored only nine points combined in games against Louisville and Baylor. Freeman, who originally committed to Nebraska, will face the Huskers this Saturday at Snyder Family Stadium for the first time.

"I feel like I won over a lot of my teammates," Freeman said. "At first I was just a freshman coming in, and they didn't know what to expect. But I think I earned respect from the whole team, and they see that I can do it."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

With that, the stage was set. Freeman had a successful start under his belt, and next on the schedule are his old friends from Nebraska.

It is surely a date "Big Red" fans have had circled for a long time.

K-State fullback John McCardle, an Omaha native who grew up a Husker fan, said the history between Freeman and Nebraska shouldn't have much of an effect on the game.

"Anytime someone commits and then declines, obviously the people kind of feel betrayed," McCardle said. "I don't think (Josh) will have a problem with that. It's not like he's talking with the Nebraska coaches anymore. He's at K-State around K-State fans, so it's not like he's getting ridiculed every day."

Callahan, the same coach who implicitly labeled Freeman a "prima donna" and a "drama queen" seven months ago, has changed his position slightly. He noticed how well Freeman played against Oklahoma State and said during his weekly press conference that Freeman will be a challenge for the Huskers to defend.

"He had great command and presence of what he was doing," Callahan said. "We have a lot of respect for Josh and what he is capable of doing."

As for whether he is still bitter about what happened in December, Callahan seems to have moved on.

"That is over," he said. "Recruiting is over, and it's time to play, so we're excited about playing. They're a good football team, and it's going to be a heck of a challenge."

The "prima donna" remark from Callahan is one that could be used as motivation for Freeman, but Prince chose to act as if it never happened.

"I have no idea what you're talking about," Prince said when asked about Callahan's comments.

Freeman said the comment did not bother him.

"Everybody's entitled to their opinion, and that's obviously his opinion. I can't say anything about it," he said. "Coach Prince has commented on it a couple times, but I think it was my dad who originally told me about it. I could care less, though."

However, it's obvious the Freeman saga has only added to a rivalry that has intensified during the last 10 years.

With a victory over the Huskers, Freeman has a chance to help put the Wildcats back in contention for the Big 12 North title.

"It'd just be another win," Freeman said. "It'd mean more to me just beating another conference team and getting closer to the Big 12 Championship than just beating Nebraska.

"I don't feel like there's any bad blood between me and Nebraska - maybe the fans, but not the coaches. Words don't really mean much in this game; it's just what you come out and do on game day."

With A Convenient Location Near the Stadium & Friendly Service
• 3256 Kimball Ave • 539-6533 •

Customized coverage. Quick claims response.
Auto Insurance
Call today for a free, no-obligation quote.
FARM BUREAU FINANCIAL SERVICES
2630 Farm Bureau Rd
Manhattan
(785)537-0339
Chan Stowell
Auto Home Life College Retirement

GOOD LUCK Wildcats!
PLANET SUB in Aggieville
Delivery & Catering Available
785-537-8782 • 708 N. Manhattan Ave.

RC McGraws
776.9588
Wildcat headquarters before & after the game
Open at 3pm
LIVE FRIDAY & SATURDAY
ALTON MILLER BAND
&
THE COUNTRY ROAD FIVE BAND
Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound
Food & Drink Specials ALL Weekend Long!
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)

McCain Auditorium Presents
William Shakespeare's
HAMLET
October 20, 2006
7:30 PM
Pre-performance lecture by Prof. Don Hedrich at 6:30 p.m. in room 204 McCain
Actors From The London Stage is one of the oldest established touring Shakespeare theater companies in the world. Housed and work shopped in England with academic tours booked through the auspices of the Maria P. DeBartolo Center For The Performing Arts at the University of Notre Dame, this program is like no other.

Alan Clark
BODY SHOP INC. SINCE 1967
"WHEN QUALITY COUNTS, COME SEE US"
• COMPLETE BODY REPAIR
• ESTIMATES
• INSURANCE CLAIMS WELCOME
•PAINTLESS DENT REPAIR
•RECEIVER HITCHES & 5TH
SCORPION
MasterCard DISCOVER VISA
SOUTH FOURTH
Manhattan Town Center
Hwy 24 EAST
PIERRE
3rd
Ft. RILEY BLVD.
K-18
177
776-5333
2160 PILLSBURY DR. • 177 HWY SOUTH • MANHATTAN

Harley Day

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Harley Day has become a tradition at K-State football games. Before Saturday's game, 100 motorcycles will circle Wagner Field for the ninth time. The first Harley Day has only 35 participating riders.

Ladies, gentlemen, start your engines

By Jessi Hernandez
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Those who plan to attend the football game this weekend better prepare themselves for the noise. Not the noise of a sold-out crowd, but the noise made when that sold-out crowd tries to make itself heard over the din of 100 Harley-Davidson engines.

This Saturday will be the ninth-annual Harley Day at K-State, and fans will see Wildcat alumni and celebrities ride around the Wagner Field track in their best impersonation of the Hell's Angels – but without the violence and rude hand gestures.

According to Lon Floyd, assistant athletic director in the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics, the idea for Harley Day began one night in 1997, in former athletic director Max Urick's backyard.

"(We) were having dinner one night, and after dinner, we were sitting out on his deck talking about how to make the atmosphere around the stadium really fun," Floyd said. "You know, sort of a circus-like atmosphere, where people come to the game and leave thinking not only that they saw great football, but also something else really neat.

"It was really late, and right about that time, a guy on a great big Harley drove by and kind of revved (the engine) a few times. We sat there for a second, and I looked at Max, and he said, 'Well, it wouldn't have anything to do with football...' and I said, 'But it sure would be fun.'"

Floyd said he called people he knew around Manhattan who owned Harley-Davidsons and gathered about 35 riders for the first Harley Day.

Since then, the event has grown. Floyd said of the 100 available spots, five are reserved for the event's primary sponsor, Harley-Davidson of Salina; seven are auctioned off on the Catbacker tour; and the remaining 88 are determined through an application system.

"When I stand down there and give the signal, and all 100 of those engines crank up, I don't know why, but all the hair on the back of my neck stands up. I can't explain it. It's just exciting."

Lon Floyd
ASSISTANT ATHLETIC DIRECTOR, DEPARTMENT OF INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS

"Once the application is made, we assign them in descending order by priority points," Floyd said. "Priority points are generated by owning season athletic tickets, for how long, and the amount of money donated to the (Mike) Ahearn Scholarship Fund. We count down 88 and then draw a line. Those 88 are the ones who get to ride."

Gary Glatz, K-State alumnus, said as soon as he bought a Harley, he had it custom-painted purple.

"I thought, 'Now I can ride it at Harley Day,'" Glatz said. "I played football at K-State, I was a team captain under Vince Gibson in (19)72, and I've told people it's the only thing as exciting as running out onto the field. It's a great tradition that K-State has."

Ruth Ann Wefald, the first lady of K-State, said she and Sharon Snyder, wife of former football coach Bill Snyder, first decided to ride after talking about how much fun they thought it would be to roll into the stadium on a Harley.

"The next thing I knew, we were invited to be a part of the ride," Wefald said. "It was just a whale of a good time. You know, most people don't get the chance to be down there on the field and hear what the noise is like from the crowd - you get to kind of feel what the players feel."

Floyd said Harley Day is always a big hit with the crowd, because many people, whether they want to admit it, are fascinated by the sound that a Harley makes.

"I think there's a certain mystique about the Harley sound," Floyd said. "And to pump up the crowd - which loud noise usually does - we couldn't think of anything better to use than a Harley.

"When I stand down there and give the signal, and all 100 of those engines crank up, I don't know why, but all the hair on the back of my neck stands up. I can't explain it. It's just exciting."

Collegian vs. KSDB 91.9

5 Games to watch

Collegian football picks

Team record: 89-31
K-State record: 17-7

	 Nick Dunn (23-7)	 Jonathan Garten (21-9)	 Austin Meek (22-8)	 Jeffrey Rake (23-7)
K-State vs. No. 21 Nebraska	Nebraska 19-17	K-State 21-17	K-State 28-25	K-State 23-21
Oklahoma State at Kansas	Kansas 18-15	Kansas 28-23	Kansas 31-17	Kansas 26-20
No. 19 Missouri at Texas A&M	Missouri 32-27	Missouri 20-13	Missouri 31-23	Missouri 31-25
Iowa State at No. 23 Oklahoma	Oklahoma 40-17	Oklahoma 49-13	Oklahoma 31-14	Oklahoma 28-17
No. 2 Florida at No. 11 Auburn	Auburn 26-6	Auburn 10-7	Florida 18-12	Florida 17-7

KSDB 91.9 football picks

Team record: 99-21
K-State record: 19-5

	 Heath Fanning (25-5)	 Kyle Finley (26-4)	 Scott Miller (25-5)	 James Westling (23-7)
K-State vs. No. 21 Nebraska	Nebraska 24-13	K-State 35-31	Nebraska 24-17	Nebraska 27-21
Oklahoma State at Kansas	Kansas 28-27	Oklahoma State 28-27	Kansas 28-27	Kansas 24-20
No. 19 Missouri at Texas A&M	Missouri 28-17	Missouri 31-21	Missouri 34-21	Missouri 34-28
Iowa State at No. 23 Oklahoma	Oklahoma 28-3	Oklahoma 27-17	Oklahoma 35-24	Oklahoma 27-14
No. 2 Florida at No. 11 Auburn	Auburn 24-17	Florida 21-17	Florida 17-14	Auburn 17-14

To advertise on kstatecollegian.com
Call 785.532.6560

HUNAN
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
10% Off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ
with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

A LOT CAN BE SAID ABOUT A LITTLE BIT OF SPACE.....
IT WORKS
To give it a try, call or stop by Collegian advertising
103 Kedzie 532-6560

Purple Pig
We have the Game on TV!
Join us for KICK OFF at 6:10PM and Come watch K-State BEAT NEBRASKA
1119 Moro
539-7444
Doors open @ 10 am

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7151
Lunch Special
$3 BIG BOULEVARDS
$3 Any Sandwich & chips, 11-2
$2 Enchilada Plates all day
Open at 11am

Everything you need for tailgating is in
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor
south of Blockbuster on Westport Dr.

EYECARE ASSOCIATES OF MANHATTAN, LL
Dr. Bullock
Dr. Stanley
Doctors of Optometry
Anderson Village • 1441 Anderson
Manhattan, KS 66502
• TRICARE & Most Insurances Accepted
• Convenient Appointment Times Available
• In-Office Eyewear Gallery
98% Of Contact Lenses Fit Same Day
(785) 776-9461 • 1-800-432-0036

Are you paying too much for auto insurance?
American Family rates are more competitive than you might think. Call me today to find out.

AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office - Madison, WI 53783
amfam.com
© 2006 002308 - Rev. 4/06
Tim Engle Agency, Inc.
3320 Anderson Ave
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 539-9200 Bus
(785) 537-8696 Fax
tengle@amfam.com
Jon Harper Agency
1814 Claflin Rd Ste 220
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 776-1855 Bus
(785) 539-2577 Fax
jharper@amfam.com

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Friday Specials
$2.50 Pounders
$4.00 Absolute Bombs
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$5.50 Booze Burger
3 Projection Screens
Saturday Specials
$4.25 Sobe Bombs
$4.50 Big Boys
$6.50 Chili Cheese Burger
16 Flat Screens
Sunday Specials
$2.50 Drinks, Amp Bombs
$2.00 Tall Boys & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$5.50 Guac Burger
1/2 Price Appetizers
100 Free T-Shirts
$3.00 Miller Lite & Bud Light Pounders on Game Day!
- ON GAMEDAY -
Patio open @ 3:00 pm
Mon - Tues 4pm - 2am
Wed - Sun 11:30am - 2am
UFC Fight @ 9 pm This Saturday

Red roots

Lafene's Dr. Larry Moeller turned his examination room into a Nebraska fan's paradise

By Alex Peak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With red socks, an emblem-marked polo and a matching watch, Dr. Larry Moeller sees the world through red-colored glasses.

But he's not your average Cornhusker.

Moeller, a physician at Lafene Health Center, greets people with a smile and welcomes them into his patient-examination room, which happens to be adorned with Nebraska everything: Cornhusker trash cans – at least three or four of them – coffee mugs, posters, stickers, a windmill, a football autographed by former coach Tom Osborne and a beanbag toy that sings the fight song.

If it can have an insignia on it, Moeller has it, and it says Nebraska.

But before anyone can get too alarmed by all of the red, he'll invite you to see his K-State room as well.

Although this Wildcat patient-examination room is not quite as chock-full of purple fan memorabilia as the other bleeds red, his passion for both teams is apparent.

There is a sense of parallelism, as both offices' bathroom doors are covered with bumper stickers. One says, "I have two favorite teams: K-State and whoever is playing Kansas," and a similar one says, "Nebraska and whoever is playing Oklahoma."

"It's a juvenile thing that keeps you busy," he said about his obsession with Nebraska. "I even drive a red car with Nebraska plates."

Moeller also admitted he has a day planner he occasionally embellishes with Cornhusker stickers.

Moeller, a native Nebraskan and alumnus of Nebraska and the University of Nebraska Medical Center, moved to Manhattan 23 years ago after residing in North Dakota for a time.

"I love K-State," he said. "I've met some wonderful people here, and it's tropical compared to North Dakota."

While both of his children attended K-State, Moeller said he and his wife became regulars at games. They even had half red, half purple sweatshirts made to illustrate their divided loyalties.

"Sometimes I'll wear one purple and one red sock," he said.

After recently traveling to Ames, Iowa, and Austin, Texas, Moeller said he tries to make excursions to a few Nebraska games each season.

"I love seeing games live," he said. "TV gives you instant replay, but it's not the same."

"It's a juvenile thing that keeps you busy. I even a drive a red car with Nebraska plates."

Dr. Larry Moeller
PHYSICIAN, LAFENE HEALTH CENTER

When he attended Nebraska, Moeller played trombone for the marching band.

"Every year there's an alumni band day," he said. "We practice for half the day and then perform during the game. It's one of my favorite games to go to."

Moeller said he occasionally is given a hard time for being a Nebraska fan in Kansas, but he said it doesn't deter his spirit in the slightest.

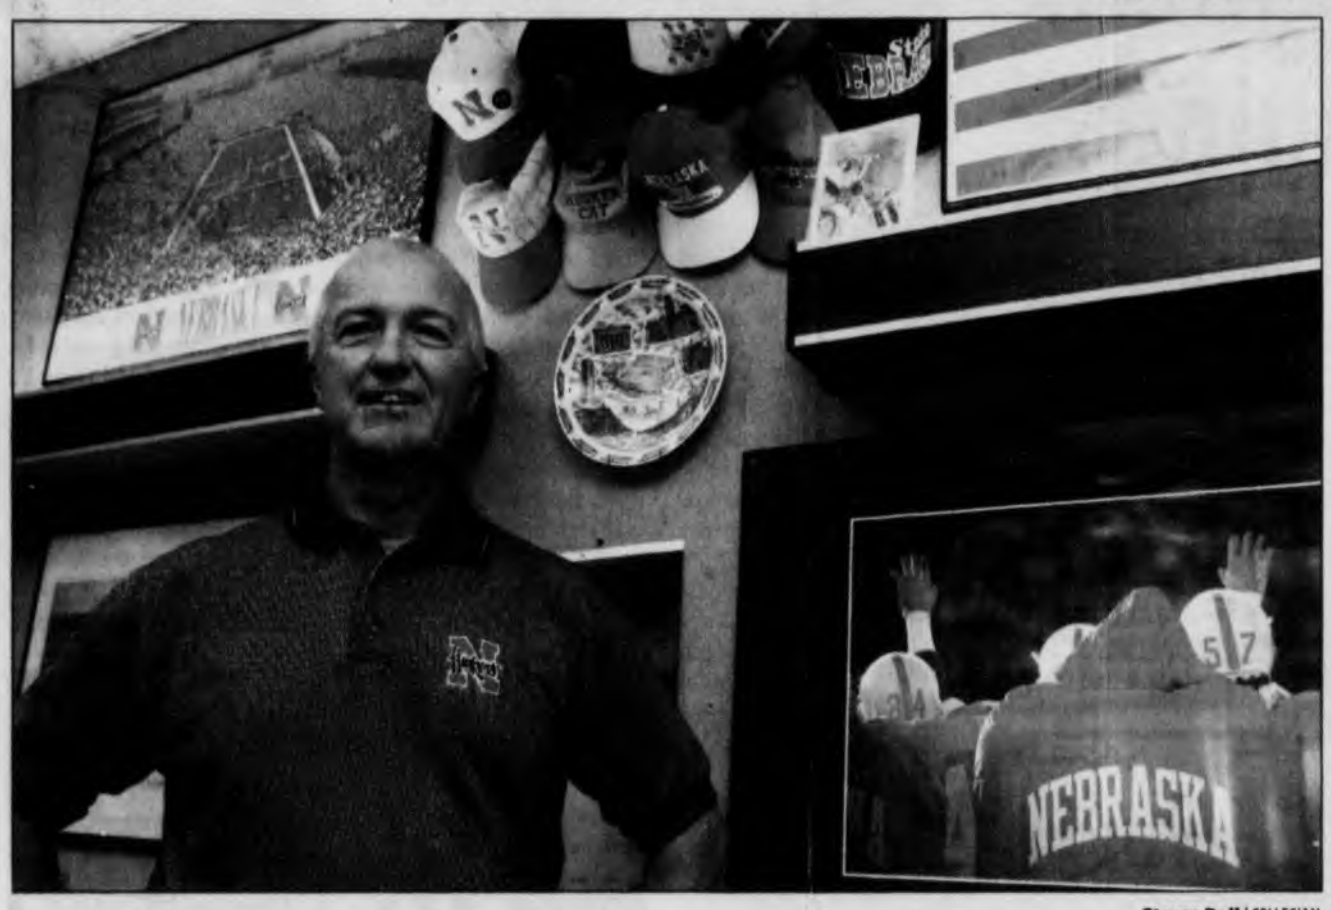
"It's more in fun," he said. "I love every second of it."

While many K-State and Nebraska fans might have feelings of animosity and contention toward the other team, Moeller said he doesn't think it's a harmful opposition.

"I think there's definitely a rivalry," he said. "But I think it's grown into a healthy rivalry. I think they (K-State) dislike KU more."

Not everyone in Manhattan dislikes the Cornhuskers. Moeller said he has met many other Nebraska fans here.

"I organize a Husker game watch each year at Bobby T's," he said. "There's a good contingence, about 50-60 people, and a lot of them are K-State students."



From the perspective of a Nebraska fan, Moeller said he thinks the Cornhuskers respect the Wildcats as athletic competitors.

"It's not quite like the rivalry between Nebraska and Oklahoma and Colorado," he said.

As for predictions and hopes for Nebraska this season, Moeller said he thinks the Cornhuskers will be better than they have been in the past few seasons.

"Although they do still have to play Texas and Oklahoma," he said with a laugh. "I just think every game needs to be taken seriously."

Even though he shows fondness and support for both teams, Moeller is a Nebraska fan first, he said, and will be decked out in red come Saturday night.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Dr. Larry Moeller, an alumnus of Nebraska dedicates one of his examination rooms to his alma mater at Lafene Health Center. Moeller's examination room contains everything from trash cans, bumper stickers, coffee mugs and posters all dedicated to the Huskers.

ROYAL PURPLE
yearbook
We've got the stories • you've got to read
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555

BOBBY T's
WILDCAT REPLAY
4:30PM 6:30PM 8:30 PM
TUESDAY
3240 KIMBALL AVE. · 537-8383

Score a Touchdown with $5 off New Clients
BARK AVENUE CANINE DESIGNS
Call for details
607 N. 11th • 565-0612

a Cut Above SALON
785.537.3200
walk-ins welcome!
1800 Claflin Road • Suite 110 • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

CASH FOR THE GAME?
Pawn Loans • Payday Loans
Also a wide selection of:
• Guns • Music Equipment
• Used Games • Electronics
AMERICAN CASH EXCHANGE
CASH ADVANCE & PAWN LOANS
501A Fort Riley Blvd.
785-537-1803

539-5269
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
LIBRARY
GO CATS!

HUT! HUT!
Pizza Hut
YOUR DEFENSE AGAINST HUNGER!
Proud Sponsors of KSU Football
"GO WILDCATS"

ALORICA®
The Power Behind Service
Flint Hills Area Premier Employer
!!NOW HIRING!!
CUSTOMER SERVICE AGENTS FOR cingular WIRELESS
$ COMPETITIVE WAGES WITH PAID TRAINING
$ PAID VACATIONS, HOLIDAYS, SICK DAYS
$ STUDENT/FAMILY FLEXIBLE SCHEDULES
$ FAST, FUN, FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE
$ ADVANCEMENT OPPORTUNITIES
$ TUITION REIMBURSEMENT
$ EXCELLENT BENEFITS
APPLY AT:
5970 SYKES BLVD.
MANHATTAN, KS 66503
IN THE TECH PARK NEXT TO THE MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT
ONLINE: WWW.ALORICA.COM/CAREERS
OR CALL 785 564-4400
YOU MAY ALSO APPLY AT: Manhattan Workforce Center

Free Order of Buffalo Wings With Purchase of Any Large Specialty Pizza At Menu Price
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
*Not good with any other special offer *Offer good only on Pan, Thin, or Handtossed Pizza Crusts *1/20 cent cash redemption value *Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. 8/2006 *Expires: Oct. 31, 2006

$10.99 "Purple Pride Special"
1-Topping Large Big New Yorker Pizza, Side Order of Breadstix, 2-Liter of Soda
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
*Not good with any other special offer *2-22oz refillable drinks substituted for 2-liter on dine-in orders *1/20 cent cash redemption value *Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. 8/2006 *Expires: Oct. 31, 2006

Free Side Order of Breadstix With Purchase of Any Large or Medium Pizza at Menu Price
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
*Not good with any other special offer *1/20th cent cash redemption value *Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. 8/2006 *Expires: Oct. 31, 2006

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, October 16, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 41

INSIDE
Jars of Clay performed at K-State for the 3rd time Sunday
The Edge, Page 5

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Fred Brock, assistant professor in journalism and mass communications, speaks to attendees Sunday afternoon about his book, "Retire on Less Than You Think: The New York Times Guide to Planning Your Financial Future," at Manhattan Public Library.

Brock: U.S. insurance options slim

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Americans have to choose the best of several bad choices when it comes to health insurance, said Fred Brock, associate professor of journalism and mass communications, when he spoke at Manhattan Public Library Sunday.

Brock was promoting his book, "Health Care on Less than You Think: The New York Times Guide to Getting Affordable Coverage."

The book is the third in a series, following "Live Well on Less that You Think" and "Retire on Less than You Think," a New York Times bestseller.

"The elephant in the room for both those books was health care," Brock said.

He holds the R.M. Seaton Professional Chair in the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications and is a former business editor at the New York Times.

Brock said his first two books were more optimistic, because there are many good options for people looking to retire or live well. With health insurance, he said, there is no ideal solution.

Brock said 46 million Americans are uninsured and believe a myth that the United States has the best health care in the world.

"On almost every measure, the United States is one of the worst countries (for health care)," he said.

He said the U.S. infant mortality

See BROCK Page 7

Oh, the madness

K-State's Jermaine Maybank shows off one of the three new basketball jerseys during Madness in Manhattan Friday evening at Bramlage Coliseum. The Wildcats added the black jersey this season to go along with the new white home jersey's and purple away ones.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It was a sight K-State basketball had not seen in years.

Nearly a month before the Wildcats' season tips off, Bramlage Coliseum was host to "Madness in Manhattan" Friday night, a pep rally and celebration for the first day of basketball practice.

The late-night festivities provided fans with plenty of excitement, as they got their first look at both the new men's and women's teams.

"We did this for the fans," men's basketball head coach Bob Huggins said. "Everyone has been terrific. The students have been phenomenal, and this was a way of saying thank you to them."

The crowd played a role in adding to the atmosphere. Painted bodies adorned the front three rows, spelling the sentence: "Welcome to Huggieville."

When the lights dimmed, many students held up their cell phones, the lights shining in the darkness.

The crowd of nearly 10,000 screamed for each player, as both teams descended the arena stairs player by player. It was even louder when Huggins descended.

"It was ridiculous," Michael Ellis, junior in computer engineering, said. "I've never heard this place get as loud as it did for Huggins when it was full."

The crowd stood as Huggins left the tunnel and took the microphone.

"I was amazed at the people running in here to get seats," Huggins said. "You guys play pretty hard. We're gonna play as hard as you this year. We're gonna care as much as you do, and we're gonna win."

The madness, which lasted nearly 90 minutes, began with the K-State Cheerleaders, Classy Cats and Cat Band each performing. A fluorescent green laser-light show captured the attention of the fans by mixing a techno beat with flashing Wildcat images.

"Maybe it was just me, but I thought the light show was a cool addition to the evening," Garrett Price, sophomore in mechanical engineering, said. "It just added to the spectacle."

The new men's jerseys were unveiled. The Nike-designed cat-scratch-style jerseys are custom to K-State and come in three colors: road purple, home white and a black alternate.

"Now, the black ones are for something special," Huggins said. "We'll use them this year for something, maybe the Big 12 championship, maybe the Sweet 16."

Many fans said they thought the slam-dunk contest, won by David

See BASKETBALL Page 7

No. 1 recruit Beasley impressed with turnout

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Michael Beasley got a little taste Friday night of what life could be like for him a year from now.

Beasley – the No. 1 basketball recruit in the nation for the class of 2007 according to Rivals.com – made an appearance in Bramlage Coliseum during K-State's first "Madness in Manhattan."

Upon the arrival of the 6-foot-10 forward, the nearly packed house immediately began to chant his name.

Beasley said the enthusiasm of the fans was what impressed him most during the evening.

"The fans are crazy," he said. "You've seen them; you've heard them. They all love Kansas State basketball. They love every part of Kansas State. I think every school, every team deserves that kind of (support)."

It was not Beasley's first visit to Manhattan, but he verbally committed to the school without setting foot on campus. He said he plans to sign with the Wildcats and coach Bob Huggins the first day he can in November.

"Definitely, I'm a Kansas State Wildcat," he said.

K-State recruit Michael Beasley signs autographs after "Madness in Manhattan" on Friday evening in Bramlage Coliseum.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

The presence of Beasley just added to the literal "madness" that took place.

See BEASLEY Page 7

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Josh Perez, junior in architecture, and his wife, Megan, 2000 K-State graduate, ride on the hay rack after going through the corn maze and picking a pumpkin at Britt's Garden Acres.

Farm offers hay rides, corn maze, fresh produce

By Kristina Monroe
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A hay ride is an excellent way to spend a crisp fall afternoon.

Just north of Fort Riley Boulevard on Scenic Drive is Britt's Garden Acres. Opened in 1948, the farm has sold fresh produce year-round for nearly 70 years.

Britt's began offering hay rides to its customers Sept. 30 and will continue the rides through the end of October.

K-State student Angela Britt, junior in business, and her husband Richard Britt, Jr., senior in horticulture, have been the owners of the family farm since March.

The hay rides leave every hour on Saturdays and Sundays, starting at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m., respectively. The last rides are at 5 p.m.

On the hay ride, customers are taken by tractor to a corn maze. Once they complete the maze, they pick a pumpkin from the patch. The hay ride, corn maze and pumpkin are all part of the $2.50 per person admission.

The farm has a working bee hive in the main store, and hundreds of pumpkins in several varieties are available for purchase.

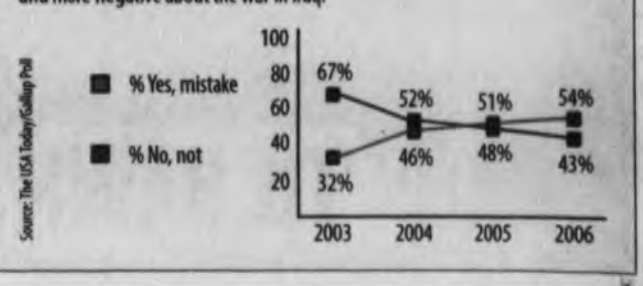
Customers can try Britt's famous cherry or apple cider slushies and can buy ciders, pies, candied apples and fresh honey.

"It was the coolest thing ever," Morgan Anders, 5, said. "I got lost in the maze. Mommy had to help me."

Today's forecast
60% chance of rain
High: 59 Low: 52

ONLINE

The Huggins factor
The slam-dunk contest turned into a contest of who actually could put the ball through the basket. You can blame coach Bob Huggins' 2 1/2-hour practice before the event even started.
www.kstatecollegian.com



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

World Food Day
There will be a World Food Day teleconference to highlight the ways university faculty and students can contribute to the reduction of hunger. It will be 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Flint Hills Room of the K-State Student Union. It is titled "World Food Day presents Power of the People: Universities fighting hunger."

Senior day
Students from Johnson County, Kan., high schools will be at K-State today as part of their designated senior day. They will receive information about scholarships, take campus tours and have academic appointments. For more information, visit consider.k-state.edu/seniors.

Landscape lecture
Warren Byrd will speak about healing and sustaining landscapes with "The recent work of Nelson Byrd Woltz Landscape Artists." The free presentation will be at 4 p.m. today in the Little Theatre. Byrd has taught landscape architecture in Virginia since 1979. For more information, visit www.capd.k-state.edu.

Was it a mistake to send troops to Iraq?
From a long-term perspective, Americans have continued to become more and more negative about the war in Iraq.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 One-sixth of a fl. oz.
4 Askew
7 Frenzied
11 Oil-cartel acronym
13 Anonymous John
14 Panache
15 Colloquial assent
16 Speck
17 Actress Jessica
18 Discard
20 Plumbing woe
22 Descartes' conclusion
24 Straitjacket part
28 Lincoln's successor
32 Colorado ski mecca
33 Pedestal occupant
34 Cauldron
36 Fork-tailed bird
37 Brain parts
39 Perchlike fish
41 Pledged promises
43 Luau bowlful
44 Bivouac structure
46 Grit your teeth
50 Otherwise
53 Otologist's subject
55 Elbow counterpart
56 Piglet's papa
57 "Simpsons" storekeeper
58 Goblet feature
59 Elmer's nemesis
60 Small barrel
61 Picks out of a lineup

DOWN
1 Santa's sackful
2 Detail, for short
3 Brandy flavor
4 Strange
5 April 1 victim
6 Honors with a party
7 Teamwork thwarters
8 Ailing
9 Science workshop
10 "CSI" findings
12 Mail from the superstitious
19 Faux —
21 Miss. neighbor
23 Swab the decks
25 Fencing item
26 Quite
27 Feminine suffix
28 Leave at the altar
29 Stench
30 Vagrant
31 Promptly
35 Dancing-shoe attachment
38 The woman
40 Journal
42 Furtive one
45 Recording
47 Con
48 Start a garden
49 Clothes lines?
50 Undergo recession
51 Mary — Retton
52 Droop
54 Carpet

Solution time: 27 mins.

P	A	P	A	S		A	C	E		A	T	E
T	W	E	R	P		M	O	M		L	U	X
A	E	R	I	E		U	P	S	C	A	L	E
		C	A	N	D	L	E		A	M	I	R
E	T	A		T	E	E		A	D	O	P	T
S	O	L	O		S	T	A	G	E
T	R	E	B	E	K		B	A	T	M	A	N
			S	U	S	I	E		S	O	M	E
A	S	T	E	R		M	A	P		N	A	B
W	H	O	S		S	P	R	E	A	D
F	O	R	S	A	L	E		A	T	A	L	L
U	R	I		H	A	D		C	O	L	E	S
L	E	O		A	B	E		E	M	E	N	D

Yesterday's answer 10-14

10-16 CRYPTOQUIP

EY RGB'TU QBREJW KUTIMEJ UMIEJW BIUJDEPD, E WBUDD RGB'PP XMNU IG YGTS GNUT IXU QBKSD.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHEN BAKING A CAKE, YOU SHOULD ADD MUCH SUGAR. IT WILL MAKE YOUR BITTER BATTER BETTER.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: B equals U

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from other universities

PRINCETON CELEBRATES OPENING OF LGBT CENTER

PRINCETON, N.J. – For more than 30 years, Princeton students have worked with faculty and administrators for recognition of gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender concerns on campus, seeing only gradual improvement.

Decades of frustration gave way to celebration Thursday with the grand opening of the LGBT Center in Frist Campus Center, with speeches by President Shirley Tilghman and Executive Vice President Mark Burstein.

"It was important practically and symbolically that we provide a place that would allow LGBT students to flourish," Tilghman said in an interview.

The LGBT Center includes a library, lounge, seating area and workspace, all meant to create a comfortable area for students.

U. FLORIDA STUDENTS TO STRIP FOR CHARITY

GAINESVILLE, Fla. – Although hundreds of University of Florida students running in their underwear might seem like just another display of collegiate hedonism, it will be for a cause Friday.

The Great Underwear Dash, a biannual run through campus, is nearing its fourth incarnation and its first attempt at charity work.

Creator Beau Bergeron, senior in graphic design, decided all clothes stripped off by students at the beginning of the dash will be given to the Red Cross donation program and shipped to relief shelters nationwide.

MORE THAN $180 MILLION GIVEN TO NOTRE DAME

SOUTH BEND, Ind. – University of Notre Dame benefactors went above and beyond in the 2006 Fiscal Year, and the university has the numbers – a record-high $180.7 million, to be exact – to prove it, officials announced Monday.

The amount is the highest the university has ever received in cash contributions from alumni, parents and friends of Notre Dame, not including account pledges of future gifts, according to a university press release.

The previous high of $173.7 million was in 2004.

Source: www.copyboy.com

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Brian Flock at 1:30 p.m. today in Chalmers 36.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Eric Carter at 3 p.m. today in Justin 137.

■ The Career and Academic Success Carnival is 4:30-6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Derby ARC. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ There will be a Business Council Meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Calvin 116.

■ Chimes Junior Honorary is accepting applications for the K-State Family of the Year. Applications are available online at www.k-state.edu/familyday. Applications are due Wednesday. For more information, contact Amanda Brookover at amandajb@ksu.edu.

■ The Academic Majors Fair will be from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday in the K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom.

■ Walk-in Wednesdays will be from noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ Business Study Abroad Advocates will meet 4:30-5:30 p.m. Wednesday in Calvin 211.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Carlos Tanus at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Call Hall 226.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

dependable, quality service
√5¢ self-serve copies
Claflin Books and Copies

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

$1.50 Wells
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL
Aggieville

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

OPEN HOUSE
FRI. OCTOBER 20TH
9:00 - 3:00
STUDENT-GUIDED PROGRAM TOURS BEGIN EVERY 15 MINUTES.
www.matc.net
The TECHNICAL COLLEGE
MANHATTAN AREA TECHNICAL COLLEGE

Watch Monday Night Football Here:
on the Big Screen
$2.00 Wells & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$2.50 Hawaiian Punch & Tequila Bombs
$5.50 Tubby Yee-Haw Burger
MONDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 Bud & Bud Light Pitchers
Mountain Oyster Basket $4.50
TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Aggieville • Manhattan, KS

PLANET SUB
SOUPS ARE BACK!
537-8SUB
WE DELIVER

Last Chance
to register teams for St. Jude Children's Hospital!
Register online at www.ksu.edu/uptildawn/ to fight children's illness
UP 'TIL DAWN
ST. JUDE CHILDREN'S RESEARCH HOSPITAL

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

Kansas State Orchestra
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17
7:30 P.M. FREE
MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
DAVID LITTRELL, CONDUCTOR
SLAWOMIR DOBRZANSKI, PIANO SOLOIST
DEBUSSY: PETITE SUITE
CHOPIN: PIANO CONCERTO NO. 2 IN F MINOR
SHOSTAKOVICH: SYMPHONY NO. 9 IN E-FLAT

Hypnotist makes 2nd K-State visit

By Jesse Sachdeva
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Comedic hypnotist Dale K performed in Forum Hall Friday night as part of Union Program Council's After Hours program.

Dale K has hypnotized more than 50,000 people and is a past winner of the Collegiate Performer of the Year award.

"We first saw Dale at the National Association of Campus Activities," said Pat Agwu, graduate adviser for After Hours. "He came here to perform last year, and the performance went really well, so we invited him back again."

Hal Hockersmith, sophomore in computer science and member of UPC, said he was at Dale K's performance last year.

"It was really fun. He got people doing the craziest things," Hockersmith said. "The show was full of physical comedy."

Dale K took the stage to the sound of a blaring guitar riff. As a disclaimer, he went over some of the side effects of hypnosis.

"One of the positive side effects of hypnosis is that when you wake up tomorrow, you feel as if you got an extra eight hours of sleep," he said. "The negative? Well, you'll see."

Dale K then selected a group of about 20 volunteers from the audience and put them through a series of tests to determine their susceptibility to hypnosis.

After a few tests, Dale K narrowed down his volunteers to a group of about 10 and continued to test their susceptibility.

At this point, the volunteers could not tell the difference between reality and imagination and were unaware of the audience's presence, Dale K said.

He then set trigger words and sounds in the volunteers' minds, training one to moo at the sound of a cowbell and telling another to hop up and down and stuff marshmallows down his pants when he heard the word "kangaroo."

Dale K brought out a stuffed version of Barney the dinosaur and trained the volunteers to think Barney was yelling at them to shut up. The volunteers were so convinced of the stuffed animal's rudeness that one volunteer, who was wearing a Boston Red Sox hat, called Barney "the devil," before saying, "He probably plays for the Yankees."

While some in the audience said they believed Dale K's volunteers merely played along with his suggestions, the child-like responses and unembarrassed actions of the volunteers seemed to suggest they truly lost control of their inhibitions.

"I really like the show. He must have really had them convinced," Dane Schmidt, junior in elementary education, said. "I know I wouldn't want to stuff marshmallows down my pants."

Repeat performance

Tom Kimmel, singer and songwriter from Nashville, Tenn., performs in the BirdHouse Acoustic Music Series at the Manhattan Arts Center on Friday evening. Kimmel has performed for the series before.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

Pizza benefit raises more than $1K for St. Jude's

By Jesse Sachdeva
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Allison Klinock joined Delta Delta Delta sorority last year, she knew she wanted to get involved.

Klinock, sophomore in life sciences and psychology, visited St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, Tri-Delt's main charitable benefactor, this summer.

"After going to St. Jude's, I knew philanthropy chair was the position I wanted in the house," she said.

"They (St. Jude's) had such a great organization, and their protocol research is used in hospitals all over the country."

Klinock's first event as philanthropy chair was Chowing for Children, a benefit co-sponsored by Gumby's Pizza.

Working in two-hour shifts in the Gumby's parking lot, Tri-Delts worked from 9 p.m. to 3 a.m. selling pre-made large cheese and pepperoni pizzas for $7 each, with all proceeds going to St. Jude's.

Klinock said Tri-Delt sold about 175 pizzas and raised about $1,250.

"Things really went well after the bars let out," she said.

"We sold out quite a few times, and eventually we had to stop, because Gumby's had gotten too busy to keep supplying us."

Doug Macejewski, Gumby's owner, worked with the Tri-Delts on the event last year.

"It's just a little different having the event here this year," Macejewski said.

"It might take away from our sales in-store a bit, but it's for charity."

Menu Mania

Porter's
Mini Monday
20¢ mini corndogs
$1.00 mini bottles
$1.00 off all drinks

HUNAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
$1.00 off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $5.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1301 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888

$4.99 Buffet w/ Student ID
Sunday & Monday
Valentino's
3003 Anderson Ave
539-6444

25¢ HOT WINGS
"BIGGER THAN AGGIEVILLES"
$4 DOMESTIC 64 oz PITCHERS
BOWINKLE'S Sports Bar
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022

Monday - Macho
$3.99 for a triple cheeseburger, large fry and large drink
Dairy Queen
1015 N. Third • 776-4117

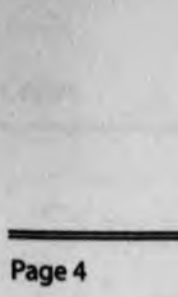
HUNAN EXPRESS
FREE DELIVERY: 537-0886
$3.99 LUNCH BUFFET 11:00-2:30
$4.99 DINNER BUFFET 5:30-9:00
VALUABLE COUPON
RECEIVE ONE OF THE FOLLOWING FREE
FOR DELIVERY ORDER OF $15 OR MORE
ONE SOFT DRINK (2 LITER)
TWO EGG ROLLS
FOUR CRAB RANGOONS
TEN FRIED DONUTS
PURCHASE OF $25 OR MORE SELECT ONE ORDER FROM MENU.

$2.00 ANY DRAW OR BOTTLE
Pete's Manhattan Barbeque Aggieville
1/2 PRICE SMOKED WINGS
NOW HIRING WAITRESSES!!
Specific availability required:
Mon and Wed days

Monday Mania
$3.99 Large Cheese Pizza
Dine in or carry out
Delivery Hotline 770-3333
Open Late
GUMBY'S Pizza

$1 off Any Pita
The Pita Pit
We Deliver • 1131 Moro • 537-3995

Kramer Quik Cats
Convenience Store
Buy 1 made-to-order pizza, and get the 2nd half price!
(second pizza must be of equal or lesser value.)
Located in the Kramer Dining Center
6:30 p.m. - Midnight
Expires 12/15/06



K-STATE HOMECOMING T-SHIRTS
On sale at the K-State Student Union Oct. 16-20 from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., next to the food court. Sizes S-3XL
Short Sleeve $13
Long Sleeve $15
Additional cost for 2XL-3XL

CAREER AND ACADEMIC SUCCESS CARNIVAL
Join us for fun with the CES and ACIC staffs. Learn about campus resources for academic and career success!
Oct. 17, 4:30 to 6:30
Derby ARC
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career
www.k-state.edu/ces

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
K-State
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 18 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

Transaction fees take advantage of swipers

At bakeries, cafés and bars across the country, clients have come to face a strange new transaction fee. This, of course, is the minimum credit card purchase.

SHANE SANDERS

Why does it exist? Many shops claim it is driven by the cost of running a credit transaction – typically, about 2 percent of the transaction, plus 10 cents.

However, this fee structure explanation doesn't seem to tell the whole story – especially in light of the fact that minimum purchase requirements range from $0 to $10.

Perhaps we should look at the customers themselves to understand why these minimums exist.

Is there a difference between the person who primarily uses credit in small transactions and the person who primarily uses cash? For one, these customers track their expenditures differently.

In the case of cash, a person withdraws a certain amount and can easily track what he or she spends. However, no such form of recurrent tracking is common for credit transactions. Thus, we can infer that credit card users, on average, are comfortable taking less care to account for small expenditures.

So we can say that, for a given (small) purchase, credit card users respond to price increases by decreasing the quantity they purchase, less so than cash holders?

Taking credit card users as more price inelastic for a given good, we recognize any form of price discrimination on the part of firms would act to make this group pay a higher effective price.

Price discrimination occurs when businesses are able to classify buyers. Some buyers are scared away by higher prices, while others are less affected. Firms that use price discrimination act to charge the latter group a higher price than the former so as to extract more producer surplus from the market.

A prime example of price discrimination is discounts to students and the elderly, who are typically more price-sensitive than working adults.

It is likely that minimum credit card purchase requirements, because they induce many credit card users to buy more than they otherwise would, were created not merely to diffuse costs, but also as a form of price discrimination used to transfer surplus from the consumer to the producer.

So next time you have to buy an extra muffin at the café just to use your card, you can shout, "This is discrimination!"

Shane Sanders is a graduate student in economics. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Code (RED)

Illustration by Elvis Achelpohl | COLLEGIAN

U2's Bono teams with business partners to begin global charity project; proceeds from participating products go to fighting AIDS in Africa

On Oct. 13, an extraordinary project was started. It is called (PRODUCT) RED, and it was created by U2's front man Bono and Bobby Shriver.

KELSEY CHILDRESS

This initiative has joined well-known companies like The Gap, Motorola and Converse to produce products that send a portion of their profits to (RED) and eventually to the Global Fund.

This organization was created in 2002 to help those battling AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria in Africa.

The Global Fund has provided treatment for tuberculosis and malaria, insecticide-treated mosquito nets, and HIV tests to millions of people since its creation four years ago.

(RED), which claims the parentheses represent embracing the cause, believes that because the United States and other countries like Great Britain are first-world countries, they have a responsibility to aid those who cannot afford proper vaccinations or inhabitable living situations.

Bono has used his influence and respect in the music industry to provide an opportunity to help those who would die without outside help and funding.

(PRODUCT) RED, the part of (RED) that includes the sponsored companies and their products, makes it easy for anyone to donate money to the Global Fund. Simply purchase (RED) products, and that company will give money to (RED).

This makes it more sensible to buy an iPod Nano, because Apple introduced a red nano on Friday and will give $10 from each sale to (RED). There also are red Motorola RAZRs and SLVRs.

It is refreshing people demanding that others take notice of the crises in Africa, whether it be AIDS in Rwanda or the genocide in Darfur, Sudan.

Later this fall, the Queer Straight Alliance, Sexual Health Awareness Peer Educators and several other organizations will team up to sponsor the first Manhattan HIV/AIDS week, which is Nov. 27 to Dec. 2, because Dec. 1 is World AIDS Day.

In addition to an AIDS awareness walk and a candle remembrance ceremony, there also will be a showing of the movie adaptation of the Broadway musical RENT, which showcases several of the characters' struggles with AIDS.

Several organizations on campus have sponsored free AIDS testing, and we, the public, need to stop thinking getting tested for STDs is a bad thing.

We should be praising one another for making sure we are AIDS-free.

If we can't stop AIDS in the United States, think how hard it is for the lesser-educated and those with a smaller economic advantage to protect themselves.

With millions of people with AIDS all over the world, it's time for action. Whether it be buying a (RED) T-shirt at The Gap or lighting a candle to remember those who have died from the virus, awareness must be raised so we can stop the HIV/AIDS epidemic.

It's good to know a rock star like Bono has used his fame (and his super-famous friends, like Oprah) to help nations and their people. The rest is up to us. For more information, go to www.joinred.com.

Kelsey Childress is a junior in English. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASSISTANT AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

'Madness in Manhattan' needs tweaking, re-organization to live up to promotion

In an article in the Sept. 13 Collegian, Joni Weinman, assistant director of marketing and promotions, said the marketing staff had been working on "Madness in Manhattan" since last summer.

Next time the staff should think through the process for a bit longer.

While the idea of promoting this year's men's basketball program – which is getting nationwide exposure for the first time in years – is a good one, the event however did not live up to the hype.

From the beginning, the event was organized poorly. Fans waited outside for hours, some arriving as early as 6 p.m., for the 10:30 p.m. event, but that didn't secure the best seats in the house. Instead, they were forced to wait in the concourse at Bramlage Coliseum before the doors were swung open, and nearly all 10,000 people made a dash for seats.

The laser light show was a nice touch, but next time, try using a different color – maybe purple instead of green – and cut the length by at least half.

"Madness in Manhattan" should become a yearly event for the basketball program, but it needs to be tweaked. The slam-dunk contest either needs to be dropped or altered so the contestants have more than 30 seconds to try to grab the crowd's attention.

Most importantly, the master of ceremony needs a timetable of the evening.

Hopefully, next year's event can match up to the hype that surrounds it.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

So does scooter girl ever go to class? Because she never has a backpack.

Once again, Collegian editors, I don't really care what your opinion is on anything. Bring back the Fourum in its splendid glory.

Justin loves Emma.

I got drunk on Friday and missed the new episode of DeGrassi.

A dry fraternity is like sex with a condom. It's the same principle but less fun.

Offensive line, you're fired!

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Jars of Clay played at McCain Auditorium after Matt Wertz opened the show at Sunday evening. Jars of Clay started its tour on Oct. 11 and will be on the road until the Oct. 25.

'Monsters' on a mission

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

More than eight years ago, Amy Ackerman started listening to Christian music.

She was listening to a local Christian radio station when a song by Jars of Clay came on. After that, she said, she was hooked.

Fast forward to Sunday, when she was one person in the nearly sold-out McCain Auditorium to see Jars of Clay in concert.

"It was pretty cool," Ackerman, freshman in elementary education, said. "I didn't expect concerts from any groups I knew coming to K-State."

Jars of Clay, a Dove Award-winning group, played a set of about 20 songs Sunday evening, including songs from its album "Good Monster," which was released in September.

The band encouraged concertgoers to buy the album at the concert to benefit the "Blood: Water Mission."

"Blood: Water Mission" was set up to help people in Africa access clean water.

For every "Good Monsters" album sold this fall, Coca-Cola will donate $1 to the "Blood: Water Mission." Lead singer Dan Haseltine said one U.S. dollar assists in giving one person clean water for a year.

Jars of Clay also played songs from its debut album, including "Flood," the song that helped push sales from that album past the double-platinum mark, according to www.billboard.com.

Sunday was the band's third time to play at K-State.

"I hope we're getting better at this," Haseltine said.

When Tina Balecotcha began listening to alternative music, Jars of Clay was one of the bands she enjoyed, she said.

Dan Haseltine, lead vocalist, belts a song during the Jars of Clay concert. Between numbers, Haseltine explained the bands' charity, "Blood: Water Mission," which works to provide clean blood and water to countries in Africa.

"I went into alternative music, and Jars of Clay was alternative, and they were Christian," Balecotcha, senior in social science, said. "Ergo, I like them."

Matt Wertz opened for Jars of Clay. Wertz, a native of Kansas City, Mo., has ties to K-State, as members of his father's family attended the university.

One was his grandfather, for whom he wrote "Westley, Why" in his album "Twenty Three Places."

Biography

Band members: Dan Haseltine (vocals, percussion), Charlie Lowell (piano, organ, accordion, keys, background vocals), Stephen Mason (guitar, vocals, lap and pedal steel, national, mandolin, background vocals), Matthew Odmark (acoustic guitar, banjo, background vocals)
Where it started: Greenville, Illinois
When it formed: 1993
College life: In honor of the band's hard work, the four were given honorary degrees at Greenville College, where three of them had studied before they dropped out and moved to Nashville.
Albums released:
2006 Good Monsters
2005 Redemption Songs — RIAA certified GOLD
2003 Furthermore: From The Studio, From The Stage — RIAA certified GOLD
2003 Who We Are Instead — RIAA certified GOLD
2002 The Eleventh Hour — RIAA certified GOLD
1999 If I Left The Zoo — RIAA certified PLATINUM
1997 Much Afraid — RIAA certified 2x PLATINUM
1995 Jars Of Clay — RIAA certified 3x PLATINUM
1995 Drummer Boy (EP) — RIAA certified GOLD

About the band

Best known for hits like "Flood," "Liquid," "I Need You" and "Show You Love," Jars of Clay created the album "Redemption Songs" as a personal expression of the worship style that's nurtured them since moving to Nashville, Tenn., nearly a decade ago. The band was making pop-music history, first by skyrocketing to notoriety with its double-platinum debut, Jars of Clay, then building on its popular and critical acclaim with Grammy Award-winning projects "Much Afraid" and "If I Left the Zoo." But simultaneously, the Dove Award-winning band's collective faith also reached new heights, thanks to nurturing by a progressive Nashville church community keen to rediscovering church hymnody.

Source: Essential Records

TOP NEWS

Sara Evans' divorce papers cite adultery, pornography use

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country singer Sara Evans alleges in divorce papers that her husband committed adultery, was verbally and emotionally abusive, drank excessively and frequently watched pornography in their home.

Evans, 35, filed for divorce Thursday from Craig Schelske and announced through a spokesman that she was quitting ABC's "Dancing With the Stars" "to give her family full attention at this difficult time."

The couple married in 1993 and have three children, ages 7, 3 and 2.

Schelske, 43 and currently unemployed, ran for Congress as a Republican from Oregon's 5th District in 2002. He is a native of Salem, Ore.

Schelske denied all of the allegations in statement issued Friday night.

"I have made the decision to forgive Sara for the unfortunate campaign that she and her publicity advisers are currently waging," he said in the statement. "Sara has unfortunately become a dramatically different person over the last year, and it is something we have struggled to deal with. Sadly, it appears we have failed."

In the filing in state court in suburban Franklin, Tenn., where the couple has a home, Evans alleges that Schelske watched pornography on the couple's computers and has at least 100 nude photographs of himself in a state of arousal.

She also alleges that several photographs show Schelske having sex with other women.

According to the court documents, the oldest of the couple's children confronted Schelske when he was watching pornographic material on the television in their home.

Evans further alleges that Schelske frequently threatened her and "told her that she is crazy," threatened to take the children to Oregon and "continually interferes with (Evans') possession of and parenting time" with their children.

Evans requests child custody, possession of the Franklin home and child support.

"Ms. Evans hopes that her fans and TV viewers who've supported her in recent weeks and throughout her music career will respect and understand her need for privacy in the face of these recent events," Allen Brown, her representative at Sony BMG Music Entertainment, said in a statement Thursday.

WEEKEND BOX OFFICE

■ The weekend totals listed are measured in millions of dollars.

Top movies	Total
1. "The Grudge 2" Sony Pictures	22.0
2. "The Departed" Warner Bros. Pictures	18.7

"Man of the Year"

3. "Man of the Year" Universal Pictures	12.6
4. "Open Season" Sony Pictures	11.0
5. "Texas Chainsaw Massacre..." New Line Cinema	7.7
6. "The Marine" 20th Century Fox	7.0
7. "The Guardian" Buena Vista Pictures	5.9
8. Employee of the Month" Lionsgate	5.6
9. "One Night with the King" Gener8Xion Entertainment	4.3
10. "Jackass: Number Two" Paramount Pictures	3.3

Source: www.movies.yahoo.com

THIS WEEK... A look at events that occurred during this week in history, other bizarre holidays, happenings

TODAY 1917: Seductive female spy executed for espionage

"Mata Hari" MGM Pictures

Mata Hari, the archetype of a seductive female spy, was executed for espionage by a French firing squad at Vincennes outside of Paris. She went there in 1905 and performed exotic Asian dances. Her story has been adapted into many books and movies.

TUESDAY 1973: Streisand stars in 'The Way We Were"

"The Way We Were," starring Barbra Streisand and Robert Redford, opens. The hit movie also produced a hit song by the same title for Streisand.

Born in Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1942, Streisand aspired to enter show business from an early age. She worked as a theater usher and a switchboard operator while appearing in amateur productions. After winning a contest at a Greenwich Village nightclub, she began singing in clubs and performing in off-Broadway shows. Soon after, her singing career took off, and one of her albums earned top-10 status and a Grammy.

WEDNESDAY 1931: Thomas Edison dies

Inventor Thomas Alva Edison died in West Orange, N.J., at age 84. A genius in the practical application of scientific principles, Edison was one of the greatest and most productive inventors of his time, but his formal schooling was limited to three months, according to Infoplease Almanac. Despite his lack of education, Edison made notable inventions with electricity — the telegraph, light bulb and lamps, and kinetoscope.

THURSDAY 1784: Jefferson's alleged affair

On this day, an essay appears in the Gazette of the United States in which a writer, mysteriously named "Phocion," slyly attacks presidential candidate Thomas Jefferson. Phocion turned out to be former Treasury Secretary Alexander Hamilton. The essay typified the nasty, personal nature of political attacks in late 18th-century America.

When the article appeared, Jefferson, a Republican, was running against presidential incumbent John Adams, a Federalist, in an acrimonious campaign. The influential Hamilton, also a Federalist, supported Adams over Jefferson, one of Hamilton's political rivals since the two men served together in George Washington's first cabinet.

FRIDAY 1973: The opening of Sydney Opera House

After 15 years of construction, the Sydney Opera House is dedicated by Queen Elizabeth II. The $80 million structure, designed by Danish architect Jorn Utzon and funded by the profits of the Opera House Lotteries, was built on Bennelong Point, in Sydney, Australia. Famous for its geometric roof shells, the structure contains several large auditoriums and presents an average of 3,000 events a year to an estimated 2 million people. Today, the Opera House remains Sydney's best-known landmark.

Source: History Channel; Photos: courtesy art.

Breakthrough performer

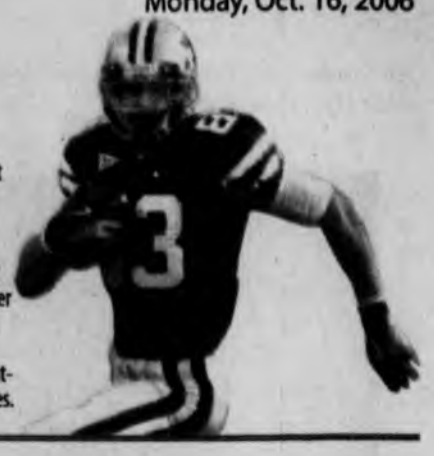
Jeff Snodgrass — Place-kicker

The senior supplied the only offense for K-State with his 53-yard field goal. It was his fourth field goal of 50 or more yards in his career, putting him one behind former K-State and consensus All-American place-kicker Martin Gramatica for most in school history.

Turning point

First quarter: Justin McKinney forces a fumble; Nebraska recovers the ball.

Only trailing 7-0, K-State's defense got the break it needed. Defensive back Justin McKinney forced Nebraksa wide receiver Terrence Nunn to fumble. Safety Marcus Watts had a chance to pick up the ball but could not get a handle on it. Nebraska's Brandon Jackson ultimately recovered the ball at the K-State 42-yard line, which was good enough for a Nebraska first down.



By the numbers

122

Place-kicker Jeff Snodgrass' 53-yard field goal in the third quarter preserved K-State's string of scoring to 122 consecutive games. The last time an opponent shut out the Wildcats was on Nov. 19, 1996, when Colorado defeated K-State 12-0 in Boulder.

Game MVP

With wide receiver Jordy Nelson on the sidelines, Daniel Gonzalez made the most of his opportunity on the field. The junior finished the game with a career-high four catches for 72 yards and was the Wildcats' leading rusher with 38 yards on a fake punt in the first quarter. Without Gonzalez's career long run, the K-State rushing attack would have been held to minus-16 yards in the game, with freshman running back Leon Patton finishing with only 13 yards on 12 carries.

Husker runs beat down Wildcats

AUSTIN MEEK

It's nice to know that in this crazy, mixed-up world, some things haven't changed much.

Nebraska's 21-3 win was an old-school beat down, the kind routinely administered by the Huskers for nearly three decades.

Forget that new-fangled West Coast offense. This was run-it-down-your-throat, smash-mouth football. Nebraska rushed for 158 yards in the first half and attempted just eight passes. Somewhere, Tom Osborne is smiling.

Nebraska running back Cody Glenn said it best: "We're Nebraska, and we want to run the ball."

Meanwhile, K-State's leading rusher was wide receiver Daniel Gonzalez, who gained 38 yards on a fake punt. Here's a tip: when your leading rusher is a wide receiver, things aren't going well.

No one else even thought about gaining 38 yards. Heck, Leon Patton had minus-7 yards through three quarters.

Basically, K-State's rushing attack breaks down like this:

Fake punt: 38 yards.

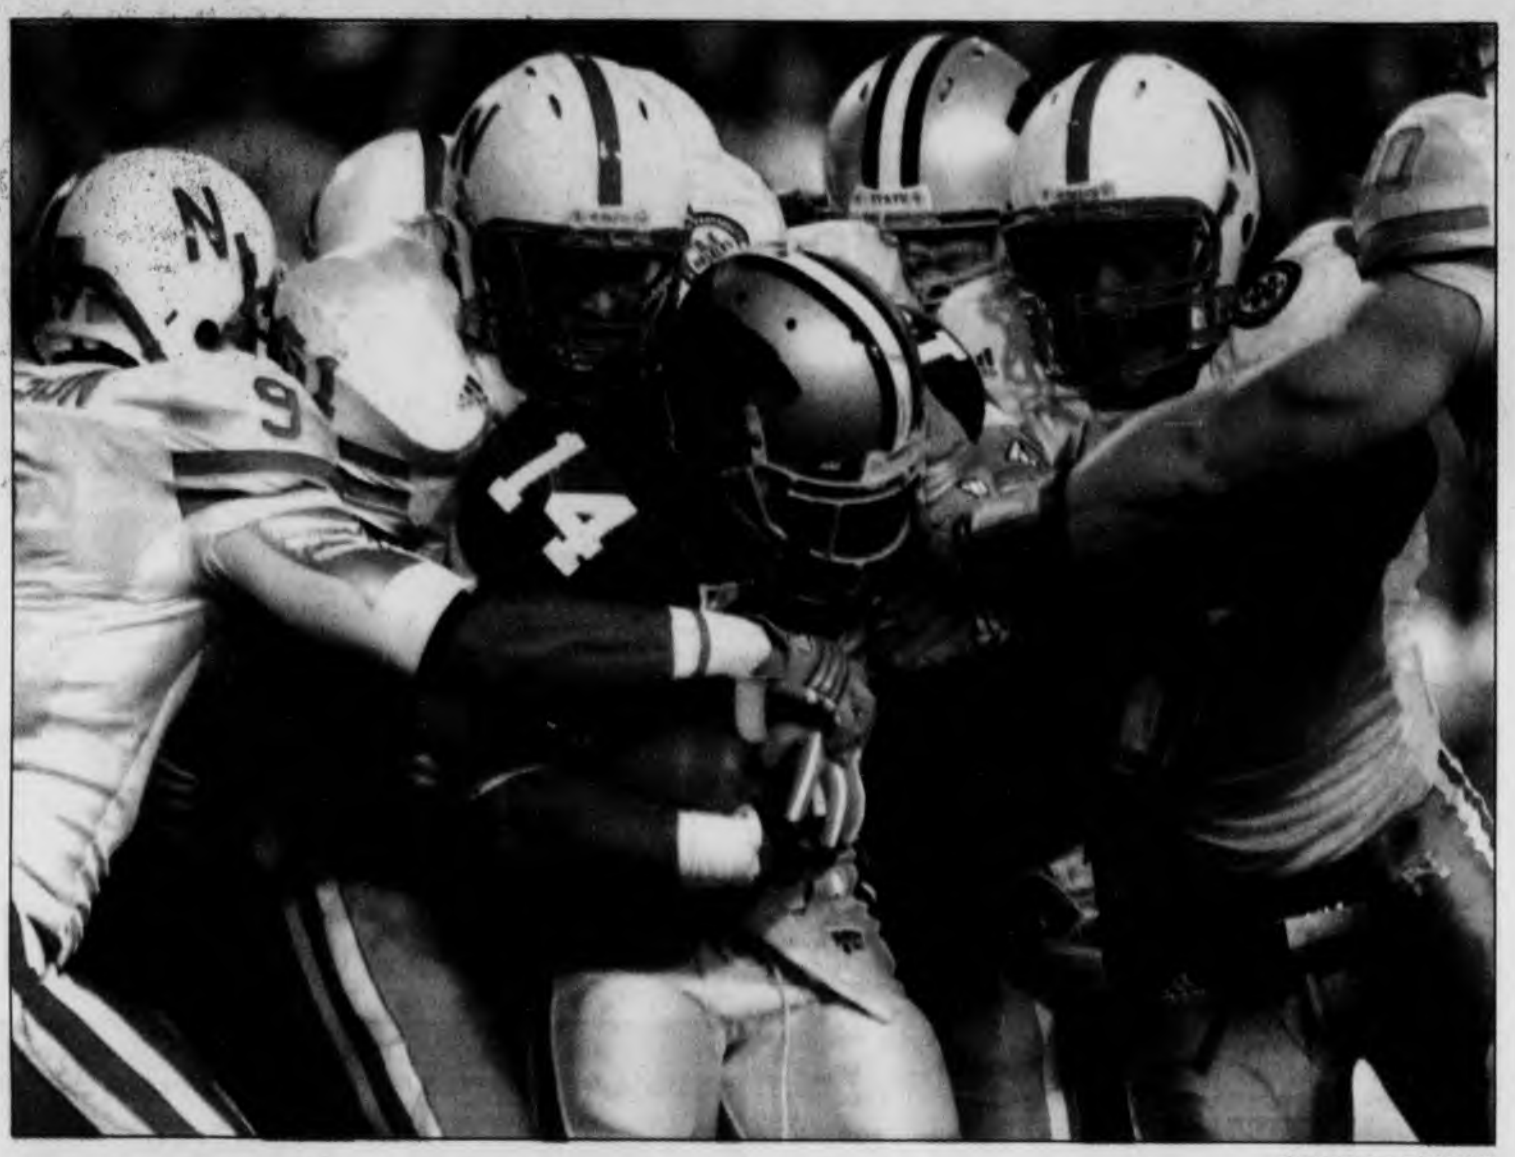
Everything else: minus-16 yards.

Speaking of the fake punt, let's just say coach Ron Prince set a dangerous precedent here. Attempting a fake punt at your own 9-yard line is about as bold and daring as it gets. It's like when Evel Knievel lights himself on fire and jumps over 27 cars on his motorcycle. How do you top that?

Anyway, the fake punt was about the only bright spot for K-State. Josh Freeman threw for 272 yards, but he also was sacked four times, threw two interceptions and failed to get K-State into the end zone.

After the game, Nebraska coach Bill Callahan talked about how proud he was to be part of the 800th win in Nebraska's storied football history. He didn't mention how many of those wins came against K-State, but it seems like about 700 of them.

Meanwhile, Prince said he understands the history and tradition of this rivalry.



"I can understand exactly why this one is important to everyone involved," Prince said. "I understand the history of what's happened here."

That just goes to show that even those who understand history are sometimes destined to repeat it.

Austin Meek is a senior in public relations. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Nebraska 21, K-State 3

GROUNDED

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State's Leon Patton is tackled by Nebraska's defense Saturday evening during the Wildcats' 21-3 loss. Patton was held to 13 yards on 12 carries during the game. In last weeks 31-27 win over Oklahoma State at home, Patton rushed for 151 yards on 21 carries.

Gonzalez run on fake punt puts Wildcats on the board in rushing yards

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Nebraska must have given K-State flashbacks of the Tom Osborne days, rushing for 190 yards on its way to a 21-3 victory.

That's the most rushing yards the Huskers have had against the Wildcats since 2003, when they gained 196. At the time, Frank Solich was still the coach, and Nebraska was still running its legendary option offense.

"We're Nebraska, and we want to run the ball," running back Cody Glenn said. "We want to show everybody that we can run the ball no matter what."

The Husker rushing attack wasn't a complete throwback, but with formations featuring multiple tight ends and running backs, the only thing missing was the option pitch.

Three different backs carried the ball 10 times or more to continue the Huskers' trend of using several different players to keep everyone rested.

While the Nebraska running backs couldn't be stopped, the K-State ground game was almost nonexistent. True freshman running back Leon Patton was held in check with 13 yards on 12 carries.

The Wildcats' leading rusher, Daniel Gonzalez, gained all 38 of his yards on a fake punt from K-State's own 9-yard line.

"They teach us to be ready at any time," Gonzalez said. "It ended up working perfectly."

Without Gonzalez's run, the Wildcats would have finished with minus-16 rushing yards.

Gonzalez also had a big day receiving the ball, with 72 yards on four catches. At the half he had 99 of the Wildcats' 124 total offensive yards.

K-State struggled to put successful drives together the entire game, converting only one of 13 third-down attempts. The offense continued to stall in the red-zone, scoring only three points on two trips inside the Nebraska 20-yard line.

With the Huskers dominating on the ground, they were able to distract K-State with two passing touchdowns. Quarterback Zac Taylor provided his offense with balance, finishing with 149 yards on 12-of-21 passing and one touchdown.

The other touchdown pass came when place-kick holder Jake Wesch threw a 17-yarder to Hunter Teafatiller on a fake field goal. The touchdown put the Huskers up 7-0 in the first quarter after K-State thought it had held Nebraska to three points.

"It couldn't have been better timing," Nebraska coach Bill Callahan said. "They were going after that first field goal to establish some momentum, so I think we kind of diffused that somewhat for that first drive."

True freshman quarterback Josh Freeman had a career-high 272 yards passing for the game. However, inconsistent protection forced him to throw on the run all night, and he finished with two interceptions and was sacked four times.

"I thought Josh and those players that he was passing the ball to were poised in making an effort to make some plays," coach Ron Prince said. "There were some individual efforts that were outstanding. We just didn't give him enough support to really let him set his feet and make some terrific throws over and over again."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Freshman quarterback Josh Freeman is sacked by Nebraska's Ndamukong Suh during the second half Saturday evening at Snyder Family Stadium.

Analysis

Run, pass balance gives edge to Nebraska's West Coast Offense

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Judging from K-State's 21-3 loss to Nebraska on Saturday, the West Coast Offense apparently can improve with age.

Nebraska coach Bill Callahan is in his third year of establishing his version of the popular offense in Lincoln, Neb., and his team finally appears comfortable. The only strange part is that the offense doesn't really look like it's from the West Coast.

Instead of using short throws to set up the run, Nebraska used a steady diet of the run to set up a solid, play-action passing game. Its success depended on a great effort from each of the three running backs. The differences in the two West Coast Offenses were clear. Nebraska's had a strong balance between run and pass, while K-State's offense lacked that necessary balance.

NEBRASKA

Against K-State, Nebraska opened the game, committed to the run and stayed with that strategy throughout the game. The Huskers ran the ball 27 times (compared to nine passes) for 158 yards in the first half alone.

"We wanted to come in and establish the run," Callahan said. "It's imperative when you get on the road in the Big 12 that you run the ball consistently."

Running backs Brandon Jackson, Cody Glenn and Marlon Lucky all found consistent room against the Wildcat front seven.

The three combined for 204 yards on 38 carries.

After the ground game was established, quarterback Zac Taylor had the chance to use a dangerous play-action passing game.

On an 80-yard touchdown drive in the second quarter, the Huskers used eight straight runs to set up a three-yard play action touchdown pass by Taylor.

K-STATE

K-State attempted the same strategy as Nebraska on the offensive side but was unable to get anything going on the ground. Excluding the 38-yard fake punt run by Daniel Gonzalez, the Wildcats had 17 rushes for minus-16 yards.

"The running game was ineffective," coach Ron Prince said. "We were going to have to execute very, very well. This has been a very good run defense."

The Wildcat offense was highly ineffective in the first part of the game. Of its first 13 plays, 10 of them went for zero – or negative – yardage.

Facing a large deficit for all of the second half, K-State became one-dimensional, throwing the ball almost every play.

Freeman threw 34 passes in the second half on his way to 272 yards for the game. However, throwing the ball all the time allowed the Huskers to use a variety of coverages and blitzes, sacking Freeman four times in the final half.

"When the game is one-dimensional, they can make it very difficult," Prince said. "We needed to have some balance. You could see the pressure they could put on in the pocket."

BASKETBALL | Teams begin season in November

Continued from Page 1

Hoskins, was somewhat of a disappointment, as only two players made their dunks. Huggins said it didn't worry him.

"We practiced for 2 1/2 (hours) beforehand," Huggins said. "(The players) didn't have any legs underneath them. I know these kids can jump."

Fans said they want to see K-State return to the basketball prominence it enjoyed before the drought of post-season appearances began in 1996.

"When I was a student here in the (19)60s and '70s, K-State basketball was very special, and Coach Huggins and his staff are going to bring that back," Pat Bosco, dean of student life, said.

The basketball teams will have their only exhibition games of the season at Bramlage.

The men's squad will play Washburn on Nov. 4, and the women's team will play Emporia State on Nov. 5.

BEASLEY | Recruit verbally committed to K-State

Continued from Page 1

Thousands of fans waited for hours in the cold for a chance at the best seats for the event.

At 10:30 p.m., the doors opened, and fans rushed to get as close to the court as possible.

What followed was a show of enthusiasm K-State basketball hadn't seen in ages.

There were fancy introductions of players, an extended laser-light show, an unveiling of the new uniforms and even video addresses to the crowd from Michael Jordan and Dick Vitale.

Four players – Lance Harris, David Hoskins, Akeem Wright and Blake Young – participated in a short slam-dunk competition. Hoskins won, but he said his wasn't a great performance.

"I didn't think I was going to win," Hoskins said. "That was by default. We had some guys with some better dunks, but hey, I made mine."

Huggins had his first practice of the season before "Madness," a 2 1/2-hour practice with lots of conditioning, which caused most of the players to be sluggish during the dunk contest.

"We went pretty good; that's why the dunk contest was the way it was," Huggins said. "Usually I think they jump a little better than that."

During his speech to the crowd, Huggins offered several comments that excited fans.

"We've got to have this all the time," he said. "This has got to be the hardest place to play in the Big 12. We open the season Nov. 11 against William and Mary, and we're going to get two wins that night. We're going to beat William and Mary."

BROCK | Pre-existing conditions exclude clients

Continued from Page 1

rate, often used as an indicator of a country's ability to care for its residents, is worse than Cuba's.

"I wouldn't advocate for a second that you run down to Havana to have your appendix taken out," Brock said, "but their primary care is better."

The two main problems with private health insurance policies are the price and the inability to get insurance if a person has pre-existing conditions.

Five states now have laws that require companies to insure all people, but residents with pre-existing conditions have to pay higher premiums.

Lack of insurance isn't just a problem for the poor. Brock said 13 million uninsured Americans have incomes of $75,000 or more.

Brock told a story of a doctor in Texas who was unable to get insurance because of a pre-existing condition. He said the doctor will probably move to a state like Massachusetts so he can get coverage, because he can afford the high premiums but wouldn't be able to afford a long hospital stay.

"When you see uninsurability creeping into that kind of income range, you know we're in trouble," Brock said.

Brock said he doesn't expect the United States to develop a single-payer system like Canada's but rather a hybrid system that combines private companies and the government.

"No system will work if we exclude people with pre-existing conditions," he said.

For now, Brock said, the best choice is to look at all of the fine print and choose a policy that best fits one's needs.

"Brokers may push a policy that isn't necessarily good for you but is good for their commission," he said.

Some people in the audience said they were surprised by pieces of Brock's information; others said the information was expected.

"I'm interested in what he had to say," Manhattan resident Jimmie Sue Mason said. "I think most of it we're aware of, but I'm always surprised at the statistics."

John Woods, director of Facilities Services, said he attended Brock's talk because he plans to retire in a few years.

"I came because I wanted to find out more about insurance," he said. "I hadn't heard a lot of it, but it didn't surprise me."

A LOT CAN BE SAID ABOUT A LITTLE BIT OF SPACE.....

IT WORKS

To give it a try, call or stop by Collegian advertising 103 Kedzie 532-6560

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

FOUND: MEMORY Stick in a union computer. I turned it into the Student Services and Activities desk downstairs.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

FEMALE ROOMMATE for Christian household needed immediately for four-bedroom, two-bath house. Air Conditioner, Washer/ Dryer. No smoking or pets. $232.50/ one-fourth utilities. Additional room also available in December. Brandy 785-313-1205.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

200 Service Directory

235 Child Care

CHILD CARE needed in home, for toddlers ages two to four. Two days per week. 785-341-1550.

CHILDCARE NEEDED in my home. Close to campus, flexible part-time, mostly evening or late afternoon hours. 913-306-3378.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

BUFFALO WILD Wings is looking for a few good buffalo to join the herd. Now accepting applications for daytime cooks. 1231 Moro Street. 785-323-WING.

COACH: MIDDLE School Assistant Girl's Basketball Coach for Riley County Middle School. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org with mailing address or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

COMPUTER INFORMATION SPECIALIST at Kansas State University responsible for programming, desktop support, and network management for national association. BS/BA required. Salary $42,000 - 50,000. 785-532-5717, for more information: http://www.nacada.ksu.edu/joboppenings-cis.htm Equal Opportunity Employer

COMPUTING AND Network Services - Part-time - Student Computer Operator, Production Control Operator or Web Specialist. For further information, please refer to http://www.k-state.edu/cns/employment/. Paid for by Kansas State University.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HARRY'S SERVER and daytime dishwasher WANTED. Experienced server with friendly, upbeat, eager personality. Flexible availability required. Daytime Dishwasher needed, some night - weekend availability. Apply within 418 Poyntz Avenue.

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

INTERNET WORK! $9-$150/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ Summer. Studentserveysite.com/kscollegian

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NANNY POSITION available for widow with delightful 8-year-old daughter. Room, board plus salary for approximately 15- 20 hours a week including early mornings and some late afternoons, evenings (weekends negotiable). Must have experience and inclusive, joyful attitude about working with children. Anticipated starting date January 2, 2007, but flexible for the right person. If interested please call 785-539-9067 evenings before 9 p.m.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

Management Career Opportunity

Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.

Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.

Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. is accepting applications for a part-time position for a Macintosh technician. to start near the end of October 2006. Work about 10 scheduled hours per week with some additional emergency, maintenance and on-call hours as needed, some of which are at night and weekends. The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance. Troubleshoots and repairs equipment. Assists with maintaining all written and electronic records. Assists with ordering when needed and approved by tech manager or supervisor. Applicants should be familiar with Mac OS X. Unix experience is helpful. Any other knowledge with programming, web page design, Lan, networking would be beneficial. Some familiarity with design software such as Adobe Photoshop, Adobe InDesign and Imageready is helpful. Must be able to follow written and verbal instructions and work well under pressure of a daily deadline and other crisis situations. Dependable and on time for scheduled hours.
Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolled in fall semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered.
Application deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, 2006. Please include your fall 2006 class schedule. Pick up applications in 113 Kedzie. Return applications to 113, 115 or 103 Kedzie.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

SWINE HERDSMAN position 15 miles from Manhattan. Full or part-time. Duties include managing finishing units and some crop farming. Mechanical ability and farm experience desirable. Call 785-494-8330 for more information.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

NOW HIRING!
• Wait Staff
• Bartender
Los Potrillos
Stop by for an application today!
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

1995 DODGE 4x4. Good condition. $3500 or best offer. Call 785-556-0851.

CHRYSLER SEBRING Convertible, V6, black, 118,000, Automatic, Leather, power seat, security system, new timing belt and coolent kits, $4000. 785-317-5043.

Dillons FOOD STORES

Current applications are being accepted at Dillons Westloop 1000 Westloop, Manhattan for the following positions:

• Daytime Cashier
• Daytime Courtesy Clerk
• Clerks for Bakery and Deli

Must be 18 years of older, with daytime availability
Apply online at www.dillons.com or Store Kiosk at Dillon's Westloop

530 Motorcycles

2002, BUELL Blast, black, 1,000 miles, like new condition. $2350 or best offer. Call 785-458-9105.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

SPRING BREAK 2007 Celebration! 20th Anniversary with Sun Splash Tours. Free trip on every 12 before November 1. Free meals and parties, hottest deals ever. Group discounts on 6+. Hottest Spring Break destinations. 1-800-426-7710. www.sunsplashtour.com

Need Some Help?
Advertise it in the Collegian.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

get a job
look in the classifieds

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

				8	2		9
			4
	2	5			3	7	1
4		3		5
		7				9
				4		3		6
	7	8	6			1	2
					7
	9		8	3

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

Receive a FREE small drink and chips with a regular sized sub.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

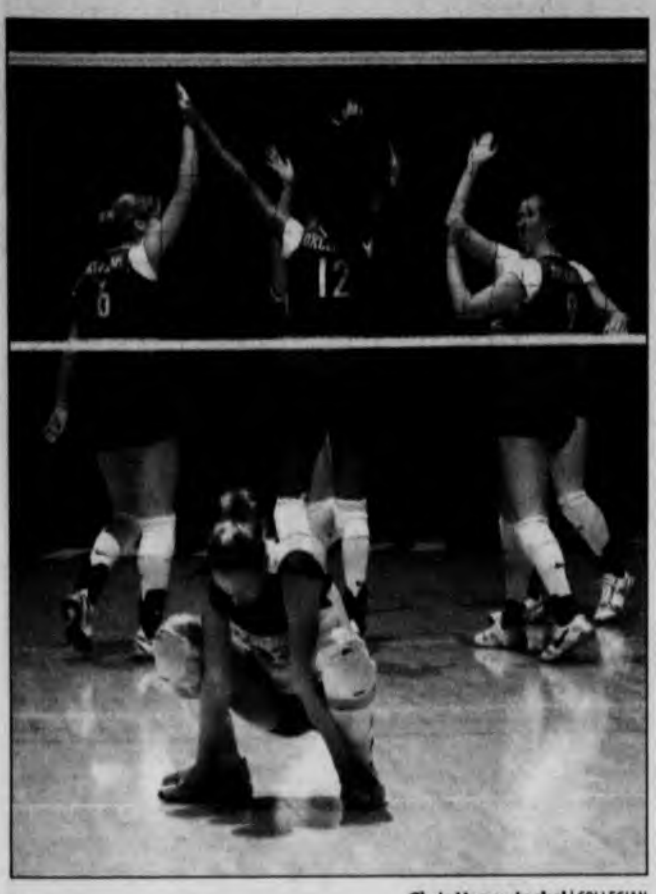
Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations



If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Sports Weekend in Review

Wildcats squander 2-1 lead to fall to Oklahoma

Chris Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Sophomore outside hitter Megan Kroeker responds after losing the fifth game against Oklahoma Saturday at Ahearn Field House. The Wildcats remain winless in the Big 12 Conference at 0-9.

Another match, another loss for the K-State women's volleyball team.

At least this one came down to the end.

No. 24 Oklahoma beat the Wildcats 3-2 (27-30, 30-21, 21-30, 30-27, 15-8) Saturday afternoon at Ahearn Field House, stretching the Wildcats' losing streak to 10 games and keeping them winless in Big 12 Conference play.

"We played hard," coach Suzie Fritz said. "I didn't think we executed well at the end of the match, but I thought we played hard."

If the Wildcats (8-11, 0-9 Big 12) had finished the match the way they started, the outcome might have been different.

In the first game, the Wildcats used an eight-point run to take an 18-9 lead and were able to hold off a late charge by the Sooners (16-3, 8-1 Big 12), taking the game 30-27.

But after that, K-State could not find consistency in its offensive attack.

With a 2-1 lead, the Wildcats went into the fourth game with an opportunity to win their first match since Sept. 9. Instead, they committed more errors in the last two games (14) than the first three (10).

None of K-State's outside hitters finished with a hitting percentage better than .133, and one player, sophomore Jenny Jantsch, finished the game with a negative hitting percentage (-.040).

"You can't have outside hitters hitting negative," Fritz said, "because in the end, it will come down to your ability to serve and pass, defend left side and attack left side."

In the final two games, Oklahoma executed better than the Wildcats in those areas.

Led by outside hitters Joanna Schmitt and Bridget Laplante, who combined for 42 kills, the Sooners took control of the match by stringing points together and creating long runs.

In the fifth game, Oklahoma took leads of 9-5 and 11-7 before winning 15-8. The Sooners out-hit the Wildcats .333 to .050 in the game.

Despite the discrepancy in the final stat line, junior libero Angie Lastra – who switched positions to outside hitter last match against Kansas – could not understand why her team was unable to pull out the win.

"I can not find any reason as to why we lost today, seriously," Lastra said. "I think we got a lot better today."

— Jeffrey Rake

MENDEZ, SWANEY PACE HARRIERS AT CHILI PEPPER INVITE

Liliani Mendez helped lead the women's cross country team to a 23rd-place finish Saturday at the Chili Pepper Invitational in Fayetteville, Ark.

Mendez finished 22nd in the 6K (about 3.7 miles) race with a time of 21:02. She was followed by Lindsay Pierson, who placed 95th with a time of 22:24.9. The race consisted of 347 women.

Colin Swaney led the men to a 24th-place finish in the 10K (about 6.2-mile) race. He finished 62nd individually with a time of 30.54.

He was followed by Kory Cool, who finished 107th with a time of 31:44.5. The race had 288 men.

The team will have a week off before competing at the Big 12 Championship meet, hosted by Kansas, on Oct. 27 at Rim Rock Farm in Lawrence.

— Staff Reports

EQUESTRIAN TEAM FALLS TO BAYLOR AT HOME EVENT

K-State led the Baylor equestrian team until the final category, reining, in which Baylor scored four points to K-State's one to beat the Wildcats 12-8 Friday at Fox Creek Stables.

Sophomore Whitney Snyder (equitation), freshman Kendall Marvin (JV equitation on the flat), senior Sara Weller (Western horsemanship) and sophomore Jana Lectenberg (JV Western horsemanship) were named most valuable players for the tournament.

— Wendy Haun

National Business Women's Week
October 15–21, 2006
Business & Professional Women
the voice of working women
Manhattan 539-4948 ♦ K-State Club 532-6525
- The power of connecting
- The power of voices united
- The power to change workplaces...and the world

www.bpwusa.org www.bpwkansas.org

The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy
Lecture Series in Civic Discourse

"Appreciative Inquiry as a Process for Visioning: UPAEP 2015"

Dr. Jose Alfredo Miranda Lopez

Rector, UPAEP
Independent Popular University in the State of Puebla - Mexico

Tuesday, Oct. 17, 2006
K-State Alumni Center Ballroom
3:00pm

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

ROCKSTAR & ROGERS
FUNKY CLOTHING POSTERS DOORBEADS NAMEBRAND & USED JEANS VINTAGE TAPESTRIES
The Best Selection of HALLOWEEN COSTUMES In Town!
715 N. 12TH ST. 587-1819

Everything a Wildcat should know is included in the Student Life Handbook section.

Kansas State University
Campus Phone Book
2006-2007

Available Now
in your Residence Hall
or purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

Congratulations
to our new initiates

Alie Archer
Brenda Bailey
Alyssa Bellfinder
Kristen Betts
Jessi Blasi
Lauren Bode
Tiffany Bowman
Ariana Briscoe
Amanda Collins
Emily Dietrich
Mary Dubbert
Paige Dunaway
Ashley Dreiling
Erin Duffy
Liz Fanning
Alex Fuller
Katie Gerken
Ally Heidebrecht
Emilie Hess
Andrea Hinkeberger
Emily Horrell
Autumn Hurt
Nash Hutchison
Megan Kissner
Sarah Kisi
Kelsh Leslie
Hannah Linder
Steph Loyd
Ashley Lottenegger
Devon Lyon
Haley Malone
Liz Marshall
Madeline McCann
Katherine Meeks
Stephany Moore
Kandra Mundy
Brianna Regan
Kristy Reust
Brianna Rowland
Jessica Smith
Tara Smith
Jessica Taylor
Kayla Vanhoozer
Molly Willis

Love in AOT, Your Kappa Delta Sisters

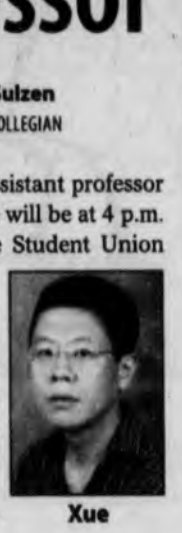
Congratulations
New Initiates

Chelsea Abney
Katelyn Affalter
Lauren Allen
Emily Atwood
Aubrey Bamford
Michelle Bergman
Elle Burke
Caitlin Burns
Erin Caley
Maggie Campbell
Kara Disberger
Erin Diskin
Gillian Dryton
Sarah Dula
Ashlee Erickson
Sarah Gamber
Cara Gigstad
Hannah Hanson
Jamie Jacobs
Kelsey Jones
Ashley Kennedy
Kate Kongs
Michelle Lafrinere
Danielle Ligon
MicKayla Mages
Johnna Mathena
Kelsie Mayer
Hannah McSpadden
Caitlin Murray
Liz Neill
Megan Reynolds
Katy Riley
Jessica Schultz
Abby Stephan
Lindsey Sullivan
Amy Sword
Heather Tosh
Ashley Vogel
Nicole Werner
Jackie White

Alpha Xi Delta

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Tuesday, October 17, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 42



INSIDE
Find out what you should, and shouldn't, wear this season
The Edge, Page 6

Memorial to honor professor

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A memorial for assistant professor of finance Frank Xue will be at 4 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union Little Theatre.

Xue

Xue died Sept. 14 after remaining in a coma on life support for more than two weeks. He was 35 years old.

His cause of death was not released to respect the privacy of his family, said Anand Desai, head of the Department of Finance.

Pastor David Jones of Crossroads of ECM will lead the ceremony this afternoon. The service is open to the public.

"We are doing this to celebrate Frank Xue's life," Desai said.

Xue is survived by his wife, Yongli Zhou, who is a resident librarian at Hale Library.

U.S. verifies North Korea tested nuke

By Katherine Shrader
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, D.C. – U.S. spy agencies confirmed North Korea's nuclear test on Monday, even as Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice declared that U.N. sanctions prove the world is united in opposing Pyongyang's nuclear ambitions.

Rice leaves today morning for an Asian trip that is expected to be dominated by the nuclear issue. She will visit Japan, South Korea, China and Russia.

Providing the government's first definitive confirmation that North Korea detonated a nuclear device one week ago, National Intelligence Director John Negroponte's office said in a statement that air samples collected Wednesday showed evidence of radioactivity, verifying North Korea's claims.

"The explosion yield was less than a kiloton," the statement said, smaller than many experts had expected.

Each kiloton is equal to the force produced by 1,000 tons of TNT. An intelligence official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the North Korean device was believed to be roughly the equivalent of 200 tons of TNT, suggesting to analysts that it probably was a partial failure. Experts in and out of government had anticipated a detonation of at least several thousand tons.

At the State Department, Rice said the world "has responded calmly and firmly" to the test.

"North Korea cannot endanger the world and then expect other nations to conduct business as usual in arms or missile parts," Rice said, previewing her message for the Asia trip.

GERMS!

Union custodians deep clean daily, but bacteria remains in any public place

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Put away your Germ-X.

While many might become germaphobes in public places, the situation might not be as bad as some think.

With help from the Division of Biology, Collegian staff members swabbed samples of places around the K-State Student Union like water fountains and food court tables for bacterial specimens.

Only colonies of normal bacteria from the swabs grew in the petrie dishes, and no colonies of more potentially harmful bacteria appeared. The bacteria that did appear potentially can be harmful to any student, but the same bacteria live everywhere people do.

Some areas, like pay phones, water fountains and toilet seats did show more bacteria growth. Helmut Hirt, assistant professor of biology, said more bacteria will grow in places people touch directly.

"Microbes are the most dominant life form on the planet and also the heaviest," Hirt said. "They have been around forever and are wherever we are."

More than 17,000 students and faculty members walk through and use the Union's facilities every day, so it can be a daunting task to clean it, said Jack Connaughton, associate director at the Union. The Union custodial services said it has a large staff and tries to clean the building as much as possible.

"The workers care about the condition of the Union, and we try to set that standard with everybody on the staff," Connaughton said.

Connaughton said the staff deep cleans the Union every night to ensure the sterility of the area. Deep cleaning involves cleaning the floors, carpets, desks and any other dirty area in the Union.

He also said areas students contact are

See GERMS Page 8

Illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN

Teach For America alumnus recruits fellow K-State students

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

His name is Steve.

The 18-year-old high school freshman transferred into Casey Parks' social studies class at a New Mexico school and immediately presented a challenge – behavior issues, anger management problems and more.

But it wasn't a challenge Parks couldn't handle with the teaching and classroom management skills he was taught before he began his two-year stint as a Teach For America Corps member.

Parks, a 2002 K-State graduate and recruitment director for Teach For America, explained the corps and his experiences to about 10 students in the K-State Student Union Monday.

"I got the opportunity to get a firsthand idea of the problem of low-income edcuation," he said. "There is an achievement gap, but it is solvable. It is our responsibility as a generation to take this on."

Teach For America is a program similar to the Peace Corps, but is solely domestic, Parks said. It places members in schools across the country to teach low-income children, grades kindergarten through 12th.

"We're focused solely on eliminating the achievement gap," Parks said.

The program started in 1990, and since then, 17,000 people have become a part of the corps. Corps members are fully paid – anywhere from $26,000 to $46,000 – and receive full health benefits. Their goal is to give low-income children the education they deserve, he said.

"It seems really interesting and something I want to do," Kelly Olson, senior in mass communications, said. "I want to do something that makes a difference, anything that'll give me a different perspective."

Parks began his presentation with a few statistics, saying 9-year-olds in

See TEACH Page 8

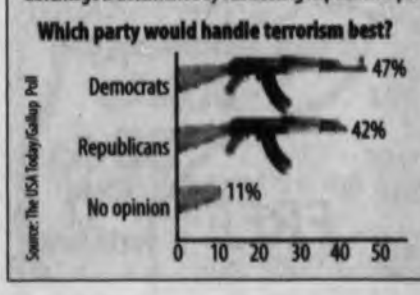
Casey Parks, recruitment director for Teach For America, speaks to attendees about Teach For America Monday evening in the Sunflower Room of the K-State Student Union. The program places members in schools to teach low-income children.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Today's forecast
Partly cloudy
High: 74 Low: 49

INSIDE

World Food Day
A developmental activist explains how a unified group of farmers could help solve world hunger during a teleconference from Washington, D.C.
See story, Page 3



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Political speaker
Donna Brazile, the campaign manager for Al Gore's 2000 presidential campaign, will speak at 7 tonight in Forum Hall. Brazile was the first black person to lead a key presidential campaign and is the managing director of Brazile and Associates.

Art exhibit
The Kemper Art Gallery will feature former White House photographer Darryl Heikes from Oct. 18 to Nov. 8. Heikes, a K-State graduate, also covered the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. His photos have been printed in the New York Times, the New York Daily News and the Washington Post.

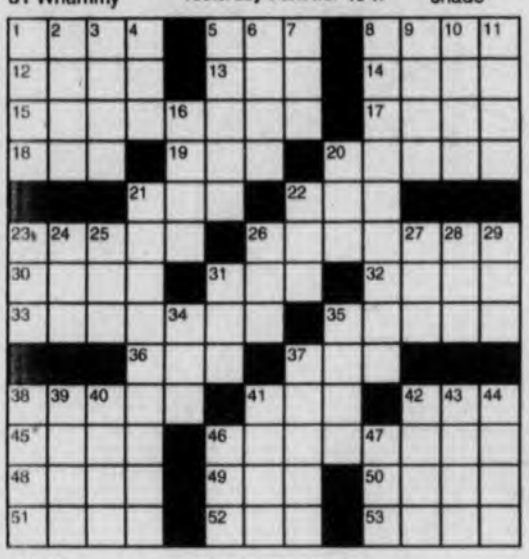
Technology training
There will be technology training on cascading style sheets exchange offered from 10 a.m. to noon today in Fairchild 202. The workshop is for students to share tips, expertise and techniques. Registration is required. For more information, visit http://main.itac.ksu.edu/training/enroll/cssExchange.htm.

Democratic tidal wave
The Democrats now find themselves with an advantage on all issues polled. The advantage is determined by subtracting Republicans' percentage from the Democrats'.

Other advantages for the Democrats
Health care: +39
Corruption: +23
Gas prices: +22
The economy: +16
Iraq: +16
Immigration: +16
Moral standards: +9

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Kermit is one
5 Fashionable
8 End a relationship unceremoniously
12 Ponce de —
13 Praise from a poetaster
14 Recognize
15 Noted brokerage house
17 Artist Bonheur
18 Pompous one
19 Slithery fish
20 Skeletal components
21 Batman portrayer Kilmer
22 AAA job
23 Go on all fours
26 Meet the requirements
30 Tulip-to-be
31 Whammy
32 Just standing around
33 Earned a blessing?
35 Proboscis
36 Many millennia
37 Animal with a 35-Across
38 Section of a long poem
41 Spindletop flow
42 Nevertheless, for short
45 Ellipse
46 Music lover's gear
48 Arrive
49 Chart format
50 Vail gear
51 Has bills to pay
52 Started
53 Long sandwich

DOWN
1 Dog bane?
2 Umpires
3 Reactions to fireworks
4 Wildebeest
5 "There's a Small —"
6 Object of worship
7 Corral
8 Harry Potter's creator
9 Aware of
10 Come in last
11 "Jabberwocky" opener
16 Blue hue
20 Constrictor type
21 Bugs
22 Monkey suit
23 Couric's new home
24 Skedaddle
25 Beer kin
26 Proof follow-up
27 Berlin's "What'll —?"
28 Not just a sniffle
29 Still
31 Chick's mom
34 Menagerie
35 Ledge
37 Played a fipple flute
38 Gabrielle Chanel
39 Acknowledge
40 Appoint
41 Garfield's pal
42 Youngster
43 Estate recipient
44 Roughly
46 Army rank (Abbr.)
47 Blond shade

Solution time: 21 mins.

T	S	P			O	F	F		W	I	L	D
O	P	E	C		D	O	E		E	L	A	N
Y	E	A	H		D	O	T		A	L	B	A
S	C	R	A	P		L	E	A	K
			I	A	M		S	L	E	E	V	E
J	O	H	N	S	O	N		A	S	P	E	N
I	D	O	L		P	O	T		T	E	R	N
L	O	B	E	S		W	A	L	L	E	Y	E
T	R	O	T	H	S		P	O	I
			T	E	N	T		G	N	A	S	H
E	L	S	E		E	A	R		K	N	E	E
B	O	A	R		A	P	U		S	T	E	M
B	U	G	S		K	E	G			I	D	S

Yesterday's answer 10-17

10-17 CRYPTOQUIP

PVNB TLZNTF HYKKOSLBD SYDNSVNT OFN UB OBZNTCUFF, L PYOWZ HUWW SVUS U HUTCYYW SOBBNW.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF YOU'RE BUYING CERTAIN EATING UTENSILS, I GUESS YOU'LL HAVE TO FORK OVER THE BUCKS.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: S equals T

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

Crazy Criminals

Illustration by Donald J Lee | COLLEGIAN

We've all done dumb things, but these criminals take stupidity to a new level.

Topeka: A man walked into a Kwik Shop and asked for all the money in the cash drawer. Apparently the take was too small, so he tied up the store clerk and worked the counter himself for three hours until police showed up and grabbed him.

Wichita: Police arrested a 22-year-old man at an airport hotel after he tried to pass two counterfeit $16 bills.

Chicago: A man was wanted for throwing bricks through jewelry store windows and making off with the loot. He was arrested after throwing a brick into a Plexiglas window. The brick had bounced back, hit him in the head and knocked him out cold until the police arrived.

Michigan: A pair of robbers entered a record shop nervously waving revolvers. The first one shouted, "Nobody move!" When his partner moved, the startled first bandit shot him.

Buenos Aires: An unidentified man pushed his wife out of an eighth-floor window, but his plan to kill her failed when she became entangled in some power cables below. Seeing she was still alive, the man jumped, trying to land on top of her. He missed.

Long Beach, Calif.: When his .38 caliber revolver failed to fire at his intended victim during a hold-up, robber James Eliot peered down the barrel and tried it again. This time, it worked.

South Carolina: A man walked into a local police station, dropped a bag of cocaine on the counter, informed the desk sergeant that it was substandard cut and asked that the person who sold it to him be arrested immediately.

Source: www.crazycriminals.com

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Career and Academic Success Carnival is 4:30-6:30 p.m. today in Derby ARC. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ There will be a Business Council meeting at 8 tonight in Calvin 116.

■ Students for Environmental Action will meet at 8 tonight in Union 209.

■ Chimes Junior Honorary is accepting applications for the K-State Family of the Year. Applications are available online at www.k-state.edu/familyday. Applications are due Wednesday. For more information, contact Amanda Brookover at amandajb@ksu.edu.

■ The Academic Majors Fair will be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday in the K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom.

■ Walk-in Wednesdays will be noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ Business Study Abroad Advocates will meet 4:30-5:30 p.m. Wednesday in Calvin 211.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ Sign up this week for intramural cross country, inner tube water polo and bowling. The cost is $1.08 per person plus a bowling fee of $4 per person. Entries will be accepted in the office at the Peters Recreation Complex until 5 p.m. Thursday. For more information, call (785) 532-6980.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Carlos Tanus at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Call Hall 226.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

TUESDAY WEDNESDAY
Tacos Steak Night
Margaritas Bottles
Taco Platter Big Bobs
BOBBY Ts
3240 Kimball Ave
537-8383
www.bobbyts.com Karaoke @ 9pm

PLANET SUB
SOUPS ARE BACK!
537-8SUB
WE DELIVER

We Deliver Late 770-3333
GUMBY'S Pizza
Don't Forget Tonight's
Live Karaoke
$1.75 Bud & Bud Light
Free Giveaways T-Shirts
$2.75 Widmer Wheat
Buy one get one FREE Pokey Stix all day today
$4.00 Long Islands
$50 Gift Card to winner

Today
is the last day to register teams for St. Jude Children's Hospital!
Register online at
UP 'TIL DAWN
ST. JUDE CHILDREN'S RESEARCH HOSPITAL

John Michael Talbot
With Special Guests
TERRY TALBOT and TOM BOOTH
In Concert!
October 23, 2006 • 7:00 PM
St. Thomas More Catholic Church
2900 Kimball Ave., Manhattan, Kansas
Admission $25 Tickets available online at www.itickets.com or call 785-776-5151
Proceeds go to Flint Hills Community Clinic and Shepherd's Crossing
Sponsored by St. Thomas More Catholic Church and KHCA Angel 95 fm

LONGHORNS SALOON
$2.00 DRINKS
$2.50 DOMESTIC PITCHERS & DOMESTIC BOTTLES
•FRIDAY OCT • 20TH • FULL THROTTLE•
WITH SPECIAL GUEST RYAN BALES BAND
TICKETS $5 • ON SALE NOW

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
K-State
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 18 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

002-007 -- Black

Hunger Day teleconference encourages global unity

By Adam Monroe
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A strong, unified group of farmers could help solve world hunger, a developmental activist said Monday.

Makanjuola Olaseinde Arigbede was one of three in a panel of experts who addressed questions, solutions and current events involving world hunger in a live teleconference from Washington, D.C.

Arigbede, a doctor from Nigeria, was joined by Deepa Narayan, senior adviser in poverty reduction and economic management at the World Bank in India; and Eva Clayton, who recently retired as the associate director of the International Alliance Against Hunger for the food and agriculture department of the United Nations.

The 23rd-annual World Food Day teleconference was titled "Power of the people: bottom-up solutions for world hunger." The Department of Human Nutrition and graduate students in public health worked together to allow K-State students and faculty the opportunity to view the teleconference, which was shown at participating universities throughout the country.

"It's important for us at universities to be aware of need, not only internationally, but in our own backyard as well," said Briana Goff, interim assistant dean of the Department of Family Studies and Human Services.

The conference was broken into three parts. The first, hour-long segment was a question-and-answer session that allowed for collaborative answers.

The second included a short documentary about positive work being done around Auburn University.

The third part allowed people from all over the United States to call in and pose questions to the panel.

The experts addressed the relationship between farmers and their governments.

"There are ways to influence the governments, but there needs to be a strong unified group of farmers," Arigbede said. "Governments need to be encouraged by their people. The people need to tell the governments where to begin, because a lot of the time they don't even know where to start."

Attendees watch the 23rd-annual World Food Day teleconference, "Power of the people: bottom-up solutions for world hunger" Monday afternoon in the K-State Student Union.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Narayan said there need to be alliances for the small farmers so governments feel pressured.

The discussion also covered topics of individual responsibility and intercontinental unity.

"We can make a new world, but we have to make it together. We are not making it just for America or for Africa, but for one human race," Arigbede said.

Narayan said the first step for the individual is to ask questions and consciously understand the implications of one's actions.

Privilege Committee discusses athletic ticketing process

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Privilege Committee met Monday night with members of the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics to discuss changes that need to be made in the athletics fee contract.

Members of the committee met with Tim Weiser, athletics director; Casey Scott, associate director of athletics for operations; and Bob Cavello, associate director of athletics for business operations, to discuss the athletic ticketing process.

The discussion primarily was about re-wording the contract so any changes in game admittance and the way tickets are sold and purchased must be worked out beforehand.

"Verbage in the agreement has been carried over for years," Scott said. "We're trying to bring it to current standards."

Also discussed were tickets sold by students for profit.

"Tim, Bob and Casey had concerns that tickets were being distributed to students from other universities or to general admission individuals, and they looked for ways to curb that for the future," Matt Wagner, committee chairman, said.

The committee and the directors discussed possible remedies for problems with the ticket process, including different technologies that might be available in the future.

One idea is to use student ID cards instead of paper tickets.

Members were concerned that with the use of student IDs instead of paper tickets, students wouldn't be able to sell their tickets to family and other non-students wanting to attend the game. Members also said they want the athletics department to inform in advance students of large changes in ticketing procedures.

Weiser said the athletics department wants to keep student attendance high at athletic events.

"We desperately need our students at the games, because the other fans feed off the students," Weiser said.

The committee will meet Oct. 23 to finalize contract changes.

dependable quality service
✓electronic file submission
Claflin Books and Copies

½ Price Drinks
$2.25 Big Beers
$3.50 Jager Bombs
Fat's BAR & GRILL Aggieville

ON-CAMPUS INTERVIEWS
APPLICATION DEADLINES
Login to your Wildcat Works! eRecruiting account to apply.
10/18: Monsanto Company, Union Pacific, ICM Inc
10/22: American Cast Iron Pipe Company
10/23: Jim Norton Toyota, Union Pacific
10/26: Walgreens
10/30: Monsanto Company
10/31: Cintas Corporation, Schlumberger Technology Corporation
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall • 785-532-6506 • ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career
www.k-state.edu/ces

Bullwhackers ALLEY
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2.00 All Drinks, Premiums, Calls, Draws, Shots, Bottles
$3.50 Belfast & Energy Bombs
FREE POOL
Now Hiring all Positions

HUNAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
10% Off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ
with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy
Lecture Series in Civic Discourse
"Appreciative Inquiry as a Process for Visioning: UPAEP 2015"
Dr. Jose Alfredo Miranda Lopez
Rector, UPAEP
Independent Popular University in the State of Puebla - Mexico
Tuesday, Oct. 17, 2006
K-State Alumni Center Ballroom
3:00pm

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7151
20¢ Pizza Rolls & Chicken Nuggets
½ Price Martinis
$1.50 Any Pints & Wells
$2.00 Domestic Bottles
Kitchen Open at 4pm
Now Taking Applications

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Tuesday Specials
$2.50 Energy Bombs
$3.00 Energy Drinks
$5.50 Taco Burger
$2.00 Wells
$2.00 Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
Nip/Tuck Tuesday
Come enjoy the show... at 9pm On Big Screen
Mon-Tues 4pm -2am • Wed-Sun 11:30am -2am

GALLERY
Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Spa Pedicure
$10 discount (mention this ad)
785-776-5632
3266 Kimball Ave. Candlewood

Glass Impressions
Lots of New Arrivals
(and more on the way!)
Hand Blown Glass
• Oversized Platters with Iron Stands
• Romanian Rhombus Ornaments (Gorgeous Colors)
• Martini Shaker and 2 Glass Sets
• More Unusual Vases
Tues-Fri 11-6 • Sat 10-5
Glass Impressions • 329 Poyntz Ave

KSU jazz presents
The Jazz Ensembles
Directed by Dr. Wayne Goins & Graduate Assistant Phil Ward
• Concert Jazz Ensemble
• Lab A
• Lab B
Also featuring Ms. Rebecca Smith, vocals
Wednesday, October 18 7:30 P.M.
McCain Auditorium
Department of MUSIC
This concert is free to the public!

Hungry and Low on Cash?
Grap a coupon from the menu section.
Kansas State University
Campus Phone Book
2006-2007
Available Now
in your Residence Hall or purchase in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

Eminent expansion

City government ruins Manhattan layout by ignoring option of mixed-use, space-saving zoning

JONAS HOGG

Does anyone notice what a tattered ruin our city has become? When I first arrived in 2001, Manhattan was an attractive, well-contained city – tucked safely away from interstate sprawl and content in its relative isolation.

Driving from Fort Riley, the first thing one saw of Manhattan was KS Hill in the distance, which lent an air of quiet solitude to the city. Coming from Wamego, Kan., the first site was a shopping center that was, at least, vibrant and active.

Fast-forward five years. What have we now?

Driving from Fort Riley, you see god-awful road construction projected to finish in the year 30,382 and the flood lights of a car dealership. Approach from Wamego and you are greeted by a derelict, abandoned strip mall – city progress, oh yes.

Such is the result of our hog-headed government, holding the wrecking ball against the throat of the city at the slightest thought that the trough of tax revenues might overflow with slop. If citizens will not submit peaceably, then use eminent domain and throw them out.

During the Defenestration of Prague, protesting Czechs tossed the city council out of the highest windows of town hall, which, you know, sounds like a plan to me.

Certainly, growth is good for a city – terrific in fact. But this project is less development and more the whooping and hollering of cash-stuffed bureaucrats at the all-you-can-pilfer buffet.

The Target complex is hideous, an asphalt nightmare where moving from Pier 1 Imports to Panera Bread, an epic journey of 200 meters, can only be safely accomplished by driving.

Rather than build up, we allowed Wal-Mart to build out, so east Manhattan is now a labyrinth of parking lots next to parking lots next to parking lots, and what better way to fix a city-created traffic nightmare than to vomit up a Best Buy right across the road?

The only saving grace of this pillage is the now-undeniable proof that A: there is a god, and B: he absolutely adores ACE Hardware, because as far as anyone can tell, getting to the store is only possible by divine intervention, yet, still, it subsists.

Meanwhile, Kmart is the shallow anchor that holds the few remaining businesses along U.S. Highway 24 in place – again our fault – because we've allowed it to be completely over-grown. As a bonus, the hulking, abandoned husk of Hastings has effectively repulsed all would-be businesses from moving into the wasteland.

Of course, to keep the inordinately stretched city functioning requires roads, roads and more roads. The expansion of the behemoth known as Anderson Avenue, into five, six, 20, now 1,000,000 lanes when it served a more than adequate purpose before is only the latest manifestation of the problem.

Magically, our oaf-ish city hall ignores the solution to this problem. It is oblivious to the proven fact that mixed-use, space-saving zoning is not only practical and sustainable, but vastly preferred by the majority of people.

Though populated by the inbred, Massachusetts Street in Lawrence is a popular and attractive destination. Despite the Buffalo rabble, Pearl Street, in Boulder, Colo., is a terrific place to spend a day.

Instead, our city council gives us ocean-sized sprawl compounds. Hey, honey, grab the kids and a picnic – we're going to the parking lot.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

Jonas Hogg is a senior in sociology, international studies and Russian. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Newspapers that lean to either side receive audience outcries

JOSH ROUSE

So I've heard a lot of grumbling about how liberal the Collegian is. Apparently, people think the writers on the Collegian are "pushing a liberal agenda." To all of you who believe this, you should start your own publication, because this is news to me.

For all the groans I've heard about how supposedly liberal our paper is, I guarantee a completely conservative paper would get the same response. If we wrote columns every week about Jesus, or vilifying the cut-and-runners, there would be an outcry.

Now before any quick judgments are made about my political affiliations, let me say that I am a conservative Democrat. That's right. I read the Bible, but I also tolerate gay people. Unbelievable, isn't it?

Speaking of the Bible, someone from my church once asked me why I was a Democrat. After I gave him my reasons, he said "Well, somebody from your party had sex with interns," to which I replied, "Well, somebody in your party had sex with pages."

Then he called me liberal. I told him I was a conservative Democrat, and he told me I couldn't do that.

Well, I just did. It's not like the Green Party is going to arrest me and throw me in politics prison ... if there is such a place.

Just because the Collegian covers a story that happens to be liberal-leaning, it doesn't mean we are a liberal paper. Sure, we might have some opinion writers who write their liberal opinions, but our news is neutral. We cover the news, whether it be conservative, liberal or Australian.

The opinion page is just that, a page of columnists' opinions. The Collegian doesn't endorse any of these views. The only opinion the Collegian has is mentioned every day in "To the Point."

For example, acknowledging a day set aside for homosexuals to be open about who they are doesn't make someone a liberal, it makes him or her aware of what is going on at K-State.

So please don't whine about a lack of conservatism just because a few liberals talk about how horrible President Bush is at his job. If you want to hear a conservative perspective on it, I'd be glad to tell you how bad he is.

Josh Rouse is a freshman in pre-journalism and mass communication. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASSISTANT AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Be sanitary, but germs can do good

"You don't know where that's been."

We've heard the phrase since we were toddlers sticking random things in our mouths. Although we might have passed this phase, the advice still rings true – we don't always know how much bacteria is lurking on that toilet seat, countertop, pay phone or doorknob.

Our parents and other role models have given us the idea that germs are everywhere, and if we don't protect ourselves, we are going to get sick.

While that is true to an extent, it might not be as bad as we think. Some germs are found everywhere people are. They can be likened to mini-stalkers that follow our every move. It is these germs to which we grow accustomed so we can develop immunities and reduce our risk of getting sick.

Think of Bubble Boy. Once he left his bubble where he was safe from all germs, he got sick because he never had the chance to develop these important immunities.

While we don't need to wash our hands until they are raw to protect us from germs, we still need to be cautious and remember that germs are out there.

It is important to wash your hands after using the bathroom and before handling food. We also should be cautious with the cleanliness of our kitchen countertops to prevent the possibility of diseases like E. coli and salmonella.

So remember to wash your hands, but don't go crazy. Germs are a natural part of life.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Why did you leave your keys upon the table?

The K-State dorms: safe havens for jean shorts since 1863.

I may or may not be the first to say this, but I don't think Ron Price knows what the hell he's doing.

So my girlfriend just saw the "Do not steal movies" thing at the movie preview, and she told me, "Hey, remind me to download a movie when we get home." That's ridiculous.

Manhattan needs a Spangles.

Derby Dining Center, make more riblet sandwiches. Thanks.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Underdogs

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Sigma Chi fraternity is this year's all-university flag football champion.

9-member fraternity team wins all-university flag football championship

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

This year's winners of the all-university flag football championship had a lot to play for.

Sigma Chi fraternity edged the Shingles in the championship last Thursday, winning by six points. The team's one freshman, one sophomore, six juniors and one fifth-year student all had the same fundamental reason for playing: returning to football.

"All of us played football in high school," Jake Bervert, junior in business finance, said. "This was just another way to get out there and play some more."

Only two of the players didn't play last year. Steven Matthews, freshman in kinesiology, and Chris Lehecka, sophomore in open option, were new to the team this year.

But facing teams of 16 players this year was rough for the nine-player team.

"Some people doubted us," said Chris Heil, fifth-year student in criminology. "If you talk to people in other houses, they were surprised we won it. Once we played them, they said they underestimated us."

Last year, the team went undefeated in the regular season, but it saw an early exit from the playoffs in round two after a first-round bye.

"It's not that we were bad last year," Garrett Heim, junior in construction science, said. "We just played a lot of good teams."

Heim had an another reason for playing well in the championship: his older brother played on last year's championship team, which met Sigma Chi in this year's championship game.

"I was pretty relaxed, but I was looking forward to playing him," Heim said.

"All year, he would talk about how good they were. It was fun to get to the championship and win in a close game. I got the edge for the rest of the year because he's graduating. He got it for last year."

The players said the fraternity championship atmosphere was more intense and nerve-wracking than that of the all-university championship.

"Everybody was really fired up there," Bervert said.

Although they played together last year, most of the team members are even more excited for next year.

"We're going to be good next year," Min Ransom, junior in business marketing, said. "We're in house with each other, but it's more fun out there."

Coming out of the gate this season, the team lost its first game. However, later that same night, it played and won.

"We never got down; we always pulled through it," Heim said.

The best part of the victory was sharing the glory, the players said.

"It felt like we didn't just win, our whole house won," Bervert said. "We didn't just have a good time, our whole house was able to celebrate with us."

K-State fans take comfort in Jawhawks' misery

NICK DUNN

If there's one thing that can cheer up a K-State fan after a loss – especially an ugly loss to rival Nebraska – it's the fact that our eastern rivals in Lawrence are struggling even more.

Remember a little over a month ago when Jayhawk fans were dreaming of a Big 12 North title in football? Kansas was riding high after a 2-0 start to the season and drooling over its "easy" Big 12 Conference schedule that conveniently was missing Texas, Oklahoma and Texas Tech.

Some fans predicted a nine or 10-win season, a possible trip to the Big 12 Championship and a nice bowl game. The defense – which single-handedly led Kansas to a bowl victory in 2005 – had lost eight starters, but no matter. Coach Mark Mangino was a defensive "genius" who could form a dominant defense instantly.

I'd like to reserve the "genius" title for the likes of Bill Walsh or maybe Isaac Newton, but if leading a team to a seven-win season and a victory in the Fort Worth Bowl meets the requirements, then so be it.

So what happened to the Jayhawks? They've now lost four of their last five games and are 0-3 in conference play. The "easy" Big 12 schedule delivered home losses to Texas A&M and Oklahoma State.

What went wrong? They ran into a slight problem: they aren't any good. A problem like that can severely damage a team's chances at a division title.

If you go by statistics, it turns out Mangino might not be a defense guru. The Jayhawks rank last in the Big 12 in passing defense and total defense, allowing 393 yards per game.

Kansas' 42-32 home loss to OSU Saturday wasn't televised, but apparently the Jayhawk defense forgot it's supposed to cover the best receiver on the other team. OSU's Adarius Bowman racked up 300 yards receiving and four touchdowns.

The team could be struggling from off-the-field distraction after the NCAA cited the program for a "lack of institutional control." That distraction is over, as the NCAA went soft by only slapping Kansas on the wrist.

Even though this K-State team doesn't begin to compare to the glory days of 1990s, it might still be better than Kansas. We'll see on Nov. 18.

So now when will those same Jayhawk fans start talking about their national championship in basketball?

Nick Dunn is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Men's basketball receives highest preseason ranking ever

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Ever since K-State men's basketball coach Bob Huggins arrived in Manhattan, he has made believers out of fans.

Now, it appears he has made believers out of Big 12 Conference coaches.

The Wildcats received their highest-ever ranking, fifth, in the Big 12 Preseason Coaches Poll on Monday with 76 points.

For the seventh time, Kansas was selected as the preseason favorite to win the conference title, receiving 121 points and all 11 possible first-place votes.

But for the Wildcats, a team that has never finished higher than sixth in the nine-year history of the poll, a fifth-place projection speaks volumes for the effect Huggins' arrival has had on the program.

Bob Huggins, head men's basketball coach, speaks during a press conference Friday evening at Bramlage Coliseum following Madness in Manhattan.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Last season, with eight players who return this year, the Wildcats were selected to finish 11th.

The preseason ranking should create more momentum for a fan base that already has purchased more than 12,500 season tickets for home basketball games this season.

"People have been phenomenal. I think if we don't have the whole place sold out, we're very close to having it completely sold out," Huggins said. "Certainly the fans and the people of Kansas State following are doing their part. Now we have to do our part."

The Wildcats will return four starters from a year ago, including senior Cartier Martin, who led the team in scoring with 18 points per game.

Huggins said he has high expectations for Martin, believing he will play a huge role in the team's success.

"Cartier has to assume some leadership, and every real good team I've had, my best player has worked – he's been the hardest-working guy," Huggins said.

Between the Jayhawks and Wildcats in the poll were Texas A&M (109 points), Oklahoma State (97) and Texas (95).

Behind the Wildcats were Texas Tech (68), Baylor (60), Missouri (44), Oklahoma (42) and Nebraska (37). The final two teams – Iowa State and Colorado – rounded out the poll, finishing with 23 points and 20 points, respectively.

—K-State sports information contributed to this story

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | Homecoming game set for 2:35 p.m. start on Oct. 28

K-State officials announced Monday that the Wildcats' Homecoming game against Iowa State will start at 2:35 p.m. Oct. 28 at Snyder Family Stadium.

The game will not be televised, marking the fifth-straight week the Wildcats have not been selected by the Big 12 Conference's television partners for either over-the-air or cable television coverage.

K-State's last non-pay-per-view television appearance was on Sept. 23, when the Wildcats were host to then-No. 8 Louisville.

The game will air live on radio over the 31-station K-State Sports Network with Wyatt Thompson calling the action and former K-State quarterback Stan Weber providing the analysis.

K-State will be out to snap a two-game slide against Iowa State when the Wildcats and Cyclones meet in Manhattan. Iowa State snapped K-State's 10-game stranglehold on the series in 2004 at Snyder Family Stadium then knocked off the Wildcats last season in Ames, Iowa.

CBK | Basketball ticket pickup begins 9 a.m. Oct. 25

K-State students who have purchased men's basketball season tickets can pick up their tickets beginning at 9 a.m. Oct. 25 at the Athletics Ticket Office in Bramlage Coliseum.

All ticket types will be available for pickup, including ICAT, general admission and reserved. Students must present a valid K-State student ID to receive their tickets.

The Wildcats of first-year coach Bob Huggins begin play Nov. 4 with an exhibition against Washburn. The regular-season opener is Nov. 11 against William & Mary.

Most student seating in Bramlage is available on a first-come, first-serve basis, depending on ticket type. Those who purchased ICAT tickets may sit in Sections 19 and 20, while Sections 21 through 25 will be for students with general admission tickets. Reserved seating for students will be located in Section 18, rows 11 and above.

Among the changes in Bramlage this year is the new bench location for the K-State team. The team benches have been moved to the west side of the court across from the student seating sections. The Wildcats' bench will be at the north end of the arena, in front of Sections 7 and 8.

In addition, the location of the pep band has been moved to the south end of the court to be near the student seating sections.

BBC | K-State baseball opens conference schedule March 23

K-State head baseball coach Brad Hill announced the team's 2007 schedule Monday, which includes 27 home games and 26 games against teams that advanced to 2006 NCAA Regional play. The Wildcats open the 2007 slate Feb. 16 in Shreveport, La., where they will play two games each with Penn State and host Centenary.

Hill

The Wildcats, after opening at Centenary, head to Tampa, Fla., on Feb. 23 for four total games, one each against Seton Hall and James Madison and a doubleheader against Big 10 power Ohio State. K-State then concludes its season-opening road trip March 2-4 with a trip to Beaumont, Texas, where the Cats will face St. John's, Cal-Santa Barbara and host Lamar at the Lamar Tournament.

K-State opens the 2007 home slate March 5 and 6 with a mid-week series against Brigham Young before playing North Dakota State for a weekend home series March 9-11. The Wildcats then travel to perennial power Arizona State for two games in Tempe, Ariz., March 13-14, before playing Central Michigan at home on the weekend.

The Big 12 schedule begins March 23-25 on the road at national power Texas before playing host to in-state rival Wichita State March 27 at Tointon Family Stadium. The game against the Shockers begins a nine-game home stand, the longest of the season for K-State, which includes Big 12 series with Texas Tech and Missouri and non-conference games against Kansas and Creighton. The Wildcats and Jayhawks have agreed to play a non-conference game in 2007 with K-State playing host to the match-up since two of the three games in the Big 12 series on May 4-6 will be played in Lawrence.

Dress follows body type

Design Alliance members model proper styles

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Purple, orange and green balloons everywhere, polka-dotted material hanging on the walls, and girl group music from the 1960s set the mood for the Apparel Marketing and Design Alliance's "What not wear party" Monday night.

"Our organization is to connect students with professionals who work in the fashion industry and to connect students outside of the classroom," Lacey Frenzl, vice president of AMDA, said.

This event was designed to give members insight on what clothes complement certain body types like inverted triangle (a woman's top is bigger than her bottom), pear-shaped (the bottom is the widest section of the body), and boy-shaped (the body is thin without much curve).

"Some of the girls want to be stylists, and events like this will help them when they get a job in the fashion industry," Audra Gardener, president of AMDA, said.

Allie Teagarden, freshman in apparel marketing and design, said she is considering being a fashion stylist, and the event gave her the opportunity to learn hands-on which clothes look good on different people, which will be important in her profession.

"This being my freshman year, I am getting involved by meeting industry professionals and meeting other students in my major," Teagarden said. "AMDA takes my education a step further outside of the classroom."

Every one of the 20 AMDA members in attendance wore an ensemble that demonstrated "what not to wear."

The "don'ts" of Gardener's ensemble, which included such faux pas as blue eyeshadow, were: don't wear large pants on a pear-shaped body, don't wear athletic socks with sandals, wear matching colors, and don't overaccessorize, which Gardener said is a mistake most people make.

The event included a mini-makeover, when three members modeled the three different body types.

At first, the models were dressed in examples of "what not to wear." They explained their body type to other members and why they were dressed incorrectly.

The models returned dressed appropriately for their body types and explained why they changed certain parts of their ensembles.

One member explained how the tank top she had worn at first accentuated her broad shoulders, whereas the shirtdress she changed into served to minimize them. She accessorized the shirtdress with a red belt cinched at the waist, which she said accentuated the waistline.

Informational posters were presented with pictures of celebrities that specifically outlined what to wear and what not to wear for each body type.

Members later were asked to evaluate the body type and outfit choice of a partner.

"We are trying to make our meetings and events more fun and interactive," Gardener said. "We have had way more people attending now that we have changed things a bit."

"We use to have no more than seven people show up to a meeting. Now we always have at least 20," she said.

AMDA has 70 members on its roster, Gardener said.

"We all have classes together, but being in AMDA, I really get to know them on a personal level, so when I'm walking the around in Justin Hall, the environment is a little more friendly," Frenzl said.

Photos by Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

Above: Amanda Kerwin, junior in apparel design, explains why the outfit she is wearing should not be worn with her body type during the Apparel Marketing and Design Alliance meeting Monday evening at Justin Hall.
Bottom: Lacey Frenzl, vice president of Apparel Marketing and Design Alliance, talks to Becky Greene, junior in elementary education, about the best type of clothing to wear for her body type at the meeting Monday evening in Justin Hall.

NEW RELEASES

Music

Diddy, "Press Play"

Aerosmith, "Devil's Got A New Disguise, The Very Best Of Aerosmith"
Diana Ross, "I Love You"
Dierks Bentley, "Long Trip Alone"
Goldfrapp, "We Are Glitter"
JoJo, "The High Road"
Ruben Studdard, "The Return"
Sarah McLachlan, "Wintersong"
Shiny Toy Guns, "We Are Pilots"
Vince Gill, "These Days"

DVDs

"American Dreamz"

For the first time in four years, President Staton (Dennis Quaid) picks up a newspaper and soon becomes a virtual hermit as he begins questioning his narrow worldview. Unnerved by the president's behavior — and eager to get him back in the limelight — his chief of staff (Willem Dafoe) books him as a guest judge on the hit talent show "American Dreamz."

"The Break-Up"

"The Break-Up" is an anti-romantic comedy that follows a couple's often comical, sometimes painful, but always entertaining journey into the unraveling and deconstruction of a once solid and loving relationship. Vince Vaughn and Jennifer Aniston star in "The Break-Up," which starts where most romantic comedies end: after boy and girl have met, fallen in love, moved in to start their happily-ever-after ... and right when they wind up driving each other crazy.

"Her Best Move"

High school is crazy enough, but for 15-year-old Sara Davis, it's about to get even crazier. A national caliber soccer prospect, Sara plays on the best U-19 team in California. But this success has come with a price — she has sacrificed her interest in dance, photography and of course, boys.

"The Omen"

"The Omen" is a contemporary thriller based on the 1976 classic film, in which a young boy is destined to become the Antichrist — until shattering events reveal the terrifying truth.

TV series on DVDs

Big Love: Season One (5-disc set)
Charmed: Season Six (6-disc set)
CSI NY: Season Two
La Femme Nikita: Season Five (3-disc set)
Murder She Wrote: Season Four (5-disc set)
Nick Jr. Favorites Box Set
That '70s Show: Season Five (4-disc set)
Source: www.aol.com

BUTTERED | Attack of Ninja Nut-Cracker!

By Jess Boatwright

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

THREE-BEDROOM TWO bath duplex with garage. 821 Mission. Available now. Lease ends May 31, 2007. $900/ month. No pets, no smoking. 785-776-9260.

See a photo opportunity?
Call 785-532-6556
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

FOUND: MEMORY Stick in a union computer. I turned it into the Student Services and Activities desk downstairs.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE for Christian household needed immediately for four-bedroom, two-bath house. Air Conditioner, Washer/ Dryer. No smoking or pets. $232.50/ one-fourth utilities. Additional room also available in December. Brandy 785-313-1205.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

200 Service Directory

235 Child Care

CHILDCARE NEEDED in my home. Close to campus, flexible part-time, mostly evening or late afternoon hours. 913-306-3378.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

310 Help Wanted

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

BUFFALO WILD Wings is looking for a few good buffalo to join the herd. Now accepting applications for daytime cooks. 1231 Moro Street. 785-323-WING.

COACH: MIDDLE School Assistant Girl's Basketball Coach for Riley County Middle School. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org with mailing address or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

COMPUTER INFORMATION SPECIALIST at Kansas State University responsible for programming, desktop support, and network management for national association. BS/BA required. Salary $42,000 - 50,000. 785-532-5717, for more information: http://www.-nacada.ksu.edu/jobopenings-cis.htm Equal Opportunity Employer

COMPUTING AND Network Services - Part-time - Student Computer Operator, Production Control Operator or Web Specialist. For further information, please refer to http://www.-k-state.edu/cns/employment/. Paid for by Kansas State University.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

310 Help Wanted

HARRY'S SERVER and daytime dishwasher WANTED. Experienced server with friendly, upbeat, eager personality. Flexible availability required. Daytime Dishwasher needed, some night - weekend availability. Apply within 418 Poyntz Avenue.

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

INTERNET WORK! $9-$150/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ Summer. Studentservesite.com/kscollegian

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.-com.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required, $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. is accepting applications for a part-time position for a Macintosh technician. to start near the end of October 2006. Work about 10 scheduled hours per week with some additional emergency, maintenance and on-call hours as needed, some of which are at night and weekends. The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance. Troubleshoots and repairs equipment. Assists with maintaining all written and electronic records. Assists with ordering when needed and approved by tech manager or supervisor. Applicants should be familiar with Mac OS X. Unix experience is helpful. Any other knowledge with programming, web page design, Lan, networking would be beneficial. Some familiarity with design software such as Adobe Photoshop, Adobe InDesign and Imageready is helpful. Must be able to follow written and verbal instructions and work well under pressure of a daily deadline and other crisis situations. Dependable and on time for scheduled hours. Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolled in fall semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered. Application deadline is 5 p.-m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, 2006. Please include your fall 2006 class schedule. Pick up applications in 113 Kedzie. Return applications to 113, 115 or 103 Kedzie.

SWINE HERDSMAN position 15 miles from Manhattan. Full or part-time. Duties include managing finishing units and some crop farming. Mechanical ability and farm experience desirable. Call 785-494-8330 for more information.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

310 Help Wanted

NOW HIRING!
• Wait Staff
• Bartender
Stop by for an application today!
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

1995 DODGE 4x4. Good condition. $3500 or best offer. Call 785-556-0851.

CHRYSLER SEBRING Convertible, V6, black, 118,000, Automatic, Leather, power seat, security system, new timing belt and coolent kits, $4000. 785-317-5043.

530 Motorcycles

2002, BUELL Blast, black, 1,000 miles, like new condition. $2350 or best offer. Call 785-458-9105.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

Need Some Help?
Advertise it in the Collegian.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

Got a News Tip or Story Idea?
Call 532-6556
or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

785 532 6555

Management Career Opportunity

Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.

Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.

Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

Dillons FOOD STORES

Current applications are being accepted at Dillons Westloop 1000 Westloop, Manhattan for the follqwing positions:

• Daytime Cashier
• Daytime Courtesy Clerk
• Clerks for Bakery and Deli

Must be 18 years of older, with daytime availability
Apply online at www.dillons.com or Store Kiosk at Dillon's Westloop

ASinc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for:
Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

Call 785-532-6555 to advertise here

Reach more readers

www.kstatecollegian.com

Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for an additional dollar.

Place your classified ad online. Get more bang for your buck.

Now Hiring
Concession workers for men's and women's basketball games
Athletic Operations - Concessions
Phone: 785-532-7604
$6.50 Starting wage, fun atmoshpere, promotions from within, must speak English & be able to count back change

QUIZNOS SUB
HHHH...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

	3							9
				8	7	2	3
6		9		4		7
	1			5		4
		5	1		9	6
		8		7			9
		4		2		3		8
	6	3	8	1
8							1

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

GERMS | Powell: Proper hand-washing could reduce reported bacterial disease cases by 25-30 percent disinfected at least three times a day, especially the bathrooms.

Continued from Page 1

Recently, the Union installed all-in-one hand washer and dryers to make the restrooms cleaner. What the staff did not realize was that hand dryers are not as effective as paper towels.

Doug Powell, associate professor in diagnostic medicine and pathobiology, was instrumental in installing the paper towel dispensers after his research devalued the effectiveness of automatic hand dryers. He said 76 million bacterial disease cases are reported every year, and proper handwashing would reduce this number by 25 to 30 percent.

"Overall, K-State does a good job, but there is always room for improvement," Powell said. "If we can get people to think more about the microorganisms that are harmful, we could get more accomplished."

Powell, creator of the Food Safety Network, a food research lab, said he uses informational sheets and other methods to get input from the public.

He said he and his team will continue research at K-State, and they have considered several more additions in the Union and other areas.

TEACH | Program seeks to decrease achievement gap between students in low-, high-income locations

Continued from Page 1

low-income areas are three grades behind 9-year-olds in high-income education systems, and the former are seven times less likely to go to college than the latter.

Parks began teaching social studies in 2003 at a low-income high school in New Mexico, close to a Navajo reservation.

"I had 17-, 18-, 19-year-olds reading at a fifth-grade level," he said. "It was shocking, but I was really shocked to see they were so interested in history. They had so much enthusiasm."

The application process starts online at www.teachforamerica.org. Applicants submit a résumé, cover letter and 500-word personal essay. From there, they might be invited to participate in a phone interview and then a personal interview. Teach For America offers positions to about 17 percent of the applicants.

"Our application process is not competitive," Parks said, "but we are selective, because what we are asking you to do is take students and move them forward. It's very, very challenging."

Teach For America seeks applicants with a pattern of exceptional achievement, perserverence in the face of challenges, strong critical thinking skills, the ability to influence and motivate others, and good organization skills, Parks said. Leadership roles and high grade point averages also can weigh in applicants' favor.

Selected applicants attend five weeks of training at The Summer Institute. They live in residence halls, teach summer school, meet in small groups and receive feedback on their lessons.

"By the time I left my five-week training, I felt like I was ready to teach," Parks said.

After training, members move to their assigned region and teach while taking graduate-level classes to earn a teaching degree.

"To be honest with you, it was the hardest thing I've ever done, but there is tremendous amount of support from Teach For America," Parks said.

Teach For America corp members strive for significant gains with their students, he said. Teachers are expected to raise their students' subject mastery by a grade and a half each year.

After a corps member's two-year stint is over, opportunities are available through graduate schools, employers and the Teach For America alumni network. Some graduate schools and a few corporations allow a two-year diversion for prospective employees to work for Teach For America.

Lindsay Hicks, senior in psychology, is completing her application.

"I care about the kids," she said. "It's not equal in the U.S., and the graduate school I want to apply for has a diversion program, so I can do this and then go there."

Parks' time as a Teach For America corps member was a turning point in his life, he said.

"It's a powerful experience," Parks said. "I left college and was able to immediately impact someone's life."

One of those people was Steve, who, after earning his first high school credit in Parks' class, defied the odds and went on to earn his high school diploma.

ROYAL PURPLE
yearbook
We've got the stories • you've got to read.

Collegian Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

The Salty Rim
1204 Moro 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$2.50 Domestic Pitchers
$4.00 Blue Moon Pitchers
1/2 Price Margaritas
$2 Import Bottles
1/2 Price Salsas
Patio Is Open
Now Taking Applications

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

OPEN HOUSE
FRI. OCTOBER 20TH
9:00 - 3:00
STUDENT-GUIDED PROGRAM TOURS
BEGIN EVERY 15 MINUTES.
www.matc.net
The TECHNICAL COLLEGE
MANHATTAN AREA TECHNICAL COLLEGE

SALON ESSENTIALS
Salon • Spa • Tanning Resort
½ PRICE FACIALS
• Includes Glycolic Peels
• Microderm Abrasion
• All Spa Facials
Exp. 10.31.06
121 S. SETH CHILDS 539-5752

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims!
Donate plasma and earn
CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

coupon coupon
$5 off Houseplant!
Any houseplant $15.00 to $39.99 regular price.
Expires 10-25-06
Limit 1 coupon per houseplant.
Eastside & Westside Markets
East Hwy. 24 by the Mall or West K-18 across from Briggs in Manhattan, Kansas.

coupon coupon
$2 off Houseplant!
Any houseplant $5.99 to $14.99 regular price.
Expires 10-25-06
Limit 1 coupon per houseplant.
Eastside & Westside Markets
East Hwy. 24 by the Mall or West K-18 across from Briggs in Manhattan, Kansas.
Great Selection of Pumpkins!!!
Eastside&Westside Markets
E. Hwy. 24 or W. Ft Riley Blvd, Manhattan

Don't be fooled by the title, this hilarious Broadway musical is fun entertainment for the whole family!
URINETOWN
the musical
Lyrics by Greg Kotis and Mark Hollmann
Book by Greg Kotis
Music by Mark Hollmann
Oct. 11 - 14 and Oct. 18 - 21 at 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 & Oct. 22 matinees at 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre on the KSU campus
Presented by KSU Theatre & Dance and the Dept. of Music
Sponsored by Ramada Plaza Hotel
TKTS: McCain Box Office open 11am to 5pm & K-State Union
Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 wkdays 532-6428
Tickets: $10 student/child $13 military $15 public

For all the excitement and info surrounding homecoming.
one-stop spot!
To Advertise Call 785-532-6560
Check it out OCTOBER 23RD in the Collegian.
GUIDE

Campus Chic
Dillard's
Town Center
For Your Convenience We Accept Your Dillard's, Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, Carte Blanche, Or Diner's Club Card.
SHOP MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 10 A.M. - 9 P.M. SHOP SUNDAY 12 NOON - 6 P.M.

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Wednesday, October 18, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 43

INSIDE

Former SNL actor Tracy Morgan stars in '30 Rock' on NBC.

Page 10

Jetting off

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

After checking the outside of the plane, Patrick Rinearson, instructor at K-State-Salina, prepares the jet for flight.

University plane funded by donations, used for higher education

Checking the weather before flight, Rinearson and Nichols wait for passengers after their flight from Salina. Rinearson, the co-pilot, communicated on the radios and checked navigation systems, performance charts, check lists and the flying actions of the pilot.

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Three to five times a week, the K-State jet takes off, escorting faculty members quickly to and from their business destinations.

Charles Reagan, associate to the president at K-State, said it costs $24,800 a month, or almost $300,000 a year, for the university to lease the Cessna Citation Jet. However, he said does not put a dent in the K-State budget, as donors pick up the entire tab.

Reagan said he organizes the fund-raising effort and has a list of donors who specified they would like their money used toward the rental of the jet.

The university has leased the jet since 1999 and plans to upgrade in about two to three years, Reagan said.

"The jet we are looking at is also a Citation Jet but the model 3," he said. "It is longer and carries more passengers."

The model the university leases is the first in the Cessna Citation Jet line and is no longer manufactured by Cessna. However, today's market value for a new model of that jet would cost about $4.4 million according to a spokeswoman from the company.

Any unit of the university can use the jet, which is housed at K-State-Salina, if they pay the fee of $2.65 a mile. Reagan said the fee covers the cost of fuel and maintenance for the aircraft as the jet.

The jet can fly about 400 mph and

See JET Page 8

Fun facts

- The K-State Jet has a large Powercat logo on the side so it is easy to tell it is from the university.
- In the back of the plane's cabin is a seat that is also a hidden toilet, although pilot Scott Nichols said it hasn't been used to his knowledge. The toilet area is blocked off by a curtain that can be put up for privacy.
- In-flight refreshments are served. The plane features a coffee container with mini styrofoam cups that feature the Powercat logo. Sodas and snacks also are available.
- The call sign for the jet is K-State 81.

Smoking ordinance dropped

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sometimes, a compromise isn't the best solution.

Commissioners realized this at their meeting Tuesday when, during the second reading of a proposed smoking ordinance, they dropped the partial ban for no legislation at all.

While they were expected to work out the details of enforcing a partial ban they voted for at their Oct. 3 meeting, city officials warned commissioners it would be too complicated to enforce.

Commissioners considered three proposed ordinances: the first was a ban for all businesses at all times; the

See BAN Page 8

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Eric Higgins, associate professor of finance, wipes away a tear during Frank Xue's service held in the K-State Student Union Little Theater.

Colleagues remember Xue

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Amid peaceful piano music and conversations of friends, students and families at the K-State Student Union Little Theater, stood the picture of Frank Xue.

Other than the picture, a person might not have recognized the service as a memorial upon entering the theater. Conversations were upbeat and the audience smiled as they shared memories of professor Xue. The people were gathered there to celebrate the life of a man that had died before his time.

See XUE Page 8

ROTC students gain practical experience in annual stakes lab

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

People dressed in camouflage laid in the grass, watching every move of three men in the bed of a white truck through black binoculars.

After doing a little dance, one man in the truck decided he should be in charge and killed the other two.

OK, they're not really dead. It was part of a training scenario for the Army ROTC's stakes lab Monday afternoon northeast of Bill Snyder Family Stadium.

About 85 cadets attended the lab, and fourth-year cadets led newer cadets through five 45-minute stations. The stations included grenade throwing, vehicle search, rappelling, weapons assembly and salute.

"This is the last lab for the fall before going into a field environment," said Angela Rokey, fourth-year cadet and senior in mass communications.

Across the street, barrels were set up as barriers behind which the cadets could hide. They were at different levels, so cadets had to lie down and kneel to throw the grenades.

"It's a way to practice grenade throwing at combat speed," Rokey said.

New to the program this year was a vehicle-checkpoint scenario taught by Sgt. First Class Jason Dungan and Sgt. Todd Leverett from Fort Riley.

"We teach them everything. They have to do it in a systematic way," Dungan said. "They search every vehicle in the same exact way."

As a first year cadet, Lee Smith, freshman in English, said he liked being able to apply the skills he has learned in the classroom.

"It's great," he said. "It's nice to get out and get some exercise and to get a taste of what it's all about."

Clinton Medovich, sophomore in political science, and another ROTC student participate in the grenade drill involving the throwing of grenades in three different ways.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Today's forecast
Morning clouds
High: 48 Low: 34

INSIDE

Nutritional value

While powders and supplements claim to give you the edge, just as much protein can be taken in with a well-balanced diet, eliminating future risks some supplements can cause.

Sports Page 6

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

ACADEMIC FAIR

The academic majors fair is 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. today in the Union Grand Ballroom. It is a one-day event for anyone interested in learning more about K-State's academic majors, minors and secondary majors. For more information, visit www.ksu.edu/acic/majorsfair.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Mary Kate Ludwig, senior in history and pre-law, and Laura Jones, graduate in business administration, have won Rotary Ambassadorial scholarships. The two scholarships are awarded each year by the Northeast Kansas Rotary District 5710.

"URINETOWN"

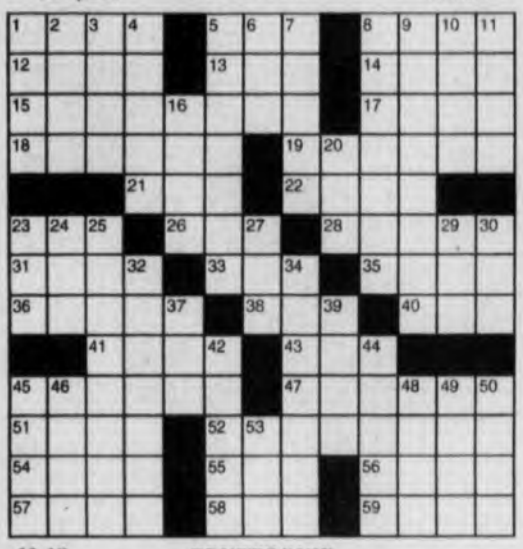
"Urinetown" will be onstage at 8 tonight in Nichols Hall. It will also be performed at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. "Urinetown" is a comedy about greed, corruption, love and revolution during a time when water is worth its weight in gold. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/sctd/theatre/season/index.html.

Rating current economic conditions

Although 58 percent of Americans still rate the economy as "only fair" or "poor," their appraisal was more favorable than the 61 percent that gave it the same rating last month.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 KFC additive
5 That girl
8 Ostriches' kin
12 Epps of "House"
13 "La Cage — Folles"
14 Org. HQ'd in Brussels
15 Orange juice benefit
17 Family
18 Football team
19 Geological times
21 Mel of Cooperstown
22 Prom transport
23 Type units
26 Moment
28 Eyelashes
31 Rise
33 Work on the soundtrack
35 Surrounded by
36 "Peer Gynt" composer
38 Moray, e.g.
40 Omicrons' precederes
41 Snare
43 Greek cross
45 Dense
47 Slender twigs
51 Castle
52 Kellogg's offering
54 Highland hillside
55 Ball holder
56 Capital of Peru
57 Collections
58 Part of UCSD
59 Formerly, formerly

DOWN
1 Threw
2 Old-time actor Jannings
3 Assess
4 Cry from the audience
5 Canonized
6 Attila, e.g.
7 Surpass others
8 Expressions of praise
9 1992 Denzel Washington movie
10 Hexagonal state
11 Heirs, often
16 Shea squad
20 Snapshot
23 Future bird
24 Neither partner
25 Be just right
27 Prompt
29 XV divided by V
30 Billboards
32 Wigs
34 Separating
37 Hydrogen, for one
39 Secular
42 Annoyances
44 Practical
45 Planets, in poetry
46 Arouse ennui
48 Stuff for 32-Down
49 "Desire Under the —"
50 Card game for three
53 Royal insomnia cause

Solution time: 21 mins.

F	R	O	G		H	I	P		J	I	L	T
L	E	O	N		O	D	E		K	N	O	W
E	F	H	U	T	T	O	N		R	O	S	A
A	S	S		E	E	L		B	O	N	E	S
			V	A	L		T	O	W
C	R	A	W	L		Q	U	A	L	I	F	Y
B	U	L	B		H	E	X		I	D	L	E
S	N	E	E	Z	E	D		S	N	O	U	T
			E	O	N		P	I	G
C	A	N	T	O		O	I	L		T	H	O
O	V	A	L		C	D	P	L	A	Y	E	R
C	O	M	E		P	I	E		S	K	I	S
O	W	E	S		L	E	D		H	E	R	O

Yesterday's answer 10-18

10-18 CRYPTOQUIP

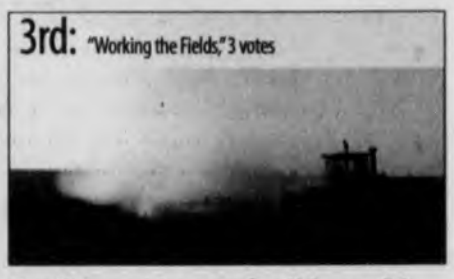
IEXYD ISWDSXD IZSBD WO DNSXO QXKVIKYQ. E'W ADKBBO ZAOEXF ZS FDZ WO NBKYQ NKYQVKYQ NKYQ.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHEN RIDERS COMMUTING TOGETHER USE AN UNDERPASS, I WOULD CALL THAT A CARPOOL TUNNEL.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: Y equals C

ON THE WEB

The version of the Collegian that doesn't leave ink on your fingers



Collegian picks for Photo of the Week*

1st: "Blood, Sweat and Blood," 8 votes

2nd: "Flying Off into the Sunset," 6 votes

3rd: "Working the Fields," 3 votes

Don't forget to vote for this week's photos at www.kstatecollegian.com

*Due to technical errors, the photos of the week were not available online. As a result, this week's photos were chosen by the Collegian staff. Please check online this week to vote for new photos of the week.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Chimes Junior Honorary is accepting applications for the K-State Family of the Year. Applications are available online at www.k-state.edu/familyday. Applications are due today. For more information, contact Amanda Brookover at amandajb@ksu.edu.
- The Academic Majors Fair will be 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom.
- Walk-in Wednesdays will be noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.
- Business Study Abroad Advocates will meet 4:30-5:30 p.m. today in Calvin 211.
- Walk-in Flu Vaccine Clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.
- Sign up this week for cross country, inner tube water polo and bowling. The cost is $1.08 per person plus a bowling fee of $4 per person. Entries will be accepted in the office at the Peters Recreation Complex until 5 p.m. Thursday. For more information, call 532-6980.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Carlos Tanus at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Call Hall 226.
- Coffee Hour will be presented at the International Student Center 4-5 p.m. Friday. The title is "Switzerland: A Unique 'Island' in the Middle of Europe."
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Shellie Gutierrez at 10 a.m. Monday in Bluemont 16E.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

PLANET SUB
SOUPS ARE BACK!
537-8SUB
WE DELIVER

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS
Student Legal Services Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 4:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.
for more information visit the website at:
http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

SEARCHING for a major?
HUNTING for a secondary major or minor?
THINKING about changing majors?
For more information
Academic and Career Information Center
532-7494
Sponsors: Blockbuster•Cold Stone Creamery•College of Architecture, Planning and Design•College of Arts and Sciences•College of Business Administration• College of Education•College of Human Ecology•Danenberg Jewelers•Dillons•Dry Clean City• Famous Dave's•Gaia Salon •Geometrics•Hornel•J's Salon•Kistner's Flowers•KSU Athletics•McDonald's•Pfeifley Fine Jewelers•Pro Copy• Shear Dynamics•So Long Saloon•Texas Star• Wildflower Yarns & Knitwear•Willie's Sports Bar & Grill•Zuckey Bowl
K-State
TODAY
Academic Majors Fair
OCTOBER 18 • 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Student Union Grand Ballroom

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
$2 DRINKS $2.25 BOTTLES
KARAOKE NIGHT
FRIDAY • OCT. 20 • FULL THROTTLE
WITH SPECIAL GUEST BRIAN BALES BAND
TICKETS $5 • ON SALE NOW

HOMECOMING GUIDE 2006
know what's going on; be a part of it... Pick up your Homecoming Guide Oct. 23rd inside the Kansas State Collegian.
TO ADVERTISE CALL 532-6560

News Briefs
Around the World

SATELLITE IMAGERY SHOWS NORTH KOREA

SEOUL, South Korea – Satellite images indicate North Korea appears to be preparing for a second nuclear test, officials said Tuesday, as the defiant communist regime held huge rallies and proclaimed that U.N. sanctions amount to a declaration of war.

The U.N. has condemned the Oct. 9 atomic blast, and U.S. nuclear envoy Christopher Hill told reporters in Seoul on Tuesday that another nuclear explosion would be "a very belligerent answer" to the world.

As the White House acknowledged that the isolated nation might try a second test, Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice launched a diplomatic drive to persuade Asian allies and Russia to intensify North Korea's isolation by enforcing sanctions that the U.N. Security Council unanimously approved on Saturday.

DEFYING GLOBAL BAN, ICELAND TO RESUME

REYKJAVIK, Iceland – Iceland said Tuesday it would resume commercial whaling after a nearly two-decade moratorium, defying a worldwide ban on hunting the mammals for their meat.

Fisheries Minister Einar Kristinn Gudfinnsson told Iceland's parliament that his ministry would begin issuing licenses to hunt fin and minke whales. He said the ministry would permit the hunting of nine fin whales and 30 minke whales in the year ending Aug. 31, 2007.

The government said licenses could be issued as soon as Wednesday and that ships could resume commercial whaling as early as this week.

At this year's meeting of the International Whaling Commission in June, Iceland and a group of pro-whaling nations including Japan and Norway narrowly passed a symbolic resolution to support ending a nearly 20-year-old ban on commercial hunts.

Officially ending the moratorium would require a 75 percent majority among members of the commission.

1 KILLED, 100 INJURED IN ROME SUBWAY CRASH

ROME – A subway train plowed into another that was stopped in a central Rome station during rush hour Tuesday morning, killing one person and injuring more than 100 as passengers screamed and ran for the exits.

Witnesses said the driver of the moving train appeared to have run a red light. Investigators were trying to determine the cause of the crash.

Thick, black smoke filled the Piazza Vittorio Emanuele II subway station, and panicked passengers ran after the crash, witnesses said.

Stunned and bloodied passengers were led from the station, according to TV video.

"People in my carriage were sprawled all over the floor crying and screaming," said Kahn Jaris Hassan, a 29-year-old native of India, who was in the moving train.

The prefect's office said that 110 people had been taken to hospitals, and that five were in serious condition.

Source: The Associated Press

Vanity to bring more clothing trends to Manhattan mall

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Adding more variety to juniors' apparel at Manhattan Town Center, the clothing store Vanity could open as earely as the third week of November.

"Our approximate construction date is October 29," said Jen Shroyer, area district manager of Vanity.

A representative from Manhattan Town Center said the agreement had not yet been finalized.

Vanity is known for being trendy and fast-paced, Shroyer said.

"One thing that we will bring to Manhattan is versatility through the diverse clothing selection we offer," Shroyer said.

The store offers both casual and professional clothing.

"In our store we have dressy attire for the night life and business looks and casual attire like hoodies and yoga pants to wear to class," said Shay Hastings, manager of the Manhattan store.

Shroyer said Vanity targets 14- to 22-year-old women.

One of Vanity's most popular assets is its signature line of denim and range of sizes in junior clothing.

Rebecca Ebert, freshman in business administration, said she is excited to have a Vanity right here in Manhattan.

"I think we need more of a variety than what the Manhattan Town Center offers," she said. "I get a lot of my jeans there, because they offer the length that I need, a lot places go by the average height."

Vanity denim ranges from sizes 24-34 and inseams from 29-37, which is from size 0 to 14 in junior sizes, and also sizes XS to XXL in tops, Shroyer said.

"We have a variety in denim when it comes to fit, washes, tints and style," Shroyer said.

Vanity is one of the leading trend setters in the junior apparel industry, having been featured in Seventeen Magazine.

"We always keep it trendy, we don't sit on one trend for too long, we are always changing and trend setting," Shroyer said.

Not only is Vanity a trendsetter in the fashion world, but it also sets trends in the community, she said.

"We have always been a company involved in giving back to the community," Shroyer said.

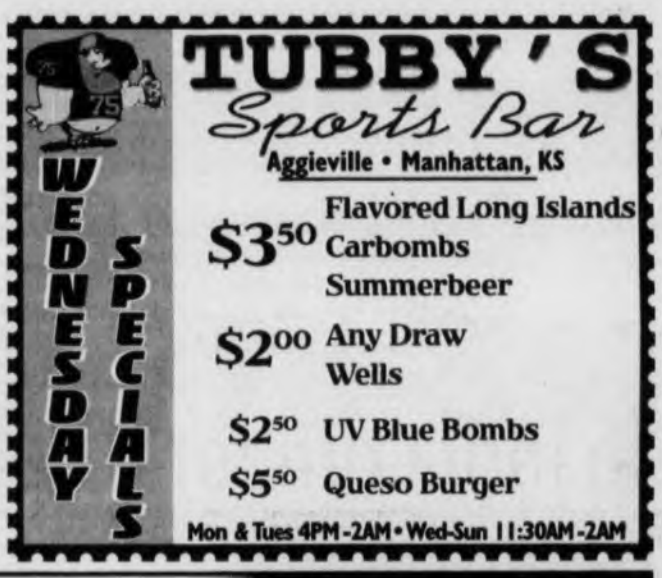
On the TV show "Home Makeover," Vanity filled a teenage girl's closet with $5,000 worth of clothes and accessories.

"We are very involved in giving back to the community, and I feel that really sets us apart," Shroyer said.

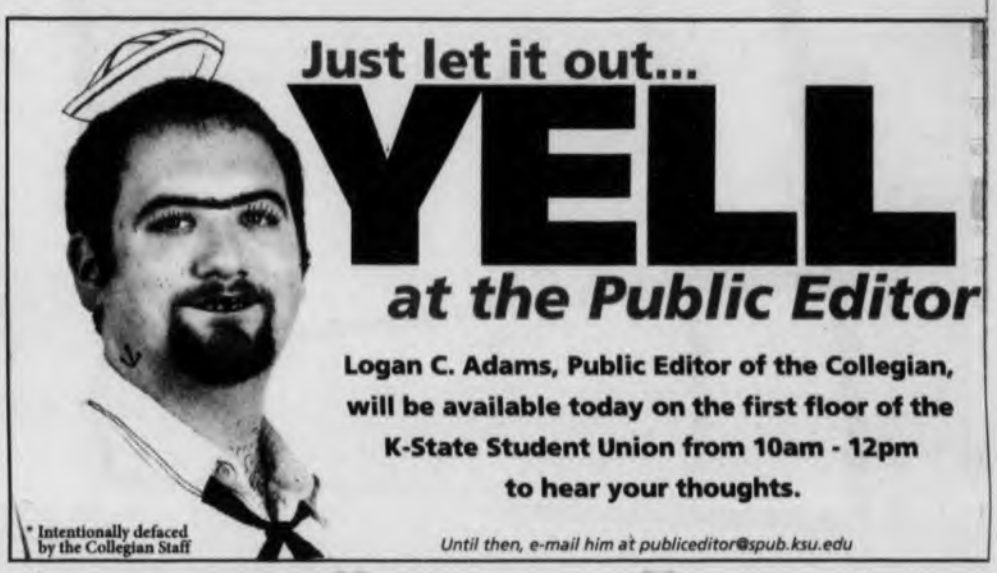
A final asset Vanity has to offer is exceptional one-on-one customer service, Shroyer said.

"We are not judgmental and are there to help the customer find clothes they look good in and feel comfortable in," Shroyer said.

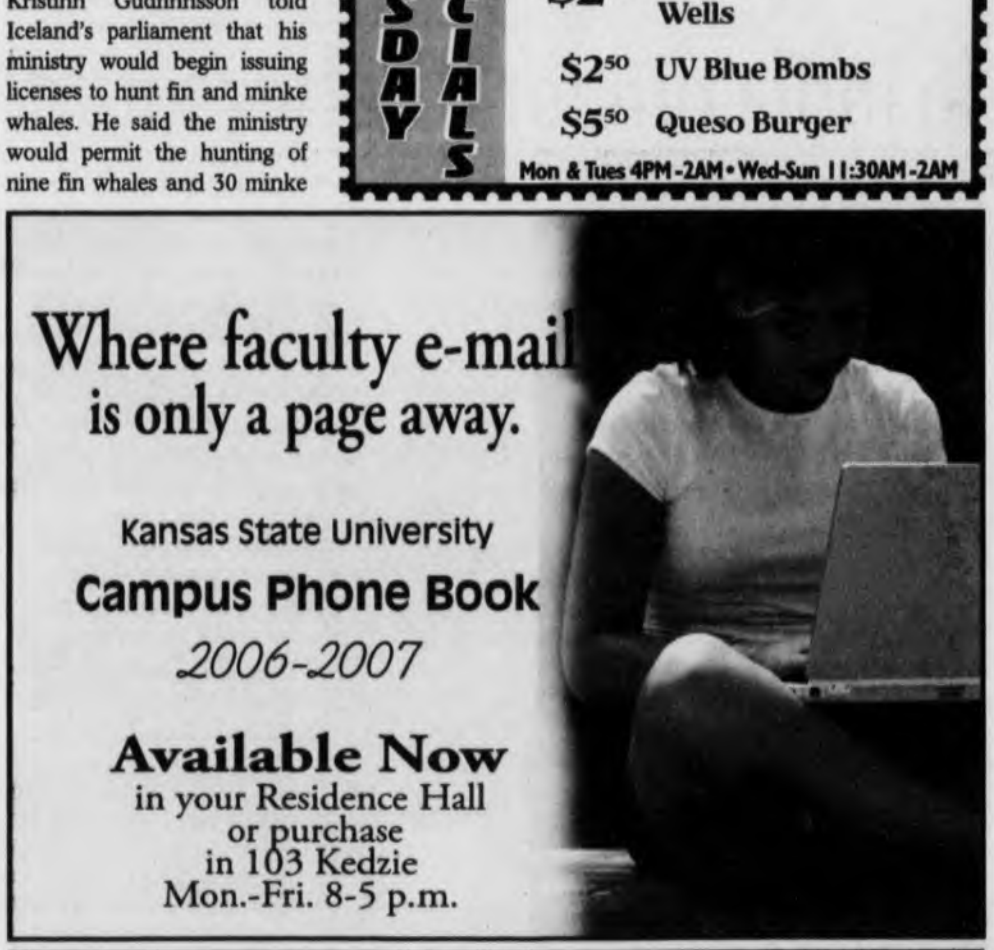
There was a Vanity in the Manhattan Town Center but due to changes in ownership closed in 1997, Shroyer said.



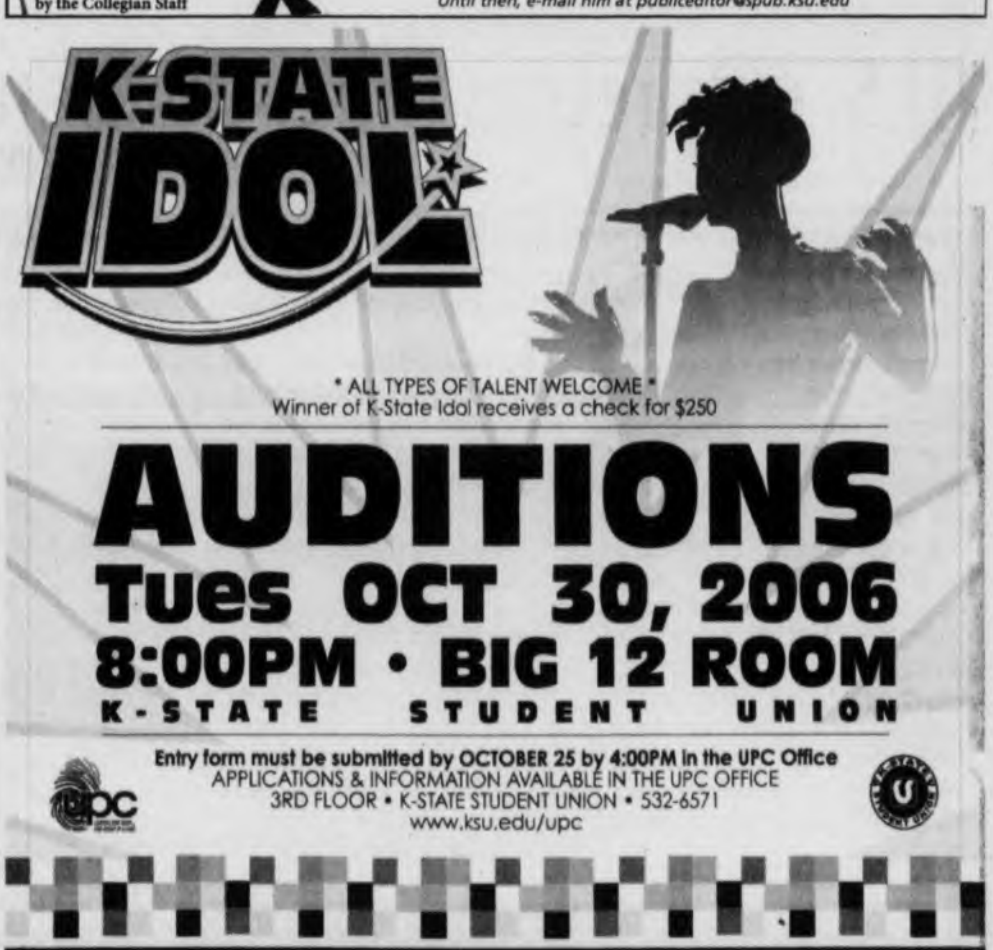
She said there has been a tremendous response from customers requesting a Vanity in Manhattan.



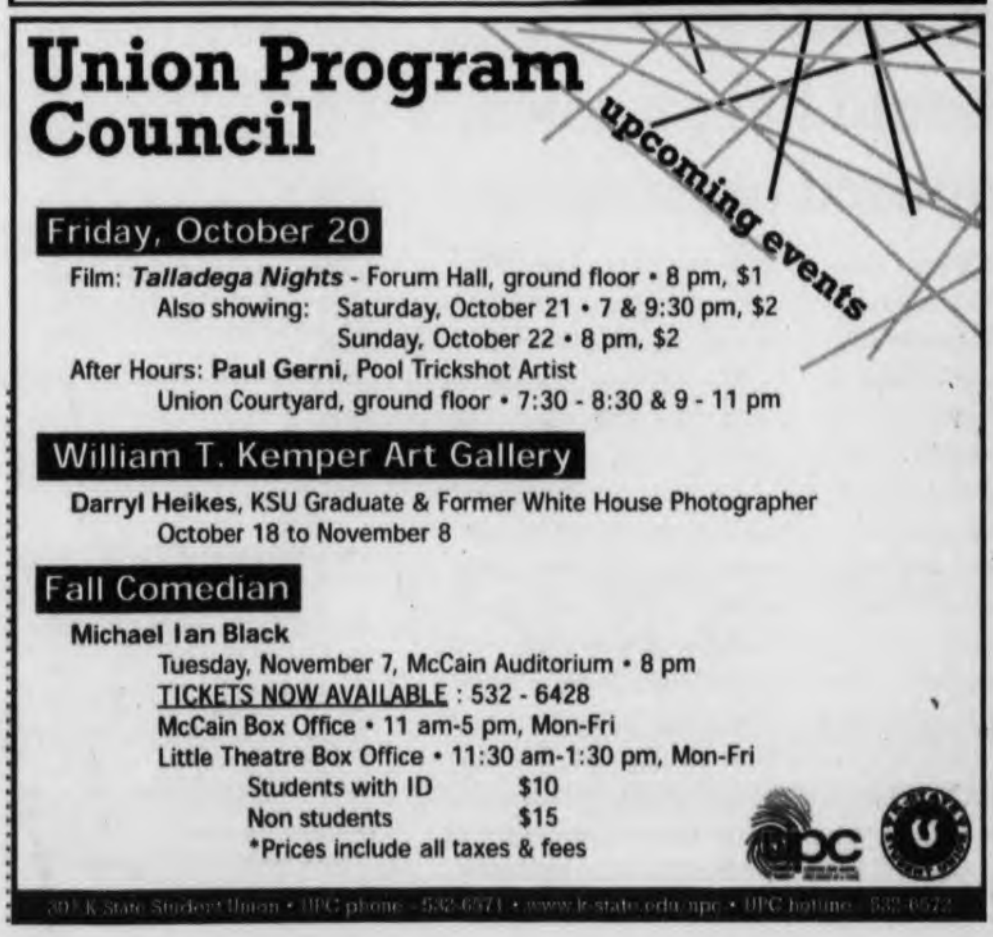
"We are definitely ready to open, but that is Vanity in general; we are ready for new things," Shroyer said.



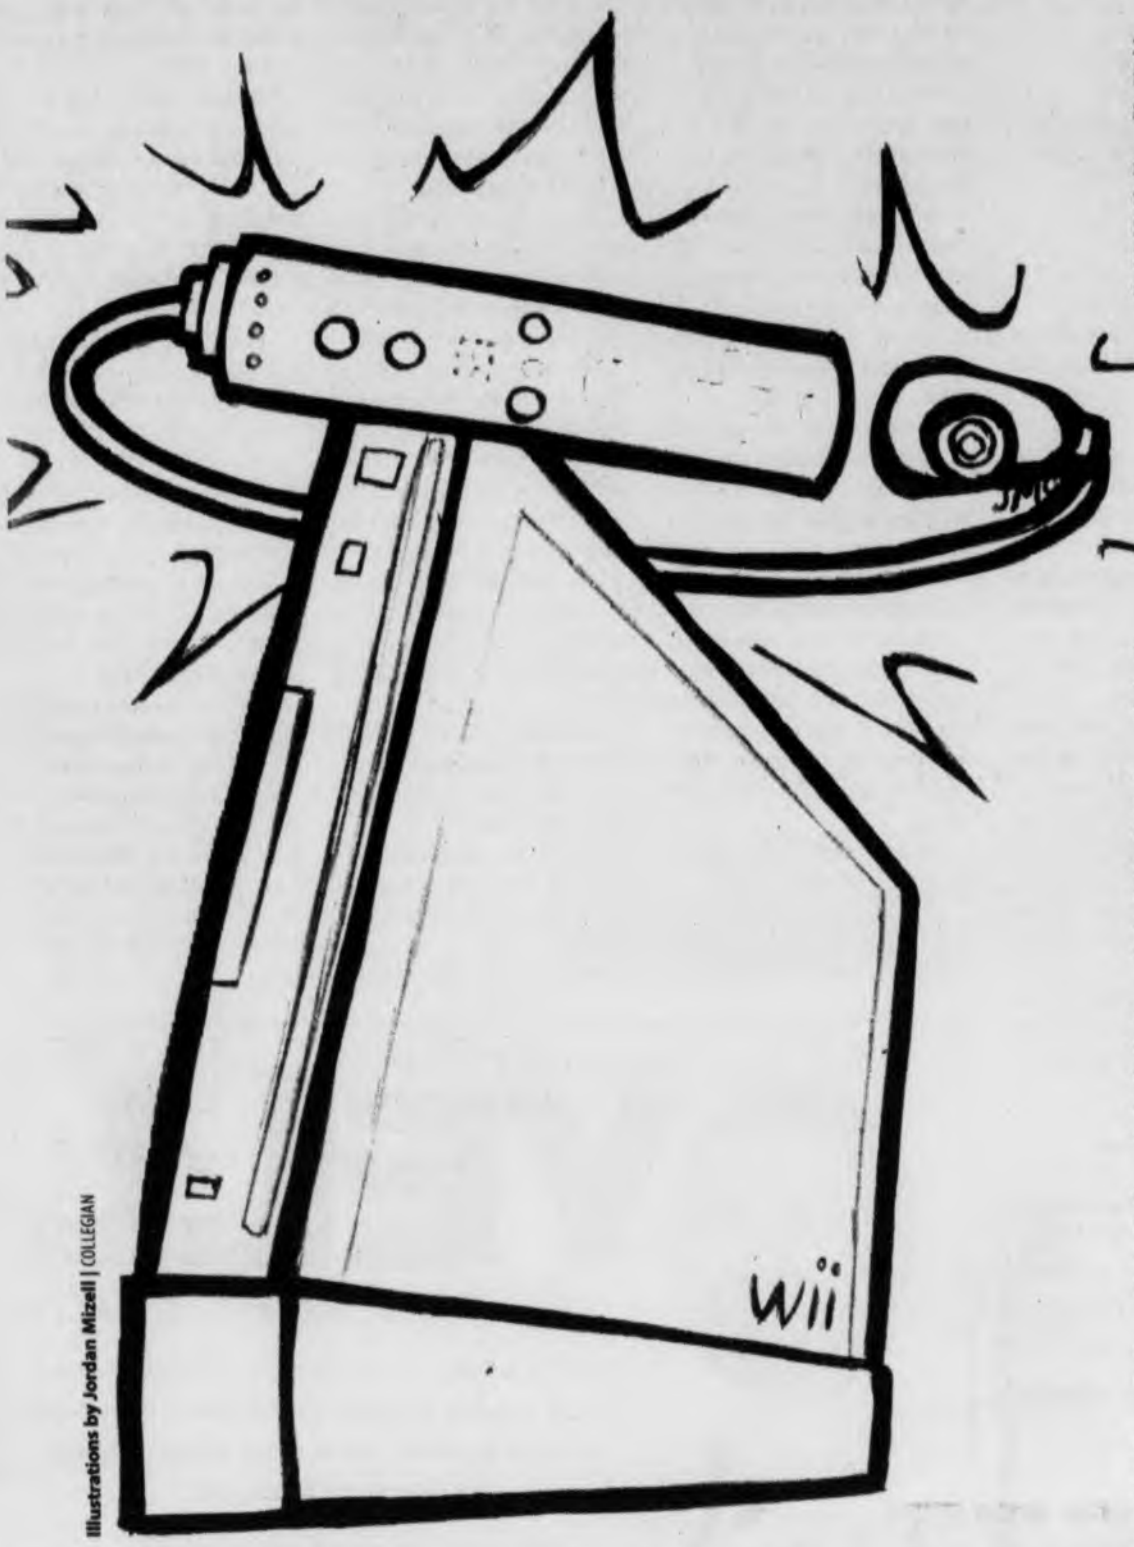
Vanity is looking to hire 12-20 outgoing, fashion-forward individuals, Hastings said.



"It is preferable that employees can work throughout the holiday season," Hastings said.



Applications are available through the Manhattan Town Center mall office, Hastings said.



Those lovable characters

New system, classic games provide children with less violent forms of entertainment

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell | COLLEGIAN

Last weekend I burned my Playstation 2. A little lighter fluid, a few matches and incredibly bad smelling smoke, and it was gone.

This act wasn't an absurd moment of bad sportsmanship though. After a failed attempt to fix the feared "Disk read error," I felt there was no better way to send off my beloved technology.

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

What surprises me the most from this whole experience is how much this actually affects my life.

I really haven't played video games that much lately. Too much time at the Collegian, plus homework, has led to me only being able to stare glumly at the black box sitting by my TV.

Since it's demise, I've found myself checking the prices for a replacement PS2 and drooling over the new systems soon to be available. But I never would have guessed this search would lead to me find the perfect answer to the gaming industries biggest political issue: video game violence.

This issue has come a long way from its Mortal Kombat origins. The virtual days of killing cops before "having coffee" with one of your girlfriends has strongly overshadowed the option to turn blood on or off.

While it would be easy to be offended by such graphic depictions in video games, I have faith that those who oppose them truly are thinking of children. After all, ratings are what usually top all discussions.

However, the people who object to such games don't understand why children play them.

Just like I've never had the urge to stomp on a mushroom before (or after) playing Super Mario Brothers, I don't kill cops in Grand Theft Auto due to a deeply hidden desire to kill them in real life.

The reason we play these games is because they are top of the line. Their creators have worked endlessly to give us more action, better graphics and quicker loading times.

So, if minors are going to play the same games that are popular with adults, the solution is to get adults to focus on children's games.

Sounds stupid huh?

Well, before this weekend I would have agreed whole-heartedly with you. But now, with the approaching release of the Nintendo Wii, I have a newfound hope for the gaming industry.

With other systems bragging about how many individual blades of grass you can see, Nintendo has come up with a whole new concept for a controller. Images of their remote control and its add-ons appear just as exciting as commercials for the Power Glove.

Not only do they offer gamers old and young revolutionary game play, but they're also bringing back the lovable characters of the past.

Seriously, who has ever had a problem with Mario?

Sure, there are still the Mortal Kombat and war games that parents should review before allowing their kids to play. But with so many games that all ages enjoy, I don't see this as any problem at all.

The only thing that can make this deal any sweeter is the price. Parents will have better game options for their children and will pay half the price of other new systems.

So, parents, you now have everything you've ever asked for in a game system. It's completely in your hands to determine what's right and wrong for your home.

Now, do us all a favor and stop complaining about what other people are playing.

Zachary T. Eckels is a senior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

U.S. cuts recess time, children in India run for a better future

Cultural and ethnic differences are everywhere. We Westerners have a tendency to think our customs are proper and normal – how could belching after a meal possibly be a form of politeness? However, what is found to be perfectly acceptable behavior in one part of the world might not be regarded that way in other regions.

ALEX PEAK

In the United States, we like entertainment and food. The prevailing Sunday activity, especially for the middle of the country, is watching football or NASCAR, drinking beer and shoveling food into our mouths. That sounds pretty normal, right?

While we Westerners are busy with the constant search for new diversions and cuisine, there are people in parts of the world who are busy looking for ways to survive.

For example, while the United States is plagued with obesity, there are children who literally are running hundreds of miles for their lives. There are children as young as 4 years old who are training to be marathon runners. They aren't doing this for fun or for something to pass the time. They are doing this to help bring themselves out of poverty. Many are hoping to find sponsors to help them make enough money to eat everyday.

All the while, nearly 10,000 miles away, U.S. children play video games instead of stepping foot outdoors. Many kids play with footballs, basketballs or cars via television or Gameboy more than in person.

We have to come up with campaigns like, "Verb. It's what you do," to encourage children ages 9-12 to be active when there are children half that age running more miles in one day than most U.S. citizens of any demographic run in a week.

According to BBC News, 4-year-old Budhia Singh, in Orissa, India, set a local record in May for running 40 miles in seven hours.

Since then, many poor Indian children are following in his path, making child marathoners a new competitive trend.

Singh was sold to a street vendor for $18, because his mother could not afford to feed him, according to the BBC. Fortunately for Singh, Biranchi Das, his coach, discovered his talent for running and bought him back.

Singh's newest aspiration is to run from Bhubaneswar, India, to Calcutta – a jaunt of nearly 250 miles – without a break.

Young Singh is not alone in his quest to become a professional marathon runner. For example, Anastasia Barla, 10, recently ran 45 miles in eight hours; Mrityunjaya Mandal fainted a few miles short of his 50-mile goal; Dillip Rana, 12, ran 56 miles for practice and is now looking to run 62 miles to set a new record, all according to BBC.

At the same time, the United States cuts back allotted recess time and funds for gym classes.

Childhood diabetes is practically becoming the norm and being overweight and obese as a youth might as well be par for the course of growing up in the United States of America.

Alex Peak is a senior in mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASSISTANT AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Commissioners should have known problems with proposed ordinances

Yesterday, after more than a year of research, lobbying and painstaking debate, the city commission dropped all attempts at a smoking ban.

If anyone had stopped to think about it, they might have known what would happen before they went to the trouble.

The commission was split in the first reading of the proposed ban because three versions of the ordinance varied in their levels of control.

They voted 3-2 in favor of a partial ban. That vote would have been no different Tuesday at the second reading if not for the insistence of city officials, who warned that a partial ban would be difficult to enforce and legally defend because it lacked consistency.

The second, partial ban should have been stricken from the list before it even went up for debate.

At the last meeting, commissioners also voted down a complete ban, 2-3.

Though easier to implement and more clear in its purpose, a complete ban would not have passed because three commissioners had no intention of changing their minds.

The third ban, addressing only restaurants, went down with a vote of 1-4.

Because the opinion of all the commissioners was known from the start, they already had all the evidence, and they already knew the difficulties with some of the proposed ordinances, they could have saved people time and money simply by taking stock of the facts before presenting such provocative legislation.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

So does that mean if we're a wet fraternity that we have unprotected sex?

I think the Riley rats have hit an all-time low, I just saw one of them try to start a fight with the Jolly Green Giant.

I think that maybe half of the Chi-O house is literate, and that's a generous estimate.

Guy with the KU hoodie and shorts on campus: you disgust me.

Scooter girl does have classes, because she has a 7:30 a.m. chem class that I'm in. It's a lecture. So, yeah, she has classes.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

TO THE EDITOR

Rouse's column is well written, but makes poor comparisons, personal identifications

Editor,

Josh Rouse's article was well written and to the point. If people are upset with what the school paper is putting out, I feel they should go do something about it. Make a change in the world – do not just complain.

Now to the article... please get your facts in line. I can not stand up for what Foley did, BUT he did not have physical relationships with pages. He did have inappropriate communication with them. There is a huge difference. The police are still trying to figure out if there were any laws broken! Rouse shouldn't compare what happened with Bill to Rep. Foley.

In regards to being a "Conservative Democrat," I take offense. Rouse is a Christian who believes in the Democratic philosophy. In most circles the term conservative is much broader than simply reading the Bible. It involves economics, taxes, military spending, civil rights, welfare and much, much more. By calling himself a conservative, Rouse would be aligning himself with the GOP's view on these also. From what I have read of his article, this does not describe him.

To all my liberal friends, and yes I have many friends who vote Democrat, I say, if Bush is so bad, why has there not been a terrorist attack on our soil since 9-11? Why is the Dow (a true indicator of a strong market) at the brink of new highs every day? Why is the deficit smaller than it has been in many years? Why? Why is unemployment still low? How can this be with taxes being lower? Try reporting on some of these.

As for the media, if it weren't for FOX, the entire media would be left-leaning. This goes back to my original statement: if we have a problem with it we should go out and do something about it, not just laugh that Air America (the left of the left) is declaring bankruptcy.

Just remember there are two sides to every argument, and this is what makes our nation great: we have the ability to persuade those who don't agree with us.

Kevin Donnelly
KSU '95

Collegian should strive for balance

Editor,

Kudos to Mr. Rouse in his Oct. 17 article, "Newspapers that lean to either side receive audience outcries" for his objective approach to a sensitive subject. Kansas State is a predominantly conservative university in a predominantly conservative state. Coming from Iowa and being brought up in a relatively liberal city, I find it comforting that the Kansas State Collegian remains neutral, as it should. This conservative/liberal, Democrat/Republican squabbling needs to stop, and I feel that the Collegian does a nice job of providing just the facts without partisan leaning. Good job, and keep it up.

Kyle Dick
FRESHMAN IN PROFESSIONAL PILOT

ROTC members should step up, take pride in what they represent

Editor,

Last Thursday I was leaving campus and saw our ROTC cadets doing their usual PT (physical training) run. As a disabled Gulf War vet, I began to feel pride in myself, the time I spent wearing the uniform and in the group. Then they began to sing cadence and I became embarrassed for them.

I thought the ROTC was supposed to train our future leaders. This group I saw and heard was the most unmotivated, uncoordinated group I have ever seen. If you are going to be in something like the ROTC, have pride in it. Have pride for that uniform you wear on campus and for your fore-fathers and the soldiers today that died for your right to wear that uniform.

You are supposed to become officers and will need to motivate your subordinates some day. You are suppose to lead by example. VERY POOR example is what I saw. If I was on foot, I would have been tempted to take over the run. You need to learn to run and sing in unison and with pride, not like a bunch of drunks in a bar trying to sing karaoke.

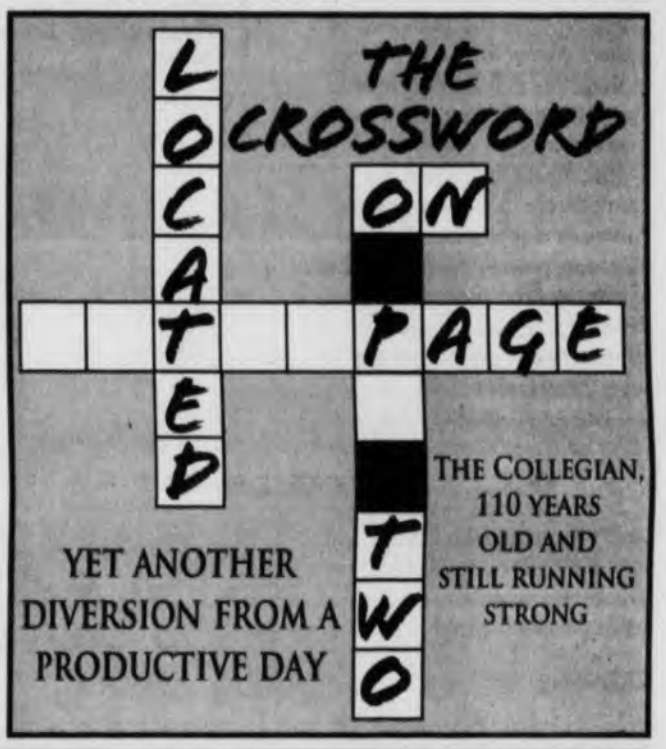
I hope you pull it together and start being motivated like soldiers and officers, because you were an embarrassment to the uniform, the Armed Forces and this great educational institute. If you don't have the motivation and pride to be an officer or to wear the uniform, take it off and go serve hamburgers somewhere. Don't embarrass our veterans with that lack of pride.

Carl Brown
DISABLED VETERAN
SENIOR IN PRE-PROFESSIONAL SECONDARY EDUCATION

Students' views on text casting are important

Kansas State University
SGA
Student Governing Association
Letter from the President

No need for a coupon – just use your phone!



K-State has been approached by several companies who want to provide discounts through text messages. These companies would seek out local businesses that would like to offer discounts. The product they offer is a Web interface allowing texts to be sent out to subscribers who sign up for the program. The texts then work as coupons. For example, "Present this text from 5 to 7 p.m. today at Maddy's Mercantile and receive $5 off a hayrack ride."

But the real heart of these programs is the university benefit – the service can be used to cancel class in the middle of the day due to an ice storm, a tornado warning, etc. While an e-mail may just miss you walking out the door, a text can catch you en route to campus. Student safety and convenience could now be addressed on a near-instant basis.

If you would like to voice your opinion or find out more about the different options and companies, e-mail maddy@ksu.edu or listen to the "Hour of Accountability" Sunday at noon on KSBD-FM 91.9.

Go Cats!

Lucas Maddy
SGA PRESIDENT

Campus Phone Books
you can finally Buy A Book WORTH ITS PRICE NOW in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

Dependable, Quality Service
How Fast Can YOU Run?
Claflin Books and Copies

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

$1.50 Drinks
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

86 Percent
Of the Campus Community Reads The Collegian
Call 785-532-6560 To Advertise!

06 college student purchase program
www.fordcollegehq.com
Ford LINCOLN MERCURY

2007 Ford Fusion SEL

Text FUSION to 2DRIVE (237483)
for a chance to win:
A 60 GB iPod with adapter
A $25 iTunes Music Card
A ringtone brought to you exclusively by Ford and mtvU featuring Matchbook Romance's "Monsters"

$500 cash bonus
Special offer for college and trade school students, recent grads and graduate students
Certain purchase and eligibility restrictions apply.

Visit www.fordcollegehq.com for official Program rules. Or, see your local Ford or Lincoln Mercury Dealer.

Available only on participating carriers. Standard messaging rates apply. Other charges may apply. For Help, text HELP to 237483. To end, text STOP to 237483. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. Void where prohibited. Open to legal residents of the U.S. who are 18 or older at time of entry and who as of 9/5/06 are enrolled (or have graduated after 5/1/04) in/from a nationally accredited college/university, junior college, community college or trade school. Game ends 1/2/07. See Official Rules and entry restrictions at www.Fordcollegehq.com/2DRIVE.

Pros, cons of using supplements

Everyone is looking for an edge, whether it is at work, school or in the weight room. Sometimes we need that little boost to get through hard times, and especially with all the baggage that accompanies academia, finding an edge for a workout is almost a necessity.

TRENT SCOTT

More often people are looking to fitness supplements and other artificial sources to give them the kick they think they need to make it through their exercise routines.

But are nutritional supplements really the way to go?

Here's a rundown of three of the most popular supplements used for bulking up and staying fit and the dangers accompanying their use.

PROTEIN

Added protein intake is arguably the most popular supplement used by avid weight lifters. The Web site GNC.com offers about 190 products containing some sort of protein. Many lifters take protein in the hopes of increasing muscle synthesis and fighting muscle weakness and fatigue.

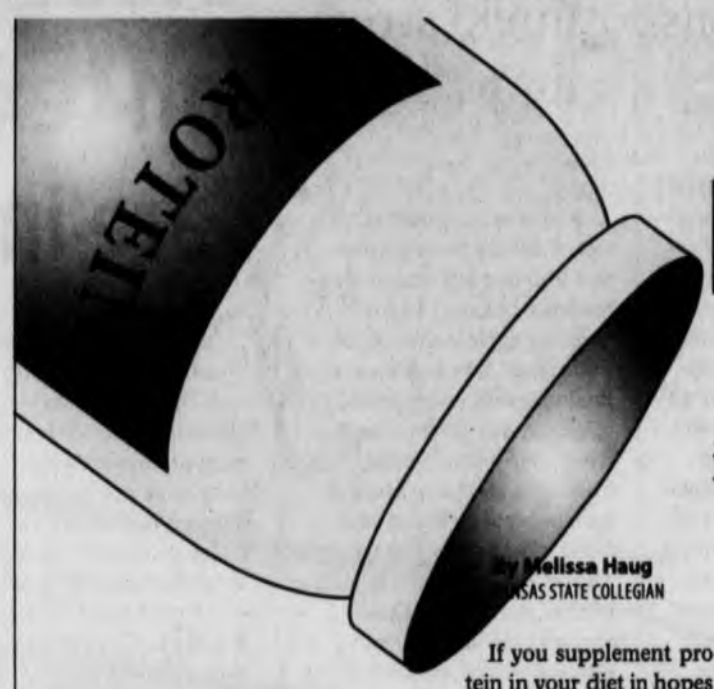
The American Council on Exercise reports that the typical American diet provides considerably more protein than the relatively small amount needed for muscle development. The average adult requires only one gram of protein for every 2.2 pounds of body weight, and in general, athletes need only 1.2 to 1.8 grams of protein for every kilogram of body weight.

Diets containing excess protein can be harmful to the kidneys and can lead to unwanted weight gain if the excess calories are stored instead of metabolized.

CREATINE

Creatine is another fitness supplement that is extremely popular.

Many weight lifters swear by the effectiveness of creatine, and ACE reports that several studies suggest that regular creatine use can improve muscular performance during activities of short duration and high-intensity power and strength, as in weight lifting and sprinting. This comes as no surprise since creatine is used in skeletal muscles to produce adenosine triphosphate (ATP), the body's energy source.



However, many concerns exist about the negative effects excess creatine consumption could have on the body, especially to the liver and kidneys. Creatine usage can

See SUPPLEMENTS Page 8

Your health | Nutrition

Pro on Protein?

Excess supplements in diet unhealthy way to alter weight

By Melissa Haug
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

If you supplement protein in your diet in hopes of packing on some pounds or if you consume more protein than normal in hopes of losing weight, you might want to reconsider your diet.

As a nutrient, protein performs many functions in the body. For one, proteins are a part of every body cell, and they make up the different patterns of amino acids for each tissue.

During times of growth like infancy, childhood, adolescence and pregnancy, protein intake should be increased.

Except during those periods of growth, excess protein intake is not necessary. The majority of consumers already get adequate daily protein intake and many even exceed protein recommendations.

Proteins do not normally supply energy for actions like exercise, but under circumstances when the body does not get enough carbohydrates and fats, protein might be used. The body does not prefer these situations; proteins are normally saved for their function of rebuilding and repairing tissue.

Those individuals who do not get adequate protein might have slowed hair and nail growth, along with a compromised immune system and an impaired ability to repair tissue.

There are, however, two sides to every story. Individuals who plan to use protein to pack on the muscle should think twice about over consumption.

Protein consumed in excess (more than is needed for normal bodily functions), is broken down into amino acids and absorbed through the small intestine and enters the blood stream.

From there, the excess amino acids are stored as fat, not as a reserve supply of protein.

Most consumers don't realize high protein diets, whether it is the Atkins Diet, the South Beach Diet, or high consumption by weight lifters, might introduce too much nitrogen into the diet. This ultimately could lead to liver or kidney problems in the consumer's future. There's even a risk of high cholesterol, high blood pressure, gout and heart problems.

HOW MUCH PROTEIN IS TOO MUCH?

The recommended dietary allowance for the average male is about 63 grams per day and 53 grams for the average adult woman. MyPyramid suggests the consumption of 1.2 to 1.8 grams per kilogram of body weight (your weight in pounds, divided by 2.2, equals your weight in kilograms).

If you're an individual supplementing protein in your diet and already eat plenty of natural, protein-rich foods, you might want to consider healthier options. Try to get your protein solely from natural food sources while monitoring your intake.

There are a number of factors that contribute to weight gain other than protein intake. Keep in mind that to gain weight, your caloric intake must exceed what you're burning when you work out. The opposite is true if you're trying to lose weight; calories consumed should be less than what is being used during exercise.

Instead of basing your muscle-building experience on how much you can consume, be more concerned with the times of day you consume in accordance with your workout routine. Consume protein-rich food sources in the first half hour following exercise.

Try to increase the amount of food at each meal or increase the number of meals you have in a day if you're trying to gain weight. Instead of focusing just on protein intake, develop a healthy routine that will provide your body with not just adequate protein but an abundance of necessary vitamins and minerals from other food sources.

Which is better?

Natural Protein Sources
Tuna (eight ounces) - 63 grams
Chicken breast (eight ounces) - 43 grams
Cottage cheese (one cup) - 38 grams
Lima beans (one cup) - 33 grams
Almonds (one cup) - 26 grams
Peanuts (one cup) - 25 grams
Walnuts (one cup) - 21 grams
Milk - eight grams
Egg whites - seven grams

Supplements
Muscle milk - 21 grams
Balance bar - 14 grams
Powered protein bar - 13 grams
Whey protein mix - 20 grams per scoop

Melissa Haug is a senior in public health nutrition and dietetics and a nutrition consultant and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | Defensive end Campbell added to Hendrick's Watch List

K-State sophomore defensive end Ian Campbell has been added to the Hendricks Award Watch List, the Ted Hendricks Foundation announced Tuesday. The Ted Hendricks Award, named after the former Miami All-American and NFL Hall of Famer, is given annually to the nation's top defensive end.

Campbell continues to prove that he is among the nation's elite pass rushers in 2006, as seven games into the season, he has collected 38 total tackles, the second-most of any Big 12 defensive lineman, with 12.5 of those coming behind the line of scrimmage.

In his first career start, Campbell collected a career-high eight tackles, three sacks for 17 yards and five tackles for a total loss of 21 yards en route to Big 12 Defensive Player of the Week honors against Illinois State. Then, he recorded six tackles, two for a loss of 14 yards, with one sack in the win over Marshall and added two sacks and seven stops against Louisville.

The Cimarron, Kan., native is currently tied for fifth nationally and second in the Big 12 with 1.07 sacks a game and is seventh nationally and tops in the Big 12 in tackles for loss at 1.71 a game. With his 12.5 tackles for loss and his 8.0 sacks through seven games, Campbell is inching closer to the K-State single-season record books. The sophomore needs 5.5 more tackles for loss to break into the top 10 and just one more sack to move into 10th place on the charts. He also has collected at least one sack in five of seven games this season.

CBK | Non-conference single seat tickets for sale today

K-State men's basketball single-game tickets for the non-conference portion of the schedule through December will go on sale at 9 a.m. today, athletics officials announced on Tuesday.

Huggins

A limit of four tickets per order will be accepted for the following games: Washburn, William & Mary, Tennessee Tech, Coppin State and Cleveland State. Fans may purchase up to eight tickets for Kennesaw State and Maryland Eastern-Shore.

If available, individual-game tickets for Big 12 Conference games will go on sale Nov. 14 to Ahearn Scholarship Fund donors and season-ticket holders with a priority deadline of Dec. 7. Any tickets remaining after that date will be available for sale to the general public.

Public season tickets are still available in bench seating priced at $260. Season tickets in the chairback and Cat Cushion sections of Bramlage Coliseum are sold out. The Athletic Ticket Office in Bramlage Coliseum is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tickets can be ordered in person or by phone at 1-800-221-CATS.

CBW | K-State picked to finish 7th in Big 12 coaches' pre-season poll

The K-State women's basketball team is tied for seventh out of 12 teams in the 2006-07 Big 12 Conference coaches' pre-season poll.

K-State received 57 points in the poll, the same number as Texas Tech and nine points behind sixth-place Nebraska (66). Defending conference champion Oklahoma was picked to win its second consecutive Big 12 women's basketball title. The Sooners received all 11 possible first place votes for a total of 121 points.

Texas A&M was selected second with 107 points, followed by Texas in third (101), Baylor fourth (94) and Iowa State fifth (68). Rounding out the poll were Missouri (43), Kansas (36), Colorado (26) and Oklahoma State (16).

K-State was one of eight Big 12 teams to advance to the postseason last year. Baylor, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas A&M advanced to the NCAA Tournament while Iowa State, Kansas, K-State and Nebraska competed in the WNIT with the Wildcats winning the championship in front of a sell-out crowd in Bramlage Coliseum.

With one of the youngest teams in the Big 12 Conference, K-State posted a 24-10 overall record and went 8-8 in league play in 2005-06. The Wildcats turned in their fifth-consecutive 20-win season and made their fifth-straight appearance in the postseason (four NCAA and one WNIT).

They also placed in the top half of the Big 12 Conference for the fifth-straight year.

News & Notes

K-State goes for 14th win

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When K-State plays Missouri this Saturday at Faurot Field, the Wildcats' 13-game winning streak and the Tigers' goal posts will be on the line.

Missouri hasn't beat K-State since a 27-14 victory in 1992.

"I don't know that any of the previous accolades of the coaches or previous records really matter that much, but I think the preparation and all the conversation about that can weigh heavily on kids' minds," coach Ron Prince said.

In the last two games of the series, K-State needed a second half comeback to defeat Missouri. Senior linebacker Brandon Archer played a big part in those comebacks, returning an interception for a touchdown in both of the games.

"We're looking for a third one of those," Prince said. "I'll take it in dramatic fashion on the last play."

MOVEMENT UP FRONT

Prince said he expected lineman Mike Frieson to take significant reps on the left side of the offensive line this week.

In last week's 21-3 loss to Nebraska, K-State averaged only 1.2 yards per carry and quarterback Josh Freeman was sacked four times.

70 OF 135

With the offense continuing to flounder, the special teams have picked up some of the slack, scoring 70 of K-State's 135 points this year.

Since 1999, the Wildcats have scored 48 special teams touchdowns. That ranks them third in Division I-A programs behind only Miami and Virginia Tech with 55 touchdowns each.

"That's been the history here, and that's how we want to play, and I think it fits our style," Prince said.

Coach Fritz hopes lineup switch will provide a needed 'spark'

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Texas Tech at K-State
When: 7 tonight
Where: Ahearn Field House
TV/ Radio: FSN Midwest /1350 KMAN
Live stats available at www.k-statesports.com

K-State women's volleyball player Angie Lastra said she will do whatever it takes to help her team snap its current 10-match losing streak. Even if it means switching positions.

Lastra, a junior, has played libero since her freshman season in 2004. But coach Suzie Fritz said she needed to give her "best player" more responsibility and said moving Lastra to the outside hitter position will provide her team with more offense.

"She's a needed spark for this team, and she's not afraid to take big swings," Fritz said. "She's aggressive and confident, and we like that about her."

Fritz said the decision is a permanent one and the new lineup will be on display tonight when the Wildcats take on Texas Tech (10-8, 3-6 Big 12) at Ahearn Field House.

In Saturday's loss to No. 24 Oklahoma, the Wildcats (8-11, 0-9 Big 12) played perhaps their most competitive game of Big 12 Conference play with the lineup switch. They took the Sooners to five games and held a 2-1 lead through three games.

Freshman middle blocker Kelsey Chipman said the lineup switch is justified.

"I trust Suzie's judgment completely, and we're having some trouble right now," she said. "Mixing things up might help us, and I have complete faith in Angie, and so does everybody else."

The Red Raiders are led by senior outside hitter Philister Sang and junior middle blocker Amy Charlebois. Sang has 276 kills on the season and ranks second in the Big 12 with an average of 4.76 kills per game. Charlebois has a team-high 96 blocks.

New restaurant compliments Ramada's renovation

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The restaurant Houlihan's will open in mid-January. The restaurant will replace the Gold Fork at the Ramada Plaza Inn.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Goat cheese bruschetta, tuna wontons, Ahi tuna salad, grilled vegetable panini and California mashers made from cauliflower instead of potatoes.

These are a few items on the menu for the new Houlihan's restaurant that will open in Manhattan mid-January.

The Houlihan's franchise will replace the Gold Fork restaurant, adjacent to the Ramada Plaza Inn, and is part of a larger, multimillion-dollar renovation project at the hotel.

"Since we got the franchise for here, Houlihan's has changed the direction of their operations," said Colin Noble, hotel owner. "Now, it's unlikely that they're going to build any more restaurants in hotels."

Now, Houlihan's only wants stand-alone buildings and is looking to build next to restaurants like The Cheesecake Factory or P.F. Chang's, he said.

"It was unbelievably lucky we got the green light to build this before they decided to switch directions," he said.

Noble said Houlihan's targets the "hip and trendy" market.

The menu, spiral-bound with a metal cover, features an extensive drink list. Wines are listed by taste, like "lush and smooth" and "a bit spicy."

Throughout the pages are witty one-liners like, "We have a dining room dress code: No naked people."

At the back of the menu is the month's music playlist, along with some "horriblescopes" and a drink recipe, giving diners some light reading as they wait for their food.

Noble said they chose Houlihan's because it would match the hotel's renovation.

"We've modernized it, and, in conjunction with that, the restaurant concept we thought fit it best by a mile was Houlihan's," Noble said.

A few floors of the hotel are finished, and the rest should be finished in a few months, Noble said. The rooms have been painted with a burnt orange color and have black and white furnishings, like a round mirror with a thick black frame, leather club chair with ottoman and Roman blinds.

The beds have tall, padded headboards, white comforters and a down pillowtop. Red artificial flowers add an extra touch of color to the space. The bathrooms have bowl-shaped sinks on black countertops.

Soon, Noble said, the rooms will have flat screen televisions.

"The whole thing is just very cool," Noble said. "That's the only word to describe it."

Caleigh Cost, junior in psychology, said she will go to Houlihan's when it opens.

"I love Houlihan's," Cost said. "I went to one in Kansas City. It might be a little bit more pricey, but for the amount of food you get and the quality of the food, it's not too bad."

Sample of monthly play list
"The Wrong Girl" Belle & Sebastian
"Thursday's Child" David Bowie
"For What it's Worth" Cardigans
"The Golden Path" The Chemical Brothers with Flaming Lips
"I Guess She..." DZihan & Kamien
"The Hidden Track" Earlimart
"Why Can't I?" Liz Phair
"Clear Blue Air" Turin Brakes
"One Horse Town" The Thrills
"Oybele's Reverie" Stereolab

Mixology - Beertini
- Fill martini shaker with ice.
- Add one part Absolut Mandarin vodka to one part orange juice.
- Shake madly and strain into glasses.
- Top with one part Budweiser.

So Girlie-Man

Source: Houlihan's menu

GET ACT!VATED!
It's as easy as 1, 2, 3:
1. Activate your free Wildcat Works! eRecruiting account.
2. Upload your résumé.
3. Publish your résumé.
Résumé questions? Stop in between noon - 4 p.m. for Walk-in Wednesday!
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career

www.k-state.edu/ces

706 N Manhattan 537-7151
Sign up at Porters to win your own BACARDI SHOT MACHINE
Every Wednesday
Every purchase enters you to win
Drawing on Wed. Oct. 25th
$2.00 Bacardi drinks
$2.00 Big Beer

must be present to win
20¢ Wings hot, mild, BBQ, honey mustard, hot BBQ
$1.50 Cosmopolitans

OPEN HOUSE
FRI. OCTOBER 20TH
9:00 - 3:00
STUDENT-GUIDED PROGRAM TOURS BEGIN EVERY 15 MINUTES.
www.matc.net
The TECHNICAL COLLEGE
MANHATTAN AREA TECHNICAL COLLEGE

You know how great food smells when you don't have to make it yourself?
We can get that for you.

Check out the MENU GUIDE in back of the Campus Phone Book
Available in Kedzie 103
Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

o6 college student purchase program
www.fordcollegehq.com
Ford LINCOLN MERCURY

2007 Ford F-150
Text F150 to 2DRIVE (237483) for a chance to win:
A 60 GB iPod with adapter
A $25 iTunes Music Card
A ringtone brought to you exclusively by Ford and mtvU featuring Matchbook Romance's "Monsters"
DEFINE yourself
$500 cash bonus
Special offer for college and trade school students, recent grads and graduate students
Certain purchase and eligibility restrictions apply.
Visit www.fordcollegehq.com for official Program rules. Or, see your local Ford or Lincoln Mercury Dealer.
Available only on participating carriers. Standard messaging rates apply. Other charges may apply. For Help, text HELP to 237483. To end, text STOP to 237483. NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. Void where prohibited. Open to legal residents of the U.S. who are 18 or older at time of entry and who as of 9/5/06 are enrolled (or have graduated after 5/1/04) in/from a nationally accredited college/university, junior college, community college or trade school. Game ends 1/2/07. See Official Rules and entry restrictions at www.Fordcollegehq.com/2DRIVE.

XUE | Student, faculty reflect

Continued from Page 1

Frank Xue was an associate professor of finance. Xue died Sept. 14 after remaining in a coma on life support for more than two weeks. He was recognized by several of his colleagues as a great researcher and teacher.

The memorial service began with an address from Reverend David Jones. After a short prayer, Jones invited attendees to share memories of Xue.

The first person to speak was Dr. Yar Ebadi, dean of business administration.

"Frank was with us much too briefly, Ebadi said. "Nevertheless, in our reflection, we are thankful to be among those to have the privilege to know him."

Ebadi said Xue made significant contributions as a professor and researcher. More importantly, he said Xue was always available to help his students and colleagues.

Jordan Trivette, senior in finance, was one of several former students of Xue in attendance. He took two classes with Xue, including a class this semester.

"He was a good teacher," Trivette said. "He was very open to help students and make sure they understood the topics being covered."

The service finished much the same as it began, except for one major difference. No friendly voices were heard over the peaceful piano music. Instead, only the sound of the sniffling of noses and the shuffling of feet as they exited the theater.

JET | Students gain co-pilot training hours, leg up on competition has a range of about 1,500 miles and can go to 41,000 feet in altitude. It has room for six passengers and two pilots. It is the smallest jet of the Cessna Citation line.

Continued from Page 1

Instructors at K-State-Salina serve as pilots for the jet, and they are paid for pilot duties in their salaries, Reagan said. They serve as the pilots because the jet also offers an opportunity for instruction.

Senior students at K-State-Salina have the opportunity to fly co-pilot in the jet and gain experience by paying a $75 instructor fee.

"It's really only available to the senior students because they have to have all of the qualifications," said Bill Gross, professor of aviation and chief pilot.

Gross said qualifications include a course on aircraft systems, a simulator training and meeting the Federal Aviation Administration requirements for solo take off and landings.

The opportunity to fly co-pilot on a jet airline in college is rare in most cases, Reagan said.

"K-State students will have this on their log books and most students don't have that," he said. "They get an opportunity to learn on actual trans-continental trips."

Reagan said students get to co-pilot into large airports including Chicago O'Hare and LAX.

"Co-pilots are responsible for navigation and radio communications which can be very challenging for a busy airport," Reagan said.

Pat Rinearson, flight instructor at K-State-Salina, graduated from the university last year. He is still logging time as a co-pilot so that he can have the hours needed to go into corporate flying.

As a former student ambassador at K-State-Salina, Rinearson said he often spoke of the advantages of getting flying time in the jet, especially when it comes to looking for jobs.

"When you go to apply for these sorts of positions companies do look at your résumé and if you have turbine time, which is time flying a big airplane like the jet, it definitely puts a feather in your cap," he said.

Last month Rinearson co-piloted for pilot Scott Nichols, flight instructor at K-State-Salina. The pair were gone for about four days flying the jet on recruiting missions for basketball coach Bob Huggins and assistant coach and recruiting coordinator Frank Martin.

The jet often is used for recruiting purposes, but it also helps other departments, Reagan said.

Tom Roesler, associate director of alumni programs, said he has used the jet to bring coaches out to speak at alumni events in western Kansas. He said it is more time efficient and cost effective for the coaches.

SUPPLEMENTS | Andro's popularity increased in 1998

Continued from Page 6

also result in stomach cramping and diarrhea. ACE recommends people partaking in aerobic exercises, such as long-distance running, should abstain from using creatine since the increase in body mass could impair performance.

ANDROSTENEDIONE

Androstenedione is a male, sex hormone that the body converts to testosterone. It has been sold under a myriad of names, all containing the term "andro." Although it has been available for quite some time, androstenedione was made famous by Mark McGwire after he broke the single-season home run record in 1998.

Androstenedione has been touted by many for its ability to greatly increase testosterone concentrations in the blood.

Andro can lead to increased blood pressure, liver cancer, testicle and breast shrinkage, and uncontrolled mood swings from depression to aggression, according to ACE.

Trent Scott is a junior in nutrition and exercise science and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

BAN | Inconsistency forces commissioners to drop smoking ordinance

Continued from Page 1

second was a ban in work places except between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m. and excluded drinking establishments and places like pool halls, private clubs and bowling alleys; the third only prohibited smoking in restaurants except between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m.

In the first reading, the commission passed the second ordinance, but city attorney William Frost said the ordinance would be difficult to defend in court if challenged.

"My concern with ordinance two is that I can't identify a purpose, a basic purpose that is consistent throughout," he said.

Mayor Bruce Snead moved to reconsider the first ordinance, a total workplace ban, but the motion failed 2-3.

Snead asked the commissioners, "What's your pleasure?" A long silence followed.

Commissioner Mark Hatesohl said he wasn't sure he could support the third ordinance.

"Is three better than nothing?" he said. "I seconded last time in the spirit of compromise, but I'm not sure anybody wants three if they can't have one."

A motion to consider the third ordinance failed 1-4, leaving the commission with no smoking legislation.

Commissioner Ed Klimek said he heard a great deal of community support for the second ordinance.

"I'll give you a great example," he said. "I went to a public meeting and I spoke to two foreign-born U.S. citizens. This was after the last commission meeting. They said, 'I want to keep my rights in my old country. I didn't have those rights. That's why I came to America.' That's pretty darn good stuff."

KSU jazz presents
The Jazz Ensembles
Directed by Dr. Wayne Goins & Graduate Assistant Phil Ward
• Concert Jazz Ensemble
• Lab A
• Lab B
Also featuring Ms. Rebecca Smith, vocals
Wednesday, October 18 7:30 P.M.
McCain Auditorium
Department of Music Kansas State University
This concert is free to the public!

Kansas Quality WOODWORKERS Arts and Crafts Show & Pancake Feed
Shop from woodworking, paintings, pottery, jewelry, embroidery, stained glass and hand woven items.
All the pancakes you can eat, with sausage, coffee and orange drink. $4 for adults, $2 for children
This Saturday 7:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.
Potterf Hall, CICs Park, on Kimble

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

coupon coupon
$5 off Houseplant!
Any houseplant $15.00 to $39.99 regular price.
Expires 10-25-06
Limit 1 coupon per houseplant.
Eastside & Westside Markets
East Hwy. 24 by the Mall or West K-18 across from Briggs in Manhattan, Kansas.

coupon coupon
$2 off Houseplant!
Any houseplant $5.99 to $14.99 regular price.
Expires 10-25-06
Limit 1 coupon per houseplant.
Eastside & Westside Markets
East Hwy. 24 by the Mall or West K-18 across from Briggs in Manhattan, Kansas.
Great Selection of Pumpkins!!!
Eastside & Westside Markets
E. Hwy. 24 or W. Ft Riley Blvd, Manhattan

GUMBY'S Pizza
We roll ours fatter...
We are talking about our
50¢ pizza rolls All Day sauce extra
$1 Bud & Bud Light Draws
50¢ Pool All Day

Mondays mean Menu Mania
Every Monday look in the Collegian for the hottest deals from the hottest restaurants
To advertise in Menu Mania, Call 785-632-6560

"When my sister first heard the news that I'm gay, she wrote me an e-mail.
One of the things that it said was,
I'd rather you be dead than gay."
Think it doesn't happen here? It does.
Join us for If Truth Be Told, a play based on the stories of local gay community members.
FREE TO THE PUBLIC!
Manhattan Arts Center: Friday, October 20 at 7:00 p.m.; Sunday, October 22 at 2:00 p.m.
KSU Union Little Theater: Saturday, October 21 at 2:00 p.m.; Saturday, October 21 at 7:00 p.m.
Learn more at www.fhpflag.org or call (785) 770-7550.
PFLAG
Let's get the dialogue going.
Funded by the Manhattan Fund – Caroline Peine Charitable Foundation

Don't be fooled by the title, this hilarious Broadway musical is fun entertainment for the whole family!
URINETOWN
the musical
Lyrics by Greg Kotis and Mark Hollmann
Book by Greg Kotis
Music by Mark Hollmann

Oct. 11 - 14 and Oct. 18 - 21 at 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 & Oct. 22 matinees at 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre on the KSU campus
Presented by KSU Theatre & Dance and the Dept. of Music
Sponsored by Ramada Plaza Hotel
TKTS: McCain Box Office open 11am to 5pm & K-State Union
Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 wkdays 532-6428
Tickets: $10 student/child $13 military $15 public

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

THREE-BEDROOM TWO bath duplex with garage. 821 Mission. Available now. Lease ends May 31, 2007. $900/ month. No pets, no smoking. 785-776-9260.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

KSU - CU Game. Join us for a Buffalo hunt in Boulder! Our chartered bus will leave at 11:00 am, Friday, November 3 and return after the game on Saturday. Travel package includes chartered bus, a double occupancy room at the Westin in Boulder (the team hotel) and game ticket for $220. For reservations please call Kathy Dahnke at GTM Sportswear at 785-537-8822 ext. 1120.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

FOUND: MEMORY Stick in a union computer. I turned it into the Student Services and Activities desk downstairs.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

Lost something?
You can place an ad FREE for three days!

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

FEMALE ROOMMATE for Christian household needed immediately for four-bedroom, two-bath house. Air Conditioner, Washer/ Dryer. No smoking or pets. $232.50/ one-fourth utilities. Additional room also available in December. Brandy 785-313-1205.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Living with girls in a four-bedroom house. Six blocks from campus. $375 includes utilities. Call Amber 620-343-0663.

LOOKING FOR Male Subleaser. Clean and honest household. Lease is for January 2007 through August 2007. Close to campus. $250 a month. 785-562-7454.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

TWO-BEDROOM, one-bath apartment for sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600/ month, available now. 785-410-7266.

200 Service Directory

235 Child Care

CHILDCARE NEEDED in my home. Close to campus, flexible part-time, mostly evening or late afternoon hours. 913-306-3378.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

Advertise in the Classifieds
785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

BUFFALO WILD Wings is looking for a few good buffalo to join the herd. Now accepting applications for daytime cooks. 1231 Moro Street. 785-323-WING.

COACH: MIDDLE School Assistant Girl's Basketball Coach for Riley County Middle School. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org with mailing address or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

COMPUTER INFORMATION SPECIALIST at Kansas State University responsible for programming, desktop support, and network management for national association. BS/BA required. Salary $42,000 - 50,000. 785-532-5717, for more information: http://www.nacada.ksu.edu/joboppenings-cis.htm Equal Opportunity Employer

COMPUTING AND Network Services - Part-time - Student Computer Operator, Production Control Operator or Web Specialist. For further information, please refer to http://www.k-state.edu/cns/employment/. Paid for by Kansas State University.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

310 Help Wanted

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

FULL TIME position open in the Operating Room at Geary Community Hospital for a PACU nurse. Applicant must have a current and unrestricted Registered Nurse license with the State of Kansas; Med/-Surg and ICU experience preferred; current ACLS and BLS certification. The hours for the position are 0800-1630 Monday through Friday with occasional overtime required. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; fax to 785-238-1700 or email to cwitt@gchks.org; or apply on line at www.gchks.org.

GEARY COMMUNITY Hospital a very progressive 92 - bed acute care facility is looking for RCP's. Nestled in the Flint Hills of Kansas, and in the fastest growing community in the state, we provide excellent health care to both in-patient and out-patients utilizing the latest technology available. In addition, our hospital is undergoing a $34 million expansion project that will serve us far in the future. We offer competitive salaries and benefits packages for our employees. For more information contact Geary Community Hospital; 1102 St. Mary's Rd.; PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; email to; cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

INTERNET WORK! $9-$150/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ Summer. Studentserveysite.com/kscollegian

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com.

310 Help Wanted

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

Advertise Call
785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. is accepting applications for a part-time position for a Macintosh technician. to start near the end of October 2006. Work about 10 scheduled hours per week with some additional emergency, maintenance and on-call hours as needed, some of which are at night and weekends. The tech support team maintains about 50 Macintosh workstations, providing software support as well as performing general hardware maintenance. Troubleshoots and repairs equipment. Assists with maintaining all written and electronic records. Assists with ordering when needed and approved by tech manager or supervisor. Applicants should be familiar with Mac OS X. Unix experience is helpful. Any other knowledge with programming, web page design, Lan, networking would be beneficial. Some familiarity with design software such as Adobe Photoshop, Adobe InDesign and Imageready is helpful. Must be able to follow written and verbal instructions and work well under pressure of a daily deadline and other crisis situations. Dependable and on time for scheduled hours. Pay starts at $7.50 per hour with the opportunity to advance. Only students enrolled in fall semester 2006 for at least six hours at Kansas State University can be considered. Application deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 18, 2006. Please include your fall 2006 class schedule. Pick up applications in 113 Kedzie. Return applications to 113, 115 or 103 Kedzie.

SWINE HERDSMAN position 15 miles from Manhattan. Full or part-time. Duties include managing finishing units and some crop farming. Mechanical ability and farm experience desirable. Call 785-494-8330 for more information.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH/ Front Office Assistant Hours 20- 30, Summer 40 hours. Assist Evaluators with program evaluation activities & Office Manager with front desk and Director projects Kansas State University, Office of Educational Innovation and Evaluation. Email ubel@ksu.edu or call 785-532-2982.

310 Help Wanted

WE HAVE a full-time position open in our physician offices for a RN, Associate Degree preferred Clinic nurse, during the hours of 0830-1700 but must be willing and able to work a flexible schedule if necessary. Applicant must have a valid, unrestricted Kansas nursing license, be graduated from an accredited nursing program; experienced with ICD-9 coding, triage skills required; familiar with automated equipment; supervisory experience in a clinical setting preferred; the ability to plan, organize, and perform nursing care; and work as a team member in a fast-paced environment. Interested and qualified nurses should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, Ks 66441; email to: cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700. Equal Opportunity Employer.

NOW HIRING!
• Wait Staff
• Bartender
Pizza Pavilion & Casino
Stop by for an application today!
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

FOR SALE: (Like New) Lawn Mower. (Like New) Flat - Screen Monitor. (Old) Sewing Machine. 785-537-1423.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

1995 DODGE 4x4. Good condition. $3500 or best offer. Call 785-556-0851.

CHRYSLER SEBRING Convertible, V6, black, 118,000, Automatic, Leather, power seat, security system, new timing belt and coolent kits, $4000. 785-317-5043.

530 Motorcycles

SWEET RETRO Honda Moped. 49cc, 50 mpg, wire baskets. No insurance required. Park at bike racks. $750. 316-207-3511.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.usski.com

Got old stuff?
GET RID OF IT!
in the
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

First, Check the Collegian Classifieds.
The Collegian should be the first place you look when you need something. Whether you want football tickets for the next home game, are looking to buy a good used car, want to find the perfect person to take to your next date party... or are hoping to find a new place to live... You'll find it in the Classifieds
103 Kedzie Hall • 785.532.6555

Now Hiring
Concession workers for men's and women's basketball games
Athletic Operations - Concessions
Phone: 785-532-7604
$6.50 Starting wage, fun atmoshpere, promotions from within, must speak English & be able to count back change

ASInc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for:
Assembly
General Laborers
Stock-handlers
Clerical
Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

Quiznos Sub
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

9			8		1			4
	2						5
	7		4	6	2		1
8		1		7		9		3
6		2		4		7		5
	6		2	8	4		9
	1						6
4			6		9			2

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Management Career Opportunity
Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.
Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.
Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

Dillons FOOD STORES
Current applications are being accepted at Dillons Westloop
1000 Westloop, Manhattan
for the following positions:
• Daytime Cashier
• Daytime Courtesy Clerk
• Clerks for Bakery and Deli
Must be 18 years of older, with daytime availability
Apply online at www.dillons.com or Store Kiosk at Dillon's Westloop

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

Does it 'Rock'?

"30 Rock" | NBC UNIVERSAL TELEVISION

Alec Baldwin, Tina Fey and Tracy Morgan are part of the seven-member cast of NBC's new comedy series "30 Rock." The series, which airs at 7 p.m. Wednesdays, premiered last week.

'30 Rock' features top SNL actors from the past

"30 Rock" premiere

Grade: B-

Review by Matt Sundberg

"Saturday Night Live" is an aging, dying walrus. The show has become formulaic, uninteresting and just plain unfunny in the past few years.

Having said that, the show "30 Rock" looked mildly entertaining to me before I watched it last Wednesday, due to the actual "funny people" from SNL writing and starring in it, namely Tina Fey and Tracy Morgan.

What I realized after watching the pilot of "30 Rock" is that the presence of Alec Baldwin can improve the quality of any show.

"30 Rock" is a sitcom about the behind-the-scenes life of a live-television writer (Tina Fey) and her various coworkers (Jane Krakowski, Judah Friedlander) working for an NBC show called "The Girlie Show." This show bears a striking similarity to SNL – crazy characters, weird costumes and ridiculous sketch comedy.

In the pilot episode, Liz Lemon (Fey) gets called into the office of Jack (Baldwin), her supervisor. She is asked to work with him on retooling the show due to declining ratings. The first time Baldwin appears on screen, he angrily kicks down a door and goes on a rant about how he invented the GE Trivection Oven, which cooks food perfectly in three ways. Note: General Electric owns NBC, hence the glaring product placement. He tells Liz that he is the new "Vice President of East Coast Television and Microwave Oven Programming."

Jack sends Liz on a mission to recruit popular comedian Tracy Jordan for the show. Tracy Jordan is played by Morgan, adding to my belief that television sitcom writers are the laziest people in the United States.

Fey plays the straight woman in this sitcom, but is intelligent in her role as Liz Lemon and gets a few good lines. Morgan is also fantastic whenever he is on-screen, especially when he gets paranoid and starts rambling about the "old white dudes getting us down, while they inject AIDS into our chicken nuggets."

Baldwin, however, completely steals the show.

"30 Rock" wasn't the funniest sitcom pilot I've ever seen, but then again many people hated the first episode of "Seinfeld." It's too early to tell if the show will do well on NBC, but the pilot did make me laugh.

The premise was interesting and the cast was talented – that should count for something.

Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

NBC recently was host to a conference call for its highly anticipated show "30 Rock," featuring several actors from Saturday Night Live.

Created by comedic veteran Tina Fey, "30 Rock" focuses on a fictional late night comedy show similar to that of SNL.

The show stars Alec Baldwin, Tracy Morgan and Jane Krakowski among others. Through this interview, Fey and Krakowski give their perspective on their new prime-time show.

Q. Did you find yourself a little disconcerted knowing there's such a similar style show on the air at the same time (referring to "Studio 60," which also stars "SNL" actors)?

A. Fey: Well, it's funny, because I had friends coming up to me and say like, "Oh, I'm so sorry; we're not going to get to do your show." And I've said, "Well, you know, I haven't really heard anything," and then really actually within the same day, Kevin Riley called me at home to assure me that we were still – because we were in pre-production to the pilot, and he assured me that we were still going to shoot the pilot, and that he believes in both shows and so, I took the man's word, and so far so good.

Q. Jane, I was wondering if you could tell us who if anyone is influencing your character. Like, is she going to be (Dipsie), is she going to be, you know, a ball-busting prima donna, is she, you know...

A. Krakowski: Well, actually, I've never played an actress before and to play a neurotic, insecure actress is surely a stretch for me. But it's been kind of fun to play this role because of the nature that it is sort of an - it's a variety show, "Saturday Night Live," sort of sketch comedy show that I get to, in occasional episodes, play different characters and certainly in the episodes, seeing the backstage aspect of them where we're wearing all the costumes, the different things, and it's quite fun, I think.

- To read the complete interview, go to www.kstatecollegian.com

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

'PRADA' STILL STRONG WITH INTERNATIONAL BOX OFFICE

LOS ANGELES (Hollywood Reporter) — Fueled by strong openings in Germany, Italy and Taiwan, "The Devil Wears Prada" logged a second consecutive weekend as the No. 1 film internationally, grossing an estimated $22.7 million from 42 markets.

The behind-the-scenes look at life at a high-fashion magazine also turned in highly stylish numbers in such key holdover territories as the U.K., France and Australia, lifting its foreign haul to $75.5 million to date.

SIMON WINS HUMOR AWARD

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Playwright Neil Simon, who drew on his New York upbringing to create such Broadway hits as "The Odd Couple," "Barefoot in the Park" and "Brighton Beach Memoirs," was honored with the Kennedy Center Mark Twain Prize as a uniquely American humorist.

Simon, who has written more than 40 Broadway plays and dozens of film scripts, came to Washington for praise and needling from a slew of actors including Jason Alexander, Richard Dreyfuss, Jane Kaczmarek, Paul Reiser and Christina Applegate.

"There's no good reason to change a Neil Simon line. The day that I'm funnier than Neil Simon, hell will be a very chilly place," said Alexander, who starred in "Broadway Bound" and "Brighton Beach Memoirs" in the 1980s.

ROB ZOMBIE WINS 'CHAINSAW' MOVIE AWARD

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rocker-turned-director Rob Zombie picked up a Chainsaw Award for his horror flick "The Devil's Rejects." The "Killer Movie" award, presented Sunday night to Zombie by Robert "Freddy Kruger" Englund, was part of the first televised "Fuse Fangoria Chainsaw Awards" to honor the horror genre.

The awards ceremony was held at the Orpheum Theatre and will be broadcast Oct. 22 on Fuse Television.

YAHOO, CBS TO LAUNCH VIDEO NEWS DEAL

NEW YORK (Reuters)— Local news video from 16 CBS-owned television stations will be available on online portal Yahoo Inc., the companies said on Monday.

The companies will share revenue from advertising from the video clips. The deal was scheduled to begin today, the companies said.

The deal comes amid booming interest in watching video clips online and follows rival Google Inc.'s deal last week to buy popular online video service YouTube Inc. for $1.65 billion.

The stations owned by CBS Corp. will make about 10 to 20 breaking news clips and features from big markets such as New York, Los Angeles and Chicago available to Yahoo viewers.

HOROSCOPES

Your weekly digest for today through Sunday

Aquarius

You will get bonus points for being detail-oriented, remembering to do that errand for your honey, or doing a favor for a potential one. This weekend, your conscious efforts to project warmth, ask questions and generally engage, get you some sweet feedback.

Aries

Your love challenge on Thursday or Friday is to keep your natural quality of openness in place. This weekend, getting what you're after is less about an aggressive approach and more about being sensitive to what works in a given situation. How about trying old-fashioned charm?

Cancer

Thursdays and Fridays are good days to extract foot from mouth. If it goes well, those days are perfect for following up with some calmer communication and making fun plans. Speaking of plans, stick with yours this weekend. Veering off into unknown territory, particularly of the romantic variety, isn't favored now.

Capricorn

Concentrate on learning about a certain someone to solidify a connection. The more you know, the more love can grow. If you have a date this weekend, take the initiative and get tickets to a cultural event rather than doing the same old dinner and a movie — you'll impress your date.

Gemini

Know when to say when in terms of communicating; a silence can be far sexier than talking on and on. The weekend looks custom-made for romance, with lots of angles for your curious heart and mind to explore. You have plenty of opportunities for learning more when it comes to love.

Libra

Around Thursday and Friday, socializing is favored, and everyone wants to talk to you, maybe because you combine charm with genuine interest in those around you. By the time the weekend comes, you're getting even more attention, very likely of the romantic variety.

Pisces

It's time for some action of your own. The stars favor making a move. You can only think things through so much, and you never know what the reaction will be until you give it a whirl. Give them all their due.

Leo

You're undeniably hot, and everybody's bound to notice. Thursday or Friday, rather than taking a romantic gamble, think about your situation and what you hope to get out of it. This weekend, the pleasure's all yours and those who have the pleasure of your company love you.

Scorpio

You probably have something sweet up your sleeve, and now your romantic instinct and your timing are just right. As far as the weekend, you could bluff, but does that really get your heart where it wants to be?

Sagittarius

A challenge may present itself around Thursday or Friday, when you want to think big and a certain someone seems hopelessly small-minded. Be sweet about it, rather than sour, for your karma's sake. This weekend, your romantic ideals and aspirations are favored.

Taurus

The stars shine their light on your ample sensuality and appeal Thursday through Saturday. What fabulous timing for dates, parties and just enjoying life. Take some time to recover on Sunday. Think of it as charging your batteries, rather than lazing about.

Virgo

That quality of veiled sensuality you have isn't so veiled from Thursday through sometime Saturday. In fact, you're pretty much burning hot. Plan your social calendar and make dates accordingly. The remainder of the weekend might find you indecisive about a certain situation. Try examining the deeper values at the heart of the matter. A conversation with a friend can help your thinking evolve.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, October 19, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 44

INSIDE
See how your favorite beer compares to other brands.
The Edge, Page 12

Sophomore dies Tuesday from apparent suicide

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A sophomore in chemical engineering died Tuesday from an apparent suicide.

Heather Reed, assistant dean of student life, said KMAN radio stated Brian Blecha, of Manhattan, died of a self-inflicted gunshot wound. The location and reason for the apparent suicide has not been released due to privacy reasons.

Blecha was in his first semester at K-State after transferring from Hutchinson Community College. At Hutchinson, he was a member of the President's Honor Roll for fall 2005.

Reed said all the attention of the Office of Student Life is focused on the lost life of a student. She said the office has focused on sending condolences and best wishes to the Blecha family.

"It is always sad to lose a student in the prime of their life," Reed said.

There are numerous services on campus to help students who might be suffering potentially harmful tendencies.

University Counseling Services offers help to any students who are suffering from psychological issues like depression and anxiety. A staff member from Counseling Services said students can become clients and set up meetings with one of several licensed and trained psychologists.

"You want to take every situation seriously," the staff member said, "especially if self-harm is a concern."

The Counseling Services staff member said most students who come to the office are suffering from some form of anxiety or depression. The staff member also said it is not uncommon for students to suffer from both symptoms at the same time.

Blecha is the son of Alice Blecha, of Manhattan, and Lynn and Mary Lou Blecha, also of Manhattan. He is survived by his brother, Justin, freshman in human resource management.

Reed said the funeral service will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the First United Methodist Church, 612 Poyntz Ave.

Clipping costs

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Coupons, generic brands, shopping with grocery lists save students money on food bills

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Allison Banks, senior in secondary education, said her mom always clips coupons from Sunday's newspaper.

When Banks started college, she said she received coupons in the mail from her mom for everything from sandwiches at Quizno's to groceries.

Now, Banks said she looks through the advertisements in Sunday editions of the The Kansas City Star, keeps the coupons dispensed with her receipt at Dillons and browses through magazines for cheap buys. Banks said this process happens once or twice each week.

"It helps a lot, especially on groceries," she said. "You can save $10 dollars or so."

Banks said her store of choice for groceries is Dillons, because she can get discounts from her Dillons Plus Shopper's Card and the coupons she finds in the newspaper.

When looking through coupons, Banks said she does not look for anything in particular, but when she finds something special, she can splurge without feeling guilty.

"Like pizza rolls," she said. "I don't get it unless I have a coupon."

Jennifer Wilson, Riley County extension director, said it is important to sit down before shopping and decide which meals will be made at home during the week. Wilson said it is good to make shopping lists for a week or month at a time.

"Always shop with a grocery list," she said. "Always go to the grocery store with a plan. Most likely when we go without a plan, we do more impulse buying. We go with things that cost more and might not be as healthy for us."

Sometimes, people prefer name-brand items for certain goods and do not think an off-brand will taste the same, Wilson said. Coupons are primarily for name-brand items, but the lower price from coupons does not always equal a decreased price overall.

"Most times you can buy the off-brand, and it's the same quality," she said. "It might not be a good deal to use a coupon."

Dillon's Plus Shopper's Card discount included on all items. Prices collected from Dillons, 130 Sarber Lane.

Advanced balloting begins today

ELECTIONS 2006

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

As the 2006 election season nears, the chance to participate closes even more quickly.

Wednesday marked the beginning of advanced balloting in Kansas, meaning students interested in voting can begin the process as early as today.

There are two ways to vote in Kansas: first, the traditional walk-in vote, and second, an advanced ballot.

Advanced ballots, sometimes referred to as absentee ballots, are now available in almost half of Kansas counties, including Riley. These will be available statewide Monday.

"Advanced ballots are convenient for college students, because you can still vote in your home county without leaving school," said Rich Vargo, elections commissioner for Riley County.

A requested advanced ballot will be mailed to a voter's temporary address as soon as a request is submitted. Once the voter has completed the ballot, he or she can return it in a prepaid envelope provided by the state.

The deadline to request an advanced ballot is Nov. 6, but for a vote to be counted, it must be received by the county's home office no later than noon on Nov. 6.

"Advanced balloting requires the voter to be punctual, but for the convenience involved, it's probably your best bet," Vargo said.

To request an advanced ballot, one must visit their home county's Web site or call the county's election office.

For students who live in Riley

See VOTE Page 8

Future population uncertain

By Ericka Brunson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tuesday marked the birth or immigration of the 300 millionth person in the nation, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

This estimate comes from the U.S. Census Bureau's estimate of the birth, death and international migrant rates per second. At double the population since 1950, questions are being raised as to how the rapid population growth will affect our nation.

According to the Census Bureau clock, with the United States gaining one person every 11 seconds, it is no surprise the country has become the third most populated country after China and India. With this growth comes concern, not necessarily about population growth, but about the quality of life, Derek Hoff, assistant professor of history, said.

Hoff is writing a book on the matter titled, "Are We Too Many? The Population Debate and Policymaking in the Twentieth-Century United States."

Accommodating for the current population is more of a concern than overpopulation, he said.

"It does not jeopardize our survival as the prophets of doom warn, but among many other factors, such as how we use our technology and our

See POPULATION Page 8

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 59 Low: 38

INSIDE

Oldest worker
Read about the 104-year-old K-State graduate who was recently honored as America's oldest worker by Experience Works.

See story, Page 7

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Holstrom scholarship
Anastasia "Staci" Wayne won the $1,000 John E. Holstrom Alpha Tau Omega Architectural Scholarship. Wayne was recognized for bringing K-State the Freedom by Design initiative. She helped in the Nustch family home project in Rose Hill, Kan., for "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" in fall 2005.

Science award
Edgar Chambers IV, director of the Sensory Analysis Center, will be awarded the International David R. Peryam Committee E-18 Award. It is given to those who exemplify the life and career of applied sensory science pioneer David R. Peryam. It represents Chambers' lifetime of dedication.

Professor recognized
Sheryl Benton, associate professor of counseling and educational psychology, won the Education Advocacy Distinguished Service Award by the American Psychological Associations board of educational affairs.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Web site addresses
5 Near the treasure
9 Stitch
12 Daytime drama
13 Malaria symptom
14 Gorilla
15 "People" singer
17 Bottom line
18 Porter
19 Llama territory
21 At home
22 Underneath
24 Rose's place?
27 Trinity member
28 Accompanying
31 Carte lead-in
32 Spacecraft compartment
33 Bill's partner
34 High-pitched sound
36 "Monty Python" opener
37 Pork serving
38 Profundity
40 Poet Cummings
41 Tex-Mex entree
43 James Michener novel
47 Hurry
48 Mushy terrain
51 Work unit
52 Incite
53 Oklahoma city
54 Ultramodernist
55 Grandson of Eve
56 Solidifies

DOWN
1 Cold War abbr.
2 Memorization method
3 Fat
4 Money in coin
5 Nasty insect
6 Khan title
7 Take off
8 Olympian's prize
9 Dagwood's creation
10 Duel tool
11 Moistens
16 Actor McShane
20 Without further ado
22 Restaurant option
23 Tackles' teammates
24 Cistern
25 Foreman foe
26 Chargers' home
27 Skewer
29 Also
30 Ball in a gym
35 Toothpaste type
37 Halts
39 Resentment
40 Wapiti
41 "Big Brother" host Julie
42 Take on
43 Experts
44 Logical
45 Wield needles
46 Puts together
49 Fancy vase
50 "But — on forever": Tennyson

Solution time: 25 mins.

H	E	R	B		S	H	E		E	M	U	S
O	M	A	R		A	U	X		N	A	T	O
V	I	T	A	M	I	N	C		C	L	A	N
E	L	E	V	E	N		E	P	O	C	H	S
			O	T	T		L	I	M	O
E	N	S		S	E	C		C	I	L	I	A
G	O	U	P		D	U	B		A	M	I	D
G	R	I	E	G		E	E	L		X	I	S
		T	R	A	P		T	A	U
O	B	T	U	S	E		W	I	T	H	E	S
R	O	O	K		S	P	E	C	I	A	L	K
B	R	A	E		T	E	E		L	I	M	A
S	E	T	S		S	A	N		E	R	S	T

Yesterday's answer 10-19

1	2	3	4	■	5	6	7	8	■	9	10	11
12				■	13				■	14
15				16					■	17
18						■	■	19	20
■	■	■	21		■	22	23				■	■
24	25	26		■	27				28		29	30
31			■	■	32			■	■	33
34			35	■	36				37
■	■	38		39			■	40		■	■	■
41	42				■	■	43			44	45	46
47			■	48	49	50
51			■	52				■	53
54			■	55				■	56

10-19 CRYPTOQUIP

PZ R KDRFF MJPFW ZYEDXFRVLK PWLRK. P KXOOYKL OLYOFL MYXFW MRFF VJLD JPK VYV OEYMLKKLK.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: SINCE SOMEONE STOLE MY EBONY KNAPSACK, I'M REALLY TRYING TO GET MY BLACK BACKPACK BACK.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: O equals P

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time —but you might learn something

How well do you serve your community?

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

This is K-State's community service week. How dedicated are you to community service?

Illustration by Donald Lee | COLLEGIAN

1. Your roommate leaves clothes all over the living room. You ...
a. Leave them there and walk on them. They're not yours.
b. Make sure they're clean, fold them and place them on your roommate's bed.
c. Clear a path so you can watch TV — that's it.

2. You walk by a person who looks like he is hungry but can't afford food. You ...
a. Leave him there. It's not your problem.
b. Ask him what he would like to eat and go get it for him.
c. Either give him $5 or your leftovers that you were just going to put in the fridge.

3. Your best friend looks like she had a bad day. You ...
a. Leave her alone.
b. Ask her if she wants to go get some coffee and talk.
c. Ask her if she is OK and then go back to your daily routine.

4. Your friend is on the verge of getting incredibly drunk. You ...
a. Encourage him to drink more. He makes you laugh when he is drunk.
b. Take him somewhere else and give him water and bread so he doesn't have a hangover the next day.
c. Encourage him to stop.

5. You're playing a basketball game, and one person starts bleeding. You ...
a. Sit on the sidelines, annoyed that her injury is postponing the game.
b. Get her a bandage and ask if she needs to go to the emergency room.
c. Stand over her and make sure everything is going to be OK.

If you answer mostly A's, you lack community service skills. You go out of your way to avoid helping other people. You only will help someone if it benefits you. Maybe take these next couple of days to surprise people and cook someone dinner, wash a friend's laundry or even give someone a ride.

If you answered mostly B's, congratulations. You are amazing at community service. You would go out of your way to help other people. You generally think about other people before you think about yourself. Consider joining Alpha Phi Omega, the K-State community service fraternity.

If you answered mostly C's, you only will help if you are thrown into it. If you did community service in high school, it was only to become a part of the National Honor Society. You want to help people, but you're reluctant to take that extra step.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ Sign up this week for intramural cross country, inner tube water polo and bowling. The cost is $1.08 per person plus a bowling fee of $4 per person. Entries will be accepted in the office at the Peters Recreation Complex until 5 p.m. today. For more information, call (785) 532-6980.

■ The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy will facilitate a panel discussion on environmental security 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday in Union 207. The faculty panel will address the question: "Is there a connection between the health of the environment and global security concerns?" Feel free to bring a lunch.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Carlos Tanus at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Call Hall 226.

■ Coffee Hour will be presented at the International Student Center 4-5 p.m. Friday. The title is "Switzerland: A Unique 'Island' in the Middle of Europe."

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Shellie Gutierrez at 10 a.m. Monday in Bluemont 16E.

■ Show Me the Money, a session that addresses topics related to job offer negotiation and salary and benefits in the workplace, will be at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sarah Dorsey at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Waters 342.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Kansas Quality
WOODWORKERS
& Arts and Crafts Show
Shop from woodworking, paintings, pottery, jewelry, embroidery, stained glass and hand woven items.
Pancake Feed
All the pancakes you can eat, with sausage, coffee and orange drink.
$4 for adults, $2 for children
This Saturday 7:00 a.m.-1:00 p.m.
Potter Hall, CCC Park, on Kimble

OPEN HOUSE
FRI. OCTOBER 20TH
9:00 - 3:00
STUDENT-GUIDED PROGRAM TOURS BEGIN EVERY 15 MINUTES.
www.matc.net
The TECHNICAL COLLEGE
MANHATTAN AREA TECHNICAL COLLEGE

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

For more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm
The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.
Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

LONGHORNS
SALOON
1115 MORO · 776-8770
$1.50 DRINKS & DRAWS
FRIDAY OCT 20 · FULL THROTTLE ·
WITH SPECIAL GUEST BRIAN BALES BAND
TICKETS $5 · ON SALE NOW

RAMBLERS
Steakhouse & Saloon
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner- 2 complete dinners
$2.00 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

"When my sister first heard the news that I'm gay, she wrote me an e-mail.
One of the things that it said was,
I'd rather you be dead than gay."
Think it doesn't happen here? It does.
Join us for If Truth Be Told, a play based on the stories of local gay community members.
FREE TO THE PUBLIC!
Manhattan Arts Center
Friday, October 20 at 7:00 p.m.
Sunday, October 22 at 2:00 p.m.
KSU Union Little Theater
Saturday, October 21 at 2:00 p.m.
Saturday, October 21 at 7:00 p.m.
Learn more at www.fhpflag.org or call (785) 770-7550.
PFLAG
Let's get the dialogue going.
Funded by the Manhattan Fund – Cardine Price Charitable Foundation

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword. . .
Now that's something you can bank on.

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.50 Michelob Family Pints
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
$1.99 Margaritas
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

Graduate student's Patriot Act research becomes book

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A K-State graduate student has written a book about the Patriot Act that will be in stores later this fall.

Paul Ibbetson, graduate in sociology, wrote "Living Under the Patriot Act: Educating A Society." He said the Patriot Act is difficult to understand and still needs to be better known.

Before thinking about writing the book, Ibbetson studied the Patriot Act for more than three years.

"To better understand the act, I took a four-month course on legal acts of the Patriot Act," Ibbetson said. "I also looked at how the Patriot Act played into the context of history and how it played into people's fears."

Additionally, Ibbetson researched each original law and how it was incorporated into the act.

As an undergraduate student in criminal justice at Wichita State University, Ibbetson, a former police chief, began studying the Patriot Act in research papers, analyzing the hardships that went into making and understanding the law.

"When going towards a masters, I also incorporated it into my master's thesis," Ibbetson said. "As I continued to build up information, the thought occurred that I could write a book based on the information I had built up.

"The main idea behind the book was to make the act something the everyday person could understand and yet still be stimulating to read."

The law covers more than 350 types of subject matter.

"Living Under the Patriot Act: Educating A Society" states the original law and what changed in the law.

"There are two parts to the book: the original law and the renewal process, which explains many of the controversial sections," Ibbetson said.

He said the book isn't meant to make people agree with his point of view but to make them think about the Patriot Act.

"I want to stimulate people to look into the act and make their own decision, not to force my own agenda or opinion on the reader. My goal is to encourage readers to continue to research," Ibbetson said.

Paul Ibbetson, graduate student in sociology, wrote "Living Under the Patriot Act: Educating A Society." The book will be in stores later this fall.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
in the COLLEGIAN,
the first friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

Thursday Nights @ TUBBY'S Sports Bar
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$2.00 Shots, Wells & Bottles
$2.50 Pounders on Patio
$5.50 Fajita Burger
Mon-Tues 4pm-2am
Wed-Sun 11:30-2am

The best K-State Football coverage in the land is in your campus paper.
GAMEDAY 2006
Coming at you every Friday this football season.

This Saturday October 21st
70+ BANDS
10 AM-2 AM
AGGIE 06 FEST
Live Music Festival right here in Aggieville!
For a schedule & info on giveaways go to:
www.myspace.com/mmcaggiefest
or go to Sisters of Sound, Dusty Bookshelf, Rockstar & Rogers & On The Wildside.

Don't be fooled by the title, this hilarious Broadway musical is fun entertainment for the whole family!
URINETOWN
the musical
Lyrics by Greg Kotis and Mark Hollmann
Book by Greg Kotis
Music by Mark Hollmann
Oct. 11 - 14 and Oct. 18 - 21 at 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 & Oct. 22 matinees at 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre on the KSU campus
Presented by KSU Theatre & Dance and the Dept. of Music
Sponsored by Ramada Plaza Hotel
TKTS: McCain Box Office open 11am to 5pm & K-State Union
Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 wkdays 532-6428
Tickets: $10 student/child $13 military $15 public

We Have Furniture For Everyone!
Featuring: Broyhill Showcase Gallery • Lane Comfort Showcase
Signature Design Collections • Sealy & Tempur-pedic Sleep Center
*3 YEARS FREE FINANCING
3 DAYS ONLY
Friday 9:30-7:00
Saturday 9:30-6:00
Sunday 1:00-5:00
785-776-6755
Faith Furniture
302 E. Hwy 24 • Next to Sirloin Stockade • Manhattan, KS
*Special terms are subject to credit approval and minimum purchase. Some restrictions apply. See store for details. Prior sales not included.

Unprivileged fees

Allocations Committee overlooks college councils, instead granting funds to 'diverse' groups

CHUCK ARMSTRONG

The average student pays $302 in privilege fees per semester.

At first glance, this fee is not that large, considering the average student also pays more than $3,000 in tuition.

For simplicity's sake, imagine there are 20,000 K-State students. That would mean the university brings in more than $6 million in privilege fees each semester and more than $12 million a year. With this much money, our fees should be benefitting every student in some way, right?

Well, I don't think that's the case.

Have you ever heard of the Society for Appreciation of Bharatiya Heritage and Arts? Me neither. Yet our Student Senate found it necessary to grant this Indian dance group $3,000 to perform at K-State. About 10 students on campus are paying for this event to take place.

A Christian student organization, Navigators, was granted $1,000 to send a group of students to its annual Main Event conference.

If Senate promotes Christian fellowship and provides $3,000 to a society nobody has heard of, surely it would try to help its fellow student governing boards.

The helpfulness of Senate, it seems, stops with Navigators and Indian dancing.

More than two weeks ago, the Allocations Committee met with four college councils to discuss budget request denials. Apparently these councils were a few days late with their budget requests, and the committee denied them funds. However, after realizing that perhaps these mistakes were not solely the current councils' faults, the committee decided to allow appeals to be made.

After a week or two of preparation, representatives of the Engineering Council, Architecture Council, Education Council and Arts and Sciences Council attended a meeting at which the Allocations Committee heard appeal requests. At the beginning of this meeting, anyone who was not a member of the committee was asked to leave for a few minutes while it discussed the upcoming hearings.

When representatives returned, they were informed that the Constitution and its statutes say organizations are not allowed to appeal budget request denials. But the committee decided it would go ahead and listen to what each council had to say.

The total of the funds requested by all four councils was $1,731, and not a single dollar of that amount was recommended for disbursement.

The committee felt it was acceptable to go against the Constitution by listening to appeals and taking an official vote regarding each council. It was not kosher, however, to grant these councils some form of funding, even if it was not the total amount they requested.

The evening, as it turned out, was a waste of time for all involved.

Due to recent actions, Senate probably will be seen as an outstanding student governing board, bringing diversity to K-State and sticking to its guns – even if it means college student councils have no operating budgets.

As a student, where do you want your $302 going? I'm sure all of us want to bring in an Indian dance group from a society we can't pronounce before giving money to college councils.

Way to go, SGA.

Chuck Armstrong is a junior in English education. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustration by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

POLITICAL CARTOON | By Donnie Jay

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASSISTANT AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Learn from your elders: Active lifestyles, appreciation for every day improve years

Many of us wake up in the morning cursing the day and the lack of sleep that preceded it.

We trudge through our lives lethargically, accomplishing little and lacking the ambition to attempt any more. College students' attitudes often leave something to be desired.

In speaking with members of older generations, we have gained a new perspective on differences in the activity levels between our lives and theirs.

Walking through the halls of Meadowlark Hills, one woman said with a mischievous grin, "I have the giggles."

At the Manhattan retirement community, there is a basketball team, a volleyball team and other activities to keep octogenarians busy.

Waldo McBurney, at 104 years old, recently was honored as America's oldest worker. He continues to keep bees and do other jobs despite his age. McBurney also took up running at age 65 and set records in several senior track events well into his 80s and 90s.

He attributed his long life to staying active, eating right and a lack of smoking and drinking.

These people appreciate every day. While some think life slows down as it goes on, plenty of elderly people try new things and become more active as they age.

Rather than sit on our behinds, we should learn from our elders: get up and get moving.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

To the girl who dropped her Subway cup because of a bee: haha.

So would anyone be offended if I kicked a squirrel on campus?

To the man with the headphones on, loudly serenading the computer screen at Hale Library at 3 a.m. until the security guard came over: thanks for disturbing my studying.

To the person who made the comment about Chi O: did you know that Chi O is ranked third in GPA out of all the sororities? So you think wrong.

Hey, Sigma Chi, I saw you in the paper today. Don't you know line-ups are illegal?

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

TO THE EDITOR

Leadership, excellence take time to develop; ROTC freshmen proud of service to country

Editor,

In response to the letter written by Carl Brown, I am one of three flight commanders in ROTC this semester at K-State. I am a junior here, and there is a good chance I was the one you saw calling a cadence.

It is the first semester of the academic year, and we are in the process of training about 60 freshmen. They are brand new in their four-year journey to become officers.

First of all, I would like to challenge your position as a judge of our motivation. These new cadets are among the most motivated people I have ever met. You of all people, as a veteran and a college student, should understand that it takes a lot of training (especially with future officers in the military) to become excellent at what you do.

Brown, did you get thrown into the war that you fought in, or did you become conditioned over time to be able to adapt to and overcome the situations you might have faced while you were there?

I will attribute your claims to ignorance and ask that you read into your topic next time before you turn your paper in, because I give you an F.

As for the new cadets, many of them will go on to be outstanding officers, as many have before them from K-State ROTC.

They will all tell you that they love what they do and are proud of what they do, and I will tell you that you may continue to sleep safe at night because of them.

Rhett Batanides
SENIOR IN MANAGEMENT

ROTC cadets' motivation, professionalism outweigh beginners' lack of cadence

Editor,

I take exception to Carl Brown's comments about ROTC's perceived lack of pride.

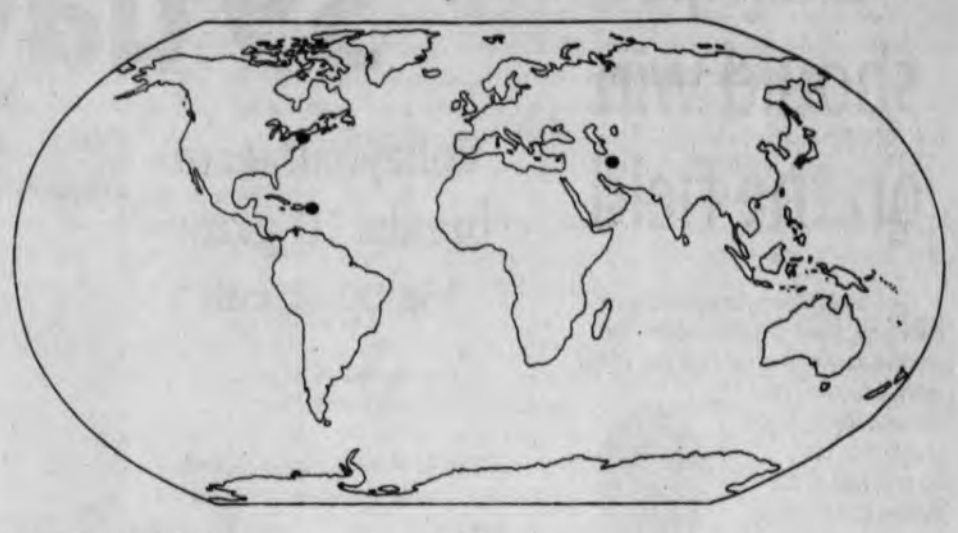
I am a first-year cadet but an 18-year Air Force brat. One of the reasons I came to K-State was the excellent AFROTC program. My father is a lieutenant colonel, so I know what's expected from officers, and every day, I'm impressed with our cadets' motivation and professionalism.

Senior cadets don't just tell us what to do, they mentor us and help us out with anything we need.

I look forward to wearing my uniform; I feel proud to wear it, contrary to Brown's observations. What he saw last Thursday was our Warrior Run out to the fire station to learn rapelling.

More than 60 percent of our Corps are brand-new cadets, so we don't know all the jodies, but we do our best to learn and keep in step. Our not knowing the songs shouldn't be cause for embarrassment; I like to think it takes more than cadence to make a good officer.

Instead of forming opinions from what he saw last week, Brown should come and see our parade this spring, where we'll get a chance to show everybody some Air Force pride.



Jan Ames
FRESHMAN IN CHEMISTRY
AIR FORCE ROTC

Kansas State University Campus Phone Book
Get it in Kedzie 103.
Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

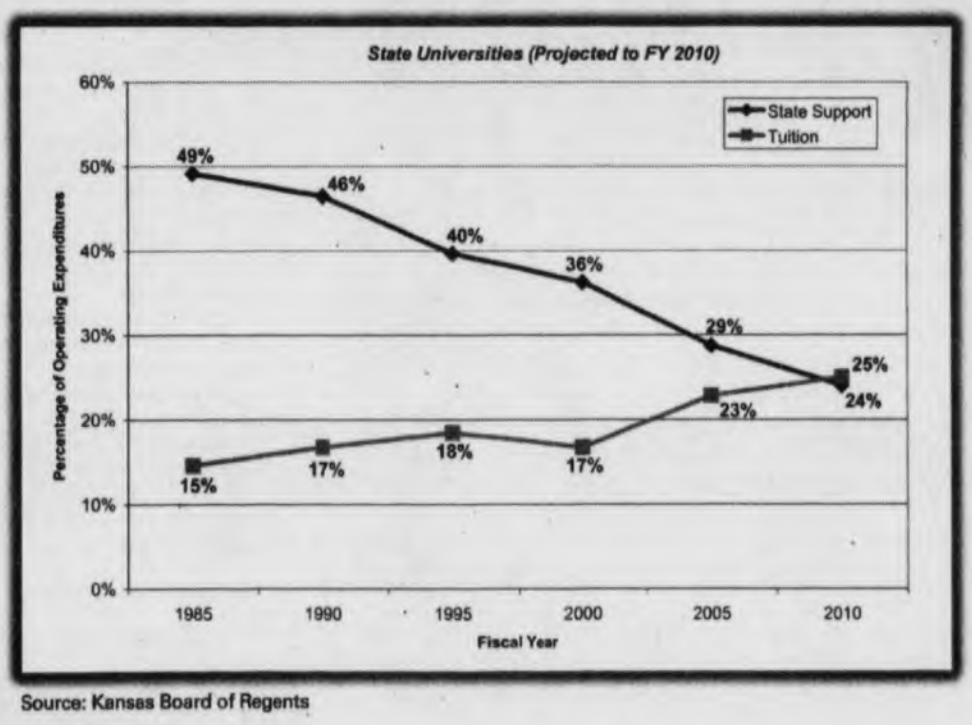
News Briefs

Around the World

WORST-POLLUTED CITIES PUT 10 MILLION AT RISK

NEW YORK – More than 10 million people are at risk for lung infection, cancer and shortened life expectancy because they live in the 10 worst-polluted cities in the world, according to a report issued Wednesday.

The worst-polluted places in the world, the report said, are in secluded areas far away from capitals or tourist areas.



U.S. COLONEL TO STUDY ALLEGED ABUSE OF PRISONERS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico – A U.S. Army colonel arrived at Guantanamo Bay Wednesday to investigate allegations that guards at the prison abused detainees and denied them water, a military spokesman said.

IRAQ'S PREMIER TALKS WITH TOP SHIITE

NAJAF, Iraq – Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki consulted with Iraq's Shiite spiritual leader and a radical, anti-U.S. cleric Wednesday in a bid to enlist support for efforts to build political consensus and tackle widening sectarian violence.

Source: Kansas Board of Regents

TUITION UP
STATE SUPPORT DOWN
WHAT CAN YOU DO?
VOTE NOV 7

State support for Kansas universities has dropped to all time lows. Meanwhile your tuition climbs higher than ever. What's going on? Why is the state cutting back when we need well educated workers more than ever? Who's being priced out of a college education?

HIGHER ED REPORT CARD GRADES LEGISLATORS

Citizens for Higher Education has issued a Report Card that grades every state legislator on their higher education votes. Legislators were scored on 31 votes cast over the last two years. They received a numerical and letter grade. Find your legislator, check their grade, then cast your vote on November 7th. Make sure your parents, family, faculty, administrators, alumni and friends know, too.

HONOR ROLL

Ballard, Barbara - Lawrence
Burroughs, Tom - Kansas City
Carlin, Sydney - Manhattan
Colloton, Pat - Leawood
Cox, Ray - Bonner Springs
Craft, Barbara - Junction City
Crow, Marti - Leavenworth
Davis, Paul - Lawrence
Dillmore, Nile - Wichita
Faust-Goudeau, Oletha - Wichita
Feuerborn, Bill - Garnett
Flaherty, Geraldine - Wichita
Flora, Vaughn - Topeka
Garcia, Delia - Wichita
Gatewood, Doug - Columbus
Grant, Robert - Cherokee
Hawk, Tom - Manhattan
Henderson, Broderick - Kansas City
Henry, Jerry - Cummings
Hill, Don - Emporia
Holland, Tom - Baldwin City
Huff, David - Lenexa
Huntington, Terrie - Mission Hills
Johnson, Dan - Hays
Kirk, Nancy - Topeka
Kuether, Annie - Topeka
Lane, Harold - Topeka
Light, Bill - Rolla
Loganbill, Judith - Wichita
Long, Margaret - Kansas City
Loyd, Ward - Garden City
Lukert, Steve - Sabetha
Mah, Ann - Topeka
McKinney, Dennis - Greensburg
Menghini, Julie - Pittsburg
Miller, Melody - Wichita
O'Malley, Ed - Roeland Park
Owens, Tim - Overland Park
Pauls, Janice - Hutchinson
Peterson, Michael - Kansas City
Phelps, Eber - Hays
Pottorff, Jo Ann - Wichita
Proehl, Richard - Parsons
Ruff, L. Candy - Leavenworth
Ruiz, Louis - Kansas City
Sawyer, Tom - Wichita
Sharp, Bonnie - Kansas City
Sharp, Stephanie - Lenexa
Sloan, Tom - Lawrence
Storm, Sue - Overland Park
Svaty, Joshua - Ellsworth
Swenson, Dale - Wichita
Thull, Tom - North Newton
Treaster, Mark - Pretty Prairie
Trimmer, Ed - Winfield
Ward, Jim - Wichita
Williams, Jerry - Chanute
Winn, Valdenia - Kansas City
Wolf, Kay - Prairie Village
Yoder, Kevin - Overland Park
Yonally, Jim - Overland Park

PASSING GRADE

Goico, Mario - Wichita
Holmes, Carl - Liberal
Horst, Deena - Salina
Krehbiel, Carl - Moundridge
Mast, Peggy - Emporia
Roth, Charlie - Salina
Tafanelli, Lee - Ozawkie
Wilk, Kenny - Lansing

FAILED

Aurand, Clay - Courtland
Beamer, Virginia - Oakley
Bethell, Bob - Alden
Brown, Anthony - Eudora
Brunk, Steve - Bel Aire
Burgess, Mike - Topeka
Carlson, Richard - St. Marys
Carter, Eric - Overland Park
Dahl, Don - Hillsboro
DeCastro, Willa - Wichita
Decker, Kathe - Clay Center
Edmonds, John - Great Bend
Faber, John - Brewster
Freeborn, Joann - Concordia
George, Pat - Dodge City
Gordon, Lana - Topeka
Grange, John - El Dorado
Hayzlett, Gary - Lakin
Holmes, Mitch - St. John
Huebert, Steve - Valley Center
Humerickhouse, Joe - Osage City
Hutchins, Becky - Holton
Huy, Bonnie - Wichita
Johnson, Everett - Augusta
Kelley, Kasha - Arkansas City
Kelsey, Richard - Goddard
Kiegerl, S. Mike - Olathe
Kilpatrick, Patricia - Overland Park
Kinzer, Lance - Olathe
Knox, Forrest - Fredonia
Landwehr, Brenda - Wichita
Masterson, Ty - Andover
Mays, Doug - Topeka
McCreary, Bill - Wellington
McLeland, Joe - Wichita
Merrick, Ray - Stilwell
Miller, C. Frank - Independence
Morrison, Jim - Colby
Morrison, Judy - Shawnee
Myers, Don - Derby
Neufeld, Melvin - Ingalls
Oharah, Lynne - Uniontown
Olson, Robert - Olathe
O'Neal, Michael - Hutchinson
Otto, Bill - LeRoy
Peck, Virgil - Tryo
Pilcher-Cook, Mary - Shawnee
Powell, Larry - Garden City
Powers, Ted - Mulvane
Schwab, Scott - Olathe
Schwartz, Sharon - Washington
Shultz, Clark - Lindsborg
Siegfreid, Arlen - Olathe
Vickrey, Jene - Louisburg
Watkins, Jason - Wichita
Weber, Shari - Herington

Details on all the votes can be found at www.kansashighereducation.org.
If you're not registered to vote go to http://www.kssos.org/elections/elections_registration.html

Report card prepared by Citizens for Higher Education. Ad paid for by BizPAC.

VOTE NOV 7

Champs should win on the field

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

The Bowl Championships Series standings made its season debut last weekend, and now the best part of the college football season can finally begin.

No, not the second half of the season and the bowl games at the end of the year. I would rather watch the constant debates the analysts have about how the NCAA needs to install a playoff system in Division I-A football.

Every year the two teams that play for the national championship are decided by a computer system, and every year there are teams worthy of a title shot that get left out.

Take two years ago, for instance. Five teams all finished the regular season with undefeated records. Southern California (12-0) played Oklahoma (12-0) in the Orange Bowl for the national championship, while Auburn (12-0), Utah (11-0) and Boise State (11-0) were relegated to bowl games with less importance.

USC crushed Oklahoma 55-19, and many pondered what the national title game would have been like had Auburn been selected in place of the Sooners. Instead, Auburn had to play Virginia Tech in the Sugar Bowl, and the Tigers defeated the Hokies 16-13.

Utah defeated Pittsburgh 35-7 in the Fiesta Bowl, and Boise State was dropped by Louisville 44-40 in the Liberty Bowl.

Even with losses by Boise State and Oklahoma, there were still three undefeated teams at the end of the season, and only one was crowned champion.

In no other sport – high school, collegiate or professional – is a champion crowned with multiple undefeated teams. The champion is decided by letting all the best teams play in a playoff system until there is an outright winner.

With the debut of the BCS standings last Sunday, this season is shaping up to look a lot like 2004.

Ohio State (No. 1), USC (No. 2), Michigan (No. 3), West Virginia (No. 5), Louisville (No. 7), Boise State (No. 15) and Rutgers (No. 16) are the seven remaining undefeated teams in Division I-A football.

Five of these teams are scheduled to play each other, and these will be some of the most important games of the rest of the season.

The season finale in Columbus, Ohio, between Ohio State and Michigan will decide which team gets the first spot in the national championship game Jan. 8 in Glendale, Ariz. The other spot will be determined by one of two scenarios.

If USC runs the table, which is most likely to happen, it will play in its third consecutive national title game. The other option for the second spot can only happen if USC were to lose sometime during the rest of the season. If that were to occur, the winner of the Nov. 2 Louisville-West Virginia game would take the other spot.

Boise State and Rutgers do not have a chance at reaching the title game because they are both too far back in the standings and cannot jump enough teams to make it to No. 2 even if they were to remain unbeaten. Also, all of the teams in the Southeastern Conference with one loss, (Auburn at No. 4, Florida at No. 6 and Tennessee at No. 11) have no shot because that conference is so stacked with talent, and those teams always beat each other out of title contention. (See Auburn beating then-No. 2 Florida 27-17 last weekend.)

Analysts and fans alike will continue to criticize today's formula for a national champion until some sort of playoff system is established.

Games are won and lost on the field, and college football championships should be decided the same way.

Cedrique Flemming is a senior in print journalism and business. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

39 days later

Volleyball team breaks 10-game losing streak

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State women's volleyball team finally got what it waited 39 days for.

A win.

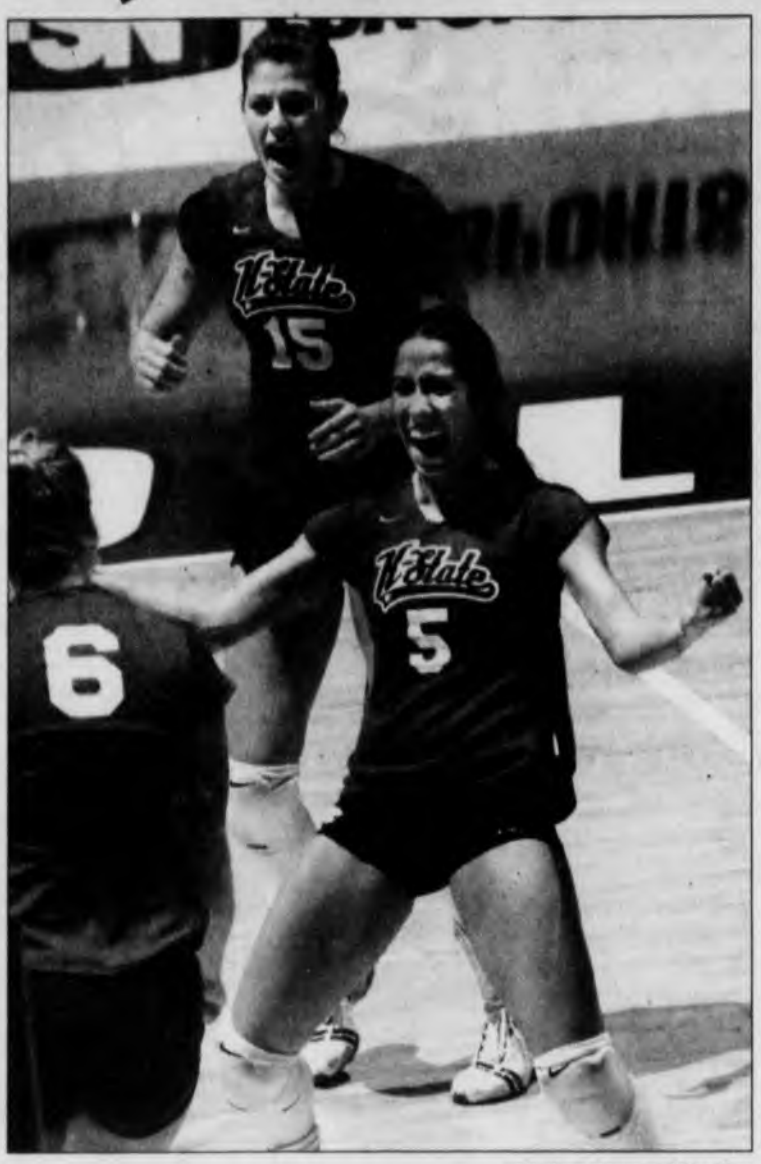
The Wildcats snapped their 10-match losing streak by defeating Texas Tech 3-1 (30-22, 24-30, 32-30, 30-19) at Ahearn Field House on Wednesday night. It was the Wildcats' first win since Sept. 9 and put an end to the team's worst conference start since 1993, when it finished winless in what was formerly the Big 8 Conference.

Junior Angie Lastra and senior outside hitter Sandy Werner led the way for the Wildcats, finishing the match with a combined 39 kills.

Though coach Suzie Fritz said she was pleased with the win, she believes her team has more to prove.

"We're not done; we haven't been done all along," she said. "That elusive first win has eluded us for some time, but our intentions are to keep going."

In the opening game, the Wildcats (9-11, 1-9 Big 12) jumped out to leads of 11-6 and 20-13 behind the strength of six kills by Werner. Texas Tech middle blocker Amy Charlebois helped keep the Red Raiders (10-9, 3-7 Big 12) within reach, totaling three kills and helping her team pull within four points. But the Wildcats went on an 8-4 run, capped off by a kill from sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker, and the Wildcats won 30-22.



K-State finished the game with a .286 hitting percentage on 19 kills. Junior setter Stacey Spiegelberg assisted on 18 of them and chipped in a kill of her own. Spiegelberg finished the match with a team-high 57 assists.

"I think we got in a good rhythm," Werner said.

"Our passers really stepped up, and I thought they did a great job passing, which was great, so we could run our offense."

That rhythm did not carry over to the second game. The Wildcats came out flat, committing seven attack errors – half of the Red Raiders' first 14 points – and fell behind 14-5. Despite the early deficit, K-State pulled within three points at 27-24 on kills by Kroeker and middle blocker Megan Farr. The Wildcats couldn't finish the rally, however, and the Red Raiders scored the final three points and took the game 30-27.

Texas Tech out-hit the Wildcats .306 to .053 in the game.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
K-State's Angie Lastra celebrates the Wildcats' first Big 12 Conference win with teammates Sandy Werner, front, and Stacey Spiegelberg Wednesday evening at Ahearn Field House. The Wildcats beat Texas Tech 3-1.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Megan Kroeker, left, and Jenny Jantsch go for a ball during the Wildcats' match against Texas Tech Wednesday evening at Ahearn Field House.

"We just have to get the game-two lull to not be a consistent thing," Fritz said, referring to her team's inability to follow up game-one wins recently. "But after a below-average performance, we came back and put two nice games together."

The third game belonged to Lastra and Werner, who combined for 15 kills, helping the Wildcats squeak by the Red Raiders after a back-and-forth game. Neither team led by more than four points throughout the game. Lastra's eight kills put the Wildcats in position to win, and Werner finished off the job.

With the score tied at 28, Werner scored three of the Wildcats' final four points, helping them to a 32-30 win.

With a 2-1 lead and a chance to win the match, the Wildcats didn't waste any time in the fourth game. They took an early 9-4 lead and never looked back, winning the game 30-19 and securing their first Big 12 Conference win of the season.

"It feels awesome, amazing ... I'm just happy," she said. "I don't care about anything else right now."

Open tryouts show team style

By Ben Fallin
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Men's basketball coach Bob Huggins now scares me to death. He didn't even say a word; he just sat in the stands. That was enough to terrify me during basketball open tryouts on Oct. 16 at Bramlage Coliseum.

I knew walking into Bramlage that my chances of making the team were slim. But how many people can say they had the pleasure of having a future Hall of Fame coach yell at them or instruct them on how to improve their game?

Knowing I had pretty much no chance of making the team, I wasn't nervous a few days in advance. Then I walked through the doors to make my way to the playing floor, and my mood changed.

That's when my nerves got the best of me.

What kind of drills would a notoriously tough coach put the players through? Would we do sprints? How much running would we really do, and how many times would I vomit?

Josh Eilert, men's basketball administrative intern and a former K-State basketball player in 2002-2004, said Huggins had the open tryouts every year he was at Cincinnati. Eilert said, Huggins views the tryouts as an opportunity to show fans and potential players a small dose of what it would be like to play on his team.

The tryouts weren't as difficult as I had assumed. We met at center court and were told by Eilert that Huggins was looking for two guys who could play aggressive defense, since the coaches assumed anyone could make a basket.

All of the other 26 attendees looked bigger, stronger and faster than me. I was pleasantly surprised with my performance among some talented players. Don't get me wrong – I wasn't even close to making the team, but at least I was better than a few of the guys who went.

The tryout began with a few drills of two-on-one, three-on-two and five-on-four fast breaks. The coaches then split us into three different groups of big men, big guards and what looked to be point guards.

Since I'm a hulking 6-foot-5 and 185 pounds, I was placed with the big men. Even though my game is more "Allen Iverson shoot from the outside" first and pass second, Huggins thought I was suited to play the

See TRYOUT Page 8

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

GLF | Quick finishes 13th; team finishes 11th in tournament

K-State shot a 61-over-par to place 11th at the Price's Give 'Em Five Intercollegiate tournament in Las Cruces, N.M.

The three-day tournament was at the New Mexico State University's home golf course. NMSU placed first in the event with a 26-over-par 890. K-State scored a 61-over-par 925.

Individually for the Wildcats, junior Kali Quick tied for 13th with a 9-over-par 225. Tying for 35th was junior Michelle Regan, who shot a 16-over-par 232. Junior Hailey Mireles tied for 42nd with a 17-over-par 233. Senior Helene Robert tied for 72nd with a 25-over-par 241, and sophomore Krista Nelson tied for 74th with a 26-over-par 242.

"Today we couldn't make up any ground," she said. "It was a good field. Going into this morning, if we could get a top-seven finish, it would have been a good result in this field."

The main thing the Wildcats will work on going into their next tournament, the Edwin Watts Palmetto Invitational at Kiawah Island, S.C., will be something other than drills.

"The pieces are there; it's just a matter of putting them together," Knight said. "In some cases, it's a case of over-trying. I never have to worry about these girls caring, but I think over-trying is a problem for the girls this year."

— Wendy Haun

TEN | 2 players win in 1st round, but fail to qualify for main draw

TULSA, Okla. — Two K-State players earned opening round wins but failed to qualify for the main draw during pre-qualifying rounds at the ITA Central Region Tournament on Wednesday.

Fernanda Da Valle and Natasha Vieira defeated their opening-round opponents at the Michael D. Case Tennis Center, but fell one win short of advancing to Thursday's main draw.

Da Valle, playing in her first match of the fall after missing the first two tournaments rehabbing an injury, surrendered just one game en route to a straight-set win. Da Valle fell to Oklahoma State's Jessica Collins, 6-1, 6-2, in her second match of the day.

K-State's Tereza Prochazkova was outlasted by Arkansas' Melissa Hoffmeister in a three-set tie-break in the opening round.

The Wildcats have four players who will compete in Thursday's main draw.

The tournament marks the third event for the Wildcats this fall and runs through Sunday. The singles champion and doubles champions will receive a berth in the ITA National Indoor Tournament at Ohio State University.

Associated Press

CFB | OU running back Peterson plans to return in 4-6 weeks

NORMAN, Okla. — Adrian Peterson plans to play at least one more game for Oklahoma.

The star tailback, speaking publicly for the first time since breaking his collarbone on Saturday, said he intends to play in a bowl game if the Sooners reach the postseason.

"I'm praying each night for a speedy recovery," Peterson said Wednesday at a news conference. "I love to play the game. I would enjoy going out there and playing with the guys and getting back on the field."

Peterson, whose left arm is in a sling, said he could be back in four to six weeks, but Oklahoma trainer Scott Anderson offered a six-week timeframe for Peterson's return. The injury is being treated without surgery, Anderson said.

If Peterson makes it back in four weeks, he conceivably could play in Oklahoma's final two regular-season games, at Baylor on Nov. 18 and at Oklahoma State on Nov. 25.

104-year-old K-State grad named U.S.'s oldest worker

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

R. WALDO MCBURNEY
Sterling
Agriculture

Phi Delta Kappa; Ag Association; Y. M. C. A.; Horticulture Club; Rice County Club; Apple Judging Team (4); Sterling College (1, 2).

Photo courtesy of 1927 Royal Purple yearbook

Waldo McBurney just can't seem to stop.

At the age of 104, McBurney, of Quinter, Kan., has been honored as America's oldest worker by Experience Works, an organization that helps seniors find training to gain employment in their communities.

McBurney graduated from K-State when it was still called Kansas State Agricultural College in 1927 with a degree in horticulture, but McBurney said he remembers a different K-State than the one that exists today.

"There were about 4,000 students, and it wasn't like the thousands like it was now," he said. "We had some winning teams – cross country, track, maybe not football so much."

After working in the agriculture industry for about 25 years, McBurney became self-employed with seasonal businesses, including income tax preparation, agricultural work and beekeeping.

While he has sought to cut down his workload, McBurney still works as a beekeeper, although he has had to hire help for several years.

"I still keep bees, but my back doesn't stand up to heavy lifting at all," he said.

Keeping bees has taught McBurney how to deal with the insects and their somewhat moody behavior. While he's a seasoned veteran of the trade, McBurney said he has received his fair share of stings.

"It varies," he said. "Some days, the bees aren't friendly, and some days they are very friendly. When they're busy bringing in honey, they don't pay attention to anything else."

To keep in shape, McBurney said he has always enjoyed running and began running distances when he was 65. About 10 years later, McBurney began entering races and continued to compete for the next 25 years.

"I suppose one of my greatest runs was a 10-mile one when I was 80," he said. "I had been running the 10K. I didn't do a lot of training on it."

McBurney's 10-mile run set a Kansas record, which still stands. McBurney also set several records in running, long jump, discus and shot put events at competitions like the Senior Olympics and World Masters.

With his active lifestyle, retirement has not been in McBurney's plans, although he has tried to slowly step away from activities.

"I've been retiring," he said. "I would just chop one off and then another and then another."

But any thoughts of relaxation have been replaced with the promotion of McBurney's book, "My First 100 Years!" In the book, McBurney said he tried to reveal some of his secrets of longevity in the work field and in life.

He said he had been working on the book for about 12 years before it was published.

"My doctor told me I should write a book, and I decided I must have something to write about," he said.

"It isn't a book that you should do this and do that. It's what I did. It involved good nutrition, eating a lot of fruits and vegetables, beans and good nutritional products."

Partnership engages campus

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Fort Scott, Kan., needed to determine the water capacity at Fort Scott Lake, K-State helped.

Alok Bhandari, associate professor in civil engineering, and several students went to the field and worked to determine the capacity. By doing this, Bhandari said the city saved at least $30,000 it would have spent on a consulting firm.

This project was part of the Center for Engagement and Community Development, which began July 1. The center was formed to give K-State a way to teach students, help researching teachers, and contribute to the well-being of the state by becoming active partners with towns all across Kansas.

"The university is into fulfilling its historic mission – the land grant mission – so that we are the people's university," David Procter, director of the center, said. "That means we want to work with citizens, groups and local communities."

Provost Duane Nellis said he hopes the center will make K-State a more engaged institution, thereby making it one of the premier land-grant universities.

A few parts of the university, like the College of Agriculture, already have established work with the center.

Fred Cholick, dean of the College of Agriculture and director of K-State Research and Extension, said Research and Extension has been practicing engagement for the last 100 years. The center will partner with Research and Extension.

Procter said the center is the place for community leaders to discover what K-State can do to help solve local challenges and problems.

"It's this idea that we take expertise we have here at K-State and match that expertise to community needs," Procter said.

The center also helps professors research in the real environment while giving back to the state, said Dan Kahl, liaison between the center and Research and Extension.

"This partnership will strengthen the research here with efforts across the state," he said. "K-State has incredible research that is vitally needed for the growth of Kansas communities."

Another example of engagement work is a drama therapy class for adolescents with special needs that took place last summer at K-State.

"When students are involved it gives real-life context to the curriculum," Kahl said. "They're learning and often it gives added relevance to their curriculum."

An extension agent in every Kansas county advises the center of issues in his or her county.

"The main thing, essentially, is that is we're trying to match all the expertise of K-State to the communities," Procter said.

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian's
Gameday
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

LIVE
FRIDAY & SATURDAY NIGHT
LANCE COMBS
Nightly Food & Drink Specials!
For the Best Live Country Entertainment, it's only at. . .
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. (in the Blue Hills Shopping Center)
RC McGraws
776.9588

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station
at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

MONEY FOR COLLEGE
NOW
Because Aunt Joan needed more Botox®*.
She got a facelift, you got the tuition bill.
Not to worry: a Campus Door student loan can cover up to 100% of your education costs, with online approval in less than a minute.
All without the painful side effects.
campusdoor.com
CAMPUSDOOR
GREAT FUTURES START HERE
Like this poster? Download your own printable PDF version at campusdoor.com/posters

BLUEMONT
HALLOWEEN THEME BUFFET
$7.95
CASH, CREDIT, & DINING CARD ONLY
Tossed Poison Ivy Greens w/ Red Eyes, and whatever they can find???
Creamy Worm Salad
Ant Salad
Finger Jello
Spicy Bat Wings
Ghoulish Goulash
Carved Ham with Bloody Sauce
Roasted Red Skin
Maggots in the Garden
Green Eye Sauté
Rotten Cauliflower Bake
Assorted Gourmet Desserts and Halloween Treats
Black Bread
Witches Braided Bread
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL 532-6452
Bluemont Room, 2nd Floor K-State Student Union
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 2006

TRYOUT | Franklin, Johnson stand out, asked to practice on team

Continued from Page 6

post. That was his first mistake and ultimately my doom.

The drills were fun for awhile. Then they brought out the pads. Two assistant coaches pushed me around, knocking me back-and-forth, all while I tried to make a layup. Needless to say, I failed to make the shot 2 feet from the bucket.

After they were done shoving me around, we split up into four different teams of six or seven players to play two 10-minute scrimmages. Both scrimmages were sloppy, which was expected, considering none of us had ever played together.

However, the coaches spotted two individuals who stood out, sophomore James Franklin and junior Brady Johnson.

"(Franklin and Johnson) had the most court savvy," Eilert said. "They both played well with the teams. We had them in practice (Tuesday), and they both did well. They were aggressive, and it looks like they may be able to help us out some."

While I never had the slightest chance of making the K-State basketball team, it seems that if both Franklin and Johnson can survive their first week of practice with Huggins, not only will they make the team, but they actually might contribute to the team at some point.

As for me, I'll watch from the stands, knowing what I knew going in: I'm a better college basketball fan than I am a player.

VOTE | Registration locations ease process for 18-24-year-olds

Continued from Page 1

County or who want to establish Riley County as their home, voter registration ends Oct. 23. Those still needing to register can do so at any public library, city office, Dillons or at the Riley County election office.

"Their best bet would be to come into the election office, being as it is getting close to the end of registration," Vargo said.

The election office, 110 Courthouse Plaza, is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day this week to accommodate last-minute registrants.

To find out which polling place corresponds to a given address, visit www.myvoteinfo.voteks.org.

On Nov. 7, all polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The number of voters in the 18- to 24-year-old age demographic has been declining steadily since 1981. The U.S. Census Bureau estimates that only 15 percent of registered voters fall into this age category.

"Voting is one of the fundamental practices in a democracy, and people should support that," Brian Tsiames, sophomore in music, said. "People in other countries walk miles just to be able to participate, and all we have to do here is go online for two minutes. There should be no excuses."

POPULATION | Rural areas offer incentives to draw residents tendency to be wasteful, (it) does hurt our natural environment."

Continued from Page 1

Because population predictions have been wrongly estimated in the past, it is uncertain where we will be in 50 years, Hoff said.

Shonda Wallace, sophomore in early childhood education, said overpopulation is not something to be concerned about.

"What we really should think about is society, not overpopulation," Wallace said. "If anything, we need more people in this world because we need better moms."

Overpopulation isn't something that concerns all parts of the nation, however. With most Americans migrating to Western and Southern cities and metropolitan areas, some areas, including Ellsworth, Kan., are offering free land and incentives to draw residents to reverse the loss of population in this region.

"There are good and bad things about offering free land," said an Ellsworth County Commissioner's office employee who refused to give her name. "It brought in children to the school systems, but it also brought in problems."

Along with offering free land often comes disappointments, the employee said. "Here come these people from the East and the West looking for an acre, and all we have is a lot. They aren't getting what they thought they would."

Concerns of overpopulation aren't a matter of human survival as much as personal comfort, Hoff said. It is uncertain where the population growth will go from here in terms of a growing economy, and he said what is important is how the nation handles it.

Marines to begin sending reserve combat battalions back to Iraq for 2nd tours

By Robert Burns
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON – The Marines are drawing up plans to send back to Iraq at least some reserve combat battalions that have already served one tour there, officials said Wednesday – the first time such units would be returned to the war.

The plan to remobilize those reserve forces is designed to relieve some of the growing strain on active-duty Marines.

A Marine Corps spokesman, Lt. Col. Scott Fazekas, said Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld gave the Marines the go-ahead to conduct detailed planning on how the battalion reactivations would be done. Initially, Fazekas said Rumsfeld had approved the plan itself. Later he said the approval was for detailed planning.

Eric Ruff, a spokesman for Rumsfeld, said Wednesday evening that no specific proposals have been presented to Rumsfeld. "The Marines are reviewing a range of options and concepts for future consideration by the secretary and, to date, nothing has been approved," Ruff said.

The Army, which is organized differently than the Marine Corps, has not sent any of its National Guard combat brigades back to Iraq for a second tour, although it is considering making more use of the Guard. Both the Marines and Army have sent reserve support units and active-duty forces to Iraq multiple times.

The return of Marine Reserve combat battalions to Iraq would begin in 2008, according to a senior Marine officer who discussed the subject on condition he not be identified because no official announcement has been made. Thus, the first picked to go back probably would be remobilized next year to train for the mission.

The plan, put forward by Gen. Michael Hagee, the Marine commandant, could be modified as the situation in Iraq changes, officials said. For planning purposes, the Marines are working out future force rotations that would include at least one Reserve combat battalion starting in 2008.

The Marines have decided to take this unusual step in order to alleviate a problem that both the Marines and the Army are wrestling with as the Iraq war rages on unabated: wear-and-tear on the active-duty troops, who are getting far less time at home to recuperate and retrain than military leaders would like.

The short respites between combat tours are not only a morale issue but also an obstacle to providing soldiers and Marines with sufficiently varied training and adequate time to attend professional development schools.

The Marines, for example, are not doing as much training for large-scale, high-intensity combat – combining their air, land and sea forces – as they normally would do, officials said. They do, however, have the time to do high-intensity combat training on a smaller scale, in addition to counterinsurgency training for Iraq missions.

The Marines have 24 active-duty combat battalions. At any given time, nine of them are in Iraq.

To increase the amount of time between deployments, the Marines have decided to make more use of their reserve combat battalions, of which there are nine. The main restriction the Marine Corps faces is a 24-month limit on the amount of time a reservist can be mobilized, so those who were on active duty for more than 12 months the first time will not be remobilized, since the planned mobilizations would be for 12 months, Fazekas said.

Feel FREE 8 oz. bottle of American Crew Shampoo boo-tiful
Shear Dynamics
$18 Nail Fill
12th & Laramie • www.sheardynamics.net • 776-9100

Why Look GHOSTLY with SAVINGS this scary!
Bronze Image Tanning Salon
$25 one month UNLIMITED
* Level 1 Beds * Must present coupon * 1 per person exp. Oct. 31, 2006
1122 Laramie • 539.3742

Britt's Garden Acres
HAY RACK RIDES
PUMPKIN PATCH
CORN MAZE
SCHEDULE YOUR GROUP EVENT WITH A BONFIRE!
Events run on the weekends
Saturday 10-6 • Sunday 11-6
1400 S. Scenic Dr. • 539-1901

The Apple's Heart
Come check out our Halloween Collection
Prices so good it's Spooky
431 Poyntz Tuesday-Sunday 317-5475

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
ONLY $5!
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

Grand Ol' Trunk
Thrift Shop & Bookstore
Grasp What you Need For Halloween
Seek and you shall find just the thing to create that perfect costume
1304 Pillsbury Drive
Hwy 177 South
537-2273

2 greek chapters glimpse into handicapped world

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Kristin Collings, freshman in political science, pours a glass of water for Nick Ensign, senior in construction science and management, who then tries to find the glass with help from Chris Myers, senior in speech. Ensign was blindfolded to experience what it is like to be blind during a Pi Kappa Phi philanthropy dinner Wednesday evening.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Tied to a chair, Chris Myers, senior in speech, had to answer the door of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity house before the chapter's formal philanthropy dinner with Sigma Kappa Wednesday evening.

Nationally the fraternity is involved with PUSH America, a disability awareness program, but it is the K-State chapter's first year participating in the event.

Pi Kapp President Tyler Price, senior in broadcast journalism, decided to participate because of the event's purpose.

"We are spreading awareness about philanthropy," Price said.

To enforce the idea, each participant randomly selected a disability and had to try eating, despite complications. While some wore ear plugs, and some were tied to their chair, Nick Ensign, senior in construction science and management, sported a purple bandana. He knocked over a glass and needed assistance picking it up.

"I feel excluded from everybody," Ensign said. "I'd rather be deaf."

Unlike people in the handicapped community, participants were able to take out their earplugs, pull down their bandanas or untie the yarn around their wrists.

While interacting with the Pi Kapp and Sigma Kappa members, Pi Kapp housemother Mary Thompson served toppings for the hot fudge sundaes that followed the main course of lasagna.

Instead of having food delivered by Chartwells Educational Dining Services, like usual, the fraternity prepared the meal itself.

"It just kind of made it more of an intimate thing instead of catering something," Price said. "It felt good to get to put something on for the ladies."

250 volunteers help at zoo, Tuttle Creek, Boys and Girls Clubs

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Nearly 250 students are donating their time this week for K-State's Community Service Week.

This is about 50 more students than in previous years, said Monica Parrish, special assistant in the Community Service Program.

The week-long event was organized by the university's Community Service Program and is designed to help students become involved in the community.

Judith Lynch, director of the Academic Assistance Center, said in previous years Community Service Week was a positive experience for her students in the University Experience course.

"The program is all set up for them, so they don't have to make phone calls or take the initial step that may be a little scary," Lynch said. "We hope the students will find something they like while volunteering and stick with it."

At least 100 University Experience students are volunteering during Community Service Week, Lynch said.

Many students in leadership courses at K-State also will participate, as well as many other students who are connected to the Community Service Program.

Students will donate their time to a variety of causes throughout the week. Volunteers will help the Tuttle Creek Lake Association by placing fish habitats in Tuttle Creek Lake. Others are donating time to the K-State's University Gardens and helping with garden maintenance.

Scott Shoemaker, Sunset Zoological Park director, said the eight to 15 volunteers at Sunset Zoo every day this week were much needed.

"It's a huge help to us," Shoemaker said. "A lot of things that we wouldn't get done – or that would take us a long time to get done – are getting done right now."

Sunset Zoo relies heavily on volunteers throughout the year, especially during fall when the staff prepares for the cold weather. The zoo only employs 15 full-time staff members but has more than 200 volunteers, said Diane Paukstelis, marketing development director for Sunset Zoo.

Paukstelis said K-State student volunteers have been a large help in preparing for the zoo's largest event, Spooktacular, on Oct. 28-29.

"The volunteers have been taking flyers around town and to local schools," Paukstelis said. "Also, people have been helping put together decorations."

One leadership class will organize a themed area for Spooktacular, Paukstelis said. As part of a class project, the students will plan a Peter Pan area and be in charge of it at the event.

Students also will help with maintenance and will spend time with the children at K-State's Child Development Center. Some students will help with yard work for the elderly clients at Homecare and Hospice. Others will donate time to the Manhattan Arts Center and the Boys and Girls Clubs of Manhattan.

Students interested in colunteering can contact Patrick Simpson at (785) 532-3650.

collegian Explore it kstatecollegian.com

Bill Snyder's Alley
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2 Boulevards Blue Moon Killian's Widmer Wheat and Domestic Bottles
$1.75 Domestic Draws
LIVE MUSIC ON THE PATIO
Mikey Needleman

Porter's
537-7151 706 N. Manhattan Ave
50¢ TACOS Hard & Soft
$3.00 Jager Bombs & Red Bull and Vodkas
$2.00 Import Bottles & Micros
$1.50 Any Pint
$3.00 Any Sandwich
11-2 (Open @ 11)

TIRED OF THE OLD AGGIEVILLE SCENE?
FRIDAY IS Ladies NIGHT @
BOWINKLE'S
featuring DJ LUIS women 18+ FREE
starts Friday the 13th
Free Prizes and Final Cash Prize
$3.00 32 Oz. Domestic Moose Beers
3034 W. Anderson Ave

k-state
family day
Saturday, November 4, 2006
www.k-state.edu/familyday

The Salty Rim
1204 MORO 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$1 SPIKES
1/2 PRICE MARGARITAS
$2 MICROS & IMPORTS
$2 DOMESTIC BOTTLES
PARTY PIC NIGHT

Happy Howl-a-ween!
$5 OFF Your First Visit
Bark Avenue
CANINE DESIGNS
607 N. 11th • Aggieville • 565-0612

XL
Extra-Large Cheese Pizza only $5.99
DELIVERY HOTLINE!
770-333
GUMBY'S Pizza

We Deliver and cater
we're also open Late
No tricks, just treats
The Pita Pit
FRESH THINKING HEALTHY EATING
1131 Moro • 537-3995

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

Advertise here.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 Kedzie 785-532-6560

Peace Corps gives global experience, understanding

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sarah Mitts will graduate next May and spend the following year getting work experience.

However, her plans after that are unlike many others'. They involve dedicating two years of service to developing a project in Cambodia with the Peace Corps.

Mitts, senior in business management, talked with students Wednesday during the Academic Majors Fair at the Peace Corps booth. She described the different programs available, as well as the many benefits.

"It's like a hands-on internship for two years where you implement a project," Mitts said. "You take all of your experiences and skills and utilize them in a development project in a community of need."

Mitts said she has had different international service experiences in countries like India and Paraguay. She said her career focus is in international development in the nonprofit sector.

"A lot of developing nations lack organization and structure," she said. "I'm matching my management skills with my international passion for service."

She said volunteers serve two years in the Peace Corps. They focus on fields of agriculture, business development and education, youth outreach, community development and others.

Mitts described one option the Peace Corps provides – the ability to earn a master's degree while in the program.

She said there are two different ways to do this, both of which involve studying in the United States and also working in a developing country. She said there are more than 50 universities in the United States that accept applicants for this program.

Mitts said service in the Peace Corps gives job applicants a non-competitive eligibility for federal jobs and shows employers they are able to adapt to a diverse environment.

"If an employer sees that you have Peace Corps on your résumé, there is no reason to ask further questions," she said.

Mitts said the application process can take up to nine or 10 months. Applicants fill out information about their skills, work experience and education. Accepted applicants later receive the name of a country where they are placed and can decide if they want to accept the location or pass and wait for another opening.

Autumn Scoggan, freshman in special education, stopped by the booth, because she hopes to join the Peace Corps in a few years.

"The younger the better, so I can be healthy enough and get the most out of it," Scoggan said.

She said the Peace Corps interested her because she's always wanted to travel.

Bradley Shaw, director of international studies, stressed the importance to students of an international understanding and experience for the future.

He said studying abroad and other international experiences are beneficial for all types of future employment. Shaw gave examples of professions, like doctors, that benefit from being able to use an international perspective when dealing with clients and co-workers.

"Students today are aware that the world is getting smaller," he said. "The work place is culturally, ethnically, racially and linguistically diverse. Having an understanding of the world we live in is in all of our interests."

Distance education lets students earn credit away from campus

By Austin Apple
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

For Kevin and Ellen McLain, moving to Manhattan to attend K-State wasn't an option.

Through K-State's Division of Continuing Education, both were able to earn degrees without moving to Manhattan from Jefferson City, Mo.

Kevin earned a master's degree in civil engineering, with a specialization in geotechnical engineering, in December 2003.

Ellen earned a certificate in personal financial planning in January 2005.

Ellen works for the office of gift planning and endowments at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Though they both work full-time, they decided returning to school would help them in more ways than one.

"I needed to know more about financial planning so I could get the bigger picture," Ellen said.

The DCE program also allowed them to keep up with their field.

"The majority of my coworkers have a master's or higher, and I wanted to be at the same level as they were," Kevin said.

K-State has the third-best distance education program in the nation with the University of Nebraska-Lincoln having the second best, according to DCE Web site.

The DCE lets students take classes without setting foot on campus, the program's Web site said.

"I had a statistics class that was taught using PowerPoint," Kevin said.

Classes taken through the DCE are taught in ways other than PowerPoint.

The rest of his classes were videotaped and mailed to him.

"I was two or three days behind the actual class," Kevin said.

The tests were mailed to him and were proctored by a librarian he knew.

The DCE program is essential for someone like Ellen, who travels for her job.

"My job requires me to constantly travel, so being able to take quizzes and meet for class online was a big help," Ellen said.

The DCE has been at K-State since the early 1980s.

"For more than 25 years, K-State has been offering high-quality courses and degree programs in new and innovative ways to students who are not located geographically near the Manhattan campus," the Web site said.

To take a DCE class, students pay the same price they would pay for an academic course at K-State.

"The cost of the course is calculated based on the tuition, fees, technologies used and services provided," Beth Unger, DCE dean, said.

There are more than 10,000 students enrolled in the DCE program, Unger said.

She said students can enroll in DCE courses online or in the program's office.

Students have to apply for admission before they have completed 12 hours, Unger said.

"An admitted student may sign up for courses, and when they are admitted, an adviser is assigned to them," Unger said.

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

First Amendment
U.S. CONSTITUTION

ROYAL PURPLE
yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532 6555.

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn
CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

THURSDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 FISH BOWLS
$2.00 BOTTLES
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Check Out
sudoku
in the Classifieds

More than Names & Numbers.
Student e-mail addresses are included.
Kansas State University
Campus Phone Book
2006-2007
Available Now
for purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

CONGRATULATIONS
SIG[illegible] KAPPA
New Initiates
Stephanie Anspaugh • Christina Brown • Kari Buehler • Megan Campmbell
Alyssa Cardona • Laura Casemore • Jennifer Cassells • Bailey Charland
Alicia Chavez • Kristin Collings • Morgan Coonrod • Jiva David
Amanda Hassman • Randi Lang • Meagan Legler • Jill Maurer
Erica Freeman • Erin Goode • Rachel Graf • Kristen Harvey
Lindsay McKown • Dena McManoman • McKayla Moore
Kristin Otte • Hillary Parker • Hayley Rudiger
Kristen Sandborn • Brittany Sanderson
Kristen tebow • Leah Thompson
Allison Schmidt • Jill Smith
Rene Vos • Sarah Waite

Sports Rehab
Do You Want to Work With Athletes?
Logan's Department of Sports & Rehabilitation is designed to assist students in the management of injuries & assist in the treatment of patients in a clinical setting.
Master's Degree in Sports Science & Rehabilitation ▶ Unique Dual-Degree M.S./D.C. & Independent Graduate Degree Formats
▶ Develop Skills in the Assessment, Treatment, Conditioning & Injury Management of Athletes
▶ Work with Professional, Collegiate & High School Sports Teams
▶ Learn from Experts in Sports Medicine & Sports Chiropractic
▶ Treat patients in the state-of-the-art BIOFREEZE® Sports & Rehabilitation Center
If you are looking for a career in healthcare offering tremendous personal satisfaction, professional success and an income commensurate with your position as a Doctor of Chiropractic, contact Logan University today!
LOGAN UNIVERSITY
www.logan.edu
1-800-533-9210
loganadm@logan.edu

For all the excitement and info surrounding homecoming.
This is your one-stop spot!
To Advertise Call 785-532-6560
HOMECOMING GUIDE
Check it out OCTOBER 23RD in the Collegian.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

THREE-BEDROOM TWO bath duplex with garage. 821 Mission. Available now. Lease ends May 31, 2007. $900/ month. No pets, no smoking. 785-776-9260.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

KSU - CU Game. Join us for a Buffalo hunt in Boulder! Our chartered bus will leave at 11:00 am, Friday, November 3 and return after the game on Saturday. Travel package includes chartered bus, a double occupancy room at the Westin in Boulder (the team hotel) and game ticket for $220. For reservations please call Kathy Dahnke at GTM Sportswear at 785-537-8822 ext. 1120.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

FEMALE ROOMMATE for Christian household needed immediately for four-bedroom, two-bath house. Air Conditioner, Washer/ Dryer. No smoking or pets. $232.50/ one-fourth utilities. Additional room also available in December. Brandy 785-313-1205.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Living with girls in a four-bedroom house. Six blocks from campus. $375 includes utilities. Call Amber 620-343-0663.

145 Roommate Wanted

LOOKING FOR Male Subleaser. Clean and honest household. Lease is for January 2007 through August 2007. Close to campus. $250 a month. 785-562-7454.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

TWO-BEDROOM, one-bath apartment for sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600/ month, available now. 785-410-7266.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

BUFFALO WILD Wings is looking for a few good buffalo to join the herd. Now accepting applications for daytime cooks. 1231 Moro Street. 785-323-WING.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

COMPUTER INFORMATION SPECIALIST at Kansas State University responsible for programming, desktop support, and network management for national association. BS/BA required. Salary $42,000 - 50,000. 785-532-5717, for more information: http://www.-nacada.ksu.edu/joboppenings-cis.htm Equal Opportunity Employer

310 Help Wanted

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

FULL TIME position open in the Operating Room at Geary Community Hospital for a PACU nurse. Applicant must have a current and unrestricted Registered Nurse license with the State of Kansas; Med/-Surg and ICU experience preferred; current ACLS and BLS certification. The hours for the position are 0800-1630 Monday through Friday with occasional overtime required. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; fax to 785-238-1700 or email to cwitt@gchks.org; or apply on line at www.gchks.org.

GEARY COMMUNITY Hospital a very progressive 92 - bed acute care facility is looking for RCP's. Nestled in the Flint Hills of Kansas, and in the fastest growing community in the state, we provide excellent health care to both in-patient and out-patients utilizing the latest technology available. In addition, our hospital is undergoing a $34 million expansion project that will serve us far in the future. We offer competitive salaries and benefits packages for our employees. For more information contact Geary Community Hospital; 1102 St. Mary's Rd.; PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; email to; cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

IMMEDIATE HELP needed transferring from wheelchair. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 5-7 p.m. Call 785-537-3871.

INTERNET WORK! $9-$150/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ Summer. Studentservesite.com/kscollegian

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.-com.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vis'adrivein.com

310 Help Wanted

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH/ Front Office Assistant Hours 20- 30, Summer 40 hours. Assist Evaluators with program evaluation activities & Office Manager with front desk and Director projects Kansas State University, Office of Educational Innovation and Evaluation. Email ubel@ksu.edu or call 785-532-2982.

WE HAVE a full-time position open in our physician offices for a RN, Associate Degree preferred Clinic nurse, during the hours of 0830-1700 but must be willing and able to work a flexible schedule if necessary. Applicant must have a valid, unrestricted Kansas nursing license, be graduated from an accredited nursing program; experienced with ICD-9 coding, triage skills required; familiar with automated equipment; supervisory experience in a clinical setting preferred; the ability to plan, organize, and perform nursing care; and work as a team member in a fast-paced environment. Interested and qualified nurses should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, Ks 66441; email to: cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700. Equal Opportunity Employer.

Campus Phone Book
Get it

310 Help Wanted

NOW HIRING!
• Wait Staff
• Bartender

Pietro's

Stop by for an application today!

539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

FOR SALE: (Like New) Lawn Mower. (Like New) Flat - Screen Monitor. (Old) Sewing Machine. 785-537-1423.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

1995 DODGE 4x4. Good condition. $3500 or best offer. Call 785-556-0851.

530 Motorcycles

SWEET RETRO Honda Moped. 49cc, 50 mpg, wire baskets. No insurance required. Park at bike racks. $750. 316-207-3511.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

600 Travel Trips

610 Tour Packages

looking for a job?

CHECK THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT Kansas State Collegian 103 Kedzie 785.532.6555

Got old stuff?

GET RID OF IT!

in the Kansas State Collegian
103 Kedzie
532-6555

Management Career Opportunity

Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.

Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.

Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

Now Hiring Concession workers for men's and women's basketball games

Athletic Operations - Concessions
Phone: 785-532-7604

$6.50 Starting wage, fun atmoshpere, promotions from within, must speak English & be able to count back change

ASInc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"

Let our friendly staff help with your job search!

25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse

Also openings for:
Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor

No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available

Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

Dillons FOOD STORES

Current applications are being accepted at Dillons Westloop 1000 Westloop, Manhattan for the following positions:

- Daytime Cashier
- Daytime Courtesy Clerk
- Clerks for Bakery and Deli

Must be 18 years of older, with daytime availability
Apply online at www.dillons.com or Store Kiosk at Dillon's Westloop

"When my sister first heard the news that I'm gay, she wrote me an e-mail.

One of the things that it said was,

I'd rather you be dead than gay."

Think it doesn't happen here? It does.

Join us for If Truth Be Told, a play based on the stories of local gay community members.

FREE TO THE PUBLIC!

Manhattan Arts Center
Friday, October 20 at 7:00 p.m.
Sunday, October 22 at 2:00 p.m.

KSU Union Little Theater
Saturday, October 21 at 2:00 p.m.
Saturday, October 21 at 7:00 p.m.

Learn more at www.ihpflag.org or call (785) 770-7550.

PFLAG
Let's get the dialogue going.

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

			1
1	7		5	6		9
					9	5
	5				7		4	8
6				4				5
7	8		6				1
		3	4
		2		8	3		6	7
					6

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@kstatecollegian.com

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel Trips

Beer fest

Dating back at least 10,000 years, beer has been a beverage of choice among the young and old. Today, the brewing industry has become a huge international business with millions of multinational companies and small producers.

Courtesy photo

TOP 12 BEER BRANDS

■ The shipment totals listed are measured in millions of barrels of beer sold worldwide.

Top brand	Shipments
1. Bud Light Anheuser-Busch	38.9
2. Budweiser Anheuser-Busch	36.0
3. Skol InBev	26.6
4. Corona Grupo Modelo	23.4
5. Heineken Heineken N/V	19.4
6. Brahma InBev	17.6
7. Miller Lite SABMiller	17.6
8. Coors Light Molson Coors Brewing Co.	16.3
9. Asahi Super Dry Asahi Breweries	16.1
10. Tsingtao Tsingtao Brewery Corp.	11.5
11. Polar Cerveceria Polar	11.4
12. Yanjing Beijing Yanjing Beer Group	10.8

Source: Global News and Research for the Drinks Executive, 2005.

Clash of the 40s

Five brave beer experts risk their taste buds and sobriety to find out which 40-ounce beers to choose for a party.

Class:	ERICKA BRUNSON senior creative writing	BRENDAN PRAEGER senior secondary education	AMANDA CRUMRINE senior accounting	LEWIS LOMAX senior history	JESSIE PATTERSON senior accounting/finance
Olde English "800"	C "It's not terrible, but it's not far off." - Patterson	C	C "That's terrible. Isn't this a brand of wood polish?" - Lomax	C-	C-
Mickey's	B+ "It's good, but it would be better if two of them were duct-taped to my hands." - Crumrine	B+	B+ "That tastes like a good, drunk night." - Brunson	A	B
King Cobra	C+ "It's kind of stale, like the Corona equivalent of Natty Light." - Praeger	C+	C+ "This needs to have a lime in it." - Crumrine	C+	B-
Colt 45	B- "It smells like stale piss, but it actually tastes pretty good." - Brunson	B	B "It goes down smooth, no stanky aftertaste." - Praeger	C	B+
Shlitz Malt Liquor	D "Gross! It's like licking a boot." - Patterson	D-	D "I like it. It's dark. I'd probably get sick of it after a while, though." - Lomax	B-	D-

More beer for your buck

Bars or liquor store? Social factors aside, you can get more beer per dollar when you avoid Aggieville.

Graphic by Brendan Praeger| COLLEGIAN

THIS YEAR... A look at beer-related events that occurred during these years in history

1490s Native Americans use corn to make homemade beer

Columbus found Native Americans making beer from corn and black birch sap. Corn is one of the oldest known main ingredients used to make beer, according to www.beerhistory.com. Even today, manufacturers use corn as a base in their beer products.

1587 Colony brews 1st American beer

The first beer brewed in the New World was at Sir Walter Raleigh's colony in Virginia. Although the beer was local, colonists would request to beer from England because it tasted better. By 1612, the first commercial brewery opened in New Amsterdam (now New York City) after colonists advertised in London newspapers for experienced brewers.

1876 Budweiser becomes 1st beer brand

After moving from Germany, Adolphus Busch pioneered the beer-making movement and established the first American beer brand, Budweiser. Busch built an extensive delivery infrastructure of refrigerated railcars to keep the beer fresh and cold in transit, according to researchers at Webster University. Today, his company, Anheuser-Busch is the leading American brewer and brews the world's largest-selling beers, Budweiser and Bud Light.

1810 Oktoberfest established for Bavarian royalty

Oktoberfest isn't just for Germans anymore. People have flocked to Germany from all parts of the globe to participate in the world's largest annual festival for nearly 200 years. In addition to the two-week celebration in Munich, the Bavarian capital where the tradition began, Oktoberfest is enjoyed in one form or another in cities and towns worldwide, according to www.infoplease.com.

So how did this global party get started? (And why didn't anyone think of it sooner?) Prince Ludwig of Bavaria, who was later crowned King Ludwig I, wanted his people to share in the celebration of his marriage to Princess Therese of Saxony-Hildburghausen on Oct. 12, 1810.

Source: www.beerhistory.com; Photos: courtesy art.

THE BEER QUIZ

Test your knowledge of beer history, health facts

1. Which of the following ingredients is normally not an ingredient for brewing beer?
A. Barley
B. Hops
C. Corn
D. Brewers yeast

Courtesy photo

2. How many calories are in an average 12-ounce serving of light beer?
A. 50
B. 100
C. 150
D. 200

3. Monks brewed beer to meet their nutritional needs during Lent. Beer was nicknamed:
A. Liquid Lunch
B. Liquid Pizza
C. Liquid Meat
D. Liquid Bread

4. Beer is a good source of vitamin C.
A. True
B. False

5. Brewers yeast used in beer is a great source of which nutrient?
A. Niacin
B. Folic acid
C. Chromium
D. All of the above

Courtesy photo

6. Calories from the alcohol in beer can be stored as fat in your body.
A. True
B. False

7. One gram of alcohol has how many calories?
A. 7
B. 10
C. 14
D. 17

8. Drinking one beer per day has been associated with a lower risk of which disease?
A. Pancreatitis
B. Colon cancer
C. Heart disease
D. All of the above

9. Heavy drinking of beer will increase your risk of which disorder?
A. Liver cancer
B. Stroke
C. Cirrhosis
D. All of the above

10. According to the International Movie Database, how many movies have the word "beer" in the title?
A. 30
B. 45
C. 60
D. 85

11. Which beer brand was the first to produce a light beer?
A. Heineken
B. Coors
C. Budweiser
D. Miller

Answers: 1. C, 2. B, 3. D, 4. B, 5. D, 6. A, 7. A, 8. C, 9. D, 10. C, 11. D.
Source: www.about.com

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, October 20, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 45

Special Section
Roadtrip to Missouri for K-State's 2nd away game of the season

More than 70 bands to play at Aggiefest '06

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Those who have ever complained about Manhattan's music scene will have the chance to sample the sounds of more than 70 bands Saturday at Aggiefest '06.

Aggiefest, which takes place from 10 a.m. to 2 a.m., will be the first multi-genre, live music festival in Manhattan.

A few years ago, a group of local music buffs formed the Manhattan Music Coalition. This team, made up of a handful of people, had an idea for individuals in bands, their fans and people in the Manhattan community who enjoy music.

This year's Aggiefest is the first time MMC has put together something of this caliber, Evan Tuttle, MMC president, said.

"But everybody who responded was really excited about this event," he said.

There will be 18 stages and 16 hours of live music through the day, and some refreshments will be served.

The majority of the bands are from Manhattan, but several are from surrounding cities like Junction City, Topeka, Wichita, Lawrence and the Kansas City area. Tuttle said there will be music for every taste.

"It will be a fantastic day surrounded by live music everywhere we could put it," he said.

There will be free music all day, but three venues will charge a separate cover: Auntie Mae's Parlor, P.J.'s Bar and The Dusty Bookshelf. All funds raised during the event will be used for future projects of the MMC.

Tickets for the three places cost $10, less than paying three separate covers, and are available at Sisters of Sound Music, Rockstar & Rogers, On the Wildside and The Dusty Bookshelf. This ticket functions as an all-access pass to Aggiefest and qualifies the ticketholder for a prize drawing.

At the event, ticketholders receive a wristband, which gets them in everywhere and makes a distinction between those above and under the age of 21.

Because of the event's size, there were plenty of difficulties in planning, Tuttle said. However, he said difficulties were to be expected in filling more than 120 spots of music.

See AGGIEFEST Page 7

This year's must-have

Americans will need to have passports for all air travel outside the U.S. starting in January

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Americans' must-have for this year's holiday season is not a pair of shoes or fur-lined coat – it's a passport.

U.S. citizens will be required to have a passport, Air NEXUS card or U.S. Coast Guard Merchant Mariner Document for air travel to Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, the Caribbean and Bermuda by Jan. 8, 2007.

The new regulations are part of the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative through the Departments of State and Homeland Security.

Land or sea trips across the U.S. border and nearby areas previously required a just copy of a birth certificate, but passports or other documents determined by the Departments of State and Homeland Security are anticipated to be required by U.S. citizens by Jan. 1, 2008.

The departments also have proposed regulations for a new travel document called the PASSport card, an alternative type of identification for U.S. citizens traveling across land borders or on cruises to Canada, Mexico and the Caribbean.

But the details on land or sea travel are still being worked out, said Tara Marsh, travel consultant for Jade Travel in Manhattan. The regulations have been changed a few times already, Marsh said, especially with regard to cruises.

"They have changed, and they have still been working out the details on this," Marsh said. "They may change again. This is probably the third change."

■ Passport applications can be obtained at the post office or downloaded off the U.S. Department of State's Web site on international travel at www.travel.state.gov.

Jim Hanni, executive vice president of the Kansas region of AAA, said the change in passport regulations has not been too difficult for his agency to handle.

Manhattan's AAA office has experienced an increase in business, Hanni said, which has not been the trend across the state.

"Overall, we're down as far as traffic this year, probably about 3 to 4 percent," he said. "We think that is an effect of gas prices this year."

Marsh said she has not seen any change in planning by travelers despite the passport regulations. Some hotels and companies are offering discounted prices to entice people to travel.

See PASSPORTS Page 7

Sunday's events begin Homecoming festivities

By Nicole Johnston
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Events this weekend will mark the beginning of this year's All-University Homecoming.

The starting event will be Sunday's All-University Philanthropy 5K race followed by spirit signs, spirit banners and a sidewalk chalk contest in Bosco Student Plaza.

Homecoming 5K race
When: Lineup begins at 9:30 a.m. Race begins at 10 a.m. Oct. 22
Where: K-State Alumni Center
Cost: $20 for all race-day entries
For more information, contact Andrea Bryant Gladin at (800) 600-ALUM (2586) or (785) 532-5070.

Students can register for the race until the day of, Sarah Dorward, senior in management, said. Registration will be 8:30-9:30 a.m. Sunday, and the fee is $20.

The 3.2-mile race will begin east of the K-State Alumni Center at 10 a.m.

"This is the fourth year it has been in existence, and the money is donated to a different local organization each year," Dorward said.

This year, the money will go to the Boys and Girls Clubs of Manhattan.

The race is open to anyone, and participants may walk or run, said Andrea Bryant Gladin, race coordinator and K-State Alumni Association associate director of alumni programs.

She said that to help with the event, each Homecoming pairing is asked to have at least three volunteers help with the race. The volunteers direct the runners and hand out water.

According to the event flyer, prizes will be given to the top males and females in the student and non-student categories of the race.

After the race will be the judging of spirit signs and banners and a sidewalk chalk contest in Bosco Student Plaza.

Cat Buchanan, vice president of the Arts and Sciences Council, said the group is excited to participate in the sidewalk chalk contest.

"This is a great way to participate as an organization independent of greek," Buchanan said.

— Kristin Hodges contributed to this article.

Political signs on greek lawns not representative of all views

ELECTIONS 2006

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In front of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house are signs supporting Republican candidates. However, not all members of the house are Republican.

Zachary Davis, chapter president of SAE, said it is not the fraternity's decision which candidates' signs are placed in the yard.

"Our alumni who (are) in charge of the building makes the decision of what signs go in the yard," Davis said.

The Collegian made numerous attempts Thursday evening to contact an alumni member of the fraternity, but all were unsuccessful.

Bob Strawn, Jim Ryun, Jim Barnett are all Republican candidates in upcoming elections and all are represented in front of the SAE house.

"Our house is evenly divided between political parties," Davis said. "The sign in front of our house

See SIGNS Page 7

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

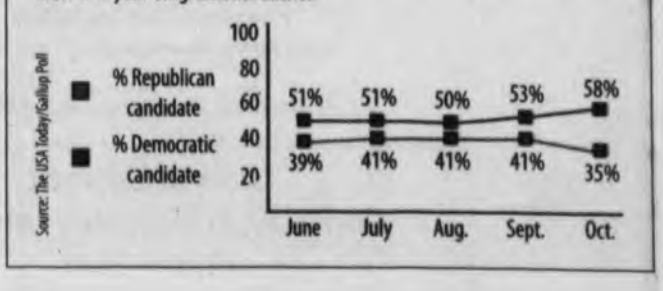
Signs for political candidates, like Bob Strawn, are posted on the lawn of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. The signs are for the Nov. 7 election.

Today's forecast
Partly cloudy
High: 70 Low: 46

ONLINE

Student Senate

After speaking with Bob Huggins, Student Senate finalized allocations to SafeRide and the athletics department at its meeting Thursday.



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Lecture rescheduled
The lecture by Donna Brazile is rescheduled for 7 p.m. Monday in Forum Hall. Doors open at 6 p.m. Brazile was the manager of Al Gore's 2000 presidential campaign. The lecture originally was scheduled for Tuesday, but inclement weather hindered Brazile's travel plans.

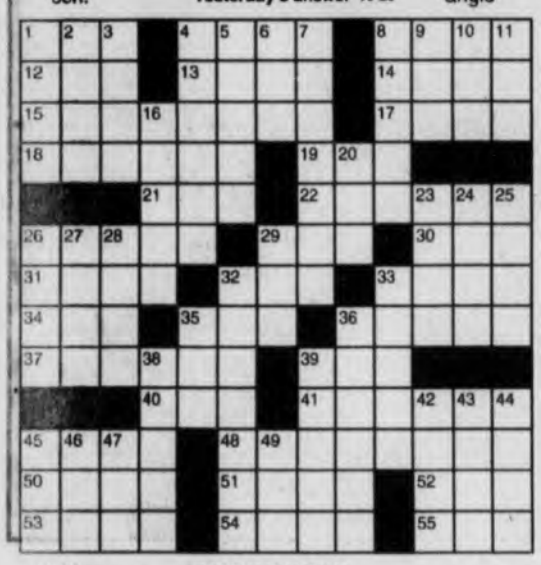
Institute renamed
Pat Roberts, the U.S. senator who recognized the risk posed by terrorists to the nation's food supply, is being recognized with the naming of a new building in his honor. Pat Roberts Hall will be home to K-State's new $54 million Biosecurity Research Institute. The name was approved Thursday by the Kansas Board of Regents.

Building renamed
K-State is renaming its Military Science Building in honor of Gen Richard B. Myers, who has served as the nation's highest ranking military officer. On Thursday, the Kansas Board of Regents approved the renaming of the building to Gen. Richard B. Myers Hall. A dedication ceremony, will be 1:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 9.

Time for a change?
If the elections for Congress were today, which party's candidate would you vote for in your Congressional district?

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Jazz style
4 Mail co.
8 Compassion
12 Mimic
13 Quarrel
14 Path for Hope and Crosby
15 Barbecue fuel
17 Partially mine
18 Real
19 Branch
21 Sickly
22 Gents' abbr.
26 Glasses
29 Become one
30 Golfer Michelle
31 End a drive
32 Scoundrel
33 Charlie Brown's nemesis
34 Past
35 Carton
36 Change
37 Mexican liquor
39 Winter bug
40 Columbus sch.
41 Word's closing syllable
45 Lint
48 Geological era
50 Skewed, to Scots
51 Puffed
52 Shirt type
53 Subsequently
54 Automaker Ransom Eli —
55 "Not only that, but ..."

DOWN
1 Crimson Tide, for short
2 "Well" financed grp.
3 Nuisance
4 Habitués' orders
5 Cause a stain
6 Memorized
7 Got angry
8 Senior moments?
9 Debtor's letters
10 Pitch
11 Gridiron meas.
16 With haste
20 Roulette bet
23 "M*A*S*H" cast member
24 Ceremony
25 Prognosticator
26 Unwanted e-mail
27 Summon on a beeper
28 Cupid's alias
29 Shine up
32 Unkempt sleuth
33 Hardly the epitome of grace
35 — -relief
36 Grants permission
38 Deceive shrewdly
39 Welded
42 Tittle
43 Carriage
44 Scored 100
45 Corpulent
46 "Eewww!"
47 Wye follower
49 Right angle

Solution time: 25 mins.

U	R	L	S		W	A	R	M		S	E	W
S	O	A	P		A	G	U	E		A	P	E
S	T	R	E	I	S	A	N	D		N	E	T
R	E	D	C	A	P			A	N	D	E	S
			I	N		B	E	L	O	W
V	A	S	E		S	O	N		W	I	T	H
A	L	A			P	O	D			C	O	O
T	I	N	G		I	T	S		C	H	O	P
		D	E	P	T	H		E	E
C	H	I	L	I			A	L	A	S	K	A
H	I	E		Q	U	I	C	K	S	A	N	D
E	R	G		U	R	G	E		E	N	I	D
N	E	O		E	N	O	S		S	E	T	S

Yesterday's answer 10-20

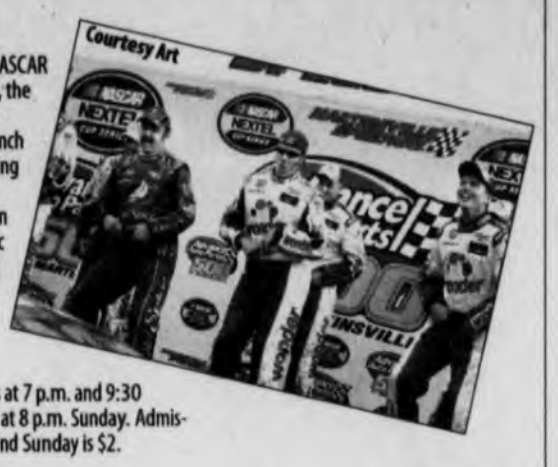
10-20 CRYPTOQUIP

A K U J F J M K D H L E G - G T L J S Q F X W V E Q M L T U V F T D W D L T W D A E H K F X W M L X ? K D Q L S B J X L M M D B B E B U D.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A SMALL CHILD FORMULATES IDEAS, I SUPPOSE PEOPLE COULD CALL THEM HIS TOT PROCESSES.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: W equals G

BEST BETS



Your social calendar for the weekend

20 Friday

UPC After Hours
7:30-8:30 p.m. and 9-11 p.m.
Union Courtyard and Union Recreation Center

This week, UPC brings in pool trick shot artist Paul Gerni to entertain K-State students. As an added bonus, UPC will serve free nachos to the first 150 people who arrive.

Feature Film: "Talladega Nights: The Ballad of Ricky Bobby"
8 p.m. Forum Hall*
Admission: $1

Will Ferrell plays NASCAR driver Ricky Bobby, the No. 1 driver on the circuit. When a French driver starts climbing the ranks, Bobby's talent and devotion are tested. A classic Ferrell movie filled with crazy actions and hilarious dialogue.

*Movie also shows at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Saturday and at 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission for Saturday and Sunday is $2.

"Hamlet"
7:30 p.m. McCain Auditorium
Admission: $25 for the public, $23 for faculty, military and seniors, $12.50 for K-State students and children.

Actors From the London Stage comes to K-State to perform one of Shakespeare's tragedies. The play centers on Hamlet, the young prince of Denmark, who tries to avenge his father's death while also trying to find his own identity.

21 Saturday

Aggiefest
10 a.m. to 2 a.m Aggieville

This 16-hour music festival is sure to feature music to fit every taste. Come down to Aggieville, have a drink and soak up all the great music. There are more than 70 bands participating.

22 Sunday

Homecoming 5K race
10 a.m. Alumni Center
$20 for all race-day entries

Begin the All-University Homecoming week by participating in, or cheering for those in, the 5K race. It begins at the K-State Alumni Center. The race is sponsored by the K-State Alumni Association, and anyone can participate.

The planner
Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy will facilitate a panel discussion on environmental security from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in Union 207. The faculty panel will address the question: "Is there a connection between the health of the environment and global security concerns?" Feel free to bring a lunch.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Carlos Tanus at 1:30 p.m. today in Call Hall 226.

■ Coffee Hour will be presented at the International Student Center 4-5 p.m. today. The title is "Switzerland: A Unique 'Island' in the Middle of Europe."

■ "Iraq for Sale: The War Profiteers" will show at 7 p.m. Sunday in the K-State Student Union Big XII room. This is Robert Greenwald's latest movie about corporations making millions off of the Iraq War. For more information, visit http://iraqforsale.org.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Shellie Gutierrez at 10 a.m. Monday in Bluemont 16E.

■ Show Me the Money, a session that addresses topics related to job offer negotiation and salary and benefits in the workplace, will be at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sarah Dorsey at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Waters 342.

■ Walk-in Wednesdays will be noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

The Apple's Heart
Where Kansas meets New York
431 Poyntz Ave. • Tuesday-Sunday • 317-5475
10% OFF
on already great prices
with presentation of KSU or military ID
We pay cash for your name brand jeans !!

Dog Walktober Fest
Saturday, October 21
•Receive prizes for doggy costume contest•
Sponsored by American Academy of Cosmetology & Design
A Receive 20% off
City Park Shelter
Pre-register $5 Registration Fee
All proceeds go to Riley Co. Humane Society

$2.50 Domestic Draws & Pounders
Pats Blue Ribbon BarBeQue
$1.50 16oz Bud Light Bottles
7pm until they're gone
1/2 Appetizers 6-10pm
1200 Moro • 539-7426

OPEN HOUSE
FRI. OCTOBER 20th
9:00 - 3:00
STUDENT-GUIDED PROGRAM TOURS BEGIN EVERY 15 MINUTES.
www.matc.net
The TECHNICAL COLLEGE
MANHATTAN AREA TECHNICAL COLLEGE

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma, and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn
CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station
at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

It's a cool autumn night on the rocky Flint Hills,
A harvest moon rises and gives you the chills.
For 68 years we've all come together,
For the greatest of barn parties,
the one called Rouletter.
We've oiled up our chaps and shined up our boots,
For a night that takes all of us
back to our roots.
The whiskey is flowin' like the ol' Kansas River,
A sip of hot cider will take care of the shivers.
We've met under the stars to drink and to dance,
The best girls in the country, we've come to romance.
So raise up your flask and let's give a toast,
To the one and the only Rouletter Ghost.
I only come out for the ones that I know,
The cowboys and the dates of Alpha Gamma Rho.
Let it be known by all near and far,
You can't have a party without AGR.
The time is upon us, but don't be afraid,
For this is the night that legends are made.
Signed,
The Rouletter Ghost

"THE BOOTS, THE BEER, THE BROTHERS TOGETHER, IT'S NOT JUST A PARTY...IT'S ROULETTER."

Take Back the Day includes all

Event informs men, women of sexual assault

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students wearing blue shirts bearing the phrase "Take a stand" confronted students in the Bosco Student Plaza Thursday while holding signs and handing out information about sexual assault.

Distributed pamphlets had the phrase "Shedding the light on rape and sexual violence at KSU" on the front, which students said summed up the events of Take Back the Day.

Alissa Goble, senior in education, carried a sign that read "What if it was your ... sister, friend, girlfriend/ wife?"

Goble said Take Back the Day is an educational event.

Students from women's studies classes and other supporters of the fight against sexual assault handed out information with statistics and poetry about sexual assault to people in the plaza. "Take a stand" buttons and stickers also were made for the day.

Torry Dickinson, associate professor of women's studies, said Take Back the Day was a slogan proposed by Willie Wake, a former student in women's studies.

She said the idea for Take Back the Day started in one of the women's studies classes, because the students wanted an event in which everyone would be included in the middle of the day in the middle of campus.

Dickinson said another reason for the event was to include the men who are supportive of the fight against sexual assault.

These men felt left out of the annual Take Back the Night rally, when there is a separate march for women. The Take Back the Day event is one in which everyone can participate.

"It's a way to bring it out into the daylight and talk about it openly," she said.

Dickinson said Take Back the Day first took place last spring, but students wanted to have it in the fall this year to try to make it a regular event in the semester, reserving Take Back the Night for spring.

Some of the students involved with the event had a video camera and interviewed people as they walked through the plaza.

Cherry Sharp, sophomore in humanities, said there was a microphone available from noon to 1 p.m. where students could give testimonials and read poetry in the plaza.

She said the event was a way to inform more men and women that sexual assault doesn't only happen to or influence women.

Ana Fraire, junior in biology, said the information handed out to students named locations on campus where they can receive help.

"If sexual assault does occur, they should know who to go to," Fraire said. "We don't want them to feel embarrassed or ashamed."

Reading statistics on sexual assault, Meredith Holland, junior in women's studies, participates in Take Back the Day in Bosco Student Plaza Thursday. Take Back the Day featured stories of assault survivors, poems, letters and other information about rape and sexual assault.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

3 students to jump off bridge

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Three K-State students will spend this weekend jumping off a bridge.

Chris Armstrong, senior in marketing; Andrew Karnowski, freshman in business administration pre-professional; and Jason Lauer, graduate student in biochemistry, three members of the K-State Parachute Club, along with 10-15 K-State alumni will participate in the 26th-annual Bridge Day event in Fayetteville, W.V., on Saturday.

According to www.bridgeday.info, the event draws about 450 selected and authorized base jumpers and about 200,000 spectators to the New River Gorge Bridge, where it is legal to jump off the bridge for a six-hour window. Any other time of the year, jumpers risk fines up to $5,000, gear confiscation and possible jail time.

Bridge Day is a celebration of the bridge and is considered one of the most extreme sporting events in the world. The bridge is the second-longest single-arch bridge and stands 876 feet off the ground.

"For me, it is an expansion of skydiving, which I have completed over 1,100 jumps. It is a total release from everything and an extreme adrenaline rush," Armstrong, secretary of the Parachute Club, said. "Right now I am scared to death, but it goes in waves."

Registration for the event began at noon on July 5 with hotel registration on Labor Day.

Armstrong said his interest in skydiving began at age 12.

When he came to K-State, he saw a flyer for the Parachute Club and decided to join.

"I have been waiting three years to participate in this event," Armstrong said. "I believe we won't walk away from this experience the same people."

Alpha Chi Omega welcomes our newly initiated members!

Karen Bailey	Grace Culp	Bridget Kelly	Laura Parente
Jamie Ball	Katie Decker	Emily King	Kelley Peete
Rochelle Barker	Jenna Ediger	Tina Lee	Jessica Prockish
Kara Bartosch	Maria Fortney	Rebecca Lightle	Courtney Ragel
Carrie Beye	Katie Gans	Meredith Lynch	Kim Riege
Ashley Bollman	Allison Gard	Lacey Madden	Catherine Robson
Cassie Boston	Ally Herme	Abby Meehan	Aly Schrag
Brigitte Brecheisen	Katie Hildebrand	Mackenzie Meyer	Lexie Schultz
Ashlyn Cheray	Merritt Hitchcock	Jessica Muirhead	Miranda Sims
Anna Chernoff	Mallory Jacobs	Jess Nelson	Lauren Spalsbury
	Marta Johnson	Mere Nitcher

RELIGION Directory

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (Where reason and intuition guide our personal journey)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Child Care Provided.
A Welcoming Congregation.
Rev. Michael Nelson
For information call (785) 537-2349
www.uufm.net

JOURNEY MINISTRIES
University Christian Church
2800 Claflin • 776.5440
(across from Taco Hut)
9:45 & 11:00 Contemporary Service
9:45 Breakfast and Bible Study
Chris Herrington • www.uccks.org

Your Religion Directory Ad Could Be Here!
785-532-6560

CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
ecm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/ecm
David Jones, Pastor
Sundays
5:30 pm Table Fellowship
Mondays
7 pm Prayer and Motion
9 pm Money Matters
Thursdays
8 pm Faith Forum
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

Join the Directory
785-532-6560

MANHATTAN JEWISH CONGREGATION
Worship: Fri. 7:30 pm
1509 Wreath Ave, Manhattan
Everyone welcome!
www.manhattanjewishcong.org
In association with HILLEL the Jewish student organization
www.k-state.edu/hillel

Muslim Student Association (MSA)
785 776 1033

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00,10:30, 10:40
• Sunday School at 9:15
Steve Ratliff, Senior Pastor
Brian Anderson, Assoc. Pastor
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086
Barnes, Kimball, Bluemont, Turtle Creek Blvd

Services & Events:
Sunday Morning Service @ 10:30 a.m.
College Ministry (Happy Hour)
Sunday Evening Service @ 7 p.m.
Free Meal @ 6 p.m.

Peace Lutheran Church
Worship Sundays
8:30 and 11:00
Contemporary Service 5:00 p.m.
P.E.A.C.E
Pastor Michael Ide
2500 Kimball
539-7371
www.peace-to-you.org
With Christ . . . Gather . . . Grow and Go Forth!

newhope CHURCH
Pursuing relationships that change the world
WORSHIP SERVICE 9 AM
College and Family Ministries
www.newhopeks.org
3905 Green Valley Rd.

Welcome to FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Saturday Service
5:30 p.m.
Sunday Worship
8:30 and 11 a.m.
Church School for all ages
9:45 a.m.
www.firstlutheranmanhattan.org
10th & Poyntz 785-537-8532

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:00, 9:30, 11:00 a.m.
Collegiate Bible Hour Class 11:00 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
785-776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

ADVERTISE YOUR CHURCH HERE
532-6560

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
2121 Blue Hills Road
539-8691
9:45 am Sunday School
11:00 am Sunday Worship
Praise Team Twice Each Month
www.centeredinchrist.us
1801 Anderson Ave 539-3051
Baptist Campus Center

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:50 a.m. Worship Service
10:45 a.m. Children's Church
11:45 a.m. Contemporary Worship Service
Fellowship meal to follow service
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518

MANHATTAN MENNONITE CHURCH
1000 Fremont 539-4079
Worship: 10:45 SS: 9:30
Richard & Barbara Gehring, Pastors
K-State Student Group
www.manhattan.ks.us.mennonite.net
Potluck 1st and 3rd Sunday after worship

Celebration Service
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..."
Contemporary Worship Service
Sundays at 11:45 a.m.
Everyone is Welcome
College Fellowship Dinner to follow service
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening 6p.m. Danforth Chapel
Your Invited!
Tuesday 7-8pm
Bible Study @ Luther House
Good vs. Evil
with the Chronicles of Narnia
Thursday 6pm
Meal and Conservation
Sunday 5pm
Spaghetti Meal @ Luther House
Worship 6pm with Holy Communion
Danforth Chapel
• On Campus •
Everyone is Welcome!
www.ksu.edu/lcm-elca
lcmelca@ksu.edu
Any Questions? 313-3895 or 539-4491
LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
1745 Anderson
•SE Corner of Denison & Anderson•
ELCA

Trumpeters of God Ministries
P.O. Box 772, Manhattan, KS 66505-0772
Vision:
Gospel of Christ, Power of God, Salvation for Believers
Worship Service @ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
Sunday School: 9:30-10:15 a.m.
Sunday Service: 10:15-12:00 Noon
Good Morning Jesus @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Monday: 5:30-6:30 a.m.
Bible Study @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Thursday: 7:00-8:30 p.m.
Prayer Vigil @ CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Ave.
Friday: 10:00-12:00 Midnight
Monthly Holy Ghost Conference
@ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
First Friday of every month @ 7:00-10:00 p.m.
Quarterly Fasting & Prayer Meeting
First Seven days of every quarter. Venue varies
Contact
Pastor Ebenezer Ogunyinka
Phone: 785-317-5103
Web page: www.ksu.edu/trumpeters
Email: trumpeters@ksu.edu

First United Methodist Church
612 Poyntz Ave
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-776-8821
www.fumcmanhattan.com
www.ksu.edu/umcm
Traditional Worship:
Sun 8:30 & 11am
Sanctuary
Contemporary Worship:
Sun 8:45am - Harris Activity Center
Casual dress, free donuts
Sunday School - 9:45am
Communion Service
5:30 pm Wed

COLLEGE CONNECTION
Jammin' 4 Jesus
Tuesday 7:00 pm
at Manhattan Free Methodist Church
1231 Poyntz Ave,
Across From City Park
www.living4one.org
785-776-4029
Experience God's Presence

You are welcome at...
First Assembly of God
REACHING THE COMMUNITY • TOUCHING THE WORLD
Weekly Services
Sunday
Traditional Service 8:00 am
Sunday School 9:30 am
Contemporary Service 10:45 am
Prayer Meeting 6:00 pm
Wednesday
Bible Study 7:00 pm
Youth Group (grades 7-12)
Royal Rangers (Boys Clubs)
Missionettes (Girls Clubs)
Chi Alpha Campus Ministries 7:00 pm
(KSU Little Theater)
Gary Av, Candlewood Dr, Seth Child Rd, Kimball Av
Nursery Provided for All Services
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

Stories have 2 sides, many unknowns

MEGAN GREEN

We have been told there are always two sides to every story, but what no one tells you is that even if you know both sides, you never will know the entire story.

Relationships are a classic example.

The beginning of a relationship is great. Both people get along and have manners, and there is no drama.

No drama, that is, for a month or so, until someone says something the other takes out of context, and the inevitable first fight begins.

You can communicate, but two people never hear the same conversation, especially when they both already know what they want to hear.

We've all had it happen and had the chance to look back, talk with the other person and realize the way you interpreted certain comments wasn't the way they were meant.

Sometimes, however, the talk about the miscommunication never happens, and everything falls apart.

For example, let's look at Nick Lachey and Jessica Simpson. When they first ended their marriage, it seemed Lachey had plenty to say about what happened and how horrible Simpson made him feel. Many fans took sides.

A little later, Jessica started to say what she thought happened, and her side seemed just as sad. It made everyone think again. Who was in the wrong?

I'm sure their friends were taking sides. However, how can anyone take sides when no one really knows what happened? Jessica and Nick themselves might not know exactly what happened.

One of them could have said something that was taken completely out of context by the other. The only way to figure out what happened would to have been a fly on the wall during their entire relationship. Only then could things be figured out.

But what about couples on campus? When they break up, someone always says, "Oh it was her fault," or "It was his fault. He did this; she said that."

Usually, in a relationship, both parties blame each other, and then friends choose sides based on what one of the people formerly in the relationship said. But what about the other side?

Even if the other person has a chance to say what he or she thinks happened, no one ever really will know, because people see what they want, and once sides are chosen, it's hard to get people to switch.

Justin Timberlake, as cheesy as this sounds, puts it best when he sings, "Can't believe it's ending this way/I'm so confused about it/Why your love went away/I just can't seem to understand/is this how we say good-bye/Should've known better when you came around/that you were going to make me cry."

So how can we, as friends, decide to be mad or not speak to one person in a relationship and blame the end of it on the other when it's impossible to know precisely what happened?

Things always can be sugar-coated, or seen differently, because people never think – or want to think – it's their fault. But in a relationship – ended or not – no one can be to blame. It didn't work, even if you wanted it to more than anything. The two weren't the same person.. They didn't think the same, and they probably didn't know the other's entire history, those things that make people do quirky things. Yes, they loved each other, but they saw things differently.

I do know that when a relationship ends, both people still love the person they thought they knew.

But with enough time, they are able to forgive their ex for things they thought were done maliciously. Things that, in fact, were not done with evil intent. So who is right? No one.

For the most part, there can be no Team Jessica and no Team Nick, because we don't know their history and never will.

Even with our closest friends and their relationships, we'll never know exactly what happened, even after hearing both sides of the story.

Just remember: there are always two sides to a story, and no one, including those involved, will ever understand exactly what happened.

If you take nothing else from this column, remember this: no one can be blamed in a relationship. There are no sides. It's life, and we're still learning about and from each other.

Megan Green is a fifth-year student in mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@ksu.edu.

Illustration by Ashley Burks | COLLEGIAN

Vote for liberty

U.S. citizens should vote to include Statue of Liberty in new 7 wonders

RYAN SPENCER

Old and busted: the hanging gardens of Babylon.

New hotness: Stonehenge. (Well, it's kind of new, historically speaking.)

Does everyone remember in elementary school when you had to learn the seven wonders of the ancient world?

If you don't, don't worry – we're coming up with new ones. There's a new effort underway by the Swiss to democratically decide what the new seven wonders of the world should be. The project, aptly named New7Wonders, is taking your vote to select the latest seven. The list includes such beauties as the Eiffel Tower, the Taj Mahal, the Kremlin, the Coliseum and Stonehenge.

As a conservative, I am always interested in history and ways of preserving it, so I find this interesting and historically important to us all.

Think of it: when our children are in their classrooms full of computerized pencils and floating desks, they'll be memorizing the new seven wonders of the world. They'll ask you for help, and you'll be able to say, "Yeah, I voted for that one."

The best part of this project is the fact that our world has advanced so far that the entire world can be involved in a process that affects us all. Who came up with the first seven? I'm sure there were civilizations that were a little disappointed their temple or monument that took 150 years and 3,800 lives to build didn't make the cut. This time, though, everyone will have a say.

Being that this is a worldwide democratic effort, the votes are already coming in, and what would be expected is happening. A huge number of votes are coming in from India for the Taj Mahal. China's government has unblocked the Internet long enough for its citizens to send in a few billion votes for the Great Wall, and Peruvians found enough computers to send in all of their votes for Machu Picchu.

This is where we come in. On the list of 21 potential winners is the Statue of Liberty. Although technically French, it still is considered ours. I think K-State students need to take a few minutes away from Facebook.com, however tempting mini-feed is, and head over to www.new7wonders.com and vote for Lady Liberty.

This is a great way for everyone to be a part of history in the making. The Statue has long stood as an iconic symbol of freedom and hope for one of the greatest nations in the world, and I believe it's time it, and the country for which it stands, receive the recognition they deserve.

Citizens of the United States, it is now your turn to be heard. Support our Statue of Liberty in becoming one of the new seven wonders of the world.

Ryan Spencer is a senior in hotel and restaurant management. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

POLITICAL CARTOON | By Donnie Jay

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASSISTANT AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

New laws requiring passports for all travel should encourage preparation

Beginning Jan. 8, 2007, anyone leaving the country by plane will be required to show his or her passport.

In the past, cruises and trips to Canada or Mexico only required travelers to show proof of citizenship, like a birth certificate.

Most of us understand this new requirement is a homeland security measure, and a lot of us even agree that if we are going to be concerned about who legally enters our country, we also should be required to travel with proper documentation to show we are traveling legally into other countries.

Even with this understanding, we don't appear to be aware of the preparation it will take to make these trips. The passport application process can be tedious and time-consuming. The time to process an application varies from four to eight weeks. At that rate, anyone planning a spring break in Cancun will need to get a passport in January.

We should prevent delays and avoid expedition fees by applying for passports now. We don't know when we will need or want to travel abroad. So having a passport on hand can save a lot of last-minute hassle.

The monetary cost of this documentation might be high, but it will only rise, so it is an advantage to get it now while it is less expensive.

Move over Tickle Me Elmo, passports are the new must-have this holiday season.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Why is it that all the rich kids from Kansas City are quick to run their mouths, but as soon as you punch them, they sue you?

Hey Sigma Chi, it's a good thing you steal all the papers with the article about you winning the football championship.

I seriously just saw a dude unicycling to class.

The Collegian thinks orange juice is Cheerios. These are the same people that think the Fourum should be smaller.

To Kyle that works at the Derb: you have kind eyes.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Sorority marks 90 years at K-State with alumnae events

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority will celebrate its 90th anniversary on the K-State campus this weekend.

Every five years, the chapter has an anniversary celebration. This year, more than 350 women from all over the United States will help Kappa celebrate the occasion.

Kappa is one of the oldest sororities on campus, along with Delta Delta Delta and Pi Beta Phi. When Kappa was installed on Sept. 23, 1916, only 3,340 students attended K-State. The university had 350 faculty members and only 17 buildings.

The weekend of celebration will begin Friday night, as alumnae catch up with each other as they arrive in town.

"People will arrive and gather around Manhattan," said Katie Reardon, a Kappa alumna on the 90th Anniversary Planning Committee. "Different alumnae will have parties in their homes or meet with each other for dinner."

On Saturday, the alumnae will have a chance to tour the Kappa house, where many of them lived in during their college years. Allison Branch, sophomore in English and a Kappa member, said she is excited to give the alumnae house tours.

"I think it's going to be fun to talk to all the alumnae," Branch said. "It will be interesting to see what these women have become because of the time they spent in Kappa Kappa Gamma."

Later Saturday evening, the alumnae will have another chance to gather together during an alumnae dinner and dance at the Holiday Inn.

The alumnae will join active chapter members Sunday for a brunch and presentation.

"We will have women from the 1929 initiation class to the 2006 class all together," Reardon said.

One alumna from the 1929 pledge class will address the sorority about life in Kappa when she was in the house, Reardon said.

The current chapter president, Jenna Huston, then will speak about life now as a Kappa, so the chapter and alumnae can see the progress and growth of the chapter.

"The alumnae are most looking forward to this event," Reardon said. "They are excited to hear what the active members are doing."

The alumnae are not the only ones excited for the anniversary event, Huston said.

"I think it will be good to interact with the alumnae," she said. "We will learn a lot about our chapter's history."

From the Public Editor:

Reporters restricted from allowing sources to review articles, but some exceptions exist

David Rintoul will not speak to Collegian reporters.

LOGAN C. ADAMS

Rintoul, associate professor of biology, e-mailed me last week to say he's been misquoted so many times he will not let himself be interviewed. Unless, that is, he can review the final story before it's printed.

The problem is that Collegian policy bans anyone on staff from letting sources see stories before they are published. Doing it could get a reporter fired, so Rintoul hasn't been interviewed in years.

The policy's purpose is to prevent sources from taking back quotations or comments they might decide they don't like anymore. Some papers have a similar policy, but it's something of an unwritten rule across the industry.

Rintoul said it's been some time since he was last interviewed. One error he remembers was the time a reporter forgot the word "not" in a sentence, effectively reversing his position.

It might not be fair to present-day reporters, Rintoul said, but he said it's necessary to ensure accuracy. I can't blame him for that, but I would like for him to reconsider his stance, though he might not have to.

After our e-mail exchange, I looked up the policy's exact wording and discovered an exception. I would have known it sooner had my staff manual not been buried in storage – shame on me – but it allows complex and technical stories to be reviewed by sources.

Rintoul is a professor of biology, which, as a science, has plenty of complexities that make things difficult for generalist reporters. This is why letting a source review a story is not unheard of in medical and science reporting, but it is rare in political journalism.

Just don't start making demands of reporters yet. The exception is a narrow one and requires an editor's decision, and each instance would likely require some ground rules. One provision I forsee is the source can only make recommendations, not withhold a story from publication.

But there are options if the editors won't grant a review.

Some sources ask me to e-mail the direct quotes I got from them, which is fine with the policy.

For tougher stories, like those involving budgets, the law or complex facts, I often do a fact-check interview with a source when the story is finished. I go through each fact and make it into a question, letting a source verify my facts while getting a taste of my context.

It can be time-consuming, but it is highly effective. I try to do this kind of interview whenever the source and I have time, because it cuts down on inaccuracy.

There is no guarantee that a story will be perfect, though. Humans are fallible by nature, and mistakes happen. This is why we run corrections and why I'm here for anyone who thinks we aren't doing our jobs right.

As the saying goes: to err is human; to forgive, divine.

Logan C. Adams is the Collegian's public editor and a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu or catch him in person 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday in the K-State Student Union, first floor.

Kansas City-based jazz vocalist to perform in Swing City series

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Ron Gutierrez, a renowned jazz vocalist, will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Manhattan Arts Center as part of the Swing City Jazz series.

Gutierrez will be accompanied by bassist Craig Akin, drummer Kevin Wickliffe, and pianist Charles Williams for the performance.

Gutierrez, who grew up in Topeka and now lives in the Kansas City area, comes from a musical background, said Penny Senften, executive director for the arts center.

"He was in the U.S. Army Chorale, which is a pretty elite vocal ensemble based in Washington, D.C.," she said. "His father was a saxophonist and was a founding member of the Topeka Jazz Workshop."

According to his Web site, Gutierrez was surrounded by music, as he grew up singing in choral liturgies with his four siblings, many of whom became musicians.

While attending the University of Kansas, Gutierrez began to sing professionally in Kansas City jazz clubs. Eventually, he became the lead singer with The Atlantic Express, a 12-piece, 1960s-style R&B group.

Since then, Gutierrez has performed with musicians including Wynonna Judd and B.B. King, according to the site. He performed at Kansas City's annual Country Club Plaza Lighting Ceremony last fall and sings regularly with the Kansas City Jazz Orchestra.

Senften said she has not heard Gutierrez's music, but said the arts center usually has good attendance for vocalists. She said Wayne Goins, an arts center board member, tends to choose performers people like to listen to.

"Some jazz gets a little – for the average Joe Blow like me – it tends to lose them," she said. "Wayne tends to get artists who play jazz that is really listenable. Even if people think they might not like jazz, they tend to enjoy it."

She said Kansas City-area performers have come to like performing at the arts center.

"I think a lot of musicians hear about our venue," Senften said. "Here, people actually sit and listen to them. There's no smoke. It's not too big, so it's still got that nice, intimate feeling."

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

HUNAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
$1 off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

Let's get together for Dinner to Celebrate Eid-ul-Fitr
"End of Ramadan"
Come and enjoy great food from Middle Eastern cuisine
When: Friday, Oct. 27,06 Where: Alumni Center Ballroom Time: 6:00-8:00 pm
Tickets available in 304 Fairchild Hall, Tel: 532-5990 Cost: $ 5.00
The event is sponsored and organized by: Office of International Programs

OCTOBER SPECIALS
$25.00 PERM WAVE SHORT HAIR
$30.00 LONG HAIR BODY WAVE
$15.00 BACK FACIAL
$35.00 RED & / OR CARMEL HIGHLITE
M-W 9-5 • Th-F 9-9 • Sat 9-5
Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz • 776-4794
Services performed by supervised students
50 years of excellence in education
Call today for enrollment information
Cosmetology/Manicuring
Instructor-Training/Evening Classes
PIVOT POINT

OUR FIVE SENSES
What are they?
How do we use them to worship God?
The Wesley at KSU
A United Methodist Campus Ministry
Join us on Sunday evenings!
Dinner at 6:45pm, Worship at 7:30pm
College Avenue UMC, 1609 College Ave
(across from the baseball stadium)
785.776.9278 www.ksu.edu/umcm

Lee's Western Wear
20% off Long Sleeved Shirts
until Oct. 31, 2006
8426 E Hwy 24 • 785-776-6715 • Mon-Fri 9-6 Sat 9-5

The Collegian is available at 112 locations near you. COLLEGIAN

HOMECOMING GUIDE 2006
know what's going on; be a part of it... Pick up your Homecoming Guide Oct. 23rd inside the Kansas State Collegian.
TO ADVERTISE CALL 532-6560

Your sports back-up plan: soccer

The Major League Soccer playoffs start at 1 p.m. Saturday when the New York Red Bulls host D.C. United at Giants Stadium in New Jersey. This game is not televised locally, but several other games will be. So why should you watch?

DAYNE LOGAN

For starters, soccer is, beyond a shadow of a doubt, the most popular team sport in the world. According to faqfarm.com, soccer is the most watched and played sport in every country in Europe and South America. Perhaps the rest of the world knows something most Americans do not.

Second, American soccer is some of the highest-scoring soccer anywhere. In the final week of the regular season alone, four of the six matches played had five or more goals scored. Five goals in a game is virtually unheard of elsewhere. Therefore, the excuse that soccer is not high-scoring enough to watch does not apply here.

Finally, other sports aren't that exciting right now. The Detroit Tigers are too good to lose the World Series, NBA teams don't play hard until the playoffs, and K-State football has been notorious for breaking hearts the past two years.

You need a back-up plan when other sports let you down, and the MLS playoffs are a perfect fit.

So now that you're convinced, here's a breakdown to help you choose a team to root for:

D.C. United (15-7-10) is the clear-cut favorite this season. United is the most decorated team in the MLS, with four championships. This season, United is led by teenage phenomenon Freddy Adu and is a good pick to win it all.

FC Dallas (16-12-4) is second on the list. The team has never been to a playoff final before but prospered this season in a weak conference. Dallas plays well as a unit and has good chance to go far.

The New England Revolution (12-8-12) sits third in the standings after the regular season. Like FC Dallas, the Revolution has never won the MLS Cup and will have a tough time achieving that feat this year because of a potential second round match-up with D.C. United.

Houston Dynamo (11-8-13) is the MLS's newest team and, outside of United and Dallas, probably has the best chance to win the cup. If there is a Cinderella in the playoffs, Houston is it.

Chicago Fire (13-11-8) is the last team with a legitimate chance to win the cup but has the most difficult road to the title.

Now all that's left to do is choose a team, find a television and discover what the rest of the world is talking about.

Dayne Logan is a senior in mass communications. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

K-State Men's Soccer Club

On their own

Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

James Parker, sophomore in architecture, tries to keep the ball in possession while Holden Cook, junior in open option, attempts to steal the ball during the K-State Men's Soccer Club Practice Wednesday evening at Memorial Stadium.

Though not the best-known sports team at K-State, the men's soccer club succeeds through regular season

By Jessi Hernandez
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It's 6:30 p.m. on a Wednesday, and as time passes, it only gets colder on the field at Memorial Stadium. Even so, members of the K-State Men's Soccer Club arrive for practice, put on their cleats and try to decide how many layers of clothes to wear.

Most opt for their black team warm-ups, but once practice begins, the layers are shed gradually, and by the time the 90-minute scrimmage is through, some players are down to T-shirts.

Though it hasn't been too evident lately, there is a sports team at K-State that has consistently competed at the top of its game this season. The Men's Soccer Club isn't a part of the NCAA, offers no scholarships and must share the field with rugby and recreational football squads, but it recently finished regular season play with a record of 7-1 – good for first place in the Mid American Club Soccer League East division – despite a lack of home support.

"For our first home game, we had a lot of people," said James Parker, sophomore in architecture and club secretary. "But the last few we haven't had very many. It's been about 50, sometimes between 50 and 100."

Parker said the team publicizes home games through word-of-mouth or Facebook.com.

"It's probably the best way to reach people," he said.

Matt Campbell, senior in mechanical engineering and club president, said though the team is used to low attendance at home games, it definitely prefers to have crowd support.

"It does help us play well," Campbell said. "We have a really nice venue for a club sport, and when there are people here, we play really well."

As a club, all aspects of the team are organized by the officers, including tryouts, travel arrangements for away games, and other coaching duties, since the team does not have a coach.

"I think they hired a coach like five years ago or so, but I guess we just haven't decided to do that in awhile," said Alex McKee, junior in electrical engineering and club secretary.

McKee said the officers decided to try something new this season after tryouts and created a second team. There are 35 club members, and 21 play on the first team. The remaining 14 are on the reserve squad.

"We had 55 at tryouts this year, which was really good," Campbell said.

This weekend, the team is host to the KSU-Ed Chartrand Memorial Soccer Tournament, which will include teams from Kansas, St. Louis University, Wichita State and Iowa State.

"For that, the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer handle most of the organization," Campbell said. "We have some outside help from alumni and Art Chartrand in particular, but we have to organize it, get teams, set the schedule and hire (referees)."

Campbell said the tournament is intended for Big 12 Conference schools (no school in the Big 12 has an intercollegiate men's soccer team), but usually includes other schools as well.

"We're pretty confident," Parker said about the tournament. "I'm not saying we'll win it, necessarily, but I think we'll do well. Our biggest competition will probably be (Kansas) and Saint Louis. It should be a pretty good time."

KSU-Ed Chartrand Memorial Soccer Tournament

- The tournament was started in 1979 in honor of club member Ed Chartrand, who was involved in the club and died of unknown natural causes in 1979 at age 22.
- In addition to the tournament, the Chartrand Charitable Foundation funds two annual $500 scholarships, which are awarded to a man and a woman from each of the K-State club soccer teams at the tournament by a member of the Chartrand family.

Source: Chartrand Memorial Tournament Web site

Friday:
- K-State women vs. Nebraska at 6:30 p.m.
- K-State men vs. Kansas at 8:30 p.m.

— All Friday games are at Memorial Stadium

Saturday:
- The K-State reserve team plays at 9 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. The K-State first team will play at noon and 4:30 p.m.

— All Saturday games are at Frank Anneberg Park.

Holden Cook, junior in open option, jumps over goalie Jan Ames, freshman in chemistry, during the K-State's Soccer Club practice Wednesday evening.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

Senior outside hitter Sandy Werner spikes a ball past Texas Tech blockers during K-State's 3-1 win Wednesday evening at Ahearn Fieldhouse. The Wildcats will travel to Missouri to play the Tigers Saturday.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Volleyball team to challenge Mizzou in Saturday re-match

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The first half of Big 12 Conference play did not go the way the K-State women's volleyball team had planned.

The Wildcats (9-11, 1-9 Big 12) lost nine of 10 conference games. Its lone win came against Texas Tech Wednesday night at Ahearn Field House.

"That didn't go like we wanted it to go," coach Suzie Fritz said of the Wildcats' first time around against conference opponents. "So now we just put it behind us, and we focus on the second half as a whole one match at a time."

The Wildcats open up the second part of their conference schedule Saturday at No. 12 Missouri (13-6, 7-3 Big 12), a team that defeated them 3-1 earlier this year.

Fritz said she hopes the Wildcats' win against Texas Tech can help her team the rest of the way.

"We'll just put all of our attention, all of our

See MISSOURI Page 7

K-State at No. 14 Missouri

Where: Hearnes Center in Columbia, Mo.
When: 6:30 p.m. Saturday
Radio: 1350 KMAN
Live stats at www.k-statesports.com

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

Where to watch the Wildcats this season

Pat's Blue Rib'N Barbeque Report Card:
Atmosphere: D
Food selection: A
Drink (choices): B
Entertainment: B

As the name implies, Pat's Blue Rib'N Barbeque offers menu items one wouldn't expect to find in a typical bar.

The choices at Pat's, 1200 Moro St., range from typical bar food like chicken fingers and wings to items one would expect to find in an upscale barbecue restaurant like smoked sausage and St. Louis-style ribs. Add to that a hearty selection of barbecue sandwiches, and it becomes obvious why so many Wildcat fans choose Pat's on game day.

Unfortunately, the menu is somewhat reduced in order to deal with the crowd during K-State games, but there is still selection enough to satisfy most appetites.

While the food choices at Pat's are different from what you would find in other Aggieville bars, the drink selection is more run-of-the mill for a local bar. The restaurant has two full-service bars, each with a typical eight beers on tap — nothing spectacular, but good enough.

Like the drink selection, the televisions at Pat's are standard. Ten televisions are well spaced throughout the restaurant, and while the picture quality won't amaze anyone, it gets the job done.

If the game turns sour, Pat's has quite a few other diversions from which to choose. There is a pool table, a dart board, a Megatouch game system and a juke box to keep fans entertained. Additionally, a shuffleboard table will be arriving shortly.

The only glaring area in which Pat's lacks is atmosphere. The furniture is old and worn, and, while nothing is broken, it seems like only a matter of time before something is.

Still, if food and entertainment are high priorities, Pat's is worth a try.

— Reviewed by Dayne Logan

Associated Press

CBK | Texas Tech coach Knight agrees to 3-year extension

OKLAHOMA CITY — Bob Knight might not just pass Dean Smith's all-time win record; he might shatter the mark. He has agreed to a three-year extension to coach Texas Tech until 2012.

Knight

The 65-year old Knight has won 869 games, 10 shy of tying former North Carolina coach Dean Smith on the all-time list.

The contract still needs to be OK'd by the university's board of regents, but athletic director Gerald Myers said the deal would be for $300,000 a year, with $600,000 in outside income guaranteed.

Knight signed a three-year extension in 2004 that took him until 2009. Three more years were added to this deal, said Knight's son Tim, who works in the Tech athletic department.

Associate head coach Pat Knight has already been tabbed to succeed his father.

CFB | Attempted murder charge filed against back-up punter

DENVER — Prosecutors filed a charge of attempted first-degree murder Thursday against a former University of Northern Colorado back-up punter accused of stabbing the starter in a case that drew comparisons to the Tanya Harding-Nancy Kerrigan rivalry.

Mitchell Cozad, 21, is accused of stabbing Rafael Mendoza in his kicking leg on Sept. 11 outside Mendoza's apartment.

Cozad, of Wheatland, Wyo., also faces one count of second-degree assault. Prosecutors said he could face up to 48 years in prison if convicted.

Weld County district attorney's spokeswoman Jennifer Finch said a warrant was issued for Cozad's arrest. It was not immediately clear whether he was in custody.

His attorney, Joseph A. Gavaldon, did not immediately return a call. A man who answered Cozad's mobile phone number hung up without commenting.

Police Lt. Gary Kessler has said the motive appeared to be competition for the starting job.

Investigators have said they were looking for an alleged accomplice. Police did not immediately return a call Thursday.

Finch said that after their investigation, prosecutors felt the attempted murder and assault counts "were the appropriate charges." She did not elaborate.

Mendoza was treated for a three- to five-inch-deep puncture wound in his right thigh and released. He has returned to the team.

SIGNS | Groups disagree on candidate support

Continued from Page 1

doesn't represent the house political views as a whole."

David Bulcock, junior in political science and member of SAE, is a Democrat, and he said he was not pleased with the signs in front of the fraternity house.

"We don't share political views, but we didn't really have much of a say," he said. "I do care who is being supported on my lawn."

Bulcock said the alumni own the fraternity house, but the active chapter is trying to buy it.

Representatives for the Ryun campaign said political signs are a vital part of a campaign.

"Political signs are very important to a campaign because of name recognition. If people know your name, then it is more likely they will remember it on the ballot," said Sam Foreman, an intern for Ryun's campaign.

Mark Kelly, Ryun's chief of staff, said political signs show a candidate's campaign is active.

"Campaign signs work exceptionally good for those candidates that have not established their names," Kelly said.

Kelly said signs in the yards of residential homes generally are a good indication of who the residents support.

In Ryun's first campaign, he went door-to-door asking people to put signs in their yards. During his second campaign, people asked to have signs put in their lawns, Kelly said.

Students who rent off-campus houses could face landlords who place campaign signs in their lawns for candidates the students don't support.

Larry Hackney, human resources specialist for the City of Manhattan, said the law states that the renter has the possession of premise as soon as the lease is signed.

He said it is against the law for a landlord to put a candidate's sign in the yard of a property if the tenants of the property do not support the candidate.

If political signs are put up on a property where there are multiple tenants on different leases, the concerned party would have to take the issue to the district court, Hackney said.

It is more complicated to determine who has possession of the premises of a fraternity house, he said.

Zach Hause, Inter-Fraternity Council President, said he thought chapters would vote whether to display signs.

Other fraternities, including Hause's Delta Chi, have put up signs in their yards, he said.

"It only went in the yard after the majority of the house agreed," he said.

MISSOURI | New lineup sparks Wildcats' offense

Continued from Page 6

energy into Missouri," she said. "And one at a time, we'll try to rebuild this thing back up and try to play off the momentum of our first one."

To have a chance, the Wildcats will have to defend well against the Tigers' Jessica Vander Kooi, something they were unable to do in the teams' previous meeting.

Vander Kooi, who has been named Big 12 Conference Volleyball Player of the Week twice this season, registered 27 kills, 19 digs and a .327 hitting percentage in that match.

But things have changed since the last time these two teams met on Sept. 20.

Junior Angie Lastra switched positions from libero to outside hitter, and junior Lauren Rosenthal is now the full-time libero. The new lineup has provided a a spark to K-State's offense.

Lastra and senior outside hitter Sandy Werner combined for 39 kills, and both players had hitting percentages higher than .215 against Texas Tech.

"It (the new lineup) has definitely made an impact," sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker said. "Against Oklahoma, we took them to five games, and then we were able to pull out a win, so I think it's for the better."

PASSPORTS | Time, price for process increases

Continued from Page 1

"It really hasn't affected it too much," she said. "I don't think it's been discouraging people at all. We are seeing a lot of discounts to help in paying for the passports to help alleviate the cost for some people."

Although the number of people planning to travel next year has not seemed to change, Marsh said the number of passport applications has increased.

For those planning trips during the winter and into January through Jade Travel, Marsh said a lot of people do not have passports but are aware that they need one. Even though passports are not required until after the first of the year, Marsh said the agency suggests that people who might be traveling in the future should apply for passports now.

The number of passport applications to process have increased this year for Sam Collins, post office passport clerk. Collins said people are planning trips for spring break or summer vacation and are trying to get their passports processed expediently.

The workload has been balanced by increased hours at the passport office, Collins said. The office, previously open from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, has extended hours to 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

With the volume increase, Collins said passport applications might take up to eight weeks to process now, an increase from the four- to six-week time period.

Marsh said people are complying with new regulations without much resistance.

"We've had a few people moan and groan about the cost," she said. "But most people, it's been pretty neutral, because what else can you do?"

AGGIEFEST | Coalition members spread music

Continued from Page 1

Tuttle said he is confident MMC will put on an event like this again next year.

MMC members said they think artists should be compensated for their time and talents. MMC members said it is their job to spread the word and inspire others to come out and feel the music for themselves.

"We do it for the love of the music and the gifts that artists share with us in their most honest and vulnerable times: their performances," Tuttle said.

Wildcat 91.9 will cover Aggiefest '06 live from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. For more information on Aggiefest and MMC, go to www.aggiefest.net.

Looking for a Good Deal?
Check out the coupons in the back.
Kansas State University
Campus Phone Book
2006-2007
Available Now
in your Residence Hall
or purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

dependable, quality service
√color copies
Claflin Books and Copies

86 Percent
Of the Campus Community
Reads The Collegian
Call 785-532-6560
To Advertise!

PEACE CORPS
Find Out More about
Peace Corps
Info Meeting
Tuesday, October 24
5:30 - 6:30 pm
350 Waters Hall
or contact
Staci Hauschild
pcorps@ksu.edu
532.5627
144 Waters Hall
peacecorps.gov

1210 Moro O'Malley's 537-0775
Saturday
AGGIE 06 FEST

Sqib Cakes	5 p.m.	Setbacks	9 p.m.
Jonathan	6 p.m.	One North	10 p.m.
Barefoot Rebellion	7 p.m.	Kula Voyage	11 p.m.
Plastic Parachute	8 p.m.	TopHat	12 a.m.

"Making Life Better"
Kansas City Kansas Community College
7250 State Avenue • Kansas City, KS 66112
913-334-1100
"An Equal Opportunity Educational Institution"
Online Courses Spring 2007
http://www.kckcc.edu/schedule/index.psp

COURSE NAME
INTRODUCTION TO ADDICTIONS
COUNSELING THE ALCOHOLIC AND DRUG ABUSER
SPECIAL TOPICS IN ADDICTION
ADDICTION COUNSELING WITH SPECIAL POPULATIONS
GROUP DYNAMICS AND ADDICTIONS I
CLIENT MANAGEMENT PROCEDURES
FIRST AID
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
MEDICAL TERMINOLOGY
WOMEN'S HEALTH: A TEAM APPROACH
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY
ARCHAEOLOGY
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
GENERAL BIOLOGY
THE LIVING BODY
ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE
HUMAN ANATOMY AND LABORATORY
NUTRITION
KINESIOLOGY
MICROBIOLOGY
HUMAN SEXUALITY
PHYSIOLOGY
PHYSIOLOGY LABORATORY
ACCOUNTING I
ACCOUNTING II
SMALL BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
PERSONAL FINANCE
HUMAN RELATIONS IN BUSINESS
BUSINESS MATH
MARKETING
OFFICE PRACTICUM
SUPERVISION TECHNIQUES
INCOME TAX PROCEDURES
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I
COST ACCOUNTING
MANAGERIAL ACCOUNTING
BUSINESS LAW I
BUSINESS LAW II
INTRODUCTION TO BUSINESS
BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS
INTRO TO ENTREPENEURSHIP
HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP I
PRINCIPLES OF MANAGEMENT
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP II
BASIC KEYBOARDING
DOCUMENT FORMATTING I
SPEEDBUILDING I
SPEEDBUILDING II
RECORDS MANAGEMENT
BUSINESS ENGLISH
PROOFREADING
OFFICE SIMULATIONS
BUSINESS ETIQUETTE
CUSTOMER SERVICE
GENERAL CHEMISTRY
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY I AND LAB
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY II & LAB
FORENSIC SCIENCE ANALYTICAL TECHNIQUES

COURSE NAME
ORGANIC CHEMISTRY II
BIOCHEMISTRY
FUNDAMENTALS OF EARLY CARE EDUCATION
INFANTS AND TODDLERS I
INFANTS AND TODDLERS II
PRESCHOOLERS I
PRESCHOOLERS II
CARE OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES
CHILD CARE ADMINISTRATION
"WELLNESS, HEALTH AND SAFETY FOR THE YOUNG CHILD"
INTRODUCTION TO THE INTERNET(L)
COMPUTER CONCEPTS AND APPLICATIONS
MICROCOMPUTER BUSINESS SOFTWARE
LOCAL AREA NETWORKING
HTML WEB PAGE DEVELOPMENT
COMPUTER OPERATING SYSTEM
WEB GRAPHICS AND MULTIMEDIA
JAVASCRIPT
INTRODUCTION TO INTERNETWORKING AND ROUTERS
SYSTEM MANAGER
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I
VISUAL BASIC
ADVANCED WAN INTERNETWORKING
ADVANCED SYSTEM MANAGER
ADVANCED VISUAL BASIC
C++ PROGRAMMING
JAVASCRIPT II
OS FEATURES REVIEW
C&I PERL
INDUSTRIAL INTERNSHIP (COMPUTER)
POLICE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION
CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION II
TRAFFIC ADMINISTRATION AND CONTROL
CORRECTIONAL LAW
PRINCIPLES OF MACROECONOMICS
INTRODUCTION TO TEACHING
CAREER AWARENESS
COMPOSITION I
INTRODUCTION TO FICTION
TECHNICAL WRITING
MODERN AMERICAN LITERATURE
MAJOR ENGLISH WRITERS II
PRINT READING
COMPUTER AIDED DRAFTING
DRAFTING FIELD PROJECT I
FIRST AID
CURRENT TOPICS AND ISSUES IN EXERCISE SCIENCE
TECHNIQUES IN STRENGTH TRAINING
CAMPING AND OUTDOOR EDUCATION
INTRODUCTION TO EXERCISE SCIENCE
PERSONAL SCHOOL COMMUNITY HEALTH
LIFETIME FITNESS
PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR THE ELEMENTARY TEACHER
SPORTS OFFICIATING
EXERCISE PHYSIOLOGY
EXERCISE TESTING AND PRESCRIPTION
ART HISTORY II
BUILDING CONSTRUCTION FIRE SERVICE
FIRE PROTECTION EQUIPMENT ALARM SYSTEMS

COURSE NAME
INTRODUCTION TO HOMELAND SECURITY AND WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION
FIRE ADMINISTRATION I
BUILDING FIRE CODES
CURRENT TOPICS AND TECHNOLOGY IN FIRE SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL GEOGRAPHY
UNITED STATES TO 1877
UNITED STATES SINCE 1877
BLACK HISTORY
THE BIBLE AS HISTORY
WORLD CIVILIZATION II
HUMAN SEXUALITY
INTRODUCTION TO HUMANITIES
HUMANITIES II
INTRODUCTION TO MASS COMMUNICATIONS
MATH ESSENTIALS
ELEMENTARY ALGEBRA
INTERMEDIATE ALGEBRA
COLLEGE ALGEBRA
PRE-CALCULUS MATHEMATICS
STATISTICS
MUSIC APPRECIATION
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY
INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY LAB
INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS LABORATORY
INTRODUCTION TO METEROLOGY AND LAB
TRANSITION CONCEPTS
PATHOPHYSIOLOGY FOR NURSES
INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY
ETHICS
FIRST AID
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL THERAPY
AMERICAN GOVERNMENT
INTRODUCTION TO LAW
LEGAL RESEARCH I
LITIGATION I
REAL ESTATE LAW
LEGAL WRITING
CRIMINAL LAW FOR THE PARALEGAL
BANKRUPTCY
PSYCHOLOGY
THE GRIEVING PROCESS
CHILD DEVELOPMENT
HUMAN DEVELOPMENT
SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY
FUNDAMENTALS RESPIRATORY CARE
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS I
TECHNICAL DEVICES
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS II
INTRODUCTION TO PULMONARY FUNCTION TESTING
SOCIOLOGY
SOCIOLOGY OF FAMILY
CRIMINOLOGY
SOCIAL PROBLEMS
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
PUBLIC SPEAKING
VICTIMOLOGY
VICTIM SERVICES
LEGAL POLICY IN VICTIM SERVICES

'Hamlet' actors work with students to understand Shakespeare

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Raking his fingers through his hair, actor Richard Stacey stands in the middle of a class of K-State theater and English students and paints a scene from the play "Cymbeline."

The circle of students leans forward as Shakespeare's words fall from Stacey's lips like a natural, easy conversation.

As students read through the lines of a soliloquy by Iachimo, Stacey says the playwright helps guide the actor, director and audience through a piece in an easy manner.

"Shakespeare doesn't leave you scratching your head," he said.

And suddenly, Shakespeare starts to come alive through the tongue of this British actor.

Stacey is one of five professional performers from the touring theater company Actors from the London Stage who will perform Shakespeare's "Hamlet" at 7:30 tonight in McCain Auditorium.

A pre-performance lecture will be given by Don Hedrich, professor of English, at 6:30 p.m. today in McCain 204. Orchestra tickets cost $25 for the public and $12.50 for students; balcony tickets cost $21 for the public and $10.50 for students.

Working with a group of students in an evening theater class, short scripts and soliloquies of Shakespeare's works were handed to students, allowing them to perform class. As parts, were passed around the room, actor Anna Northam stood up, motioning to the speeches and dialogues.

"Scribble up all over them," she said.

After 10 minutes of individual practice, the group reconvened to perform and receive critique from Northam and Stacey. Words from Shakespeare's dramas, comedies and romances were spoken by class members with occasional interjections from the company actors.

"You have to give every word a go," Stacey said, revisiting lines in the works and encouraging students to dig deeper.

The theater company, in its 30th year, travels to universities and colleges across the country and spends a week before a performance in classes, working with students. Being in the classroom is a vital component of the company's mission, Northam said, allowing actors to work with students and young performers to cultivate their abilities.

"It's desperately important," she said. "Otherwise, there's no point of doing this."

With only five actors on the tour, the company lacks a director, but Stacey said the troupe sits together before beginning a play to discuss the meaning and context of every word in a piece. The discussion is democratic, but Stacey said each performer fights hard for their parts, allowing even the little characters to shine.

With a small ensemble, it might seem difficult to perform some scenes, especially when two of an actor's characters are on stage simultaneously.

How is such a feat accomplished?

"You'll have to find out," Stacey laughed. "It turns out, you can do any play with five actors."

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Nick Barton, graduate student in speech, and Meghan Cummings, graduate student in English, receive instruction from Richard Stacey, Actor from the London Stage company member, Wednesday evening.

Inaugural bike ride at Wamego's OztoberFest, benefits county rec council

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The yellow brick road might be a little bit longer than it was when Dorothy traveled it.

Yellow Brick Road Ride, a bicycle ride, begins Saturday. The first-time event is part of OztoberFest, an annual celebration of the legendary book and 1939 movie "The Wizard of Oz" in Wamego, Kan., home of The Oz Museum.

The ride offers three bike routes beginning and ending at Wamego High School. There are 50.5-, 28- and 15-mile paved routes available. Check-in starts at 7:30 a.m. Saturday.

Registration for the 15-mile route is $20, and the 28- and 50.5-mile routes cost $25 each for those who haven't pre-registered.

All proceeds go to Pottawatomie County Outdoor Recreation Council, which helps fund the WAM-SAG-MAN Recreational Trail, a paved trail that will pass through Wamego, St. George and Manhattan.

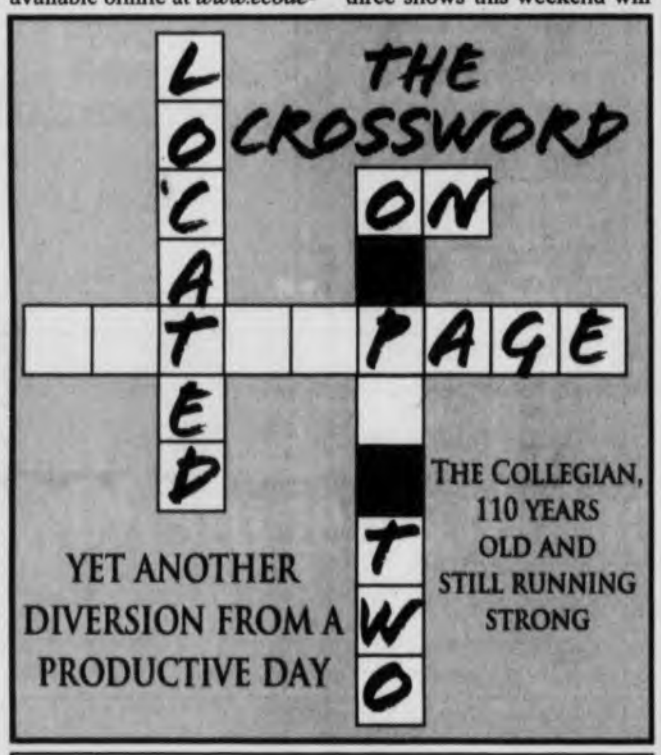
"Come out and enjoy the day and help us fund the WAM-SAG-MAN Trail project," said Diane Novak, chair of the recreation council.

The registration form is available online at www.ecodevo.com for anyone who wants to participate.

This is just one of many activities available during Wamego's annual Oztoberfest on Main Street.

A stage production of "The Wizard of Oz," by the Columbian Theatre, has been playing all through October, but the three shows this weekend will feature cameo performances by original Munchkins from the movie. Performances are 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

According to OztoberFest.com, attractions include autograph sessions with six of the original Munchkins and appearances by Roger Baum, children's author and the great-grandson of "The Wizard of Oz" author L. Frank Baum.



Props from the movie, including ruby slippers worn by Judy Garland and the Wicked Witch's hat, will be on display.

For more information on times, maps, pricing, and activities, visit www.oztoberfest.com.

—Dustin Sanborn contributed to this story.

FREE SEMINAR
Hiking Poles and Nordic Walking
Saturday, Oct. 21
11:00 a.m.
everyone welcome!
the PATHFINDER
OUTDOOR EQUIPMENT SPECIALISTS
304 Poyntz. Downtown Manhattan
785.539.5639

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

This Saturday October 21st
70+ BANDS
10 AM-2 AM
AGGIE 06 FEST
Live Music Festival
right here in Aggieville!
For a schedule & info on giveaways go to:
www.myspace.com/mmcaggiefest
or go to Sisters of Sound, Dusty Bookshelf, Rockstar & Rogers & On The Wildside.

Don't be fooled by the title, this hilarious Broadway musical is fun entertainment for the whole family!
URINETOWN
the musical
Lyrics by Greg Kotis and Mark Hollmann
Book by Greg Kotis
Music by Mark Hollmann
Oct. 11 - 14 and Oct. 18 - 21 at 8 p.m.
Oct. 15 & Oct. 22 matinees at 2 p.m.
Nichols Theatre on the KSU campus
Presented by KSU Theatre & Dance and the Dept. of Music
Sponsored by Ramada Plaza Hotel
TKTS: McCain Box Office open 11am to 5pm & K-State Union Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 wkdays 532-6428
Tickets: $10 student/child $13 military $15 public

the provost's lecture series 2006-2007
11:00 am-12:30 pm
Monday, October 23
Fiedler Auditorium
Fiedler Hall
The Evolving Internet
Dr. Vinton G. Cerf
Vice President and Chief Internet Evangelist for Google
Hosted by
Provost M. Duane Nellis
Presentations followed by Q & A
For more information, visit the Provost's web site:
<http://www.ksu.edu/provost/academic/lecture/index.htm>
Students Welcome

FACULTY/STAFF Night - Nov. 3 $2 discount
KSU Theatre presents
by Moliere
HILARIOUS...
ENTERTAINING...
FUN, FUN, FUN!
TKTS: McCain Box Office: open 11am to 5pm weekdays and at the K-State Union Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 weekdays. 532-6428 Online: ksu.edu/sctd
Sponsored by Pizza Hut of Manhattan

THE BEST K-STATE FOOTBALL COVERAGE IN THE LAND... PICK ONE UP TODAY!
GAMEDAY2006

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

THREE-BEDROOM TWO bath duplex with garage. 821 Mission. Available now. Lease ends May 31, 2007. $900/ month. No pets, no smoking. 785-776-9260.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

KSU - CU Game. Join us for a Buffalo hunt in Boulder! Our chartered bus will leave at 11:00 am, Friday, November 3 and return after the game on Saturday. Travel package includes chartered bus, a double occupancy room at the Westin in Boulder (the team hotel) and game ticket for $220. For reservations please call Kathy Dahnke at GTM Sportswear at 785-537-8822 ext. 1120.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

DROVE OFF with my cell phone, palm treo, on top of my car after Saturday's game 10/14. Parked behind Trotter. REWARD offered. 800-892-5558 ext.-87514.

FOUND: KEYS. Ford ignition key, house, and mail box keys. Crimestopper remote. Call 785-313-5352.

RECORDER FOUND on campus near Vattier. Call 785-313-5886 to claim.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE for Christian household needed immediately for four-bedroom, two-bath house. Air Conditioner, Washer/ Dryer. No smoking or pets. $232.50/ one-fourth utilities. Additional room also available in December. Brandy 785-313-1205.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Living with girls in a four-bedroom house. Six blocks from campus. $375 includes utilities. Call Amber 620-343-0663.

LOOKING FOR Male Subleaser. Clean and honest household. Lease is for January 2007 through August 2007. Close to campus. $250 a month. 785-562-7454.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

TWO-BEDROOM, one-bath apartment for sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600/ month, available now. 785-410-7266.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

BUFFALO WILD Wings is looking for a few good buffalo to join the herd. Now accepting applications for daytime cooks. 1231 Moro Street. 785-323-WING.

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

COMPUTER INFORMATION SPECIALIST at Kansas State University responsible for programming, desktop support, and network management for national association. BS/BA required. Salary $42,000 - 50,000. 785-532-5717, for more information: http://www.nacada.ksu.edu/joboepenings-cis.htm Equal Opportunity Employer

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

FULL TIME position open in the Operating Room at Geary Community Hospital for a PACU nurse. Applicant must have a current and unrestricted Registered Nurse license with the State of Kansas; Med/-Surg and ICU experience preferred; current ACLS and BLS certification. The hours for the position are 0800-1630 Monday through Friday with occasional overtime required. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; fax to 785-238-1700 or email to cwitt@gchks.org; or apply on line at www.gchks.org.

GEARY COMMUNITY Hospital a very progressive 92 - bed acute care facility is looking for RCP's. Nestled in the Flint Hills of Kansas, and in the fastest growing community in the state, we provide excellent health care to both in-patient and out-patients utilizing the latest technology available. In addition, our hospital is undergoing a $34 million expansion project that will serve us far in the future. We offer competitive salaries and benefits packages for our employees. For more information contact Geary Community Hospital; 1102 St. Mary's Rd.; PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; email to; cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

IMMEDIATE HELP needed transferring from wheelchair. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 5-7 p.m. Call 785-537-3871.

INTERNET WORK! $9-$150/ hour! Full-time/ part-time/ Summer. Studentserveysite.com/kscollegian

785 532 6555
Call for Collegian Classifieds

310 Help Wanted

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.-com.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PART-TIME Furniture Delivery Positions: Flexible work schedule, great pay. Stop by A Full House, 601 S. 5th Street, 785-537-9088.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

RETAIL LIQUOR Store accepting applications for part-time sales clerk. Apply at McMillins 930 Hayes Drive, Manhattan. Must be 21.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

STUDENT PROGRAMMER position available. Must be available at least 12 hours per week (up to 20). Starting pay is $10.00 to $12.00 per hour based on experience. Programming experience in Visual Basic or Visual Basic.Net required. Must possess good communication skills. Apply in person at 315-A Houston Street, Manhattan, KS. Contact jobs@stasyx.com with questions.

Need a Subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

TO ALL COMPUTER PROGRAMMING STUDENTS GRADUATING in December. Full-time software developer position is available in Manhattan, KS. Must possess good communication skills. Apply via the e-recruiting system or email your resume directly to jobs@stasyx.-com.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH/ Front Office Assistant Hours 20- 30, Summer 40 hours. Assist Evaluators with program evaluation activities & Office Manager with front desk and Director projects Kansas State University, Office of Educational Innovation and Evaluation. Email ubel@ksu.edu or call 785-532-2982.

Advertise in the Classifieds
785-532-6555

ASinc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for:
Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

Attendant Care Providers
Manhattan and Junction City
Part-time positions available providing support with daily living skills to youth and adults with mental health challenges. High School diploma or equivalent required; related experience and/or training preferred. Qualified applicants will be at least 21 years of age and have a valid driver's license with an acceptable record. Send letter of interest to:
HR Director
Pawnee Mental Health Services
PO Box 747
Manhattan, KS 66505
Email - hr@pawnee.org
Pawnee Mental Health Services
Equal Opportunity Employer

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

FOR SALE: (Like New) Lawn Mower. (Like New) Flat - Screen Monitor. (Old) Sewing Machine. 785-537-1423.

LIKE NEW - Futon, couch, loveseat, TV's, entertainment units, executives desk, coffee and end tables. Will deliver. Call 785-494-2068.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

1995 DODGE 4x4. Good condition. $3500 or best offer. Call 785-556-0851.

530 Motorcycles

SWEET RETRO Honda Moped. 49cc, 50 mpg, wire baskets. No insurance required. Park at bike racks. $750. 316-207-3511.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

Got old stuff?
GET RID OF IT!
in the
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

looking for a job?
CHECK THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

NOW HIRING!
• Wait Staff
• Bartender
El Potrillo
Stop by for an application today!
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

Management Career Opportunity
Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.
Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.
Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

Dillons FOOD STORES
Current applications are being accepted at Dillons Westloop 1000 Westloop, Manhattan for the following positions:
• Daytime Cashier
• Daytime Courtesy Clerk
• Clerks for Bakery and Deli
Must be 18 years of older, with daytime availability
Apply online at www.dillons.com or Store Kiosk at Dillon's Westloop

QUIZNOS SUB
HMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

		9		3
5		6			8
		7		4		6	1
					4		8
9		3				4		7
	8		7
	7	1		6		3
			4			8		6
				5		9

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

Rockin' back in time

Photos by Parker Rome | COLLEGIAN
Aerosmith's Joe Perry stands in front of a large screen displaying live concert footage. When Perry is on tour, he travels with a collection of over 200 guitars.

Aerosmith, Motley Crue showcase old songs, new releases at Verizon

By Parker Rome
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

BONNER SPRINGS, Kan. – Aerosmith and Motley Crue gave about 15,000 fans seeking a classic rock experience just what they wanted at the Kansas City, Kan., stop of the bands' aptly named "Route of All Evil Tour" on Tuesday at Verizon Wireless Amphitheater.

Fans willing to shell out $650 were treated to the VIP experience – a package containing premium tickets, gourmet food, backstage access, a tour of the venue and a chance to feel like a rock star, said Andrew Lance, sophomore in golf course management.

Lance and his friend Dusty Willard, junior in construction science, took advantage of the VIP experience.

"We got to go out on the end of the catwalk and hold one of Joe Perry's guitars and Steven Tyler's mic and get our picture taken there," Lance said.

This concert was the third time Willard saw Aerosmith perform, but it was the first time he bought the premiere package.

Craig Ackerman, senior in secondary education, said Aerosmith's performance at this concert was the best of the three times he has seen them.

"They are a band that, in my opinion, has so many great songs that you could see them again and not hear the same song twice and still get a great show out of it," Ackerman said.

Motley Crue opened the evening by performing about 12 songs accompanied by explosions, fire and scantily clad women. Singer Vince Neil, guitarist/songwriter Nikki Sixx, and drummer Tommy Lee shared the spotlight as they took turns delivering the between-song banter.

"I love Motley Crue," Ackerman said. "I really enjoyed hearing all of their songs that I've always loved performed by them live, but quality-wise, they didn't hold much to Aerosmith."

Aerosmith, without bassist Tom Hamilton, who is recovering from throat cancer, filled the band's 75-minute set with many of its staples, a few forgotten favorites and a new single, "Devil's Got a New Disguise," from the album that debuted this week.

"Aerosmith blew my doors away," Lance said. "Steven Tyler still has one of the best voices, and Joe Perry can still wail."

Lance said his favorite part came when Perry stripped off his shirt while standing on the catwalk and began beating his guitar in sync with bass drum thuds delivered by Joey Kramer.

"Motley Crue was my favorite band, but now Aerosmith is probably my favorite," he said. "Those guys are like gods of rock. I'm definitely going to see them again."

Aerosmith's Steven Tyler appears to glow as stage lights shine behind him Tuesday at the Verizon Wireless Amphitheater in Bonner Springs, Kan.

Christopher Hanewincke I COLLEGIAN
Nathan Jackson, senior in speech, acts in "If Truth Be Told" at the Manhattan Arts Center.

Play based on local testimonies

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Jamie Fell kept his secret for 10 years.

He hesitated on so many occasions – at the family table, on vacations. All he wanted was to be upfront, honest.

When he finally came out to his family and said, "I am gay," Fell said the experience was nerve-wracking. He didn't know what to do.

Starting tonight, Fell's story, along with many others about the coming-out process, will be shared in Manhattan.

The Flint Hills Parents, Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG) and the Flint Hills Kansas Equality Coalition will be host to the play "If Truth Be Told," written by K-State graduate student Martha Crouse.

"Perhaps the biggest challenge in the coming-out process is just admitting to others that you are gay," said Fell, who grew up in Wichita.

One of the long-term goals of PFLAG is to establish awareness, advocacy and a comfortable environment for those who are not traditionally accepted sexually, said Jason Lantz, president of the Flint Hills PFLAG.

"PFLAG is essentially for lesbian and gay people and their allies," Lantz said. "We live in an environment that can be anywhere from uncomfortrable to hostile. People can come and be themselves and feel accepted."

Under the direction of their professors, Crouse and fellow graduate student Jemmie Godwin were commissioned by Flint Hills PFLAG to write two issue-based, non-fiction plays about Manhattan lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgendered community members and their parents.

Lantz said Crouse and Godwin had no intention to take the plays beyond the classroom, but after encouragement from community members, they decided publicity would benefit all involved.

The project will use non-fiction theater as a means to activate a dialogue on the topic of diversity based on sexual orientation.

"Such a dialogue requires exposure to the full range of individual experience, followed by an opportunity for the participants to explore their beliefs, values and biases through a post-play discussion in an atmosphere that is non-threatening and encourages self-examination," Lantz said.

Fell said it was important for others to accept him through his coming out and for him to accept the experience himself.

"I wish that I would not have feared being accepted," he said.

MOVIE TIMES

■ Times for today through Sunday.
■ () denotes times playing Saturday and Sunday only.
★ New movies at Seth Childs Cinema this week.

★ "The Prestige," PG-13, 130 min.
(1:30), 4:20, 7:10, 10:00

Between two magicians, friendly competition evolves into a bitter rivalry, making them fierce enemies for life and jeopardizing the lives of everyone around them. Starring Hugh Jackman, Christian Bale and Michael Caine. ★

"Flicka," PG, 95 min.
(1:30), 4:15, 7:00, 9:30

Young Katie claims a wild horse as her own in an effort to prove to her father (Tim McGraw) that she is capable of one day taking over the family ranch.

★ "Flags of our Fathers," R, 132 min.
(1:15), 4:10, 7:00, 9:55

Director Clint Eastwood presents the life stories of the six men who raised the flag at the Battle of Iwo Jima, a turning point in WWII.

"The Marine," PG-13, 93 min.
5:30, 9:55

"The Grudge 2," PG-13, 95 min.
(1:25), 4:25, 7:15, 9:40

"Man of the Year," PG-13, 115 min.
(1:20), 4:30, 7:10, 9:45

"One Night With the King," PG, 116 min.
(1:10), 4:05, 7:05, 9:35

"Employee of the Month," PG-13, 103 min.
(1:00, 3:15), 7:35

"The Texas Chainsaw Massacre: The Beginning," R, 84 min.
(1:05, 3:10), 5:15, 7:20, 9:25

"The Departed," R, 149 min.
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 10:00

"Jackass: Number Two," R, 92 min.
9:20

"Open Season," PG, 86 min.
(1:05, 3:05), 5:05, 7:15

Source: www.carmike.com. Call (785) 776-9886 for show times.

Baseball Fever

By Brendan Praeger
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Even with the World Series approaching, some people are shocked to find out baseball season hasn't ended yet. For those who think real baseball games are about eight-and-a-half innings too long, here are a few great baseball movies everyone can enjoy.

Best movie to watch with children: "The Sandlot" (1993)
Remember the good old days when you could spend all summer playing baseball and pretending to drown so the hot lifeguard would inadvertently make-out with you? Neither do I. I sucked at baseball, and the lifeguards would have probably just let me drown. But I still love the "The Sandlot." It's a timeless classic.

Best movie to watch with naughty children: "The Bad News Bears" (1976)
I like Billy Bob Thornton as much as the next guy, but he's got nothing on Walter Matthau from the original. It's like a version of "The Sandlot" from the wrong side of the tracks.

Best movie to watch with friends: "Major League" (1989)
The new owner of the Cleveland Indians puts together a purposely horrible team so it will lose, and she can move the team. But when the plot is uncovered, they start winning just to spite her. I love spite. This is the perfect baseball movie.

Best movie to watch with a girl: "A League of Their Own" (1992)
OK, so I don't really like this movie, but a bunch of female friends yelled at me when it wasn't on my list.

Best movie you've probably never heard of: "The Bingo Long Traveling All-Stars & Motor Kings" (1976)
Maxim's number-one sports movie of all time stars Billy Dee Williams, James Earl Jones and Richard Pryor as a group of baseball players in the 1930s who grow tired of their slave-like treatment in the Negro Leagues and decide to go barnstorming around the Midwest. Whip out the Netflix list; this movie rocks.

Best movie to watch when you're sick of overpaid professional athletes: Bull Durham (1988)
"It's all about sex and sport. What else is there?" With a tagline like that that, who wouldn't love this movie?

GAMEDAY GUIDE

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, Oct. 20, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 45

Road trip
Columbia, Mo.
See Pages 4-5

Cyber sacks
Students have found a new way to annoy opposing players
See story Page 3

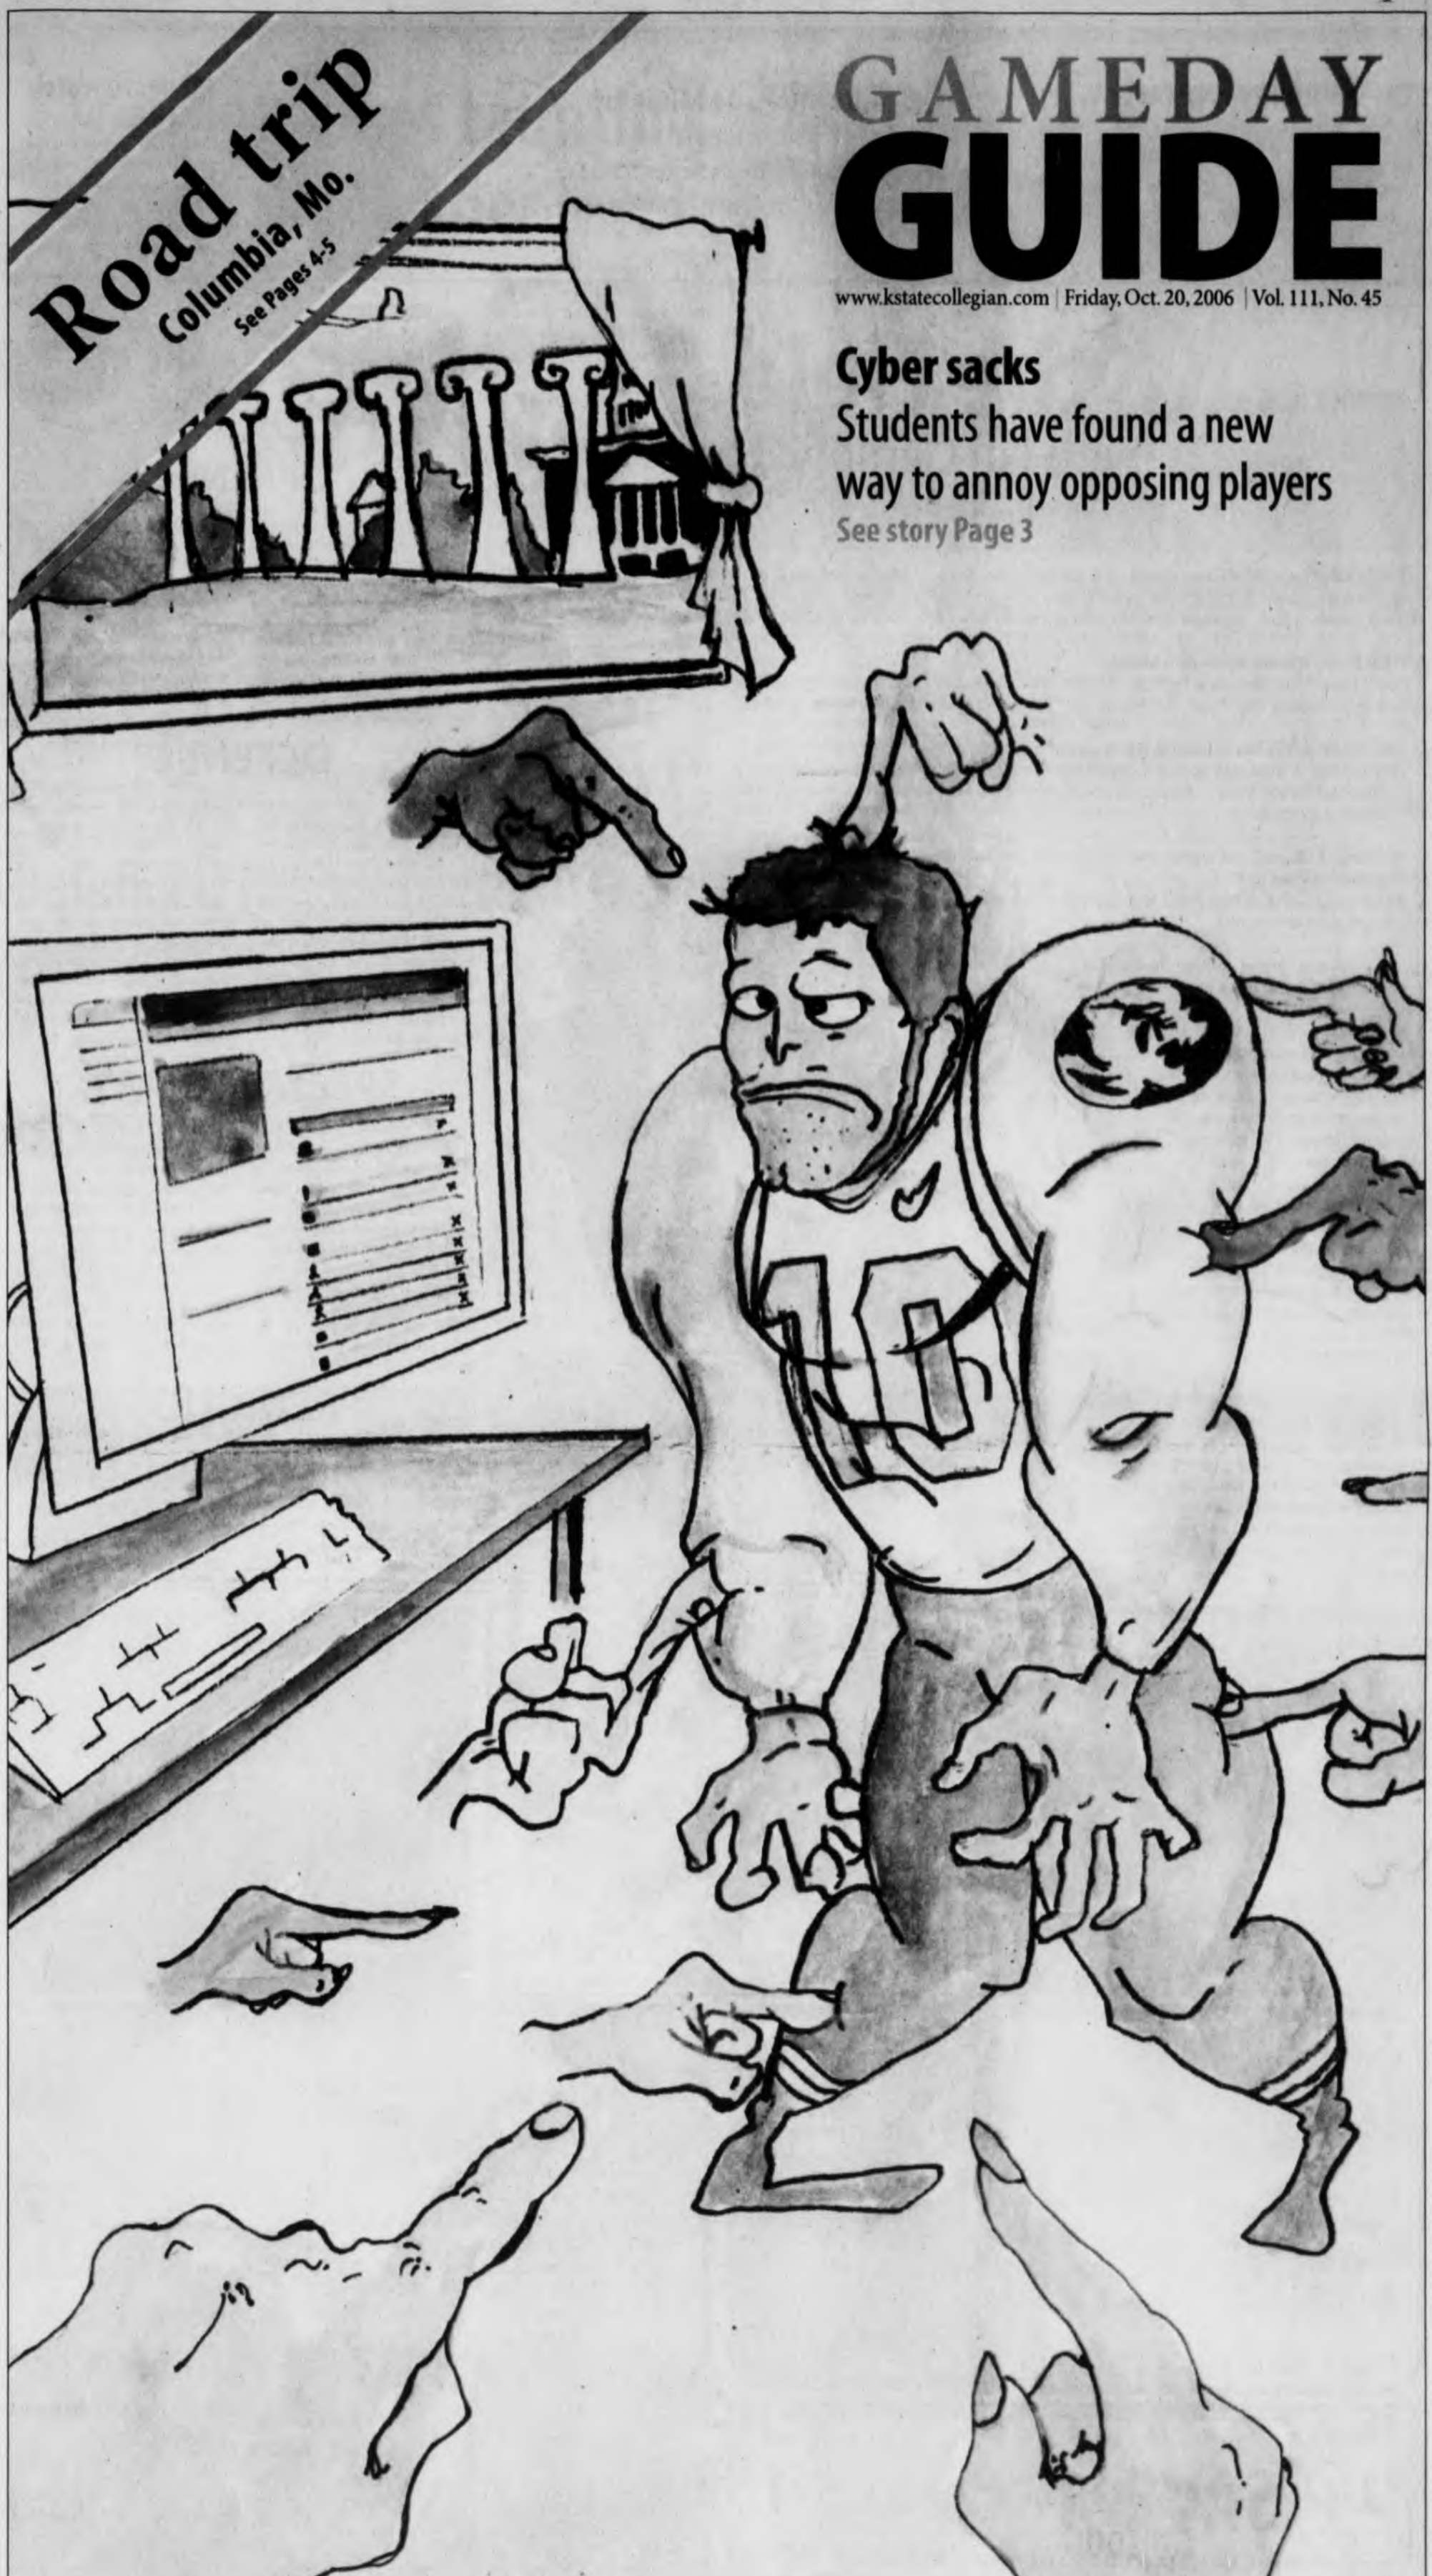

Illustration by Donald Lee | COLLEGIAN

Off the field Page 2 | Chase Daniel Page 6 | Allan Evridge Page 7 | 5 keys to victory Page 7 | Brandon Archer Page 8

Gameday forecast

Morning showers, cloudy
High: 65 Low: 36

K-State at No. 24 Missouri
1 p.m. Saturday
History: Missouri leads series 55-31-5
Radio: K-State Sports Network

Player to watch

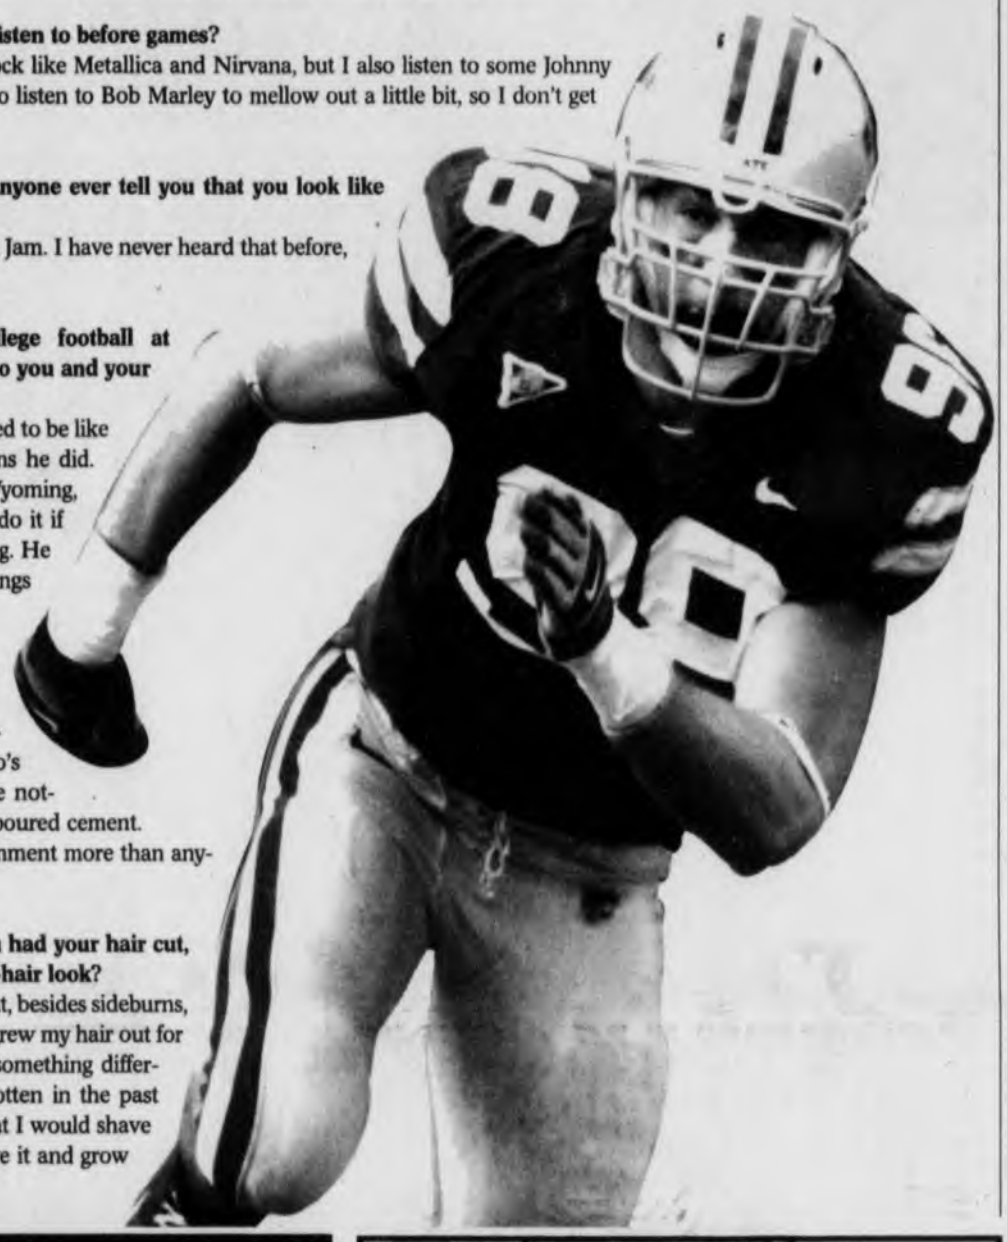
In last weekends 21-3 loss to Nebraska, Josh Freeman set a freshman record with 47 pass attempts. If the running game falters like it did last week, Freeman will have to throw the ball on Missouri, the No. 17-rated passing defense in the nation.

Off the Field with Ian Campbell

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Ian Campbell leads the Wildcats in sacks and tackles for loss, and he is third on the team in overall tackles. He was recently named to the Hendricks Award Watch List. The award is given annually to the best defensive end in the nation. Campbell, a sophomore and native of Cimarron, Kan., answered questions ranging from his favorite music to his worst job in high school.

Q. What is your favorite off-the-field activity?
A. Really, I just like to hang out at my house with my two roommates. I like to watch TV when I can. I watch Monday Night Football, and obviously, I watch "Nip/Tuck" and "Family Guy." I just try to relax and get my homework done.



Q. What music do you like to listen to before games?
A. I like to listen to some old rock like Metallica and Nirvana, but I also listen to some Johnny Cash and Willie Nelson. I like to listen to Bob Marley to mellow out a little bit, so I don't get too pumped up for the game.

Q. Speaking of old rock, did anyone ever tell you that you look like Eddie Vedder of Pearl Jam?
A. That is funny. I listen to Pearl Jam. I have never heard that before, but all right, I will go with that.

Q. Your brother played college football at Wyoming. What did he mean to you and your football development?
A. He influenced me lot. I wanted to be like him and play the same positions he did. He had a very good career at Wyoming, and he always told me I could do it if I just keep trying and keep going. He helped me through a lot of things while I have been here.

Q. What is the worst job that you have ever had?
A. That is a really good question. I have worked for Gambino's Pizza, I have set cattle in some not-very-fun situations, and I have poured cement. I think it is all about the environment more than anything else and how hot it is.

Q. When was the last time you had your hair cut, and why do you keep the long-hair look?
A. The last time I had my hair cut, besides sideburns, was probably last November. I grew my hair out for no particular reason. It is just something different. The only haircut I have gotten in the past four years consecutively was that I would shave my head, grow it out, then shave it and grow it out again.

vs.

OFFENSE

K-State's offensive line let the team down again last week against Nebraska. Quarterback Josh Freeman was pressured on just about every play, and running back Leon Patton had nowhere to run. If the blocking does not improve this week, K-State will need a lot of help from its defense to have a prayer in this one.

The Tigers rank third in the Big 12 in total offense with an average of 418 yards per game. Quarterback Chase Daniel is the team's catalyst with 18 touchdowns already this season. He and running back Tony Temple will be looking to take advantage of a K-State defense that showed some vulnerability last week.

DEFENSE

The Wildcat defense played fairly well last week against Nebraska, but it took the bait on some trick plays that proved costly. K-State's secondary held the Huskers to just 159 yards of passing, but showed some weakness against the run, allowing 190 yards. The Wildcat linebackers will have to do better this week, as Missouri is likely to replicate Nebraska's game plan.

Missouri ranks second in the Big 12 both in terms of total defense and points allowed. The Tigers have held their opposition to 25 points or fewer in every game this season and are conceding just 276 yards per game on average. The Wildcat offense will need to make some substantial adjustments if it wants to compete with a talented Tiger defense.

SPECIAL TEAMS

K-State's special teams responded well last week after a poor performance against Oklahoma State the week before. Kicker Jeff Snodgrass proved his ability by nailing a 53-yard field goal and narrowly missing a 51-yard attempt. If the Wildcat offense continues to flounder the special teams will have to pick up the slack and put some points on the board.

If Missouri has a weakness, it would have to be its special teams play. The Tigers rank eighth in the Big 12 in kick-off return averages and ninth in punt return averages, and they have yet to score a touchdown on a return this year. Additionally, they are averaging only 40 yards per punt and have not attempted a field goal beyond 45 yards the entire season.

PREDICTION

With the way Missouri's defense is playing this season, it is hard to believe K-State has a chance.

However, the Tigers have not beaten the Wildcats in the last decade and could be in for a tougher match than they think. The last time Missouri beat K-State was Nov. 14, 1992, when the Wildcats lost in Columbia 27-14. Unfortunately, K-State's offensive line simply isn't good enough to win this one.

Missouri recovers while K-State continues to slip.

— Missouri 24, K-State 10

BOBBY T's
WILDCAT REPLAY
4:30PM 6:30PM
8:30 PM
TUESDAY
3240 KIMBALL AVE. · 537-8383

Enjoy The Game
8 TVs
and some room to move
Finn's Pub
317 Poyntz Ave. • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 776-2119

discover
[gopowercat.com]
beLoud, beProud, bePurple

Anderson Village • 1441 Anderson
Manhattan, KS 66502
EYECARE ASSOCIATES OF MANHATTAN, PA
Dr. Bullock
Dr. Stanley
Doctors of Optometry
• TRICARE & Most Insurances Accepted
• Convenient Appointment Times Available
• In-Office Eyewear Gallery
(785) 776-9461 • 1-800-432-0036
98% Of Contact Lenses Fit Same Day

Everyday Low Prices
If You Didn't Buy It At Classic
You Probably Paid Too Much!!!
Best 30 Pack Cans -$11.45
Natural Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Keystone Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Miller High Life 30 Packs - $12.85
Busch and Busch Light 30 Packs - $14.10
Miller Lite and MGD 30 Packs - $15.99
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans - $15.99
Coors Light 30 Pack - $16.30
Celebrate Our Win With
Andre Champagne 750ML - $3.99
Be The Prince of Your Tailgate
On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, and Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99
Kentucky Deluxe 1.75L $10.99
UV Flavored Vodka Liters $11.49 and 750ML $8.99
Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

$1 SAVE $1
on your next purchase of any reg. 16 oz. Blizzard® Flavor Treat
Two locations
1015 N. 3rd St.
3116 Anderson Ave
Offer good only 10/20, 10/21, 10/22
Consumer must pay any sales tax. Limit 1 per coupon and 1 coupon per customer. Redeemable only on items selling at regular price. Good only at Manhattan stores.
BLIZZARD
Dairy Queen

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian's
Gameday
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

Facebook takes taunting players to another level

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Many college students have been a victim of it, and wars have even been waged just from the simple act of it.

It, of course, is a Facebook.com poke.

For those who do not have a Facebook profile, a poke is a feature that allows members to electronically "poke" friends through the Internet. The feature serves as a way to call attention to a friend or, in some cases a rival, without actually leaving a message.

Although a poke might seem like a simple act, it has been used to get into the minds of opposing college quarterbacks all over the country, even at K-State.

Colin Williams, freshman in chemistry, created a group called "Poke the other team's quarterback" on Facebook. The goal of the group is self-explanatory, and it has attracted the attention of more than 1,500 K-State students.

"I thought it was just a fun way to get more students involved with K-State football," Williams said.

The idea of this group is not limited to K-State. Similar groups from Arizona to West Virginia have been started this semester. Williams said he got the idea from a friend that joined a group like it in Wisconsin.

Josh Freeman, freshman starting quarterback, said he has received pokes from several Missouri fans this week.

"It doesn't really bother me," Freeman said. "It is just a whole bunch of pokes."

Not everyone is nonchalant as Freeman. Nebraska's quarterback Zac Taylor was forced to block pokes coming from other schools. That did not stop Williams or other group members, though. Instead of poking Taylor, Williams told members to send friend requests to the opposing quarterback.

Imagine waking up to more than 1,000 friend requests and just as many e-mails.

Brian Wenrich, junior in philosophy, was one of the many students to join the group. He joined because he thought it was a funny idea, and many of his other friends were in the group.

"I think it allows people to think about upcoming games and get into the opposing quarterback's head," Wenrich said.

Students are not the only ones who enjoy the groups. Williams said he received messages from Baylor quarterback Shawn Bell supporting Williams' group idea, even after receiving a multitude of pokes from Wildcat fans.

Unfortunately, not all opposing quarterbacks have a Facebook profile. For example, Williams said he could not find the Missouri quarterback's profile, so he decided to poke and send friend requests to place kicker Jeff Wolfert. On the group profile, Williams calls for members to "poke away and ice the kicker."

Wenrich said poking the kicker might not be as exciting, but some games go down to the wire and rely on the kickers.

Opposing Big 12 quarterbacks and kickers beware. A barrage of Facebook friend requests and cyber pokes will be coming your way, whether you like it or not.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Colin Williams, freshman in chemistry, created a group on Facebook.com called "Poke the other team's quarterback." His response has been more than 1,500 members and a few angry opposing quarterbacks.

Balanced Missouri offensive, defensive attacks await Wildcats

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Missouri quarterback Chase Daniel might be the man who runs the offense, but there are other playmakers who help make the Tigers click.

The receiving corps is led by wide receiver William Franklin and tight end Chase Coffman.

Franklin is second in the Big 12 and 15th in the nation in receiving yards per game with 86.1. He has 603 yards on the season and five touchdowns.

Coffman only averages 39.7 yards per game, but he has four touchdowns, and Prince said he is the biggest threat on Missouri's offense.

"I think that on offense, this is their go-to guy. I don't think enough can be said about this player and his abilities," Prince said about the brother of Wildcat freshman quarterback Carson Coffman.

"Not only is he a mismatch in the running game when he gets a chance to stay in and block, but he also has the ability down the field to catch the ball. This guy is a star player."

To go with the receivers on offense is running back Tony Temple. He is third in the conference with 85.7 yards per game and has scored three times.

"They run a lot of the stuff that Marshall ran," linebacker Brandon Archer said.

Archer has recorded an interception for a touchdown in each of the past two meetings with Missouri.

"They are gonna spread you out, and they have a quarterback that can run the ball, so you have to watch him. They are also going to use their tight ends a lot, because they have great tight ends."

Online

■ Before this season, Gary Pinkel was sitting on the hottest seat in the Big 12. Now his team is 6-1, and the talk is focused on a trip to the Big 12 championship. Find out how the Pinkel saga should be a lesson to those fans jumping on and off the Ron Prince bandwagon.

www.kstatecollegian.com

Missouri's offense is ranked 15th in the nation with 417.6 yards per game.

Its defense is much like its offense – balanced and led by a few dominant players.

The Tiger defense is ranked 18th nationally in total defense, allowing only 276.1 points per game, and Missouri is just one of five teams to rank in the Top 20 nationally in both total offense and defense.

The defense is anchored by defensive end Brian Smith and linebacker Marcus Bacon.

Smith leads his team in tackles for loss (9.5) and sacks (7.5). His sack total this season is second in the conference, and he is tied for fifth with 1.07 sacks per game.

He has 31.5 sacks in his career, nine sacks higher than the previous career-high record for a Tiger.

Bacon is third in the conference with 9.6 tackles per game, and he also has two interceptions.

"They are a good fast defense, and they run to the ball and make a lot of plays," offensive lineman Greg Wafford said. "We have to go out there and be very ball-secure and make plays and score points to help our defense out to get a win for our team."

sudoku on the Classified Page

Wash Palace
"Largest & Cleanest Facility in Manhattan"
Q: What happens when your hangers are empty and your laundry bag is full?
A: You drop off your laundry for wash, dry and fold service.
• Coin Laundry
• Drive-up Window & Door
• Jumbo Computerized Driers & Large Capacity Washers
• Big Screen TV & Pool Table
3216 Candlewood 537-9833
Coin-op Open 24 Hours
Dry Cleaning & Drop off Monday - Saturday: 7am-7pm Sunday: 12pm - 7pm

The Purple Pig
$4.99 Steak Night Every Friday
$3.75 Long Island Ice Tea
•Sunday NFL ticket
•ESPN Game Plan
1119 Moro • 539-7444

Celebrations of the Heart
Trivia Question:
How many times in a row has K-State beat Missouri?
find the answer at www.shopcelebrationsoftheheart.com and enter a drawing
For a Once In a Lifetime Opportunity!

Come Get Your Shag on!
hi-lites • trendy hair styles
men's/women's hair cuts
612 N. 12TH • AGGIEVILLE • 539-2277
SHAGGIEVILLE

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER MANHATTAN

COLLEGE PARK
UNIVERSITY CROSSING
NEW CLUBHOUSE
University Crossing
2215 College Ave.
Manhattan, KS 66502
789.539.0500 tel
collegeparkweb.com
coming in fall 2006
FEATURED
• fitness center
• computer lab
• game room
COLLEGE PARK

Saturday Night Salsa
with DJ Luis
$2.50 • Sangria • Margaritas • Coronas
$2.75 • Pounders
BOWINKLE'S
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022
Sports Bar
College Football Package
ESPN Game Plan:
Catch all your major games on our 120" TVs!
Ask for our GREAT daily food and drink specials

Columbia, Mo.

What to do, where to stay and where to eat before and after K-State plays Missouri on Saturday

Quick information

- Population: 89,000
- Location: About 120 miles from both Kansas City to the west and St. Louis to the east.
- Enrollment: 27,985
- Columbia is not only home to Missouri, but also ① Stephens College and ② Columbia College. Both of the schools are private, and Stephens is an all-women's college.
- Missouri was established in 1839. It was the first public university west of the Mississippi River.
- The university's campus contains 18 buildings on the national register of historic places, Thomas Jefferson's original tombstone and 600-year-old Chinese stone lions.
- ③ Faurot Field, also known as Memorial Stadium, was named in 1972 after legendary football coach Don Faurot. The stadium is a traditional horseshoe shape that holds 68,349 people. Behind one end zone is a grass berm with a giant block "M" made of painted white stones. Fans can sit on the grassy hill to watch the game.
- It's Homecoming Week for the Tigers. Legend says the Homecoming tradition started at Missouri in 1911. It's unclear whether this is true, as Illinois claims to have had a similar celebration in 1910, but Missouri apparently was the first school to have a Homecoming football game.
- Famous alumni from Missouri include Brad Pitt, Sheryl Crow and Sam Walton.

—Compiled by Nick Dunn, Graphics by Emily Lawrence | KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
PHOTOS COURTESY OF UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI MEDIA RELATIONS

Places to see:

④ Mizzou Recreation Center: The university's rec center was voted the best in the nation by Sports Illustrated after a $50 million renovation that was completed in 2005. The complex is 300,000 square feet, including a 50-meter competitive pool with seating for 1,000, and more than $1 million in cardiovascular equipment, a water grotto with fountains and a waterfall, a juice bar and a number of flat-screen televisions.

⑤ The Columns: Located on the Francis Quadrangle on campus, the columns are one of the most important landmarks in Columbia. They were part of the original administration building that burned down in 1892, and students walk through them when beginning at Missouri and when graduating.

MKT Nature and Fitness Trail: For outdoorsy people, this trail is 8.9 miles long and is good for biking, hiking, jogging and cross-country skiing. It connects with the Katy Trail, which stretches more than 200 miles across the state.

Hotels/Motels

As of press time, nearly every hotel in Columbia was sold out because of Homecoming Weekend. However, some hotels have the possibility of opening up due to late cancellations. If not, it might be best to spend the night in Kansas City.

④ Regency Hotel Downtown
Address: 1111 E. Broadway
Phone: (573) 443-2090
Price: $139
Features: Very good location in the heart of downtown. Includes free high-speed Internet, complimentary breakfast and free use of Gold's Gym on site. A Thai restaurant is also on site.

⑦ Comfort Suites
Address: 1010 Business Loop 70 West
Phone: (573) 443-0055
Price: $129
Features: New 2005 suites include micro-fridge, sofa sleeper, free high-speed Internet and an indoor pool.

⑧ Stoney Creek Inn
Address: 2601 S. Providence Road
Phone: (573) 442-6400
Price: $80-$300
Features: Indoor/outdoor pool, fitness room and bar/lounge on site. Located just 1 mile south of Faurot Field.

⑨ Fairfield Inn
Address: 2904 Clark Lane
Phone: (573) 814-2727
Price: $119
Features: Indoor pool, jacuzzi, high-speed Internet and complimentary breakfast.

Restaurants

⑩ Heidelberg Restaurant
Address: 410 S. Ninth St.
Phone: (573) 449-6927
Price range: $5-$12
Known for: Mostly traditional burgers, sandwiches and appetizers, and German specialty items like Reuben sandwiches and Bratwursts. The restaurant burned down in 2002, but it reopened in August 2003 with an upstairs patio that is heated in the winter. The Heidelberg is popular destin the game.

⑪ Shakespeare's Pizza
Address: 225 S. Ninth St.
Phone: (573) 449-2454
Price range: Pizzas can be anywhere $32, but a typical pizza is $20-$23.
Known for: The best pizza in Columbi destination for before or after the gam casual restaurant includes a bar/loung

EKART'S "SINCE 1965"
Motor Inn, Inc.
209 Sarber Lane
Dependable Auto Service
776-9058
•Oil Changes
•Brake Service
•Tire Rotation
•Computer diagnostics
•30-Pt. System Check
•Complete automotive repair
Go Cats!

Everything you need for tailgating is in
THE FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor
south of Blockbuster on Westport Dr.

LONGHORNS
SALOON
1115 Moro 776-8770
LIVE IN CONCERT TONIGHT!
Full Throttle
With Special Guest
RYAN BALES BAND
• Tickets $5 •

Dine at the finest Italian restaurant in town!
Valentino's
Grand Italian Buffet
3003 Anderson Ave.
Plaza West
• 539-6444
Lunch Buffet Only $4.99
Lunch Buffet Only $4.99
Lunch Buffet Only $4.99
Dinner Buffet Only $6.99
Over 100 Items! The Best Deal in Town!
Don't Forget: Kids eat FREE Buffet* on Tuesday!
*Some restrictions apply.

Alan Clark
BODY SHOP INC. SINCE 1967
"WHEN QUALITY COUNTS, COME SEE US"
• COMPLETE BODY REPAIR
• ESTIMATES
• INSURANCE CLAIMS WELCOME
•PAINTLESS DENT REPAIR
•RECEIVER HITCHES & 5TH
SCORPION
MasterCard DISCOVER VISA
Manhattan Town Center
Hwy 24 EAST
SOUTH FOURTH
PIERRE
3rd
K-18
177
Ft. RILEY BLVD.
776-5333
2160 PILLSBURY DR. • 177 HWY SOUTH • MANHATTAN

destination after where from $4-23. olumbia. A great

e game. This /lounge on site.

⑫ Harpo's
Address: 29 S. 10th St.
Phone: (573) 443-5418
Price range: $5-$6.50
Known for: A great destination for during or after a game, Harpo's has a special gameday menu. "Harpo's Hammers" are a popular game day drink — a mix drink with a lot of different types of alcohol. After big victories, fans actually drag down the goalposts and carry them to Harpo's to cut them into pieces.

⑬ Gumby's Pizza
Address: 1201 E. Broadway
Phone: (573) 874-8629
Price range: $5-$7
Known for: The same pizza that is featured here in Manhattan. If your craving for a Big Ass Pizza can't wait for the return trip, there's a Gumby's in downtown Columbia just for you.

On the Road

The Cattracker File

- Purpose: to follow the Wildcat football team and to be the ultimate tailgating vehicle
- Year/Model: 1986 Chevy school bus
- Color: purple and silver
- Cost: about $2,000 for bus; add-ons and amenities cost an additional $25,000
- Capacity: 15 people for traveling purposes, but more than 70 for other purposes, including tailgating outside Gate 7 of Snyder Family Stadium
- Miles: 80,000; gets six miles per/gallon
- Exterior features: built-on deck affixed to the bus, aluminum Powercat logo, cat paws, Cattracker emblem, large roof rack used for pre- and post-game mingling
- Interior features: fully furnished, two big-screen televisions, satellite dish, full sound system with 10 interior speakers, oak seating, additional storage, tailgating supplies
- Other uses: weddings, parades, children's camps, fund-raising activities, Cattracker trips auctioned to raise money for the athletics department
- Limits: doesn't have wings, which explains why the Cattracker wasn't able to make the trip to the 1994 Aloha Bowl in Hawaii
- Future: The Cattracker has continued to gain popularity and support from K-State fans, and McBee plans to continue to use it to raise money for the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Each time the K-State football team heads out on the road, Larry McBee of Springfield, Mo., and his Cattracker are not far behind.

The Cattracker is a custom-designed bus that has followed the football team all over the country since 1991. It has been as far west as California and as far east as West Virginia.

The Cattracker has traveled to almost every K-State road game through the years and has brought several loyal Wildcat fans along for the ride.

In addition, the Cattracker has been used to raise money for K-State's Department of Intercollegiate Athletics by auctioning off road trips to away games.

The Cattracker fits about 15 people comfortably but can hold more than 70.

"There will be 10 from the Kansas City Catbackers plus our normal crew making the trip to Columbia, so there will be about 24 of us total, and we'll have a follow vehicle," McBee said.

— Compiled by Jeffrey Rake | KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Candlewood Shopping Center 785.776.8830
3204 Kimball Avenue
Studio 32 for Hair
Call for an appointment with
Allysa, Connie, Kelly, Tina, or Verna Lee

Customized coverage. Quick claims response.
Auto Insurance
Call today for a free, no-obligation quote.
FARM BUREAU FINANCIAL SERVICES
2630 Farm Bureau Rd
Manhattan
(785)537-0339
Chan Stowell
Auto Home Life College Retirement

RC McGraws
WILDCAT HEADQUARTERS
before & after the game
776.9588
Open at 3pm
LIVE FRIDAY & SATURDAY
LANCE COMBS
Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound!
FOOD & DRINK SPECIALS ALL WEEKEND LONG!
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)

"Cats Are On The PROWL- Who's Next?"
GO K-STATE!
$8.99 1-Topping Large Pizza
Extra Toppings Available At Menu Price
$10.99 "Purple Pride Special"
1-Topping Large Big New Yorker Pizza, Side Order of Breadstix, 2-Liter of Soda
Free Side Order of Breadstix With Purchase of Any Large or Medium Pizza at Menu Price
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7668
Westloop 2031 Claflin 539-2442
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
ADVERTISE 785-532-6560 COLLEGIAN

ALORICA®
The Power Behind Service
!!NOW HIRING!!
CUSTOMER SERVICE AGENTS FOR cingular WIRELESS
$ COMPETITIVE WAGES WITH PAID TRAINING
$ PAID VACATIONS, HOLIDAYS, SICK DAYS
$ STUDENT/FAMILY FLEXIBLE SCHEDULES
$ FAST, FUN, FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE
$ ADVANCEMENT OPPORTUNITIES
$ TUITION REIMBURSEMENT
$ EXCELLENT BENEFITS
APPLY AT:
5970 SYKES BLVD.
MANHATTAN, KS 66503
IN THE TECH PARK NEXT TO THE MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT
ONLINE: WWW.ALORICA.COM/CAREERS
OR CALL 785 564-4400
YOU MAY ALSO APPLY AT: Manhattan Workforce Center

Lone star

Texas High School Player of the Year Chase Daniel just keeps winning, especially Mizzou fans' hearts

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There's just something about this kid from Texas. Most people can't put their finger on it, but when asked to describe Chase Daniel, they usually come to the same con clusion – he's just a winner.

Daniel, the sophomore quarterback for Missouri, is just a winner who has changed the face of Tiger football. At the beginning of this season, he was faced with a daunting task. He had to replace NCAA record-setting quarterback Brad Smith – a Missouri icon who graduated and was drafted into the NFL.

Few thought he could do it, but all Daniel has done is lead the Tigers to a 6-1 start by throwing 15 touchdown passes. Perhaps more importantly, he has given a desperate Missouri fan base something to cheer about.

When Missouri fell 25-19 last week at Texas A&M, it was something Daniel wasn't used to. He hadn't lost since his junior year at Carroll High School in Southlake, Texas.

In fact, it was only the second loss he had ever experienced as a starting quarterback. Todd Dodge, Daniel's coach at Carroll, said the preparation during his high school years has helped Daniel to succeed early in his collegiate career.

"Every day at lunch, he'd bring the brown bag and come meet me over at lunch and wouldn't miss a day to watch extra video," Dodge said. "He truly loved to study the game."

That extra study time certainly has helped Daniel at Missouri, as the Tigers run virtually the same offense he ran as the quarterback at Carroll.

"It's exactly what they're running at Missouri," Dodge said. "Spread, no huddle, shotgun the whole time. He never got under center his entire career."

"At that point in a young quarterback's career, you're going to see one of two things. You're going to see the deer-in-the-headlight look or the look. With Chase Daniel, I saw the look."

Todd Dodge
DANIEL'S FOOTBALL COACH AT CARROLL HIGH SCHOOL

In addition to the similarity in offenses, Carroll is no slouch in the high school football world. The team has lost only one game in the last four years - the 2003 5A State Championship. In 2004 and 2005, the Dragons were the mythical national champions, finishing both seasons ranked No. 1 in the USA Today national poll.

K-State defensive tackle Quintin Echols, who played his prep football in Fort Worth, Texas, said high school football in the Lone Star State is completely different.

"When it's high school football season, you don't worry about anything else," Echols said. "We hardly even watch the (Dallas) Cowboys. It's a big-time pride issue. It's really hard to explain."

Daniel's high school accomplishments are almost hard to fathom. Playing quarterback for only his junior and senior seasons, Daniel threw for a combined 8,298 yards and 91 touchdowns and rushed for 2,954 yards and 39 touchdowns. Both seasons earned him Texas Player of the Year honors, and in 2004 he was named the EA Sports National Player of the Year.

So it comes as no surprise to Dodge that Daniel's success has carried over to the collegiate level. He said he remembers a specific moment during his junior season when he knew Daniel was going to be special.

In a third round playoff game at Lubbock-Monterey, the Dragons were faced with only their second deficit of the season. Trailing 27-24 with about four minutes left, Dodge called his offense to the sideline.

"At that point in a young quarterback's career, you're going to see one of two things," Dodge said. "You're going to see the deer-in-the-headlight look or the look. With Chase Daniel, I saw the look."

Daniel followed the look by leading his team on an 80-yard scoring drive, completing all six of his passes and sealing the victory with a four-yard touchdown run with 30 seconds remaining.

"That was just one of those deals where you stand up and you go, 'Yep, you've got it,'" Dodge said.

Even with his high school success, Daniel couldn't get scholarship offers from schools like Texas, Oklahoma or Texas Tech. Instead, he chose Missouri, partly because they were the first to offer him a scholarship.

Dodge compared Daniel to Drew Brees – the New Orleans Saints quarterback who played high school football in Austin, Texas, and also was Texas Player of the Year. Brees wasn't recruited by any of the big Texas universities and ended up at Purdue.

At 6-foot, 225 pounds, Dodge said it was partially Daniel's height that made him less attractive to the football powerhouses.

"Sometimes the quarterbacking world is kind of like a beauty contest," he said. "If you're not 6-foot-3 or 6-foot-4 and 215 pounds, people think you can't play. That's just not the point. It's all about moving the chains and about production."

Daniel certainly has produced so far, something for which Missouri coach Gary Pinkel is grateful.

"I probably can't ask for a whole lot more from a first-year player," Pinkel said. "He's certainly an asset to our football team, and we all know that that position is so critically important to our success."

Daniel's success so far certainly deserves recognition, but it is not something he'll take pride in or be satisfied with, Dodge said.

"Chase was always about getting better," he said. "At Missouri, they'll always find out that the sky is the limit as far as what might happen with him throughout his career. Nothing will ever keep him from continuing to get better."

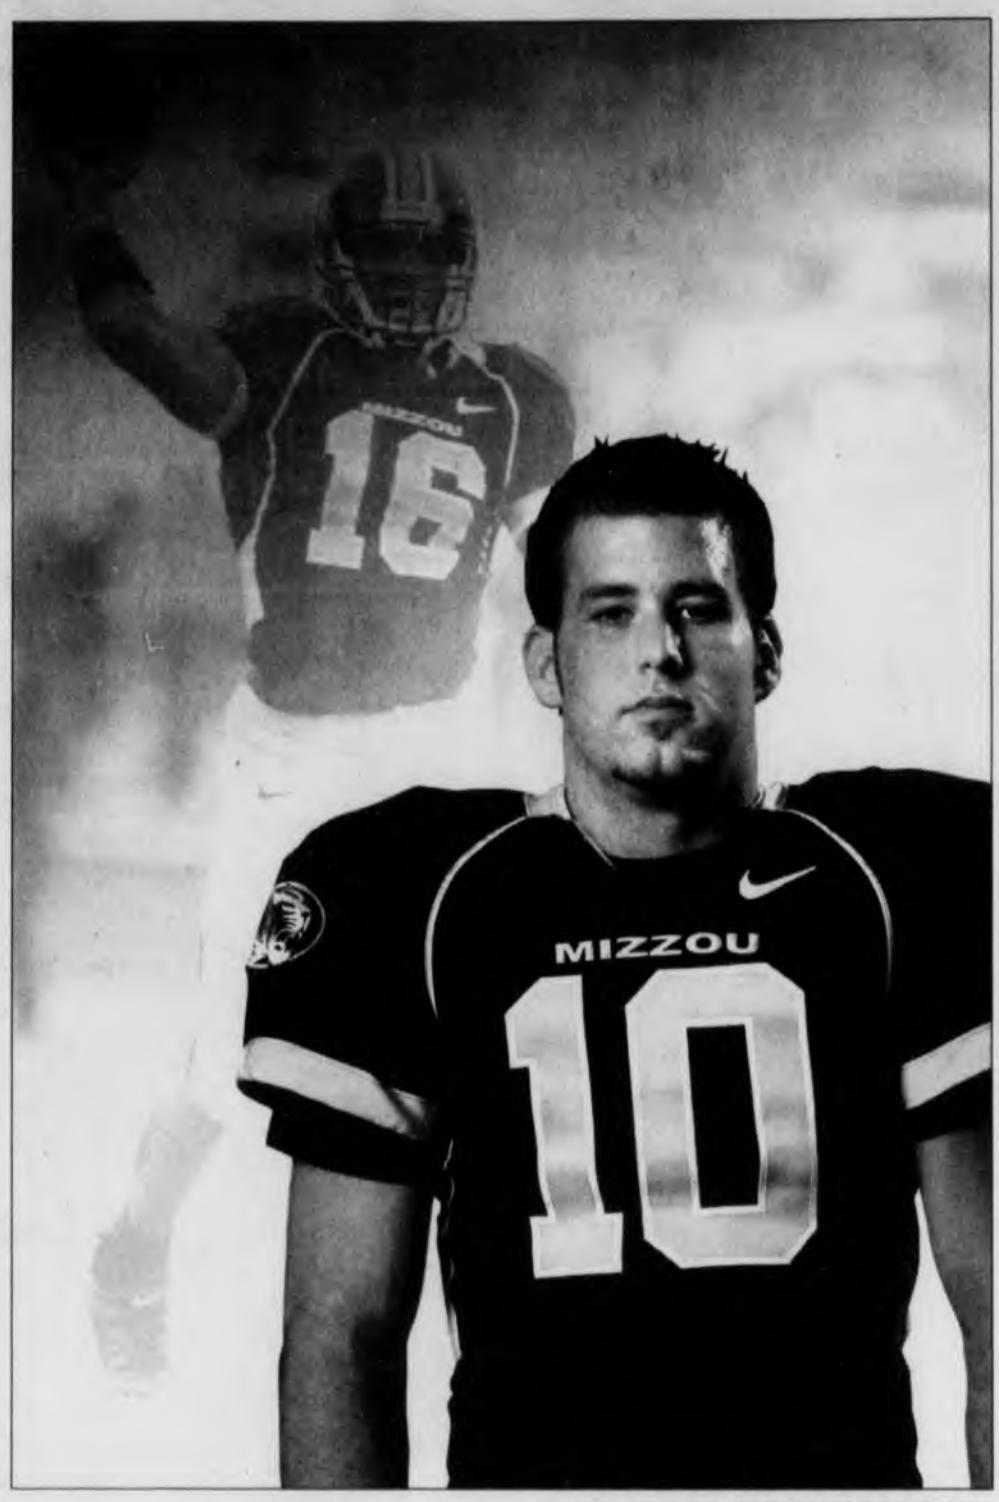

Photo illustration by Anthony Mendoza | COLLEGIAN
Missouri quarterback Chase Daniel has not had any problems replacing NCAA record-settting and Missouri football icon Brad Smith this season. Daniel has led the Tigers to a 6-1 start and possibly a Big 12 championship.

GOOD LUCK WILDCATS!
PLANET SUB in Aggieville
Delivery & Catering Available
785-537-8782 • 708 N. Manhattan Ave.

SALON ESSENTIALS
Salon • Spa • Tanning Resort
½ PRICE FACIALS
• Includes Glycolic Peels
• Microderm Abrasion
• All Spa Facials
Exp. 10.31.06
121 S. SETH CHILDS 539-5752

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Friday Specials
$2.50 Pounders
$4.00 Absolute Bombs
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$5.50 Booze Burger
Saturday Specials
$4.25 Sobe Bombs
$4.50 Big Boys
$6.50 Chili Cheese Burger
Sunday Specials
$2.50 Drinks, Amp Bombs
$2.00 Tall Boys & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$5.50 Guac Burger
1/2 Price Appetizers
3 Projection Screens
16 Flat Screens
100 Free T-Shirts
$3.00 Miller Lite & Bud Light Pounders on Game Day!
- ON GAMEDAY -
Patio open @ 3:00 pm
NFL Ticket- Catch all your favorite games!
Mon - Tues 4pm - 2am
Wed - Sun 11:30am - 2am
GO CATS!

GALLERY
Glenn Theodore FOR HAIR
Hair & Color
$10 off
785-776-5632
3266 Kimball Ave Candlewood

Are you paying too much for auto insurance?
American Family rates are more competitive than you might think. Call me today to find out.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office – Madison, WI 53783
amfam.com
© 2006 (0606)SE – Rev. 4/06

Tim Engle Agency, Inc.
3320 Anderson Ave
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 539-9200 Bus
(785) 537-8696 Fax
tengle@amfam.com

Jon Harper Agency
1814 Claflin Rd Ste 220
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 776-1855 Bus
(785) 539-2577 Fax
jharper@amfam.com

Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 KEDZIE • 785-532-6560

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Former K-State quarterback Allan Evridge was considered one of the potential starting quarterbacks coming into the season, but the sophomore transferred abruptly to Wisconsin in August.

Former Wildcat quarterback Evridge enjoys Wisconsin team

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Allan Evridge was the starting quarterback last season for K-State, he often stood in the pocket and took several hits from opposing defenses.

Given the opportunity to deliver a few hits of his own, in regard to the events that led to his transfer from K-State to Wisconsin in August, Evridge took the high road.

"You know what, I'd rather leave that in the past and try to move on and look forward to my time here in Wisconsin," Evridge said, when asked about whether he felt he received a fair chance to become the starting quarterback at K-State.

"It was a tough situation, but it was a decision that had to be made," he said.

When the Wildcats broke for spring practice in the offseason, the quarterback position was perhaps the deepest position on the team.

But as it became more obvious that the quarterback competition would be a two-man race – between senior Dylan Meier and freshman Josh Freeman – the remaining quarterbacks transferred from K-State.

In early August, Evridge decided to leave.

Now a member of the Wisconsin football team, Evridge said he is pleased with the way the situation was resolved.

"It's going great here – it's a great atmosphere," he said. "There's a lot of top-notch people here, and I'm glad to have gotten the chance to meet them."

Evridge cannot suit up for Wisconsin this season because of transfer rules, but he has been able to practice with the team.

He has been a member of the scout-team offense and can attend meetings.

He said he is looking forward to the opportunity of competing for the No. 1 job next spring.

"There's two other great quarterbacks, and a third one actually coming up right now, so I'll have to compete for a spot," Evridge said. "I'm excited about getting a chance, just to get in here and play with these guys, and just being a part of this Wisconsin environment and becoming a part of the tradition and history. It should be a lot of fun, and I'm definitely looking forward to it."

Though Evridge now calls Madison, Wis., home, he still returns to Manhattan every now and then. He said he has been back about two times since his transfer.

"My girlfriend is still currently at Kansas State, and so I come back to see her. I also see some old teammates," he said.

Evridge said he misses the fans, his teammates and the relationships he built with them.

"I went to battle for those guys," he said of his teammates. "It was tough to leave, but they understood why I left."

Collegian vs. KSDB 91.9

5 Games to watch

Collegian football picks

Team record: 96-44
K-State record: 18-10

	Nick Dunn (26-9)	Jonathan Garten (23-12)	Austin Meek (23-12)	Jeffrey Rake (24-11)
K-State at No. 24 Missouri	Missouri 34-12	Missouri 28-10	Missouri 24-17	Missouri 24-7
No. 5 Texas at No. 17 Nebraska	Texas 19-16	Texas 21-13	Texas 24-17	Texas 35-27
Kansas at Baylor	Baylor 23-14	Baylor 24-20	Baylor 24-17	Kansas 31-19
Texas A&M at Oklahoma State	Texas A&M 25-20	Texas A&M 28-20	Texas A&M 24-17	Texas A&M 24-21
No. 13 Georgia Tech at No. 12 Clemson	Clemson 45-35	Clemson 28-24	Clemson 24-17	Clemson 38-10

KSDB 91.9 football picks

Team record: 109-31
K-State record: 22-6

	Heath Fanning (28-7)	Kyle Finley (28-7)	Scott Miller (27-8)	James Westling (26-9)
K-State at No. 24 Missouri	Missouri 24-6	Missouri 24-17	Missouri 27-24	Missouri 27-10
No. 5 Texas at No. 17 Nebraska	Texas 24-21	Texas 31-21	Texas 34-21	Texas 34-28
Kansas at Baylor	Baylor 20-17	Baylor 28-24	Baylor 33-30	Baylor 36-31
Texas A&M at Oklahoma State	Texas A&M 24-14	Texas A&M 35-31	Texas A&M 28-24	Oklahoma State 28-24
No. 13 Georgia Tech at No. 12 Clemson	Clemson 28-24	Georgia Tech 28-14	Clemson 27-21	Clemson 27-17

5 keys to victory

K-State must slow down Daniel, Coffman

By Austin Meek
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

1. ARCHER + MISSOURI = TOUCHDOWN

K-State's senior linebacker clinched K-State victories in 2004 and 2005 with interception returns for touchdowns. Another defensive touchdown from Archer would give K-State's struggling offense a huge boost against Missouri.

2. SILENCE THE CHASES

Quarterback Chase Daniel and tight end Chase Coffman are integral parts of Missouri's offense. Big days from Daniel and Coffman could spell trouble for the K-State defense.

3. BLOCK BACON

The Wildcats can't let Missouri linebacker Marcus Bacon run wild. However, slowing down Bacon has been a tough task for offenses this season. Bacon ranks third in the Big 12 in tackles and has recovered three fumbles.

4. GO TO GONZO

Wide receiver Daniel Gonzalez hauled in four receptions for 72 yards against Nebraska. He also has a knack for making big plays on special teams – he returned a blocked punt for a touchdown against Oklahoma State and gained 38 yards on a fake punt last week.

5. TEMPLE OF DOOM

Missouri running back Tony Temple, a high school teammate of K-State's Marcus Perry and Jeff Snodgrass at Rockhurst High, ranks third in the Big 12 with 600 rushing yards. K-State needs to shore up its rushing defense after surrendering 158 first-half yards to Nebraska.

Porter's
700 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7151
Lunch Special
$3 BIG BOULEVARDS
$3 Any Sandwich & chips, 11-2
$2 Enchilada Plates all day
Open at 11am

Score a Touchdown with $5 off New Clients
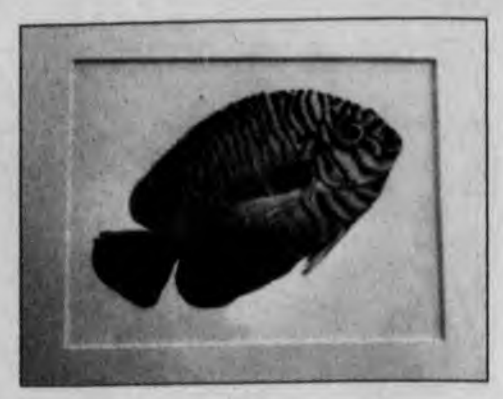
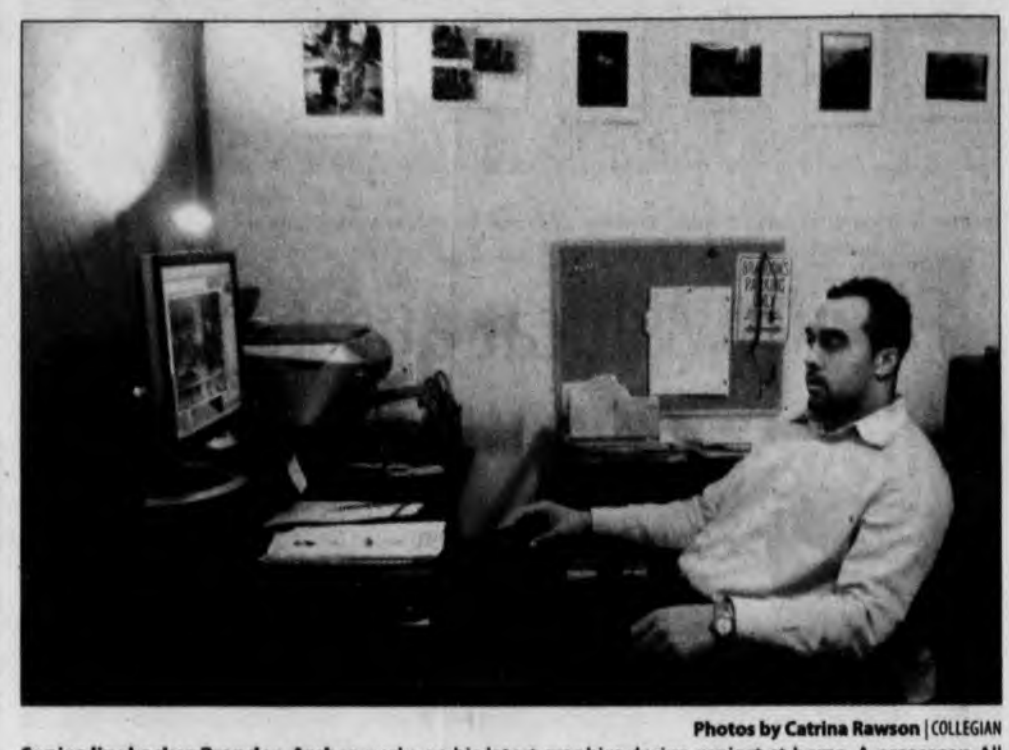
Bark Avenue Canine Designs
Call for details
607 N. 11th • 565-0612



Pepsi 12-packs $3.99
Natty Light 30-packs $12.79
SHORT STOP
2010 Tuttle Creek Blvd

Over 850 residential rentals in the Manhattan/JC area
McCullough Development
785.776.3804
mdiproperties.com

Mustang
Gentleman's Club
Open 8 pm to 2 am • 7 days a week
HOME OF THE ULTIMATE GUYS NIGHT OUT
18 & Over
GROUPS OF 10 OR MORE
CALL AHEAD AND RESERVE A TABLE.
WEDNESDAY
AMATEUR NIGHT
$50-$100 Cash Prize
You keep the tips!
THURSDAY
DOLLAR NIGHT
$1 Wells
$1.50 Coors / Coors Lt. Bottles
$1.75 Pitchers 48 oz
1330 Grant, Junction City, KS
785-238-7571
HIRING NEW GIRLS
Small Hours Big Money



Off-the-field artist

Senior linebacker Brandon Archer's daily grind consists of practice, followed by time in the studio at home, campus

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Senior linebacker Brandon Archer works on his latest graphics design project at home. A preseason All Big 12 candidate, Archer leads the team in tackles this season with 55 through seven games.

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Brandon Archer rested on a limestone bench in front of the Vanier Football Complex after practice. He has a little bit of time to display his new haircut before heading back to the daily grind.

"I cut a little mohawk in my hair today," said Archer, who raised his purple K-State hat to display the new hairdo.

Archer said his teammates, who create more nicknames for him than he can remember, came up with a new one in honor of his haircut. "Rufio" is Archer's name for the day because of his resemblance to a character in the movie "Hook" who also dons a mohawk.

Archer's looks also have earned him comparisons to actor Gregory Hines. The two share the same serious expression and tired eyes.

You might think Archer never sleeps between the hours he puts into playing Division I-A football and studying to get his degree in graphic design. Even as he sits patiently answering questions, his K-State playbook and game film of Missouri rest in his lap waiting to be studied later that night.

"It's a constant time conflict," Archer said. "This is a full time job, and graphic design is just as much."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Before Archer patrolled the football field at Snyder Family Stadium, before he filled out his athletic 6-foot, 240-pound frame, he was a kid growing up in St. Paul, Minn.

Archer described his childhood home as being "very much in the city" in a tough neighborhood. It was there he and his older brother, Phillip Jr., were exposed to some harsh realities.

"It could be rough," Archer said. "Just with the kids and the people and the violence."

The influences inside the Archer home definitely were better than the ones outside of it. Archer said he and his brother inherited their love of art from their mother, Sandra, a freelance graphic designer.

"We watched her, and she showed us how to do stuff and helped us draw," he said. "She really showed us how to understand the concepts of art."

But as the years went by, Archer began to develop other interests, and he forgot about art. Through high school, he played football, baseball, basketball and ran track.

Like many other elite athletes in the St. Paul area, Archer attended Cretin-Durham High School. He was part of a state champion football team as a sophomore and played alongside several gifted athletes, including Minnesota Twins' catcher Joe Mauer.

"I've had the opportunity to play with some really talented people," Archer said. "My junior high team had about five or six guys who went on to play Division I college football."

With competition of that level, it was hard to concentrate on anything off the field, Archer said. It wasn't until his senior year that he was able to reconnect with his childhood and pursue art once again.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Archer has never struggled to concentrate on his graphic design work. He often sits in front of a glowing computer screen in complete silence for hours at a time.

"There have been times when I've sat there for eight hours straight," Archer said. "You get in a rhythm, and you get on a roll, and you just keep going."

Archer carries that same concentration onto the football field. Coach Ron Prince said Archer's knowledge of the game and outspoken personality make him valuable to the team.

"I like him, because he has an opinion," Prince said. "He and I can have some very frank and straightforward dialogue, and I think we get a lot done in those conversations."

But the problem for Archer has never been football or graphic design. The problem has been balancing the hectic schedules of both.

"People that are in senior studio and really putting together great portfolios are spending 40-60 hours a week," Archer said. "You find out that taking three or four studio classes that are three hours long each day is pretty demanding."

Just like in high school, Archer strayed from graphic design when he came to K-State.

He was originally a construction science major.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Archer's house is like his own personal gallery. When you walk through the front door, you're not only greeted by his dog, L.B. (Lil' Backer), but also by one of Archer's sketches of the 3-year-old miniature pincher.

Archer, a senior, has prepared a portfolio so he will be ready for the job hunt when he graduates. To help promote his work, he bought a Web site, brandonarcher46.com.

"I still have some work to do," Archer said. "I guess I'll have to get busy on that now that I've said that's out there."

Besides more pictures of L.B., Archer has several sketches of models from art classes and a couple of self-portraits. He said that even though graphic designers use the computer, they still need to know the basics of drawing.

"It's not all computers," he said. "That's why all art majors have to know how to sketch and have to take sculpting classes."

In his portfolio, Archer has several projects in which he has redesigned company logos. He hopes they will get him noticed by perspective employers.

"That's what graphic designers do," Archer said. "We try to make things interesting."

a Cut Above SALON
785.537.3200
walk-ins welcome!
1800 Claflin Road • Suite 110 • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

Fast, fair and reliable.
(785) 539-6949
Count on American Family claim service. As your agent, I'm there for you when you need me most. Call for details.
C Clay Taylor Agency
315 Houston St Ste G
(785) 539-6949 Bus.
Manhattan, KS 66502
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
All your protection under one roof.
© 2001 American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office - Madison, WI 53783 • www.amfam.com
RS 16967

539-5269
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
1208 W LARAMIE AGGIEVILLE
LIBRARY
GOOD LUCK CATS!

BRIGGS AUTO LANE
Is Cheering On The Cats
'06 JEEP GRANDE CHEROKEE
• 3 available 4WD systems
• Standard with 3.7 L V6
• Available 330 Horsepower 5.7 Hemi with MDS
• Best in class track management system
'07 G6 Pontiac
• 2.4 L 4 cylinder ECOTEC
• 23/34 MPG+
• 167 Horsepower
• Dualstage frontal, driver & passenger air bags

McCain Auditorium Presents
William Shakespeare's
HAMLET
October 20, 2006
7:30 PM
Pre-performance lecture by Prof. Don Hedrich at 6:30 p.m. in room 204 McCain
Actors From The London Stage is one of the oldest established touring Shakespeare theater companies in the world. Housed and work shopped in England with academic tours booked through the auspices of the Marie P. DeBartolo Center For The Performing Arts at the University of Notre Dame, this program is like no other.
Call the McCain Box Office at 532-6428 or order online at www.ksu.edu/mccain

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, October 23, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 46

SPECIAL SECTION
Check out the complete guide to this year's Homecoming

4th-annual 5K race benefits local Boys and Girls Clubs

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

All-University Homecoming got off to a running start Sunday with the fourth-annual 5K race.

More than 800 students, alumni and community members registered to participate in the race that wound through campus, starting and ending at the K-State Alumni Center.

"I always think of the Homecoming race as the first event of Homecoming, and it's a great way to kick off the week," Andrea Bryant Glandin, race coordinator and Homecoming chair, said. "We get a high number of participants who volunteer, so there are always a lot of people involved."

Gladin said at least three volunteers from each greek pairing hand out water and provide splits for the runners. The race was an all-university philanthropy that benefits the Boys and Girls Clubs of Manhattan.

The 3.1-mile course ran from the Alumni Center north on Denison Avenue to a gravel road just south of Kimball Avenue. Runners went east, then turned south on Serum Plant Road, eventually taking Mid-Campus Drive and Vattier Street back to the Alumni Center.

Some runners said the cold weather and hilly course were a challenge.

"The hills weren't much fun," Bradley Matlack, senior in mechanical engineering, said, "and it was cold. My hands were pretty cold the whole race, but I was able to keep my temperature up by running."

Matlack said he came in 25th with a time of 21:10.

Christian Smith, senior in accounting and former distance runner for K-State's cross country and track teams, finished first in 16:06. Cate Holston won the women's division with a time of 19:15. Both won $100.

Gladin, who has served as chair for the past three years, said the race keeps growing.

"It was a success," she said. "Everything went really smoothly."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Runners take off from the starting line near the K-State Alumni Center as they begin the fourth-annual 5K race Sunday morning.

Musical combinations

More than 70 bands perform despite cold, rainy weather

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

One band with K-State roots returned to Manhattan this weekend for the first-ever AggieFest.

Ruskabank, self-described as a Manhattan ska band, played at P.J.'s Bar Saturday night as one of 70 bands performing in businesses around Aggieville for the all-day music event.

The band first formed in the basement of Moore Hall in 1996, when the band members were residents there.

"We practiced in the music room there until someone told us they could hear us on the fifth floor," said Jayson Sullivan, Manhattan resident and band member.

Sullivan said the band got its name because one of the members wanted to take two random words from a dictionary and combine them. He decided to use "rooster" and "bank."

"It was kind of the trend at that time to put the word 'ska' in the band name," said Jamie Rogers, band member and Topeka resident. "Somehow he ended up with 'Ruskabank.'"

Since its creation, the band has played a lot locally and disbanded at least eight times, Sullivan said.

"We're spread out from Springfield, Mo., to here," he said, "and we've pretty much slowed down in our old age."

Several of the band members now have day jobs and families. Rogers is a teacher, another is a stock broker, and the two called one band member "the Swiss Army knife of the employment world."

Ruskabank played at P.J.'s at 1 a.m., after watching Of the Flame Hand Robot at The Dusty Bookshelf.

"It's a good venue," Sullivan said of The Dusty Bookshelf.

"There aren't many places for people under 21, in a smoke-free environment. They're pretty packed."

Sullivan described Of the Flame Hand Robot's music as "indie softcore."

Despite the festive AggieFest atmosphere, Sullivan said he expected the band's performance to be characteristic of previous shows.

"We've played P.J.'s enough; I imagine this will be pretty standard," he said.

David Spiker, a member of Ruskabank and one of AggieFest's organizers, said he was impressed by the number of people who came for the event, in light of the cold, wet weather.

"I'm completely taken aback by the show of people," he said. "We'll definitely do it again. With the success it's had this year, I expect more businesses will want to be involved next time."

Spiker said AggieFest might be able to attract more big-name performers in future years.

"I'm so proud of it," he said of AggieFest. "A lot of people worked their tails off to make it happen."

Students said they enjoyed the event, though most were bundled up as they went from venue to venue.

"I think it's great; it's fun," said Rebekah Hasty, junior in interior design at K-State and junior in Bible at Manhattan Christian College. "I just like music. For it being cold, it wasn't bad."

Hasty came with a friend, Emily Davis, junior in family ministry at MCC, to see The Setbacks play at O'Malley's Alley.

"We came to see friends from high school play," Davis said. "It was great."

Left: Product of Theory plays outside Varney's Book Store. The band performed as part of AggieFest on Saturday.

Below: Performing at Bluestem Bistro, the lead singer of Unconditional Thrust sings a Johnny Cash cover. Unconditional Thrust was one of more than 70 bands that performed from 10 a.m. Saturday to 2 a.m Sunday during AggieFest.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Pat Craven McDaniel attaches a pin to Rosemary Derks Anderson's blouse, during the celebration of Kappa Kappa Gamma's 90 years at K-State at the Clarion Hotel Sunday morning. Both are 1958 K-State graduates.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

Kappa Kappa Gamma celebrates 90 years

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Helen Lindahl loves being a Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority member.

The fact that she graduated from K-State in 1934 is only a technicality.

On Sunday, Lindahl joined other current and past members of Kappa's K-State chapter to celebrate the chapter's 90th birthday.

During a segment titled "Kappa Then," Lindahl spoke of life in the sorority in 1929, the year she was initiated.

Lindahl arrived at the Manhattan train station with a suitcase, took a taxi for $0.25, and, along with 12 other pledges, joined the sorority.

There was one phone for the house, cramped conditions, termites and the specter of the Great Depression with which the sorority had to contend on a daily basis.

"Somehow or another, we managed," she said.

Not all times were bad, though, and even 77 years later, Lindahl smiled when she spoke of late-night schemes to sneak in chapter members who had been out past curfew, or of finding the

See KAPPA Page 8

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 56 Low: 33

ONLINE

Marching band
Twenty-three high school marching bands competed in the Central State Marching Festival on Saturday at the indoor practice facility.
See story at www.kstatecollegian.com

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Homecoming
The Crazy Cat Kickoff for residence halls will be at 6:30 tonight in Weber Arena. Wildcat Request Live for greek pairings is at 8 tonight in Bramlage Coliseum. Visit www.kstatecollegian.com, listen to Wildcat 91.9, watch Manhattan Matters or read the Royal Purple for more coverage.

Editors chosen
Student editors for the 2006-07 edition of Oz, the Journal of the College of Architecture, Planning and Design, have been announced. Editors are Kyle Leiker and Corey Schneider, both fifth-year students in architecture. Evan Needham, fifth-year student in architecture, was named associate editor.

Professor recognized
David Dzewaltowski, professor of kinesiology, was inducted as Fellow of the American Academy of Kinesiology and Physical Education at the recent meet because of his contributions to the fields of kinesiology and physical education. He was nominated and approved by members of the academy for his leadership during the past 10 years.

Protecting the home
A slight plurality of Americans now say that having a gun in the house makes it a safer, rather than more dangerous, place to be, marking a shift from the two previous times this question has been asked over the past six years.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 — Romeo (car)
5 Beavers' construction
8 Despot
12 Frobe who played Goldfinger
13 401(k) alternative
14 Enormous
15 Egg
16 Spinal-column part
18 Male escort
20 Dental buildup
21 Reddish-brown quartz
23 Apiece
24 Upright
28 Obi
31 Rage
32 Mephistopheles
34 Prompt
35 Bridge position
37 Amused
39 A billion years
41 Lucy's hubby
42 Musket accessory
45 Slanted type
49 One who's sometimes outgoing, sometimes shy
51 Bart's sister
52 "Unforgettable" singer
53 Romanian money
54 Snitched
55 Supplements, with "out"
56 Minion of 32-Across
57 Individuals

DOWN
1 Quite eager
2 Jeans-maker Strauss
3 1960s dance
4 Maximally
5 Wed no more
6 Exist
7 Shopping venue
8 "— a Small Hotel"
9 Take away
10 Taj Mahal city
11 Caboose's place
17 Spigot
19 — -back (mellow)
22 Michelangelo sculpture
24 Compete
25 Historic time
26 Look like
27 Party hearty
29 Seek restitution
30 Common contraction
33 For fear that
36 Colonial loyalists
38 Theater district
40 Thanksgiving abbr.
42 "The Amazing —"
43 Uncontrollable
44 Sandwich shop
46 Cowardly Oz critter
47 Gilligan's home
48 Two-timers
50 Sleep phenom

Solution time: 27 mins.

B	O	P		U	S	P	S		P	I	T	Y
A	P	E		S	P	A	T		R	O	A	D
M	E	S	O	U	I	T	E		O	U	R	S
A	C	T	U	A	L		A	R	M
			I	L	L		M	E	S	S	R	S
S	P	E	C	S		W	E	D		W	I	E
P	A	R	K		C	A	D		K	I	T	E
A	G	O		B	O	X		A	L	T	E	R
M	E	S	C	A	L		F	L	U
			O	S	U		U	L	T	I	M	A
F	U	Z	Z		M	E	S	O	Z	O	I	C
A	G	E	E		B	L	E	W		T	E	E
T	H	E	N		O	L	D	S		A	N	D

Yesterday's answer 10-21

10-23 CRYPTOQUIP

U K K U R X Z U H D S C V H X M H F O M R R U F M R R Z V R R D Z W L . V T D S V W R Z F M N C O M C ' F M L H D C C N L D T T N .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHY DID THE SOAP-PRODUCING FACTORY FIRE GEORGE WASHINGTON? HE COULD NOT TELL A LYE.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: C equals T

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from other universities

GATES FOUNDATION GIVES $15M TO FUND U.N. GOALS

NEW YORK – The Earth Institute at Columbia University received a $15 million donation from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation – the largest single grant in the institute's history, officials announced Wednesday.

The money, which will be distributed to the institute over five years, will help fund researchers who are developing ways to achieve the United Nations Millennium Development Goals – a set of eight objectives that range from cutting extreme poverty in half to stopping the spread of AIDS.

OHIO STATE U. NAMED LARGEST U.S. UNIVERSITY

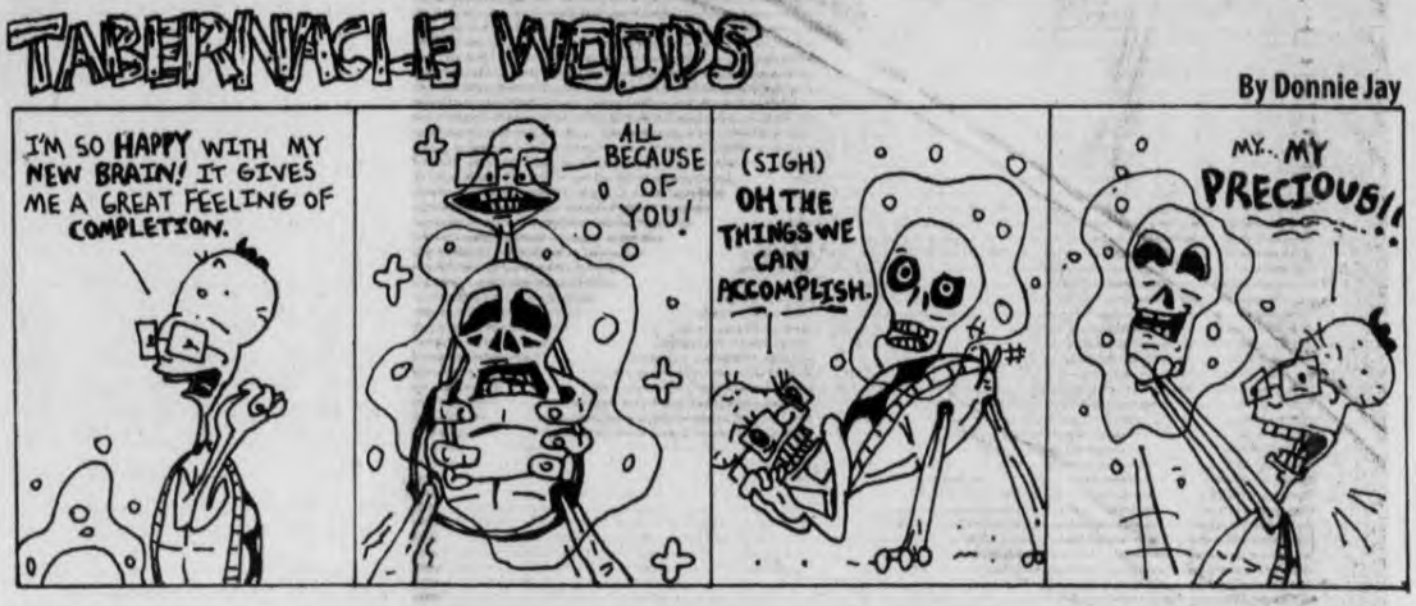
COLUMBUS, Ohio – Ohio State University is once again the biggest university in the nation.

With an increase of students choosing to stay at Ohio State, its numbers have increased to 51,818.

In addition, the number of students transferring to OSU has gone up along with numbers of incoming freshmen.

"We have no desire to be the biggest university in the United States; that is just kind of an accident. But it is an accident born out of our good luck," said Martha Garland, vice provost for Enrollment Services and the dean of Undergraduate Education.

Garland said that because of Ohio State's success in athletics and the university's ability to "take care of (students) once they arrive," enrollment has increased and the number of students who leave has decreased.



U. PENN JUNIOR IN TALKS TO STAR IN OWN SHOW

PHILADELPHIA – Not every University of Pennsylvania student gets to go drinking with Stephen Colbert, chat it up with Diane Sawyer or hobnob with Russell Crowe. But for Puneet Singh, it's just another day at work.

Over the course of three years at Penn, Singh has broken into the entertainment industry in a big way.

He has worked on an impressive array of shows and movies ranging from "The Colbert Report" to "Good Morning America" and "American Gangster," and he is in talks to star in his own cable show that would be "a sort of Oprah meets Ellen DeGeneres for South Asian kids."

Source: www.copyboy.com

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Shellie Gutierrez at 10 a.m. today in Bluemont 16E.

■ Show Me the Money, a session that addresses topics related to job offer negotiation and salary and benefits in the workplace, will be at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ There will be a Student Dietetics meeting at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in Justin 253.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sarah Dorsey at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Waters 342.

■ Walk-in Wednesdays will be noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ An advanced SafeZone training session titled "Hateful Acts, Hate Crimes, Bias and Harassment" will be noon to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Union 213. Sign up is at 11:30 a.m. Don't forget to bring a lunch.

■ A drag show will be at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the K-State Student Union Forum Hall. The event is sponsored by the Queer Straight Alliance.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

There was an error in Thursday's Collegian. Brian Blecha is a sophomore in civil engineering. There was an error in Friday's Collegian. Zach Hauser is the Interfraternity Council president. The Collegian regrets the errors. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

dependable, quality service
✓High Quality Copy Services
Claflin Books and Copies

$1.50 Wells
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL Aggieville

PEACE CORPS
FIND OUT MORE ABOUT PEACE CORPS
Info Meeting
Tuesday, October 24
5:30 - 6:30 pm
350 Waters Hall
or contact
Staci Hauschild
pcorps@ksu.edu
532.5627
144 Waters Hall
peacecorps.gov

Watch Monday Night Football Here:
on the Big Screen
$2.00 Wells & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$2.50 Hawaiian Punch & Tequila Bombs
$5.50 Tubby Yee-Haw Burger
MONDAY SPECIAL! $3.50 Bud & Bud Light Pitchers
Mountain Oyster Basket $4.50
TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Aggieville • Manhattan, KS

k-state family day
Saturday, November 4, 2006
www.k-state.edu/familyday

the provost's lecture series 2006-2007
11:00 am-12:30 pm
Monday, October 23
Fiedler Auditorium
Fiedler Hall
The Evolving Internet
Dr. Vinton G. Cerf
Vice President and Chief Internet Evangelist for Google
Hosted by
Provost M. Duane Nellis
Presentations followed by Q & A
For more information, visit the Provost's web site:
<http://www.ksu.edu/provost/academic/lecture/index.htm>
Students Welcome

HOMECOMING GUIDE 2006
KNOW WHAT'S GOING ON; BE A PART OF IT...
Pick up your Homecoming Guide today inside the Kansas State Collegian.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Nalini Prakash (front) and Sreyashi Dey perform Indian classical dances Sunday afternoon in Forum Hall at the K-State Student Union. The performance was sponsored by SABHA.

Group brings in dancers to perform Indian styles

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Bare feet stomping staccato rhythms accompanied the jingle of bells as two dancers glided across the floor.

With slow, disciplined steps, Sreyashi Dey and Nalini Prakash performed a whirlwind of color and culture for their audience Sunday afternoon.

The Society for Appreciation of Bharatiya Heritage and Arts (SABHA) presented two of India's classical dance styles, Odissi and Bharata Natyam, as Yugma dances, meaning "together" in Sanskrit.

Dey and Prakash were accompanied by Vijay Palaparty for the afternoon of dance. The performers are from the organization Srishti Dances of India.

This was the first time SABHA was able to bring the dancers to K-State, said Susmitha Pabbaraju, treasurer of SABHA and graduate student in computer science.

The performance depicted the traditions of dance in India and the story of worship

"The Indian dance is the face and the hands. Every look has a meaning."

Susmitha Pabbaraju
TREASURER OF SABHA

of gods and goddesses. Pabbaraju said the characteristics of India's traditional dances are seen in the movement of the limbs, as well as facial expressions.

"The Indian dance is the face and the hands," Pabbaraju said. "Every look has a meaning."

Anand Mohan, president of SABHA and graduate student in food science, said SABHA wants to bring the Indian culture to Manhattan by bringing performers and dancers to exhibit some of the country's traditions. Mohan said the group is looking to organize future performances with more dance styles and live music.

Mohan said the dances would give Indian students a taste of home, but the event was aimed to educate and pique interest in people of all cultural backgrounds.

"We would like to spread our culture all over the globe," he said. "All of these things they dance are bringing peace and non-violence."

Brie Handgraaf, senior in mass communications, and Ashley Jones, junior in open option, said they have recently been interested in Bollywood, the informal name of the Hindi language movie industry in India.

When Jones heard about SABHA's presentation of traditional Indian dance, she and Handgraaf decided they had to go.

"It was wonderful," Jones said.

"It's an introduction to Indian culture," Handgraaf said.

While the evening of dance was full of music and live dancing, Mohan said he and SABHA had hoped to fill Forum Hall, but the auditorium was half-vacant.

"We are a little disappointed with the number of turnout," he said. "But we had a lot of good comments."

sudoku on the Classified Page

Menu Mania

Soup Sandwich Combo $5.50 We Deliver
PLANET SUB
708 Manhattan Ave. 537-8SUB

Monday = Macho
Dairy Queen
$3.99 for a triple cheeseburger, large fry and large drink
1015 N. Third • 776-4117

$1 off Any Pita
The Pita Pit
We Deliver • 1131 Moro • 537-3995

BUY 1ST COMBINATION PLATE and get THE 2ND HALF OFF WITH STUDENT ID
Los Portales
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

25¢ HOT WINGS
"BIGGER THAN AGGIEVILLES"
$5 DOMESTIC 64 OZ PITCHERS
BOWINKLE'S Sports Bar
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022

Kramer Quik Cats
Convenience Store
Buy 1 made-to-order pizza, and get the 2nd half price!
(second pizza must be of equal or lesser value.)
Located in the Kramer Dining Center
6:30 p.m. - Midnight
Expires 12/15/06

HUNAN
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
$1.00 off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1301 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888

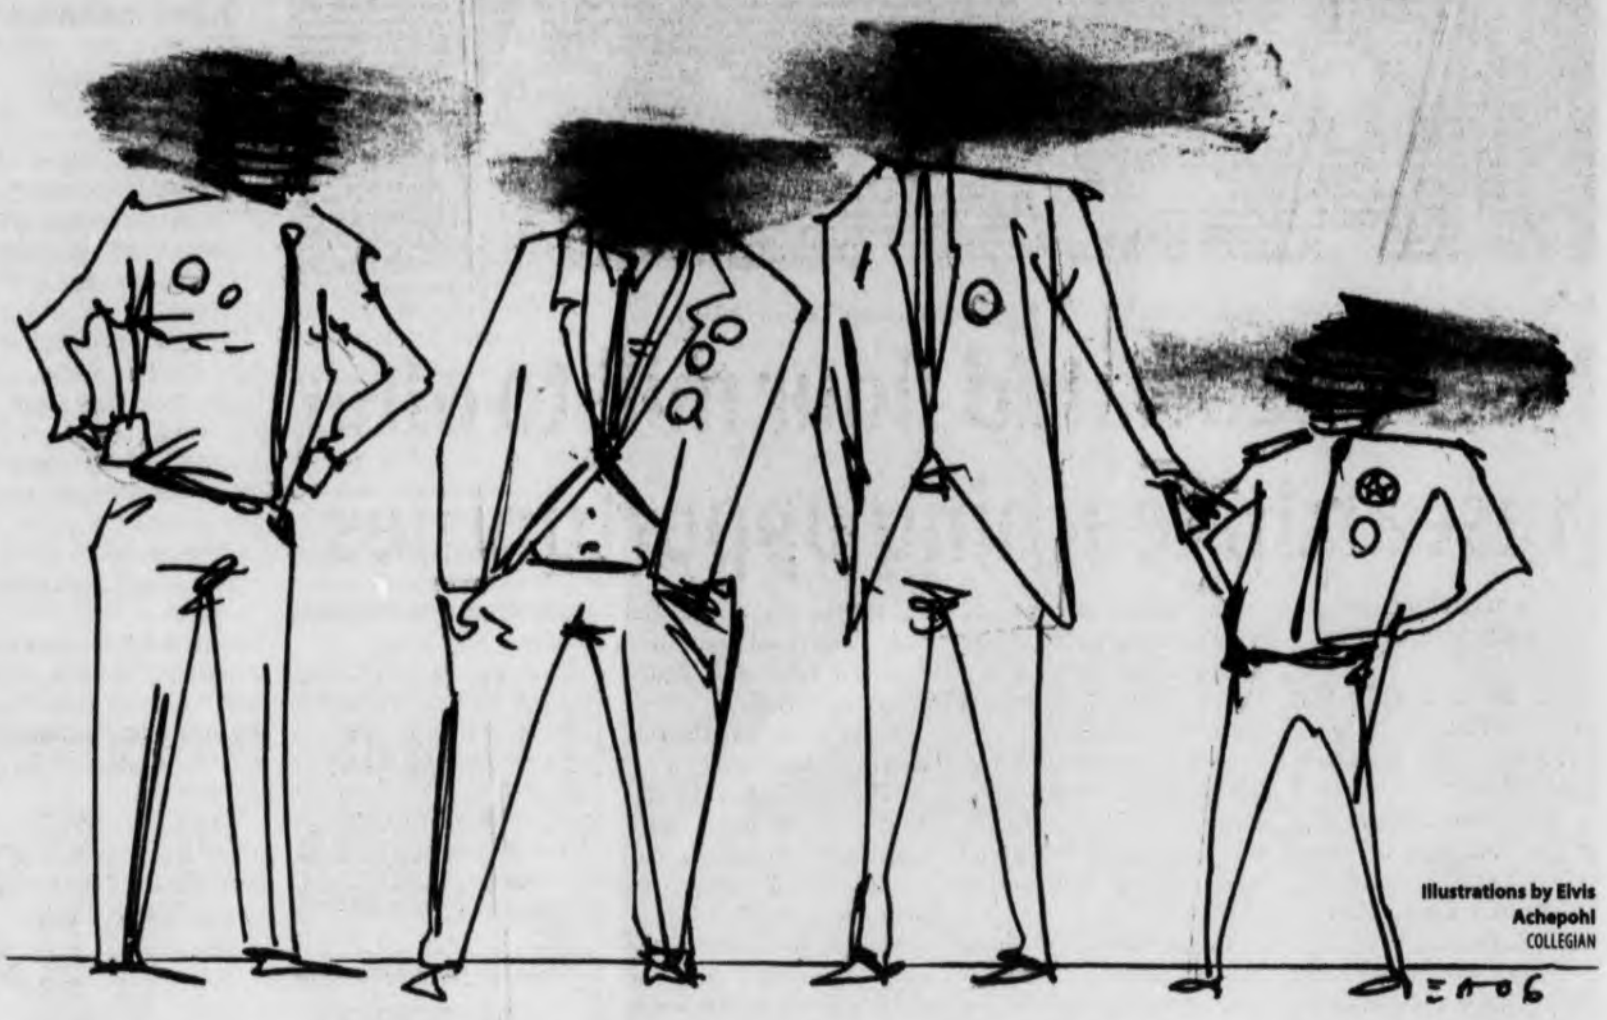
Monday Mania
$3.99 Large Cheese Pizza
Dine in or carry out
Delivery Hotline 770-3333 Open Late
GUMBY'S Pizza

HUNAN EXPRESS
FREE DELIVERY
$3.99 LUNCH BUFFET 11:00-2:30
$4.99 DINNER BUFFET 5:30-9:00
VALUABLE COUPON
RECEIVE ONE OF THE FOLLOWING FREE
FOR DELIVERY ORDER OF $15 OR MORE
ONE SOFT DRINK (2 LITER)
TWO EGG ROLLS
FOUR CRAB RANGOONS
TEN FRIED DONUTS
PURCHASE OF $25 OR MORE SELECT ONE ORDER FROM MENU.

FREE Small Sub
QUIZNOS SUB
TOASTY!

Porter's
Mini Monday
20¢ mini corndogs
$1.00 mini bottles
$1.00 off all drinks

$4.99 Buffet w/ Student ID
Sunday & Monday after 4 p.m.
Valentino's
3003 Anderson Ave
539-6444



Is your lunch looking a little dull?
Check out Menu Mania and add some color to it!

$2.00 ANY DRAW OR BOTTLE
Pete's Dueling Piano Bar-B-Que Aggieville
1/2 PRICE SMOKED WINGS
NOW HIRING WAITRESSES!!
Specific availability required:
Mon and Wed days

What's better than just sitting in lecture?
Sitting in lecture thinking about what to eat for lunch!
Check out Menu Mania for some good inspiration.

Who's who?

Voters obligated to learn candidates' views before casting party-line or uniformed ballots

Illustrations by Elvis Achepohl COLLEGIAN

SCOTT GIRARD

Who are the candidates for governor? Representative of the second district of Kansas? Secretary of the State of Kansas? How about the current governor of Kansas? The president? Hopefully most people could answer at least the last two questions, but voters need to know all of the answers. It is their responsibility to learn about the candidates and their positions.

In the last election, I voted for every Democrat on the ballot without knowing about the candidates. I did not look at some of the offices for which I was voting, because I knew the Democrat was the right choice.

Unfortunately, I only focused on the national candidates and not the local candidates, who actually might be more important to the average voter. Sure, national politics are important, but they also are well-known by the public. Local politics have just as much influence, if not more, on the citizens of their respective states.

In light of the upcoming election, I will give a little quiz on the candidates for Kansas offices. Name the following candidates:

Candidate One: He is on the Committee of Agriculture, Committee of Veteran Affairs, and Committee of Transportation and Infrastructure in Congress. He is the representative for the first district of Kansas, which encompasses the majority of the state. He has been labeled as a moderate Republican because of his voting record in the House.

Candidate Two: He is running for a seat in Congress against the candidate mentioned above. He has lived in southwest Kansas for most of his life and hopes to bring a change to the current procedure in Congress.

Candidate Three: He is running for attorney general on the Democratic ticket, which he switched to just to run against the incumbent Republican attorney general. He has 25 years of law experience and has served as Johnson County attorney general since 1989. He takes pride in his Christian background and plans to focus on domestic violence if elected.

Candidate Four: He is the attorney general for the state of Kansas. He has served in that position for three years. He also was a member of the Kansas House of Representatives from 1992 to 2000. Labeled as a conservative, he made public safety a top priority during his tenure and has requested medical records of several women who have had abortions to look for cases of sexual abuse.

Answers: Jerry Moran, John Doll, Jim Morrison, Phill Kline

Did everyone get those? I have to admit, I did not even know the second candidate before doing this story, not to mention half of the other candidates who will be on the November ballot. Fortunately, there is a wonderful thing called the Internet to help voters find out more about these candidates.

One site, vote-USA.org, was established earlier this year to inform the public of the candidates. The site, which is open to the public, allows people to view a sample ballot for their voting address.

The ballot includes all of the offices and candidates, including Board of Education candidates. The site also provides links to several of the candidates' Web sites. Organizers eventually hope to compile enough information to compare the candidates' views on several issues.

I know it is hard to follow politics and learn about all the candidates, but it is our duty as voters to make educated decisions on the people who shape our local and national laws.

This Web site and other political references on the Internet and in the news are worth a look, even for the most politically savvy citizens.

Scott Girard is a sophomore in pre-journalism and mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Women's studies class opens eyes to need for societal changes

KELSEY CHILDRESS

When entering K-State, it's a cold, hard truth that there are certain required classes, like Public Speaking, students must take to graduate.

But there is one class that should be added to the list – Introduction to Women's Studies. This class was eye-opening and revolutionary.

Walking into the first day of WOMST 105, one has preconceived notions of the class, but it is nothing like one might think. It changes one's perspectives on everything from advertisements to the impossible beauty ideals.

This class offers so much, and the women who teach it are nothing like they are cracked up to be. (This is a good thing.)

It covers women in different cultures, body image, economics and the expectations society places on women to behave a certain way. The women's liberation movement has come a long way from the days when we were not allowed outside without a male escort, but there are still things that leave women as the "lesser" sex.

Women's Studies teaches how to rise above these pressures – how to respect women, how to smile at a fellow woman instead of analyzing her outfit and her beauty, and most importantly, how to make equality happen for all of the "less-than" citizens.

In a world where women die to be thin, inject themselves with bacterial toxin to look younger, and try to survive as single mothers in a two-income economy, there certainly needs to be changes.

Introduction to Women's Studies provides a stepping stone toward these important changes. It provides necessary ideas and concepts students lack. This is an chance to highlight the need for societal change and to rise against the negative images and ideas of popular culture.

Without being shown society's underlying messages, like students are in this class, there will be no change. These problems affect everyone, not just women. The percentage of men with eating disorders is on the rise, and homophobia ruins lives everyday.

If I learn only one thing from this class, it will be what my professor said in the first week: "The worst thing you can call a man is a woman. And the worst thing you can call a woman is fat or ugly." Think about it.

Kelsey Childress is a junior in English. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASSISTANT AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Kappa Kappa Gamma, other groups should be proud of longevity on campus

Ninety years is a milestone. It doesn't matter if it is a person's age or an organization's anniversary. This is why Kappa Kappa Gamma deserves recognition for 90 years of consistent excellence at K-State.

If a person reaches 90 years of age, it is noted as a great achievement. If a building has been on campus or part of a city's downtown for 90 years, it is a historical landmark.

Many food items at grocery stores have labels saying "Quality since 19..." Most of those don't date back to 1916. A business is a huge success if it still is running strong 90 years after its founding.

Kappa is no different. Being a part of K-State in the lives of both students and alumnae for 90 years is a milestone of which to be proud. The women of the sorority, young and old, deserve the respect of all Wildcats.

The Collegian has overcome obstacles and hardships to have a presence on this campus for the last 110 years. Every member of the Collegian, past and current, has done his or her part to keep the newspaper going, so students can stay informed about the campus. Keeping any campus organization going for that long, whether greek, academic or common interest is a significant success.

Students who are members of newly founded organizations should follow the example set by Kappa. Then current students will be able to look back, hopefully, in 90 years and see that their organization still exists, long after its founders have left Manhattan.

CAMPUS FOURUM
395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments.

What are two things Sigma Kappa girls and cows have in common? They love grass, and they love staring at things.

Go to the Rec when Nip/Tuck is on. No one is there.

Hi, I was just wondering why Kramer Dining Center and the management suck so much.

To the guy who works out everyday at the gym: you should work out the muscle to keep your mouth shut so you don't get beat up like you did last night. That was hilarious.

The Collegian should do a write-up about scooter girl, because week in and week out she is more consistent than K-State football, and she isn't even on scholarship.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

A ribbon cutting ceremony took place at the Hal Ross Flour Mill to help introduce the new building.

Newly dedicated flour mill to offer research, teaching opportunities

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Hal Ross Flour Mill will put K-State on the grain-processing map, a K-State dean said Friday.

"This project positions us to be a world leader in the whole arena of grain processing," said Fred Cholick, dean of the College of Agriculture.

Cholick was one of about 500 to attend the dedication ceremony for the flour mill. Students and faculty alike said they were excited about the mill.

"This mill will put students on the cutting edge, giving them the tools they need to be successful, as well as providing research opportunities not offered before," Tom Worcester, junior in milling science, said.

The 22,000 square-foot building contains $2.7 million in the most up-to-date milling equipment donated by 30 milling industry equipment suppliers.

The dedication featured opening speeches, a ribbon-cutting ceremony, tours and a gala in the International Grains Program Center.

K-State President Jon Wefald spoke first at the event, saying he was the only president in the United States who reads Milling and Baking News.

Wefald then introduced Morton Sosland, editor in chief of Milling and Baking News.

Many other prominent public figures and donors in the industry followed, including the largest donor, Hal Ross, who graduated from K-State in 1949 with a degree in milling science.

The mill will give students several advantages.

"The new mill gives students a chance to mill hard wheat, soft wheat and durum," Kendall McFall, instructor in grain science, said.

This is just one of the many advantages the new mill offers over the old, which opened in 1961.

"It is automated, but you can manually override it to stop the mill and do whatever you need to do in a teaching situation," McFall said.

Play tells 6 stories of local gay men

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Six men. Six stories. Six chances to tell the truth.

They performed "If Truth be Told" this weekend at the Manhattan Arts Center and at the K-State Student Union. The play was written and directed by Martha Crouse.

Crouse, graduate student in theater, interviewed six local men who have told friends they are gay but have struggled to tell their parents.

The play was based on conversations Crouse had with the men, and the plot was a mix of monologues and memories.

Crouse said she spent about half an hour interviewing each man and saw common themes in their stories.

"These men were so eloquent and so poignant," she said.

Brandon Champagne, freshman in theater, played the part of Ryan, relating his first realization of being gay.

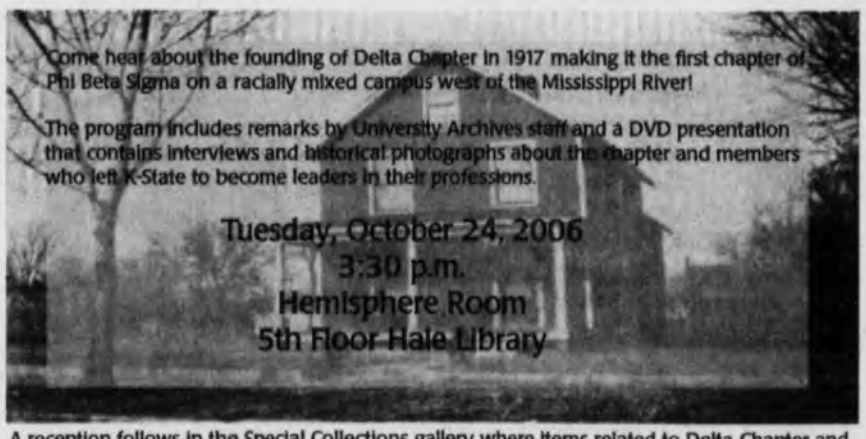
"Ben Affleck was my first experience, my first gay experience," Champagne said as Ryan.

The six stories included the men's initial feelings of fear of telling friends, but each man's speech was sprinkled with stories the men told about how they tried to hide their sexual orientation from their parents.

A post-show discussion allowed the audience, cast and Manhattan citizens to dialogue about the play. At the discussion, Crouse said there is a need to bridge a generation gap of understanding and communicate openly.

Crouse said she wants students to be thoughtful in their comments toward those of different sexual orientations.

"Be aware of those derogatory comments, because they don't fall on deaf ears," she said.



DON'T FORGET TO CHECK OUT
MENU MANIA
LOCATED ON PAGE 3 OF YOUR K-STATE COLLEGIAN
TO ADVERTISE IN MENU MANIA CALL 532-6560

Call 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma, and shock victims.
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

Everyone Welcome!
A Pilgrimage to Delta Chapter
A History of Phi Beta Sigma at K-State.

A reception follows in the Special Collections gallery where items related to Delta Chapter and Phi Beta Sigma will be displayed.

Sponsored by: Kansas State University Historical Society, University Archives, and Hale Library.

David T.Z. Mindich
October 24, 2006
Tuesday, 7:00 pm
K-State Forum Hall

Lay Douglas LECTURES

There will be a Q & A and booksigning following lecture

AUTHOR OF

Jointly sponsored by A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications

GRADUATION FAIR
October 24 & 25
Tuesday & Wednesday • 11a-6p

Featured vendors include:
C-B Graduation Announcements
Balfour Class Rings
University Frames
Oak Hall Cap and Gown
for all your Graduation regalia!

VARSITY'S
K-STATE STUDENT UNION BOOKSTORE

Off the beaten stage

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Playing at Radina's Coffeehouse and Bakery, The Boyscouts, James Gitchell and Andrew Hicks, Topeka residents, perform during AggieFest Saturday.

AggieFest bands play at area music mainstays, more unusual locations

By Eric Brown
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

By the time Copus took the stage Saturday night, P.J.'s Bar, an Aggieville staple for live music, was wall-to-wall with AggieFest attendees. Large crowds also gathered at Auntie Mae's Parlor, another Manhattan music mainstay, during late performances by Rockhill and The Mathematics playing with the Uptown Healers.

Not even the low temperatures and brisk winds that evening could keep the festival's music fans from flocking to the outdoor, back patio of O'Malley's Alley, which also regularly features musicians.

"If you're going to be cold, then I'm going to be cold," the lead singer of The Barefoot Rebellion announced to the crowd that bravely gathered on the O'Malley's back patio for the band's 7 p.m. show.

But along with the performances at Aggieville's main music stages, Saturday's AggieFest, a music festival that featured 16-straight hours of 70-plus local and regional bands playing at 18 venues, also was highlighted by numerous musical talents that played for much smaller audiences in unusual atmospheres for live music.

One of those performances took place at On The Wildside. At noon in the Aggieville gift shop, Dusty Feighner, of Kansas City, Kan., performed a solo show of acoustic country, folk and rockabilly.

The dozen or so attendees leaned back against the store's front counter and calmly listened, sometimes even singing along with Feighner's covers of The Band and Johnny Cash, as well his own country tales.

Adding another element to Feighner's show was Chris Goering, the bass player in Feighner's band, the Aaron Traffas Band, which had just played an 11 a.m. show at the Sisters of Sound music store.

Walking in the gift store midway through Feighner's set, Goering, instructor in secondary education at K-State, suddenly began singing back-up vocals for Feighner.

He then accompanied Feighner's songs by playing random percussion instruments, which were for sale in the store, as well as running his fingers through the store's wind chimes at opportune moments during the set.

"Guess I don't really need my bass after all," Goering said jokingly to Feighner during the performance

Another musical act that played to a small audience in a rare venue was the 5 p.m. performance of Sound Station in Pizza Hut.

Sound Station is a band of seven family members (but not a "family band," as they made sure to avoid that categorization) from St. Mary's, Kan.

Despite a small audience of 15 to 20 people, the group enthusiastically showcased its talent for performing Norwegian folk tales, country, mambo, jazz and flawless seven-part harmonies, while singing about things like vikings coming to America.

Even after Sound Station's set ended and the audience cleared, the group eagerly set up again to play a brief unplugged performance for a friend who didn't make it to the show on time.

"You know, it didn't really bother us playing here in Pizza Hut," said Jim Omodt, father of the other six Sound Station members. "This really is a pretty decent room to play in. As far as attendance, I think the weather played a little part in that. But we still enjoyed it."

Other bands and attendees of AggieFest said they thought musicians playing the diversity of venues contributed to the great atmosphere and success of Saturday's festival.

"I loved that there were so many bands playing at so many different, random venues," said Deb Hooks, lead singer of the Plastic Parachutes, a band that recently moved to Manhattan from Los Angeles. "I think this event has the potential to be big in a few years, if all the businesses keep supporting it like they did this year."

Gitchell is part of the duo that plays guitars and sings to acoustic pop music.

TOP NEWS

Urban checks into rehab for alcohol abuse

NASHVILLE, Tenn.— Keith Urban has checked himself into a rehabilitation treatment center for alcohol abuse, less than four months after his marriage to actress Nicole Kidman.

Keith Urban
COUNTRY SINGER

The Grammy-winning country singer released a statement Friday that said he entered rehab Thursday night with his wife by his side. His publicist would not give the location of the rehab center.

"I deeply regret the hurt this has caused Nicole and the ones that love and support me," Urban said in the statement.

Urban, who turns 39 on Oct. 26, has publicly acknowledged a former addiction to cocaine.

"One can never let one's guard down on recovery, and I'm afraid that I have," the statement read.

Etheridge, partner are parents of twins

LOS ANGELES — Melissa Etheridge and her partner, Tammy Lynn Michaels, are the new parents of twins, the couple announced Friday.

Michaels gave birth to a boy and girl Tuesday: son Miller Steven and daughter Johnnie Rose.

"Tammy and the babies are in excellent health," Etheridge said on her Web site. The babies were conceived using an anonymous donor from a sperm bank.

"The creation of life brings about immeasurable love and pours hope into the future. The joy will help carry us through our upcoming sleepless nights," the couple said in a statement.

Etheridge, 45, and Michaels, 31, had a commitment ceremony in 2003. The Grammy-winning singer has two children from her relationship with former partner Julie Cypher: daughter Bailey Jean and son Beckett. Cypher had the children through artificial insemination using a sperm donation from rock legend David Crosby.

Etheridge was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2004, but she is now cancer-free. She last released a greatest hits album titled "The Road Less Traveled."

WEEKEND BOX OFFICE

■ The weekend totals listed are measured in millions of dollars.

Top movies	Total
1. "The Prestige" Buena Vista Pictures	14.8
2. "The Departed" Warner Bros. Pictures	13.7
3. "Flags of Our Fathers" Warner Bros. Pictures, Dreamworks	10.2
4. "Open Season" Sony Pictures	8.0

"Flicka" | Courtesy photo

5. "Flicka" 20th Century Fox	7.7
5. "The Grudge 2" Sony Pictures	7.7
7. "Man of the Year" Sony Pictures	7.0
8. "Marie Antoinette" Sony Pictures	5.3
9. "The Texas Chainsaw Mass..." New Line Cinema	3.8
10. "The Marine" 20th Century Fox	3.7

Source: www.movies.yahoo.com

THIS WEEK... A look at events that occurred during this week in history, other bizarre holidays, happenings

TODAY — 1855: Kansas, Missouri fight over slavery

In opposition to the fraudulently elected pro-slavery legislature of Kansas, the Kansas Free State forces set up a governor and legislature under their Topeka Constitution, a document that outlaws slavery in the territory.

Trouble in territorial Kansas began with the signing of the Kansas-Nebraska Act by President Franklin Pierce in 1854. The act stipulated that settlers in the newly created territories of Nebraska and Kansas would decide by popular vote whether their territory would be free or slave. Many fought over the issue, especially those in neighboring Missouri. For the next six years, raids, skirmishes and massacres continued in "Bleeding Kansas," as it became popularly known.

TUESDAY — National Bologna Day, Sliced Meat Day

The origin of bologna dates back to Italy, where culinaries would grind pork and lard together to produce slices of meat traditionally served on bread. The most famous campaign for bologna sales was through Oscar Mayer in the 1970s, when many would hear the jingle, "My bologna has a first name, it's O-S-C-A-R..." Today, the campaign jingle still rakes in millions for the company.

WEDNESDAY — 1994: Sprint merges with cable companies

Sprint Corp. announced it was joining forces with three of the cable industry's largest companies on this day. By unifying, Comcast, Tele-Communications, Cox Enterprises and Sprint would be able to offer a full range of phone services, as well as a mighty information and multimedia delivery network. The agreement was a significant coup for Sprint in its escalating competition with AT&T and the Baby Bells. The Baby Bells were legally barred from entering the long-distance field.

THURSDAY — 1985: Houston scores No. 1 hit with 1st album

Singer Whitney Houston first album tops the charts for the first time with "Saving All My Love for You."

Houston was born in Newark, N.J., in 1963. The cousin of singer Dionne Warwick and the daughter of a gospel singer, Houston grew up singing in a church choir and landed professional management by the time she turned 15. She made numerous live appearances and provided guest vocals for several recordings. She also developed a modeling and acting career, appearing on magazine covers and on sitcoms like "Silver Spoons," and in films like "The Bodyguard" and "Waiting to Exhale."

FRIDAY — 1858: Founding of Macy's stores

The eighth time was a charm for Roland Macy. After a string of seven business failures, the resilient entrepreneur finally hit the jackpot in 1858 when he founded his own department store, named Macy's. The store, which opened in New York City, was packed with a variety of useful products and became an immediate success. Today, Macy's is, by volume of sales, the biggest department store in the world. According to Macy's Web site, the closest store is in Topeka.

Source: History Channel; Photos: courtesy art.

Breakthrough performer

James Johnson — Running back

The junior running back set a career high with 127 yards on 20 carries. Johnson entered the game with only 21 yards combined in his first seven games as a Wildcat. In the fourth quarter alone, he rushed for 103 yards and notched his first career touchdown.

Turning point

Second quarter: Wildcats fall 1 yard short on fourth down.

For the second straight week, the Wildcats could not punch it in from just 1 yard away. Last week, Nebraska forced K-State into a turnover on downs. This time, running back James Johnson was tackled by Tommy Chavis, and the Tigers took over on downs and went 99 yards in 3 minutes, 13 seconds to take a 10-7 lead they would never relinquish.

By the numbers

5

Excluding a quarterback kneel at the end of the first half by Chase Daniel, Missouri scored on five straight offensive possessions to build a 41-14 fourth-quarter lead. The first score came after the failed fourth-and-goal by K-State.

Game MVP

Leon Patton bounced back from a poor performance against Nebraska by totaling 274 all-purpose yards. The freshman running back was one of the only bright spots for the Wildcats, as he had 112 yards rushing, 38 yards receiving and 124 yards on kickoff returns.

It was Patton's second time topping the century-mark in his three starts, and he also notched his second rushing touchdown of the season on a 15-yard score in the third quarter.

Wildcats still have shot at postseason

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

COLUMBIA, Mo. – There really is nothing much left to say after the K-State football team was, for the fifth-straight week, outmatched by a better opponent Saturday.

Missouri had a game plan, and it executed it extremely well en route to a 41-21 drubbing of the Wildcats.

So where does that leave this team that now has lost four of its last five games – with the only win coming from a 14-point comeback in the final four minutes against Oklahoma State?

I'd say in pretty good shape.

Even though they have lost, and for the most part, looked bad in doing so, there is hope for the Wildcats, because the rest of the season shapes up as fairly easy for them if you look at records alone.

Iowa State (3-5, 0-4 Big 12), at Colorado (1-7, 1-3), No. 5-ranked Texas (7-1, 4-0) and at Kansas (3-5, 0-4) are the four games remaining on the schedule for K-State.

At least two wins can be found against those teams, and that is all that is necessary for the Wildcats to reach the elusive six-win mark and become bowl eligible.

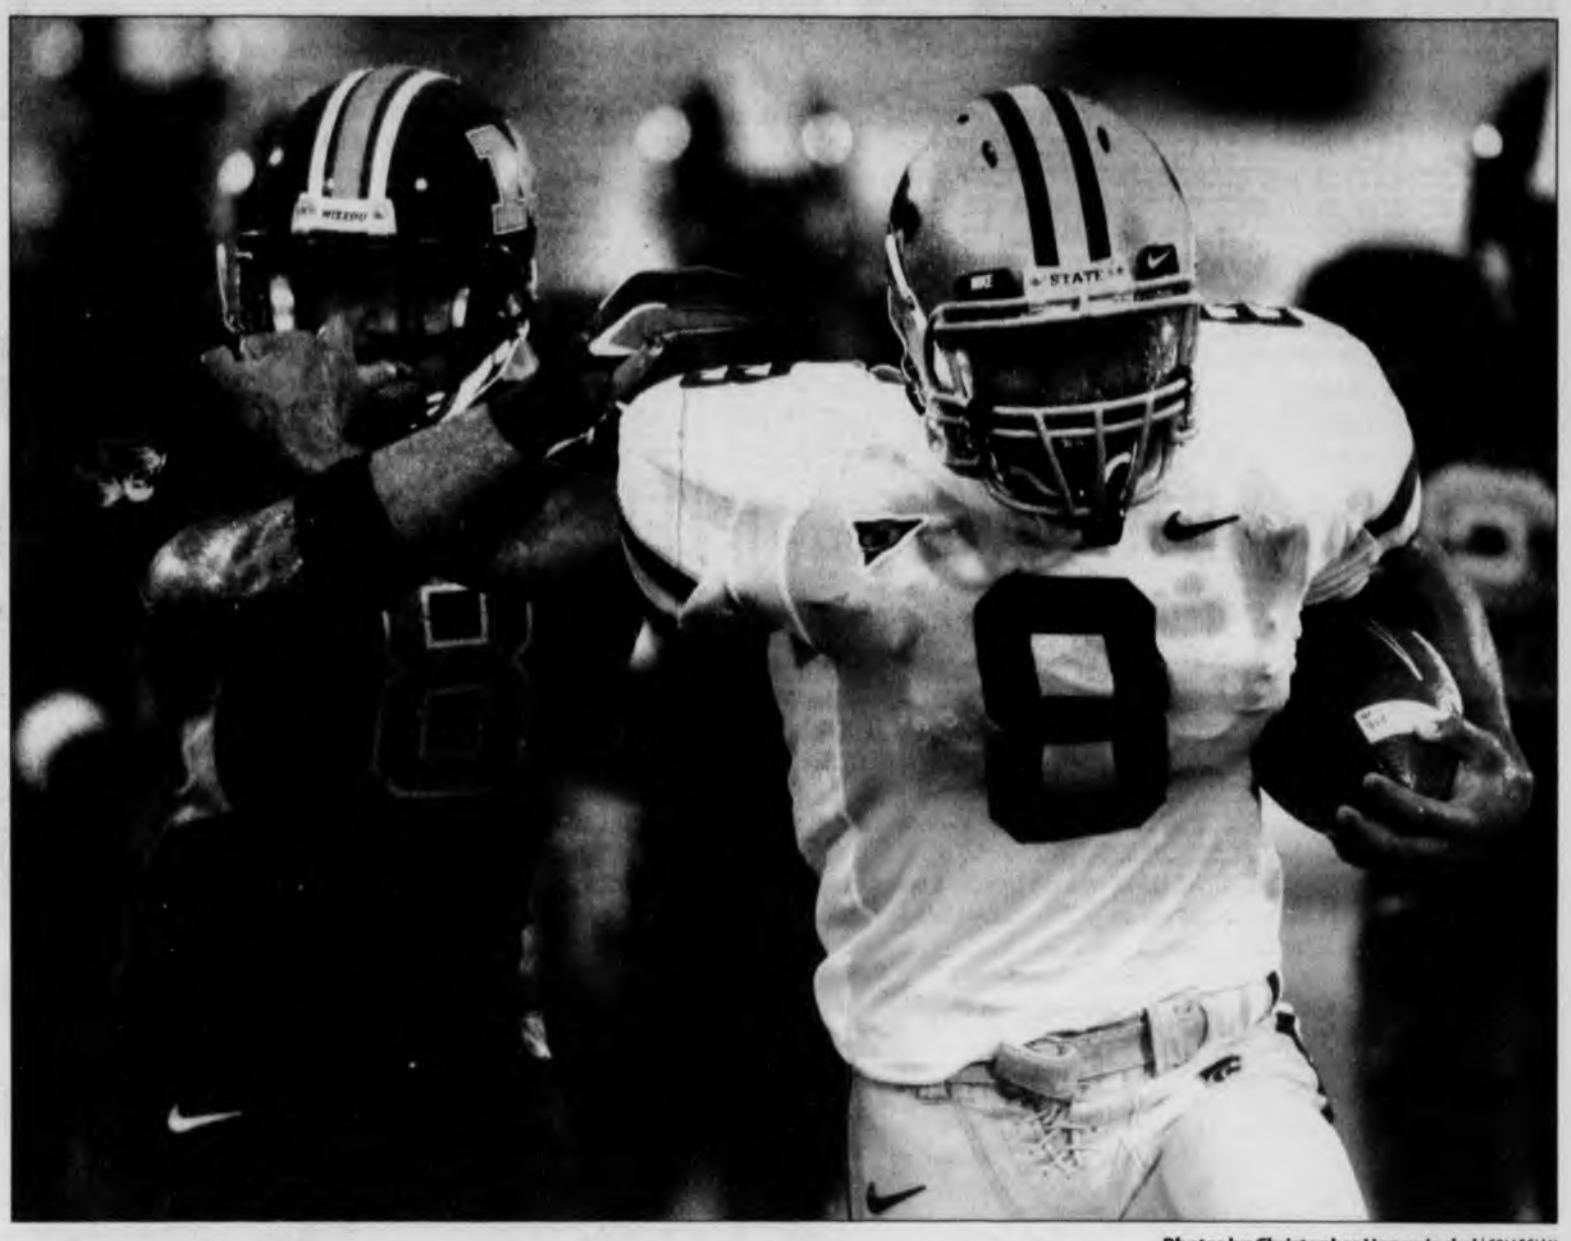
In order to get those two wins, the Wildcats will have to play a lot better than they have recently, but there is one reason K-State fans can continue to have hope for this team.

His name is Leon Patton.

The running back has started the last three games, and he had 301 all-purpose yards against Oklahoma State and 274 Saturday against Missouri.

He looked simply amazing in two of his three games as the starter.

Patton's 5-foot-7, 184-pound frame could have fans drawing comparisons to another little back who used to run at will for K-State.



Patton has had only three games, and it would not be fair to compare him to Darren Sproles just yet, but the only thing Missouri fans could talk about after the game was how good they thought Patton was going to be.

Patton will be one of the biggest factors that determine whether this team makes the postseason.

The Wildcats have played the top two teams in the Big 12 North the last two weeks, and they looked awful in those games. But now they get to play the rest of the bottom feeders (except for Texas), and they should be able to take down at least two of those three opponents.

Cedrique Flemming is a senior in print journalism and business. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Missouri 41, K-State 21

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Running back James Johnson fights off Missouri safety David Overstreet during the fourth quarter of K-State's 41-21 loss. Johnson rushed for a career high 127 yards on 20 carries. Coming into Saturday's game, Johnson had only rushed for 21 yards on the season.

The end of dominance

Missouri snaps 13-game losing streak to K-State through balanced offense

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Columbia, Mo. – K-State couldn't have asked for a better start.

Just 30 seconds into their 41-21 loss Saturday to Missouri, the Wildcats got exactly what they needed when defensive end Rob Jackson flew around the line and sacked Tiger quarterback Chase Daniel.

Daniel fumbled, and linebacker Zach Diles picked up the ball and ran it in 43 yards for his first career touchdown.

"We sent the blitz, and they had to adjust for that," Jackson said. "I just happened to be the offside guy. If you're a defensive end, and you've got a free shot at the quarterback, something big has to happen."

The score gave K-State (4-4, 1-3 Big 12) an early 7-0 lead and hopes of pulling off an upset over the No. 24-ranked Tigers (7-1, 3-1 Big 12).

In the first seven games of the season, Mizzou outscored its opponents by a combined score of 79-13 in the first quarter, so the Wildcats knew they would have to withstand the initial blow if they wanted to keep the game close.

However, that momentum quickly vanished as James Johnson was tackled on a fourth-and-goal attempt from the 1-yard line early in the second quarter.

Missouri took over on downs and quickly drove 99 yards for a touchdown and a 10-7 lead.

"We talked about crunch time," Missouri coach Gary Pinkel said. "There's a time when you have to make a play. Being able to make that stop, it's just a remarkable momentum swing."

That touchdown proved to be just one in the midst of 34 unanswered points by the Tigers, who used a combination of balanced offense and taking advantage of turnovers to build an insurmountable lead late in the game.

K-State's Josh Freeman, left, Donald Raymer and Leon Patton watch as Missouri scores another touchdown Saturday. K-State fell to 1-3 in Big 12 Conference play and 4-4 overall.

After forcing Daniel into some tough throws early, the Wildcat defense was unable to respond after the Tigers adjusted, and Daniel finished the game with 262 yards passing and four touchdowns.

"We thought that unless we pressured the quarterback, it wouldn't be a successful day," K-State coach Ron Prince said.

The lone bright spot for the Wildcats was the running game. K-State rushed for 262 yards, with more than 100 each from Johnson and Leon Patton. It was the first time the Wildcats have had two 100-yard rushers in the same game since quarterback Allen Webb and running back Darren Sproles against Nebraska in 2004.

Since K-State's 17-3 loss to Baylor on Sept. 30, Patton and Johnson have taken over the duties of running back from former senior starter Thomas Clayton.

Clayton did not make the trip, and Prince said he would make an announcement about Clayton's future with the team on Tuesday.

Analysis

Freeman inconsistent in loss; Missouri's Daniel plays like veteran

K-State's Josh Freeman tries to scramble from a Missouri defender Saturday afternoon in Columbia, Mo., at Memorial Stadium.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

COLUMBIA, Mo. – Saturday's match-up featured Josh Freeman, a true freshman, against Chase Daniel, a sophomore. Both were highly touted coming out of high school, and neither took a redshirt in their first year of college.

However, Daniel looked like a veteran in Missouri's 41-21 win over K-State while Freeman made several youthful errors.

DANIEL

The Tigers must have an accurate passer to keep its talented players happy. Daniel's five favorite targets all have at least 200 yards receiving.

Tommy Saunders probably was flying under the Wildcats' radar before Saturday's game.

In his previous seven games, Saunders had five catches for 51 yards. He broke out against K-State, catching six passes for 51 yards and a touchdown.

"This offense puts anybody in position to make plays," Saunders said. "You can go three games with one catch and then one game have 10 catches."

FREEMAN

In the first half, Freeman was fortunate his passes weren't intercepted. In the second half, he wasn't so lucky.

Freeman's first two passes of the third quarter were picked off. In the fourth quarter he fumbled three consecutive snaps before losing the third one.

The fumble – Freeman's third turnover of the game – led to the decision to put in former starter Dylan Meier. However, coach Ron Prince said the switch was only temporary, and Freeman is still his quarterback.

"He's a young player, but he's a very confident player," Prince said. "The most important thing is for us to learn from these things and work together."

KAPPA | Alumna, active share contrasting views of sorority life

Continued from Page 1

cook's gum in her chicken with noodles one afternoon.

To counterbalance Lindahl's Roaring Twenties vision, Erin Learned, senior in public relations, spoke of life in the sorority today.

Gone are the days of waiting in line for the phone, hand-writing papers and walking through the Kansas winter in a skirt.

In are the recent achievements: Most Outstanding Chapter award of 2004 conferred at the sorority's international conference, Recruitment and campus involvement.

"We still have the reputation of being all-around classy girls," Learned said.

For alumnae, the event was an encouragement to stay involved through volunteering for boards, becoming an adviser or donating money for projects.

After presenting 50-year members with commemorative pins, all non-members were excused for the sorority's closing session.

The ceremony had an emotional effect on those in attendance. Mixed in with the laughter were occasional tears, and after the event, many of the oldest members were approached and thanked for their stories and contributions over the years.

"It's been exciting to see people over such a wide span of experience over so many years," Betsy Brownlee, junior in kinesiology, said.

For more than 90 years, fraternities and sororities have ebbed and flowed from K-State, but Lindahl, who was chapter president in 1934, said the quality of the initiates and the caliber of the members is what has kept Kappa Kappa Gamma going.

"It was a wonderful experience," she said. "I'm very proud of my time as a Kappa."

London acting troupe's 5 members play 25 characters in 'Hamlet'

By Jesse Sachdeva
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A Shakespearean play can be a challenge for any actor.

But for the performance of "Hamlet" Friday night in McCain Auditorium, the British theater troupe, Actors from the London Stage, took the difficulty to a whole new level.

The troupe, which consists of only five members, acted all 25 speaking parts in the play themselves, with one actor often playing two characters at the same time.

The simple production used no fancy stage scenery. The only props were a collection of hats and scarves the actors used to differentiate the characters they were playing and a set of 10 chairs.

The play was preceded by a lecture from Don Hedrick, professor of English. Hedrick gave a preview of the troupe's performance.

"The performance this evening will be fast, furious, pure acting, much like what Shakespeare's audiences would have seen," Hedrick said. "The part doubling in tonight's performance will only add to that."

Hedrick spoke on the play's role in popular culture, analyzing the iconic skull of Yorick scene, and the famous line, "To be, or not to be."

Hedrick also showed clips of various film productions of "Hamlet," highlighting the interpretive openness of Shakespeare's works. Among those shown were Laurence Olivier's "delicate" portrayal of the title character in his 1948 film, Ethan Hawke's brooding, tech-savvy video artist Hamlet in the modernized 2000 film, Mel Gibson's enraged prince from the 1990 film, and even an action hero parody of Hamlet by Arnold Schwarzenegger from 1994's "Last Action Hero."

Michael Knapp, junior in architecture, attended Hedrick's lecture.

"I haven't seen 'Hamlet' before, but I know its reputation as a classic," Knapp said. "I'm curious to see how the dual roles are going to work out."

After Hedrick's lecture, the play began with the actors introducing the audience to each of the characters they would play by adopting the mannerisms and dress of each character and saying their name. For instance, Anna Northam, who played both Hamlet's mother, Gertrude, and his girlfriend, Ophelia, differentiated the two by holding a white handkerchief while playing Ophelia.

Robert Mountford played Hamlet's friends, Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, who always appeared on stage together. Mountford accomplished this by tucking his right arm behind his back for one character and his left for the other.

Without detailed sets or an ensemble cast, the production asked a lot of the audience's imagination.

"I thought it made (the play) interesting." Ashley Cook, junior in interior architecture, said. "It was fun watching the little differences between the characters."

Jazz vocalist accompanied by professor in Swing City series

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"Other arms reach out to me/Other eyes smile tenderly/ Still in peaceful dreams I see/ The road leads back to you," Ron Gutierrez sang in a smooth voice on Saturday at Manhattan Arts Center.

In the audience, several people closed their eyes or nodded their heads in time to the music. At the end of the number, some added an enthusiastic "Yeah" or whistle to the applause.

Gutierrez, a renowned Kansas City, Mo., jazz vocalist sang the Ray Charles song "Georgia on my Mind" during the first of two hour-long sets. The performance was part of the arts center's Swing City Jazz series.

"First of all, he's an outstanding vocalist," said Tess Purvis, director of marketing and programs at the center, after the first set. "Everybody loves it."

He was accompanied by Craig Akin on acoustic and electric bass, drummer Kevin Wickliffe, and Charles Williams on the keyboard and piano, as well as associate professor of music Wayne Goins on the guitar.

"I liked it a lot," said Tracy Peters, freshman in business. "I'm a big fan of jazz, mainly Ray Charles, Nat King Cole. It fulfilled my expectations."

Peters said she preferred the older songs to contemporary jazz.

"I liked both sets, but I liked the first set the best," she said. "It was romantic and slower. The second was a little more contemporary. I enjoyed it."

Gutierrez, who has played at large venues across the country, said he enjoyed singing at the arts center for the first time.

"It's nice, intimate," he said. "I've played Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center. Those are beautiful buildings, but something this size, with no smoke, it's perfect, really."

Patrons were welcome to walk around during the performance.

"We like to keep it really mellow," said Goins, who helps coordinate the jazz series. "It's almost like a bar, nightclub and a cabaret all in one. Not a bad seat in the house."

Goins met and played with Gutierrez and the others for the first time Saturday night, without having practiced. During the performance, the musicians looked to one another, signaling things like key changes and solos.

"We talked about it before he came here," Goins said. "I told him I'd like to join in the fun. His reputation is impeccable. With the level of musicianship he's on – and I think we're both on that level – we're able to just play off of each other."

Goins said it was easy to play along, because he was familiar with the songs.

"His repertoire was stuff I grew up with," Goins said. "All that music was right up my alley. We didn't have to practice. These guys are great musicians. They make you proud to be a jazz musician."

Because of the cold, rainy weather and other events like AggieFest, Purvis said the performance didn't draw as many people as hoped, but she said the patrons who came showed an enthusiastic response.

"Excellent, excellent vocals," said Victoria L'Ecuyer, a volunteer at the arts center. "I think it's our best one this season. I was enthralled."

Goins said he hopes to have Gutierrez and the others back as soon as he can, possibly for a Valentine's Day show in February.

For more information on Gutierrez and his music, visit www.rongutierrez.com.

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword. . .
Now that's something you can bank on.

SHOW ME THE MONEY
Learn about topics related to job negotiation, salary and benefits in the workplace!
October 24, 4 p.m.
Union 212
GET ACT!VATED! Visit our website for details.
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career
www.k-state.edu/ces

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

Student Phone Numbers at your Fingertips.
Kansas State University
Campus Phone Book
2006-2007
Available Now
for purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
ONLY $5!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

WE ♥ OUR NEWEST ANGELS!
WHITNEY ABERNATHY, ANNIE BACHMAN, ALEX BAKER, LINDSEY BANKHEAD, COURTNEY BEUTTEL, MEAGAN BOYETT, COURTNEY BROWNE, CAITLIN COAD, JENN CRAINSHAW, DANIELLE DICKSON, MELLISSA EBBERT, JESSY FRY, AMY GAMM, JULIA GARTEN, ERICA GRONAU, SARAH GUINANE, ALEXA HODES, LINDSEY HOGAN, CLARISSA HOWLEY, MACKINSEY HUDSON, ROSALYN LEWALLEN, JENNY LINVILLE, LINDSEY MARKLE, NICOLE MAUPIN, KELSEY MCCIE, VICTORIA MCKENNAN, KATE MUNCHOFF, KATIE NIEDERER, KAYLEY OTTO, LAURA RICE, EMILY SCHLOSSER, KELLI SETTLE, TIFFANY SHILLING, SARAH SHORT, MOLLY SMITH, HANNAH SPEAKE, MELISSA STONE, KAYLEIGH STRICKLER, SANDY TAGUE, LAURA TAYLOR, KELSEY WHEELER, WHITNEY WOLF, MORGAN ZWICKEL PI BETA PHI
CONGRATS INITIATES!

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

KSU - CU Game. Join us for a Buffalo hunt in Boulder! Our chartered bus will leave at 11:00 am, Friday, November 3 and return after the game on Saturday. Travel package includes chartered bus, a double occupancy room at the Westin in Boulder (the team hotel) and game ticket for $220. For reservations please call Kathy Dahnke at GTM Sportswear at 785-537-8822 ext. 1120.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

DROVE OFF with my cell phone, palm treo, on top of my car after Saturday's game 10/14. Parked behind Trotter. REWARD offered. 800-892-5558 ext.-87514.

FOUND: KEYS. Ford ignition key, house, and mail box keys. Crimestopper remote. Call 785-313-5352.

RECORDER FOUND on campus near Vattier. Call 785-313-5886 to claim.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan, $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Living with girls in a four-bedroom house. Six blocks from campus. $375 includes utilities. Call Amber 620-343-0663.

145 Roommate Wanted

LOOKING FOR Male Subleaser. Clean and honest household. Lease is for January 2007 through August 2007. Close to campus. $250 a month. 785-562-7454.

MALE/ FEMALE. Nice Duplex, great location. Move in anytime. $300 + one-fourth utilities per month. Call anytime 785-341-8045.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January, close to campus. $285 per month, all utilities paid except electricity. 417-489-0829.

TWO-BEDROOM, one-bath apartment for sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600/ month, available now. 785-410-7266.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

COACH: USD 378 Riley County is accepting applications for an Assistant Boys Basketball Coach for Riley County High School. Contact District Office at 785-485-4000 or bpultz@usd378.org as soon as possible.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

EARN EXTRA cash for next semester!!! We are looking for people to manage firework locations in Louisiana December 20 - January 2. Travel expenses and lodging provided. Call for details 1-800-564-2825.

F.O.R.C.E. Finding Other Resources For Community Enhancement. Skating Rink Supervisor: Responsible for managing the Roundabout Recreational Complex (Skating Rink and Miniature Golf). Duties include opening and closing the facility and set up for scheduled activities. Monitoring of the facility during scheduled events, public relations, and security of the facility. Responsible for inventories of concessions, skates, and all other equipment. Performs record keeping and accounts for all proceeds and provides reports to the Manager. Basic first-aid training and CPR certification preferred. Hours vary (10- 15 per week) and include mornings, evenings, weekdays, and weekends, year-round. Must be flexible and highly responsible. Salary: $7.00/ hour. This position requires a High School or GED diploma, a valid driver's license, must pass an extensive background check and strive in providing excellent service to the public. AN APPLICATION MUST BE SUBMITTED IN ORDER TO BE CONSIDERED FOR THIS POSITION. Applications accepted until THE POSITION IS FILLED. Applications are available at the Municipal Building Reception Center, 700 N. Jefferson. Junction City, Kansas, 8am-5pm, Monday - Friday. Applications are also available a www.-jcks.com. F.O.R.C.E. is an equal opportunity employer.

FULL TIME position open in the Operating Room at Geary Community Hospital for a PACU nurse. Applicant must have a current and unrestricted Registered Nurse license with the State of Kansas; Med/-Surg and ICU experience preferred; current ACLS and BLS certification. The hours for the position are 0800-1630 Monday through Friday with occasional overtime required. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; fax to 785-238-1700 or email to cwitt@gchks.org; or apply on line at www.gchks.org.

Need a subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

GEARY COMMUNITY Hospital a very progressive 92 - bed acute care facility is looking for RCP's. Nestled in the Flint Hills of Kansas, and in the fastest growing community in the state, we provide excellent health care to both in-patient and out-patients utilizing the latest technology available. In addition, our hospital is undergoing a $34 million expansion project that will serve us far in the future. We offer competitive salaries and benefits packages for our employees. For more information contact Geary Community Hospital; 1102 St. Mary's Rd.; PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; email to; cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HOWE LANDSCAPE Inc. has several positions available for our landscaping, irrigation and mowing crews. Applicants must be 18 years of age and have a valid drivers license. We can work with your class schedules, but prefer four-hour blocks of time. Starting wage $7.75. Apply in person Monday- Friday at 12870 Madison Road in Riley or call 785-776-1697 to obtain an application.

IMMEDIATE HELP needed transferring from wheelchair. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 5-7 p.m. Call 785-537-3871.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.-com.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PART-TIME Furniture Delivery Positions: Flexible work schedule, great pay. Stop by A Full House, 601 S. 5th Street, 785-537-9088.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

310 Help Wanted

RETAIL LIQUOR Store accepting applications for part-time sales clerk. Apply at McMillins 930 Hayes Drive, Manhattan. Must be 21.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

STUDENT PROGRAMMER position available. Must be available at least 12 hours per week (up to 20). Starting pay is $10.00 to $12.00 per hour based on experience. Programming experience in Visual Basic or Visual Basic.Net required. Must possess good communication skills. Apply in person at 315-A Houston Street, Manhattan, KS. Contact jobs@stasyx.com with questions.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

THE CITY of Ogden is accepting applications for the part-time position of Planning Commission/ Board of Zoning and Appeals Secretary. Duties include attending meetings, taking, preparing and maintaining minutes of the meetings. A pre-employment drug screening may be conducted. Wage is $8.50 per hour. Applications are available at City Hall, 222 Riley Avenue, Ogden, Kansas 66517. Applications are due before Noon, October 31, 2006.

310 Help Wanted

TO ALL COMPUTER PROGRAMMING STUDENTS GRADUATING in December. Full-time software developer position is available in Manhattan, KS. Must possess good communication skills. Apply via the e-recruiting system or email your resume directly to jobs@stasyx.-com.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH/ Front Office Assistant Hours 20- 30, Summer 40 hours. Assist Evaluators with program evaluation activities & Office Manager with front desk and Director projects Kansas State University, Office of Educational Innovation and Evaluation. Email ubel@ksu.edu or call 785-532-2982.

WE HAVE a full-time position open in our physician offices for a RN, Associate Degree preferred Clinic nurse, during the hours of 0830-1700 but must be willing and able to work a flexible schedule if necessary. Applicant must have a valid, unrestricted Kansas nursing license, be graduated from an accredited nursing program; experienced with ICD-9 coding, triage skills required; familiar with automated equipment; supervisory experience in a clinical setting preferred; the ability to plan, organize, and perform nursing care; and work as a team member in a fast-paced environment. Interested and qualified nurses should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, Ks 66441; email to: cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700. Equal Opportunity Employer.

320 Volunteers Needed

VOLUNTEER AS a MENTOR at UFM Community Learning Center. Great experience for anyone wishing to work with adolescents. Required availability: Tuesdays from 3- 5p.-m. and one Sunday evening per month. To apply, visit www.tryufm.org and download the mentor application or stop by UFM at 1221 Thurston Street, Manhattan, KS.

785
532
6555
Call for Collegian Classifieds

ASinc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for:
Assembly
General Laborers
Stock-handlers
Clerical
Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at
408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
785.532.6555

Attendant Care Providers
Manhattan and Junction City
Part-time positions available providing support with daily living skills to youth and adults with mental health challenges. High School diploma or equivalent required; related experience and/or training preferred. Qualified applicants will be at least 21 years of age and have a valid driver's license with an acceptable record. Send letter of interest to:
Pawnee MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES
HR Director
Pawnee Mental Health Services
PO Box 747
Manhattan, KS 66505
Email - hr@pawnee.org
Equal Opportunity Employer

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

FOR SALE: (Like New) Lawn Mower. (Like New) Flat - Screen Monitor. (Old) Sewing Machine. 785-537-1423.

LIKE NEW - Futon, couch, loveseat, TV's, entertainment units, executives desk, coffee and end tables. Will deliver. Call 785-494-2068.

500 Transportation

530 Motorcycles

SWEET RETRO Honda Moped. 49cc, 50 mpg, wire baskets. No insurance required. Park at bike racks. $750. 316-207-3511.

600 Travel/ Trips

610 Tour Packages

SPRING BREAK 2007 Celebration! 20th Anniversary with Sun Splash Tours. Free trip on every 12 before November 1. Free meals and parties, hottest deals ever. Group discounts on 6+. Hottest Spring Break destinations. 1-800-426-7710. www.-sunsplashtour.com looking for a job?

CHECK THE
COLLEGIAN
CLASSIFIEDS

Management
Career Opportunity
Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.
Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.
Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

Quiznos Sub
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

1		6			9	2
		9		2				1
5	8			4	7	3
	2			6		8	7
6			4		5			3
	4	1		3			5
		3	2	9			1	5
9				5		6
		7	3			4		8

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

When you're looking for a bargain, check out the Collegian Classifieds.
If you don't find what you need, advertise in the Open Market section!

check out our high-def,

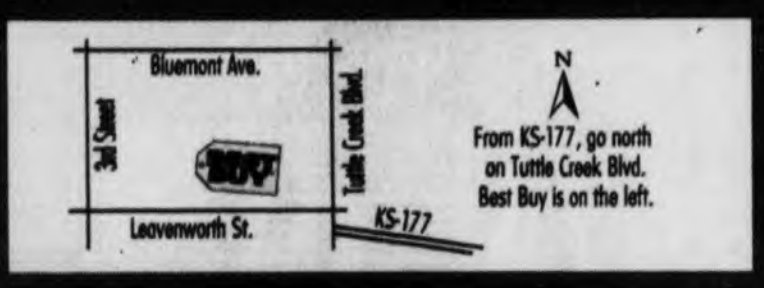
800-watt,



dual format,

600 gigabyte

grand opening

Open Oct. 27 in Manhattan

329 Tuttle Creek Blvd.

BEST BUY®

Store Hours: Mon. – Sat. 9:30 a.m.–9 p.m., Sun. 11 a.m.–7 p.m.

Coupon valid 10/27/06–11/30/06

Get a $10 Best Buy™ Gift Card instantly, when you spend $100 or more

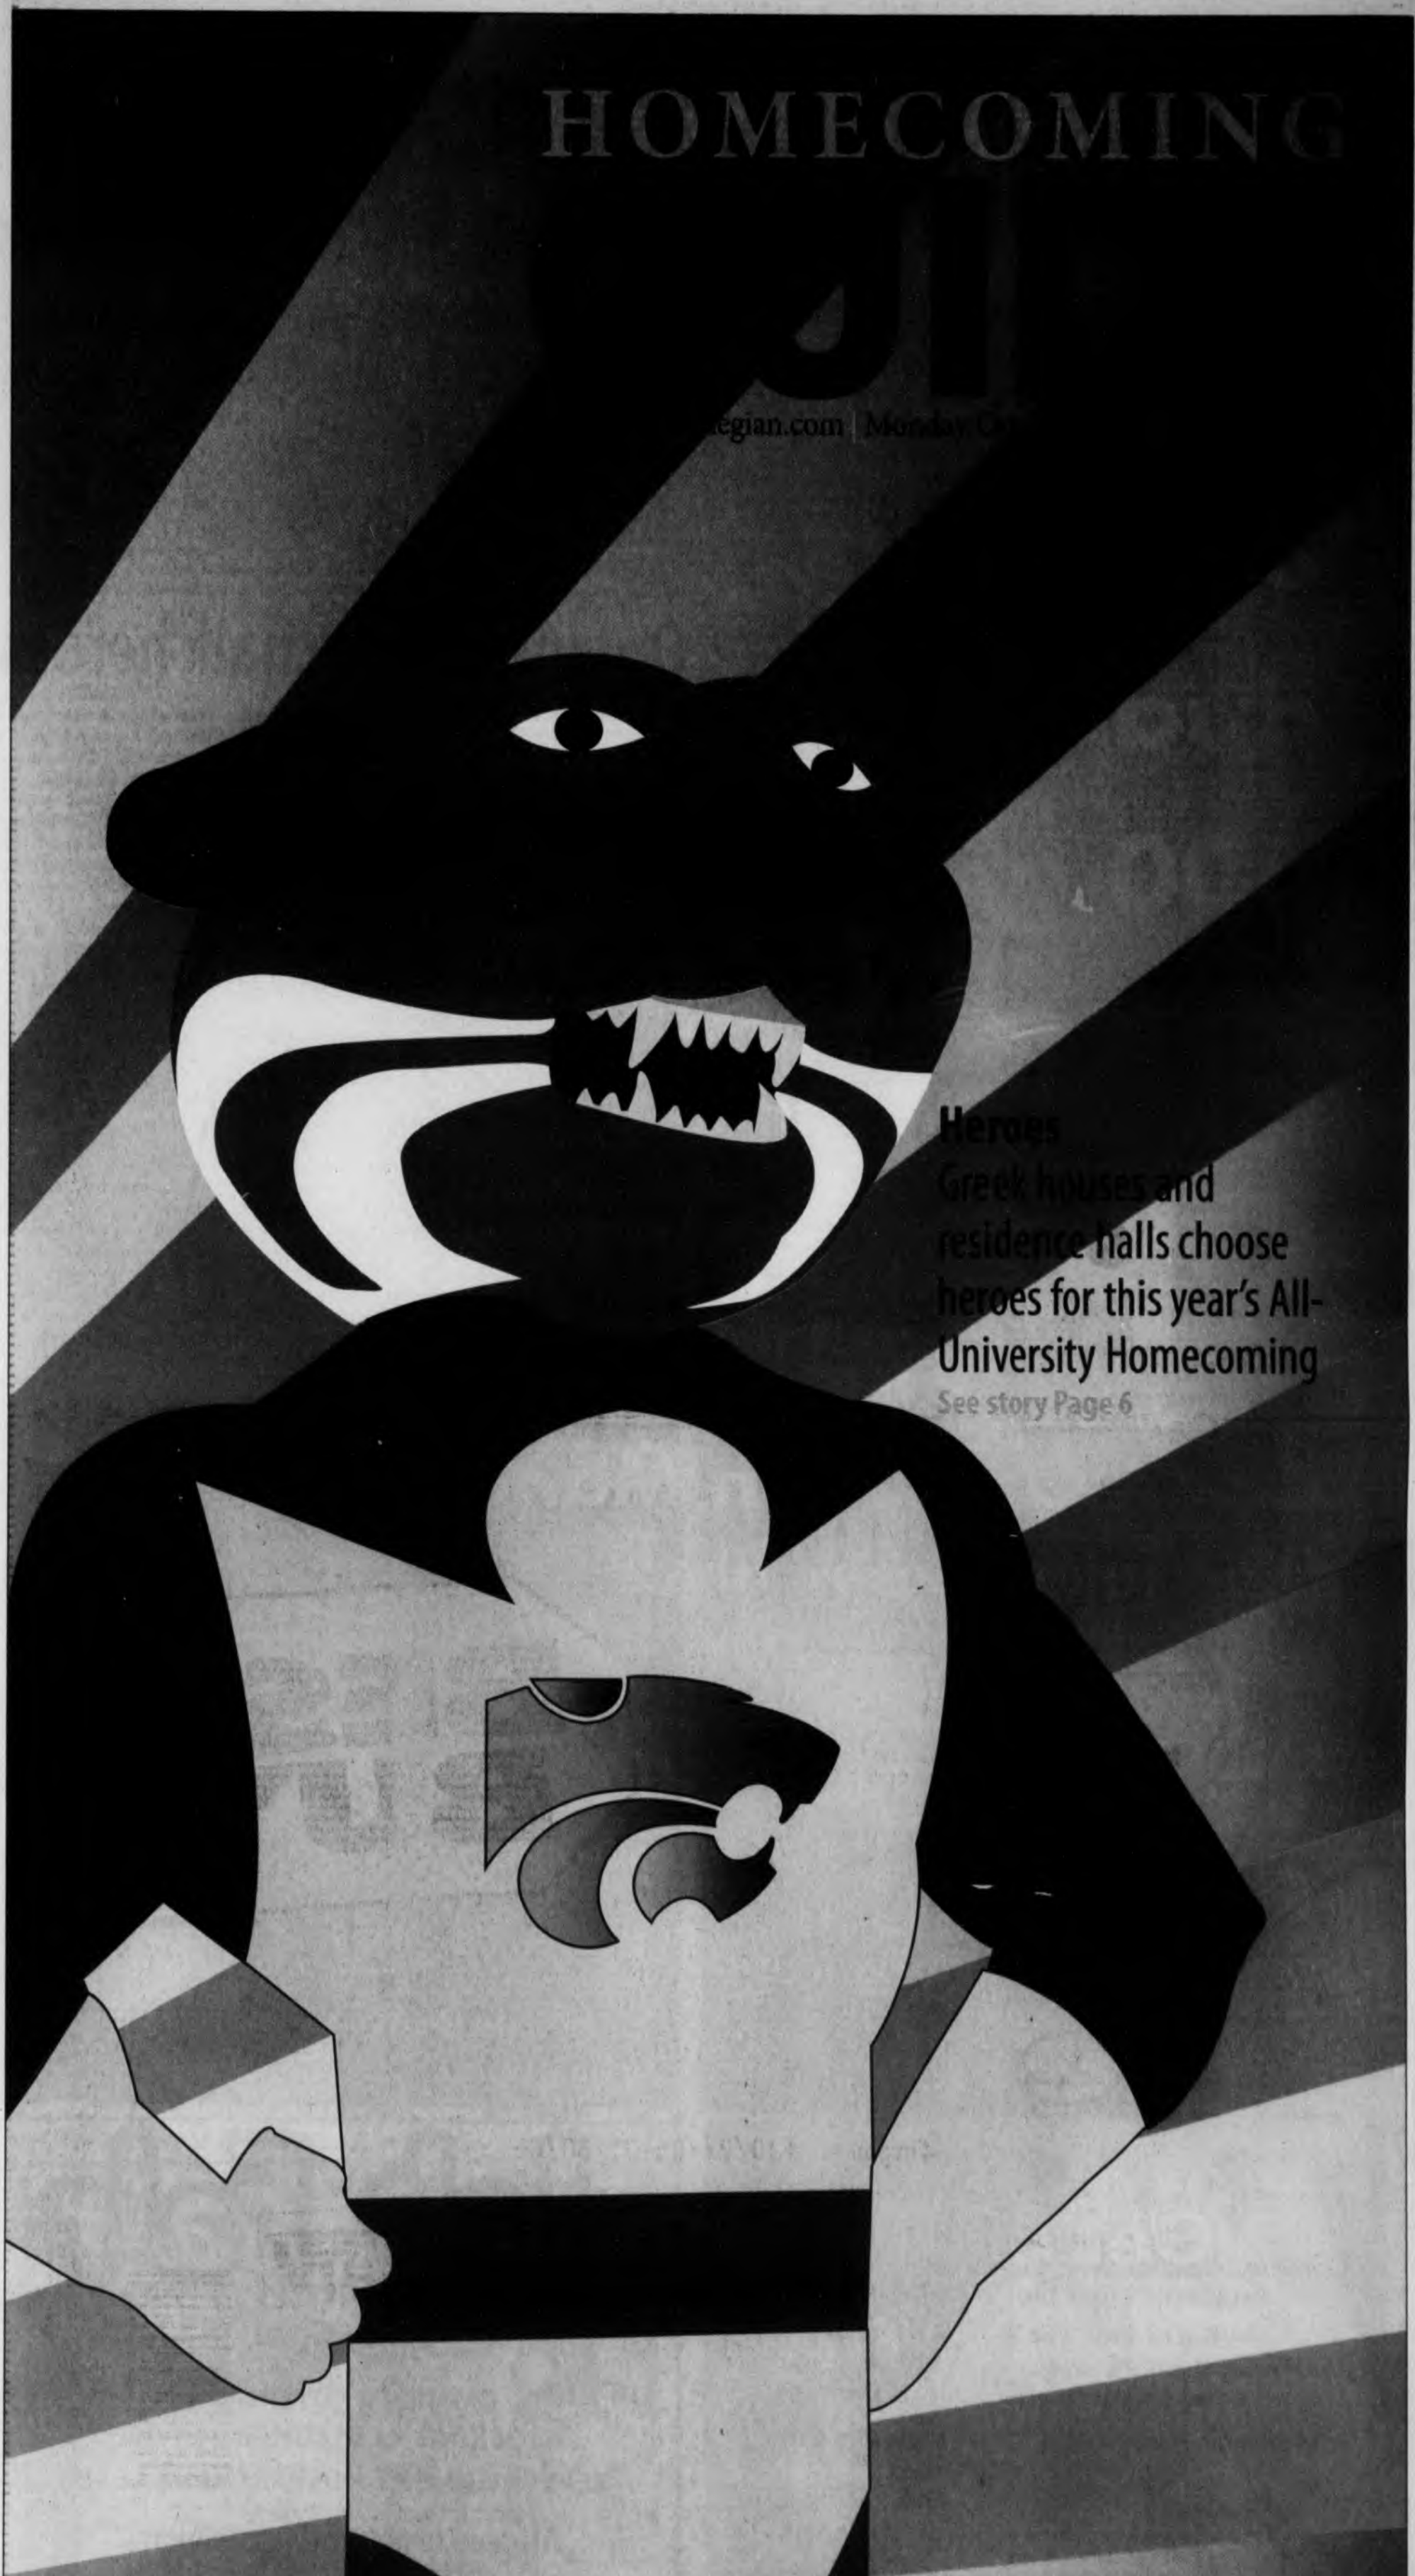
Offer Limit: one coupon valid per purchase. Earn $10 in Gift Card value. Excludes notebooks and desktop computers, desktop packages (packages include computer, monitor and printer), PDAs, Palm® products, Visor® products, Gift Cards, prior purchases, special order, clearance, demo and open-box items. Selection varies by store. Limit 1 offer per customer per transaction. Not good in combination with any other coupons or offers. Valid only at Best Buy Manhattan. Valid at listed store only. No substitutions. No dealers. Coupon must be presented at time of purchase. No copies. Cash value is 1/100th of 1 cent. Coupon valid 10/27/06-11/30/06.



Excludes accessories (non-numeric UPCs). Scan qualifying product UPC(s). Scan all other product(s) being sold. Press "Total". Write "VOID" on coupon and place in the register coupon section.

©2006 Best Buy

30494 © 2006 Best Buy

HOMECOMING

egian.com | Monday, Oc

Heroes
Greek houses and residence halls choose heroes for this year's All-University Homecoming

See story Page 6

Illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN

Street Talk Page 2 | Sidewalk chalking Page 2 | Activities Page 3 | Cost of Homecoming Page 5 | Philanthropy Page 6

STREET TALK

Who is your hero?

This year's All-University Homecoming theme is "Homecoming of Heroes." Students shared who their favorite heroes are.

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Reischman

"My hero is probably my mom. She is just very strong-willed and enthusiasic about life."

Jennifer Reischman
SENIOR IN ANIMAL SCIENCE

Jilka

"I'd have to say Pope Benedict XVI is my hero. He's such an inspiring man, one who really does what he believes in. He's a great example. I'm considering becoming a priest myself."

Brian Jilka
FRESHMAN IN ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

Wilson

"Mother Teresa is my heroine. She was dedicated to helping others. I'm in a sorority and have not got involved yet, but I'm planning to do so."

Haley Wilson
FRESHMAN IN INTERIOR ARCHITECTURE

Michaels

"How about Buddha? He spent his life trying to help other people to become more aware. If everyone is enlightened, they will think more about other people's perspectives in life and wouldn't do anything that hurts them."

Paul Michaels
FRESHMAN IN ARCHITECTURE

Beason

"That's a tough question, but I would say my mom because of her strength and independence. She is someone I would like to be like."

Ashley Beason
JUNIOR IN SECONDARY EDUCATION

Felder

"My dad is my hero. Just because I know how it is like to support someone, and he supports our whole family, which is four kids and my parents."

Nick Felder
SOPHOMORE IN CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

Watler

"That would be my mother, because she makes sure that I have everything I need in my life, and she got me here to K-State for my education. She gives me money whenever I need it."

Pricilla Watler
SOPHOMORE IN ACCOUNTING

Zhu

"My dad, because he has done so much and been able to accomplish a lot. His passion is so big; I have never seen anything like it. He's a role model of how I should pursue my interest as well."

Jeff Zhu
SOPHOMORE IN LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE

Clevenger

"My father is my hero. He's been there for me and helped shape who I am today."

Sam Clevenger
FRESHMAN IN HOTEL AND RESTAURANT ADMINISTRATION

Nightengale

"My dad, because he is a very respectable person and very knowledgeable and wise."

Savanna Nightengale
JUNIOR IN ARCHITECTURE

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Members of the Japanese Yosakoi Dance Club draw on a slab of sidewalk in the Bosco Student Plaza during the group and organization chalking competition. Chalking was open to all groups that wanted to participate.

Organizations chalk heroes

By Jesse Sachdeva
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students from four campus organizations sat on the cold cement of Bosco student plaza Sunday, frantically working away on their designs for the All-University Homecoming Sidewalk Chalk Contest.

Shannon O'Neal, homecoming committee member, supervised the event.

"Each organization is given a 10' by 10' square to work with, and their designs are required to include the homecoming theme of 'A Homecoming of Heroes' as well as the organization's name," O'Neal said.

With only a two-hours to create their designs, the organizations had to work fast. Tyler Stubenhofer, president of Phi Eta Sigma, described the work of his organization.

"Phi Eta Sigma is an honorary organization; we contact the Registar's office, and they give us the names of all the freshman students who, in their first semester here, held a 3.5 or better GPA," Stubenhofer said. "For those that want to join, there's a banquet at the end of the year. Once they're in is where the fun begins."

Phi Eta Sigma's design incorporated the Powercat symbol into the Superman shield and the Batman bat-signal.

"We wanted to go with a classic superheroes design, in keeping with the 'Homecoming Heroes' theme," Stubenhofer said.

Another organization participating in the contest was the K-State Japanese Yosakoi Dance Club.

Kyle Rogler, freshman in architecture, said the club wanted to put Willie the Wildcat in a traditional robe called a happi.

"We also put a tsunami wave and Mt. Fuji in the background," Rogler said. "To keep with the 'Homecoming Heroes' theme, I drew up this design of Willie in this [heroic] Yosokai dance position," he said.

The club also plans to perform at the Homecoming Parade.

The Black Student Union based their design on the symbol from the 1980's cartoon series Thundercats, drawn in purple to resemble the Powercat logo.

Letitia Tajuba, senior in political science and history, said the contest was just one of many activities BSU plans to participate in this week.

"We're doing Paint the 'Ville, Pant the Chant, the Children's Carnival and the parade. We also have a tailgate at the game. It's a busy week but it's a lot of fun," Tajuba said.

The fourth organization was public service sorority Delta Sigma Theta, whose design included Superman with a Powercat logo replacing his "S" shield.

"Everything we do in our sorority is geared toward helping out around the community and on campus," Amber Foust, Delta Sigma Theta president, said. "We operate around a five-point crest of Economic development, educational development, physical and mental health, political involvement, and international involvement."

After the two hours were up, a group of three judges evaluated the finished artwork.

The Yosakoi Dance Club finished first, Phi Eta Sigma finished second, Delta Sigma Theta came in third, and BSU finished fourth.

JMC at K-State

The K-State Collegian
2006 PACEMAKER Award Nominee and past winner of the PACEMAKER 1999-2000 and 2000-2001

KSDB-FM "The Wildcat 91.9"
Kansas Association of Broadcasters Station of the Year 2000-2006 and first place awards in Spring 2006

"Manhattan Matters" and " The Purple Power Hour" on K-State Channel 8
Five first place awards from the Kansas Association of Broadcasters in Spring 2006

THE ROYAL PURPLE YEARBOOK
2004 PACEMAKER Award Winner and Columbia Scholastic Press Association Gold Medalist

Where great traditions are made

Job Fair
October 24
9am - 6pm
Kmart Kmart
CASHIERS • OVERNIGHT
STOCKING • CUSTOMER SERVICE
REPLENISHMENT • DEPARTMENT LEADS IMMEDIATE INTERVIEWS CONDUCTED
PART TIME / FULL TIME POSITIONS
401 E. POYNTZ
Also apply online anytime at Kmart.com
Federal Law Prohibits Discrimination in Employment Practice Because of Race, Color, Religion, Sex, National Origin, Age or Disability. (An Equal Opportunity Employer)

Spirited tradition

Planning committee, Alumni Association increase size, change location of Friday's pep rally

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sunday's annual 5K race was the opening event of this year's All-University Homecoming week.

This week is about celebrating K-State traditions and energizing purple spirit.

From Sunday's 5K race through campus, to Friday's parade and pep rally and big games on Saturday, this week is packed with activities and events for alumni, students and the Manhattan community.

Lucinda Gruber, junior in chemical engineering, said she will participate in the Crazy Cat Kickoff, which starts at 6:30 tonight in Weber Arena.

"I talked to a lot of people that went there last year," she said. "There will be a lot of crazy games, so I'm sure it will be a lot of fun and an opportunity to forget homework, tests and school."

Following this series of games, Wildcat Request Live, a lip sync and dance competition for Homecoming pairings, will begin at 8 p.m. at the Bramlage Coliseum and is open to the public.

Throughout the week there will be activities like the Paint the 'Ville contest, when campus organizations and Homecoming pairings decorate business windows in Aggieville with art associated with the Homecoming theme.

The annual yard art competition showcases the talents of the greek chapters on campus with creations on display at one house of each pairing.

This year the Children's Carnival will be a part of the Homecoming activities.

The Homecoming Committee is working with Union Program Council on the event.

One of the last events will be a Homecoming parade.

Garrison Pierzynski, junior in chemical engineering, attended last year's Homecoming parade and said he thought it was exciting.

"I didn't expect it to be that good," he said, "but it was mostly students, and there was this student-party atmosphere."

Following the parade is the Homecoming pep rally, which will begin at about 6:15 p.m. in the parking lot south of Varney's Book Store.

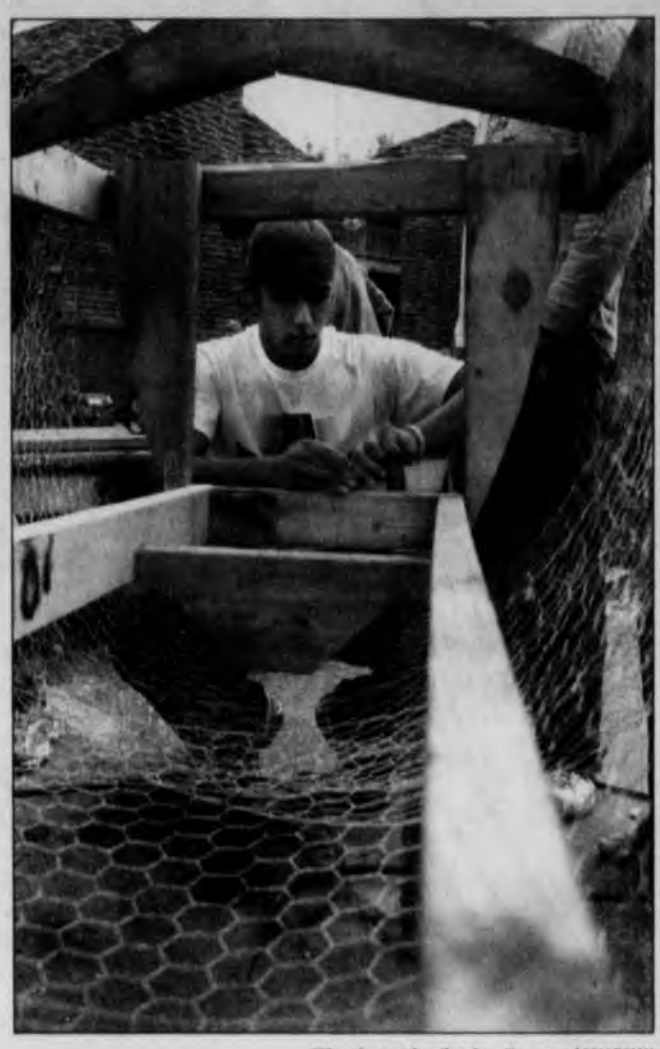
Aleigha Ford, senior in sociology and criminology, is the chair of the pep rally committee, which is made up of Ford and two other members.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed organizing the pep rally," she said. "It has been great seeing the committee's and (K-State) Alumni Association's visions of a larger pep rally fall into place."

This year's pep rally is going to be bigger than before, which has been challenging for the committee.

Ford said committee members wanted to increase the stage size as well as enhance the program. The hardest part was envisioning a new location.

"The new location is in the parking lot south of Varney's," she said. "The pep rally will have great program with Wyatt Thompson as the emcee."



A white screen will be placed over Varney's on which photos from the week will be displayed.

During the pep rally, the winners in each of the week's events and the overall Homecoming winner in each category will be announced.

This is what K-State students really look forward to, Ford said. This is her second year on the Student Homecoming Committee, and she said she expects a great turnout on Friday.

"K-State students and the Manhattan community can expect to leave the pep rally excited for the home football and volleyball games," she said.

More information about the Homecoming week activities is available on the Alumni Association's Web site, www.k-state.com/Students/Homecoming.aspx.

File photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Ryan Grier, junior in business administration pre-professional and Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity member, works on a float for All-University Homecoming last year at Phi Kappa Theta.

Pat Agwu, graduate student in college student personnel and Black Student Union member participates in last year's pant the chant at Ahearn Field House.

hungry? check out the Menu Guide in back of the Campus Phone Book Available in Kedzie 103 Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian's Gameday
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

a Cut Above SALON
785.537.3200
walk-in's welcome!
1800 Claflin Road • Suite 110 • Manhattan, Kansas 66502
$9.00 off all Color
$13.00 off all Hi-Lites
Add a haircut for $10 more
$7.00 eyebrow or lip wax
$10.00 for both

Experience the Arts in Manhattan
Marianna Kistler Beach Museum of Art BEACH
4 November 1:30-3:30
K-State Family Day Open House
Activities and refreshments provided by the Student Friends of the Beach Museum of Art
Current Exhibitions
8 September - 22 December 2006
A Sampling: Highlights from the Permanent Collection
8 September 2006 - 2 September 2007
The Creative Place: Children and their Art
14th & Anderson Manhattan, KS
785.532.7718 www.ksu.edu/bma
Tuesday-Friday 10:00 - 5:00
Saturday 1:00 - 5:00 Sunday 1:00 - 5:00
Manhattan Arts Center
November 3, 8 pm
Birdhouse Acoustic Music Series
Brian Joseph
November 4 - December 27
Wrap It Up Art Exhibit and Sale
November 10-12 & 16-19
All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten
December 1, 8 pm
Swing City Jazz KSU Student Combos
December 2, 8 pm
BirdHouse acoustic music series
Mark Erelli
Manhattan Arts Center | 520 Poyntz Ave.
785-537-4420
The Manhattan Arts Center is funded in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency. Additional funding comes from the City of Manhattan and MAC members and friends.
www.manhattanarts.org

ΚΑΘ ΒΘΠ
Triangle
PIKE
Go State!
Homecoming 2006

Homecoming highlights nostalgia, desire for heroes

Illustration by Lacey D. Mackey | COLLEGIAN

CHRISTINA HANSEN

My high school's football team was never very good.

I don't mean any offense to the guys who played – they practiced hard and played their hearts out. They just had a hard time keeping up with bigger, better teams from surrounding districts season after season.

The team's less-than-stellar record was something of a joke around the school. Students, even teachers, made sarcastic remarks about upcoming games and rolled their eyes over any new purchase made by the school for the team.

The last thing my friends and I wanted to do on a Friday night was shiver our butts off in the stands rooting for a team that seemed destined to lose.

But everything changed at Homecoming time.

Everyone in the crowd wore school colors. Students clapped and cheered for their classmates on the field and didn't laugh at their mistakes.

Even the handful of old men who sat near the top of the bleachers every Friday night, leaning against the press box and offering their own colorful commentary, were fans, not hecklers, at Homecoming.

What is it about a Homecoming football game that makes even the most cynical, fair-weather fans feel like wide-eyed kids again?

They're looking for a hero.

The handsome, clean-cut, American-as-apple-pie quarterback-next-door is a beloved figure in our society. Children put him on a pedestal; he might even rival astronauts, firefighters and Spiderman as the person they would most like to be when they grow up.

Look at the adults seated around you the next time you attend a home football game, and you'll see the same excitement and enthusiasm.

One man might watch the game and remember his days as a high school running back – faster and more powerful than the young son at his side could ever imagine.

A woman might remember going to Friday night games with her friends, huddling under fleece blankets and cheering until her throat was raw.

People of all ages wait on the edges of their seats for one player to step up and lead the home team to victory. They just want one player, oblivious to all of the hype and pressure surrounding him, who can make that miraculous catch or sprint the length of the field unscathed to make the game-winning touchdown.

You can blame this type of hero worship on nostalgia or the steady chain of feel-good football movies coming out of Hollywood, but I think it's more than that.

Who hasn't wanted to be a hero at some point in their life – to be cool and collected, to deliver when the stakes are high and failure seems eminent? Watching a Homecoming football game makes us feel part of something big, even if it's just for one fleeting moment.

Few people actually get the chance to be a game-winning quarterback. But here's to reliving our own glory days or dreaming of those to come, while watching this weekend's Homecoming game.

Christina Hansen is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to collegian@ksu.edu.

Happy Homecoming, K-State!
The Pita Pit
KSU
Come in before AND after the game, or call for delivery.
Sun: 10:30 a.m.-11 p.m. • Mon: 10:30 a.m.-3 a.m. • Tues-Sat: 10:30 a.m.-4 a.m. • 537-3995

ACACIA & ATO
We are so excited to have you as our homecoming partners! We have had a great time getting to know you while working together on upcoming homecoming events. Get ready for a fun week!
-The women of ΔΔΔ

EYECARE ASSOCIATES OF MANHATTAN, P.A.
Dr. Paul E. Bullock
Dr. Matthew T. Stanley
Doctors of Optometry
New Patients Welcome
98% Of Contact Lenses Fit Same Day
FreshLook
Large Selection Available Including Bifocal, Astigmatism, Disposable, Extended Wear, & Color Contacts
O2Optix
• In Office Eyewear Gallery & Lab
• Comprehensive Eye Examinations
• Affordable Prices
• Outside Prescriptions Filled
• Most Insurances Accepted
Serving the Manhattan Area Since 1958
(785) 776-9461
1-800-432-0036
Anderson Village • 1441 Anderson • Manhattan, KS 66502

Groups spend $4K to compete for top places

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Homecoming is expensive – not only in man hours, but also in dollars.

Over the next week, officials from greek houses and residence halls estimate that they will spend thousands of dollars to participate in all of the week's activities, leaving some students concerned.

"What I want to know is why so much money is invested into this one week," Eric Davis, junior in psychology, said.

"I mean, this is a ton of money, and it just seems like it could be better used."

During All-University Homecoming, each greek pairing of one sorority and two or three fraternities will spend about $4,000 to effectively participate in each facet of Homecoming, the Panhellenic Council said.

"If you want to be competitive, you have to spend at least nearly as much as the other pairings," said James Barrick, vice president of Phi Delta Theta and junior in biology.

Most of the money spent by greek houses comes from membership dues. Each member pays a general fee at the beginning of the school year that allows them to participate.

Some in the community said, though these numbers might be eye-popping at first glance, once the cost is divided between all members, the burden does not seem so great.

"When we broke it down, each of our members pays about $30 for Homecoming," Barrick said. "I really don't feel like that's too much, considering there is at least one activity per day during the week and several social functions in the evening."

Many said the reason Homecoming is expensive is because pairings retain the traditions that were established decades ago.

"Homecoming is a tradition that we don't want to reduce," said Michelle LeCluyse, director of interfraternal relations for Pan-hellenic Council and junior in biology. "We want to maintain the excitement level not just for the groups participating in Homecoming, but for the community of Manhattan as well."

K-State has kept Homecoming costs down by regulating the amount of money groups can spend on each event.

"We want the winners of Homecoming to be the ones that did the best, not the ones who spent the most money," said Andrea Bryant Gladin, associate director of the K-State Alumni Association local agency.

"It's a way to protect students and to make sure Homecoming isn't impractical."

The amount of money that can be spent on the float, the most expensive part of the week, is $1,200 for greek pairings and $1,000 for residence halls. Yard art, a greek-only competition, has a limit of $600, according to the Alumni Association.

K-State continues to investigate other options to help in the financing of Homecoming.

"We've been talking with others in the community about possibly doing corporate sponsorships in some of the larger events like the float," LeCluyse said. "Maybe this will help bring more excitement to the community as well."

Even though the week will be expensive, those participating still anticipate a successful, fun time.

"I like Homecoming, despite the price, because you get to meet so many new people," Barrick said. "Participating in things like Homecoming is what being a greek or being a part of the K-State community is all about."

Above: Lucas Short, junior in electrical engineering, helps Reid Pritchett, junior in political science, measure a board for Phi Kappa Theta's All-University Homecoming float last year.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Left: Members of Phi Kappa Theta fraternity work on their yard art last year. Each year, greek houses spend thousands of dollars on materials for Homecoming events.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555

jewelry • candles
posters • door beads • tapestries • golf discs tie dye clothing • t-shirts • women's clothing • rope sandals incense bath and body products
on the Wild Side
Come in and see us during Homecoming Week!
We were here for you then & are here for you now!
An Aggieville Tradition Since 1990!
1128 Moro 776-2252

Go Cats!
KSU Homecoming
Buy 1 month get 2nd for $10
$199 Level 1-Yearly Unlimited
Bronze Image
Tanning Salon

HOMECOMING
2006 gamma phi beta sigma chi theta xi
Go, Purple
Beat Iowa State

GET ACT!VATED!
WITH CAREER AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICES
Résumé critiques
Interview workshops
Career fairs
Job search advising
Career database
On-campus interviews
Specialty workshops
Online resources
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall • 785-532-6506 • ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career
www.k-state.edu/ces

Children unify efforts

5K race is only joint philanthropic event this year; proceeds benefit Bill Snyder's choice organization, Boys and Girls Club

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Boys and Girls Clubs of Manhattan benefit students throughout the community as well as in the Ogden area. Its seven locations serve more than 450 students five days a week.

Kelly Stazyk, resource development director for the Boys and Girls Clubs, said each club member costs the organization $250.

She said membership in the Boys and Girls Clubs has increased by 84 percent since 2000, but the club's revenue has increased by only 8 percent since 2000.

This year, All-University Homecoming is helping the cause.

Homecoming's first event, the 5K race, is unlike the rest of the events because it is the only all-university philanthropic event. This year, members of the Homecoming Committee chose the Boys and Girls Clubs to receive the proceeds.

Andrea Bryant Gladin, race coordinator and K-State Alumni Association associate director of alumni programs, said in years past all homecoming events were philanthropic.

But that changed four years ago.

"It was determined that there needed to be one unified event," she said.

Kayla Bryant, member of the Homecoming Committee, said every year the committee chooses a different organization to receive the proceeds.

She said the committee chose the Boys and Girls Clubs for several reasons. One reason was because former football coach Bill Snyder, this year's Homecoming grand marshal, supports the Boys and Girls Clubs.

"We also wanted to keep the money here in Manhattan," Bryant said.

Stazyk said the proceeds from the event will be used for programming, which includes staffing, snacks, supplies and transportation between the schools and the sites.

She said some of the organization's staff ran in the 5K race while others helped at the water stations.

The Boys and Girls Clubs, a non-profit organization, works with youth ages 6 to 18 years old.

There is a $20 membership fee that includes after-school programs and a daily snack, she said.

Stazyk also named a specific program available for 13- to 18-year-olds called The Club.

Members of The Club pay a $10 fee and meet after school and on Friday evenings.

According to the organization's Web site, programs within the organization focus on different areas, including character and leadership development, career development, and health and life skills.

Kayla Linnebur, senior in social work, works with the club members as the site coordinator for Lee Elementary School.

"It's interesting. There are a lot of great kids from different backgrounds," she said.

"I'm really lucky to be getting this kind of experience, and they're teaching me so much."

Linnebur said the children have daily activities they do in the programs, like receiving assistance with homework.

She said the members also have educational programs on different topics, including drug and alcohol awareness and Internet safety.

Since the organization only charges $20 a year for the membership fee, there isn't a lot of money left over for extra things like games and crafts, she said.

"There are a lot of things that I wish I could do with the kids, but I can't," Linnebur said.

"It forces us to be creative and use what we have."

Heroes theme lets pairings have creative projects

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sunday marked the start of K-State's All-University Homecoming week, themed the Homecoming of Heroes.

"The theme was decided on last spring by the student Homecoming Committee," Andrea Bryant Gladin, the All-University Homecoming chair, said. "That's one of the first things the committee does each year."

The goal of the committee is to create a theme that can be interpreted in different ways and lends itself to creativity, Gladin said.

"I like the theme," said Cara Henson, junior in kinesiology and Kappa Alpha Theta Homecoming chair. "There are several different ways you can go with it. It made me personally think of past heroes of K-State."

Groups taking part in Homecoming events are encouraged to use the theme to show school spirit in all activities in which they participate, including the float, yard art and spirit sign competitions.

"Our pairing is doing national heroes, like Abraham Lincoln," Alyce Loch, freshman in psychology, said.

Loch will compete with her residence hall, Ford Hall. She said Ford residents also plan on using Mount Rushmore and Crazy Horse in the competition.

"There is more than just one option, though," Loch said. "People can do superheroes or even heroes from K-State."

Some pairings decided to incorporate many different types of heroes into their projects.

"With our float, we're doing superheroes," said Darren McCall, junior in family and consumer sciences and Sigma Alpha Epsilon Homecoming chair. "But we're also using K-State heroes and some Greek gods."

The Homecoming festivities began Sunday with the all-university 5K race and will end Oct. 28 with the Homecoming football and volleyball games.

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
"She was a beautiful bride."
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103.
To advertise, call 532-6560.

American Academy
of Cosmetology & Massage Therapy
Careers You can be Passionate About
Massage Therapy training: less than 5 months
Cosmetology training: less than 11 months
Esthetics & Day Spa training: less than 5 months
Nail Technology training: less than 3 months
Enrollment Info: 539-1837
20% off Any Service
1130 Westloop Place
Manhattan, KS 66502
www.americanacademy.edu

Now Open! M-S, 10am-5pm 722 manhattan ave
grand opening
Saturday, Oct. 28th
KSU vs. Iowa State
TWO moms BOUTIQUE
·jewelry·belts·purses·scarfs
The fun starts at 10 a.m. Bring a friend!
Storewide sales, door prizes, raffle & fun!

clovia ○ kappa sigma ○ lambda chi alpha ○ pi beta phi
HOMECOMING
of
HEROES

Who's your Hero?
Celebrate a Homecoming of Heroes with the best shopping in Wildcat Country at Manhattan Town Center in Downtown Manhattan.
2006 Homecoming Events at Manhattan Town Center
•Oct. 19-31: KSU Alumni Coloring Contest Display
•Oct. 23: The Ron Prince Radio Show, Food Court, 6pm
•Oct. 27: Homecoming Parade from the Sears lot, 5pm
539-3500
3rd & Poyntz
www.manhattantowncenter.com
MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com · Tuesday, October 24, 2006 · Vol. 111, No. 47

INSIDE

New hip-hop dance group promotes confidence among female students

The Edge, Page 6

Internet continues advances

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Someday people will get e-mail from their refrigerators, the vice president and chief Internet evangelist of the Google Management Corp. said.

Dressed in a formal black suit, Vinton G. Cerf took the stage and apologized for using a PowerPoint presentation during his speech.

Cerf, also known as a "Father of the Internet," is a co-designer, along with Robert Kahn, of TCP/IP protocols and the basic architecture of the Internet. For their work, both received the highest civilian honor in the United States, the Presidential Medal of Freedom, in 2005.

Cerf's job at Google.com is to encourage Internet access and use in areas where there are fewer people using the Internet. He said he wants the Internet to be used everywhere.

"I hope that this will change," he said, "but it will be a lot of hard work."

Since its introduction as a privately held company on Sept. 7, 1998, Google Inc. has evolved into the world's largest search engine, with a net income of $1.47 billion in 2005 and more than 5,000 employees worldwide.

The company, founded by Larry Page and Sergey Brin, was developed as a new approach to online research and is a free service that can return results in a fraction of a second.

Today, Google.com offers users access to more than 8 billion Web sites and other functions like Google Earth, a calendar, calculator, a video function, Gmail and more.

"At Google, we are committed to make information accessible," Cerf said.

During his speech in the crowded Fiedler Hall Auditorium to a diverse audience of students, faculty and staff, Cerf was interrupted only once – by the introductory Windows melody from the computer of one of several guests with a laptop set up in front of them.

Cerf continued his speech, which drew several laughs from the audience, saying the Internet today is strongly influenced by several factors, like the availability of mobile devices.

"The guys from Google did not need approval back then," Cerf said.

Having access to information is free,

See GOOGLE Page 8

Going crazy

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Mary Schuette, freshman in industrial engineering, tries to pick an Oreo cookie off a piece of glass during the Oreo race. Contestants had to get a cookie, dunk it in milk and put it in a bowl, all using only their mouth.

Residence hall, Jardine students compete in Oreo, bologna challenges

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Although All-University Homecoming officially began Sunday, it was last night's fierce competition at Weber Arena that started the week's excitement for many residence hall students.

Crazy Cat Kickoff was a collection of relay races that challenged the talents and pure luck of both residence hall and Jardine Apartment students.

"Crazy Cat Kickoff served as a way to get people involved and working as a group," said Casey Dobbins, graduate student in agricultural science and member of the All-University Homecoming Committee.

"It was a good way to break the ice."

Nearly 250 students, family members and onlookers were in the arena to take part in the festivities. The night's competitions challenged six teams to a variety of difficult tasks, beginning with a search among cedar chips on the arena floor for four well-hidden puzzle pieces. Participants ran from corner to corner of the arena, crawling and kicking up dust in an attempt to find the elusive pieces.

A fan favorite was a new rendition of the classic carnival game of ring toss. The Crazy Cat version called for a team to throw three

See CRAZY CAT Page 8

Kimberly Beem, junior in pre-nursing, tries to catch a piece of bologna on a birthday hat during the bologna race competition during the Crazy Cat Kickoff Monday evening.

Former Gore campaign manager encourages students to vote

Donna Brazile, former campaign manager for the Gore-Lieberman campaign in 2000, speaks to attendees of the 2006 Political Awareness Lecture, "A voteless people is a hopeless people," Monday evening in Forum Hall.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Between her down-to-earth jokes and Southern accent, former presidential candidate Al Gore's campaign manager captured her audience's attention Monday night for one key theme: citizens must vote.

Donna Brazile, a Louisiana native and fierce advocate for the poor and minorities, lectured in Forum Hall to support Alpha Phi Alpha's political awareness campaign, "A voteless people is a hopeless people."

Brazile was the first African-American to lead a large presidential campaign.

Alpha Phi Alpha's "A voteless people is a hopeless people" voter registration event registered 250 voters at K-State last week, AbdulRasak Yahaya, president of Alpha Phi Alpha, said.

"We decided to bring (Brazile) in because of her involvement in the Gore-Lieberman election, which was the closest election in history, and also to stress the importance of voting," Yahaya said.

Brazile was scheduled to lecture last Tuesday, but her flight was cancelled due to weather conditions, said Brandon Clark, the adviser for Alpha Phi Alpha.

Brazile said the purpose of her lecture was to get people to vote for candidates who care about issues that matter to them.

Brazile has a long history of involvement with political campaigns. She shared with the audience how she started working in politics at age 9, when she volunteered for a local candidate who promised to build a playground.

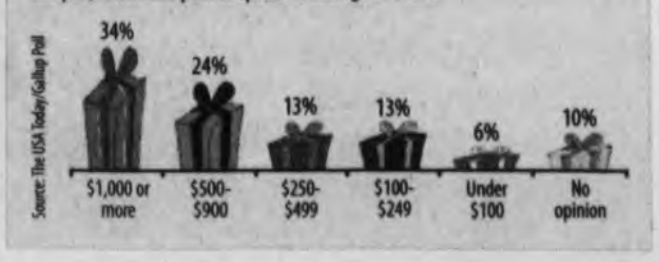
"When I was young I wanted

See BRAZILE Page 8

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 64 Low: 46

INSIDE

Uncertain future
After Saturday's 41-21 loss to Missouri, coach Ron Prince announced he would address Thomas Clayton's status with the team at today's press conference.
Sports, Page 5



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Paint the 'Ville today
From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. today in Aggieville, campus organizations, greek houses and residence halls will decorate windows with their version of the Homecoming theme, "Homecoming of Heroes." Visit www.kstatecollegian.com, listen to KSBD-FM 91.9, watch Manhattan Matters or read the Royal Purple for more.

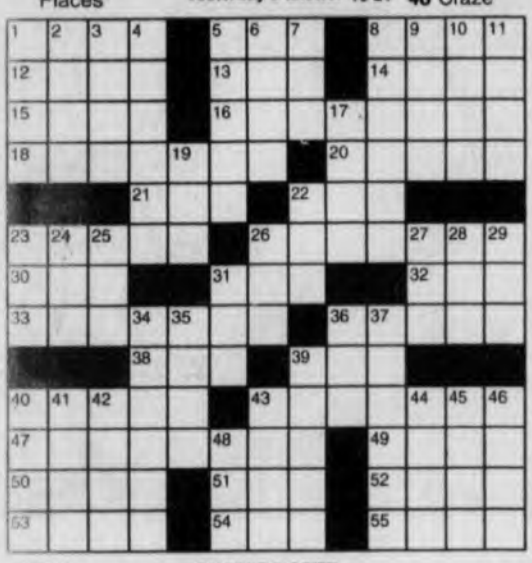
Lou Douglas lecture
David T.Z. Mindich, author of "Tuned out: Why Americans Under 40 Don't Follow the News," will speak at 7 tonight in Forum Hall. There also will be a question-and-answer period and book sale. It is sponsored by the Lou Douglas Lecture Series and the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications.

Prof. elected fellow
Steve Benton, professor and chair of the Department of Counseling and Educational Psychology, was elected a fellow in the Division of Educational Psychology of the American Psychological Association. He joined the K-State faculty in 1983 and was promoted to full professor in 1994.

Holiday spending
Gallup's early read on Americans' 2006 Christmas spending suggests a potentially strong holiday season in the making for U.S. retailers. According to the poll, Americans plan to spend an average of $907.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERY

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Liner, e.g.
5 Half a dance?
8 Difficult
12 End of a song
13 "— the land of the free ..."
14 Hodge-podge
15 Lotion additive
16 "Wichita Lineman" singer
18 Hotel staffer
20 Beginning
21 Meadow
22 Sticky stuff
23 Large, showy parrot
26 Muckraker Ida
30 Future aves
31 Storefront sign abbr.
32 Big fib
33 Ameche's brother in "Trading Places"
36 Huge
38 Doctrine
39 Potential syrup
40 Oscar the Grouch's decor
43 Weightlifter's item
47 Excessive amount, as of food
49 One of HOMES
50 Give a 47-Across
51 Illustrations
52 Census data
53 Experts
54 Parched
55 Advertise enthusiastically

DOWN
1 Wound cover
2 Pit
3 "American —"
4 Rice recipe
5 Wintertime treat
6 Jalopy
7 Branch
8 Mingle
9 Brewery creations
10 Anger
11 Nitwit
17 Indigent
19 Chop
22 Petrol
23 Unruly group
24 "Hail, Caesar!"
25 West Coast st.
26 Have a go at it
27 Stately shade source
28 Women's —
29 Writer Buscaglia
31 "Let me think ..."
34 Smooth cotton threads
35 Wan
36 Pickle holder
37 Cheerful
39 Like some pretzels
40 Cookbook qty.
41 Back end
42 Saxophone range
43 Ironside portrayer
44 Therefore
45 Stead
46 "— we forget ..."
48 Craze

Solution time: 21 mins.

A	L	F	A	■	D	A	M	■	T	S	A	R
G	E	R	T	■	I	R	A	■	H	U	G	E
O	V	U	M	■	V	E	R	T	E	B	R	A
G	I	G	O	L	O	■	T	A	R	T	A	R
■	■	■	S	A	R	D	■	P	E	R	■	■
V	E	R	T	I	C	A	L	■	S	A	S	H
I	R	E	■	D	E	V	I	L	■	C	U	E
E	A	S	T	■	D	I	V	E	R	T	E	D
■	■	E	O	N	■	D	E	S	I	■	■	■
R	A	M	R	O	D	■	I	T	A	L	I	C
A	M	B	I	V	E	R	T	■	L	I	S	A
C	O	L	E	■	L	E	U	■	T	O	L	D
E	K	E	S	■	I	M	P	■	O	N	E	S

Yesterday's answer 10-24

10-24 CRYPTOQUIP

CGTS DORGS WYDMYEM UTQQ T LTIQP UGTXXMI, KRQP-QYYJOER LXMTJATWS OSMD? TE TCAKQ CTAAQM!

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF FILM DIRECTOR MARSHALL IS ALL DOLLED UP, ONE COULD SAY THAT'S A PRETTY PENNY.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: E equals N

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

Cheesy pick-up lines

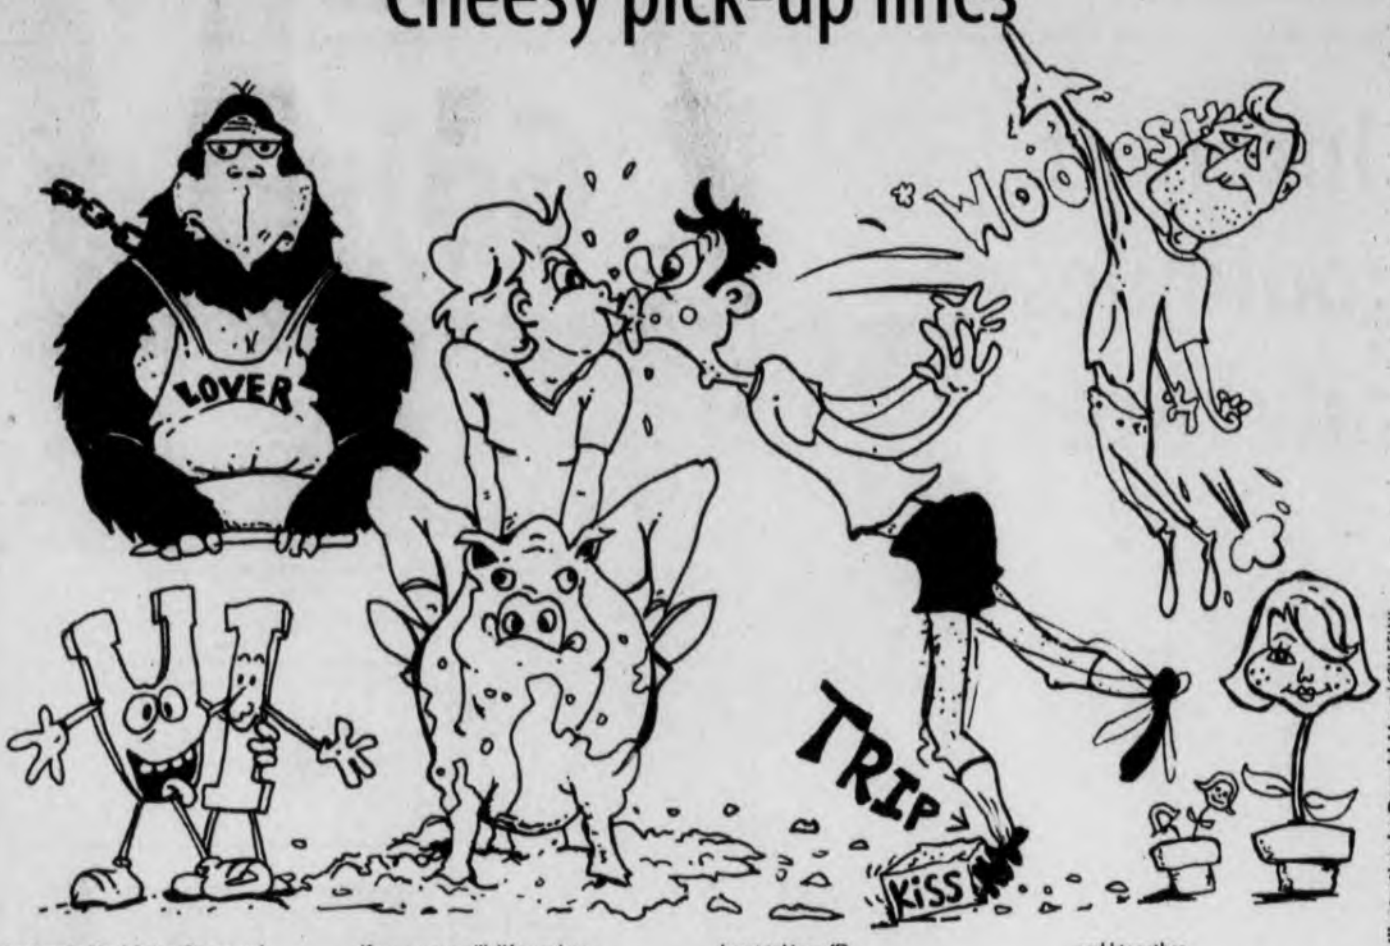


Illustration by Donald J Lee | COLLEGIAN

Let's make like fabric softener and snuggle.

I tripped on a kiss and fell in love with you.

Hey, how's it going? Do you see my friend over there? He wants to know if you think I'm cute.

I'm like a computer game — you can play with me all day long.

If you were a pill, I'd overdose.

I bet my tongue can beat up your tongue.

Hey, I just realized this: you look a lot like my next girlfriend.

You're so pretty I wish I could plant you and grow a whole field of you.

Is there an airport nearby or is that my heart taking off?

I love you like pigs love mud.

Are you a zoo? Because you bring out the animal in me.

Are your legs tired? Because you've been running through my mind all day long.

If I could rearrange the alphabet, I'd put U and I together.

If you were a booger, I'd pick you first.

Hi, I'm Mr. Right. Someone said you were looking for me.

Do you believe in love at first sight, or should I walk by again?

Source: www.Pickuphelp.com

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ Show Me the Money, a session to address topics related to job offer negotiation and salary benefits in the workplace, will be at 4 p.m. today in Union 212. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ There will be a Student Dietetics meeting at 5:30 p.m. today in Justin 253.

■ The next Students for Environmental Action meeting will be at 8 tonight in Union 209.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sarah Dorsey at 9 a.m. Wednesday in Waters 342.

■ Walk-in Wednesdays will be noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ An advanced SafeZone training session titled "Hateful Acts, Hate Crimes, Bias and Harassment" will be noon to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Union 213. Sign-up is at 11:30 a.m. Don't forget to bring a lunch.

■ A drag show will be at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the K-State Student Union Forum Hall. The event is sponsored by the Queer Straight Alliance.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

COLD STONE CREAMERY
"College Night"
Buy 1 Get 1 for 25¢!
any size creation
Every Tuesday
from 7-10p.m.
Subject to change at any time
(WITH KSU STUDENT ID)

TUESDAY WEDNESDAY
69¢ Tacos
$2.50 Margaritas
$2.99 Taco Platter
BOBBY Ts
3240 Kimball Ave
537-8383
$7.99 Steak Night
$2.50 Bottles
$3.00 Big Bobs
www.bobbyts.com
Karaoke @ 9pm

The Apple's Heart
Where Kansas meets New York
431 Poyntz Ave. • Tuesday-Sunday • 317-5475
10% OFF
on already great prices
with presentation of KSU or military ID
We pay cash for your name brand jeans !!

HUNAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
$1 off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ
with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

Let's get together for Dinner to Celebrate Eid-ul-Fitr
"End of Ramadan"
Come and enjoy great food from Middle Eastern cuisine
When: Friday, Oct. 27,06 Where: Alumni Center Ballroom Time: 6:00-8:00 pm
Tickets available in 304 Fairchild Hall, Tel: 532-5990 Cost: $ 5.00
The event is sponsored and organized by: Office of International Programs

LONGHORNS SALOON
$2.50 DOMESTIC PITCHERS
& DOMESTIC BOTTLES
$2.00 DRINKS

We Deliver Late
770-3333
GUMBY'S Pizza
Don't Forget Tonight's
Live Karaoke
Free Giveaways
$1.75 Bud/Bud Light
$2.75 Widmer Wheat
$4.00 Long Island
Buy one get one free Pokey Stix
All Day Today

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Tuesday Specials
$2.50 Energy Bombs
$3.00 Energy Drinks
$5.50 Taco Burger
$2.00 Wells
$2.00 Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
Nip/Tuck Tuesday
Come enjoy the show... at 9pm
On Big Screen
Mon-Tues 4pm -2am • Wed-Sun 11:30am -2am

Stay fit with a Healthy Choice from Pita Pit
We Deliver
1131 Moro
537-3995
The Pita Pit
FRESH THINKING HEALTHY EATING

Greek pairings lip-sync, dance in Wildcat Request Live

By Megan Molitor
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

For a night of pelvis-thrusting men in tank tops, women flying through the air, and Willie the Wildcat attacking a red-shirted Iowa Stater, there was only one place to be.

It was the greek lip-sync competition, Wildcat Request Live, which took place Monday evening in Bramlage Coliseum.

The event, and each pairing's performance, was centered around the All-University Homecoming theme: "Homecoming of Heroes."

Mikey Needleman, senior in social science, introduced the greek pairings.

"I've been excited all semester for this," Needleman said.

The 11 groups, each made up of one sorority and two or three fraternities, performed routines that included appearances by Willie impersonators, energetic dancing and military-oriented performances.

Many genres of music were incorporated into the dances, including hip-hop, rock and country.

"Despite not placing, I think we did really well and had fun, which is the most important," said Katie Hamm, sophomore in nutrition science and Chi Omega sorority member. "We had amazing guys to work with and put in many hours of practice time.

"We had a budget of $250, as did the other groups, but we actually spent under that, as we borrowed most things."

The winning pairing for the evening were Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Chi and Theta Xi, whose routine featured a fire department backdrop complete with firefighters, and the drop-kicking of an Iowa State player.

"I was looking for the theme and whether they focused on heros in general," said Carla Jones, assistant vice president in the Office of Student Life and WRL judge. "I also wanted creativity, dance technique, showmanship and the involvement of men in the dancing. I was really impressed. You could tell there were a lot of former dancers there."

Other judges were amazed by the ability of the dancers.

"I was impressed that they did all that work in a short period of time," said Kenny Lannou, assistant Sports Information director and WRL judge. "It took a lot for those guys to dance out there in tank tops. I've never judged anything like this before, and I found it to be very entertaining."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Members of Pi Beta Phi sorority fly through the air during their performance at Wildcat Request Live Monday evening in Bramlage Coliseum.

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our advertising sales representatives by calling...
532-6560

sudoku on the classified Page

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

We can print from your Zip Disk, CD-Rom, or USB flash drive.
Claflin Books and Copies

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7151
20¢ Pizza Rolls & Chicken Nuggets
1/2 Price Martinis
$1.50 Any Pints & Wells
$2.00 Domestic Bottles
Kitchen Open at 4pm
Now Taking Applications

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

1/2 Price Drinks
$2.25 Big Beers
$3.50 Jager Bombs
Fat's BAR & GRILL Aggieville

Everything a Wildcat should know is included in the Student Life Handbook section
Kansas State University Campus Phone Book
2006-2007
Available Now
in your Residence Hall or purchase in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.

GRADUATION FAIR
October 24 & 25
Tuesday & Wednesday • 11a-6p
Featured vendors include:
C-B Graduation Announcements
Balfour Class Rings
University Frames
Oak Hall Cap and Gown
for all your Graduation regalia!
K-State Student Union Bookstore

Gillette Venus
PLAY to WIN
THE ULTIMATE SPRING BREAK ESCAPE
Text VENUS to 41414 to Start Playing
Also Play at gillettevenusbeach.com
VENUS BEACH
spring break '07
You and 5 friends
Penthouse suite
Panama City Beach
Round Trip Airfare
$500 spending cash!
No Purchase Necessary. Promotion Ends 12/28/06.
For Official Rules, Visit www.gillettevenusbeach.com. Offer Valid for U.S. Residents Only.

School lockdown

Zero-tolerance policies overreact to typical behaviors, don't allow for learning from experience

JONAS HOGG

Lifted from the Oct. 19 Kansas City Star: Shawnee Mission, Kan., "Two sent home after toy gun is found."

Earlier in the same paper: a story about schools banning tag, calling recess "a time when accidents happen."

Toy guns and tag? Have we, as a nation, lost our minds?

I realize 26 is an unbecoming age to delve into the cranky old fartdom of "the way things used to be," but surely we have fallen squarely within the box of lousy ideas.

We are rapidly chasing a future in which we will tell our grandkids that once children were allowed to play, to run, yes, even to skip, if they so chose. Or that once, in a long ago era, we allowed children to make decisions and face consequences; it seemed almost that we were preparing them to be adults.

But not now. Good heavens, no.

Despite the endless hand-wringing, I have yet to determine what, if anything, we are so terrified of.

There are dangers of childhood, yes. My own was filled with bumps, bruises, scraped knees, bashed shins, twisted ankles, a broken bone or three, collisions and an assortment of other injuries acquired during roughhousing, playing sports, the occasional fist-fight by the monkey bars, splashing in creeks, climbing trees and finding trouble to get into.

It was an existence most would describe as being a boy – an apparently unacceptable condition of the kinder, gentler world.

Occasionally, I crossed lines and was punished by teachers, principals, other parents and my own. This works, I promise.

Suppose Joey calls Timmy a "butt." Formerly, an adult would snatch Joey up and tell him that calling names is not acceptable. Unless Joey is a psychopath, he learns the lesson; Joey and Timmy move on.

By modern standards, the police would be called, Timmy would give a statement, Joey would be sent to therapy, Timmy would be sent to therapy, the butts would be sent to therapy, the school board would be sent to therapy, and parents would be interviewed by child services and sent to therapy.

Similarly, if you brought something inappropriate to class, the teacher would take it away until the end of the day. If you brought it again, the teacher might take it for good. There were no "zero-tolerance" policies – if a child brought a pocket knife to school, he or she was told to put it away. No cops, no suspensions, no news stories and – unsurprisingly – no stabbings.

Authority figures were – get this – authoritative, without having to result to imprisoning children. Students at my elementary school, myself included, were paddled for misbehavior and sent back to class. Serial killers from Hillcrest Elementary: zero.

Instead, all-or-nothing policies are creating children who know nothing but black and white laws. This is not simply idiotic; raising children to conform with distantly enforced, inflexible rules or face legal consequences is not healthy. We are mass-producing tiny authoritarians who will someday make decisions as adults.

But for now, more rules, more nannying, fewer outlets for children to be children, more board meetings, more controls, more child therapists and more Ritalin.

Should we, maybe, stop to think that school violence was not an issue until we told children to stop playing cops and robbers?

Jonas Hogg is a senior in sociology, Russian and international studies. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

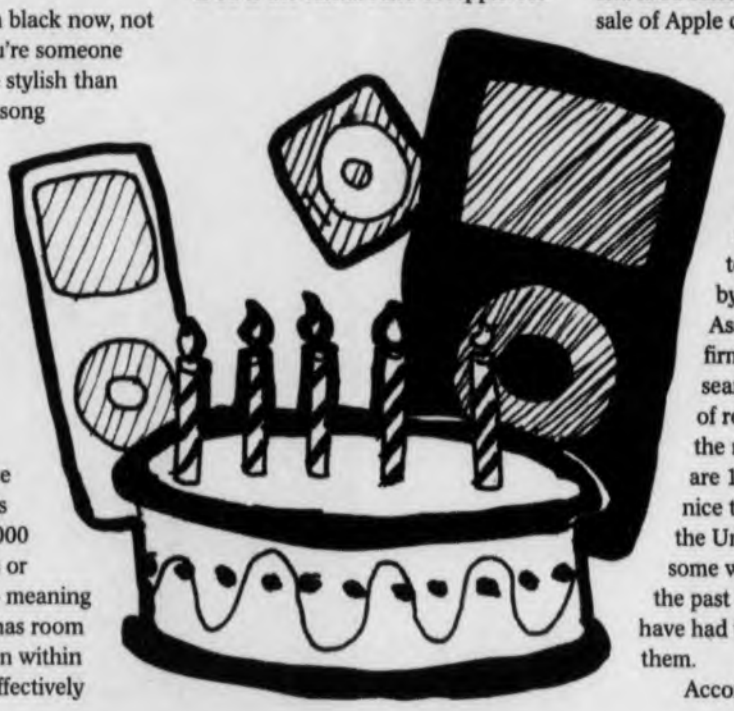
Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

Apple revolutionized music scene with introduction of iPods

JESSI HERNANDEZ

Monday marked the fifth anniversary of the start of a revolution.

Five years ago, if one were to walk through campus during the day, chances are the only way he or she would see people listening to music is if someone was carting around a Sony Discman – or, even more outdated, a Walkman.



On Oct. 23, 2001, however, Apple introduced a nifty little thing called an iPod and sparked a total change in the between-class music scene.

It's hard to believe the first generation of iPods was released just five years ago, because they've progressed so much since then. They used to be rather large and clunky and had a screen that looked like something one would play Oregon Trail on, but now they're sleek and shiny and have color screens with such good picture quality many people use their iPods to watch episodes of their favorite television shows.

They also come in black now, not just white. And if you're someone who would rather be stylish than have room for every song you've ever heard, you could buy an iPod nano, which is available in green, blue, pink, silver and now red, thanks to Bono and (PRODUCT) RED.

According to www.apple.com, the iPod with the most amount of space can hold 80 gigabytes – good for up to 20,000 songs, 25,000 photos or 100 hours of video – meaning the average student has room for enough distraction within one iPod he or she effectively could avoid paying attention in class for the next few years.

Another revolution sparked by the iPod is the turnaround of Apple. According to CNN.com, five years ago, Apple stock was worth about $9 per share. Now it trades for almost $80, and iPod sales have helped spark the sale of Apple computers as well.

The interesting part of this economic and cultural "revolution" of sorts is that, for the most part, our generation is responsible for it. According to a study conducted by Frank N. Magid Associates, a consulting firm that specializes in researching target audiences of respective companies, the majority of iPod users are 12-28 years old. It's nice to know the youth of the United States have made some worthwhile purchases the past few years or, at least, have had their parents make them.

According to CNN.com, when Apple CEO Steve Jobs introduced the iPod five years ago, he said, "With iPod, listening to music will never be the same again."

That certainly has proven true for those of us who use our iPods when working out or discreetly while in class, or for those who don't have room to carry around a device wider than a couple inches. I don't know what I would do without mine – the idea of returning to a Discman is simply depressing. It doesn't even have Solitaire.

So, iPod lovers, in light of its birthday, show your technological best friend some extra love and appreciation. Buy it a new accessory, or perhaps a new song or episode of "The Office." Take it for a jog around the neighborhood. After all, by this time next year, a new one probably will have taken its place.

Jessi Hernandez is a junior in English. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Internet's largest search engines offer vast resources, but still driven by money

Want to know something? From weather patterns in Botswana or the world's foremost expert on socks, all you have to do is Google it these days.

There's no doubt the Internet has changed the way we live.

But while you take advantage of all the information superhighway offers, keep one thing in mind – even the most handy tool has its drawbacks.

For the most ubiquitous online search engines like Google or Yahoo!, making money comes before delivering quality information.

Yahoo!, for instance, lists the names of sites that advertise with it before other sites. Google gives preference to sites with which it has a partnership. That means you might not see the most credible sites first.

Ever notice that Wikipedia shows up near the top of the results list for every search? That's not because it is the most authoritative source; in fact, the majority of its content is written by people like us. That leaves the site, by its own admission, full of "oversights and omissions." It shows up so high because it has a partnership with Google.

The Internet also affects our collective consciousness, because any Joe Blow with a computer can mass publish information, even if it's completely bogus.

While the freedom of information the Internet allows can be a good thing, students need to be vigilant to select credible sources.

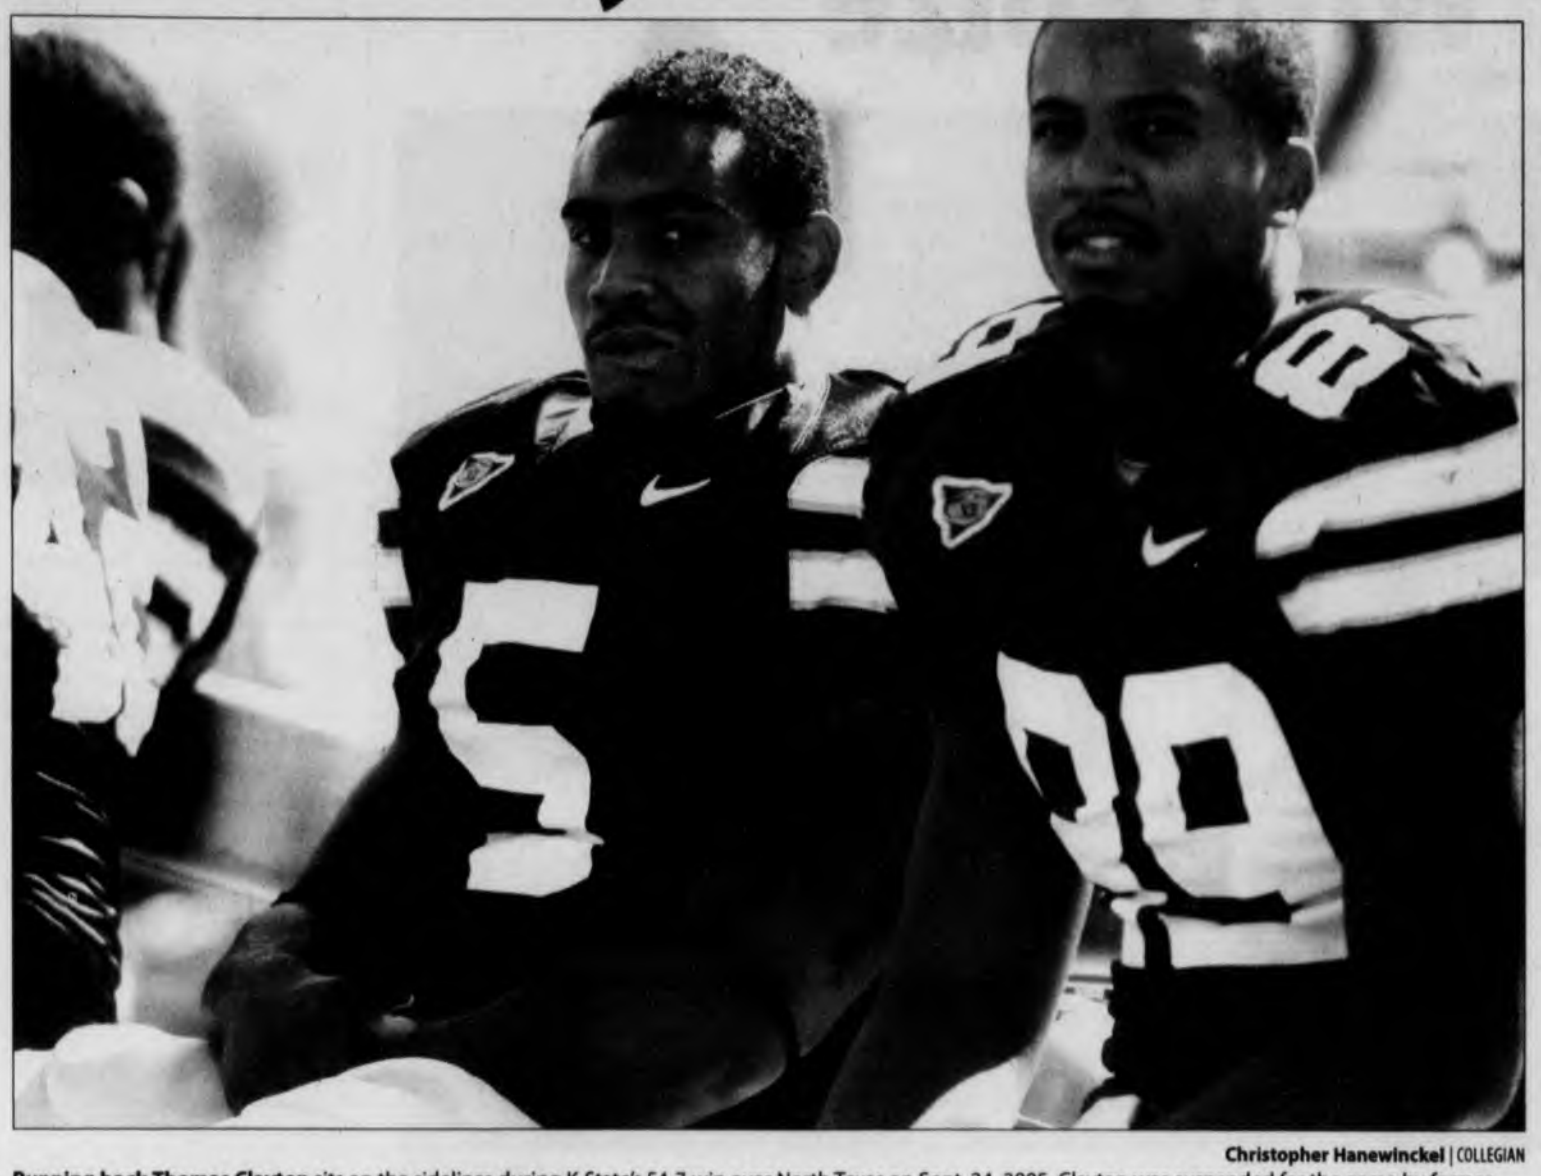
CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Chi O is definitely not the best sorority on campus — Sig Ep is.

Dorm kids don't wear jean shorts; Pikes do.



Found: one pair of panties up Kappa Sigma flag pole. If lost, contact Homecoming chair. Thanks. High-five for Pi Phi.

My roommates describe my attitude toward life as being jammed in neutral.

Hey, Aggievile, you better watch out: I'm almost 21. I'll be 21 at midnight, so watch out. I'm coming for you.

This is all of the Fourum for today. For more, please check tommorow's Collegian.

Is Clayton next?

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Running back Thomas Clayton sits on the sidelines during K-State's 54-7 win over North Texas on Sept. 24, 2005. Clayton was suspended for the game by former K-State coach Bill Snyder for an altercation with a K-State parking official earlier in the week. Clayton is the teams second leading rusher this season with 322 yards.

Prince will announce the senior's status during his press conference today

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When K-State traveled to Columbia, Mo., last Saturday, it left its leading rusher in Manhattan. Thomas Clayton, who had a team-leading 322 rushing yards heading into the Wildcats' game with Missouri, was absent during the 41-21 loss to the Tigers.

Coach Ron Prince said an announcement would be made regarding the senior's status with the team at today's press conference at the Vanier Football Complex.

It's been a long fall for Clayton, who was a Super-Prep All-America running back at Mt. Vernon High School in Alexandria, Va. He committed to Florida State out of high school, but transferred to K-State after his freshman season.

After backing up Darren Sproles for a year, Clayton was prepped for the starting role in 2005. He led the nation in rushing with 164.5 yards per game through two games before being suspended for one game after an altercation with a university parking official.

The incident led to Clayton being convicted of misdemeanor battery on June 9, which led to Prince suspending him for K-State's season-opener against Illinois State. Clayton started four games for K-State this season before losing the No. 1 spot to true freshman Leon Patton prior to the Wildcats' Oct. 7 game with Oklahoma State. Patton set a K-State freshman record during the game, finishing with 301 all-purpose yards and rushing for 151 yards.

Sophomore offensive lineman Gerard Spexarth also did not travel with the team last weekend. He has dropped completely off the depth chart after beginning the season as the starting right guard.

In Prince's first year at K-State he has suspended three players, and nine players have been released from the program.

The list

Suspended players

Norwood

Player: Sophomore running back Parrish Fisher
Date suspended: Oct. 10
Why: Prince would not give a reason for indefinitely suspending Fisher, who had missed the entire season with a knee injury.

Player: Junior tight end Rashaad Norwood
Date suspended: Sept. 19
Why: Norwood was arrested on Sept. 17 for obstruction of the legal process and disorderly conduct.

Players who have left the program before and during this season

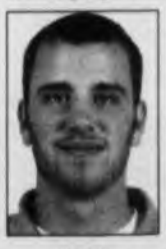
Player: Sophomore offensive lineman Matt Boss
When he left: Oct. 5
Why: Boss' mother, Louise Boss, refused to comment during a phone interview on Oct. 6 when asked why her son requested to be released from the football team.

Player: Freshman tight end Nate Prater
When he left: August
Why: He wasn't one of the 105 players invited to K-State's preseason camp because he didn't pass his conditioning test. Also cited family issues as a reason for leaving.

Player: Freshman Wide receiver Val Taylor
When he left: Aug. 16
Why: Heading into fall practices, Taylor had some unresolved academic issues, Prince said during K-State's football media day in August.

Player: Freshman fullback Courtney Greer
When he left: Aug. 16
Why: Greer was recruited by Bill Snyder, whose offensive system used the fullback more than Prince's.

Player: Sophomore quarterback Allan Evridge
When he left: Aug. 9
Why: Listed as third on the depth chart after starting a majority of the games last season.



Player: Sophomore offensive lineman Ryan Schmidt
When he left: July
Why: Transferred and is now playing for former K-State assistant coach Jim Leavitt at South Florida.

Player: Senior quarterback Allen Webb
When he left: July 27
Why: Webb took the least amount of reps out of all the quarterbacks during spring practice. He transfered to NAIA school Texas College, where he is the starting quarterback.

Player: Sophomore wide receiver Ro Grigsby
When he left: June
Why: According to an article in the Wichita Eagle on Aug.10, Grigsby said he was forced out by Prince.

Player: Freshman quarterback Kevin Lopina
When he left: May 5
Why: At the time of his transfer, Lopina was one of five quarterbacks competing for the starting job. Lopina is now at Washington State with former K-State coach Greg Peterson, who is now the tight ends coach and recruiting coordinator at Washington State.

K-State faced with a 'must win' game on Saturday

NICK DUNN

In sports, the term "must-win game" is used too often. Baseball teams play "must-win games" in June. The Kansas City Chiefs already have played two or three "must-win games." It's funny how most of the time teams can lose that "must-win game," only to be faced with another a few weeks later.

With all that said, I'm telling you right now that K-State needs to win its next football game against Iowa State if it hopes to qualify for a bowl game this season. With four games remaining on the schedule, the Wildcats only need to win two more games to qualify.

Granted, with a 6-6 record, they'll probably only qualify for the Bell Helicopter Armed Forces Bowl (yes, that is a real bowl), but at least it would be a step in the right direction.

Up until now, I couldn't understand how people could have been so disappointed with the team's performance this year. It has only lost one game that it had a realistic shot at winning – the 17-3 loss at Baylor four weeks ago.

Was anyone really expecting the Wildcats to pull off upsets over Nebraska or Missouri these last two weeks? Were they supposed to shock the world by knocking off then-No. 8 Louisville?

Nebraska and Missouri are the two best teams in the North Division – they should beat K-State. Even Baylor, with a 3-1 conference record, looks like a legitimate opponent.

So, really, K-State has performed about as expected throughout the first eight games of the season. The only thing that's disappointing is the drama behind the scenes. Players are mysteriously quitting the team. Seniors are not making the trip for road games. No one in the media can get a straight answer about a player's injury.

However, the schedule now turns to some quite winnable games, the first one being this week.

The Cyclones will enter with an 0-4 Big 12 record, having lost five of their last six games overall. This will be the last winnable home game for the Wildcats, with Texas being the only other home date remaining.

If the Wildcats can't beat a winless Big 12 North opponent on their home turf, they don't deserve to go to a bowl game – and they won't. If K-State loses to the Cyclones, there's no way the team could go on the road and beat Colorado and Kansas to qualify for a bowl.

This game will determine the team's hopes for the rest of the season. This is a game that will finally give fans a good reading of where K-State is as a team. The players keep talking about how they just want to make it to Kansas City (for the Big 12 Championship). Well, that is out of the picture. A bowl game is not – especially with a victory in this "must-win game."

Nick Dunn is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

CFB | K-State at Colorado set for 2:30 p.m., televised by FSN

The K-State Department of Intercollegiate Athletics learned Monday afternoon that the Wildcats' football game at Colorado on Saturday, Nov. 4, has been selected by Fox Sports Net for network cable distribution and will be telecast live at 2:30 p.m. CST.

The game, which is expected to be available to much of the nation, will mark K-State's 34th appearance on FSN since the formation of the Big 12 in 1996. Final clearances for the telecast will be announced as soon as they are made available by Fox Sports Net.

The K-State at Colorado game will be the Wildcats' third television appearance on Fox Sports Net this season, but the first time K-State has been selected to be part of the Big 12's weekly television package since the Louisville game on Sept. 23.

The telecast on Nov. 4 also will mark the first time the K-State vs. Colorado game has been televised since the 2002 season.

Either K-State or Colorado has won the Big 12 North Division every year since 2000 and the K-State vs. CU series had been one of the most frequently televised in the Big 12 until 2003. The game was telecast either regionally or nationally for nine consecutive seasons between 1994 and 2002.

The series also has featured a number of very close finishes of late, with three of the last four meetings being decided by a touchdown or less.

Associated Press

CFB | Texas defensive tackle out indefinitely with fractured fibula

AUSTIN, Texas — Starting defensive tackle Derek Lokey broke his leg in No. 5 Texas' win over Nebraska and will be out indefinitely, Texas announced Monday.

Lokey

Lokey fractured the fibula in his left leg in the second quarter Saturday, trainer Kenny Boyd said. Surgery is scheduled for later this week.

Lokey had 24 tackles on the season and also played fullback in short yardage situations for the Longhorns (7-1, 4-0 Big 12).

"This is an unfortunate setback for Derek, and our defense," said coach Mack Brown. "It will be important that someone steps up and fill his void for us to continue to be one of the best defenses in the country."

CFB | Ohio State men's coach rewarded with contract extension

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State men's basketball coach Thad Matta, who led his team to the Big Ten regular-season title last season, has agreed to a contract extension.

Matta

No details were released and the agreement will not become official until it is approved by the board of trustees, university spokesman Steve Snapp said Sunday.

Matta, who is entering his third year, has an eight-year deal worth more than $11 million. The Buckeyes went 26-6 last season and received a No. 2 seed in the NCAA Tournament.

His overall record at Ohio State is 46-18. He previously coached at Xavier and Butler.

CFB | North Carolina coach fired, will retain job through season

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — The losses kept mounting during North Carolina's season, and so did the frustration. So a few days after a lackluster performance in a nationally televised game against Virginia, athletic director Dick Baddour knew he had to fire coach John Bunting.

Bunting's dismissal, which is effective at the end of the season, came Sunday night after he was blamed for a season in which the Tar Heels (1-6, 0-4 Atlantic Coast Conference) have yet to defeat a Division I-A team.

Bunting's ousting means Baddour is looking for a football coach for the third time in 10 years. Baddour promoted Carl Torbush to succeed Mack Brown when Brown left for Texas in 1997, then fired Torbush in 2000 and hired Bunting.

With Poize

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Members of the Poize dance group perform to the song "Walk it out" during "Represent" on Oct. 12 at Union Station. The 20-member dance group was formed this fall.

Campus hip-hop dance group promotes value of diversity, confidence

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Kiana Smith, junior in pre-professional secondary education, points at the dancers of Poize during the multicultural event put on by Black Student Union Oct. 12 at Union Station.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

The bass is bumping with the tune of D.J. Unk's "Walk it out," and the dancers move rhythmically to the beat.

A look of intensity can be seen on each dancer's face, as the group executes each movement to its fullest.

Wearing two-piece sweat outfits and tennis shoes, the dancers have the crowd hyped.

The hip-hop dance group Poize actively entertained the crowd during its Oct. 12 performance at Represent, a show designed to promote the various multicultural groups on campus.

The group started this fall and already has 20 members who practice twice a week.

"The name Poize is based on the people in the group: our personality, our attitude and persona," said Kyana Lee, vice president of Poize and sophomore in pre-professional architectural engineering. "We are all strong, confident and dedicated to dance."

Through dance, the members of the group can express themselves, relieve stress and just have fun together, she said.

After forming the hip-hop club last year, Jasmine Smith, president of Poize and freshman in theater, decided she wanted to take the informal dance group and change things up a bit.

"Last year it was just something to do to have fun. This year we wanted to take it to the next level and actually perform and start a real organization," Smith said.

The group has been recognized on campus through its participation in various events like Multicultural Senior Day and Dance Spotlight, an event sponsored by the Department of Speech Communication, Theatre and Dance.

Lee said the group's goal is to expand beyond K-State to perform at other universities.

One of the group's assets is the different races that are represented in Poize, Smith said.

"We are big on being diverse. If you know how to dance, then you can be a part of the group," she said.

With a minor in dance, Smith said Poize isn't just a hobby for her – it's her passion.

"I was the kid that always wanted the spotlight, dancing on top of the coffee table," Smith said.

Smith recalled a time when her family took a trip to Universal Studios, and she and her brother ran to the front of the stage during a concert and danced for the whole crowd to see.

"I have loved to dance ever since I was 3 years old," she said. "I wanted to continue to dance throughout college."

The group is trying to portray a message that illustrates that one can be strong, confident and educated and still have fun, Smith said.

"It is our dance that portrays our message," said Brittany Foster, events coordinator for Poize and freshman in apparel and textiles.

Foster said she was active in high school on the dance team and cheerleading squad but decided not to try out for the Classy Cats because of the differences in performance style.

"My dance team at (F. L.) Schlagel High School in Kansas City, (Kan.), is based on southern-style dancing," Foster said. "We played popular music from the radio, with diverse dance moves instead of technical."

Foster said Poize allows her to be involved in dance in her own way.

"This gives me an outlet to dance the way I want to; it gives me a way to be creative," she said.

Most schools have a hip-hop dance team in addition to the traditional dance team, she said.

"When I arrived to K-State there was nothing like that, which is one of the main reasons why Poize was created," Foster said.

"We are just trying to get our name out there to show people what we are about and to recruit minorities and show them that there is something that they can be involved in."

Mini Reviews

Music reviews by Eric Brown

Beck, "The Information"

"The Information" Beck brings to us on his newest album is accompanied by a musical fusion of his previous records, "Odelay," "Midnight Vultures" and "Guero," with occasional flashbacks to "Sea Changes." While this album might not be considered a classic like certain past studio whirlwinds by Beck, it's still one of his best.
Grade: A-

Sean Lennon, "Friendly Fire"

On his second solo effort, "Friendly Fire," Sean Lennon showcases his skill for composing dreamy, breezy, echoing ballads, like those his father, John, so famously constructed for the Beatles, specifically on the band's later albums. The second track of "Friendly Fire," "Wait for Me," suggests that Sean is indeed the songwriting offspring of the man who gave us "I'm Only Sleeping."

But Sean Lennon doesn't just ride the coattails of his legendary father. These heartbroken, angry, guilt-driven tunes are graced by Sean Lennon's personal experiences and delicate touch of creativity. The album's bleak mood is enhanced by the frailty in Lennon's voice, which impressively surpasses that of his father.
Grade: A-

The Decemberists, "The Crane Wife"

Supposedly inspired by a Japanese folk tale of the same name, "The Crane Wife" marks the Decemberists' first major-label release. The result is 10 tracks of epic, folky, indie prog-rock, featuring, along with Japanese folk tales, topics like Civil War romance.
Grade: B+

BUTTERED | Senseless Ending to the Squirrel Saga

By Jess Boatwright

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

KSU - CU Game. Join us for a Buffalo hunt in Boulder! Our chartered bus will leave at 11:00 am, Friday, November 3 and return after the game on Saturday. Travel package includes chartered bus, a double occupancy room at the Westin in Boulder (the team hotel) and game ticket for $220. For reservations please call Kathy Dahnke at GTM Sportswear at 785-537-8822 ext. 1120.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

DROVE OFF with my cell phone, palm treo, on top of my car after Saturday's game 10/14. Parked behind Trotter. REWARD offered. 800-892-5558 ext.-87514.

FOUND: KEYS. Ford ignition key, house, and mail box keys. Crimestopper remote. Call 785-313-5352.

RECORDER FOUND on campus near Vattier. Call 785-313-5886 to claim.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Living with girls in a four-bedroom house. Six blocks from campus. $375 includes utilities. Call Amber 620-343-0663.

LOOKING FOR Male Subleaser. Clean and honest household. Lease is for January 2007 through August 2007. Close to campus. $250 a month. 785-562-7454.

MALE/ FEMALE. Nice Duplex, great location. Move in anytime. $300 + one-fourth utilities per month. Call anytime 785-341-8045.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed new two-bedroom apartment. Washer/ Dryer. Close to campus and Aggieville. Needed in January. $400 per month per person. Call 816-668-9223 or 913-709-8615.

TWO-BEDROOM, one-bath apartment for sublease. Close to campus, water and trash paid, laundry facilities, $600/ month, available now. 785-410-7266.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

310 Help Wanted

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

EARN EXTRA cash for next semester!!! We are looking for people to manage firework locations in Louisiana December 20 - January 2. Travel expenses and lodging provided. Call for details 1-800-564-2825.

F.O.R.C.E. Finding Other Resources For Community Enhancement. Skating Rink Supervisor: Responsible for managing the Roundabout Recreational Complex (Skating Rink and Miniature Golf). Duties include opening and closing the facility and set up for scheduled activities. Monitoring of the facility during scheduled events, public relations, and security of the facility. Responsible for inventories of concessions, skates, and all other equipment. Performs record keeping and accounts for all proceeds and provides reports to the Manager. Basic first-aid training and CPR certification preferred. Hours vary (10- 15 per week) and include mornings, evenings, weekdays, and weekends year-round. Must be flexible and highly responsible. Salary: $7.00/ hour. This position requires a High School or GED diploma, a valid driver's license, must pass an extensive background check and strive in providing excellent service to the public. AN APPLICATION MUST BE SUBMITTED IN ORDER TO BE CONSIDERED FOR THIS POSITION. Applications accepted until THE POSITION IS FILLED. Applications are available at the Municipal Building Reception Center, 700 N. Jefferson. Junction City, Kansas, 8am-5pm, Monday - Friday. Applications are also available a www.-jcks.com. F.O.R.C.E. is an equal opportunity employer.

Need a Subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

785 532 6555
Call for Collegian Classifieds

Management Career Opportunity

Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills.

Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.

Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.

Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

310 Help Wanted

FULL TIME position open in the Operating Room at Geary Community Hospital for a PACU nurse. Applicant must have a current and unrestricted Registered Nurse license with the State of Kansas; Med/-Surg and ICU experience preferred; current ACLS and BLS certification. The hours for the position are 0800-1630 Monday through Friday with occasional overtime required. Interested and qualified applicants should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; fax to 785-238-1700 or email to cwitt@gchks.org; or apply on line at www.gchks.org.

GEARY COMMUNITY Hospital a very progressive 92 - bed acute care facility is looking for RCP's. Nestled in the Flint Hills of Kansas, and in the fastest growing community in the state, we provide excellent health care to both in-patient and out-patients utilizing the latest technology available. In addition, our hospital is undergoing a $34 million expansion project that will serve us far in the future. We offer competitive salaries and benefits packages for our employees. For more information contact Geary Community Hospital; 1102 St. Mary's Rd.; PO Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441; email to; cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

IMMEDIATE HELP needed transferring from wheelchair. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 5-7 p.m. Call 785-537-3871.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.-com.

NOW HIRING: Vista Drive In, home of the World Famous Vistaburger, is adding to our team. We are a locally owned quick service restaurant serving the best burgers in town. Vista is hiring now for all shifts. We focus on having a fun and positive atmosphere. Vista is not just another "fast food" place, we serve the best food and are proud of it. Individuals must have a positive attitude and work well with others in a fast paced environment. We offer meal discounts, very flexible scheduling and promote from within. Apply in person at 1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Vistadrivein.com

PART-TIME Furniture Delivery Positions: Flexible work schedule, great pay. Stop by A Full House, 601 S. 5th Street, 785-537-9088.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

RETAIL LIQUOR Store accepting applications for part-time sales clerk. Apply at McMillins 930 Hayes Drive, Manhattan. Must be 21.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

STUDENT PROGRAMMER position available. Must be available at least 12 hours per week (up to 20). Starting pay is $10.00 to $12.00 per hour based on experience. Programming experience in Visual Basic or Visual Basic.Net required. Must possess good communication skills. Apply in person at 315-A Houston Street, Manhattan, KS. Contact jobs@stasyx.com with questions.

THE CITY of Ogden is accepting applications for the part-time position of Planning Commission/ Board of Zoning and Appeals Secretary. Duties include attending meetings, taking, preparing and maintaining minutes of the meetings. A pre-employment drug screening may be conducted. Wage is $8.50 per hour. Applications are available at City Hall, 222 Riley Avenue, Ogden, Kansas 66517. Applications are due before Noon, October 31, 2006.

TO ALL COMPUTER PROGRAMMING STUDENTS GRADUATING in December. Full-time software developer position is available in Manhattan, KS. Must possess good communication skills. Apply via the e-recruiting system or email your resume directly to jobs@stasyx.-com.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH/ Front Office Assistant Hours 20- 30, Summer 40 hours. Assist Evaluators with program evaluation activities & Office Manager with front desk and Director projects Kansas State University, Office of Educational Innovation and Evaluation. Email ubel@ksu.edu or call 785-532-2982.

310 Help Wanted

WE HAVE a full-time position open in our physician offices for a RN, Associate Degree preferred Clinic nurse, during the hours of 0830-1700 but must be willing and able to work a flexible schedule if necessary. Applicant must have a valid, unrestricted Kansas nursing license, be graduated from an accredited nursing program; experienced with ICD-9 coding, triage skills required; familiar with automated equipment; supervisory experience in a clinical setting preferred; the ability to plan, organize, and perform nursing care; and work as a team member in a fast-paced environment. Interested and qualified nurses should apply to: Geary Community Hospital, 1102 St. Mary's Rd., PO Box 490, Junction City, Ks 66441; email to: cwitt@gchks.org or fax to 785-238-1700. Equal Opportunity Employer.

VOLUNTEER AS a MENTOR at UFM Community Learning Center. Great experience for anyone wishing to work with adolescents. Required availability: Tuesdays from 3- 5p.-m. and one Sunday evening per month. To apply, visit www.tryufm.org and download the mentor application or stop by UFM at 1221 Thurston Street, Manhattan, KS.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

FOR SALE: (Like New) Lawn Mower. (Like New) Flat - Screen Monitor. (Old) Sewing Machine. 785-537-1423.

LIKE NEW - Futon, couch, loveseat, TV's, entertainment units, executives desk, coffee and end tables. Will deliver. Call 785-494-2068.

500 Transportation

530 Motorcycles

SWEET RETRO Honda Moped. 49cc, 50 mpg, wire baskets. No insurance required. Park at bike racks. $750. 316-207-3511.

7 85 532 6555

Attendant Care Providers
Manhattan and Junction City

Part-time positions available providing support with daily living skills to youth and adults with mental health challenges. High School diploma or equivalent required; related experience and/or training preferred. Qualified applicants will be at least 21 years of age and have a valid driver's license with an acceptable record. Send letter of interest to:

Pawnee MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

HR Director
Pawnee Mental Health Services
PO Box 747
Manhattan, KS 66505
Email - hr@pawnee.org

Equal Opportunity Employer

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.ubski.com

Need Some Help?
Advertise it in the Collegian.

It Works
Advertise in the Classifieds
Call
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

ASinc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for: Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

Quiznos Sub
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

2		9		4		8		5
		6				2
	4		6		2		9
	3	5				4	2
			9		4
	8	4				6	7
	7		2		5		1
		8				7
5		2		6		3		4

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail class@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

NEED A ROOMMATE?
WANT FOOTBALL TICKETS?
TRYING TO SELL YOUR CAR?
TRY THE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

CRAZY CAT | Event gives residence hall pairings own activity

Continued from Page 1

rings of bologna onto a teammate's head.

"It is kind of messy at times, but it's a whole lot of fun," Dobbins said.

The event, planned by the KSU Association of Residence Halls, was designed as a night of excitement for residence hall students who did not participate in Wildcat Request Live, the lip-sync contest for greek pairings.

"This is a good opportunity for the residence hall system to have its own individual event," said Ryan Spencer, president of the KSUARH and senior in hotel and restaurant management. "Crazy Cat sets us apart."

As one of the first events of the week, Crazy Cat Kickoff also allowed residence hall students to bond with teammates.

Some students said the lightheartedness of Crazy Cat Kickoff provided a good atmosphere to grow as a team.

"It's hard because we live on opposite sides of campus, and we don't always get the chance to know each other as well as we would like," said Kimberly Beem, junior in pre-nursing and member of the Marlatt/Strong complex pairing.

"Tonight was fun not only for the competition, but for the social aspect."

BRAZILE | Voters under 30 turned out in high numbers in 2000

Continued from Page 1

to make a difference," Brazile said.

Brazile said the 2000 election set a precedent in history for the highest turnout of voters under the age of 30.

"We knew young people decided they wanted to have a say in the future in their country," Brazile said.

She urged the audience get involved locally by voting.

"The last thing we need is for anyone to stay at home and say their vote doesn't matter," she said.

Brazile said more people voted in the last American Idol than in the 2000 presidential election.

"We are sending people into the White House that have no idea of the day-to-day struggles of the American people."

Donna Brazile
FORMER PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN MANAGER, GORE-LIEBERMAN 2000

She said the American people need to vote, and when they do, they should vote for someone who cares about all people.

"We are sending people into the White House that have no idea of the day-to-day struggles of American people," Brazile said.

Brazile touched on some significant events that have occurred since President Bush has been in office, one of which was her personal experience with Hurricane Katrina.

She said she felt helpless when her family was devastated by Hurricane Katrina and when she saw the slow response from the government. Two men in a boat saved her father, she said, not FEMA officials or the Coast Guard.

"These men drove seven hours from Shreveport (La.) to rescue people, because they were so disturbed by the slow response of the government," she said.

Brazile said the 2008 elections will be interesting.

"With a woman in the White House or an African-American male in the White House, I can't lose," she said.

Brazile concluded with a final push for citizens to exercise their right to vote.

"Now is the time to remove the cancer in our politics ... Use your power on Nov. 7 and stand for something that matters to you," she said.

Candace Moyd, sophomore in social work, said she was inspired by the lecture.

"She made it clear that anyone can make a difference just by voting," Moyd said.

GOOGLE | Internet 'father' says Web access should be universal and this is how it should be, he said. Every user who buys access to the Internet should have free access to the entire Web. The community can share knowledge and information about whatever they choose, he said.

Continued from Page 1

However, some information, like books, is connected to publishing rights and copyrights, but Cerf said people should be able to get that information.

In addition to these topics, Cerf addressed technical problems associated with security issues. Since the Internet was first developed, a lot of things that influence it have evolved – users, devices, places and the use of the Web itself.

"I expected a little more technical problems," Tom Bulatewicz, post-doctoral fellow for computing and information science, said about his impression on the lecture. "But it was a very good speech, and everything Cerf said was accurate. The Internet really needs fundamental changes."

After briefly explaining some possible solutions for these technical problems, Cerf introduced new Internet-enabled devices like refrigerators and surf boards that were developed with a display and access to the Internet.

"You might get an e-mail from your refrigerator," he said. "It will be about the milk you bought two weeks ago and which is about to crawl out on its own."

A person also might get a call while shopping as a reminder to buy marinara sauce, he said. And the use of Internet-enabled socks might even solve the problem of the missing sock.

Keith Neufeld and Garrett Marks, who both work in the computing department at Wichita State University, attended Cerf's speech.

"He is really well-informed and has interesting things to say," said Neufeld, who has attended two other lectures given by Cerf. "He is very gracious about answering questions and expounding on other people's ideas."

Neufeld said he thinks Cerf's experience's allow him to talk credibly about how aspects of the Internet have changed and how it might evolve in future.

"It is good to hear from a founder of the Internet about what his views are about today's use of the Internet," Marks said.

The Salty Rim
1204 Moro 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$2.50 Domestic Pitchers
$4.00 Blue Moon Pitchers
1/2 Price Margaritas
$2 Import Bottles
1/2 Price Salsas
Patio Is Open
Now Taking Applications

ALLEY
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2.00 All Drinks, Premiums, Calls, Draws, Shots, Bottles
$3.50 Belfast & Energy Bombs
FREE POOL
Chappie
live on the patio
Now Hiring all Positions

FREE
Lotion Sample
Bronze Image Tanning Salon
1122 Laramie • 539-3742
expires: 11-1-06

Car Clinic, INC.
Before you roll out for the holidays,
Roll by to make sure you get there.
We're right on your way out of town!
• Tune ups, electrical repairs
• Heater & A/C service
• Computer engine analysis
• Transmission services
• Mon.-Fri. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
Approved Auto Repair
NAPA AutoCare Center
ASE CERTIFIED
214 Colorado 539-1040

PEACE CORPS
FIND OUT MORE ABOUT PEACE CORPS
Info Meeting
Tuesday, October 24
5:30 - 6:30 pm
350 Waters Hall
or contact
Staci Hauschild
pcorps@ksu.edu
532.5627
144 Waters Hall
peacecorps.gov

FACULTY/STAFF Night - Nov. 3 $2 discount
KSU Theatre presents
TARTUFFE
by Moliere
HILARIOUS...
ENTERTAINING...
FUN, FUN, FUN!
November 2, 3 and 4
McCain Auditorium 8 p.m.
TKTS: McCain Box Office: open 11am to 5pm weekdays and at the K-State Union Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 weekdays. 532-6428 Online: ksu.edu/sctd
$8 student/child $11 military $13 public
Sponsored by Pizza Hut of Manhattan

Union Program Council
upcoming events
Tuesday, October 24
UPC All Meeting, Union Station, ground floor • 5:30 pm
Come help plan events. Everyone welcome!!
Wednesday, October 25
Jim Barnett, Repulican candidate for governor speaks
KSU Ballroom, second floor • 7 pm
Thursday, October 26
Monster Mash: 2006 Children's Carnival
Union Courtyard, ground floor • 6-8 pm
Monster's, Inc. • 8 pm
Friday, October 27
Drag Show featuring Monica Moree
Co-sponsored with QSA, Forum Hall • 8:30 pm
The Rocky Horror Picture Show and Program
Union Ballroom • 11:30 pm, $5
Film: Carrie Little Theatre: Saturday, October 28 • 7 & 9:30 pm, $1
Sunday, October 29 • 8 pm, $1
After Hours: Game Night
Union Station • 9 - 11 pm
William T. Kemper Art Gallery
Darryl Heikes, Former White House Photographer and K-State graduate
October 18 - November 8
Upcoming Events & Dates
K-State Idol
Applications due Tuesday, October 24th
Auditions are Monday, October 30th
College Bowl
Applications due Friday, November 10th
Michael Ian Black
Tuesday, November 7, McCain Auditorium • 8 pm
TICKETS NOW AVAILABLE : 532 - 6428
McCain Box Office • 11 am-5 pm, Mon-Fri
Little Theatre Box Office • 11:30 am-1:30 pm, Mon-Fri
Students with ID $10
Non students $15
*Prices include all taxes & fees

301 K-State Student Union
UPC phone - 532-6571
www.k-state.edu/upc
UPC hotline - 532-6572

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 28.
ONLY $5!
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Wednesday, October 25, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 48

INSIDE

Box office hit 'The Prestige' marvels audiences

The Edge, Page 10

Homecoming 2006

A new look

Businesses take part in Homecoming's Paint the 'Ville

By Nicole Johnston
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Superhero Willie is now painted on the window of the Pita Pit in Aggieville.

The All-University Homecoming team Pi Beta Phi, Alpha of Clovia, Lambda Chi Alpha and Kappa Sigma used superhero Willie for this year's Paint the 'Ville competition.

"We did this last year, too," said Danielle Copeland, junior in secondary education. "We had a yearbook theme last year and this year we did a superhero."

There were 11 greek groups, four residence hall groups and five student organizations that participated in this year's Paint the 'Ville. Andrea Bryant Gladin, All-University Homecoming chair, said the teams were judged in three areas: 40 percent was for originality and creativity, 25 percent was for an adherence to "A Homecoming of Heroes" theme and 35 percent was based on overall appearance.

Meryl Wallace, junior in interior design and member of Gamma Phi Beta, said she volunteered to paint, and it was her group's first time at Paint the 'Ville.

"We helped with Homecoming last year, so we wanted to do something again this year," Wallace said. "We haven't had any trouble getting people out here to do it either."

Gamma Phi Beta sorority joined with Sigma Chi and Theta Xi for Homecoming. Their design, Pecos Willie, was based on Pecos Bill, who wrestled cyclones.

"We drew the old-style Willie while he's lassoing and stepping on the Iowa State cyclone," Wallace said.

While not everyone won, everyone who participated got free pizza.

Rick Hernandez, owner of Domino's Pizza and nine-year pizza donor for the event, said he is always amazed by the work the students put into their paintings.

"Every year it seems like they are down here all day trying to get their windows done without taking a break," he said.

Above: Whitney Griffin, senior in hotel and restaurant management and member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, paints the letters of her homecoming partners in dog tags on the window of Hibachi Hut and Texas Star during the Paint the 'Ville competition Tuesday.

Left: Members of Pi Beta Phi add the finishing touches to their window art on the window of Pita Pit. Homecoming pairs and groups took most of the afternoon Tuesday to perfect window art depicting the Homecoming of Heroes theme.

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

ELECTIONS 2006

Riley County to vote electronically

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Travis Gratton has followed this year's midterm elections closely.

After reviewing countless hours of candidates' policies and completing a strenuous cost-benefit analysis, Gratton, sophomore in biology and first-time voter, will make the trek to his local election branch to cast his vote.

But Gratton is worried his vote could mean absolutely nothing. In fact, he thinks it might not be counted.

Across the United States, electronic voting machines are replacing the traditional paper ballot. Nearly 40 percent of Americans who cast their vote this November will do so on an electronic, touch-screen machine that produces no paper record.

In Riley County, 100 percent of votes will come from these machines.

"This year we have switched completely to electronic voting for the first time in an effort to provide a clear, timely report of the votes," said Jolene Campbell, deputy county clerk and elections coordinator for Riley County. "We have full confidence in the machines that we use."

Others are not so optimistic. In January, Bill Richardson, governor of New Mexico, opted for residents to use paper ballots with optical scanners to cast their votes, a reversal from the state's plan to convert completely to electronic voting machines.

27 states have also adopted plans that require a paper trail, many times requiring the new touch-screen technology to be replaced with ones that have printers attached.

Electronic voting became popular after the 2002 Help America Vote Act, a piece of legislation initiated by President Bush that called for an end to the punch card method of voting and gave significant funding to states that upgraded election technology.

See VOTING Page 8

Mr. and Mrs. BSU crowned, charged to represent K-State

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Black Student Union has two new representatives.

Bryon Williams and Whitley Fields were elected Mr. and Mrs. BSU by members of the organization Tuesday evening.

Wearing a dress and a suit, respectively, Fields, freshman in architecture, and Williams, senior in economics, were each given a purple cape that will be embroidered with their names.

They were also given the responsibility of representing the BSU on campus and in the Manhattan community.

"I want us to keep moving upward," Williams said. "We need to keep doing bigger and better things."

He said he also wants the BSU to keep its ranking as the most outstanding BSU in the Big 12 conference.

Fields said she will strive to represent the BSU on campus and in Manhattan. She also wants to do her part to represent minorities.

"Being a freshman brings me up to new things," she said. "I hope I can get closer to members."

The evening began with the black national anthem, "Lift Ev'ry Voice and Sing." Then former Mr. and Mrs. BSU, Devin Bailey and Careem Gladney, spoke about what the BSU expects of Mr. and Mrs. BSU.

"They're kind of the face of our organization," Gladney, junior in accounting, said.

"They promote what BSU does on campus. I hope they can do the same thing we were assigned to. They need to be willing and able to adjust."

Bailey, sophomore in apparel marketing and textiles, said the ambassadors should emphasize the importance of supporting other students around the campus.

Jonathan Scott, freshman in business administration pre-professional, said the ambassadors should represent BSU in a positive light because they're pretty much the face of BSU.

The election is one of BSU's annual Homecoming events.

"It's a tradition," said Letitia Tajuba, junior in political science and history. "We want to build new leaders and bring them in."

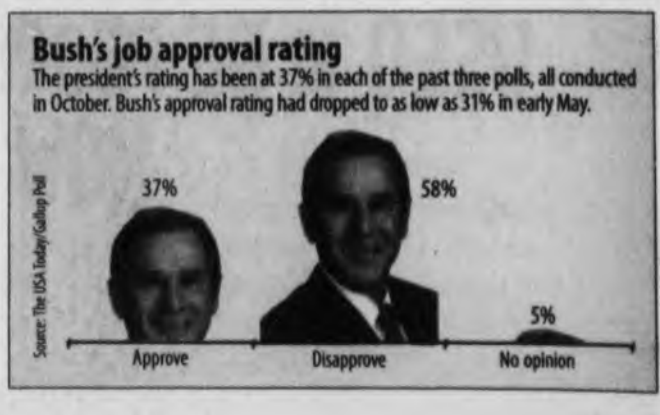
The theme of the BSU is "Building Leaders and Continual Knowledge," and members said they hope Fields and Williams will continue to bring that to BSU.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Bryon Williams, senior in economics, and Whitley Fields, freshman in architecture, are given capes after being announced the new Mr. and Mrs. BSU during the organization's meeting Tuesday evening in the Sunflower Room of the K-State Student Union.

Today's forecast
P.M. showers
High: 63 Low: 49

INSIDE



Are you listening?
David T. Z. Mindich, author of "Tuned Out: Why Americans Under 40 Don't Follow the News," speaks about generation Y's lack of media awareness.
See story page 3

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

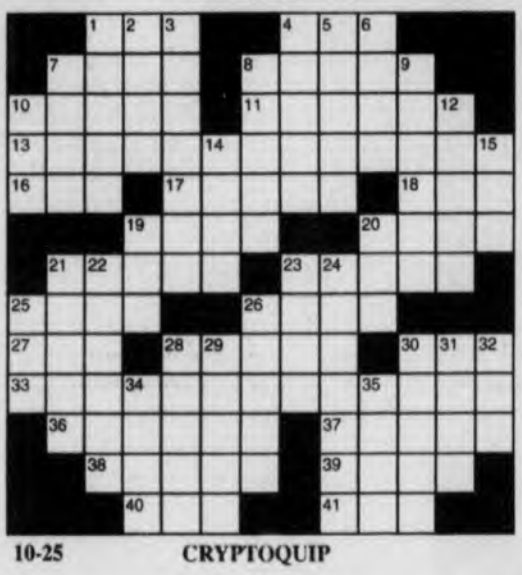
Homecoming
Pant the Chant will be at 8 tonight in Ahearn Field House. Homecoming pairings and student organizations will share original chants and actions. Judging of the yard art competition will be at 2 p.m. today. For coverage, visit www.kstatecollegian.com, listen to KSBD FM 91.9, watch Manhattan Matters or read the Royal Purple.

Secretary lecture
Adrian Polansky, secretary of the Kansas Department of Agriculture, will speak about "Changes, Challenges and Opportunity in the Future of Kansas Agriculture" at 4 p.m. today in Throckmorton 1018. He will speak about the changing and evolving world of agriculture.

Design Forum
The eighth-annual Bowman Design Forum for the College of Architecture, Planning and Design will begin at 1 p.m. today in the Pierce Commons of Seaton Hall. Lectures will follow at 4 p.m. in the Ballroom of the K-State Alumni Center. It is free and open to the public.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 "Of course"
4 Needing repair
7 Daytime drama
8 Command to Fido
10 Beat
11 Christmas-tree glitter
13 Stevenson's two-in-one
16 Rds.
17 Queues
18 "Wham!"
19 Hang in the balance
20 Stare stupidly
21 On the qui vive
23 Cheese selection
25 On the briny
26 Oodles
27 Hot tub
28 Wild ass of Asia
30 More than sing.
33 Kids' game
36 Urge
37 Mirror's offering
38 On the chilly side
39 Pianist Peter
40 Make lace
41 Solidify

DOWN
1 They often get separated from their surroundings
2 Uncomplicated
3 Bee participant
4 Put one's two cents in
5 Gives temporarily
6 Morse T
7 Tallow source
8 Leave one's seat
9 Touch-tone array
10 Nightwear, for short
12 Treatment for Parkinson's
14 Dryer collection
15 Lamb's mama
19 Shell-game need
20 Fellow
21 Jellied dish
22 Show the way
23 Bunch of cronies
24 Still in process
25 Blond shade
26 With ardor
28 Phi Beta —
29 Klutzy
30 Oyster's prize
31 Building-block brand
32 Guitar's kin
34 Send out
35 Henchman of Captain Hook

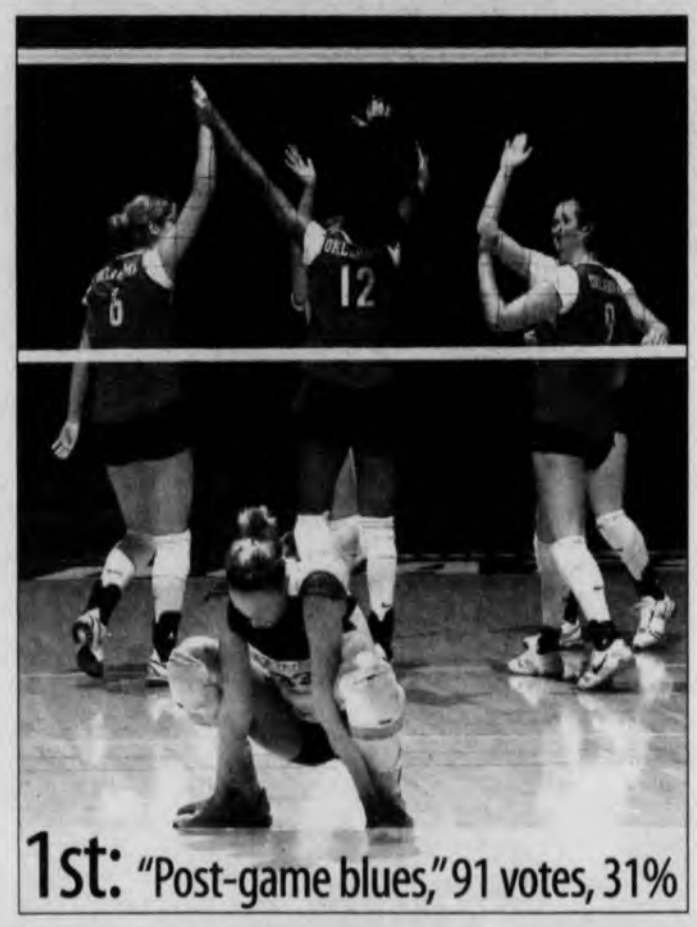
Solution time: 21 mins.

S	H	I	P		C	H	A		H	A	R	D
C	O	D	A		O	E	R		O	L	I	O
A	L	O	E		C	A	M	P	B	E	L	L
B	E	L	L	H	O	P		O	N	S	E	T
			L	E	A		G	O	O
M	A	C	A	W		T	A	R	B	E	L	L
O	V	A			H	R	S			L	I	E
B	E	L	L	A	M	Y		J	U	M	B	O
			I	S	M		S	A	P
T	R	A	S	H		B	A	R	B	E	L	L
B	E	L	L	Y	F	U	L		E	R	I	E
S	A	T	E		A	R	T		A	G	E	S
P	R	O	S		D	R	Y		T	O	U	T

Yesterday's answer 10-25

10-25 CRYPTOQUIP

QO D RTFO QE UFDRTQKS XVA UV AEF D RVYDKZFI, Q'Z RDYY XVA DK DHHIFKUQRF QK EUIDQKQKS.



Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHAT MIGHT SOMEONE CALL A BADLY CHARRED, UGLY-LOOKING BREAKFAST ITEM? AN AWFUL WAFFLE!

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: X equals Y

ON THE WEB

Like the Collegian, but doesn't leave ink on your fingers

Your picks for Photo of the Week

1st: "Post-game blues," 91 votes, 31%

Don't forget to vote for this week's photos at www.kstatecollegian.com

2nd: "We are the champions," 75 votes, 26%

3rd: "Cat Control," 54 votes, 19%

TABERNACLE WOODS

By Donnie Jay

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sarah Dorsey at 9 a.m. today in Waters 342.
- Walk-in Wednesdays will be noon to 4 p.m. in Holtz Hall. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.
- An advanced SafeZone training session titled "Hateful Acts, Hate Crimes, Bias and Harassment" will be noon to 1:30 p.m. today in Union 213. Sign up is at 11:30 a.m. Don't forget to bring a lunch.
- Walk-in Flu Vaccine Clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.
- A drag show will be at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the K-State Student Union Forum Hall. The event is sponsored by the Queer Straight Alliance.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Chong Pyo Choe at 9 a.m. Monday in Ackert 324.
- The KSU Ballroom Dance Club is having a Costume Dance from 8-10 p.m. Tuesday in Union Station.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:

FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS

Student Legal Services Attorney:

SARAH BARR

785-532-6541

Call now for an appointment

office hours

Monday - Friday

9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 4:00 pm

Other appointments available upon request.

for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

TUBBY'S Sports Bar

Aggieville • Manhattan, KS

WEDNESDAY SPECIALS

$3.50 Flavored Long Islands, Carbombs, Summerbeer

$2.00 Any Draw, Wells

$2.50 UV Blue Bombs

$5.50 Queso Burger

Mon & Tues 4PM-2AM • Wed-Sun 11:30AM-2AM

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH

URGENT

Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims

Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!

ZLB Plasma Services

1130 Gardenway

Manhattan, KS 66502

785-776-9177

www.zlbplasma.com

Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

LONGHORNS SALOON

Aggieville 1115 MORO

Manhattan 776-8770

$2 DRINKS $2.25 BOTTLES

THURSDAY • OCT. 26

KEVIN FOWLER

WITH SPECIAL GUEST PETE GILE

Tickets $8 in advance • $10 at the show

On Sale Now

Your professor may not always be there for you.

Your roommates might not always be there for you

And your family, well you can't really trust them either.

But the Collegian Crossword. . .

Now that's something you can bank on.

RC McGraws

776.9588

Wildcat headquarters before & after the game

Open at 3pm

LIVE FRIDAY & SATURDAY

DUSTIN EVANS

Appearing 9 - Close

Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound

Food & Drink Specials ALL Weekend Long!

2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard (In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)

USED TO BE PEOPLE EXPERIMENTED WITH DRUGS IN COLLEGE. NOW IT'S AT LUNCH AND DINNER.

HONEST INGREDIENTS. Chipotle

IN AGGIEVILLE

Author charges students to hold leaders accountable

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Americans under 40 need to pay more attention to news in order to hold leaders accountable and be more powerful citizens, David T. Z. Mindich said.

Mindich spoke to a packed house at the Lou Douglas Lecture Series on Public Issues in Forum Hall Tuesday evening. He was promoting his book, "Tuned Out: Why Americans Under 40 Don't Follow the News," and had several points he wanted the audience to learn from his lecture.

"Who is the ultimate check on government power in the U.S.? It's you and me," he said. "Most young people are more tuned out than most of us imagine."

He said the median age of news viewers is 60 years old, and one out of five students read a newspaper each day.

"Free content on the Internet is impeding the paid content within the newspapers," he said.

However, he said it is not young people's fault.

"It's not because they're dumb," said Mindich. "We know news holes, the space for news stories in newspapers, are shrinking, and we are scared to trust the media."

Mindich said with the Internet, students can dig deep into news subjects, but they are more inclined to get on the Internet to look at Facebook or MySpace rather than catch up on news. As a result, the gap between students' and their parents' knowledge of the news is widening.

"Without that news knowledge, young people are giving their futures to their elders," he said. "It's about your self-interest and holding leaders accountable."

He also said entertainment is a culprit.

"We've always been more entranced by entertainers than politicians," he said. "We can't focus as much as we used to."

He said today, 80 percent of sixth grade students have televisions in their rooms and are probably not watching Katie Couric on the evening news.

"When news tries to outdo entertainment, they lose their credibility," he said. "News is competing against millions of different entertainment options ... against 'Fear Factor' and duck embryos."

So what should the media do to gain our attention?

"They need to be the place where people come to be elevated, to be more powerful citizens, to serve as leaders," he said.

Media should change the focus of journalism and reintroduce passion, he said.

"We have to start caring and reading the news early," Mindich said. "Education is a big part of this picture. We need to make sure schools are politically vibrant. It's not too late to start the habit."

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

David T.Z. Mindich, author of "Tuned Out: Why Americans Under 40 Don't Follow the News," speaks Tuesday evening in the K-State Student Union's Forum Hall. Mindich's lecture is part of the Lou Douglas Lecture Series on Public Issues.

Jenny Golay, freshman in elementary education, agreed with Mindich, and said she will take some of his ideas and incorporate them into a classroom in the future.

"I think he had a lot of good points," she said. "I myself am not into reading the media. Younger people are more involved in entertainment and they block out the news."

Mindich said he worries that because younger generations aren't watching the news and staying up to date, it could cause the absence of checks and balances.

"The absence of checks and balances means seeds of fascism could be planted in the future," he said.

Mindich said the way to bridge this news gap would to find a news media that individuals could trust.

"We need to hold our leaders accountable, and we need news to do that," he said. "Our democracy depends on that."

Students work with New York company in organic fashion competition

By Katelynn Hasler
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Ten apparel marketing and design students are awaiting judgment from a New York fashion designer on their organic clothing designs this week.

Faculty from K-State's Department of Apparel, Textiles and Interior Design organized a student design competition to promote awareness and use of organic and environmentally friendly fabrics. They enlisted Earth Speaks Fashion, a design company from New York that produces clothing using organic hemp and hemp-blended fabrics, to judge the competition.

Pairs of students created clothing designs using fabric provided by Earth Speaks Fashion and presented them to faculty and the company's owner, Bi Li.

"In the past few years there has been a growing demand for eco-friendly and sustainable apparel products that are also aesthetically appealing and even fashionable," said Melody LeHew, associate professor of apparel, textiles and interior design, and faculty judge for the competition. "The fashion industry is responding to this demand."

The competition is called Project Organic: Designing for a Sustainable Lifestyle. Creating fashion that is environmentally friendly is a necessary step toward ensuring the quality of life for future generations, LeHew said.

By designing for a specific company with its own objectives and established style, students were exposed to the reality of work after college.

"This was like a real-world scenario," Loren Price, senior in apparel design, said. "As a designer you don't always get to make whatever you want. You have to be able to work within the company's wants and their aesthetic."

Students received the assignment in spring 2006 and turned in their final projects this month. Each pair contained one apparel design and one apparel marketing student.

"Each person brought expertise in a different area, and we molded them together for our project," Lacey Frenzl, sophomore in apparel marketing said. "I loved working with a partner. I learned so much about the industry. This really put what we learn in class to work."

The finished products are on display from 2:30-4:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in Justin 338. The exhibit will be open until Nov. 9.

Each pair has displayed one finished garment along with a storyboard that includes their inspiration, target market, color pallet and design for three to five additional garments.

The winners of the competition should be announced next week. The winning pair will receive a monetary award as well as the possibility of having their design incorporated into Earth Speaks Fashion's collection, LeHew said.

"This was something that we thought would be beneficial to students and beneficial to the company in that it can give them some fresh ideas," LeHew said. "This was our first attempt. We will refine it, and hopefully we'll continue it each year."

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell
COLLEGIAN

Phill Kline

Attorney general blends religion with politics, provides example of why conservatives need to go

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

During my three-hour drive back to Manhattan after visiting my parents last weekend, I found myself dismayed several times.

Throughout western Kansas stand many huge signs supporting Phill Kline for re-election.

I should have been prepared for this, since the most recent SurveyUSA election poll shows 43 percent of Kansans still support him as our attorney general. The real reason these signs shocked me, after knowing that this was a close race, was that they really made it sink in for me that someone could actually vote for Phill Kline.

His tightly pressed smiles forcing his eyes to squint present an aura of unwarranted superiority. Looking at this smug figure in the news is begging to make me sick. To put it bluntly, there is almost nothing I like about this man.

In fact, I dislike this man so much, I'm joining in with the 56 percent of Kansans hell-bent on putting a Republican who's running as a Democrat, Paul Morrison, in his position.

I'll admit, when I first heard of this tactic to avoid the bare-knuckled primary fight, I wasn't too pleased. Just the thought of Republican germs oozing throughout the blue veins of my beloved party makes me shudder.

Sadly, after observing the extent of the conservative infiltration into the GOP, allowing moderate Republicans to be wolves in donkeys' clothing must be done. The threat of a government based on religion requires this alliance to continue.

Now, I'm not persecuting conservatives like Kline for believing in religion.

In fact, as long as it's peaceful, I believe all religions are a benefit to our society. They can provide the public with hope, charity and a reason to continue being good when tempted to act otherwise.

But it's a problem when the attempt is made to blend politics and religion, which would essentially create a theocracy. The way I see it, this form of government is nothing more than an attack on the greatest gift God has bestowed on mankind: free will.

Another problem with Kline's ideological thinking is that it leaves no room for dissent. Arguments like doctor-patient confidentiality are seen as inferior and ignored in the pursuit of eliminating sins.

In this debate, Kline says the records he is trying to obtain will prevent crimes like child rape.

His logic is simple.

If a girl too young to give consent to sex has had an abortion, she has had sex, and this falls under statutory rape. But if this is his true intent, why isn't he also going after the underage girls who have delivered a child?

Looking at this issue through Kline's conservative beer goggles, it's quite easy to say that since Girl A had an abortion, she's bad. And, since Girl B acted as God intended and delivered her child, she's good. But even with this reasoning, I see no way to deny one girl the same rights of privacy as the other simply based on which one's action corresponds with your religion of choice.

Luckily, our country seems to be removing its blindfolds and seeing men like Kline for who they really are. With any luck he – and many others of his kind – will be removed from his seat, and we can get our country back on track.

Zachary T. Eckels is a senior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

News focuses on cartoons, clones, cellulite

KODY COOPER

Like successive 50-ton anvils on a hapless Wile E. Coyote, two news stories dropped down from the newsreel heavens onto the American consumer last week.

From the Washington Post: "FDA Is Set To Approve Meat, Milk From Clones." From the Wall Street Journal: "Disney Pulls Its Characters From Junk Food."

As the lumps slowly sprout from our heads and stars orbit our craniums, we try to make sense of how cartoons, clones and cellulite relate.

The FDA is expected to endorse the sale of milk and meat from cloned animals as new data suggests that cloned dairy and meat products are biochemically identical to regular foodstuffs.

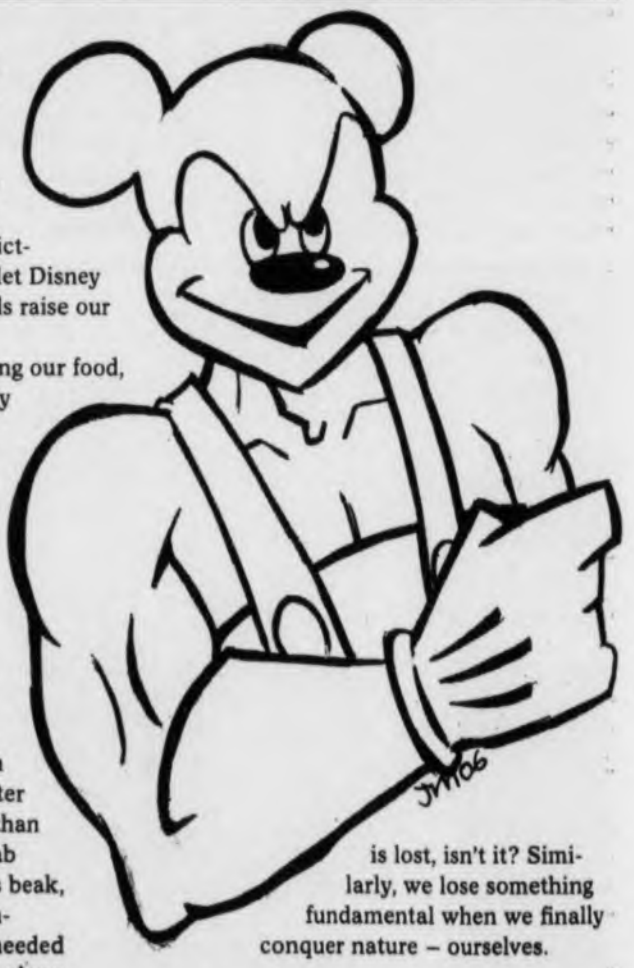
Many farmers and ranchers have been growing cloned animals, Dolly-the-sheep style, in anticipation of federal permission to market designer foodstuffs just for you – the most succulent pork for your chili dogs, the tastiest beef cuts for your Big Macs, the creamiest creamer for your iced latte.

In this way, scientific capability is greedily exhausted to please the taste of the "American consumer" (known taxonomically to social scientists as the Fastfoodius Overeatibus Slobbius).

As for the latter headline, Disney announced it will phase out promotion of unhealthy foods in theme parks and licensed products. Responding to soaring child-obesity rates, Mickey Mouse no longer will associate with artery plugs like trans-fatty french fries and sugary cereal. Instead, Mickey will endorse salubrious items like carrots and apples.

(No word yet as to whether Mickey will be redrawn to accentuate rippling glutes and chiseled abs.)

In this way, Disney has recognized the massive influence of its marketing power and has self-imposed structures to help stem the obesity epidemic.



So, on the one hand, the FDA will allow the power brokers to manufacture cows to provide marbled steak and ice cream to our fatty delight. On the other hand, Disney will no longer endorse blubber burgers and McFlurries in its theme parks or in Happy Meals.

What is the American consumer to do with such conflicting signals trickling down from our public and private higher-ups?

Are we to feed the kids only skinless cloned chicken breasts and avoid those cloned hot dogs? Are we to enjoy cloned skim milk as long as it's not with Cocoa Krispies?

Both of these stories show us why the "expression of the American mind" no longer has anything to do with the Declaration, but with personal gratification. Parents' unhinged sensate pursuit of personal pleasure crusades against family, community and (as cloning becomes commonplace) nature itself. Thus, for whatever merits Disney's new policy deserves, the real problem is parental dereliction of duty.

When sensate moms and dads "don't have time" to cook a healthy family dinner, kids are left with a Happy Meal and a TV baby sitter. Child obesity is predictable when we let Disney and McDonalds raise our kids.

As for cloning our food, we are similarly derelict in our reckless crusade to conquer nature and subjugate it for our pleasure. Call me a traditionalist, but I'd rather watch Wile E. Coyote, fork in hand, chase after Road Runner than watch him swab Road Runner's beak, cotton swab-in-hand, for the needed somatic cell to clone Road Runner in an Acme lab.

True, he finally will have caught him, but something fundamental is lost, isn't it? Similarly, we lose something fundamental when we finally conquer nature – ourselves.

Kody Cooper is a fifth-year student in political science and Spanish. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Voting an important right, should be employed by students on election day

Judging from the large number of political and socially conscious groups on campus, it's easy to see K-State students care about what goes on in the world.

An article in Tuesday's USA Today said millennials – individuals in their mid-20s or younger – "are civic-minded and socially conscious as individuals, consumers and employees."

Education, poverty, human rights, equal rights, AIDS and hunger were listed as some of the our top-10 most important issues.

Yet, we are also the most apathetic voters.

Perhaps one of the biggest reasons millennials do not vote is because we do not care. It's easy to be cut off from the world in college because there are so many other things to keep students occupied – clubs, intramural athletics, classes.

However, college is not a bubble. It is a time to explore new options and get involved in organizations that matter to the individual.

We are fortunate to live in a country where our vote matters, regardless of what students might think. At least in local elections, one vote is all it takes to ensure a victory for one candidate over another.

Voting is a right for which we should all be grateful.

The Collegian wants to know why students choose to vote or not vote. Tell us why you vote or don't vote. Submit a letter to the editor at letters@spub.ksu.edu or in person to Kedzie 116.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

If the fraternities and sororities put as much effort as they do in Homecoming, we'd have cured cancer, AIDS and saved the whales by now.

Pi Phi, we love you. You should have won WRL.

Who rents out the karaoke machine on free night? Honestly?

What's the point of Homecoming week if we can't party during it? This is college. Let us do what we want.

The limit of ridiculous approaching infinite is Calc 2.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

TO THE EDITOR

Writer should be challenged to learn about other cultures, express frustrations without ignorance

Editor,

Chuck Armstrong's article regarding SGA's allocation of privilege fees was upsetting; however, I was not sympathetic toward the writer.

I understand that Armstrong was frustrated with the system and lack of money, but his issue should be with SGA, not with the Society for Appreciation of Bharatiya Heritage and Arts. I do not understand his need to not only blame SABHA, but to also make sarcastic comments that only left him sounding bitter and ignorant.

The fact that Armstrong has never heard of SABHA has no correlation to whether or not they should receive funds. I attended the beautiful, unique, and educational event they sponsored last semester, and I'm very excited to attend the upcoming dance performances.

Bharatnatyam is a graceful, powerful, complex tradition of dance that is only one aspect of a very rich culture. This event is free to anyone who wants to take advantage of the opportunity to experience something special.

Armstrong, I challenge you to understand that your ability to pronounce a word has no bearing on its importance. I challenge you to take the time to learn how to pronounce this word and maybe even educate yourself on something new and different.

Lastly, I challenge you to learn how to express your frustrations without making ignorant, offensive comments about innocent organizations who are only trying to educate you on what you obviously do not understand.

Sheena Nagaraja
SENIOR IN BIOLOGY

Students, faculty should volunteer, donate to help United Way campaign reach its goal

Editor,

The K-State United Way campaign is nearing its official completion date, and volunteers in each department and giving unit are doing their best to contact every K-State employee who is interested in supporting this worthy cause.

The goal for Riley County this year is $697,000, and K-State plays a major role in reaching that success. Campus employees alone have raised about $83,000 thus far, and we anticipate a record-setting campaign, but we need everyone's help to do that.

I have been involved with the United Way as a volunteer, board member and K-State campaign committee member, and I know from these experiences that when you give to United Way, your gift is magnified many times over by the gifts of others. What really brings the message home, though, is to see these 16 United Way agencies in action and to know how much they are helping those in need.

Last week I observed a Big Brothers/Big Sisters volunteer working with her "Little Sister" at my daughter's elementary school. I wonder how many K-State students or other adults might support this organization through United Way, or sign up to volunteer, if they knew what a difference it makes in a child's life.

Imagine: less than $3 for a lunch once a week, and a smiling "Little Brother or Sister" who is so glad to see you there. I could see there was an entire table of kids looking on, wishing they had someone there for them, too. Just think of all the single-parent families, or those with a parent in Iraq, and how much even one young college man or woman could do for these kids. Think of what a difference your donation, even a seemingly modest one, could make to those children.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters is just one of the agencies United Way of Riley County supports; there are 15 others. Each one is just as important to the individuals they serve, from infants to the elderly, the homeless, and the abused.

Everyone should have the opportunity to give through his or her workplace on campus but if you have not been contacted, please e-mail ksuuw@ksu.edu, call United Way at (785) 776-3779, or mail a contribution to the United Way at 114 S. 4th St., Manhattan, KS 66502.

Please join me, your friends and your neighbors in making a difference.

Patsy Havenstein
K-STATE UNITED WAY CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE MEMBER
BUDGET/FISCAL OFFICER
COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING DEAN'S OFFICE
(785) 532-5590

The Great American Smoke-Out challenges smokers to quit smoking, offers support

Editor,

Can you quit smoking for a day?

Thursday, Nov. 16, is the Great American Smoke-Out.

The Smoke-Out challenges smokers nationwide to quit their habit for a day in hopes that it becomes a lifetime decision.

We realize how difficult quitting smoking is. If you need assistance, the Kansas Tobacco Quitline is here to help you.

The Kansas Tobacco Quitline is a free resource available to you 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Quitline counselors are trained professionals who develop a personal quitting plan just for you.

Help is just a phone call away. 1-866-KAN-STOP.

Liesl Ott
OUTREACH COORDINATOR-TOBACCO USE PREVENTION PROGRAM RILEY COUNTY HEALTH DEPARTMENT

City commissioners discuss stormwater drainage system

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Stormwater drainage was the main issue discussed at the City Commission meeting Tuesday evening.

The last official stormwater master plan was finished in 1995, said Steve Hampton, Manhattan engineer.

Categories of importance addressed include high-priority and discretionary projects.

Manhattan Director of Finance Bernie Hayen said the projects will be addressed in order of importance.

He said consultants are looking at various projects around town to assess their necessity.

One project on the list, a ditch outside Marlatt Hall, will cost $95,000, according to a City Commission agenda memo. The residential rate right now is 50 percent, leaving the commercial costs at 25 percent.

The money obtained from taxes will cover not only the supplies and labor, but also the repairs and the upkeep of the area.

Although fixing the drainage problem will be a help to society, it also might affect residents, Hayen said.

Residents' and businesses' tax rates might increase as a result to help pay for the systems, which haven't been altered since 1997.

Environmental Protection Agency's National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (EPA NPDES) sets mandatory regulations that make the system productive and safe for the community.

City Commission meetings are open to the public. This hearing will be on next Tuesday, Oct. 31. To learn more, visit www.ci.manhattan.ks.us.

News Briefs
Around the World

BRITAIN'S DEFENSE MINISTRY BARS EMBEDDED REPORTERS

LONDON – Britain's Defense Ministry has barred the country's largest commercial news broadcaster from reporting alongside the nation's troops in Iraq and Afghanistan in a dispute over the network's coverage of wounded soldiers, a ministry official said.

The ministry accused ITV News of inaccurate and intrusive reporting in a series of broadcasts last week.

Several of the reports were critical of the standards of hospital care offered to the injured and of the treatment of soldiers.

NIGER ORDERS ARAB REFUGEES TO GO HOME

NIAMEY, Niger – The government of Niger on Tuesday ordered the expulsion of 150,000 Arab refugees from Chad and neighboring countries who have lived in this West African nation for decades.

Interior Minister Mounkaila Modi told The Associated Press that the drastic decision was taken because many of the refugees are livestock herders whose camels are destroying arid Niger's fragile water sources in short supply.

Many of the Arabs are nomads known as "Mohamides" who fled past conflicts in Chad decades before.

NORTH KOREA UNAPOLOGETIC OVER NUCLEAR TEST

BEIJING – China gave its first full public account Tuesday of its mission to North Korea, saying it got no apology from top leader Kim Jong Il for the atomic explosion but did receive assurances there were no plans for a second nuclear test.

The North's reclusive leader also expressed a willingness to return to six-nation talks over its nuclear program if financial restrictions levied by the U.S. are first resolved, said Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Liu Jianchao.

Source: The Associated Press

GET ACT!VATED!
It's as easy as 1, 2, 3:
1. Activate your free Wildcat Works! eRecruiting account.
2. Upload your résumé.
3. Publish your résumé.
Questions? Stop in between noon - 4 p.m. for Walk-in Wednesday!
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career

www.k-state.edu/ces

$1.50 Drinks
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL

The Pita Pit
FRESH THINKING HEALTHY EATING
Your Healthy Choice for Eating Late!

We Deliver
1131 Moro • Aggieville • 537-3995

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Hibachi Hut
Manhattan, KS
Come meet the ultimate St. Louis Cardinals fan! Hibachi Hut's bartender Marc Claas
25% off appetizers for any fan wearing a Cardinals logo after 5pm, one per person, dine in only Sit down and enjoy $2.50 Rolling Rock pints.
Catch the game on our new flat screen TV!

Fair Trade in the Heartland Conference
7:00pm Friday—7:00pm Saturday at CrossRoads of ECM and the KSU Student Union
November 3 & 4, 2006
$10 for students and $25 for general public
For more info or to register online: www.k-state.edu/ecm
Registration deadline: Tuesday, October 31
Learn about Fair Trade and get motivated to make a difference!
Highlights:
Keynote Speaker: Kattie Somerfeld, Lutheran World Relief
Workshops on:
World Trade Organization 101 * Conscious Consumerism
Organizing on Campus * Change Mainstreaming Social Justice
International Trade in the Heartland: Immigration, Environment, and Trade Policy
Oxfam CrossRoads Lutheran World Relief To others, through others. EQUAL EXCHANGE

Your health | The weight room

Weight room etiquette

By Trent Scott
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It is with my utmost admiration that I thank those of you who exercise at the Peters Recreation Complex.

The United States owes each of you a debt of gratitude for your allegiance to physical fitness, and I hope you all find someone who is equally dedicated to staying fit and marry them. That way your grandchildren can laugh in disbelief when they read that – when you were their age – a vast majority of this nation's adult population was overweight or obese.

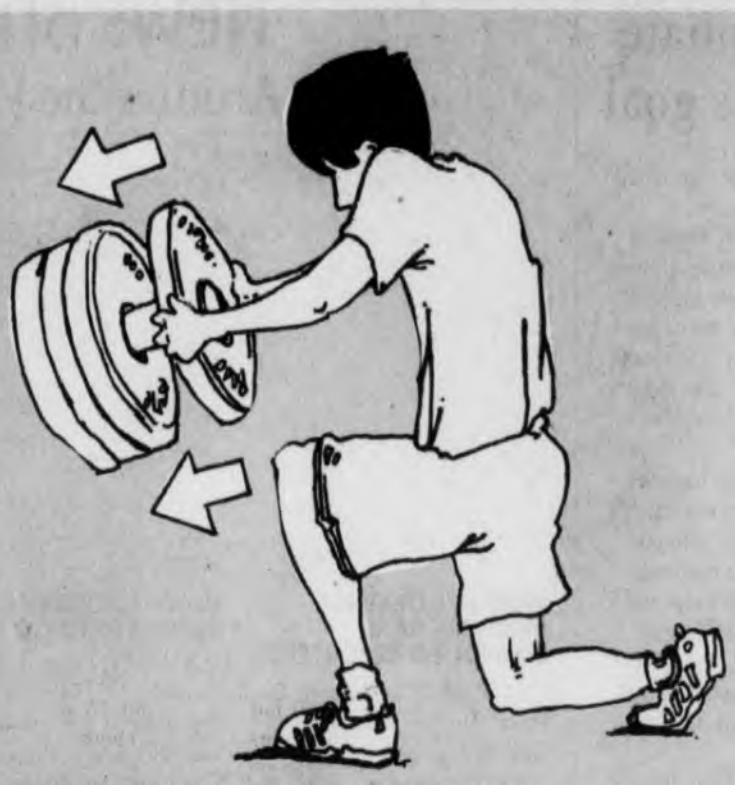
However some of you are not doing your part to help keep the Rec Complex clean and organized so others can enjoy it.

Being a weight room attendant, I witness many of these atrocities firsthand, and thus I have come to the conclusion that these wrongdoings can solely be blamed on a select group of K-Staters.

At this moment there might be someone who thinks it's OK to leave 800 pounds on the leg press machine and does exactly that. What an outrage.

But please, have no fear, for I am here to set the record straight.

Here are a few simple rules of etiquette to follow that just might make you the most popular person in the weight room.



CLEAN UP AFTER YOURSELF

Whether you use dumbbells, curl bars or plates you are responsible for putting them back where you found them.

No one wants to chase down a 30-pound dumbbell that someone left by the stairs and everyone hates to clean 300 pounds of plates off a bench press when all they want to do is bust out some reps of a much lighter weight.

Also, if you feel the need to use the 100-pound plates, put them back on the rack when you are done. You had the strength to put them on a machine in the first place, so I know you have the strength to take them off.

Not everyone is as strong as you are.

USE ONE MACHINE AT A TIME

I know you love to superset. But when 6 p.m. rolls around and you are using four different machines without letting others work in with you, some patrons are going to be upset.

Be nice and let others use the machines so everyone can complete their workouts and get on with their lives.

Illustrations by Donald Lee | COLLEGIAN

WEAR A DECENT PAIR OF ATHLETIC SHOES

This rule focuses less on politeness and more on stupidity. More than once I have seen people workout in flip-flops, and I am always flabbergasted by their choice of footwear. Please consider this equation: heavy weight, plus bare toes, equals a toeless idiot.

I could go on and on, but instead I will leave you with one simple instruction. Read the weight room rules posted everywhere around the Rec Complex. Workers and lifters will be glad you did.

Trent Scott is a junior in nutrition and exercise science and an American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Don't use colder weather as excuse to slow down

MELISSA HAUG

It's that time of year when the cold weather blues get you down, but you can use exercise and working out as a boost to reenergize all your working parts.

This winter, don't use the weather as your excuse to fall out of your new fitness routine. Although it might take a bit more creativity on your part to keep yourself interested, take the extra step to make this season a personal best and strive for your fitness goals.

There are ways to remain active during times of cold weather. For starters, if road conditions do not prevent you from leaving your home, you can always travel to the Peters Recreation Complex or your local gym, where a number of cardiovascular machines, weights and aerobic class options are available.

"Because it starts to get dark earlier, your body tries to slow itself down earlier in the day, so it's easy to tell yourself to stay home where it is warm," said Collin Baldwin, Rec Complex Building Supervisor and senior in nutrition and exercise science.

Another excuse students try to use is that it gets easier to avoid the gym as you become more and more swamped at work or have more class projects due. Or the Rec Complex is "so far" from where you live, on top of the fact that it's cold outside. This winter season, discover what motivates you, and change things up in your workout routine.

Try playing a team sport with a group of friends, or sign up for an intramural team for exercise in a competitive environment if that is the motivation you need to get into a exercise routine.

"Motivation is never an issue with me, but if someone is having trouble getting in gear, they should try using friends or someone else they look up to as inspiration," Baldwin said.

Your body is an amazing machine – experiment to see what it can do. If you need help doing that, consider consulting with a personal trainer.

Weather conditions turning dangerous is not a legitimate excuse. You can still get a workout in at home with fitness and yoga videos, as well as simple exercise equipment. For example, you can use exercise balls, exercise bands and various weighted dumbbells within the comfort of your warm and toasty home.

An efficient way to ensure that you have time to exercise the recommended 30-60 minutes (on most days of the week) is to block off that time frame in your daily schedule. If you already have it planned, it is more difficult to skip. It's like skipping a project that you really need to work on – you'll feel guilty. Then, as time goes on you're more likely to stop skipping it, and it just becomes part of your routine.

"To someone who doesn't like to work out in the winter, quit hibernating," Baldwin said. "The cold months are the best time to get yourself jumpstarted for the spring and summer by beginning in the winter."

Melissa Haug is a senior in public health nutrition and dietetics and a nutrition consultant and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

News & Notes

Safety Watts out for rest of season

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State safety Marcus Watts will miss the rest of this season due to the hand injury he suffered three weeks ago against Oklahoma State, coach Ron Prince announced Tuesday.

The junior will have surgery to repair his right hand, which was injured when he blocked a punt against the Cowboys. The season-ending injury is the second in the secondary for the Wildcats this year. Cornerback Bryan Baldwin went down at the beginning of the Big 12 Conference schedule.

Watts had 19 tackles this season, including two sacks and two forced fumbles. He also recorded three interceptions, which were the first three of his career.

Prince said the loss of Watts obviously will hurt the defense, but the special teams units also will be missing his presence.

"(Watts) and Yamon (Figurs) have been dominant on our punt team," Prince said. "Basically wherever the ball gets caught, it gets downed."

Watts spent the entire past offseason rehabilitating from a dislocated hip, which caused him to lose his starting job at the beginning of the season. Sophomore Andrew Erker started in place of Watts for the first four games of the season, and he is listed as the starter for this week's game against Iowa State.

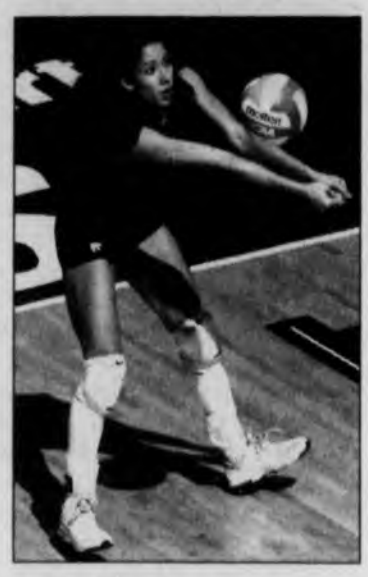
CLAYTON OUT THIS WEEK WITH INJURY

After not making the trip to Columbia, Mo. for K-State's 41-21 loss to Missouri, senior running back Thomas Clayton will not participate again this week, Prince said.

Prince said Clayton did not make the trip because of an injury but would not release any specifics as to how the injury occurred.

"I'm not going to release the nature of the injury just because there is a chance he could come back, and I don't want to talk about that with our opponents," Prince said. "It's just a medical clearance issue."

See IOWA STATE Page 8



Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Saftey Marcus Watts knocks the ball out of the hands of Oklahoma State wide receiver Adarius Bowman. Watts' play prevented what would have been the game winning catch on Oct. 7.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | K-State gets second shot at Iowa State, this time on road

The K-State women's volleyball team will be looking for revenge when it takes on Iowa State tonight.

The Wildcats (9-12, 1-10 Big 12) lost to the Cyclones in a five-game match Sept. 27 at Ahearn Field House. Despite holding a 2-1 advantage in that match, K-State allowed Iowa State (14-7, 6-5 Big 12) to rally in the final two games to win 3-2.

K-State at Iowa State
Where: Hilton Coliseum — Ames, Iowa
When: 6:30 tonight
Radio: KMAN 1350
Live stats available at k-statesports.com

Leading the Cyclone rally was junior middle blocker Erin Boeve, who was named Big 12 Conference Volleyball Player of the Week after that match.

Boeve dominated the Wildcats, registering 22 kills and a .375 hitting percentage.

K-State has lost 11 of its last 12 matches but recently has shown signs of improvement. It beat Texas Tech for its first win in 39 days, and took No. 24 Oklahoma and No. 12 Missouri to five games in defeat.

A big reason for the improved play has been a lineup switch that moved junior Angie Lastra from libero to outside hitter. Lastra has posted four straight double-doubles since the switch, including a 23 kill, 18 dig performance last match against Missouri.

The Cyclones have won their last two matches, first defeating Texas A&M 3-1 and then sweeping Baylor on Saturday.

— Jeffrey Rake

CBK | Washburn exhibition set for 8 p.m. start on Nov. 4

The highly-anticipated start of the Bob Huggins era at K-State will officially tip off at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 4 when the Wildcats battle Washburn in an exhibition game at Bramlage Coliseum.

Huggins

The later start time will allow the K-State Sports Network to broadcast the contest across its 31-station radio network after completing its coverage of the Wildcats' football game against Colorado earlier in the day. The football game is set for 2:30 p.m. at Folsom Field in Boulder, Colo., and will be televised on Fox Sports Net.

In addition, the start time of the Wildcats' volleyball match with Texas A&M has been moved to 1 p.m. at Ahearn Field House to allow fans the opportunity to attend both the volleyball and men's basketball games.

This will mark the first meeting between K-State and Washburn since 1998 and just the second in the past 60 years. The two schools, which are separated by less than 45 miles, met 39 times between 1905 and 1946, but have just one meeting – a 76-60 Wildcat victory on Nov. 18, 1998 at Bramlage Coliseum – in the 60 years since. K-State leads the all-time series, 27-13, including 16-5 at home.

GLF | K-State finishes 10th at Club Glove Intercollegiate tournament

Behind its best round of the tournament, the K-State men's golf team improved one spot to finish 10th at the Club Glove Intercollegiate. The Wildcats carded a final-round 309, finishing the tournament at 87-over par 951 at the challenging par 72, 6,985-yard Saticoy Country Club in Somis, Calif.

"We played marginally better today on a really demanding course," head coach Tim Norris said. "We finished the fall on a sour note, but we have to look at the long term and the big picture. We have tremendous team with talented players, but we have to play better team golf in the spring, as well as have one guy step up to be a leader."

Lamar, who led the field following the first 36 holes, ran away with the team title. The Cardinals carded a 29-over par 893, the only team to shot below a 900.

Junior Kyle Yonke led the Cats with a 17-over par 233 to finish tied for 24th.

Specner Alefs, who competed in his first collegiate tournament, finished tied for 38th at 22-over par 238. Joe Ida and Jason Schulte, who competed as an individual, also tied with Alefs for 38th.

Flying club receives scholarship money

By Ericka Brunson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State Flying Club has received scholarships from the Manhattan Community Foundation to help students get pilot training.

With these scholarships, the average student will be given the opportunity to achieve solo flight status. The scholarship includes flight time, fuel costs and instructor time.

Ron Jones, president of the Flying Club, said it is an opportunity for increased awareness.

"The hope is, first and foremost, to advance interest in general aviation," he said.

It costs $44-87 to rent a plane for an hour, Jones said.

He said he first heard of the MCF from a friend on its board.

"I started inquiring what type of things they would be interested in funding for," he said.

His inquiries led to $4,000 in funding for three people to receive enough flight training to reach solo status. The opportunity of these scholarships is rare and shouldn't be overlooked, said Paul Flinn, vice president.

"To reach solo status is the milestone, what we hope all our members will aspire for," he said.

The MCF is a tax-exempt, nonprofit organization founded in 1999 to provide charitable funds for the community, according to the Web site.

Don Dodge, benefactor of the scholarship, established the fund to promote youth and aviation interest. To apply for the scholarship, one must be 18-25 years old and must be affiliated with K-State.

It is open to anyone, Flinn said.

"We would ideally like K-State students who have an interest in flying," Flinn said, "Maybe someone who always dreamed of it but maybe couldn't afford it."

The club is open to students, faculty and alumni.

If interested in the aviation scholarship, contact Jones at ron.jones@audio.net.

Independent music store provides variety

By Mark Sibilla
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tony Ladesich, Kansas City, Mo., resident, browses through CDs at Sisters of Sound music store Tuesday afternoon. Ladesich, a traveling musician, visited the store to buy CDs and a shirt with the store's logo on it.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Naming a store is an important aspect of the business process. One wants a moniker that is memorable and catchy yet still informs potential customers what it is they might be purchasing when they walk past the jingling bells attached to the front door.

Sisters of Sound received its name from the two sisters, Sarah Sue and Leah Cunnick, who co-own and operate it. They sell new and used compact discs and vinyl.

Though Sarah and Leah have operated Sisters of Sound for about two years – it opened in December 2004 – the two sisters have a long history in the business of buying, trading and selling music.

Until 2001, Street Side Records, an independent music store, provided customers with non-retail music. Street Side Records started out of St. Louis with chain stores across the country and used to occupy the space now occupied by Buffalo Wild Wings.

While Sarah and Leah were in college, they said they were attracted to the laid back atmosphere created by the workers and customers at Street Side Records. Sarah received a job at the store in 1992, where she was a clerk for the store for three months until she was promoted to assistant manager.

Leah said while she never got an official job at Street Side Records, she was often seen as an unofficial employee because she was always in the store helping straighten displays and moving furniture around.

Sarah managed Street Side until 2001, when the store sold nine of its chains to a larger corporation. Shortly after this, the store in Manhattan closed.

Once Street Side closed, its owners, Randy Davis and CEO John Karhoff, tried to convince Sarah to open a store dealing with music. The two owners donated the racks, end caps, display cases, front counter and other various items from Street Side to Sarah to further persuade her, she said.

However, Sarah said after Street Side's last day on Memorial Day, 2001, she took the summer off and began considering her future.

Then Sarah received a call from Tom and Tracy Mahoney, the current owners of Game Guy, a store where customers can buy, sell and trade used video games.

Sarah knew very little about video games, but she said she quickly learned about them from Tom.

"I was taught a ton from Tom," Sarah said. "I learned from the master; I learned from the true 'Game Guy.'"

During her stint at Game Guy, Sarah sold used CDs at the store until she could find a spot to open her own music store.

She said the store was making progress until an incident involving construction to repair fire damage at the adjacent business, Porter's Bar and Grill.

"Things were going really well at Game Guy until the wall fell on top of it," Leah said.

Fortunately, she said, at this time, Eddie Olson of Olson Shoe Store was downsizing and selling the remainder of the building.

Leah said she was never very involved in her sister's business until the duo moved into their new store at 1214 Moro St.

"We talked with Eddie around September and October 2004," Leah said. "We signed the lease in November and opened the store two weeks into December."

Leah and Sarah agreed that Sisters of Sound has grown exponentially since it opened.

"We started out with 3,000 of my own personal CDs and 2,000 of my own vinyl from my personal collection," Sarah said.

Now Sisters of Sound has a large group of distributors and receives promotional material from the smallest independent labels to the largest main labels like Sony and Universal.

Leah stressed the importance of a MySpace page for anyone involved in music. It has introduced Sisters of Sound to many new acts and labels and vice versa, she said.

In fact, Universal Records, distributor to Jack Johnson, began distributing to Sisters of Sound when Johnson saw the store's MySpace page and urged his label to begin sending promotions to get his music, and the music of the label, into smaller independent stores, she said.

"It is always important to test-drive bands on MySpace.com, because it can allow us to discover and order from artists with no distribution," Leah said.

Sarah said they order most albums from a one-stop distributor. In other words, this distributor has access to multiple labels and doesn't force independent stores to order in bulk from large labels and big artists, she said.

"Everything we order is shipped directly to the store," Leah said. "It allows us to order just about anything. If it's still in print, we can most likely get a hold of it. Most people come in looking for things you can't find in big box stores."

In addition to ordering and selling CDs and vinyl, Sisters of Sound allows music collectors to bring in used CDs or vinyl to the store for cash or trade value.

The trade value is usually 25 percent more than the cash value offered. Sisters of Sound is one of the few places that will pay cash for used vinyl, Sarah said.

Sarah said there is a resurgence in the vinyl market at music stores across the country, as most music prior to 1965 is only available on vinyl. Also, many music lovers and collectors prefer the sound of vinyl to the digital transfers of CDs, Sarah said.

"Leah and I recently checked the percentage of vinyl sales within the store," Sarah said. "We found that 20 percent of the sales within the store are strictly vinyl."

Sarah said it is important for Manhattan to have its own independently owned music store.

"We want it to be the people's store," Sarah said. "We want the customers to help shape where the store will go and how it will grow."

As for the future of Sisters of Sound, Sarah and Leah said they would like to see the store become larger, continue to gain its own distinct identity and perhaps someday be able to hire some extra help for the store.

However, even though most of the sisters' hours are spent at the store, they said they love the ability to be a part of the independent music scene in Manhattan.

"Each day runs a little more smoothly," Sarah said.

AGGIE LOUNGE
712 12th St. 537-8585
$2 YOU CALL IT
(premiums, bottles, wells, calls, shots)
$2 Redbull & Vodkas
Grape, Cherry, Jager Bombs

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

dependable, quality service
Let us print your overheads in color.
Claflin Books and Copies

Tom HAWK
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Kathe Hurt Treasurer

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm
The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.
Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

GUMBY'S Pizza
We roll ours fatter...
We are talking about our
50¢ pizza rolls
All Day
sauce extra
$1 Bud & Bud Light Draws
50¢ Pool All Day

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Complete this form and bring it to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words. Only first names will be printed in the ads. Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31. Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Friday, Oct. 27.
ONLY $5!
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

a Cut Above SALON
785.537.3200
walk-in's welcome!
1800 Claflin Road • Suite 110 • Manhattan, Kansas 66502
$9.00 off all Color
$13.00 off all Hi-Lites
Add a haircut for $10 more
$7.00 eyebrow or lip wax
$10.00 for both

Ohio State elevators fail safety test after fatality

By Andrew Welsh-Huggins
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

COLUMBUS, Ohio – Six dormitory elevators failed safety tests conducted by Ohio State University after a freshman was pinned and killed by an elevator in his residence hall, university officials said Tuesday.

The six elevators, among 29 given a standard brake test, will be shut down until they are repaired and recertified, said Molly Ranz, the school's director of facilities.

All six elevators had passed full-scale tests required every five years, including an August 2003 test that approved the elevator involved in the accident, Ranz said. That elevator also passed three spot safety checks in the past year, she said.

Ohio State plans to have all high-rise elevators in dormitories tested by Friday and the rest by next week.

Twenty-four people had crowded into the elevator on which Andrew Polakowski, 18, of Erie, Pa., was killed Friday night, a fire official said Monday. The 2,500-pound weight capacity of the elevator was exceeded by as much as 1,100 pounds, said Doug Smith, a battalion chief for the Columbus Division of Fire.

Authorities have not determined whether the extra weight caused a malfunction.

Polakowski was the last person in a group of students to enter the elevator on the dormitory's third floor when it began to descend with the doors open, campus police said.

Polakowski tried to get back onto the third floor as someone shouted that the elevator was falling, said Rick Amweg, assistant chief of campus police.

The elevator wedged Polakowski against the floor of the third-floor lobby, Amweg said. Polakowski had chest and abdominal injuries and died of mechanical asphyxia, a coroner ruled.

In the past year, the university's elevator repair service responded to six complaints about the elevator that killed Polakowski.

In three cases, the elevator was either overloaded, someone was jumping inside or someone was temporarily trapped, according to university records.

The records don't provide additional details.

Hacker 'DVD John' claims to have cracked iPod, iTunes restrictions

By May Wong
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN JOSE, Calif. – A hacker known for cracking the copy-protection technology in DVDs claims to have unlocked the playback restrictions of Apple Computer Inc.'s iPod and iTunes music products and plans to license his code to others.

The move by Jon Lech Johansen, also known as "DVD Jon," could pit the 22-year-old against Apple's lawyers, experts say, but if successful could free users from some restrictions Apple and its rivals place on digital music.

Today, songs purchased from Apple's online iTunes Music Store can't be played on portable devices made by other companies.

Johansen said he has developed a way to get around those restrictions by creating code that mimics Apple's copy-protection system. But unlike his previous work, which he usually posts for free, the Norway native plans to capitalize on his efforts through his Redwood Shores-based DoubleTwist Ventures, said the company's only other employee, managing director Monique Farantzos.

"There's a certain amount of trouble that Apple can give us, but not enough to stop this," Farantzos said Tuesday. "We believe we're on good legal ground, and our attorneys have given us the green light on this."

Apple spokeswoman Kristin Huguet said the company was declining to comment.

A few others, including RealNetworks Inc.'s RealPlayer Music Store, have also tried to circumvent Apple's copy-protection technology, called FairPlay, but haven't gained much traction.

Fred von Lohmann, a staff attorney at the privacy-advocacy group, Electronic Frontier Foundation, said Johansen is treading carefully this time, consulting with lawyers, but isn't necessarily cleared from a legal fight over copy-protection laws.

Johansen became a hero to hackers at age 15, when he posted software called DeCSS to unlock the Content Scrambling System, or CSS, the film industry used on DVD movies to prevent illegal copying. The act made Johansen, who was then living in Norway, a folk hero among hackers.

After the film industry complained, Norwegian authorities charged him with data break-in, but Johansen was acquitted.

VOTING | Other states revert to paper system

Continued from Page 1

In 2006, the last year for states to receive such benefits, almost one third of all states will use electronic machines for the first time.

In Riley County, these machines received their first test in the August 1 primaries.

"We were happy with the results of the August primaries," Campbell said. "The races turned out extremely close to the predicted results."

However, Campbell admits the primaries may not have been a true test-run in preparation for November.

"We were missing most of the students, since school was not in session, and so many people go on vacation in August that we didn't get a very high turnout," Campbell said.

States like Ohio, Arkansas, Illinois and Maryland did not have the same luck. Across the country this year, faulty equipment and lax security have repeatedly undermined election primaries. In Tarrant County, Texas, electronic machines counted some ballots as many as six times, recording 100,000 more votes than were actually cast.

In a practical systems test conducted by RABA Technologies, a consulting firm experienced in defense and intelligence, all six of the machines tested contained back doors – unprotected ways into the machine's database – hidden in the software that could enable a hacker to upload a malicious code onto the system. RABA rated the safety of the machines an "F."

Three Senate democrats introduced emergency legislation in September to reimburse states for printing paper ballots. Barbara Boxer of California, Christopher Dodd of Connecticut and Russell Feingold of Wisconsin co-sponsored the measure.

This bill would not have required a complete paper trail, but instead would have provided funding for the printing of paper ballots by local election officials, designed for Americans who would want to use a paper ballot instead of an electronic voting machine. If ballots were provided for half of registered American voters, senators said costs would not have exceeded $10.1 million.

The Committee on House Administration heard testimony on the issue last month, deciding not to require a paper trail in all elections. Rather, they opted to continue investigation into America's voting systems.

"My point is that the response is not to throw the machines into the ocean and go back to what we had in 1890," said Michael Shamos, professor of Software Research at Carnegie Mellon University, who testified before the committee. "If it is a technical problem, then there is a technical solution."

A prospective legislative solution to this problem was put on hold when Congress adjourned for its election hiatus Sept. 29.

Those hoping to use a paper ballot in Riley County might be out of luck. Campbell said Riley County plans to produce minimal paper ballots.

"We keep about 20 percent of (paper ballots) on hand, mainly in case of an emergency," said Campbell. "These will be spread throughout the polling booths."

With no chance for congressional resolution before election day, some continue to worry if their right to vote is being compromised.

"I think the election should really mean something," Gratton said. "A fair election is the backbone of our society, and the government at both the national and state level should secure the safest election possible."

IOWA STATE | Cylcones winless in Big 12 play

Continued from Page 6

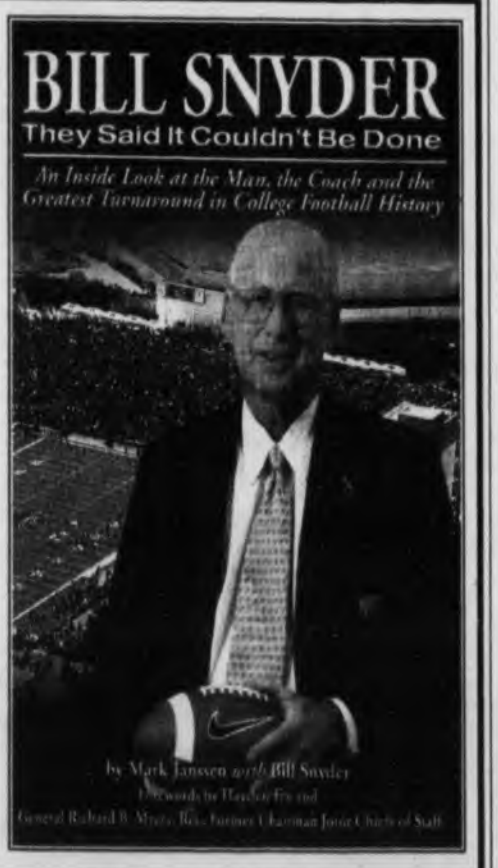
Clayton started four games at running back this season, and has rushed for 322 yards on 67 carries. He was benched in favor of true freshman Leon Patton three weeks ago and has seen very limited action in the reserve role.

"I leave that to the medical people," Prince said. "When they tell me he's ready to play, we'll put him back in. We're holding out hope that he'll come back."

CYCLONES COME TO TOWN

The Wildcats will look to snap a two-game losing streak Saturday against the Cyclones, who come to Manhattan looking to gain some momentum as well.

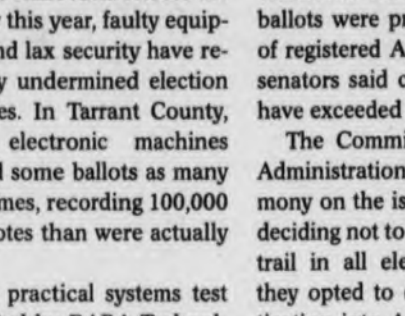
Iowa State is 0-4 in Big 12 play this season and has lost five of its last six games.



K-State has won 13 of the last 16 meetings.

However, the Cyclones have taken the last two games, including a 45-17 victory in Ames, Iowa, last season.

Hungry and Low on Cash?
Grap a coupon from the menu section.
Kansas State University
Campus Phone Book
2006-2007
Available Now
in your Residence Hall
or purchase
in 103 Kedzie
Mon.-Fri. 8-5 p.m.



Coach Bill Snyder
will be autographing his book
Saturday, October 28th
10:00am - 12:00pm
Varney's Book Store
in Aggieville.

Come and pick up your copy of Coach Snyder's biography, They Said It Couldn't Be Done, at Varney's.

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555

Graduate & Professional School Fair
date: Tuesday, October 31st
time: 10AM - 3PM
where: K-State Student Union Ballroom

Seize the opportunity to research programs, institutions, and admission procedures as well as meet with representatives from various colleges, universities and professional schools.

Career and Employment Services
Guiding You from College to Career
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
Manhattan, Kansas
ces@k-state.edu • 785-532-6506
www.k-state.edu/ces

To view a full list of participants go to the CES web site at www.k-state.edu/ces

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

115 Rooms Available

BUNKHOUSE SLEEPING room. $75/ month. Horse - boarding available. 2UW Ranch seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. 785-494-8229.

145 Roommate Wanted

2UW RANCH seeks roommate. No smoking. Private entrance, bedroom, and bath. Family environment. Amenities. Horse - boarding available. Seventeen miles NE of Manhattan. $290/ month, one-fourth utilities. 785-494-8229.

MALE/ FEMALE. Nice Duplex, great location. Move in anytime. $300 + one-fourth utilities per month. Call anytime 785-341-8045.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

150 Sublease

APARTMENT AVAILABLE for sublease as soon as possible. Two-bedroom, full kitchen. Call 502-472-9033 or e-mail focused_ksn@yahoo.com.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed new two-bedroom apartment. Washer/ Dryer. Close to campus and Aggieville. Needed in January. $400 per month per person. Call 816-668-9223 or 913-709-8615.

ADVERTISE IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS. 785 532 6555

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the resturant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

EARN EXTRA cash for next semester!!! We are looking for people to manage firework locations in Louisiana December 20 - January 2. Travel expenses and lodging provided. Call for details 1-800-546-2825.

F.O.R.C.E. Finding Other Resources For Community Enhancement. Skating Rink Supervisor: Responsible for managing the Roundabout Recreational Complex (Skating Rink and Miniature Golf). Duties include opening and closing the facility and set up for scheduled activities. Monitoring of the facility during scheduled events, public relations, and security of the facility. Responsible for inventories of concessions, skates, and all other equipment. Performs record keeping and accounts for all proceeds and provides reports to the Manager. Basic first-aid training and CPR certification preferred. Hours vary (10- 15 per week) and include mornings, evenings, weekdays, and weekends year-round. Must be flexible and highly responsible. Salary: $7.00/ hour. This position requires a High School or GED diploma, a valid driver's license, must pass an extensive background check and strive in providing excellent service to the public. AN APPLICATION MUST BE SUBMITTED IN ORDER TO BE CONSIDERED FOR THIS POSITION. Applications accepted until THE POSITION IS FILLED. Applications are available at the Municipal Building Reception Center, 700 N. Jefferson. Junction City, Kansas, 8am-5pm, Monday - Friday. Applications are also available a www.jcks.com. F.O.R.C.E. is an equal opportunity employer.

FULL OR Part-time, flexible schedule, must be here for the holidays. Apply at Mrs. Powell's Bakery, Manhattan Town Center.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

IMMEDIATE HELP needed transferring from wheelchair. Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays, 5-7 p.m. Call 785-537-3871.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com.

PART-TIME clerical work. Some experience in Quickbooks and Excel preferred, but not required. Good communication and organization skills. Flexible work schedule. Hours: Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm. 785-587-0400.

PART-TIME Furniture Delivery Positions: Flexible work schedule, great pay. Stop by A Full House, 601 S. 5th Street, 785-537-9088.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RETAIL LIQUOR Store accepting applications for part-time sales clerk. Apply at McMillins 930 Hayes Drive, Manhattan. Must be 21.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

STUDENT PROGRAMMER position available. Must be available at least 12 hours per week (up to 20). Starting pay is $10.00 to $12.00 per hour based on experience. Programming experience in Visual Basic or Visual Basic.Net required. Must possess good communication skills. Apply in person at 315-A Houston Street, Manhattan, KS. Contact jobs@stasyx.com with questions.

THE CITY of Ogden is accepting applications for the part-time position of Planning Commission/ Board of Zoning and Appeals Secretary. Duties include attending meetings, taking, preparing and maintaining minutes of the meetings. A pre-employment drug screening may be conducted. Wage is $8.50 per hour. Applications are available at City Hall, 222 Riley Avenue, Ogden, Kansas 66517. Applications are due before Noon, October 31, 2006.

TO ALL COMPUTER PROGRAMMING STUDENTS GRADUATING in December. Full-time software developer position is available in Manhattan, KS. Must possess good communication skills. Apply via the e-recruiting system or email your resume directly to jobs@stasyx.com.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

320 Volunteers Needed

VOLUNTEER AS a MENTOR at UFM Community Learning Center. Great experience for anyone wishing to work with adolescents. Required availability: Tuesdays from 3- 5p.m. and one Sunday evening per month. To apply, visit www.tryufm.org and download the mentor application or stop by UFM at 1221 Thurston Street, Manhattan, KS.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

LIKE NEW - Futon, couch, loveseat, TV's, entertainment units, executives desk, coffee and end tables. Will deliver. Call 785-494-2068.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

785-532-6560 Advertise Here!

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 Internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

ASInc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for: Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

Management Career Opportunity
Independently owned and operated licensee of McDonald's Corporation is seeking experienced QCS or full service managers (for Abilene, Manhattan, and Junction City locations) who have strong organizational, team building and leadership skills. Managers supervise a full staff, manage payroll, motivate crew, and oversee purchasing, inventories, hiring, terminations, training, scheduling, performance reviews, personell decisions and managing P&L's.
Benefits Include:
Monthly bonuses, paid health insurance, paid vacation, 401 (K), 5 paid holidays, paid emergency leave, paid sick days and possibilities for future advancement. Starting salary depends upon experience and qualifications.
Send resume to:
McDonald's
816 N. 4th Street
Manhattan, KS 66502
Or Email to: mcd@flinthills.com
PHONE: 785-539-3070

Attendant Care Providers
Manhattan and Junction City
Part-time positions available providing support with daily living skills to youth and adults with mental health challenges. High School diploma or equivalent required; related experience and/or training preferred. Qualified applicants will be at least 21 years of age and have a valid driver's license with an acceptable record. Send letter of interest to:
HR Director
Pawnee Mental Health Services
PO Box 747
Manhattan, KS 66505
Email - hr@pawnee.org
Pawnee MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES
Equal Opportunity Employer

Riley County Police Department
Career Fair

November 4, 2006
11:00 am to 2:00 pm
Law Enforcement Center
Located at: 1001 S. Seth Child Rd.
Manhattan, Kansas
All interested individuals are invited to attend to learn about a professional career with RCPD (i.e. Police Officer, Corrections Officer, Dispatcher). There will be equipment displays as well as personnel on-site to answer all of your questions.
Free food and beverage will be served.
For additional information, please contact Human Resources at: 785-537-2112 ext. 2310 or ext. 2320
dsilva@rileycountypolice.org

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

7			8	9
6					5
		5		7			4
5	9		2		4	3
		3	7		1		8	2
	2			6		5
			3					9
				4	8			3

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

ADVERTISING Design Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Not a cheap trick

"The Prestige" | TOUCHSTONE PICTURES

Tesla, played by David Bowie pictured above, stars in Touchstone Pictures' "The Prestige." The movie landed at the top of the box office this past weekend, reeling in $14.8 million.

QUIZ ABOUT THE CAST MEMBERS OF "THE PRESTIGE"

1. Of these films to be released in 2007, which one will not feature actress Scarlett Johansson?
A. "Napoleon and Betsy"
B. "Amazon"
C. "Transformers"
D. "Brilliant"

2. What is Hugh Jackman's middle name?
A. Matthew
B. Smith
C. John
D. Michael

3. In the 10th-Anniversary issue of "Entertainment Weekly," this actor was crowned as one of the "Top 8 Most Powerful Cult Figures" of the past decade.
A. Hugh Jackman
B. Christian Bale
C. Mark Ryan
D. Roger Rees

4. Actress Piper Perabo graduated with a theater degree summa cum laude from which university?
A. Ohio University
B. Michigan State University
C. New York University
D. American University

5. Name the quote by actor Michael Caine.
A. "I am British, and I don't give a damn."
B. "Great films are made by great actors. By gosh, I am always in a great film."
C. "First of all, I choose the great roles, and if none of these come, I choose the mediocre ones, and if they don't come, I choose the ones that pay the rent."
D. "My favorite time of year is Christmas, cause that's when all the great films come out."

6. Which is not true about actor Andy Serkis?
A. His father was a doctor in Iraq. His mother taught handicapped children.
B. He went to St Benedict's School, London, UK.
C. He owns one of two prop rings used in "Lord of the Rings."
D. He is 5'11".

7. True or false? Mark Ryan's character on 1984's "Robin of Sherwood," he was supposed to be killed in the pilot episode, "Robin Hood And The Sorcerer," but the writers changed their minds and made him a part of the cast.
A. True
B. False

8. Actor Daniel Davis, known for his role as British butler Niles on "The Nanny," was first exposed to theater through his parents in which U.S. city?
A. Chicago
B. Gurdon, Ark.
C. Springfield, Mo.
D. Millington, Vt.

9. Seven-year-old actress Samantha Mahurin's first recurring role was on what Daytime soap opera?
A. "Days of our Lives"
B. "The Young and the Restless"
C. "Passions"
D. "All My Children"

Source: Internet Movie Database

Answers: 1. C, 2. D, 3. B, 4. A, 5. C, 6. D, 7. A, 8. B, 9. B.

Hugh Jackman stars in "The Prestige" directed by Christopher Nolan, who also directed "Memento" and "Batman Begins."

'Prestige' employs quality magicians' techniques to achieve suspense, excitement, surprise

"The Prestige"
Grade: A
Reviewed by Brendan Praeger

It's been a long time since I've sat in a theater and genuinely wondered what was going to happen next. Sure, sometimes you can't pick out the next scene word-for-word, but it's far too rare to be completely at the mercy of the director.

I'm not talking about the kind of bewilderment exhibited in "Donnie Darko" or "Mulholland Drive." I didn't know what was going to happen in either of these movies, but directors who achieve surprise by confusing the audience are simply cheating. I love "Donnie Darko," but in the commentary not even director Richard Kelly could explain what happened, and he wrote the damn thing.

That's what makes "The Prestige" so impressive. Rather than employ cheap methods to achieve suspense, director Christopher Nolan uses the same techniques that real magicians use. Sleight of hand and misdirection both add to the type of genuinely engaging experience that I haven't seen since "Fight Club" or "The Matrix."

The film begins by explaining the anatomy of every great magic trick:

"The first act is called 'The Pledge.' The magician shows you something ordinary, but of course ... it probably isn't.

"The second act is called 'The Turn.' The magician makes his ordinary something do something extraordinary. Now you're looking for the secret, but you won't find it.

"That's why there's a third act called 'The Prestige.' This is the part with the twists and turns, where lives hang in the balance, and you see something shocking you've never seen before."

The entire film could be dissected into the very same acts.

It starts with a friendly rivalry between two up-and-coming magicians: Rupert Angier (Hugh Jackman) and Alfred Borden (Christian Bale). After a mistake made by Borden leaves Angier's wife dead, Angier teams up with an engineer, Cutter (Michael Caine), to take revenge. Along the way he becomes obsessed with finding the secret to Borden's spectacular new trick: the transported man.

His obsession leads him to the United States, where he commissions a Russian scientist, Tesla (David Bowie) to build him a machine capable of doing something magicians only pretend to do: real magic.

"The Prestige" forsakes a traditional time line by using a series of flashbacks to help the plot unfold. The film begins with Borden on trial for Angier's murder, but like any great trick, things are definitely not what they seem.

While the alternative style of storytelling is one of the film's greatest strengths, Nolan's direction stumbles slightly in a couple of places. The beginning of the story includes narration from Angier, Borden and Cutter. The switching takes place before the character's identities have been adequately established, which creates too much confusion early in the film.

Nolan makes another mistake after the secrets are revealed at the end of the film by flashing back to previous scenes to reveal their importance. Nolan should have a little more respect for his audience's intelligence. Everything comes together beautifully. There's no need to hammer us over the head just to make sure we appreciate the subtle clues left along the way.

It's like Hollywood's version of Cliff notes. When it comes to a great movie, I'd rather do the close reading myself. I don't need the author to scribble reminders in the margins.

Thankfully, a couple of directorial hiccups don't taint the rest of the film.

I worried that Bale and Caine would simply reprise their roles of Batman and Alfred from "Batman Begins," Nolan's previous film. I also harbored concerns about Hugh Jackman. He made a decent Wolverine in the "X-Men" trilogy, but I wasn't sure he'd proven himself dramatically. Luckily, my anxiety was unnecessary.

Bale and Jackman hit every note. They fill the shoes of dark, complex characters without a single second of wavering authenticity. Michael Caine is also terrific, but that's no surprise – he's one of the most reliable actors around.

The supporting cast steps up to the plate as well. Scarlett Johansson, who constantly fails to bring convincing characterization to her clichéd roles, delivers an engaging performance for maybe the first time in her career. Even David Bowie pulls his weight, an impressive accomplishment considering the talent that surrounds him.

Effective costumes and sets are far more important in a period piece than movies set in the present day, and "The Prestige" succeeds in this area as well. I never questioned that the film was taking place at the turn of the century, and even a scientific invention centuries ahead of its time seems plausible within the carefully constructed reality Nolan has built.

Like a great magic trick, "The Prestige" caught me by surprise. Christopher Nolan might be on his way to being the next Hitchcock if he plays his cards right. Next up is "The Dark Knight," his hotly anticipated sequel to "Batman Begins."

For Batman's sake, I hope Nolan still has plenty of tricks up his sleeve.

CELEB NEWS

Cruise, Holmes to wed in Italy mid November

NEW YORK (AP) — Hollywood's most high-profile engaged couple has finally set a wedding date. Tom Cruise and Katie Holmes will marry in Italy on Nov. 18, Cruise's representative, Arnold Robinson, confirmed to The Associated Press on Tuesday.

Holmes will wear a dress designed by Giorgio Armani, Robinson also confirmed.

The wedding date was reported by Us Weekly magazine on its Web site.

Holmes, 27, and Cruise, 44, became engaged in June 2005. Their daughter, Suri, was born April 18.

She made her debut on the cover of Vanity Fair magazine last month. The photo showed Suri peeking out of a jacket worn by Cruise with Holmes looking on.

Cruise and Holmes were first photographed together in Rome in April 2005. Two months later, the "Mission: Impossible" actor announced he had proposed to Holmes atop the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

Holmes, who starred in TV's "Dawson's Creek," was previously engaged to actor Chris Klein. Cruise, previously married to Mimi Rogers and Nicole Kidman, also had a high-profile romance with Penelope Cruz.

BILLBOARD CHARTS TOP 10

The Hot 100

1. Ludacris featuring Pharrell, "Money Maker"
2. Justin Timberlake, "SexyBack"

3. Hinder, "Lips Of An Angel"
4. Akon Featuring Eminem, "Smack That"
5. The Fray, "How To Save A Life"
6. Snow Patrol, "Chasing Cars"

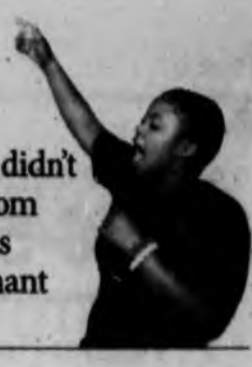
7. JoJo, "Too Little Too Late"
8. Justin Timberlake, "My Love"
9. Jibbs, "Chain Hang Low"
10. Nickelback, "Far Away"

Source: www.billboard.com

TV RATINGS

- For the week of Oct. 2-8, 2006
- Viewers measured in millions

Top TV shows	Viewers
1. "Grey's Anatomy" ABC, Thursday, 8 p.m.	22.9
2. "CSI" CBS, Thursday, 8 p.m.	21.9



3. "Desperate Housewives" ABC, Sunday, 8 p.m.	20.6
4. "Dancing with the Stars" ABC, Tuesday, 7 p.m.	20.1
5. "Dancing with the Stars" ABC, Wednesday, 7 p.m.	18.2
6. "CSI: NY" CBS, Wednesday, 9 p.m.	18.0
7. "CSI: Miami" CBS, Monday, 9 p.m.	17.6
8. "60 Minutes" CBS, Sunday, 5:23 p.m.	17.3
9. "Lost" ABC, Wednesday, 8 p.m.	16.9
10. "Criminal Minds" CBS, Wednesday, 8 p.m.	16.7

Source: www.ew.com

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, October 26, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 49

INSIDE

The pouring rain didn't stop the crowd from showing up at this year's Pant the Chant

Page 7

Sticky process

Photos by Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Kurt Partridge, freshman in mechanical engineering, pomps Pi Kappa Phi's float Wednesday afternoon in the basement of the fraternity.

Top: The floor of Pi Kappa Phi's basement is coated in spray adhesive and pomping tissue remnants as the pairing of greek houses completes their float decor.

Above: Members of Sigma Kappa sorority and Pi Kappa Phi fraternity work on part of their All-University Homecoming float.

Pairings spend hours daily to build floats

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The basement of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity is full of sticky hands and chicken wire this week as fraternity members and their partners prepare their float for the All-University Homecoming parade on Friday.

Pi Kap, with partners Sigma Kappa, Beta Sigma Psi and FarmHouse, designed a float they hope will stand out.

"We heard some speculation that there's a lot of people who are going to go with superheroes," said Chris Dreiling, sophomore in open option and Pi Kap Homecoming chair.

"We tried to put a little bit of a different twist on it and go with a Greek mythology theme."

The float will feature Willie the Wildcat as Zeus coming out of Mount Olympus, Dreiling said. Willie will be sending a lightning bolt down on top of a twister in the middle of a football field.

The pairing plans to spend a great deal of time piecing together the float.

"Basically we're going to spend every waking moment together this week," Dreiling said.

"Right now there's probably between 20 to 30 people working on the float."

To the Homecoming partners, the most difficult part is dividing their time between the float and the other Homecoming activities.

The average person working on the float is putting in about four hours a day, said Heather Forsythe, junior in mass communications and Sigma Kappa Homecoming chair.

"It's a lot of sacrifice on our part in terms of making sure we put in the times to get it done," said Eric Williams, sophomore in construction science and Pi Kap member.

The workers spend a majority of their time pomping for the float. Pomping is the process of attaching paper to chicken wire with a spray adhesive. This decorated chicken wire is then attached to a trailer to form the float.

See FLOAT Page 9

KU professors develop AIDS vaccine for clinical trials

By Sarah Nightingale
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Lenexa-based company ImmunoGenetix offers new hope for HIV-positive patients as its "GenePro" AIDS vaccine moves toward phase I clinical trials.

With more than 40 million people worldwide already living with HIV/AIDS and 600 people infected every hour, there is a critical demand for novel, effective treatment options.

This need is reflected in the market. In the United States alone, the market for HIV/AIDS is $6 billion, and this is forecasted to double by 2011.

ImmunoGenetix hopes to take advantage of this market with a new DNA-based anti-HIV vaccine strategy.

The vaccine was developed by Bill Narayan, a Marion Merrell Dow professor of molecular genetics and immunology, and his team of physicians and scientists at the University of Kansas Medical Center. Peer-reviewed proof of concept studies, performed on monkeys – the best model to mimic HIV infection in humans – recently were published in Virology, one of the leading journals in the field.

The development of a vaccine offers the potential for treatment that is different from today's conventional regimen. Currently, anti-viral drug cocktails call for 20 or more pills every day and are associated with potent side effects, serious long-term complications and the possible emergence of resistant HIV strains. These drugs, although effective in their ability to suppress infection and prolong the life of patients, are incredibly expensive: the average cost being between $10,000 and $15,000 per patient per year – a great burden on the U.S. healthcare system.

The new vaccine, which is administered by a single injection four times a year, aims to elicit an immune response strong enough to keep HIV at bay and thus abate or reduce the need for expensive anti-viral drug cocktails.

HIV vaccines have historically been unsuccessful, so the enthusiasm for this vaccine is encouraging. Professor Rollie Clem, a virologist in K-State's Division of Biology, said the results from animal

See AIDS Page 9

Gubernatorial candidate Barnett hits key issues

ELECTIONS 2006

By Willow Williamson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Republican gubernatorial candidate Jim Barnett favors an alternative school funding plan, one that gives $495 million to education over four years, he said in a Wednesday evening lecture.

Education, the economy, healthcare and immigration were the key topics Barnett addressed before an audience of 50-60 people in the K-State Student Union.

Originally the event was planned as a debate between Barnett and incumbent Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, said Tristan Tafolla and Kyle Malone, Union Program Council Forum co-chairmen. However, Sebelius could not work the event into her schedule.

The lecture was sponsored by UPC and KSU College Republicans.

Barnett, who grew up on a farm in Redding, Kan., is a doctor and a school board member. He has served in the Kansas Senate for the last six years, where his main focuses were healthcare and education.

In his speech, Barnett stressed the importance of funding for education, but he did not vote for the school revenue bill, because he said it outspends the state. Only the first year of spending for the bill is appropriated, sending the state in debt during the second two years.

Barnett's alternative school funding plan provides for four years and $495 million of appropriated funding. Thus, he said his plan will not hurt the state's revenue.

Kansas's economy was another of Barnett's main issues. He stressed the importance of keeping people in Kansas, instead of looking out of

See BARNETT Page 9

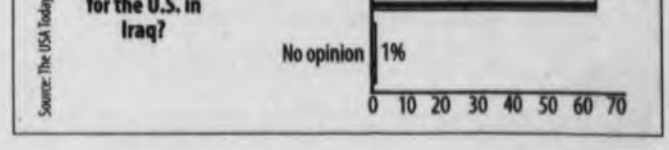
Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Jim Barnett, Republican candidate for Kansas governor, speaks Wednesday evening in the K-State Student Union Ballroom.

Today's forecast
Showers
High: 54 Low: 40

INSIDE

Media Day
The men's and women's basketball teams had their annual media day. Find out how the teams look this season.



Sports, Page 8

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

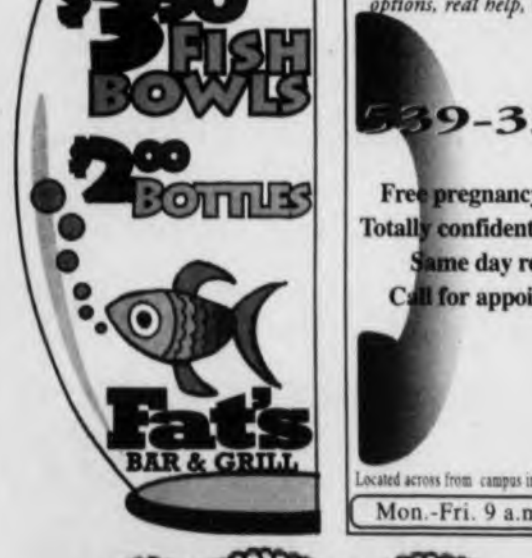
Carnival, elections
The Monster Mash Children's Carnival is 6-8 tonight in the K-State Student Union. K-State student ambassador elections are from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. today in the Union. For more coverage, visit www.kstatecollegian.com, listen to KSBD-FM 91.9, watch Manhattan Matters or read the Royal Purple.

Research award
Seong-Hyun Park, graduate student in horticulture, received her second People-Plant Interaction Research Award from the International Society for Horticultural Science in Seoul, South Korea. Her winning investigation researched the influence of plants and flowers in hospital rooms and how they affect patients.

Soil-judging honors
The K-State Soil Judging Team won first place in team and group judging at the 2006 Region 5 Soil Judging Contest. Adam Heitman, junior in agronomy, took the high individual top honor. Paul Hartley, junior in agronomy, and Kelsey McGie, freshman in milling science and management, tied for sixth.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Graceful girl
5 Edge
8 Hit hard
12 Unyielding
13 Mound stat
14 Mexican money
15 Oklahoma city
16 Prohibit
17 Highway
18 Take out of context?
20 Resign
22 Local court activity, often
26 Winnows
29 — judicata
30 Squabble
31 Ark builder
32 Poolroom stick
33 Between jobs
34 Possess
35 Hiatus
36 Indulges in voguing
37 It's usually labeled "B"
40 "Meet Me — Louis"
41 Straightens
45 Vicinity
47 Cleo's vanquisher
49 Ardor
50 Long-popular talk-show host
51 Mamie's man
52 Facility
53 Basilica section
54 Zero
55 Tie

DOWN
1 Multi-colored
2 Sea eagle
3 Disturb
4 Comprehensive
5 Guitar's ancestor
6 A Gershwin brother
7 Theater sign
8 Parsley piece
9 Trapezists' wear
10 Neighbor of Can.
11 Deity
19 "My country, — of thee"
21 High times
23 German munitions family
24 Double agent
25 Rams fans?
26 Uppity sort
27 "The Music Man" setting
28 Enthusiasts
32 Team leader
33 Charged, in a sense
35 Astronaut Grissom
36 Chum
38 Jack, in cards
39 Boutonniere site
42 Equipment
43 35-Down's employer
44 Dispatched a dragon
45 "I — Rock"
46 Dem.'s rival
48 Tackle moguls

Solution time: 25 mins.

		Y	E	S			O	L	D
	S	O	A	P		S	P	E	A	K
P	U	L	S	E		T	I	N	S	E	L
J	E	K	Y	L	L	A	N	D	H	Y	D	E
S	T	S		L	I	N	E	S		P	O	W
		P	E	N	D			G	A	P	E
A	L	E	R	T		G	O	U	D	A
A	S	E	A			M	A	N	Y
S	P	A		K	I	A	N	G		P	L	U
H	I	D	E	A	N	D	G	O	S	E	E	K
C	O	M	P	E	L		I	M	A	G	E
	N	I	P	P	Y		N	E	R	O
		T	A	T			G	E	L

Yesterday's answer 10-26

10-26 CRYPTOQUIP

XBJ FTNWJ LTFIOAG VOR RLYOFZQWAH VWXBTMX O EMQQ RXOEE, ZMX JNJAXMOQQG WX HTX O HYWI.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A CHEF IS TEACHING YOU TO USE A COLANDER, I'D CALL YOU AN APPRENTICE IN STRAINING.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: X equals T

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

Test your Halloween movie knowledge

Courtesy Art

The countdown to Halloween has begun. Next Tuesday, many people will watch their favorite scary movies to get in the Halloween spirit. How well do you know your Halloween movies?

1. "Oh, gross. Whatever disease you guys have, I'm sure it's got letters and that they make pills for it."
a. "The Nightmare Before Christmas"
b. "Monster House"
c. "Haunted Mansion"

2. "Sidney, how does it feel to be almost brutally butchered? How does it feel? People have a right to know."
a. "Scream"
b. "Silent Hill"
c. "Halloween"

Courtesy Art

3. "Oh, you are my little girl. I love you so much that I left you a little something in the coffee can. But you have to remember to step on it before you sell it. Now, what are you going to cut it with?"
a. "Psycho"
b. "Bride of Frankenstein"
c. "Scary Movie"

Courtesy Art

4. "I don't want to be too forward, but I don't notice a lot of kids around, and I'm trying to find other kids to have play dates with Emily."
a. "Hide and Seek"
b. "Dawn of the Dead"
c. "Peeping Tom"

5. "I can't imagine being stuck down a well all alone like that. How long could you survive?"
a. "Rosemary's Baby"
b. "Dracula"
c. "The Ring"

6. "Oh, someone has seen her, all right. Someone always sees a girl with $400,000."
a. "The Addams Family"
b. "Psycho"
c. "Fear"

7. "Don't let him kill me."
a. "Madhouse"
b. "The Omen"
c. "Sacred Bloods"

8. "Hush, child. No more screaming, no more running. It's time to die."
a. "I Know What You Did Last Summer"
b. "The Rage"
c. "Terror Night"

If you answered 0-3 correctly, you should use this weekend to brush up on your horror movie quotes. Just think, you can use them on friends and to give them a spooky Halloween.

If you answered 4-6 correctly, good job. You know some of your Halloween movies. Now have the ultimate Halloween experience by going to the "Rocky Horror Picture Show" Friday.

If you answered 7-8 correctly, you do know your movies, but it also could mean you have a little too much time on your hands. On Halloween night, you should find a Halloween party. It could be a good time.

Source: www.imdb.com

Compiled by Kristen Roderick | COLLEGIAN

Answers: 1.b, 2.a, 3.c, 4.a, 5.c, 6.b, 7.b, 8.a

The planner
Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.
- A drag show will be at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the K-State Student Union Forum Hall. The event is sponsored by the Queer Straight Alliance.
- The Anthony Bates Foundation Free Heart Screening Event will be 1-5 p.m. Sunday at the K-State Alumni Center. For more information, contact Sharon@AnthonyBates.org.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Chong Pyo Choe at 9 a.m. Monday in Ackert 324.
- The Graduate/Professional School Fair is 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.
- The KSU Ballroom Dance Club will have a costume dance 8-10 p.m. Tuesday in Union Station.

Corrections and clarifications

There was an error in Tuesday's Collegian. The e-mail address for Ron Jones, president of the flying club, is ron@jonesaudia.net. The Collegian regrets the error. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

THURSDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 FISH BOWLS
$2.00 BOTTLES
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Krystallos
New FALL Arrivals
clothing • purses
belts • jewelry
1218 ½ MORO
AGGIEVILLE

RAMBLERS
Steakhouse & Saloon
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner- 2 complete dinners
$2.00 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

RC McGraws
776.9588
Wildcat headquarters before & after the game
Open at 3pm
LIVE FRIDAY & SATURDAY
DUSTIN EVANS
Appearing Live 9-Close
Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound
Food & Drink Specials ALL Weekend Long!
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Mondays mean Menu Mania
Every Monday look in the Collegian for the hottest deals from the hottest restaurants
To advertise in Menu Mania, Call 785-632-6560

Ambassador candidates share motivation, goals

By Nicole Johnston
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Elections for Student Ambassadors are from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union. The male and female winners will receive a $1,500 scholarship from the K-State Alumni Association and will represent the K-State student body for one year. The winners will be announced at Saturday's football game. The nominees for this year's ambassador elections are as follows:

Erin Gettler
SOPHOMORE IN PRE-MED AND BIOLOGY

Why do you want to be an ambassador?
"A Wildcat born and raised, I feel like my passion for K-State would be in tune with the requirements and tasks put before a student ambassador. I think it would be an honor to represent the student body at various events throughout the state of Kansas."

What would you do if you were an ambassador?
"As an ambassador, I want to represent the life of a K-State college student. Serving as the link between alumni's memories of their K-State experience and illustrating to future students what it means to be a Wildcat, an ambassador demonstrates his or her purple pride to everyone."

Megan Hanson
JUNIOR IN ELEMENTARY EDUCATION

Why do you want to be an ambassador?
"I have had so many wonderful experiences with prospective students, parents and alumni, so I automatically knew that this position was a great one to go for. I was an orientation leader this past summer, and I have worked in the K-State admissions office for over two years now, and both situations allowed me to spread the word about K-State and all it has to offer. I am from around the area, and I have bled purple my entire life. To serve as a K-State ambassador would be an amazing honor and opportunity for me."

What would you do if you were an ambassador?
"I am surrounded by such a great student body, and without them, there would not be a whole lot for me to talk about to prospective students or alumni. Therefore, I feel like if I were to be elected, I would be more than ready to talk with anyone who wanted to know what K-State is all about: great students, great alumni, and great faculty and staff. Not only do I know the facts, but I am a present K-State student with unique experiences myself. I want everyone to have a glimpse at what it's like to be a part of the K-State family."

Katelyn Schmidt
JUNIOR IN PUBLIC RELATIONS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE

Why do you want to be an ambassador?
"I want to be an ambassador because I want to serve this university, become involved and represent the diversity on campus. I think our school is amazing, and I want others to experience the welcoming atmosphere and pride of K-State."

What would you do if you were an ambassador?
"If I were elected, I would try my best to bridge the gap between K-State and prospective students. I would represent K-State by simply being myself and letting this university speak for itself."

Taylor Symons
SOPHOMORE IN SPEECH COMMUNICATION

Why do you want to be an ambassador?
"I would love to serve as student ambassador for Kansas State because I feel like I can use my love and passion for this school to reconnect with alumni and also to recruit students from all over the state and region to come to our fine university."

What would you do if you were an ambassador?
"This position is already mapped out from the day student ambassadors are elected. Student ambassadors attend (K-State) Alumni Association events, like Cat Backer Club events as well as many prospective new student recruitment events like For Sophomores Only and Just for Juniors. I would carry out all of the duties of student ambassador with as much pride and passion as I possibly can."

Cody Catlin
SENIOR IN ACCOUNTING AND FINANCE

Why do you want to be an ambassador?
"I want to be an ambassador because I bleed purple. I've been around K-State all my life and have grown to be very passionate toward K-State. I know the value of a K-State experience firsthand and would like the opportunity to share it with current and future students, faculty and alumni. I am very proud to be a student here at K-State and feel I'm part of a unique group of crazy people called K-Staters. When you grow up in a house with purple carpet, K-State wallpaper and have Christmas under a purple and white tree, K-State kind of grows on you. I guess that's part of the reason why I'm so passionate for K-State."

What would you do if you were an ambassador?
"If I were elected as an ambassador, realistically I may shed a few tears, and then I'd work hard to strengthen the relationships with current alumni and students, faculty and staff, and prospective students. For K-State to continue to be a top public institution, it is important that we build on these relationships and create more in its progression. Go Cats."

Andy Ellis
SENIOR IN POLITICAL SCIENCE AND PRE-LAW

Why do you want to be an ambassador?
"I want to be an ambassador because I think that the traditions and ideals that K-State has are important, and I can convey those beliefs to current and future students, faculty and alumni."

What would you do if you were an ambassador?
"If I'm elected, I would work hard to promote the K-State experience to future students and make sure that alumni know that current K-Staters are making a difference every day on campus."

K-State continues construction on technology classrooms

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Creating a high-tech classroom in Leasure Hall cost $430,000-450,000, said Rebecca Gould, director of the K-State Information Technology Assistance Center.

This is one example of high-tech classrooms, called Humanities Commons, that are under construction at K-State.

Gould said facilities, technology and telecom expenses are considered when creating a high-tech classroom.

Part of the cost of the facilities in Leasure 13 is changing the dirt floor to cement and epoxy, Gould said. Other factors in facilities costs include fire code and accessibility compliance.

Typically, facilities costs run between $150,000 and $200,000. Normal costs for the technology are $75,000-150,000, and telecom cost run $5,000-10,000, Gould said.

"Technical equipment in an existing classroom is on a three-year rollover cycle and is part of the consideration for budgeting for new and existing classrooms," Gould said.

The software that makes all of this technology run seamlessly with display panels that switch between computers and memory sticks can cost as much as to $20,000. Gould said even something as small as a projector bulb costs $500.

Money for these rooms doesn't come from just one source.

"The technology classrooms are funded by a variety of sources, including general fees, maintenance monies, student-tuition enhancement monies, department funds and grants," Gould said.

While the classrooms are costly, they could cut down on the overwhelming cost of equipment.

"Spreading the costs over multiple departments allows the university to provide more for the faculty and students," said Beth Unger, vice provost for Academic Services and Technology. "Another advantage to the Commons is that the trivial task of keeping hardware and software operating is taken off of the faculty and placed on at least two individuals who are experts in such areas."

With Internet connections, projection systems and high-powered computers becoming common, high-tech classrooms are just another step to improve the quality of education.

"The concept of the Humanities Commons addresses the need to provide (collaboratories) that have no course/discipline boundaries," Gould said.

One such technologically enhanced classroom is the music-based technology classroom that opened last year in McCain Auditorium.

"The classroom has 16 Macintosh workstations outfitted with a MIDI keyboard, headphones and music processing software," said Paul Hunt, head of the Department of Music.

The room is used for theory support, music composition support, arranging and marching band techniques.

Two plasma screen monitors, an Elmo and cameras pointed at the teacher and students for distance education are also part of this classroom.

"Outfitting this classroom took nearly two years of planning and the help of the IT folks, along with the music department and the university," Hunt said.

K-State has 42 technology classrooms and studios across its Manhattan and Salina campuses. Each of these classrooms is equipped with one or two computers, microphone systems and LCD projectors.

"When we design classrooms, we ask instructors to imagine what the perfect setting would be like if there were no limitations," Unger said.

K-State not only provides up-to-date classrooms, but also provides total or partial wireless access across campus.

Gould said the university has been recognized as one of the nation's most wireless campuses, as 76 percent of the Manhattan campus and 100 percent of the Salina campus is wireless.

"We would like to make the entire Manhattan campus wireless," Gould said. "The issue is funding and the need for secure closets in each building to house both the wired and wireless infrastructure. The networking team is continuing to find new ways to improve technology here at K-State."

ROYAL PURPLE
yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555.

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
LIVE IN CONCERT TONIGHT
KEVIN FOWLER
WITH SPECIAL GUEST
PETE GILE
TICKETS ON SALE NOW
IN ADVANCE $10 — AT THE DOOR $8

Have you ever had to convince everyone that working on the Homecoming Float would be "fun"?
Our paper is a lot more fun to work with than toilet paper.
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling toiletries
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes. Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL or e-mail jbarmon@ksu.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL, FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

Introducing
CourseScheduler 2007
Quick, Easy, Free.
CourseScheduler is a free program designed to help you arrive at your perfect schedule. It's just as fun as doing it the old fashion way, but you can now skip all that erasing stuff.
Find out what over 10,000 students already know:
enrollment is easy.
Download today from CourseScheduler.com

Victory handout

If conservative Christians abstain from voting, they do themselves the greatest disservice

BRETT KING

Our government's makeup could change drastically in 12 days. However, the ownership of the House and Senate will change hands to the Democrats, not by their success in elections, but rather by conservative Christians handing it to them.

The Democrats running on the state and national level have not gained voters. Due to recent disagreements between Republicans, the average GOP voter feels left behind in politicians' pursuit of the conservative Christian vote.

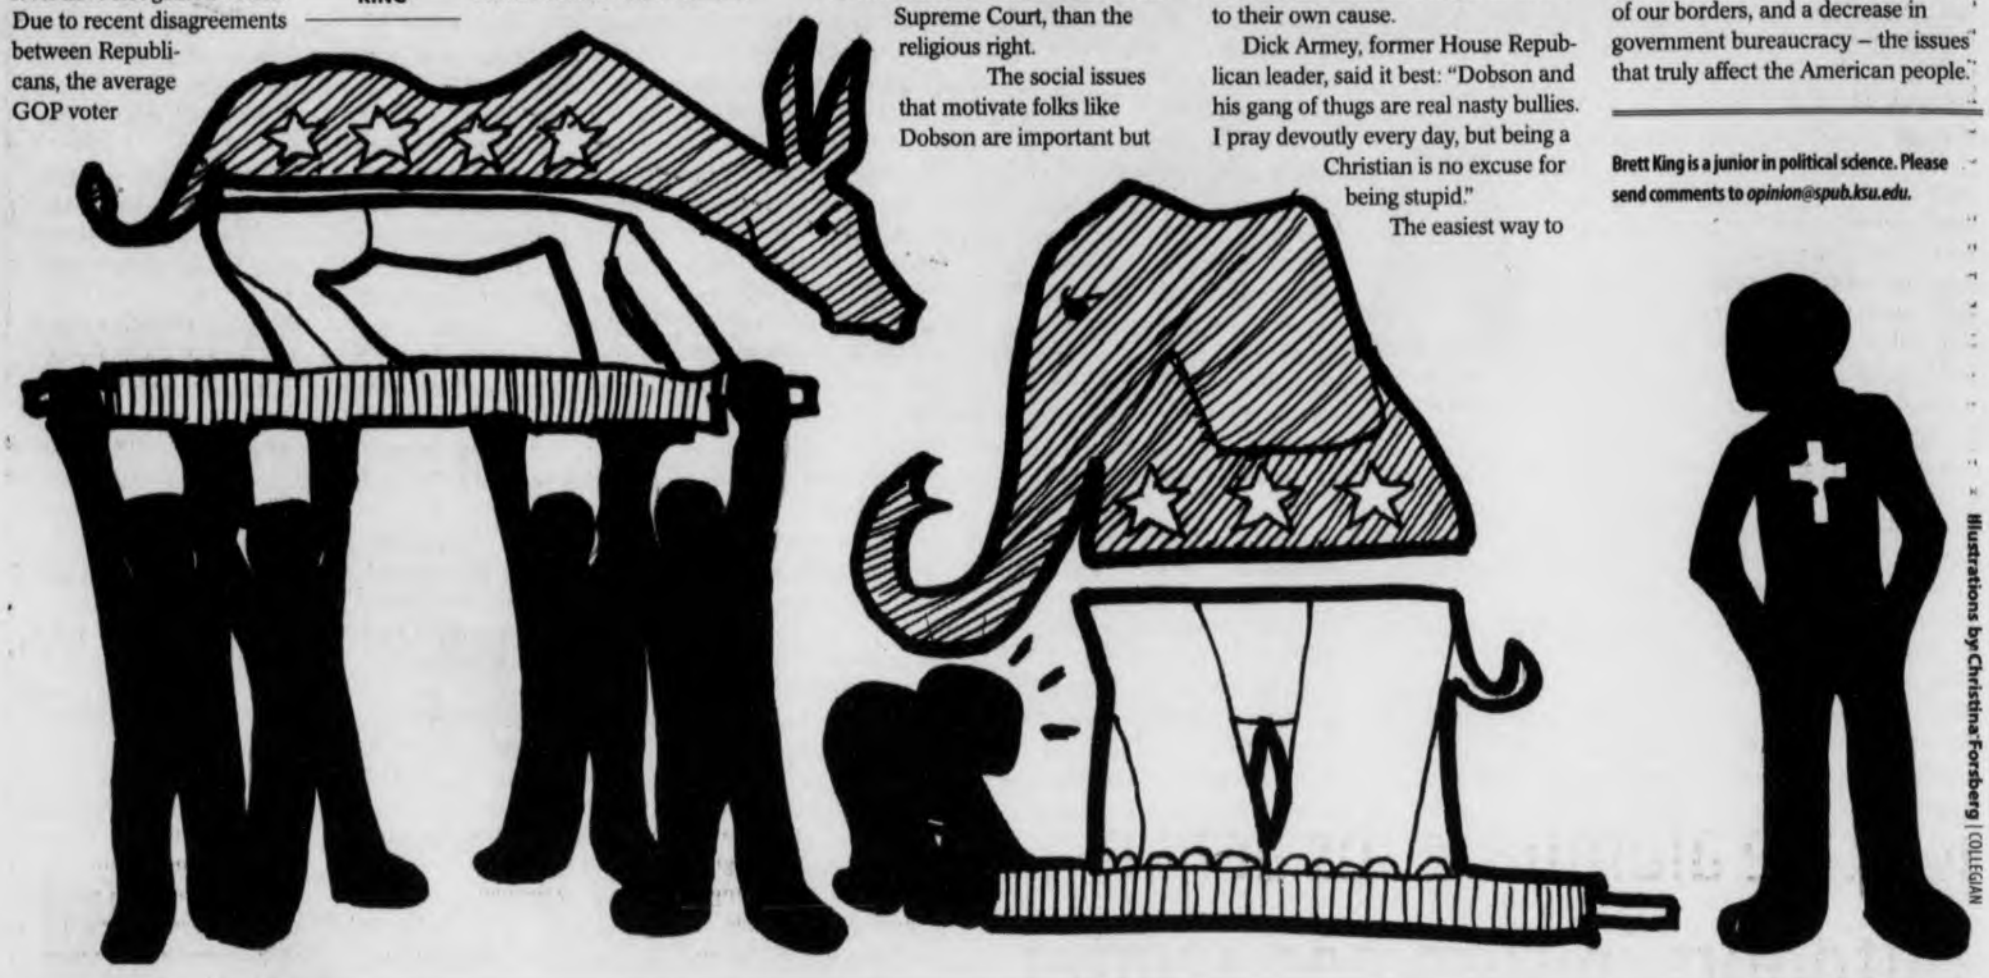
Even with all the pandering, Dr. James Dobson, founder of the Focus on the Family Institute, believes conservative Christians should teach the Republican party a lesson by not voting in the upcoming elections.

Dobson was quoted at the recent Values Voters Summit saying, "In 2004, we really did break our necks to turn out the vote. For the two years since then, I have been extremely disappointed with what the Republicans have done with the power they were given."

Since 2004, conservative Christian ideals have been central in the country's domestic policy. No other group in America has seen more victories, like the appointments of Justices John G. Roberts and Samuel Alito to the Supreme Court, than the religious right.

The social issues that motivate folks like Dobson are important but are not the issues that need to be at the forefront of Congressional debate. Their ideals and beliefs should be argued in the marketplace of ideas. It is their job to change the hearts and minds of Americans.

Conservative Christians need to remember that they should not cut off their nose to spite their face. If they were to follow Dobson's request and stay home on Nov. 7, conservative Christians would do a larger disservice to their own cause.



Dick Armey, former House Republican leader, said it best: "Dobson and his gang of thugs are real nasty bullies. I pray devoutly every day, but being a Christian is no excuse for being stupid."

The easiest way to lose is to not show up.

A loss for the GOP would be a serious blow to our country, but it might be just what the Republicans need. Losing the House or Senate would force Republicans to remember how they gained control back in 1994.

Republicans need to formulate a new contract with the nation for today's situation. A contract that stresses lower taxes, fiscal responsibility, privatization of Social Security, protection of our borders, and a decrease in government bureaucracy – the issues that truly affect the American people.

Brett King is a junior in political science. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

Concealed-carry laws stop crime better than gun control policies

CHUCK ARMSTRONG

There are about 150 deaths a year of children under the age of 19 caused by the misuse of firearms, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, using the year 2000 as a standard.

This statistic is, of course, devastating, but in comparison to other statistics, it is minuscule.

In 2005, more than 190,000 women were raped, according to www.rainn.org, and more than 16,000 fatalities caused by drunk driving, according to www.alcoholalert.com.

Yet it seems that many American politicians, talk show hosts and celebrities concern themselves more with limiting citizens' rights to bear arms than with rape prevention or limiting drunk driving.

Have you ever heard a politician talk about ways to put an end to rape? Have you ever seen a documentary on drunk driving?

There is no question that there is a crime problem in the United States, and there might be a direct correlation between that and handguns. Is this problem solved with more gun control laws?

Many would have you believe the answer is simple: yes. Michael Moore would say, "If we would reduce the number of handguns in the United State, we would have fewer murders."

Once the concealed carry law was passed, Florida's homicide rate fell from 36 percent above the national average to 4 percent below the national average, according to www.gunfacts.info.

After the same law was passed in Texas, the serious crime rate fell twice as fast than the national average.

Robbery, murder, assault and violent crime are at least 75 percent more likely in these states compared to the 38 states that allow citizens the right to carry a handgun, according to www.gunfacts.info. Even with these statistics, gun control would at least keep guns out of the hands of those who should not have them, right?

Hillary Clinton said, "I believe the American people are ready to come together as a nation and do whatever it takes to keep guns away from people who shouldn't have them."

Do laws really prevent criminals from committing crimes or inhibit their means of doing so?

Our country has wasted billions upon billions of dollars on the War on Drugs, and yet more than 1.2 million Americans have been arrested for drug offenses this year, according to www.drugsense.org.

A criminal is a criminal because he or she refuses to obey laws. Creating more gun control laws do not inhibit a criminal's means of acquiring a firearm.

Rather, these laws hinder American citizens from justly protecting themselves against enemies who mean them harm.

Take the act of rape, for example. With gun control laws, rapists need not worry whether their victim has a gun, since the average victim of rape is a stereotypical "innocent" female and most likely wouldn't break a gun control law.

Can you imagine if we, as a nation, passed federal gun control laws? Criminals could exploit these laws to the maximum for their own benefit.

Now imagine that this possible rape victim has the right to carry a handgun. A bullet in the head stops rape instantly, and usually, "I have a gun" could put a stop to it pretty fast, too.

We, as American citizens, have the right to own a gun and defend ourselves if necessary, and this is protected by the Second Amendment.

No matter how you try to decipher this text, it plainly and simply states that "the people have the right to keep and bear arms."

What would happen if our country focused less time and money on passing gun control laws to prevent crimes and more on actually preventing these crimes? Perhaps we should expect more from our politicians and our society than just trying to keep Joe Bob down the street from owning a pistol.

Perhaps, my friends, we should not blame guns for crimes that humans commit.

Chuck Armstrong is a junior in English education. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

University needs forum to introduce ambassador candidates to student body

At 5:30 p.m. today, voting will close for student ambassador candidates. The winners will be the face of K-State for many parents and potential students for the next year, which is why it is important for students to cast a vote for their preferred candidate.

However, students cannot be expected to make an educated decision about the candidates because little attempt is made to introduce the candidates and their goals to the student body.

If a student was to see the candidates at Wildcat Request Live, for example, that student would know the candidates' names, majors, hometowns and favorite K-State moment – that's all.

Ambassador candidates shouldn't have to campaign, but something must be done to better educate students about the individuals who will represent the university for the next 12 months.

The Collegian proposes a forum or panel, where students and faculty can question those who wish to be ambassadors. This will allow students to cast votes based on knowledge, rather than voting in a popularity contest.

The candidates go through an extensive selection process just to be finalists, but students have the right to know more about these candidates. The higher-ups can decide who will be the best finalists, and the students can judge those finalists based on agreement and appreciation of ideas, rather than name recognition.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

No one ever said Chi O is the best sorority on campus. They just said they were the stupidest.

Hey, Jonas Hogg, how about you think about the old times when college tuition used to be affordable, instead of the BS you used yesterday?

Yeah, basketball tickets on sale on eBay.

Ted is not our house boy.

Whoever just threw a cup of ice water at me — I hate you so much.

I saw scooter girl this morning, and she smiled at me. Made my day.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Despite sales decrease, RP to keep print edition

By Megan Molitor
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

College yearbooks might be fading away because of a lack of student interest.

"It's declining, because it's difficult to cover large campuses and market them to students," said Mary Bershenyi, editor in chief of K-State's Royal Purple Yearbook. "It's sad, because when you lose the yearbooks, you lose a lot of the history."

The University of Missouri-Columbia's Savitar yearbook has stopped publication on its print version and is switching to an online version. This change is due to sales decreases.

"The main reason for ending the print version is that for most students, buying a yearbook is not a top priority," Matt Sokoloff, Savitar staff member, said. "However, most students will realize later on that they will want those memories."

Sokoloff said the most difficult part of putting together a yearbook is trying to capture successfully what it is like to be a student with one publication.

He said going online will drastically help sales.

"So far, we've had about twice as many people buy the online version as we did the print version," Sokoloff said.

"A yearbook requires permanence and that's something you can't always have with an electronic version. It helps to have something tangible in your hand so that you can just thumb through to find what you want instead of going through an entire DVD."

Linda Puntney
ROYAL PURPLE ADVISER

"We can archive all the articles, so students can see what was different in other years and view previous trends."

The Royal Purple has experienced similar declines in sales, but it will not be so quick to halt the print version.

"I do not see us ever going strictly to an online version," Linda Puntney, Royal Purple adviser, said.

However, Puntney said she can see the Royal Purple changing the format of the yearbook somewhat, perhaps becoming more reliant on the DVD supplication that comes with the yearbook.

"A yearbook requires permanence, and that's something you can't always have with an electronic version," Puntney said. "It helps to have something tangible in your hand, so that you can just thumb through to find what you want instead of going through an entire DVD.

"We will continue to be technology trendsetters and be in tune with new media, but we will not replace the print version."

Bershenyi, junior in journalism, also said she does not think the Royal Purple will switch to a solely online version, adding that the staff does a lot of advertising to increase sales.

"After every deadline, we go through an index of who was in all the pictures and send out cards to the people in them to let them know," she said. "We get a lot of good feedback from that."

Bershenyi said the yearbook is an essential part of school history, as it is one of the only lasting records available.

"In 20 years, you may not remember if President Bush spoke here in your sophomore year or your senior year," Bershenyi said.

K-State alumna leads activities outdoors in summer, winter

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

This is the second in a series about K-State alumni who have great jobs.

Adrienne Kirkwood, river guide for Jackson Hole Whitewater, a whitewater rafting company

■ Location: Jackson, Wyo.

■ Degree: Parks and recreational management and environmental interpretation from K-State in 1999

■ Other work experience: Working as a leader for Adventure Treks, Inc., which leads people in dozens of wilderness activities during the summer and a ski patroller in Vermont during the winter.

■ How did you get into working at Adventure Treks?
I actually was referred to them. They knew I was into outdoor stuff. I've been working at Sugar Bush Resort doing ski patrol in Vermont in the fall and winter and then, in the summers, Adventure Treks.

■ What has been your best adventure?
Why, I don't know. There's a lot. Adventure Treks takes me to a lot of great places.

■ What helped prepare you for your career?
Just definitely being outside. The program at K-State — I had a great time out there. The major was pretty solid in science. Just being outside and just working seasonally outdoors.

■ What are some misconceptions about your job?
Working with people. You have to have a knack for it. Not every person can deal with the people and elements at the same time. It can be taxing because you have to put up with people who are tourists. You just have to make sure people are being safe. Sometimes, people think your life is so easy, but you're working hard. You have to be able to handle anything.

■ What can students do to prepare for this kind of career?
Advice I would give is to get as many certifications in the field as you can and keep them current — any certifications to boost your résumé.

TO THE EDITOR

Students should donate to campus campaign for United Way, which aids 16 local agencies

Editor,

The KSU campaign for United Way is in full swing, and if readers haven't completed their pledge forms, I urge them to do it now.

Sixteen essential agencies benefit from United Way of Riley County, including the American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters and the KSU Child Development Center. They all depend on our contributions in order to serve people in need, here in our community.

Dick Seaton
K-STATE UNITED WAY CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE MEMBER

Funding frustration should be aimed at SGA; columnist can't blame grant beneficiaries

Editor,

Chuck Armstrong's article regarding SGA's allocation of privilege fees was upsetting; however, I was not sympathetic toward the writer.

I understand that Armstrong was frustrated with the system and lack of money, but his issue should be with SGA, not with the Society for Appreciation of Bharatiya Heritage and Arts. I do not understand his need to not only blame SABHA, but also make sarcastic comments that only left him sounding bitter and ignorant.

The fact that Armstrong has never heard of SABHA has no correlation to whether it should receive funds. I attended the beautiful, unique, and educational event it sponsored last semester, and I'm very excited to attend the upcoming dance performances.

Bharatnatyam is a graceful, powerful, complex tradition of dance that is only one aspect of a very rich culture. This event is free to anyone who wants to take advantage of the opportunity to experience something special.

Armstrong, I challenge you to understand that your ability to pronounce a word has no bearing on its importance.

I challenge you to take the time to learn how to pronounce this word and maybe even educate yourself on something new and different.

Lastly, I challenge you to learn how to express your frustrations without making ignorant, offensive comments about innocent organizations who are only trying to educate you on what you obviously do not understand.

Sheena Nagaraja
SENIOR IN BIOLOGY

Prosperity, multitude of opportunities refute liberals' claim of catastrophic state of U.S.

Editor,

You know, all humor has some truth in it. That's why it's too bad the cartoon in Wednesday's Collegian lacked the slightest ring of it.

Bush fiddling while America burns. Come on, you liberals can do better than that. The liberals in this country are content to paint America in dire straits economically, socially, and in about any other way possible. That's not funny; it's mostly just sad. We live in the greatest country on earth.

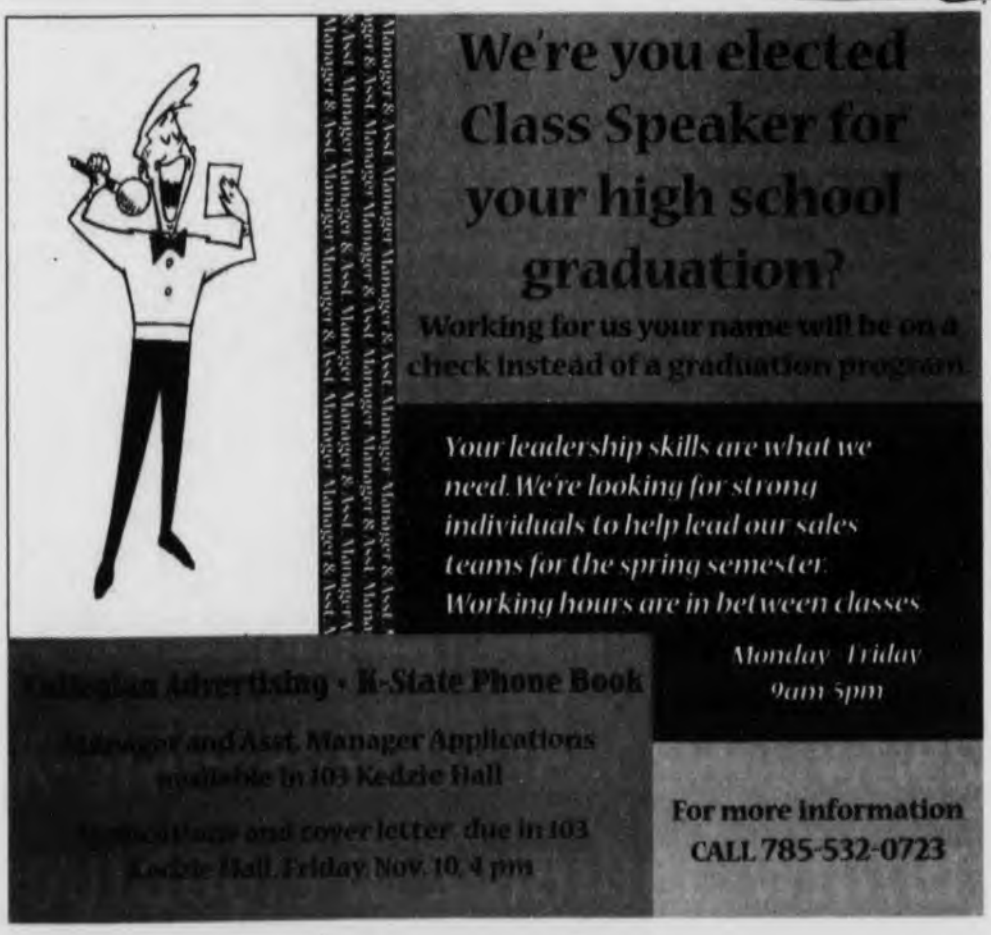
A country with boundless opportunities for its citizens. A country where anyone can do anything they want as long they have the will to do it. Moreover, we live in a time of unrivaled prosperity. The DOW is set to hit 12,000 anytime; unemployment is at 4.6 percent, and gas prices are low and will continue to fall. Tax cuts are allowing people to spend more and allow businesses to hire more people, which continues to spur the economy.

All it takes to accomplish anything in this country is simply the will to do it.

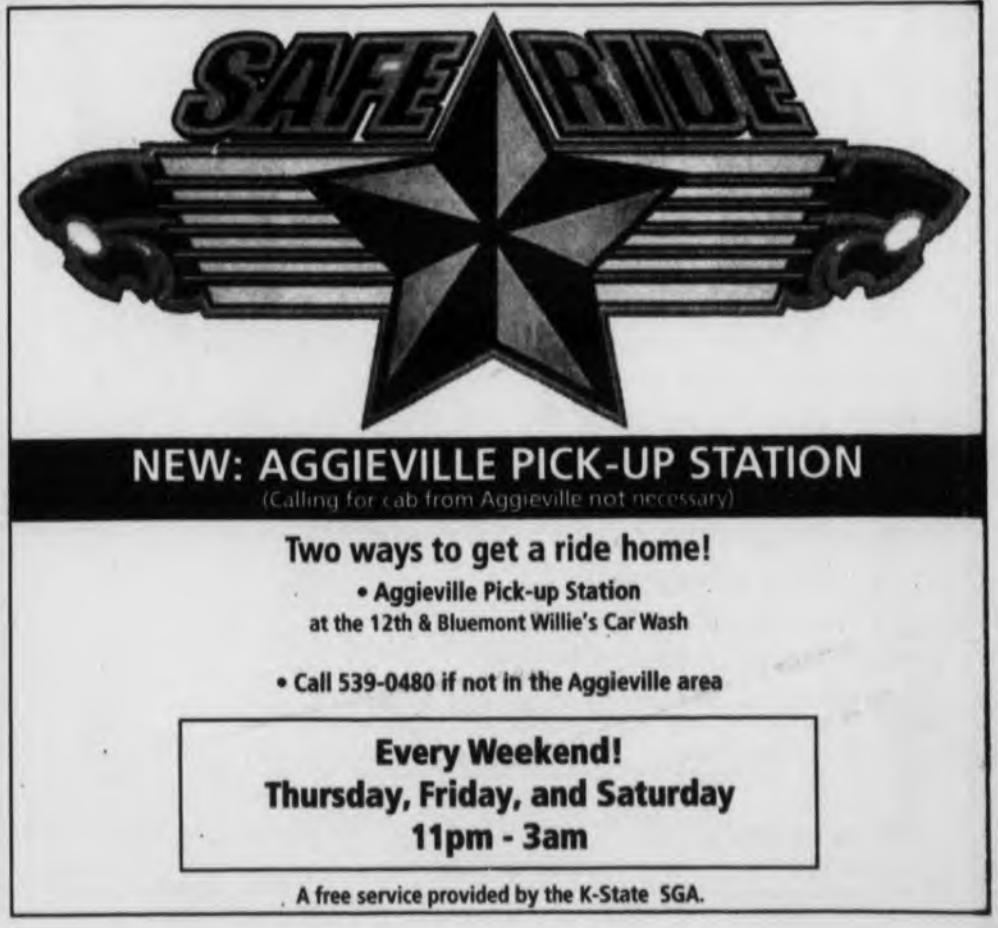
Now, a question for the liberals: if what President Bush is doing is so awful, then what are your plans? What would you do differently?

You can't answer that can you? Media commentators continue to say that the liberals have no plans. This is untrue. They do have plans – just none they can speak about publicly because they know common Americans wouldn't buy into them. If they showed their true vision, it would dash any hopes they have of re-election.

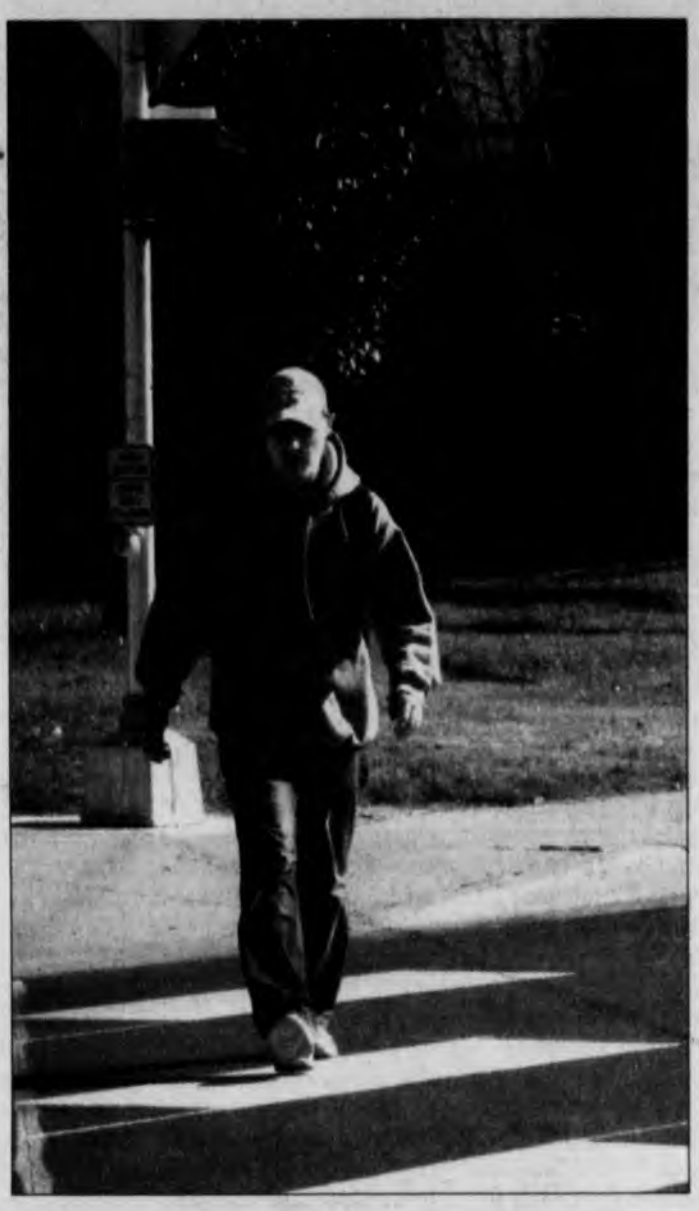
So what are these plans they can't speak about? It boils down to socialism, redistribution of wealth and movement towards a godless society where people worship almighty government. If you want to see how well pure liberalism really works you need only look at New Orleans. Surely, with almost complete socialism and governmental control, the place should have been a utopia, right? I think Hurricane Katrina exposed that seedy underbelly of liberalism run amuck.



Remember, we live in America, an amazing country where all that is needed to achieve greatness is to simply go out and do it. Liberalism believes that people can only achieve things through that which they are given by the government. Conservatives believe that governmental control is the very thing that inhibits people from achieving greatness. Remember that on election day.



Marcus Hernandez
SENIOR IN ENGLISH



Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
"She was a beautiful bride."
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.

Jeremy Harris, junior in electrical engineering, crosses the street Tuesday afternoon at Denison Avenue, where one of the many new crosswalk lights are placed.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

Crosswalk lights increase safety if used by pedestrians

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Pedestrians saw a change in crosswalks this fall in the form of several pairs of blinking lights allowing free passage across busy North Manhattan and Denison avenues.

But are pedestrians taking the time to use the devices?

Matt King, chair of Student Governing Association's governmental relations committee and senior in political science, said the biggest problem has been a lack of use.

"First of all, students are just not using them," he said. "We're not sure if students know what they're there for."

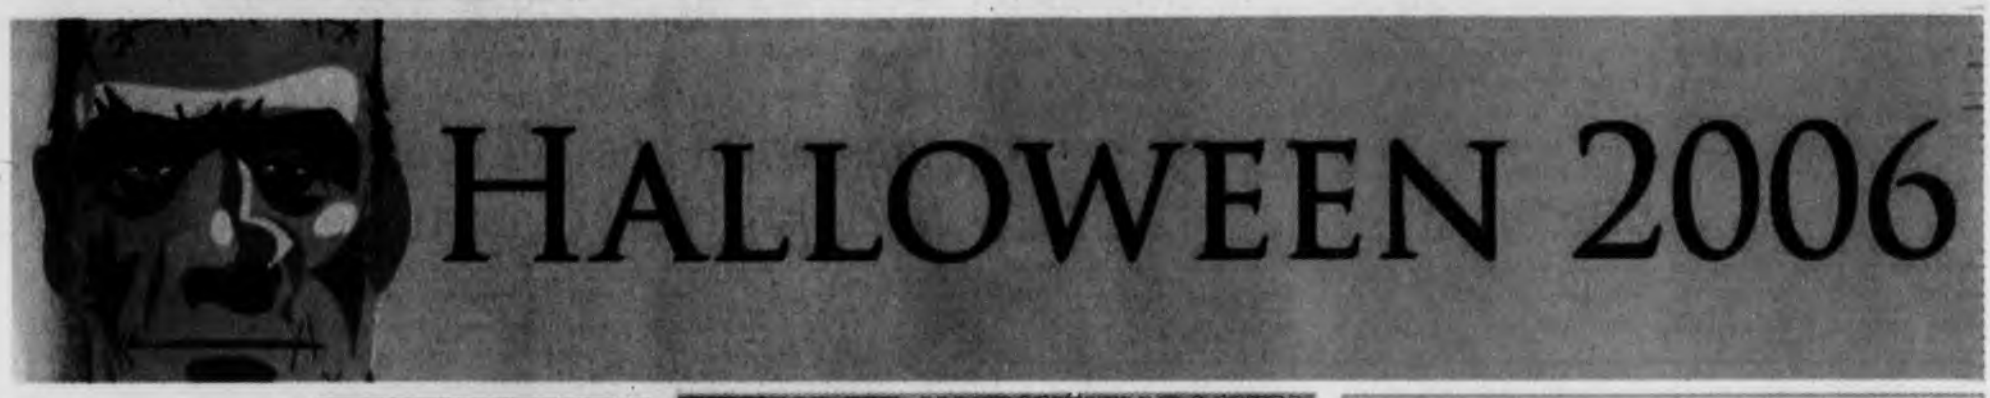
King said he has discussed with deputy city manager Diane Stoddard how to educate and inform the public about the lights. King said they considered placing signs leading up to the pedestrian signals, but it was decided extra signs might be distracting to drivers.

The project was allocated $120,000 from the City/University Special Projects Fund, and the above-ground flashing signals saved money for the project. With some of the money saved, King said the committee is considering purchasing additional signs or reflective tape so the lights stand out more to pedestrians.

While the pedestrian lights have not seen much use on North Manhattan Avenue, King said he and his committee wonder if the same lights north of Denison Avenue have turned on yet, due to the construction on Denison Avenue.

Stoddard said the lights on Denison Avenue are part of a different project than those on North Manhattan Avenue, and she was unsure of how they were working. She said she has not heard any concerns about the operation of the pedestrian signals on North Manhattan Avenue but said they are being monitored.

Fawn Lembke, freshman in English, lives near North Manhattan Avenue and said she has never used the pedestrian lights to stop traffic.



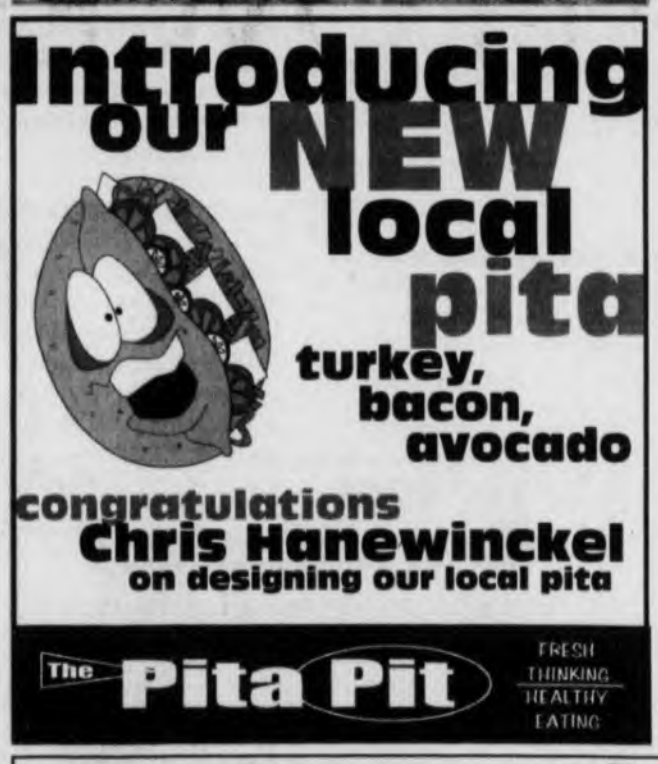
"Honestly, I didn't even know they were there," she said. "I've never used them."

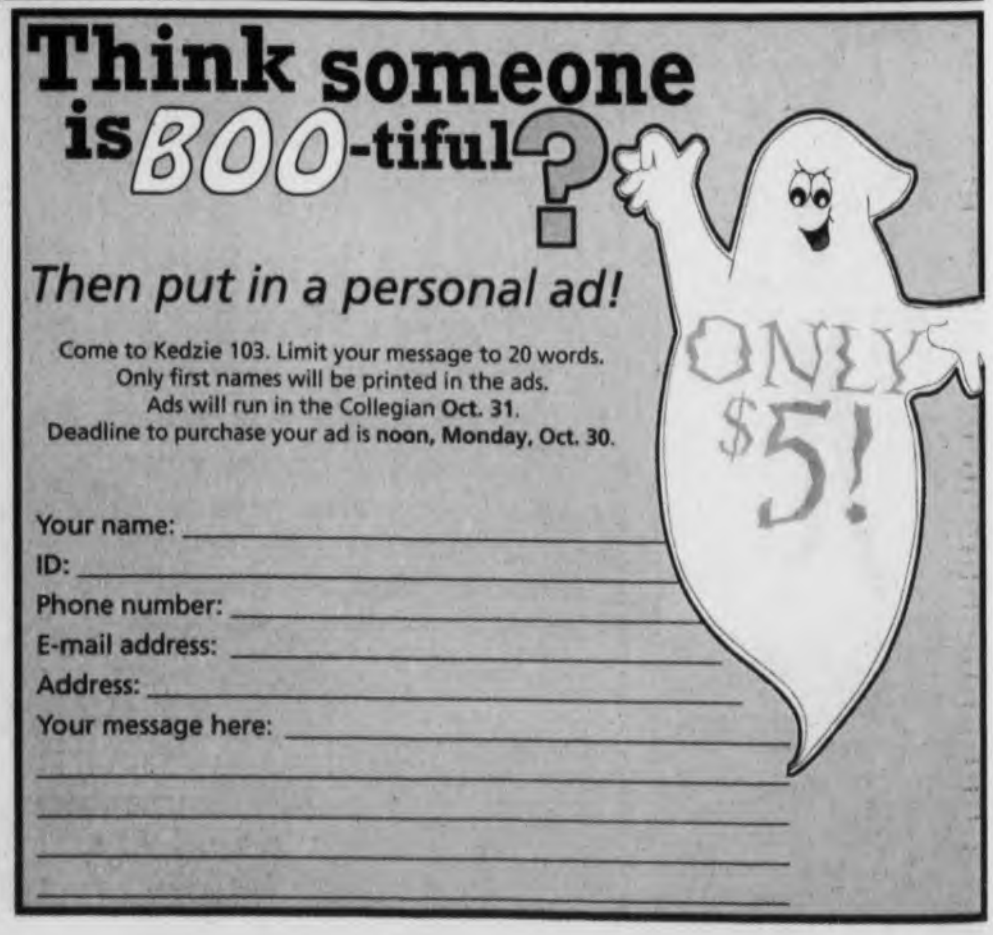
While Lembke thought the lights might be good for night traffic, she said the lights did not seem necessary for students to safely ccross the street.

"I think they're good, but they should make students aware of them," she said.

Stoddard said the signals are easy to use, but getting people to use them regularly is difficult.

"Most people are used to the pedestrian crossings on Denison and North Manhattan, but if you're coming from another community, to have someone walk out into the crosswalk without even looking is quite unexpected," she said. "If someone uses them properly, they are very effective. We're just trying to make sure they are as effective as possible."





Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 KEDZIE 785-532-6560

Pairings showcase spirit in cheer, stomp contest

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The pouring rain didn't stop the crowd from gathering Wednesday night in Ahearn Field House for this year's Pant the Chant, proving that purple pride is thicker than water.

Three residence hall pairings, 11 greek pairings and a variety of campus organizations stomped, clapped and cheered during the annual All-University Homecoming competition that allows groups the chance to showcase their K-State spirit and creativity.

Each group had 90 seconds to perform its stationary routine without radios, microphones or noisemakers. Five judges from various areas of campus selected the best cheer based equally on rhythm, loudness, originality and adherence to the Homecoming theme.

The Black Student Union won in the student organizations category, and the pairing of Goodnow and Moore Halls won the residence hall division. The pairing of Kappa Alpha Theta, Pi Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Phi and Triangle was victorious in the greek category.

"Ahearn isn't the greatest place to hold this competition due to the space, acoustics and set-up," said Shana Kaufman, senior in family studies and human services and chairperson of Pant the Chant.

"But it is the only place to do it, because there are a lot of people involved, so there needs to be enough room for everybody."

Kaufman said pairings put a great amount of time and effort into their routines.

Blair Goss, freshman in pre-medicine and member of Gamma Phi Beta sorority, knows the extent of the time and effort put into Pant the Chant.

She said her 50-person team practiced as many as four times per week to perform their loud, energetic chant perfectly for the competition.

Jared Smith, junior in criminology and Sigma Chi fraternity member, coached the Pant the Chant group from Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Chi and Theta Xi.

"It takes a lot," he said. "We have been practicing every other day for up to two hours for the past two weeks."

Pant the Chant is Smith's favorite Homecoming event, he said, because it allows a group of people to showcase their houses, and it is worth the hard work.

Between 70 and 100 people perform for each group in the greek division. Residence hall teams can have as many as 50 members.

There is no limit to the number of people who can perform in the student organizations division. All groups must be have equal numbers of male and female participants.

Pant the Chant is also a fundraising event. The Order of Omega collected canned goods for Cats for Cans. Groups and spectators were asked to donate money or canned foods for admission.

Last year, the Order of Omega collected about two tons of cans and about $600, said Tim Lindemuth, chapter adviser for Order of Omega.

Above: Dressed as Superman, Richard Lee, sophomore in kinesiology and member of Lambda Chi Alpha, cheers during the Pant the Chant competition Wednesday evening in Ahearn Field House.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Left: Lindsey Patterson, freshman in business management, cheers during Pant the Chant Wednesday evening at Ahearn Field House.

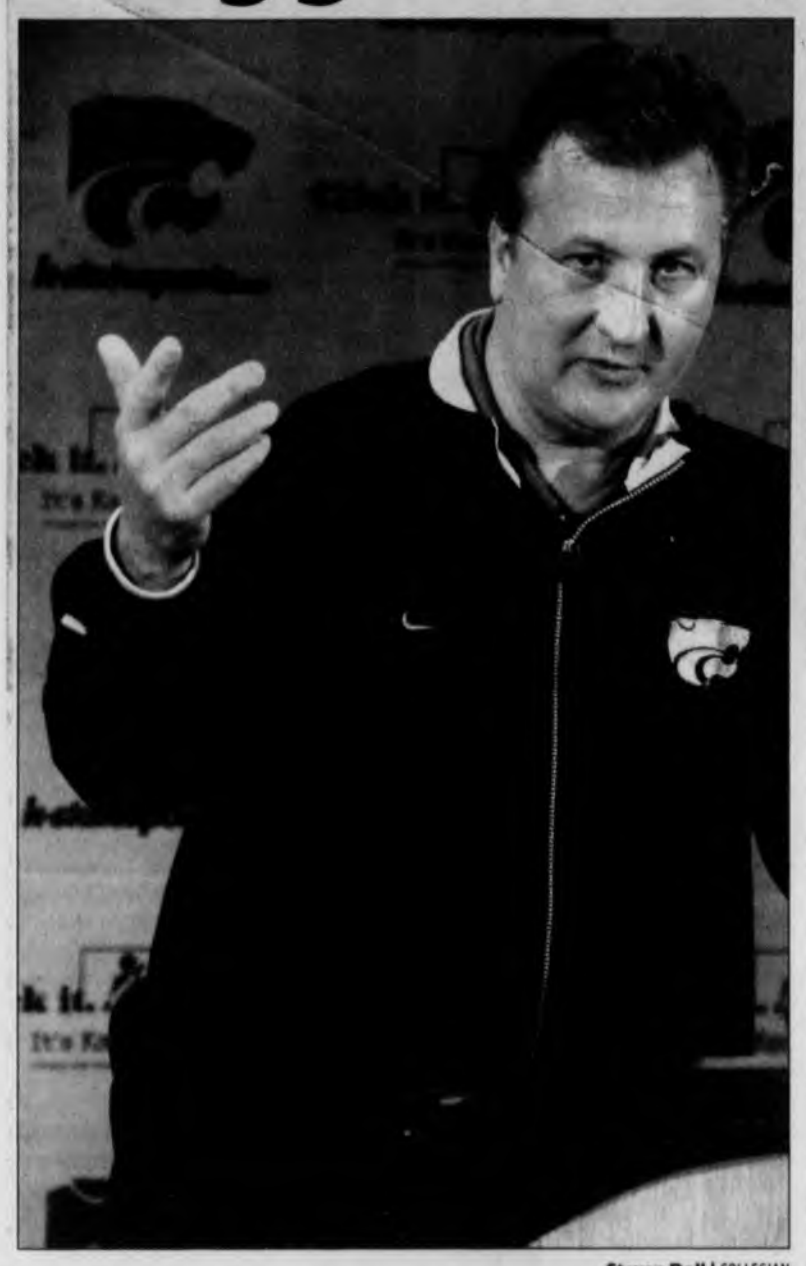
Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Chumley's Alley
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2 Boulevards Blue Moon Killian's Widmer Wheat and Domestic Bottles
$1.75 Domestic Draws
LIVE MUSIC ON THE PATIO
Mikey Needleman

The Salty Rim
1204 MORO 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$1 SPIKES
1/2 PRICE MARGARITAS
$2 MICROS & IMPORTS
$2 DOMESTIC BOTTLES
PARTY PIC NIGHT

Porter's
50¢ TACOS Hard & Soft
$3.00 Jager Bombs & Red Bull and Vodkas
$2.00 Import Bottles & Micros
$1.50 Any Pint
$3.00 Any Sandwich
11-2 (Open @ 11)

Happy Howl-a-ween!
$5 OFF Your First Visit
Bark Avenue
CANINE DESIGNS
607 N. 11th•Aggieville•565-0612



XL
Extra-Large Cheese Pizza only $5.99
GUMBY'S Pizza
DELIVERY HOTLINE!
770-333
hungry? check out the Menu Guide at back of the Campus Phone Book
Available in Kedzie 103
Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Why Look GHOSTLY with SAVINGS this scary!
Bronze Image
Tanning Salon
$25 one month UNLIMITED
* Level 1 Beds * Must present coupon
* 1 per person exp. Oct. 31, 2006
1122 Laramie • 539.3742

OCTOBER SPECIAL
M-W 9-5 • Th-F 9-9 • Sat 9-5
Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz • 776-4794
Services performed by supervised students
Receive 20% off any regular priced service when you present your K-State ID (offer ends 11-1)
50 years of excellence in education
Call today for enrollment information
Cosmetology/Manicuring
Instructor-Training/Evening Classes
PIVOT POINT
$5.00 HAIRCUT ON HALLOWEEN DAY, 9-5

Grand Ol' Trunk
Thrift Shop & Bookstore
Grasp What you Need For Halloween
Seek and you shall find just the thing to create that perfect costume
1304 Pillsbury Drive
Hwy 177 South
537-2273

Huggins adds scrimmage

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Head men's basketball coach Bob Huggins speaks to the media during a press conference Wednesday afternoon at Bramlage Coliseum. The press conference was part of K-State's media day.

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Men's basketball coach Bob Huggins announced K-State will play host to Marquette this Sunday at Bramlage Coliseum in a scrimmage closed to the public.

Huggins said the Wildcats needed a challenge from a team with the size and athleticism they will face this year.

K-State's only other exhibition game is against Division-II university Washburn on Nov. 4.

"That's great for us," Huggins said. "We really need that. For us, it's so much better than playing a D-II school and winning by 25."

MARTIN IMPRESSES HUGGINS

Huggins said senior forward Cartier Martin has been K-State's most consistent leader since practice started on Oct. 13.

"I can't say enough about Cartier and trying to lead in a very positive way," Huggins said.

"Trying to help his teammates and encouraging his teammates – he's been really good."

Martin was reinstated with the team before "Madness in Manhattan" on Oct. 13 after being suspended in May for violating team rules.

Last season, Martin led the Wildcats in scoring with 18 points per game and rebounds with 6.6 a game. He also was named to the All-Big 12 second team by the coaches, The Associated Press and The Kansas City Star.

"Cartier really shoots it," Huggins said.

"He's got a great touch. We're trying to get him to work on creating his own shot a little more."

Huggins said Martin and junior forward David Hoskins are the two players who have best chance of starting this season because of their consistency in practice.

INJURIES

Junior guard Clent Stewart has been splitting time between the point guard and shooting guard spots while he's recovering from a knee injury. Huggins said Stewart participated in most of Tuesday's practice.

Huggins also said sophomore forward Darren Kent has been out of practices for about a week with a sprained ankle.

"He sprained his ankle again. The same ankle," Huggins said. "He's probably a week or so away (from returning to team practices) from the way he's been limping around."

COACHES PICK WILDCATS TO FINISH 5TH

The Big 12 coaches picked K-State to finish fifth in the conference this season.

This is Huggins' first year coaching in the Big 12. However, Huggins is shooting for higher than fifth.

"Why would you work that hard to finish fifth?" Huggins said.

"I don't know what fifth gets you."

Fifth is the Wildcats' best ranking in the history of the Big 12 Preseason Coaches Poll. Last year, the coaches selected K-State to finish 11th.

K-State fans suffer symptoms of 'New Coach Syndrome'

AUSTIN MEEK

Nothing inspires reckless, unbridled optimism like hiring a new coach.

Want to boost attendance, beat a hated rival, win a national championship and bring peace to the Middle East? Just hire a new coach, and it's all taken care of.

Case in point: Bob Huggins has yet to coach a game at K-State, and Wildcat fans already are talking about Final Four appearances.

For the last decade, K-State basketball teams have struggled with some of the most fundamental aspects of the game, like remembering to dribble when you have the ball. Simply qualifying for the NCAA tournament seemed like a lofty goal.

Now K-State fans are talking Sweet 16 and beyond.

Don't get me wrong – Huggins has a great track record, and the Wildcats should be much improved this season. But K-State fans seem to be suffering from a serious case of "New Coach Syndrome," the temporary loss of reason that affects sports fans across the globe.

Fans tend to view new coaches through rose-colored glasses. When a new coach is hired, no one talks about the failure rate in the coaching profession. That would be like the best man quoting divorce statistics in his wedding toast.

But when you think about it, the chances of hiring the next Tom Asbury are much greater than the chances of hiring the next John Wooden.

Every new coach replaces an old coach who was once a new coach himself. (Think about that one for a minute.) If new coaches really were a cure-all, sports teams wouldn't need to hire so darn many of them.

And while hiring a proven winner like Huggins increases the chances

See SYNDROME Page 9

Gipson, Wheeler to share time at center position

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Head women's basketball coach Deb Patterson speaks to the media during a press conference Wednesday afternoon at Bramlage Coliseum.

The K-State women's basketball team was picked to finish seventh in the Big 12 Conference in the preseason Big 12 coaches poll. However, coach Deb Patterson said that does not mean the team does not have the talent to compete with the top teams in the Big 12.

"I am looking forward to building on the Championship WNIT appearance, and I am just really hopeful as we approach the season," Patterson said.

Although the team finished the season on a high note, winning the Women's National Invitational Championship in Bramlage Coliseum, the offseason was less encouraging. Center JoAnn Hamlin and guard Twiggy McIntyre, as well as two assistant coaches, left the program during the summer.

"We are young; we are not real big, and in losing both Hamlin and McIntyre, we lose that big presence in the paint and obviously the physical presence on the perimeter with Twiggy McIntyre," Patterson said.

Patterson said she hopes to overcome the losses and exceed the expectations of the preseason polls.

Three players who started at least 24 games each return to the backcourt. Senior Claire Coggins, preseason All-Big 12 Honorable Mention, returns after leading the team in scoring with 13.5 points per game. Sophomore Shalee Lehning returns after starting 28 games as a true freshman and leading the team in assists, and junior Kimberly Dietz returns after averaging 10.5 points per game.

The front court might be a different situation. Although Marlies Gipson started every game last season as a forward, she will share time on the court with junior Shana Wheeler at the center spot, replacing Hamlin.

Wheeler has not played a game since the ninth game of the season last year when she was sidelined with a knee injury.

"I have been very, very impressed and pleased with the intensity that she is bringing to the floor," Patterson said of Wheeler.

Wheeler was not given an extra year of eligibility after petitioning for a medical redshirt, Patterson said.

With the lack of depth and experience in the front court, Patterson expects Gipson to step up in the post.

"I am not sure that, at her size, there is anybody that could compete comparatively to what Marlies brought to the floor, especially as a freshman," Patterson said.

Patterson said she has two key concerns heading into the season. The foremost is the transition of the post play. Other than Gipson, no post player has more than 10 career starts.

"Our big question is what can we get out of our post game," Patterson said. "Can we rebound, will we defend, and can we find a way to score the ball in the post?"

Another concern is a lack of experience. Coggins is the only player to start a game in more than one season, and she is only one of two seniors, the other being Naytanda Smith. After stepping up as a leader last year, Patterson hopes Coggins, the MVP of the WNIT last season, can continue to improve and lead the team to the postseason.

The other main concern is the lack of team depth. Although Patterson is pleased with the development of backup players, only 10 players can play.

"I think we are OK unless we get hurt," Patterson said. "If we get hurt, that puts us in a position of being on our heels only playing 10 players."

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | K-State falls to Iowa State, loses 2nd-consecutive game

The K-State women's volleyball team already has suffered through one long losing streak this year. The last thing it wanted to do was start another one.

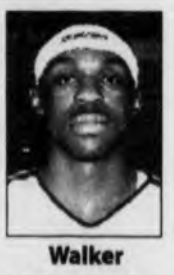
Yet that is exactly what the Wildcats have done.

With a 3-1 loss (28-30, 25-30, 30-20, 25-30) to Iowa State Wednesday night at Hilton Coliseum in Ames, Iowa, the Wildcats have now lost back-to-back matches. It is their 12th loss in the last 13 matches.

The Wildcats (9-13, 1-11 Big 12) could not find an answer for the Cyclones' attack. Three players — Erin Boeve, Katie Jessen and Lauren Cummings — finished with double-digit kills for the Cyclones (15-7, 7-5 Big 12).

Sophomore middle blocker Megan Farr led the Wildcat attack with 14 kills and a team-high .429 hitting percentage. She made just two errors all night. Junior outside hitter Angie Lastra and sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker also were productive, combining for 33 kills.

The Wildcats jumped to an 8-0 lead in the third game. After that, the Wildcats never looked back, taking leads of 12-4 and 17-11 before finally taking the game 30-20.



But the Cyclones battled back in game four, charging out to an early 6-2 lead. The Wildcats responded with a series of kills by Lastra and senior Sandy Werner, going on a 7-3 run to tie the game at 9.

K-State pulled to 21-19 after a pair of Cyclone errors, but that was as close as it would come. The Cyclones used a 6-2 run to distance themselves before taking the game 30-25.

— Jeffrey Rake

BKC | Top recruit Walker admitted to K-State, not enrolled in classes

Men's basketball recruit Bill Walker has been admitted to K-State, according to The Kansas City Star's Web site.

Walker

Dean of Student Life Pat Bosco said Walker's application was admitted about two weeks ago but, as of Wednesday morning, he had not enrolled in classes.

Walker, who played high school basketball in Cincinnati is rated as the No. 6 player in the class of 2007 by Rivals.com. At North College Hill High School, Walker averaged 21.7 points per game and 10.7 rebounds per game.

This summer, the state of Ohio ruled that Walker's high school eligibility had expired. Walker had been trying to complete his academics this fall so he could enroll in college early.

"He met or exceeded admission requirements for the university," Bosco told The Star.

Walker would join a 2007 recruiting class that would include Rivals.com No. 1 prospect Michael Beasley, who is now at Notre Dame Preparatory School in Fitchburg, Mass. Beasley attended K-State's "Madness in Manhattan" and said he would sign with the Wildcats the first day he could in November.

"Definitely, I'm a Kansas State Wildcat," he said.

BKW | Washburn exhibition set for 2 p.m. start on Nov. 5

The K-State women's basketball team will open its practice to fans on Oct. 28 at Bramlage Coliseum before the Wildcats' All-University Homecoming football game against Iowa State.

Patterson

The open practice will be 12:15-1:15 p.m. Fans should enter Bramlage through the northeast and northwest entrances of the arena.

The team also will be honored at the first-quarter break of the football game at Snyder Family Stadium on Saturday. The Wildcats will be recognized for their achievements last season, including the postseason Women's National Invitational Tournament championship title and fifth consecutive 20-win season.

The Wildcats play host to Emporia State in a home exhibition match-up scheduled for 2 p.m. Nov. 5 before the season opener.

AIDS | Company to use grants, 'angel investors' to fund trials

Continued from Page 1

trials are "promising, and if the results hold up in human trials, it would be a real breakthrough."

He added, however, that "there are many examples of vaccines that work in animals but fail in people, including a number of other AIDS vaccines, so I think the jury is still out on this one."

Perhaps not surprisingly, the research community is not the only group following this discovery. ImmunoGenetix, a small biotech founded in 2002, will require considerable investment to bring this vaccine from "the bench to the bedside."

The average cost of performing phase I, II and II clinical trials in the United States stands at $20 million, $50 million and $100 million respectively. Many investors are prepared to take the risk, attracted to the premise and the promise of this type of study.

However instead of turning to venture capitalists, Jim Laufenberg, CEO of ImmunoGenetix, intends to use grants and capital from affluent individuals, dubbed "angel investors," for phase I human trials and then move directly to a pharmaceutical partner to execute phase II and III trials.

"Pharma does not dilute stock, which turns out to be great for the angel investors," Laufenberg said.

When asked why ImmunoGenetix didn't take the alternative route of avoiding partnership and becoming a full-fledged biotech company, Laufenberg said, "Some have taken that route, but we have decided to partner earlier.

"One of the reasons is that the old model progresses towards an IPO, but that is a difficult financial market right now. Also, pharma has cash and wants new drugs."

Despite keen interest, ImmunoGenetix has not yet partnered with a pharmaceutical company.

"We are in discussions and are pursuing others. This is a recent development for us, as we have now demonstrated impressive results," Laufenberg said.

Phase I trials of the GenePro vaccine are awaiting the decision of an $18 million grant proposal submitted to the National Institutes of Health.

BARNETT | Candidate outlines economic, healthcare needs, goals

Continued from Page 1

state for jobs.

Barnett said he will do the following four things to improve Kansas' economy if elected into office:

- Eliminate the death tax, so farmers and small business owners can pass their businesses to the next generation without paying taxes twice.
- Begin phasing down income tax rates.
- Increase dependents' exemptions by $500 to put more money in young families' pockets.
- Install a 10-percent investment tax credit.

Barnett also has several healthcare goals if elected:

- Individuals should own health insurance. Then, even if they switch jobs, they will not lose their health insurance.
- Working couples should be able to keep both members' health insurance plans instead of choosing one.
- Kansas should have open enrollment, so even the sick still can get health insurance.

Barnett said he is not opposed to immigration, but rather illegal immigration. He does not support in-state tuition for illegal immigrants and said employers who hire illegal immigrants should face just consequences. He also stressed the importance of a common language.

Barnett's speech was followed by a question-and-answer session during which audience members asked questions covering everything from healthcare to alternative energy plans. Barnett stayed afterward to speak to audience members.

"I really liked the speech," Ben Davis, president of College Republicans, said. "I think he spoke very comfortably and candidly, and he is really concerned about students and Kansans."

FLOAT | Construction time allows Homecoming partners to mingle

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Matthew McGivern, senior in finance, outlines the letters of his All-University Homecoming partners for their float.

Continued from Page 1

Williams said the task is tedious.

"We're going to have like 10-20 sheets of chicken wire to make up," Williams said. "It's like a puzzle. You don't really realize how you're putting something together initially. You're putting it together piece by piece."

Though putting a float together can be a chore, it has been a good way for the Homecoming partners to get to know each other, Forsythe said.

"It's a ton of fun because you're always with each other," she said. "We're really fond of each other. It's like I have a total new group of friends."

The group is looking forward to completing the float and walking in the parade, Dreiling said.

"It's a lot of fun out there," Dreiling said.

"It's a big tradition."

The parade also means the beginning of a weekend that will cap off the week for which the pairing has worked hard, Dreiling said.

This will be the first Homecoming for K-State's new fraternity, Sigma Pi, and the first time many of the members have built a float.

"Pomping was sort of a new concept to everyone," said Martin Wilson, sophomore in biology and president of Sigma Pi.

Lack of experience did not present a large problem, Wilson said. With help from the fraternity's Homecoming partners, the float was finished early.

The Homecoming parade will begin at 5 p.m. Friday.

During the parade, the floats will start at Manhattan Town Center and end in City Park.

SYNDROME | Huggins' Bearcats played better in regular seasons

Continued from Page 8

of success, it's certainly no guarantee. Bob Knight won three national championships at Indiana, but his Texas Tech squad finished 15-17 a year ago.

Lost in the excitement of "Huggy Mania" is the fact that Huggins' Cincinnati teams were much better in the regular season than they were in the NCAA tournament. In 1992 – the first year Huggins took the Bearcats to the Big Dance – they made it to the Final Four. The following year, they advanced to the Elite Eight.

In 12 seasons after that, Huggins advanced past the second round only twice, while his teams won 20 games or more in every season but one. In 2002, the Bearcats won 31 games and earned a No. 1 seed, but they lost in the second round of the tournament to UCLA.

While Huggins' 2007 recruiting class could be his best ever, the Final Four predictions still seem a bit premature.

If you are experiencing symptoms of "New Coach Syndrome," please seek help immediately. I have some videotapes of the Royals and their last five managers that should take care of it.

Austin Meek is a senior in public relations. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Hungry? check out the Menu Guide in the back of the Campus Phone Book
Available in Kedzie 103
Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Got a News Tip or Story Idea?
Call 532-6556 or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

dependable. quality service
✓Let us copy your dissertations.
Claflin Books and Copies

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com

Thursday Nights @ TUBBY'S Sports Bar
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$2.00 Shots, Wells & Bottles
$2.50 Pounders on Patio
Mon-Tues 4pm-2am Wed-Sun 11:30-2am $5.50 Fajita Burger

Let's get together for Dinner to Celebrate Eid-ul-Fitr
"End of Ramadan"
Come and enjoy great food from Middle Eastern cuisine
When: Friday, Oct. 27,06 Where: Alumni Center Ballroom Time: 6:00-8:00 pm
Tickets available in 304 Fairchild Hall, Tel: 532-5990 Cost: $ 5.00
The event is sponsored and organized by: Office of International Programs

FACULTY/STAFF Night - Nov. 3 $2 discount
KSU Theatre presents
TARTUFFE
by Moliere
HILARIOUS... ENTERTAINING... FUN, FUN, FUN!
November 2, 3 and 4
McCain Auditorium 8 p.m.
TKTS: McCain Box Office: open 11am to 5pm weekdays and at the K-State Union Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 weekdays. 532-6428 Online: ksu.edu/sctd
$8 student/child $11 military $13 public
Sponsored by Pizza Hut of Manhattan

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.50 Michelob Family Pints
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
$1.99 Margaritas
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

Smart STYLES for Your Feet
BIRKENSTOCK
Olson's Shoe
1214 Moro • Aggieville
www.olsonsshoes.com

Broken formulas

Compilation of short stories written by women examines opposite genre

"This Is Not Chick Lit"

Grade: B+

Book review by Eileen Laux

"This Is Not Chick Lit: Original Stories by America's Best Women Writers" takes the genre that is chick lit and heads in the opposite direction.

What is chick lit? The editor of the book, Elizabeth Merrick, says, "Quite simply: chick lit is a genre, like the thriller, the sci-fi novel or the fantasy epic. Its form and content are, more or less, formulaic: white girl in the big city searches for prince charming, all the while shopping, alternately cheating on or adhering to her diet, dodging her boss and enjoying the occasional teary-eyed lunch with her token, sassy gay friend."

The book's 18 stories examine the fundamental realities of the collection. Jennifer Egan examines the life of the newly hired female public relations consultant for a South American dictator. Samantha Hunt dives into the relationship of a girl robot and a lonely man named Ted. But not all non-chick lit addresses current issues; there are several stories about love, but they are more abstract types of love stories.

In Curtis Sittenfeld's "Volunteers Are Shining Stars," Frances pines for love but instead finds fulfillment in volunteering at a homeless shelter. Aimee Bender's "Two Days" illustrates the agony women go through in deciding whether a date is "The One." "The Seventy-two-Ounce Steak Challenge" by Dika Lam provides a new take on the pain of divorce.

The book's point is that female writers should be celebrated, not forced into a mold into which they do not fit. Don't get me wrong – I loved "The Devil Wears Prada," and I own many chick lit books, but that doesn't mean that all female writers have to be categorized when they bring their ideas to the table.

"Chick lit is the daughter of the romance novel and the step-sister to the fashion magazine," Merrick says in the introduction.

We all have our guilty pleasures, and though there is nothing wrong with those, we also should expand our minds and look beyond the gloss and glamour of that girl trying to find love, the great career and a happily-ever-after ending. Life isn't perfect but, yes, there should be stories out there that allow an escape into a "perfect life." However, I also believe there are female writers who can enhance a new genre.

Merrick writes that these are "stories that investigate what else is valuable, what else is beautiful, what else is scary, what else holds power, what else can capture our hearts, our imaginations and our minds."

ABOUT THE EDITOR

Editor Elizabeth Merrick is the author of "Girly," a novel. She received a bachelor's degree from Yale, a master's degree from Cornell and a master's degree from San Francisco State, as well as fellowships from the Saltonstall Foundation, Ragdale Foundation and VCCA. Her essay on beauty and cosmetic surgery appeared in August's Jane magazine, and she has been quoted as an authority on women's and literary issues for national and regional media like Elle and Time Out New York. She has taught at New York University and Cornell and lives in New York where she is a writing coach and consultant. She also directs the Grace Reading Series, which she founded in 2006.

Source: www.notchicklit.com

CELEB NEWS

'Grey's Anatomy' star apologizes for behavior

NEW YORK (AP) — "Grey's Anatomy" star Isaiah Washington has publicly apologized for his behavior during an on-set scuffle with co-star Patrick Dempsey.

Washington
ACTOR

"I sincerely regret my actions and the unfortunate use of words during the recent incident on (the) set," the 43-year-old actor said in a statement to People magazine. "Both are beneath my own personal standards... I have nothing but respect for my co-workers ... and have apologized personally to everyone involved."

The magazine, citing a source on the set, reported Wednesday on its Web site that when T.R. Knight was late to film a scene, a debate ensued between Dempsey and Washington, with Dempsey insisting on waiting for Knight.

The argument quickly intensified, and an alleged homophobic slur was used, but Knight wasn't present.

Washington plays Dr. Preston Burke, and Dempsey, 40, plays Dr. Derek Shepherd on the ABC drama.

Knight, 33, plays an intern, Dr. George O'Malley.

"Differences are inevitable," Washington's publicist, Cynthia Snyder, said in a recent statement. "They were aired, resolved and everyone has moved on."

The clash occurred Oct. 9. Knight revealed Oct. 19 that he is gay.

"I guess there have been a few questions about my sexuality, and I'd like to quiet any unnecessary rumors that may be out there," Knight said in a statement. "I hope the fact that I'm gay isn't the most interesting part of me."

Shonda Rhimes, the show's creator, is downplaying the incident. It "was four-and-a-half seconds of one day in three years," she told People. "I feel like we've already moved on."

Spears' baby boy's name officially released

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Britney Spears has named her second baby son Jayden James — and that, finally, is official.

The Sept. 12 birth certificate, filed with Los Angeles officials this week, was the latest twist in the rumor and secrecy that marked the arrival of the once publicity-hungry pop star's second baby.

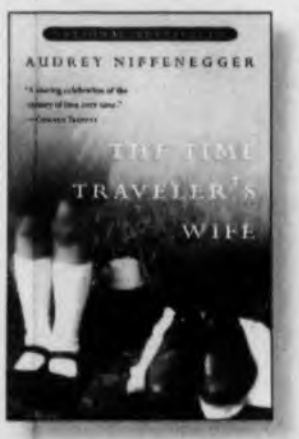
Spears
POP SINGER

Not only was the birth at a Los Angeles hospital never officially announced by Spears or her husband Kevin Federline, but sources close to the couple led the world's media to believe that the boy had been named Sutton Pierce.

For weeks beforehand, the tabloid media were sure the former teen pop sensation was expecting a girl.

Celebrity magazines had Spears stocking up on pink baby clothes.

There also have been reports that Spears planned to name the child Jamilyn after her younger sister Jamie and her mother Lynne.



But the official birth certificate records that Jayden James Federline was born Sept. 12 at Cedars Sinai hospital in Los Angeles.

Jayden, who at 6 weeks old has yet to make his public picture debut, was born two days before the first birthday of Spears' first son, Sean Preston.

Spears, who put her recording career on hold after marrying Federline in September 2004, announced her second pregnancy on a late night TV chat show and posed nude for Harper's Bazaar when she was six months pregnant.

Top books | A look at women's literature bestsellers

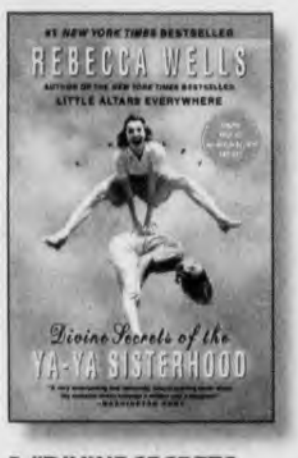
■ These books for women are entertaining, intelligent, heart-rending, captivating and written so well you will believe they are true. They are great picks for women's book clubs, and they are the kind of books you'll want to pass on to the important women in your life — your mother, your sister and your best friend.

1. "THE TIME TRAVELER'S WIFE" BY AUDREY NIFFENEGGER

This is the story of Henry, who involuntarily travels through time, and Clare, the woman who loves him for almost her entire life. This love story will draw you in and make you want to go back and read parts of the novel again and again.

2. "THE SECRET LIFE OF BEES" BY SUE MONK KIDD

Set in the South in the 1960s, this story deals with race, love and Lily Owen's search for a connection with her mother, who died when she was young. It's an especially good read when you can imagine sipping Coke on a porch and smelling jasmine.



3. "THE RED TENT" BY ANITA DIAMANT

This fiction novel imagines the lives of the Biblical patriarch Jacob's wives and lone daughter, Dinah. It is easy to read, suspenseful and will take you to another time and place.

4. "MIDWIVES" BY CHRIS BOHJALIAN

This Oprah Book Club pick tells about a midwife on trial for manslaughter after a home delivery goes wrong. Told from the viewpoint of the midwife's daughter, this mystery deals with love, family, birth and death as the family works through the result of one tragic night.

5. "DIVINE SECRETS OF THE YA-YA SISTERHOOD" BY REBECCA WELLS

This book is a beautiful story of one woman's quest to reconcile with and understand her mother by delving into the secrets contained in her sisterhood notebook. This Southern story will make you laugh and cry.

Source: Erin Collazo Miller, staff writer for About.com

Choose to embrace change, even when relationships change, too

Change. It happens all the time.

In my 20s, it seems like I am changing constantly.

LAUREN ROHRER

The changes can be small – a new piercing or a different hair color.

Or the changes can be big – adopting a new political or religious point of view.

Some people change so much they seem to become entirely different people.

For instance, a bright-eyed, pink-clad, obnoxiously perky sorority girl can, in a matter of months, become a sharp-tongued, black-clad, deeply cynical theater girl.

And at some point, I have to wonder, is all this change necessarily good?

And beyond that, how do the changes within all of us affect the way we feel about the people who remain constant, immune from the change?

My point, and I do have a point, is that with all this change, I am not attracted to the same kinds of guys I was four years ago or even four months ago, in some ways.

I change and evolve all the time, and I've known very few guys who have been able to keep up.

This is why I am completely baffled by those people who maintain an amazing relationship for long periods of time. I know it can't be just me.

All people are flawed and can't just be one-dimensional.

So these people, the ones you know, have been together forever and seem to be genuinely happy. Not only are they good together now, but also I conclude that they change and evolve alongside each other to become even stronger. As if we needed another reason to hate them.

To put it simply, in order to find someone with whom we can really make it work, we have to find someone who is capable of keeping up with our changes, understanding our choices and supporting our goals. All the while, it would be nice if that person has nice teeth, is sweet to his mother, and has proper health insurance.

Good luck, ladies.

Happiness in long-term relationships is elusive. It's hard to come by, and it takes work. The cynical part of me firmly believes that the people who have it don't truly appreciate it. The logical part of me knows that life has to be more than the hunt for The One. But the very small, almost non-existent, romantic part of me still hopes.

Life would be easier without changes. Life probably would be easier if I was a simple girl. Bright-eyed, pink-clad, obnoxiously perky sorority girls seem to have pretty good luck. After all, the girls who didn't evolve along with me are the same ones getting engaged and married right now.

And then there are those of us who embrace the change. It isn't automatic. It's a choice we make, a conscious choice to choose to grow and become more. Maybe those of us who change aren't as easy to match. But think about those girls who refuse to conform and choose to change – the ride is so much sweeter when you can't predict what will happen next.

Lauren Rohrer is a senior in music and theater. Please send comments to edge@spub.ksu.edu.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

THREE-BEDROOM TWO bath duplex with garage. 821 Mission. Available now. Lease ends May 31, 2007. $900/ month. No pets, no smoking. 785-776-9260.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

SMALL BLACK cat found by Hale Library late Monday night. No tag, white and green collar. Call 973-945-2747 or psl@ksu.edu.

100 Housing/Real Estate

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

MALE/ FEMALE. Nice Duplex, great location. Move in anytime. $300 + one-fourth utilities per month. Call anytime 785-341-8045.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

150 Sublease

APARTMENT AVAILABLE for sublease as soon as possible. Two-bedroom, full kitchen. Call 502-472-9033 or e-mail focused_ksn@yahoo.com.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed new two-bedroom apartment. Washer/ Dryer. Close to campus and Aggieville. Needed in January. $400 per month per person. Call 816-668-9223 or 913-709-8615.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the resturant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

EARN EXTRA cash for next semester!!! We are looking for people to manage firework locations in Louisiana December 20 - January 2. Travel expenses and lodging provided. Call for details 1-800-546-2825.

ADVERTISE IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS. 785 532 6555

310 Help Wanted

F.O.R.C.E. Finding Other Resources For Community Enhancement. Skating Rink Supervisor: Responsible for managing the Roundabout Recreational Complex (Skating Rink and Miniature Golf). Duties include opening and closing the facility and set up for scheduled activities. Monitoring of the facility during scheduled events, public relations, and security of the facility. Responsible for inventories of concessions, skates, and all other equipment. Performs record keeping and accounts for all proceeds and provides reports to the Manager. Basic first-aid training and CPR certification preferred. Hours vary (10- 15 per week) and include mornings, evenings, weekdays, and weekends year-round. Must be flexible and highly responsible. Salary: $7.00/ hour. This position requires a High School or GED diploma, a valid driver's license, must pass an extensive background check and strive in providing excellent service to the public. AN APPLICATION MUST BE SUBMITTED IN ORDER TO BE CONSIDERED FOR THIS POSITION. Applications accepted until THE POSITION IS FILLED. Applications are available at the Municipal Building Reception Center, 700 N. Jefferson. Junction City, Kansas, 8am-5pm, Monday - Friday. Applications are also available a www.jcks.com. F.O.R.C.E. is an equal opportunity employer.

FULL OR Part-time, flexible schedule, must be here for the holidays. Apply at Mrs. Powell's Bakery, Manhattan Town Center.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com.

PART-TIME clerical work. Some experience in Quickbooks and Excel preferred, but not required. Good communication and organization skills. Flexible work schedule. Hours: Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm. 785-587-0400.

PART-TIME Furniture Delivery Positions: Flexible work schedule, great pay. Stop by A Full House, 601 S. 5th Street, 785-537-9088.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RETAIL LIQUOR Store accepting applications for part-time sales clerk. Apply at McMillins 930 Hayes Drive, Manhattan. Must be 21.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

STUDENT PROGRAMMER position available. Must be available at least 12 hours per week (up to 20). Starting pay is $10.00 to $12.00 per hour based on experience. Programming experience in Visual Basic or Visual Basic.Net required. Must possess good communication skills. Apply in person at 315-A Houston Street, Manhattan, KS. Contact jobs@stasyx.com with questions.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT SECRETARY/ RECEPTIONIST WANTED. The Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement is seeking a student with excellent command of Microsoft Word and Excel as well as exceptional skills in telephone answering etiquette, grammar, filing, use of dictaphone, scheduling appointments and a variety of other office duties. Must be a quick learner, self-motivated and very detailed oriented. Must be willing to work school breaks and summer. Preference given to a person with past office experience.
The position will be available immediately continuing through fall, some of Christmas break, spring and summer. Workweek fall and spring semesters is a minimum of 25 hours and a maximum of 30 hours. Summer will require 30- 40 hours weekly. For an application, contact Dorothy Smith in the Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, 122 Anderson Hall. Starting salary commensurate with experience. Deadline for submission of application is Thursday, November 2, 4:-00 p.m. to: Dorothy Smith Office of the Vice President, 122 Anderson Hall 785-532-5942.

THE CITY of Ogden is accepting applications for the part-time position of Planning Commission/ Board of Zoning and Appeals Secretary. Duties include attending meetings, taking, preparing and maintaining minutes of the meetings. A pre-employment drug screening may be conducted. Wage is $8.50 per hour. Applications are available at City Hall, 222 Riley Avenue, Ogden, Kansas 66517. Applications are due before Noon, October 31, 2006.

TO ALL COMPUTER PROGRAMMING STUDENTS GRADUATING in December. Full-time software developer position is available in Manhattan, KS. Must possess good communication skills. Apply via the e-recruiting system or email your resume directly to jobs@stasyx.com.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

get a job
look in the classifieds

310 Help Wanted

Gaia Salon and Spa
Now accepting resumes for Salon Coordinating position.
Part time/Full time.
Please submit resume at front desk with Becky.
421 Poynta Ave.
785-539-2622

320 Volunteers Needed

VOLUNTEER AS a MENTOR at UFM Community Learning Center. Great experience for anyone wishing to work with adolescents. Required availability: Tuesdays from 3- 5p.-m. and one Sunday evening per month. To apply, visit www.tryufm.org and download the mentor application or stop by UFM at 1221 Thurston Street, Manhattan, KS.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

T-MOBILE SIDEKICK. Camera/ Internet/ email. Drop sim card in and ready to go. $175 or best offer. 785-317-8263 or 785-537-9212.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

Need a Subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

Attendant Care Providers
Manhattan and Junction City

Part-time positions available providing support with daily living skills to youth and adults with mental health challenges. High School diploma or equivalent required; related experience and/or training preferred. Qualified applicants will be at least 21 years of age and have a valid driver's license with an acceptable record. Send letter of interest to:

HR Director
Pawnee Mental Health Services
PO Box 747
Manhattan, KS 66505
Email - hr@pawnee.org

Pawnee MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

Equal Opportunity Employer

ADVERTISING Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 Internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M.
FOR MORE INFORMATION.

785-532-6560
Advertise Here!

ASInc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for:
Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at
408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

	8			6			3
			3			9		4
			2				5	8
	3	2
7			9		4			2
						1	8
4	7				2
5		8			1
	2			5			9

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

Receive a FREE small drink and chips with a regular sized sub.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail class

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

Student moves to Cameroon to live with parents

By Jacque Haag
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Waterville, Kan., to Douala, Cameroon – 6,912 miles as the crow flies.

That's quite a trip for a K-State student from a small town in Kansas, but also quite an opportunity.

"My dad called me up from Gabon, Africa, at the time, and asked me if I would like to take an opportunity of a lifetime and move to Africa for a semester or two," Mikala Watt said. "So, without hesitation, I said yes."

Watt, junior in apparel and textiles and international business, moved at the beginning of September and now lives in Douala with her parents.

Watt said her family moved to Africa when her dad was offered a job as an oil rig manager.

"She and her dad are really close, and it was cool that she was going to be able to live near him in such a cool place," said Ashley Stryker, Watt's friend and senior in psychology.

After growing up in Waterville – a town of about 600 people – Douala, the largest city in Cameroon, is vastly different, Watt said.

The locals speak mostly French.

"I took only one semester of French before moving to Africa," Watt said.

She said she is taking French lessons and is teaching herself from a book and compact discs.

"I use French every day speaking to the locals, especially at restaurants," she said, "but most people speak a little bit of English or, by using hand gestures, can at least comprehend what I'm saying."

Watt lives in a house with her parents, she said. Their home in Africa is about the same size as the one they left in Kansas, although it looks different.

"We have three guards in front of our house, gates and locks on all the windows and doors, and emergency buttons we can push in case of an intruder," she said. "We decided to go with the African theme and decorate the house with masks and African furnishings, and all the bathrooms have miniature tubs in them for Muslims to wash their feet in."

But the Watts' Waterville home is waiting for them, she said.

"I have one brother named Andrew, who is 17. He decided not to move with us but instead finish out his last two years in high school back home in Waterville," Watt said.

Some people – and things – were hard to leave behind, Watt said.

"I miss my brother a lot, but I definitely miss my two best friends the most, because they're always there to hang out with or call up and talk about everything or nothing," she said.

She said she misses places like shopping malls, fast-food restaurants, movie theaters and the Peters Recreation Complex.

"Most of all, (I miss) being able to drive my car," Watt said.

Photo courtesy of Mikala Watt

"The hardest material thing I had to leave behind was my car and half of my closet. However, as much as I miss those things, I've gotten used to not having them."

Now, instead of going to class, work and the gym, Watt said she spends most of her time doing schoolwork, swimming in her pool, communicating with friends online and sightseeing. Watt is enrolled in courses online through K-State.

"The ultimate reason I decided to move away was because I wanted to learn a new culture, get an experience of a lifetime, get away from the norm, and be able to take my experience and reference it to my future," Watt said.

And Douala seems like the place to do just that.

"The city has over 1 million people living in it and is the largest city in the country with a very diverse population. I know there are currently over 130 ethnic groups residing in the area," she said.

Watt said she attends a women's meetings twice a month for English-speaking women new to the area.

"Through the meetings, I've met people from all over the world, including Romania, France, the United States, Bulgaria, China, Norway, French New Guinea and many other countries," she said.

Along with the new culture comes new food, and for Watt, that means more rice, fruits and vegetables – and no fast food.

"I still go out to eat a lot to different restaurants, always trying new foods, mostly the things I can read in French off the menu," she said, "although I still have a lot of trouble knowing what most stuff is."

While Watt is enjoying life in Africa for now, her friends back home anxiously await her return.

"It was really hard when Mikala first left," Stryker said. "One of the hardest parts was that the person I was used to talking to and telling everything to was gone, but we now talk other ways.

"It was also hard to coordinate our schedules to keep in touch, but now I am used to it and just excited for when she comes back."

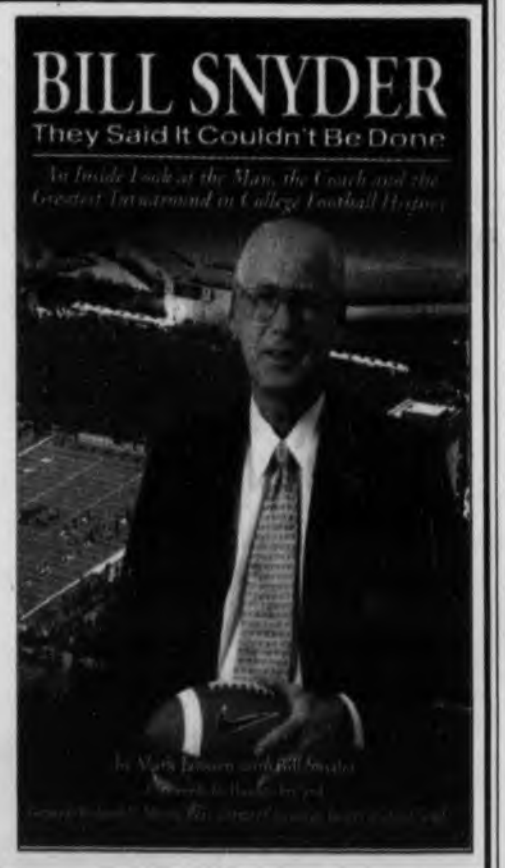
The two keep in contact mostly through the Internet, they said.

"I keep in touch with almost all of my friends and family back home by becoming addicted to the Internet," Watt said with a laugh. "I keep in touch through e-mails, Facebook, MySpace and messenger."

But it won't be long until the two friends see each other again.

"Mikala is coming back in December around finals week," Stryker said. "I am actually really excited that it is getting close to when she will be coming back."

Satisfy it and save with a $1 off per person at GOLDEN WOK BUFFET
This coupon is located in the blue Menu Guide section of your Campus Phone Book.
Not Valid without Phone Book Coupon.



The best K-State Football coverage in the land is in your campus paper.
GAMEDAY 2006
Coming at you every Friday this football season.

Grand Opening
Saturday October 28
KSU vs. Iowa State
10am-5pm
Raffle • Door Prizes • Store Sales • & Fun
10% off all merchandise
Two Moms Boutique
722 Manhattan Ave • Aggieville • Corner of Anderson & Manhattan Ave.

EXTRA

BOO!
To advertise in The Collegian's Halloween edition call 785-532-6560
Halloween is quickly approaching, so check out some of the great deals on costumes, food & fun in TODAY'S HALLOWEEN edition!

Welcome Tri Delta's New Initiates

Coach Bill Snyder will be autographing his book
Saturday, October 28th
10:00am - 12:00pm
Varney's Book Store
in Aggieville.
Come and pick up your copy of Coach Snyder's biography, They Said It Couldn't Be Done, at Varney's.

Thank YOU to our homecoming partners
ΔΣΨ ΠΚΦ Δ
delta sigma phi · pike · triangle for all that you have done for homecoming.
We could not have done it without each and everyone of you!
ΚΑΘ
Love the Women of Kappa Alpha Theta

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, October 27, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 50

INSIDE

Students, local retailers give suggestions for a successful Halloween party.

The Edge, Page 10

RCPD to conduct DUI saturation patrol tonight

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Riley County Police Department will administer a DUI task force saturation patrol tonight and into the morning hours Saturday.

The task force will look for impaired driving and traffic violations, including motorists who show signs of alcohol or drug consumption. Those showing these signs will be investigated for DUI and face proper enforcement action.

This is the first of five patrols to be conducted in Fiscal Year 2007.

Captain Brad Schoen said the task force will include five extra officers who will solely spend their time from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m. on the lookout for drunk drivers.

Schoen said a state grant allows the task force to focus on lowering the number of DUI arrests in the county, to the tune of $500.

"There's a need for us to keep the issue in front of people," he said.

With the high number of DUI arrests in Riley County, Bill Arck, director of the Alcohol and Other Drug Education Sevices, said it is reasonable and prudent for the RCPD to increase patrols.

"With any preventative campaign, you need to do a periodic inoculation, and doing this heightens everyone's awareness that that's an unacceptable thing to do," he said.

Although the increased measures might seem inconvenient to some, Arck said people need to understand why preventing drunk driving is important.

"Some people are saying it's unfair, but I don't think many reasonable people would say that," he said.

"I think it's an educational tool that re-reminds people that they should not be drinking and driving."

Today marks last day to drop classes

By Katelynn Hasler
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Today is the last day students can withdraw from a class, and all outstanding balances must be paid in order to do so.

When students have unpaid fees, a hold is placed on their account. A hold prevents students from performing any kind of enrollment activity. This includes adding and dropping classes.

Bills are sent out on the 15th of each month and are not due for 30 days. A hold on an account is not put into effect until an outstanding balance has exceeded the 30-day payment period.

If students need to add or drop a class and they have a hold on their account, they should visit the Controller's Office and explain the reason for their unpaid bill, said Jim Badders, assistant director of the Controller's Office.

"The bill may not need to be paid off immediately," he said. "If we know the situation, the office will work with students to allow them to enroll when they need to."

K-State's accounting system cannot excuse holds for only certain enrollment activities, Badders said.

"It puts a hold on every past due account," he said. "At this point, we can't allow students to drop classes only. They are blocked from all enrollment services."

Jared Meitler, senior in human ecology, said he was frustrated by a hold on his account because of a small overdue balance from a parking ticket.

"I don't feel like parking or athletic tickets should affect our enrollment," he said. "I think those types of things and tuition should be in separate accounts, so that only tuition payments affect enrollment."

The controller's office takes advantage of the visits from students with holds to help make sure they aren't making any mistakes enrolling, Badders said.

"We want to make sure students aren't making mistakes like dropping below full-time student status and thus losing their financial aid," he said.

While all fees must be paid to drop a class today, students will receive no money back when they drop this late, Gunile DeVault, associate registrar, said. The deadline to withdraw with a 50-percent refund was Sept. 17.

At this point, when students drop a class, it will appear on their transcript with a W for the grade, signifying withdrawal, DeVault said.

If students do not withdraw from a class by today, they will be forced to stay in the class for the remainder of the semester. Whatever grade they receive will appear on their transcript.

Carnival fun

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Lauren Bauman, sophomore in pre-professional elementary education, cheers on Alisia Mitchell, 8, as she arm wrestles Kyle Liebe, sophomore in pre-professional secondary education.

UPC, Homecoming groups organize games for kids

By Austin Apple
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Walking into the K-State Student Union Thursday evening was like walking into a gathering of tiny vampires, pirates and princesses.

Union Program Council organized the annual Children's Carnival, titled "Monster Mash," for dozens of Manhattan children and their parents.

"This has been a Union Program Council program for 20-plus years," said Ben Hopper, program adviser for UPC.

This is the first year the carnival overlapped with All-University Homecoming.

"Usually, the children's carnival is held the Thursday before Halloween, and it just happened to fall on Homecoming this year," Hopper said.

The Union Courtyard was decorated with themes from the movie "Monsters, Inc." Cardboard renditions of characters Mike and Sully dotted the area, and posterboard doors hung from the ceiling,

See CARNIVAL Page 8

Best Buy to give $10K to United Way

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Best Buy is wasting no time showing its support for the community.

Michelle Koch, product process manager, said the corporation will donate $10,000 to the United Way of Riley County. The donation will take place at this morning's grand-opening, ribbon-cutting ceremony at 9 a.m.

"The United Way is a good umbrella for several organizations," Koch said.

"They help out a number of organizations in the community."

The United Way supports 16 local human service organizations, which aid about 25,000 Riley County residents each year, according to the United Way of Riley County's Web site. The American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boys and Girls Clubs of Manhattan and The Salvation Army are a few of the agencies to benefit from the $10,000.

"We're just thrilled they are supporting the community," said Maxine Coffey, executive director of the United Way of Riley County.

"We are in the midst of our annual campaign, and this will be big help."

Customers will get their first look at the new Best Buy store at 9:30 a.m. when the doors open.

The K-State pep band will play for the opening, and Willie the Wildcat will be in attendance, Koch said.

"We feel very lucky to have Willie the Wildcat," she said. "He's a pretty hot commodity on Homecoming week."

Koch said Best Buy found several of its employees at its job fair at the Ramada Inn in August. However, she said the store is continually hiring and employs extra workers during the holiday season.

People have been excited about the arrival of the new business.

"The reaction from the community has been so amazing," Koch said.

"When people see me in my Best Buy blues, they say, 'Hey, when are you opening?'"

When a larger corporation like Best Buy enters a market, smaller businesses sometimes suffer. However, Sara Van Allen, marketing manager at Manhattan Town Center, said she thinks there is enough demand to support a Best Buy as well as local businesses.

"I think it will be a great complement to the downtown area," Van Allen said.

"It should bring in more traffic and more business."

Today's forecast
Morning showers
High: 60 Low: 40

ONLINE

Storm water management
Students, faculty and professionals will design plans for landscaping improvements for storm water management Friday.

www.kstatecollegian.com

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Homecoming parade
The All-University Homecoming parade is at 5 p.m. today, beginning at Manhattan Town Center and heading west toward City Park. Students in the parade should line up at 2:30 p.m. in the JCPenney and Sears parking lots at the mall. A pep rally in the parking lot south of Varney's will follow the parade.

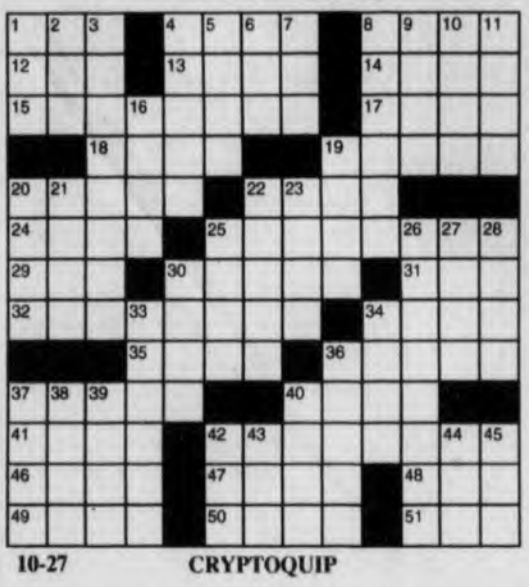
Insect lecture
David Schooley, instructor of biochemistry from the University of Nevada in Reno, will speak about "Hormonal control of fluid homeostasis in insects: can you make an insect 'pee itself to death'" at 1:30 p.m. today in Waters 129. Schooley is the author of 177 papers.

Engineering chair
Mohammad Hosni, head of the Department of Nuclear and Mechanical Engineering, has been named chair of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers Executive Committee of Mechanical Engineering Department Heads. He will start his duties in the two-year appointment Nov. 5-10.

Rating current economic conditions
While a majority of Americans — 54 percent — continue to say the economy is getting worse, the current numbers are up from the recent low point recorded in August.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Cock and bull?
4 Bread spread
8 TV chef Moulton
12 Reaction to a bad taste
13 Fashion
14 Family
15 Bullring VIP
17 "It — Necessarily So"
18 Rue the run
19 Visualization
20 Omega's opposite
22 Camel feature
24 Provider of veritas
25 Spittoon
29 Before
30 Capitols' caps
31 Pay with plastic
32 Brazilian port city
34 Dorm dweller
35 Eternally
36 Songs of praise
37 First word of many limericks
40 Look-alikes, idiomatically
41 Boo Boo's mentor
42 Pomp
46 Detailed map
47 Exam format
48 Literary collection
49 Vortex
50 Dresses in 51 Thither

DOWN
1 Shack
2 Id counterpart
3 Remnants of ammo
4 Nebraska city
5 Source of riches
6 Tokyo's old name
7 "— the ramparts ..."
8 Trattoria seafood entree
9 Others (Lat.)
10 Pealed
11 Initial chip
16 Toyota subcompact
19 Satan's staff
20 Brutus' birds
21 Trevi toss, once
22 Comedy writer's sine qua non
23 Addict
25 "The Da Vinci —"
26 Calamitous time
27 Actor Wilson
28 Cincinnati squad
30 Comic Letterman
33 Truth
34 Blue hue
36 Some women's footwear
37 Work at the keyboard
38 Cling to
39 "Zounds!"
40 Blueprint
42 Turf
43 Favorable vote
44 Lennon's lady
45 Skedaddled

Solution time: 25 mins.

P	E	R	I		R	I	M		S	L	U	G
I	R	O	N		E	R	A		P	E	S	O
E	N	I	D		B	A	R		R	O	A	D
D	E	L	E	T	E		Q	U	I	T
			P	I	C	K	U	P	G	A	M	E
S	I	F	T	S		R	E	S		R	O	W
N	O	A	H		C	U	E		I	D	L	E
O	W	N		G	A	P		P	O	S	E	S
B	A	C	K	U	P	P	L	A	N
		I	N	S	T		A	L	I	G	N	S
A	R	E	A		A	S	P		Z	E	A	L
M	E	R	V		I	K	E		E	A	S	E
A	P	S	E		N	I	L		D	R	A	W

Yesterday's answer 10-27

10-27 CRYPTOQUIP

ROWFM VAOR OR VAM VOKM VX RDCZE JZVMC XW KE DBZWVR. O JXQBN FZBB OV Z KORV XDDXCVQWOVE.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: THE MOVIE COMPANY WAS SCRAMBLING WITHOUT A FULL STAFF, BUT EVENTUALLY IT GOT A GRIP.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: O equals I

BEST BETS

Your social calendar for the weekend

27 Friday

"The Rocky Horror Picture Show"
11:30 p.m. Union Ballroom

This annual event returns for another year of fun. The movie tells the story of a couple who stumble upon the castle of Dr. Frank-N-Furter, a transvestite who is having an annual convention of visitors from the planet Transsexual. This is an audience-participation film, so be prepared to yell, scream and dance to "Time Warp." Come dressed as your favorite character from the movie or just come as yourself. Be sure to go to the drag show, co-sponsored by the Union Program Council and the Queer Straight Alliance, at 8:30 p.m. in Forum Hall to whet your appetite for "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

29 Sunday

Daylight Savings Time ends
2 a.m.

Don't forget to "fall back" one hour on Sunday morning. Set those clocks back and get an extra hour of sleep to prepare yourself for another week of classes.

Hayride/Fund Drive
1-5 p.m. Hope Ranch

Enjoy a trick-or-treat hayride around the ranch or sample baked goods available at this fun event. Tour the Ranch and see the riders dress their horses in Halloween costumes. Come in costume and win prizes. Other events include a jack-o-lantern contest and open house. All proceeds go toward a scholarship, and donated hay will feed the horses through the winter.

Ghost Tour
4 p.m. Fort Riley
Admission: $1 for ages 13 and older

This annual event begins at Custer House and continues through the historical Main Post. Come learn the history of the Army post and visit some of the haunted buildings. The Commanding General's Mounted Color Guard will guide some tours on horseback.

28 Saturday

SPOOKtacular
1-5 p.m. Sunset Zoo*
Admission: $3

Be sure to dress in costume for this event. It's fun for the whole family and for college students, too. Bring a bucket or bag to collect candy and meet some of your favorite characters, including Harry Potter, Captain Jack Sparrow and the Wicked Witch of the West.

*SPOOKtacular also takes place 1-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $3.

Feature Film: "Carrie"
7 p.m and 9:30 p.m. Little Theatre*
Admission: $1

Based on the Steven King novel, the movie tells the story of Carrie White, a young girl raised in isolation by her psychotically religious mother. An outcast in her high school, Carrie soon discovers she has strange mental powers, which she unleashes on prom night.

*Movie also shows 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1.

Homecoming Tailgating Contest
11:35 p.m. Snyder Family Stadium

Come see who wins for best tailgate in each of the four lots: west paved lot, east paved lot, campus lots north of Kimball Avenue, and Lot 9, the grass lot east of the Peters Recreation Complex. Prizes will be given to the winners in each lot.

The planner
Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ A drag show will be at 8:30 p.m. in the K-State Student Union Forum Hall. The event is sponsored by the Queer Straight Alliance.

■ The Anthony Bates Foundation's free heart screening event will be 1-5 p.m. Sunday at the K-State Alumni Center. For more information, contact Sharon@AnthonyBates.org.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Chong Pyo Choe at 9 a.m. Monday in Ackert 324.

■ The Graduate/Professional School Fair is 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The KSU Ballroom Dance Club will have a costume dance 8-10 p.m. Tuesday at Crossroads ECM. Everyone is welcome to attend.

■ Ross University School of Veterinary Medicine will offer an information seminar for students considering pursing a doctorate in veterinary medicine at 6 p.m. Wednesday in Union 209. Online registration is required. To register, visit www.RossU.edu/vet and select information seminars.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kyle Larson at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in Fiedler 2116.

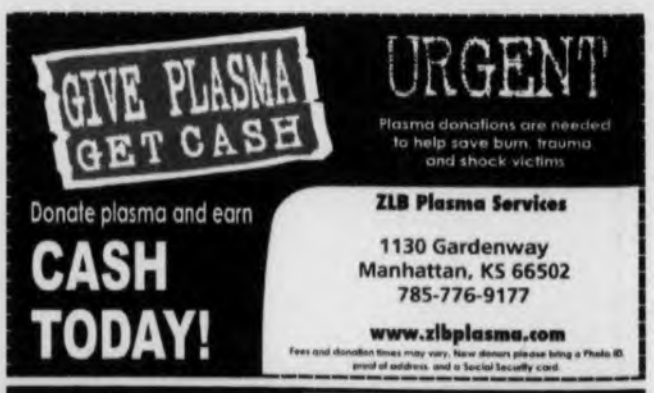
■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Seong-Hyun Park at 10 a.m. Thursday in Throckmorton 2024.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.



© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Play addresess abortion issues

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Four women and their decisions to have an abortion are at the center of the new student-directed play "Almost."

The play opens today and will run through Sunday in the Purple Masque Theatre in East Stadium. University Counseling Services and the K-State Campaign for Nonviolence will host a discussion after each performance.

Shannon Garretson, graduate student in theater, said she wrote and directed "Almost" because she was tired of hearing abortion discussed in strictly a political or religious context.

"In politics, people have lines they have drawn," she said. "Outside of those lines, it's messy. We try to make this issue black and white, but it's not."

Garretson sought out and interviewed four women who have had abortions and based her play on their stories.

"We've heard both sides on the abortion issue from a moral and political perspective," Garretson said. "The women who have gone through it are afraid of judgment and afraid to speak freely about it. But ... they should be able to speak freely about it."

Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN
AJ Bradley, graduate student in theater, hugs Nick Uthoff, K-State graduate, during the dress rehearsal of "Almost" at the Purple Masque Theatre in Memorial Stadium Tuesday evening.

AJ Bradley, graduate student in theater, plays Ellie, a young woman who shares her feelings about the abortion she had.

Bradley said she knew she wanted to be involved in Garretson's play as soon as she read the script.

"I was just floored to hear these women be so open and honest about such a weighty topic," she said. "These are real people, who had to make real decisions with real consequences."

The play's subject matter has drawn some criticism of both Garretson and her cast members. Garretson, however, said her critics have only strengthened her dedication to the project.

Foundation to provide free heart screening

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Spending 15 minutes in the K-State Alumni Center this weekend could add extra years to your life.

Free cardiac screenings will be provided for students this Sunday at the K-State Alumni Center. The Anthony Bates Foundation, a non-profit charity, will perform the screenings from 1-4 p.m.

"The screenings are free and easy, so everyone who is available should participate," Travis Torres, junior in construction science, said. "The time is worth the potential benefit."

Anthony Bates was a 20-year-old student and football player at K-State in July of 2000. Although seemingly healthy, Anthony collapsed while driving home and died of a heart attack, according to www.anthonybates.org. Doctors determined that Anthony suffered from Hypertrophic Cardiomyopathy (HCM), a genetic heart disease that causes thickening of the heart.

Experts in the cardiac field estimate that one in 500 young adults suffer unknowingly from HCM. The only way to detect HCM is through an echocardiogram, or a sonogram picture of the heart.

Although the foundation was grown from tragedy, its focus continues to be early detection to extend life.

"I needed to heal," said Sharon Bates, Anthony's mother and founder of the Anthony Bates Foundation. "His death was a very unfair thing for a parent to go through, and I want to stop it from happening to others."

The foundation has provided screening for more than 3,500 people since its inception in October 2001, according to the Web site. Of the people screened, nearly 10 percent are found to have some level of heart problem.

"In our country, nearly 14,000 young people lose their lives each year to heart problems," Bates said, "It is preventable, and if we can save just one life, it is worth it."

Bates estimated the foundation has saved nearly 300 lives in its five years of screening. At K-State, the screenings have been embraced not only by the community, but also by the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics.

"I would have to say that Bill Snyder was my biggest influence to start this foundation," Bates said. "If it wasn't for his friendship and dedication to the cause, there's no telling if we would even be coming to K-State on Sunday."

Each screening is expected to take five to 15 minutes, and the entire process should not require more than 30 minutes. Although walk-ins are welcome, the foundation encourages pre-registering for a time slot at www.anthonybates.org.

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

Hungry?
A large 1-Topping Pizza for $7.99 would fix that.
Domino's Pizza
This coupon is located in the blue Menu Guide section of your Campus Phone Book.
Not Valid without Phone Book Coupon.

STEVE'S FLORAL
"VOTED BEST FLORIST"
A Kansas State Tradition for 20 Years

Get your Game On order
The BIG ASS
Largest Pie In Manhattan
$11.99 20" one topping
or
2 FUR $21.99
GUMBY'S Pizza
770-3333

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
ONLY $5!
Come to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words.
Only first names will be printed in the ads.
Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31.
Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Monday, Oct. 30.
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

Coach Bill Snyder
will be
autographing his book
Saturday, October 28th
10:00am - 12:00pm
Varney's Book Store
in Aggieville.
Come and pick up your copy of Coach Snyder's biography, They Said It Couldn't Be Done, at Varney's.

WE'VE GOT 'EM, AND YOU WANT 'EM

"Since we began our advertising campaign with the Collegian, we've increased sales and have been able to reach the college crowd, which is a key demographic to capture in order to be successful here in Manhattan."
-- Ray Garrison
Bowinkles
Collegian Advertising
Your Number 1 source for reaching the K-State Community!
Reaching 23,000 Financial Aid recipients daily.
Let them know where to spend it
and where to get a job when they need more $!

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

OPINION

TO THE POINT

Snyder says Prince needs time to win

It has come to this.

Former football coach Bill Snyder released an open letter to the media to be passed along to all "loyal" K-State fans.

TO THE POINT is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

The premise of the letter: the fans need to start supporting new coach Ron Prince, his staff and his players.

"I am now asking that you please afford that same caring and loyal support to Ron Prince, his staff and players," Snyder said in the letter. "This is a difficult transition for them, and they are working diligently to give you the very best product possible."

One reason Snyder retired last season was because he thought the transition would be easier for a new coach. Expectations would be lower after missing bowl games in two straight seasons.

However, K-State fans thought Prince would transform a struggling program in one season.

In 1989, Snyder took over a team that had not won a game in the previous two seasons. In his first season, Snyder won one game. His program wasn't a consistent winner until 1993.

Prince's team is only two wins away from doing what Snyder couldn't do the last two seasons: qualify for a bowl game.

Give him a chance; don't judge him halfway into his first season.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Hey FarmHouse, you're not supposed to be drinking this week.

To the shacker I saw on Elaine doing the walk of shame this morning: nice.

I just caught a bunch of TKE kids trying to steal toilet paper from our dorm floor. I know it's TKE, but wow.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Cut and run with Ryun

Congressman takes action too late on immigration, skirts questions

Had enough?

It's something a football player might hear from his opponent after three quarters of brutal punishment. After 10 or 12 sacks, a quarterback might be asked if he's had enough.

Illustration by Ashley Burks | COLLEGIAN

But for the last few months, "Had enough?" has explained a different kind of brutality: the road to nowhere down which Rep. Jim Ryun has led us.

OWEN KENNEDY

While campaigning, Ryun, R-Kan., has said something has to be done about illegal immigration.

I agree with him, but why does he wait until 12 years after being elected to Congress to decide to do something about it?

I can't imagine he just took a Republican talking point and copy and pasted it into his speeches.

Making sure to stay in line with Republicans, Ryun picked up another strategy: changing his story when caught in a lie.

Last month, Ryun said he had no knowledge that former Rep. Mark Foley lived across the street from him in Washington, D.C. But according to the Topeka Capital-Journal, Ryun changed his story when questions arose about the validity of his statement. According to the Capital-Journal, Ryun, along with Foley and a handful of other Republican representatives, were host to a Republican fundraiser in May. Ryun later admitted he knew Foley was a neighbor.

Ryun's campaign manager, Jeffrey Black, said this week it wasn't entirely true that Ryun was unaware that Foley lived close to him. Actually, it was an all-out lie.

Why did Ryun lie about this? Why didn't he just tell the truth? And why would he allow our borders to be broken for so long?

One would expect his Democratic challenger, Nancy Boyda of Topeka, to ask these tough questions. Unfortunately, this won't happen.

It isn't that Boyda doesn't have the guts to ask, it's that Ryun doesn't have to guts to publicly debate Boyda more than a few times. He continually says his work in Washington is too time-consuming, so he can't schedule any more debates, except Congress has been out of session for a couple of weeks now. It sounds like Ryun is cutting and running from tough questions.

Boyda has made "Had enough?" her campaign slogan. She says if you've had enough of corruption or enough of politicians' refusal to give answers or take responsibility, then it's time for change.

According to the Public Campaign Action Fund, Ryun has one of the closest ties to former Republican Rep. Tom Delay. This is based on money given and received between Delay and Ryun and the similarity of their voting records.

It'd be great if Ryun would answer questions on such issues, but he would rather run smear ads about Boyda. He claims she wants a clear path to citizenship for illegal immigrants who are already here, something she has in common with Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., and President Bush. Ryun would rather take the easy road of deporting every single illegal in the United States.

I respect Ryun's qualifications to be a Congressman, though: he ran track awhile ago, and umm, he ran track awhile ago. But I've had enough of Ryun and Congress refusing to answer our questions. I've had enough of our country being stomped into the ground by politicians pushing a personal agenda

It's the fourth quarter now, and we can make a comeback from this punishment Ryun has allowed to continue. We need a representative in Congress who will get us back on the right track. It's time for a new coach, not a track coach.

My recommendation: Coach Nancy. Because I've had enough.

Owen Kennedy is a junior in management. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Signs of season indicate approach of Halloween

The air is brisk, leaves are underfoot, fliers are printed on orange paper, and stores can't keep their fishnet stockings on the shelves.

BECKY STEINERT

This can mean only one thing: Halloween.

Signs of the festival recur each year, and they all create the season.

Television networks love to boast of their "spooktacular" Halloween line-ups. The gross exploitation of reruns has made me a minor expert. Roseanne and her family never missed a Hallowmas, and I have never missed watching that small extraterrestrial pop out of Darlene's stomach, "Alien" style. I'll never forget the time I laughed at Tim "the Toolman" Taylor when Al fooled him by dressing up as a mysterious woman at Tim's Halloween party.

And most notably, the entire collection of "The Simpsons" Tree House of Horror will outlast by many decades, I'm sure, my recall of the state capitals. Groundskeeper Willie killed students in their dreams, Homer stumbled into the third dimension, and students at Springfield Elementary were ground up into the cafeteria food and eaten in just a few of these short stories.

Horror flicks are another favorite when autumn arrives. They are excellent for providing the terrified-that-a-serial-murderer-is-under-my-bed-with-a-knife feeling people seem to enjoy so much. Don't tell me it was a surprise when the closet door opened and the ghost of the dead orphan girl was there. There was five minutes of suspenseful music leading up to it, as well as the actor's helpful, anticipatory facial expressions.

To be fair, scary movies sometimes employ the psych-out tactic: suspenseful music, a creaky noise, a slow turning of a knob and a hasty opening of the door and – oh, it's just a closet.

Then there is the most obvious part of Halloween: costumes. I can't help but notice a rising trend in Halloween costumes. This is the idea that apparently any character or personality can be transformed into a seductive temptress if one tries hard enough.

Perhaps I'm mistaken, but the Raggedy Ann I remember from my childhood did not wear a miniskirt, stiletto heels, thigh-high pantyhose and a garter belt. There's nothing at all perverse about taking a beloved children's character and altering its image until it is unfit for the eyes of said children.

But not all costumes are inappropriate. Some of them are for boys. Males like to take the opportunity to exercise their funny bones. This year I predict an uprising of Napoleon Dynamite-related costumes and a few inflatable sumo wrestlers. One inevitable funnyman will dress like a girl, thus immortalizing his status as the local comedian.

These are the trappings of Halloween. Every October brings with it a certain feeling, prompted in part by these visages, that is nostalgic and peaceful and signifies impending fun. Pumpkin-centric television line-ups, shriek-inducing films, and costumes that give everyone an alter ego for a night, are all a part of this. So don a mask and rent "The Shining," because Halloween is here.

Becky Steinert is a freshman in psychology. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

POLITICAL CARTOON | By Donnie Jay

Snyder asks Wildcat fans to back Prince in transition

To all loyal Wildcat fans,

I have always been immensely grateful to you for your genuine, caring and loyal support of our university, our athletic program, our coaches and our players. As I now travel around the state (and country), I am becoming even more aware of your graciousness.

You have made me even more proud of having been your coach for nearly two decades.

I have stated so very often that I came to K-State because of the people, and I've stayed because of the people. You are truly wonderful.

I am now asking that you please afford that same caring and loyal support to Ron Prince, his staff and players. This is a difficult transition for them, as it would be for anyone, and they are working diligently to give you the very best product possible.

This staff needs (just as we did) and deserves the same unbelievable support that you provided to our program for the past 17 years.

Forever grateful and forever a Wildcat,

Bill Snyder
FORMER K-STATE FOOTBALL COACH

From the Public Editor

Follow formula to grab the Collegian's attention

LOGAN C. ADAMS

So you want us to write about your campus organization? Join the club.

I often run into people who think they have a great story for us to cover or are working hard on something they want to see in the Collegian. They just aren't sure how to tell us.

The first thing I tell people in this situation is that they need to give us fair notice. If you've been planning something for months, you can at least call us two weeks before.

Take, for example, an interesting e-mail I read on a Friday morning not long ago.

The sender, who will remain anonymous to protect the guilty, wanted to know if the Collegian would cover a campus group's activity the next morning – one day away.

The event was covered, not because a reporter was found, but because our campus editor had heard about it much earlier and had assigned the story to a reporter.

Another time, a campus office called the newsroom late on a Friday afternoon to ask if we'd send a photographer to cover a small awards ceremony starting in 15 minutes. They'd known about it for a while but were calling just then. The ceremony wasn't covered.

We don't have a staff of reporters sitting around waiting for news tips to come in. We're students, and we have classes to worry about, not to mention other jobs. It's hard to get reporters to take an assignment on short notice, harder still if it's not a big story.

Let's say a meteor would fall from the sky and put a crater in the lawn east of Anderson Hall (Hey, President Wefald, duck!). If that, or some other important story were to break, it would be easy to find a reporter.

It's one thing to justify putting off schoolwork when heavenly bodies collide, but it's much more of a challenge to persuade someone to ignore exams and papers for the sake of a barbecue or art display. That's just the way things are.

Another hurdle is that some people don't know how to ask, so they don't. Maybe it's pride or nerves or even the boogeyman.

The thing is, it's easy.

All you have to do is fill in these blanks: Hey, (event) is happening (when) (where). It's important because (A) and/or (B) and/or (C).

To show how easy it is, and to shamelessly plug an upcoming Collegian event, I'll demonstrate it now:

Hey there, I just wanted you to know about the first "Ink Barrel Chat," a panel discussion about the Collegian at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in Kedzie 4. The chat will feature several faculty members speaking about the Collegian's history of dealing with diversity and taking questions from the audience. The public is invited.

That's all there is to it. You can copy my format if you wish. I won't complain. Just don't say I never explained it.

Logan C. Adams is the Collegian's public editor and a senior in print journalism. Send comments to publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu or catch him in person 10 a.m. to noon Wednesday on the first floor of the K-State Student Union.

If you have a story idea or suggestion, e-mail it to one of the following addresses:
Emily Lawrence, editor in chief: collegian@spub.ksu.edu
Kerry Fischer, managing editor: kdf3335@ksu.edu
Leann Sulzen, news editor: lns@ksu.edu
Kristen Roderick, campus editor: roderick@ksu.edu
Megan Moser, city/gov editor: mmoser@ksu.edu
Logan C. Adams, public editor: publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu

FILE PHOTO

Drag show to precede 'Rocky Horror;' movie encourages audience participation

By Rebecca Vitztum
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Those who arrive a few hours early will see a new comedic twist before the annual Halloween screening of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

Before the Friday showing of this cult classic film, Union Program Council will team up with students to organize a drag show.

This new event gives gay students exposure and an opportunity to work with UPC, said Jason Dockins, coordinator of the drag show.

"We wanted to do something for Coming Out Week," Dockins said. "This gives us a chance to let people know that we are on campus, and a drag show is something that can relate to us, and everyone can enjoy it and get some good entertainment and laughs."

"The Rocky Horror Picture Show" is an audience-involved film filled with transvestite characters.

"People dress up as characters in the film, (wearing) lingerie and other various types of transvestite characters," said Vanassa Grabitz, sophomore in political science.

The drag show is an appropriate preface for the film in because it relates to the theme in several ways, Dockins said.

"The drag show goes along with this hilarious film, and it will give people an educational element about coming out," he said.

The drag show will begin at 8:30 tonight in Forum Hall.

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
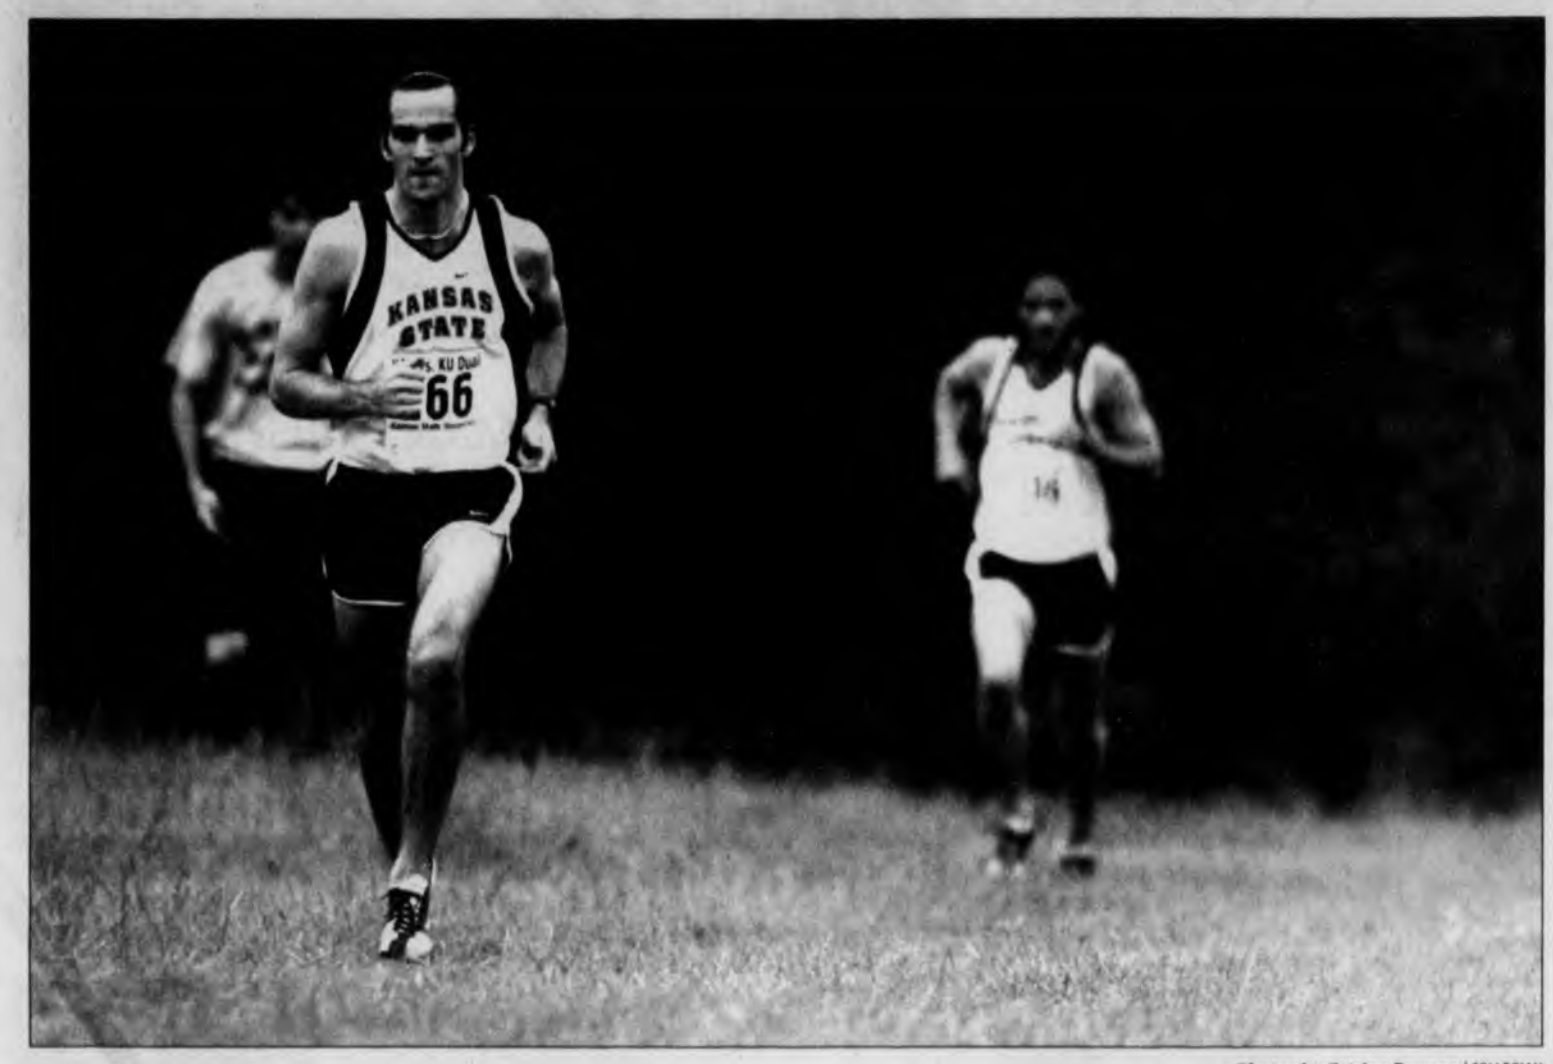
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

K-State family day
Saturday, November 4, 2006
www.k-state.edu/familyday

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Queer Straight Alliance & the Union Program Council present
Monica Moree
The Legend of Dragula
Friday, October 27
8:30 pm
Forum Hall, Ground Floor
K-State Student Union
Free!
The Rocky Horror Picture Show
11:30 pm * Main Ballroom, Second Floor * $5
upc
Kansas State University Queer – Straight Alliance



"Making Life Better"
Kansas City Kansas Community College
7250 State Avenue • Kansas City, KS 66112
913-334-1100
"An Equal Opportunity Educational Institution"
Online Courses Spring 2007
http://www.kckcc.edu/schedule/index.psp

COURSE NAME
INTRODUCTION TO ADDICTIONS
COUNSELING THE ALCOHOLIC AND DRUG ABUSER
SPECIAL TOPICS IN ADDICTION
ADDICTION COUNSELING WITH SPECIAL POPULATIONS
GROUP DYNAMICS AND ADDICTIONS I
CLIENT MANAGEMENT PROCEDURES
FIRST AID
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
MEDICAL TERMINOLOGY
WOMEN'S HEALTH: A TEAM APPROACH
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY
ARCHAEOLOGY
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
GENERAL BIOLOGY
THE LIVING BODY
ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE
HUMAN ANATOMY AND LABORATORY
NUTRITION
KINESIOLOGY
MICROBIOLOGY
HUMAN SEXUALITY
PHYSIOLOGY
PHYSIOLOGY LABORATORY
ACCOUNTING I
ACCOUNTING II
SMALL BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
PERSONAL FINANCE
HUMAN RELATIONS IN BUSINESS
BUSINESS MATH
MARKETING
OFFICE PRACTICUM
SUPERVISION TECHNIQUES
INCOME TAX PROCEDURES
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I
COST ACCOUNTING
MANAGERIAL ACCOUNTING
BUSINESS LAW I
BUSINESS LAW II
INTRODUCTION TO BUSINESS
BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS
INTRO TO ENTREPENEURSHIP
HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP I
PRINCIPLES OF MANAGEMENT
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP II
BASIC KEYBOARDING
DOCUMENT FORMATTING I
SPEEDBUILDING I
SPEEDBUILDING II
RECORDS MANAGEMENT
BUSINESS ENGLISH
PROOFREADING
OFFICE SIMULATION
BUSINESS ETIQUETTE
CUSTOMER SERVICE
GENERAL CHEMISTRY
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY I AND LAB
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY II + LAB
FORENSIC SCIENCE ANALYTICAL TECHNIQUES
ORGANIC CHEMISTRY II
BIOCHEMISTRY
FUNDAMENTALS OF EARLY CARE EDUCATION
INFANTS AND TODDLERS I
INFANTS AND TODDLERS II
PRESCHOOLERS I
PRESCHOOLERS II
CARE OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES
CHILD CARE ADMINISTRATION
"WELLNESS, HEALTH AND SAFETY FOR THE YOUNG CHILD"
INTRODUCTION TO THE INTERNET (L)
COMPUTER CONCEPTS AND APPLICATIONS
MICROCOMPUTER BUSINESS SOFTWARE
LOCAL AREA NETWORKING
HTML WEB PAGE DEVELOPMENT
COMPUTER OPERATING SYSTEM
WEB GRAPHICS AND MULTIMEDIA
JAVASCRIPT
INTRODUCTION TO INTERNETWORKING AND ROUTERS
SYSTEM MANAGER
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I
VISUAL BASIC
ADVANCED WAN INTERNETWORKING
ADVANCED SYSTEM MANAGER
ADVANCED VISUAL BASIC
C++ PROGRAMMING
JAVASCRIPT II
OS FEATURES REVIEW
CGI PERL
INDUSTRIAL INTERNSHIP (COMPUTER)
POLICE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION
CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION II
TRAFFIC ADMINISTRATION AND CONTROL
CORRECTIONAL LAW
PRINCIPLES OF MACROECONOMICS
INTRODUCTION TO TEACHING
CAREER AWARENESS
COMPOSITION I
INTRODUCTION TO FICTION
TECHNICAL WRITING
MODERN AMERICAN LITERATURE
MAJOR ENGLISH WRITERS II
PRINT READING
COMPUTER AIDED DRAFTING
DRAFTING FIELD PROJECT I
FIRST AID
CURRENT TOPICS AND ISSUES IN EXERCISE SCIENCE
TECHNIQUES OF STRENGTH TRAINING
CAMPING AND OUTDOOR EDUCATION
INTRODUCTION TO EXERCISE SCIENCE
PERSONAL SCHOOL COMMUNITY HEALTH
LIFETIME FITNESS
PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR THE ELEMENTARY TEACHER
SPORTS OFFICIATING
EXERCISE PHYSIOLOGY
EXERCISE TESTING AND PRESCRIPTION
ART HISTORY II
BUILDING CONSTRUCTION FIRE SERVICE
FIRE PROTECTION EQUIPMENT ALARM SYSTEMS
INTRODUCTION TO HOMELAND SECURITY AND WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION
FIRE ADMINISTRATION I
BUILDING FIRE CODES
CURRENT TOPICS AND TECHNOLOGY IN FIRE SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL GEOGRAPHY
UNITED STATES TO 1877
UNITED STATES SINCE 1877
BLACK HISTORY
THE BIBLE AS HISTORY
WORLD CIVILIZATION II
HUMAN SEXUALITY
INTRODUCTION TO HUMANITIES
HUMANITIES II
INTRODUCTION TO MASS COMMUNICATIONS
MATH ESSENTIALS
ELEMENTARY ALGEBRA
INTERMEDIATE ALGEBRA
COLLEGE ALGEBRA
PRE-CALCULUS MATHEMATICS
STATISTICS
MUSIC APPRECIATION
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY
INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY LAB
INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS LABORATORY
INTRODUCTION TO METEOROLOGY AND LAB
TRANSITION CONCEPTS
PATHOPHYSIOLOGY FOR NURSES
INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY
ETHICS
FIRST AID
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL THERAPY
AMERICAN GOVERNMENT
INTRODUCTION TO LAW
LEGAL RESEARCH I
LITIGATION I
REAL ESTATE LAW
LEGAL WRITING
CRIMINAL LAW FOR THE PARALEGAL
BANKRUPTCY
PSYCHOLOGY
THE GRIEVING PROCESS
CHILD DEVELOPMENT
HUMAN DEVELOPMENT
SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY
FUNDAMENTALS RESPIRATORY CARE
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS I
TECHNICAL DEVICES
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS II
INTRODUCTION TO PULMONARY FUNCTION TESTING
SOCIOLOGY
SOCIOLOGY OF FAMILY
CRIMINOLOGY
SOCIAL PROBLEMS
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
PUBLIC SPEAKING
VICTIMOLOGY
VICTIM SERVICES
LEGAL POLICY IN VICTIM SERVICES

THE BEST K-STATE FOOTBALL COVERAGE IN THE LAND... PICK ONE UP TODAY!
GAMEDAY2006

Big 12 Conference Championship

Do-over

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

K-State sophomore Colin Swaney competes Sept. 8 during the K-State versus Kansas dual in Manhattan. The Wildcats will run in the Big 12 Championship meet today in Lawrence. The women's race will start at 10 a.m., and the men will start an hour later.

Cross country team looks to better original times on Lawrence's Rim Rock course in today's meet

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Big 12 Championship
Where: Rim Rock Farm, Lawrence
When: Women's 6K 10 a.m. today; men's 8K 11 a.m. today

When the cross country season began in August, coach Michael Smith said he was preparing his team for the Big 12 Championship race.

That time is here.

The race will begin at 10 a.m. today at Rim Rock Farm in Lawrence, with the women competing in a 6K (about 3.7 miles) race.

Smith said the team is prepared physically and mentally.

"My expectations are that each person runs to the best of their ability," Smith said. "I'm pretty sure that we're prepared to run as well as we can."

On the women's side, Smith said he expects Liliani Mendez to finish in the top 10, Lindsay Pierson in the top 40 and Morgan Bonds in the top 50. Bonds had her best meet of the year when the team ran at Rim Rock Farm on Sept. 2. She placed fifth with a time of 23:19 in the 6K. Pierson led the women during the first race of the season, placing third.

Mendez, however, had trouble with the course the first time around but said she is ready for it this time.

"The first time was not good for me," she said. "I think this will be a different experience. I learned a lot from the first time I was there, and it will be good for competition."

The men will run at 11 a.m. today in an 8K (about 5 miles) race.

"We're focusing on what we can control and how well can we compete tomorrow," Smith said.

He said he expects Colin Swaney to finish in the top 30 and Kory Cool to finish in the top 50.

Swaney said he expects to finish in the top 30 as well. He was disappointed with his first race at Rim Rock Farm, so he hopes this time will be different.

"The first time we ran was the first meet of the season," Swaney said. "I've gotten confidence since then."

While he normally would expect their times to

See CHAMPIONSHIP Page 8

Sophomore Liliani Mendez competes Sept. 8 during the K-State versus Kansas dual in Manhattan. Cross country coach Michael Smith expects Mendez to finish in the top 10 in the women's division.

Watching cross country offers exercise, scenery

KRISTEN RODERICK

Need a good reason to get out and exercise?

Go to a cross country meet.

It might sound crazy, but cross country is one of the most interactive sports.

I have been around cross country since I was in middle school. I remember going to my brother's first cross country meet expecting just to sit and watch him run, just like when I went to his track meets and got bored waiting for him to run. I wasn't looking forward to it.

But as we arrived at the course, I realized it would be anything but sitting and waiting. Even before the race, my family and I walked the 5K course to see find the best places to cheer on my brother. When the race started, we had to run through the shortcuts we had found to make sure we were there before he was.

Sometimes I think I got almost as much exercise as a spectator as I would have if I were actually running the race.

One of my favorite places to run and watch other people run is at Rim Rock Farm in Lawrence. It is absolutely beautiful.

Runners go through a covered bridge, run up and down a steep hill – aptly called "suicide hill" – and run past a lake that looks like the Jayhawk mascot.

The one-of-a-kind course amazes spectators and runners alike. I would know because I have been both. I watched my brother run during his freshman through senior years at the 6A state cross country meet, and I ran there myself when my team made it to state during my freshman year of high school.

Runners shouldn't expect their best time on the course because of the steep hills, but they should expect great scenery.

This year's Big 12 Championship cross country meet is today at Rim Rock Farm. The K-State team opened its season there, so it will be a good chance to see how much the runners have improved.

If you want to cheer on the Wildcat runners while getting some exercise in the process, I encourage you to take a trip east. If you're anything like me, it will be an unforgettable experience.

Kristen Roderick is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

K-State volleyball team takes on unbeaten Nebraska

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

No. 1 Nebraska at K-State
Where: Ahearn Field House
When: 7 p.m. Saturday
Radio: KMAN 1350
Live stats available at k-statesports.com

The K-State women's volleyball team will have the opportunity to do to No. 1-ranked Nebraska what no team has done so far this season.

Beat them.

The Huskers (19-0, 11-0 Big 12) have dominated teams throughout Big 12 Conference play, winning nine of 11 matches by 3-0 sweeps, including an Oct. 4 meeting against the Wildcats in Lincoln, Neb.

In that match, the Wildcats (9-13, 1-11 Big 12) lost each game by at least an eight-point margin.

They could not find an answer for the Huskers' sophomore outside hitter Jordan Larson, who totaled 20 kills, 10 digs and a .400 hitting percentage.

Generating offense also was a problem for K-State.

The Wildcats posted a season-low .061 hitting percentage in that match, and no player recorded more than six kills.

Shortly after the loss, the Wildcats changed their line-up.

They moved junior Angie Lastra from libero to the outside hitter and made junior Lauren Rosenthal the full-time libero.

The change not only has resulted in one conference win for the Wildcats, but also in an increase in offensive production.

In Wednesday's 3-1 loss to Iowa State, the Wildcats had four players reach double-digit kills, led by Lastra with 18 and sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker with 15.

K-State finished with 11 more kills (72 to 61) than the Cyclones.

But the defense has been lacking, averaging nearly two digs less per game (1.9) than its opponents for the season.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

Where to watch the Wildcats this season

Auntie Mae's Parlor Report Card:
Atmosphere: B
Food selection: C
Drink (choices): A
Entertainment: B

Most Aggieville bars are synonymous with large crowds and loud music, but Auntie Mae's Parlor offers a relaxed atmosphere in which K-State fans can watch a game or get a drink afterward.

One of the only Aggieville bars with two levels, Auntie Mae's, 616 N. 12th St., offers enough room to ensure fans a seat on game day. Additionally, due to the relaxed atmosphere of the bar, fans can focus on the game rather than the crowd.

In terms of television selection, Auntie Mae's offers a modest five screens, one of which is a big screen. Unfortunately, the bar does not subscribe to any sports packages, but it does tune into the games on radio when they aren't available on television.

The drink selection at Auntie Mae's is a great reason to give it a try the next time you're in Aggieville. The downstairs bar offers 11 beers on tap, including many drinks you won't find anywhere else, and a second bar is open in the upstairs portion on weekends to help handle the larger crowds. Additionally, there are specials every weekend on selected draft beer.

While the drink selection is impressive, the food selection is small.

However, Auntie Mae's does offer an item not likely to be found in many other bars: chili. Unfortunately, that's about all that is offered, but if chili's your thing, there might not be a better place to eat while watching or listening to the Wildcats.

Finally, there are a few alternate diversions offered in case the game fails to entertain you. Annie Mae's has a pool table, a pinball game, a jukebox and a touch-screen gaming system.

Auntie Mae's is solid enough across the board to make it worth a try.

— Reviewed by Dayne Logan

ROW | K-State travels to Iowa Sunday for Head of the Iowa

The rowing team will continue its fall campaign Sunday, racing at the Head of the Iowa in Iowa City, Iowa.

Two varsity 8+ boats and three novice 8+ boats will make the journey to compete in the head race. A head race in rowing is slightly different than a regular race.

"It's against the clock," said coach Patrick Sweeney. "You can never predict what is going to happen. You can get stuck behind a slower crew that can add 10 seconds to your time."

Sweeney said his team is in shape, but rowers have lost practice time this fall.

"We're physically stronger this year," he said. "With the winds lately, we've lost a lot of water time, so we're not as far along as I had hoped in that aspect."

In the novice division, the three K-State boats will race against Colorado, Iowa State, Kansas, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

In the varsity division, the two K-State boats will compete against boats from Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Drake, Creighton and Cincinnati.

Sweeney said a fall race before the Sunflower Showdown on Nov. 11 will be beneficial for several reasons.

"The main thing is with fall-time racing, it gives a good break from the training," he said. "It gives them experience and the main one is they learn lessons from it. They learn how much harder they have to push."

— Wendy Haun

RUG | Women's club to play Missouri Saturday at 11 a.m.

The K-State Women's Rugby Club will take on Missouri at 11 a.m. Saturday at Memorial Stadium. The team is part of the women's collegiate division of the Heart of America Rugby Football Union, which includes teams from Oklahoma State, Kansas and several other area universities.

The team is composed of about 17 women from different areas of concentration. Fifteen players from each team are allowed to play on the field. The team has played several minutes without the full 15 players because of injuries and other conflicts, said Caitlin James, senior in animal science and industry and vice president of the club.

The rugby club also has played games against Truman State and Kansas this season, losing both. Last week the team competed in a five-team tournament in Denton, Texas, coming away winless.

— Scott Girard

1st graduate of K-State dance program returns to teach classes

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Department of Speech Communication, Theatre and Dance saw a new, but not unfamiliar, face for the past two weeks.

Laura Donnelly, the first graduate of the dance program in 1979, spent the last two weeks as a guest teacher of dance.

Along with teaching, Donnelly worked with a small group of students for a performance at the WinterDance show, which will take place Nov. 16-18.

Although Donnelly brings global experience with her, students and faculty appreciate her jovial demeanor.

"She laughs and makes people smile," said Julie Pentz, assistant professor of speech communication, theater and dance.

Pentz, who will continue Donnelly's training until the group's performance, said having someone like Donnelly teach allows for change in the department. She said professors at K-State teach primarily the same techniques, so it encourages students to learn more when a new perspective is available.

"She is great," Kelsey Zirkle, senior in theater, said. "It really is uplifting and fun to have somebody like her as a guest teacher."

Donnelly's passion for dance is apparent to anyone who encounters her, and just mentioning her name brought smiles to faces of those who know her.

It is not all fun and games in the dance studio, though. Along with her laugh, Donnelly brought a form of dancing new to the dance program. The form, known as the Alexander Technique, allows dancers to use their bodies more efficiently to reduce unnecessary tension. The technique utilizes the mind and body to create positions comfortable for body structure.

"I have never thought so much when I dance," Sarah Rothfuss, junior in management, said. "It broadens your knowledge as a dancer and betters yourself in the long run."

While Donnelly has taught students the basics of the Alexander Technique, she said they ultimately bear the responsibility of success or failure. She said the technique is a lifelong process, similar to a plant's growth.

"I cannot change anybody," Donnelly said. "They need to analyze what they see and understand the principles of dance."

When Donnelly was a student in 1979, Nichols Hall burned down and only the walls remained. Donnelly was one of several students to protest the demolition of the building. Although the demolition was cancelled, the building was not rebuilt until years after she left K-State. Donnelly remembered holding signs that said "Save Nichols" in front of the president's house.

"That was fun," Donnelly said, laughing about the experience, "but that was the first and last time I will ever protest."

Donnelly, who unknowingly helped to save the future home of the dance program, has not lost her dedication to K-State.

Although she has traveled the world and visited some of the most prestigious dance institutions, she makes a point to visit K-State every few years.

"I have lived all over the world, but the place that I always come back to is Manhattan," Donnelly said.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Working with individual dancers, Laura Donnelly, 1979 K-State alumna and choreographer, tweaks a performance in Nichols Theatre. Donnelly choreographed "Here Now," a five-minute, modern piece she taught to nine K-State dance ensemble members during her two-week visit.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6560
ADVERTISE.

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555

EXTRA 15% OFF CLEARANCE ITEMS
Lee's Western Wear
MON-FRI 9-6 • SAT 9-5 8426 E HWY 24 • 785-776-8715

HANAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
$1 off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888
1 coupon per customer • Can not be combined with any other offers

Tom HAWK
Experienced, Common Sense Leadership
RE-ELECT TOM HAWK
State Representative 67th District
I Support:
• K-State
• Ft. Riley
• Small Business
"I have worked hard in my first term to do what is best for Manhattan/Ogden and Riley County. I believe in working with all legislators and both parties to be a problem-solver. My first commitment throughout my professional life as a teacher, counselor, and superintendent has been education. As a member of the House Utilities and Environment Committees the past two years, I have also learned how important sound energy and water policy is to the future of our state. I pledge to be a strong and reasonable voice for all of us as your State Representative."
www.tomhawk.com
Prepared for the Job
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Katha Hurt, Treasurer

RELIGION Directory

Peace Lutheran Church
Worship Sundays 8:30 and 11:00 Contemporary Service 5:00 p.m.
P·E·A·C·E
Pastor Michael Ide
2500 Kimball
539-7371
www.peace-to-you.org
With Christ . . . Gather . . . Grow and Go Forth!

Join the Directory
785-532-6560

MANHATTAN JEWISH CONGREGATION
Worship: Fri. 7:30 pm
1509 Wreath Ave, Manhattan
Everyone welcome!
www.manhattanjewishcong.org
In association with HILLEL the Jewish student organization
www.k-state.edu/hillel

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
2121 Blue Hills Road
539-8691
9:45 am Sunday School
11:00 am Sunday Worship
Praise Team Twice Each Month
www.centeredinchrist.us
1801 Anderson Ave 539-3051
Baptist Campus Center

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
ecm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/ecm
David Jones, Pastor
Sundays
5:30 pm Table Fellowship
Mondays
7 pm Prayer and Motion
9 pm Money Matters
Thursdays
8 pm Faith Forum
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

Agape Family Church
121 S. 4th—Downtown
An Affiliate of RHEMA Bible Church aka Kenneth Hagin Ministries
Sunday 9:30 a.m. School of the Bible
Sunday 10:30 a.m. Worship
Sunday 7:00 p.m. Evening Worship
Wednesday 7:30 p.m. Hour of Power
Youth, Children's and Nursery Services
STERLING HUDGINS - PASTOR
Office: 121 S. 4th Suite 205
www.agapefamily.org
Monday Nite Live 7:15 p.m.
College Fellowship 207 Union
(785) 539-3570

Welcome to FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Saturday Service 5:30 p.m.
Sunday Worship 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Church School for all ages 9:45 a.m.
www.firstlutheranmanhattan.org
10th & Poyntz 785-537-8532

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00, 10:30, 10:40
• Sunday School at 9:15
Steve Ratliff, Senior Pastor
Brian Anderson, Assoc. Pastor
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086
Barnes, Kimball, Tuttle Creek Blvd, Bluemont

Muslim Student Association (MSA)
DAILY WORSHIP: 5:45AM - 6:45AM
FRIDAY PRAYER (JUMUAH) 7:30PM
VENUE: ISLAMIC CENTER OF MANHATTAN
1224 HYLTON HEIGHTS
MANHATTAN, KS 66502
785.776.1033

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:00, 9:30, 11:00 a.m.
Collegiate Bible Hour Class 11:00 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
785-776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

newhope CHURCH
Pursuing relationships that change the world
WORSHIP SERVICE 9 AM
3905 Green Valley Rd.

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (Where reason and intuition guide our personal journey)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Child Care Provided.
A Welcoming Congregation.
Rev. Michael Nelson
For information call (785) 537-2349
www.uufm.net

MANHATTAN MENNONITE CHURCH
1000 Fremont 539-4079
Worship: 10:45 SS: 9:30
Richard & Barbara Gehring, Pastors
K-State Student Group
www.manhattan.ks.us.mennonite.net
Potluck 1st and 3rd Sunday after worship

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
10:45 a.m. Children's Church
11:45 a.m. Contemporary Worship Service
Fellowship meal to follow service
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Christian Science Society
Sunday 10:30 a.m.
Danforth Chapel
KSU Campus
Wed. 7:30 in Reading Room
Reading Room open Tues.-Thurs. 11-1
105 N. 4th St.

Services & Events:
• Sunday Morning Service @ 10:30 a.m.
• College Ministry (Happy Hour)
• Sunday Evening Service @ 7 p.m.
• Free Meal @ 6 p.m.

Celebration Service
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..."
Contemporary Worship Service
Sundays at 11:45 a.m.
Everyone is Welcome
College Fellowship Dinner to follow service
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Call 785-532-6560 to advertise your church here!

Trumpeters of God Ministries
P.O. Box 772, Manhattan, KS 66505-0772
Vision:
Gospel of Christ, Power of God, Salvation for Believers
Worship Service @ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
Sunday School: 9:30-10:15 a.m.
Sunday Service: 10:15-12:00 Noon
Good Morning Jesus @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Monday: 5:30-6:30 a.m.
Bible Study @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Thursday: 7:00-8:30 p.m.
Prayer Vigil @ CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Ave.
Friday: 10:00-12:00 Midnight
Monthly Holy Ghost Conference
@ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
First Friday of every month @ 7:00-10:00 p.m.
Quarterly Fasting & Prayer Meeting
First Seven days of every quarter. Venue varies
Contact
Pastor Ebenezer Ogunyinka
Phone: 785-317-5103
Web page: www.ksu.edu/trumpeters
Email: trumpeters@ksu.edu

First United Methodist Church
612 Poyntz Ave
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-776-8821
www.fumcmanhattan.com
www.ksu.edu/umcm
Traditional Worship:
Sun 8:30 & 11am
Sanctuary
Contemporary Worship:
Sun 8:45am - Harris Activity Center
Casual dress, free donuts
Sunday School - 9:45am
Communion Service
5:30 pm Wed

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening 6p.m. Danforth Chapel
Your Invited!
Tuesday 7-8pm
Bible Study @ Luther House
Good vs. Evil
with the Chronicles of Narnia
Thursday 6pm
Meal and Conservation
Sunday 5pm
Spaghetti Meal @ Luther House
Worship 6pm with Holy Communion
Danforth Chapel
• On Campus •
Everyone is Welcome!
www.ksu.edu/lcm-elca
lcmelca@ksu.edu
Any Questions? 313-3895 or 539-4491
LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
1745 Anderson
•SE Corner of Denison & Anderson•
ELCA

You are welcome at...
First Assembly of God
REACHING THE COMMUNITY • TOUCHING THE WORLD
Weekly Services
Sunday
Traditional Service 8:00 am
Sunday School 9:30 am
Contemporary Service 10:45 am
Prayer Meeting 6:00 pm
Wednesday
Bible Study 7:00 pm
Youth Group (grades 7-12)
Royal Rangers (Boys Clubs)
Missionettes (Girls Clubs)
Chi Alpha Campus Ministries 7:00 pm
(KSU Little Theater)
Gary Av, Candlewood Dr, Seth Child Rd, Kimball Av
Nursery Provided for All Services
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr. Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

CARNIVAL | Event provides reason to dress up

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

After participating in the pumpkin walk, Madison Hawley, 18 months, dressed as Nemo, picks a pumpkin to take home with her.

Continued from Page 1

simulating the factory where Mike and Sully work.

Nikki Linn, senior in hotel and restaurant management, was one of the students in charge of the event.

"We are combining with the fraternities and sororities since there won't be Fright Night this year," Linn said.

On the first floor of the Union, dozens of booths were set up by student organizations, fraternities, sororities and residence halls.

On the main floor, students could play games at booths to win prizes and candy.

One of the games was throwing a dart to pop balloons stuck to a board. At another booth, children tried to throw foam airplanes through holes in a board.

In the Union Courtyard, there was a pumpkin walk, with dozens of pumpkins inside a circle outlined by Wildcat prints. In Union Station, children could listen to a story or make crafts.

Andrew Lobianco, 9, was one of many children who said they were excited to be there.

"I came to the carnival to see my juggling friends," Lobianco said.

CHAMPIONSHIP | Course provides challenge

Continued from Page 6

be better the second time at Rim Rock Farm, Smith said the wet conditions could cause problems.

"We're in better shape, but the course will be in worse shape," Smith said. "It'll be like running on a sponge, and it will slow things down quite a bit."

Smith said time shouldn't be a factor in the race, what he cares about more is how the team places.

"We have no gauge of where our guys will be compared to the other schools," Smith said. "We have a big-picture approach. We measure our success by what we finish, but it doesn't define us."

Most runners on this year's team are freshmen and sophomores, so while Smith wants his team to run well this year, he said there is always next year.

"They're ready to run fast, but so is the rest of the conference," Smith said. "We're going to focus on what we can do. They're very young, and I'm trying to encourage them to meet their expectations individually."

4 RUNNERS RECEIVE ACADEMIC ALL-BIG 12 HONORS

Bonds, Swaney, Hiral Bhakta and Danny Schneider were named to the Academic All-Big 12 First Team on Tuesday. They were four of 105 to receive the honor.

Candidates attend class as part of student project

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tom Hawk and Dick Miller, candidates for the Kansas House of Representatives in District 67, joined a Kansas politics and government class Thursday morning.

The candidates attended the class as part of a group project three of the students were presenting. The group was assigned a race to follow for the Nov. 7 elections, and gave a 15-minute presentation over their topic.

"I told my class that if you want to bring your candidates, you're welcome to have them come," said Sue Peterson, assistant to the president, director of governmental relations and professor of the class. "But they both have to come, and they both have to come on the same day."

The group began by giving a short presentation over each candidate's background, including his stand on key issues such as education and taxes.

The candidates then addressed the class and answered questions.

Miller, a Republican, spoke first, and said no negative feelings exist between he and his opponent.

"There's no difference in our value, only difference in our issues," he said.

Miller said he plans to serve the community in a manner different from Hawk.

"We're all part of a bigger picture," he said. "All I want to do is build a stage and let you live your life. The Democratic Party not only wants to build a stage, but they want to direct the play."

Miller also said he thinks his strength would be positive in office if he were elected.

Hawk, the Democratic incumbent, shared his hopes for the district.

"I stand for good jobs, good schools, and fair taxes," Hawk said. "I support K-State and education."

Hawk explained how he plans to handle situations if re-elected.

"I think I am a consensus-builder," Hawk said. "That's what I like to do is solve problems and bring people together and try and just make sure we move forward and take care of people."

The students said they were surprised at how easy it was to get the candidates to visit their class.

"This has taught me how accessible candidates, especially in a state congressional election, can be," said Michael Soderlund, sophomore in political science and one of the presenters. "They were both really agreeable guys."

Jenna Newsum, junior in psychology, said she thought her classmates were able to see that the candidates care about their interests.

The candidates said they were happy to visit the class.

"It was delightful. I love students," Miller said. "I love the exuberance and refreshing approach that students represent."

Hawk said he also found his classroom visit to be a valuable experience.

"I was impressed with the students," he said. "First of all for taking this class, and secondly being interested enough to do the research and present the information to their fellow students."

Jessica Wright, freshman in early childhood education, said the class presentations have helped her better understand local politics and become more involved.

"It's been pretty informative and interesting," she said. "It definitely helps with decision making."

Grand Opening
Saturday October 28
KSU vs. Iowa State
10am-5pm
Raffle • Door Prizes • Store Sales • & Fun
10% off all merchandise
Two Moms Boutique
722 Manhattan Ave • Aggieville • Corner of Anderson & Manhattan Ave.

FREE SEMINAR
Understanding Bike Wheel Systems
Saturday, Oct. 28
11:00 a.m.
everyone welcome!
the PATHFINDER
OUTDOOR EQUIPMENT SPECIALISTS
304 Poyntz Downtown Manhattan
785.539.5639

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station
at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

Sudoku Scrimmage
Play this game just like original Sudoku, except with football positions! Each column, row, and box should contain one of every position.
QB=Quarterback HB=Halfback G=Guard
FB=Fullback OT=Offensive Tackle C=Center
TE=Tight End WR=Wide Receiver P=Punter

			C				OT
QB		HB	WR		OT
		OT	QB	G				TE
FB		QB
TE		WR				G		P
						WR		QB
G				OT	WR	TE
			P		QB	OT		FB
	P				TE

Check Monday's Collegian for solution.

Do your friends always ask you what the plans are for this weekend?
We've got plans for you and you won't get stuck paying the bill...
Your leadership skills are what we need. We're looking for strong individuals to help lead our sales teams for the spring semester. Working hours are in between classes.
Monday - Friday
9am-5pm
Collegian Advertising - K-State Phone Book
Manager and Asst. Manager Applications available in 103 Kedzie Hall
Applications and cover letter due in 103 Kedzie Hall Friday, Nov. 10, 4 pm
For more information
CALL 785-532-0723

Your book. Your story. royalpurple yearbook&dvd

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

THREE-BEDROOM TWO bath duplex with garage. 821 Mission. Available now. Lease ends May 31, 2007. $900/ month. No pets, no smoking. 785-776-9260.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

SMALL BLACK cat found by Hale Library late Monday night. No tag, white and green collar. Call 973-945-2747 or psl@ksu.edu.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Near Westloop. $300 per month plus one-half of utilities. Call 316-200-8735.

MALE/ FEMALE. Nice Duplex, great location. Move in anytime. $300 + one-fourth utilities per month. Call anytime 785-341-8045.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

150 Sublease

APARTMENT AVAILABLE for sublease as soon as possible. Two-bedroom, full kitchen. Call 502-472-9033 or e-mail focused_ksn@yahoo.com.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed new two-bedroom apartment. Washer/ Dryer. Close to campus and Aggieville. Needed in January. $400 per month per person. Call 816-668-9223 or 913-709-8615.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

$800 WEEKLY guaranteed stuffing envelopes. Send a self addressed stamped envelope to Scarab Marketing, 28 E. Jackson 10th floor suite 938, Chicago, IL 60604.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Aloe, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the resturant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

310 Help Wanted

EARN EXTRA cash for next semester!!! We are looking for people to manage firework locations in Louisiana December 20 - January 2. Travel expenses and lodging provided. Call for details 1-800-546-2825.

F.O.R.C.E. Finding Other Resources For Community Enhancement. Skating Rink Supervisor: Responsible for managing the Roundabout Recreational Complex (Skating Rink and Miniature Golf). Duties include opening and closing the facility and set up for scheduled activities. Monitoring of the facility during scheduled events, public relations, and security of the facility. Responsible for inventories of concessions, skates, and all other equipment. Performs record keeping and accounts for all proceeds and provides reports to the Manager. Basic first-aid training and CPR certification preferred. Hours vary (10- 15 per week) and include mornings, evenings, weekdays, and weekends year-round. Must be flexible and highly responsible. Salary: $7.00/ hour. This position requires a High School or GED diploma, a valid driver's license, must pass an extensive background check and strive in providing excellent service to the public. AN APPLICATION MUST BE SUBMITTED IN ORDER TO BE CONSIDERED FOR THIS POSITION. Applications accepted until THE POSITION IS FILLED. Applications are available at the Municipal Building Reception Center, 700 N. Jefferson. Junction City, Kansas, 8am-5pm, Monday - Friday. Applications are also available a www.-jcks.com. F.O.R.C.E. is an equal opportunity employer.

FULL OR Part-time, flexible schedule, must be here for the holidays. Apply at Mrs. Powell's Bakery, Manhattan Town Center.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.-com.

PART-TIME clerical work. Some experience in Quickbooks and Excel preferred, but not required. Good communication and organization skills. Flexible work schedule. Hours: Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm. 785-587-0400.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

RAMADA PLAZA, soon to be Holiday Inn at the Campus is now hiring: Night Bellman, Banquet Staff, Morning Restaurant Server and Morning Cook for weekends, Night Auditor, Maintenance and Sales Coordinator. Apply in person at 1641 Anderson Ave. 785-539-7531.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

SIMPLY WIRELESS, your T-Mobile Exclusive Dealer is coming soon and has immediate openings for bright, energetic persons to join our sales team in Manhattan. We have openings for part-time retail sales representatives. Simply Wireless is a special place to work---a full dynamic environment where every person makes a difference. We are open for new and creative ideas to improve our company's market position. Our growth has been phenomenal and we're adding to our ranks. Your potential is only limited by your imagination as we grow; we've made a commitment to not lose sight of the reason for our success, our customers and the people who work here. Send resume to ecarlson@swphones.biz.

Call 785-532-6555 to advertise here

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

STUDENT PROGRAMMER position available. Must be available at least 12 hours per week (up to 20). Starting pay is $10.00 to $12.00 per hour based on experience. Programming experience in Visual Basic or Visual Basic.Net required. Must possess good communication skills. Apply in person at 315-A Houston Street, Manhattan, KS. Contact jobs@stasyx.com with questions.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

STUDENT SECRETARY/ RECEPTIONIST WANTED. The Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement is seeking a student with excellent command of Microsoft Word and Excel as well as exceptional skills in telephone answering etiquette, grammar, filing, use of dictaphone, scheduling appointments and a variety of other office duties. Must be a quick learner, self-motivated and very detailed oriented. Must be willing to work school breaks and summer. Preference given to a person with past office experience. The position will be available immediately continuing through fall, some of Christmas break, spring and summer. Workweek fall and spring semesters is a minimum of 25 hours and a maximum of 30 hours. Summer will require 30- 40 hours weekly. For an application, contact Dorothy Smith in the Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, 122 Anderson Hall. Starting salary commensurate with experience. Deadline for submission of application is Thursday, November 2, 4:-00 p.m. to: Dorothy Smith Office of the Vice President, 122 Anderson Hall 785-532-5942.

Gaia Salon and Spa
Now accepting resumes for Salon Coordinating position.
Part time/Full time.
Please submit resume at front desk with Becky.
421 Poyntz Ave.
785-539-2622

320 Volunteers Needed

VOLUNTEER AS a MENTOR at UFM Community Learning Center. Great experience for anyone wishing to work with adolescents. Required availability: Tuesdays from 3- 5p.-m. and one Sunday evening per month. To apply, visit www.tryufm.org and download the mentor application or stop by UFM at 1221 Thurston Street, Manhattan, KS.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

1. ANTHOLOGY of Chinese Poetry (translated to English.) http://li_chungwang0.tripod.com 2. The Philosophy of Mechanics. http://lcwangmech.tripod.-com.

T-MOBILE SIDEKICK. Camera/ Internet/ email. Drop sim card in and ready to go. $175 or best offer. 785-317-8263 or 785-537-9212.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

BE PROUD in purple in Boulder, Colorado November 4. Game tickets for sale, $50 each. Call Kathy at GTM Sportswear 785-537-8822 extension 1120.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski & Boards for One Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
U.S. Ski
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.ubeski.com

Need Some Help?
Advertise It In the Collegian.
HELP
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

Got old stuff?
GET RID OF IT!
in the
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

ASinc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for:
Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

			8		1	6	2
1	4				3		9
5		2			6	7
2	3	4		7				1
			3		5
9				8		4	3	6
		9	5			1		7
	5		2				4	8
	6	7	9		8

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
785-532-6555

ADVERTISING DESIGN Practicum/Newspaper MC 385

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

Attendant Care Providers
Manhattan and Junction City

Part-time positions available providing support with daily living skills to youth and adults with mental health challenges. High School diploma or equivalent required; related experience and/or training preferred. Qualified applicants will be at least 21 years of age and have a valid driver's license with an acceptable record. Send letter of interest to:

Pawnee MENTAL HEALTH SERVICES

HR Director
Pawnee Mental Health Services
PO Box 747
Manhattan, KS 66505
Email - hr@pawnee.org

Equal Opportunity Employer

Lost something?
You can place an ad FREE for three days!
Kedzie 103 785-532-6555

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M.
FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

A KILLER party

Inventive theme, festive food, artsy costumes, creative decorations make for successful Halloween bash

Photo illustration by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

By Alex Peak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Halloween, one of the few annual events where it's normal to dress up in crazy costumes, is quickly approaching and those who will throw parties are advised to consider decorations and food options.

Kristina Kleinsasser, first-year student in veterinary medicine, has had a lot of experience with Halloween parties since she has been in college.

She said one of the most important parts about throwing a successful Halloween party is having the food follow a theme.

"The biggest thing is definitely the food," she said. "Basically anything that makes you feel uncomfortable to eat is good."

Desserts and sweet treats can easily be modified to fit the season.

"Last year we made cookies shaped like fingers with almonds for fingernails," she said. "We also made gravestone-shaped cookies and Kansas dirt and had plastic hands to eat it with instead of spoons."

Along with food, Kleinsasser said decorations are also key.

"One year, we went outside and filled trash bags full of leaves and brought the leaves inside and put them all over the floor," she said. "And we put fake spider webs up everywhere too. We wanted to create the feeling of being outside."

She said it's good to make the party atmosphere seem spooky and to have the date of the party as close to Halloween as possible, if not on the actual date.

"We turned off all of the lights and had candles all over the house," she said. "We usually had the party the closest weekend before Halloween."

Games, like scavenger hunts, and costume contests can also help make the event entertaining, she said.

Her scavenger hunts were done purposely so guests would have to roam Manhattan in their costumes, she added.

But before coming to K-State, Kleinsasser said she wasn't familiar with Halloween rituals.

"I had never celebrated Halloween before," she said. "Never even as much went trick-or-treating as a child – not once in my life."

Decorations are a vital consideration when planning a party, and there are plenty of options right here in Manhattan, said Mynon Reffitt, manager at Mr. P.'s Party Wholesalers.

"We have lots of Halloween decorations," Reffitt said. "These include centerpieces, plates, napkins, glow-in-the-dark garland, decorative pumpkins, bats and caldrons."

She also said color-themed balloons and streamers help create a party atmosphere.

"Balloons are really great, too," she said. "You could get black and orange or white and make them have ghosty faces. We also have streamers and tissue paper that can go along with the balloons."

Amanda Armstrong, sales associate at Halloween Bootique in Manhattan Town Center, said costumes, decorations and accessories are must-haves for Halloween parties.

She said the boutique offers an array of costumes – from pirates and fairies to Scooby Doo or super heroes.

"If you're going to a Halloween party, you have to dress up," Armstrong said. "It's just better if you dress up – it's a good way to start conversations at a party. You can learn a lot about your friends, too, from what they chose to dress up as."

Using decorations to create a spooky or scary feeling also helps, she said.

"We have stuff you can staple to the walls to make it look like you're in a dungeon or cemetery," she said. "Fake spiders' webs would be good too and even a strobe light in a dark room."

Another suggestion Armstrong had is for party-throwers to create a fog sensation with dry ice.

She also advised that people planning parties should think about it in advance and not to wait until the last minute when stores will be out of Halloween supplies.

MOVIE TIMES

- Times for today through Sunday.
- () denotes times playing Saturday and Sunday only.
- ★ New movies at Seth Childs Cinema this week.

★ "Saw III," R, 107 min.
(1:00, 1:30), 3:15, 4:15, 5:30, 7:00, 8:00, 9:30, (10:30), 12:00
Lions Gate and Twisted Pictures are reuniting to produce "Saw III." Screenwriter Leigh Whannell, who co-wrote the two previous films, wrote the screenplay which is based on a story by him and James Wan. Darren Lynn Bousman, who directed "Saw II," will return to direct the next installment in the horror franchise.

"Flicka," PG, 95 min.
(1:20), 4:15, 7:10, 9:20

"Flags of our Fathers," R, 132 min.
(1:15), 4:10, 7:05, 10:00

"The Prestige," PG-13, 130 min.
(1:05), 4:00, 7:05, 10:00

"The Grudge 2," PG-13, 95 min.
(1:25), 4:25, 7:15, 9:40

"Man of the Year," PG-13, 115 min.
(1:20), 4:30, 7:10, 9:45

"One Night With the King," PG, 116 min.
(1:10), 4:05, 7:20, 9:50

"The Texas Chainsaw Massacre: The Beginning," R, 84 min.
9:25

"The Departed," R, 149 min.
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 10:00

"Open Season," PG, 86 min.
(1:05, 3:05), 5:05, 7:15

Source: www.carmike.com. Call (785) 776-9886 for show times.

Shhh raises commotion at first appearance in Lawrence

PHOTO COURTESY SHHH

Shhh band members from left to right are: Court Caywood, Jake Acosta, Simon Bates, Nolan Miller, Bret Palmer and Paul Bruss. All six band members have Manhattan ties. Five are current students at K-State and Bates graduated from Manhattan Christian College. The band's musical influences include the Flaming Lips, Death Cab for Cutie, Starflyer 59 and the Beach Boys. According to fans, its musical style is similar to that of Weezer and the Cars. Recently, the band placed 3rd at the OPUS Band Competition.

By Eric Brown
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

LAWRENCE – At 11:12 p.m. Oct. 19, over the low engine drone of his 1978 Cutlass Supreme moving eastward on Interstate 70, Bret Palmer, bass player for Shhh, notices his cell phone is ringing. On the phone is Simon Bates, guitar and vocals for the band.

Palmer's responses to the discussion come in the forms of "yes," "uh-uh," and "sure," until the brief conversation nears its end.

"Are you ready to rock?" Palmer asks, sounding as sarcastic as he does serious. "That's what I like to hear."

Sarcastic or not, one hour later at the Jackpot Saloon in Lawrence, Palmer, Bates, and the rest of Shhh would indeed "rock," impressing the crowd that congregated to the Massachusetts Street music venue on that Thursday night.

The show marked the first trip to Lawrence for the Manhattan-based, alternative/indie rock band. The set was part of the University of Kansas Koisk Benefit show.

Although they weren't performing in front of their loyal Manhattan fan base, the band's six members charmed the Lawrence crowd, playing on the Jackpot Saloon stage, which has been graced by the presence of bands like The Decemberists and The Arcade Fire in recent years.

In front of a crowd that included old friends, a few followers from Manhattan and others, Shhh burned through its eight-song set.

The band already had put concert attendees into a dancing frenzy by the time it played its second song, "I'm On Your Side."

Shhh's performance was also highlighted by its cover of Rob Zombie's, "Dragula," which too received a thunderous crowd response.

In what Bates declared as the band's first-ever encore (much to the request of the crowd), Shhh performed "The Things We Regret."

The members of Shhh said they thought their Lawrence debut was a success.

"I really don't know how the show could have gone any better," said Caywood, senior in secondary education. "The crowd seemed to enjoy themselves and that's what really matters."

Acosta, junior in English, said he was pleased with yet another aspect of the show.

"This was the first time a lot of our friends got to see our band," Acosta said. "We have a lot of friends in Lawrence that can't make it to Manhattan to watch our band play.

"I love being a part of the music scene in Manhattan, but I think it was good for our band to finally play in Lawrence."

After a month of numerous shows, or Shhhoktoberfest as the band refers to it, the band now has a break from live shows.

For information on where the band will play next, visit www.Shhhband.com.

The band's self-produced album, "The Leviathan," also is available for purchase at any of its shows.

GAME DAY GUIDE

collegian.com | Friday, Oct. 27 | Vol. 11

to earth

The return of the once-dominant defense was granted prematurely

See story Page 4

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Off the field Page 2 | Bill Snyder Page 3 | Dan McCarney Page 5 | 5 keys to victory Page 7 | James Johnson Page 8

Gameday forecast

Morning showers, windy
High: 59 Low: 41

K-State vs. Iowa State

2:35 p.m. Saturday
History: Iowa State leads series 48-37-4
Radio: K-State Sports Network

Player to watch

Last weekend, Leon Patton rushed for 112 yards and a touchdown on 18 carries. Look for the K-State offensive linemen to have another productive day when they face Iowa State. The Cyclones have allowed an average of nearly 150 rushing yards a game.

Off the Field
with Rob Jackson

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Rob Jackson, a junior college transfer from Fort Scott (Kan.) Community College, has been a starting defensive end for most of the season. He has 19 tackles this year and is second on the team with 2.5 sacks. The Connecticut native recently answered questions on topics like his favorite music and who would play him in a movie about his life.

Q. What is your favorite off-the-field activity?
A. Right now, it is probably doing homework and playing video games like Madden and NCAA Football 2007. I like to keep up with my video game football dynasties.

Q. You came to Kansas to play football after living in Connecticut. Was it a culture shock going to Fort Scott?
A. Yeah. I never thought that I would end up in Kansas, but when I didn't qualify for Syracuse out of high school, (Fort Scott) is where they sent me, and I did what I had to do.

Q. What is the biggest difference between where you grew up and Kansas?
A. We don't have too many farms in Connecticut or a lot of open space, and we don't just have these two-way freeway things that just go on for hours. There are a lot of differences.

Q. Who would play you in a movie about your life, and what kind of movie would it be?
A. I would have to have Denzel Washington play me, and it would obviously have to be a football movie about what I did to get here.

Q. Do you ever "Google" your name on the Google search engine?
A. I have tried that before. I actually tried that a lot back at Fort Scott, but I have not tried it yet here. I might try it tonight, actually.

Q. What is the worst job you had in high school?
A. When I was 16, I worked at Dairy Queen. It was time-consuming. In the summertime, it was busy, and I always had to work. I did not like that.

K-State vs. Iowa State

OFFENSE

Last weekend the Wildcat offense had two completely different story lines. One involved running backs Leon Patton and James Johnson combining for 239 rushing yards, while the other told of quarterback Josh Freeman's nightmarish 5-of-19 passing display. Freeman needs to pull his weight Saturday to ensure a win.

Iowa State ranks in the bottom half of the Big 12 in virtually every offensive category. Because running back Stevie Hicks Jr. is averaging fewer than 70 yards per game, the real test for the Wildcats will be in the secondary, as the Cyclones are likely to rely heavily on the arm of quarterback Bret Meyer.

DEFENSE

Last weekend's defensive debacle against Missouri has lead many fans to question if this K-State defense is really as good as everyone thinks. With Marcus Watts sidelined for the remainder of the season, the rest of the defense will feel a lot of pressure this weekend. Still, the Wildcats have shown their talent earlier in the year and should be able to rebound against a weak Iowa State offense.

The Cyclones enter this contest on a three-game losing skid. Much of that skid can be attributed to terrible defense. Iowa State ranks 11th in the Big 12 in pass defense, rush defense and overall defense. They are dead last in terms of scoring defense and are 10th in turnover differential. K-State finally should be able to put some points on the board this weekend.

SPECIAL TEAMS

With a game as wide-open as this one, the result might come down to special teams. The K-State return men have been reliable all season in giving the Wildcats good field position, and although their hard work often goes without reward, it finally should pay off this weekend against a lackluster Cyclone defense.

If there's an area in which the Cyclone's excel, it's special teams. Kicker Bret Culbertson has attempted only six field goals so far this season, but he has made five of them, including a 52-yard attempt last weekend against Texas Tech. Additionally, Iowa State has the best punt return average in the conference with 17.33 yards per return.

PREDICTION

When two struggling teams like these meet, the outcome often is decided by who wants the win more. With bowl eligibility in question and the home crowd behind them, there is no doubt the Wildcats will be motivated for this one. The Wildcats' struggling offense should be able to get on track against the Cyclones. Iowa State ranks near the bottom of the Big 12 in every key defensive category. Expect a back-and-forth game, with Freeman leading a late drive to give the Wildcats the victory.

K-State 31, Iowa State 24

1998 Jeep Grand Cherokee
6 cyl. Auto, Leather
$7,495
2002 Isuzu Rodeo LS
4 Wheel Drive
$7,995
2001 Escort
4 cyl. Auto Loaded
$4,995
'02 Saturn L200
4 Dr. Auto, 74K $6,995
'00 Ford Ranger
4 Cyl. 5 Spd $4,795
'00 Dodge Grand Caravan Sport
Quad Captains, Loaded $4,995
'99 Ford HiTop Conversion
Great Tailgate Vehicle $4,995
'97 Bonneville SS El
4 Dr., Leather, Loaded $3,995
'98 Toyota Sienna
V6, Auto $6,495
'99 Jeep Wrangler
2 in. lift, 4cyl, 5 Spd $9,495
'97 Chrysler LHS
V-6, Leather $2,995
Southside Auto Sales
425 Yuma, Manhattan, KS
785-776-2170 800-837-2170

Fat's
BAR & GRILL
Go CATS!
Saturdays
Free T-Shirts
$2.75 Miller Pounders
Sundays
1/2 Price Drinks
$2.25 Big Beers
$1.50 Wells
$3.50 Fishbowls & Labrats
12th & Laramie
Aggieville

Sick 'em, CATS!
$5 OFF for New Clients
607 N. 11TH • AGGIEVILLE • 565-0612
BARK AVENUE CANINE DESIGNS

McCullough Development
Over 850 rentals in the Manhattan/JC area
Check our rental listings at mdiproperties.com
or call 785.776.3804

Wash Palace
Don't Sweat It!
We'll Clean Your Sweaters For You.
Coin Laundry
Drive-up window & Door
Jumbo Computerized Dryers & Large Capacity Washers
Big Screen TV & Pool Table
Wash, Dry and Fold Service
"Largest & Cleanest Facility in Manhattan"
3216 Candlewood 537-9833
Coin-op Open 24 Hours
Dry Cleaning & Drop off
Monday - Saturday: 7am-7pm
Sunday: 12pm - 7pm

Saturday Night Salsa
with DJ Luis
$2.50 • Sangria • Margaritas • Coronas
$2.75 . Pounders
BOWINKLE'S
N Anderson W E Seth Childs S
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022
Sports Bar
College Football Package
ESPN Game Plan:
Catch all your major games on our 120" TVs!
Ask for our GREAT daily food and drink specials

Who are their favorite superheroes?

By Jessi Hernandez
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

They can run fast, tackle hard and – at times – make seemingly impossible passes and receptions. When they make big plays, members of the K-State football team are like heroes in their own right, equipped with their own brand of special powers.

Returning from a disappointing defeat at Missouri, the Wildcats might not have felt heroic, but at this weekend's match-up against Iowa State, they'll have a chance to reclaim that feeling - and what better time to do that than at All-University Homecoming game?

The theme for this year's Homecoming is "Homecoming of Heroes" and to mark the occasion, the Collegian asked a few players to answer the most challenging of questions: Who is your favorite superhero?

Zach Diles, senior linebacker
"Spiderman, because I have a spider web tattoo on my arm. Spiderman's pretty cool — he can scale up walls, shoot webs, stuff like that."

Rob Jackson, junior defensive end
"Batman, because he's cool about everything, and he always has everything under control."

Tim Reyer, junior punter
"I've never really put much thought into it, but I guess Superman, because he can fly."

Josh Freeman, freshman quarterback
"Superman — it's gotta be Superman, because he can fly."

Snyder talks Homecoming, retired life

By Austin Meek
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The grand marshall of this year's All-University Homecoming festivities knows a thing or two about Homecoming football games – he coached 17 of them at K-State. The Collegian caught up with Grand Marshall Bill Snyder to discuss Homecoming, the hype surrounding K-State basketball and Snyder's television habits.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Former K-State coach Bill Snyder, with wife Sharon, circles Wagner Field before the first game of the season on Sept. 2. The stadium name was officially changed to Bill Snyder Family Stadium. K-State won the home-opener, defeating Divison I-AA Illinois State 24-23.

Q. Since your retirement, you've had the opportunity to participate in a lot of things that have obviously been very special for you - the stadium and highway dedications, to name a couple. But what does it mean to you to serve as grand marshall for this year's Homecoming festivities?
A. My wife will be involved, and my family as well. That's important to me, because they've been a big part of Kansas State. It's heartwarming to have the opportunity to do that. I'm grateful that we were asked. It's always significant for me to have the opportunity to do something in conjunction with Kansas State, because Kansas State has meant so much to me over the past couple decades.

Q. Going back to your days as a coach and player, even at the high school level, do you have any Homecoming memories that stand out?
A. Not necessarily. I say that because either as a player or coach, you are generally removed from most of the activities that take place. Here at K-State, I've had the opportunity to speak at Homecoming pep rallies, and we've had our players be active in that as well. Normally, the team captains would make a brief presentation. By and large, the on-the-field participants are usually somewhat sepearate, but that doesn't mean it doesn't mean a great deal to you, because it truly does. We always wanted our players to understand that it was a special time for the people who supported K-State.

Q. All along, you've said you need to get through the season before you know how you feel about retirement. Can you give us a midseason report?
A. I stick by my guns. I pretty much feel the exact same way. I've seen every ballgame except the OSU game. I was in Iowa City honoring (the University of Iowa's) first Rose Bowl team. I haven't had any great anxiety pains whatsoever. I've tried very hard to be a normal fan.

I think I've succeded at that. I'm not trying to view the ballgame with any great analytical skills. I've tried to enjoy it and enjoy the people around me. I'm trying to get used to it at the same time. I'll sit down and reflect on it a lot after the season.

Q. Earlier this season, you said you're not very good at watching football on television. Have you improved over the course of the season?
A. (Laughs) Not really. It doesn't mean I haven't had games on, because indeed I have.

For whatever reason, I don't really stay focused on them. Maybe that's because I'm around family, and I have a lot of other things I'm doing right now.

Q. Have you had the opportunity to meet coach Huggins? What are your thoughts on the excitement surrounding the basketball program right now?
A. I have had an opportunity to meet him. I think the fact that we're selling the arena out pretty much speaks for itself. It's very indicatve of the enthusiasm that exists for coach Huggins and our basketball program. I think that's a great thing. It's going to be a great time for our basketball program.

CANDLEWOOD RETAIL LIQUOR
Wine, Spirits & Beer
Located just west of the football stadium in the Candlewood Shopping Center.
785.539.6533 3256 Kimball Ave.

CASH FOR THE GAME?
Pawn Loans • Payday Loans
Also a wide selection of:
• Guns • Music Equipment
• Used Games • Electronics
AMERICAN CASH EXCHANGE
CASH ADVANCE & PAWN LOANS
501A Fort Riley Blvd.
785-537-1803

BOBBY T's
WILDCAT REPLAY
4:30PM 6:30PM 8:30 PM
TUESDAY
3240 KIMBALL AVE. · 537-8383

539-5269
LIBRARY
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
Aggieville

Customized coverage. Quick claims response.
Auto Insurance
Call today for a free, no-obligation quote.
Chan Stowell
FARM BUREAU FINANCIAL SERVICES
2630 Farm Bureau Rd
Manhattan
(785)537-0339
Auto Home Life College Retirement

Pizza Hut
Go For the Good Stuff
Wildcat Football & Pizza Hut Pizza "GO CATS"
Free Order of Buffalo Wings With Purchase of Any Large Specialty Pizza At Menu Price
$10.99 "Purple Pride Special" 1-Topping Large Big New Yorker Pizza, Side Order of Breadstix, 2-Liter of Soda
Large Pizza For the Price of a Medium Pizza
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334

ALORICA®
The Power Behind Service
Flint Hills Area Premier Employer
!!NOW HIRING!!
CUSTOMER SERVICE AGENTS FOR cingular WIRELESS
$ COMPETITIVE WAGES WITH PAID TRAINING
$ PAID VACATIONS, HOLIDAYS, SICK DAYS
$ STUDENT/FAMILY FLEXIBLE SCHEDULES
$ FAST, FUN, FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE
$ ADVANCEMENT OPPORTUNITIES
$ TUITION REIMBURSEMENT
$ EXCELLENT BENEFITS
APPLY AT:
5970 SYKES BLVD.
MANHATTAN, KS 66503
IN THE TECH PARK NEXT TO THE MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT
ONLINE: WWW.ALORICA.COM/CAREERS
OR CALL 785 564-4400
YOU MAY ALSO APPLY AT: Manhattan Workforce Center

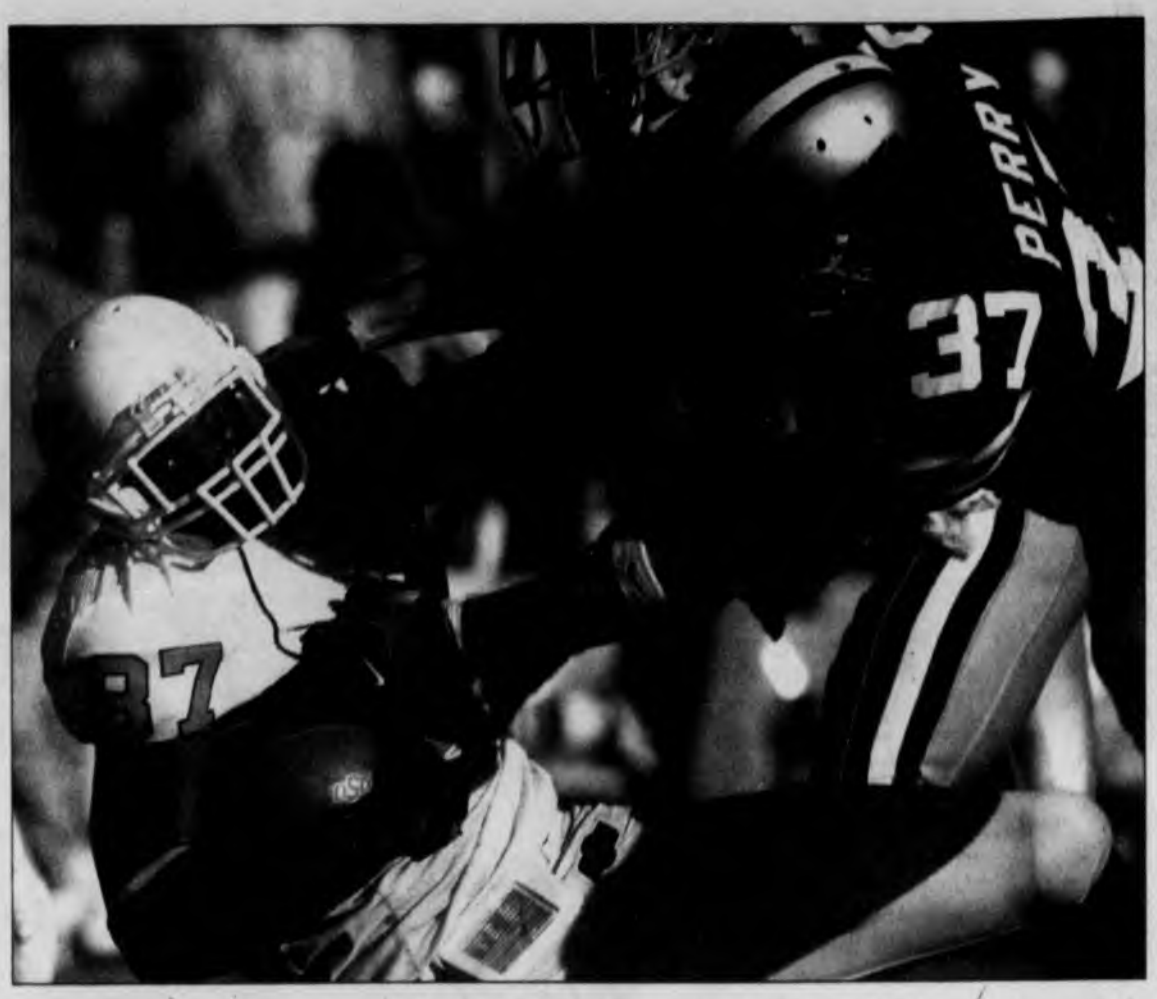
Defense receives dose of reality

JONATHAN GARTEN

It's time to face facts. The K-State defense is not as dominant as one might have thought.

All season fans gushed over how amazing the defense was. They believed the Wildcats had returned to their glory days of the 1990s when the K-State defenses were some of the best in the nation.

If reality hadn't set in before then, it definitely should have after K-State's 41-21 loss to Missouri last Saturday. The defense is solid, but it can't single-handedly win games.



The Tigers looked at ease for nearly the entire game, averaging 6.4 yards per play. It seemed like they could call anything, and it would work.

The week before, Nebraska owned the Wildcats up front, rushing for 190 yards. Despite K-State holding Nebraska to 21 points, it was obvious the Huskers could have done just about anything they wanted to do.

However, the red flag should have gone up as early as K-State's 31-27 win against Oklahoma State. K-State started strong, holding the Cowboys to three-and-out on each of their first two drives. But as the game progressed, Oklahoma State made the proper adjustments and scored 24 points in the second half.

So why has the K-State defense struggled so much in the past three weeks? Because the Wildcats' Cover 2 system uses a "bend but don't break" philosophy that relies on forcing turnovers. In the last three weeks, the K-State defense has forced only three turnovers.

To see how this plan has worked best for the Wildcats, just go back to K-State's 24-6 loss to Louisville. The Cardinals racked up 401 yards of total offense – a dominant performance by most standards – but only came away with 24 points, because the Wildcats forced four turnovers.

Junior linebacker Marcus Perry tackles Oklahoma State tight end Brandon Pettigrew during K-State's 31-27 win over the Cowboys on Oct. 7. After starting the season strong, the Wildcat defense has fallen to No. 49 in the country in total defense, allowing an average of 315 yards a game.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Since the Cover 2 drops so many players into coverage, K-State is vulnerable to giving up big chunks of rushing yards. Simply put, if the Wildcats don't take the ball away, their opponents will just keep driving it down their throats.

K-State will try to recover its defensive momentum this Saturday when it takes on Iowa State. The Cyclones, who have thrown nine interceptions and feature one of the conference's most pathetic rushing attacks, might be just what the defense needs.

But even if K-State does shut down the Cyclones, there's still no reason to compare this year's defense to some of K-State's legendary units of the past.

Jonathan Garten is a junior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Quarterback Meyer worries K-State on ground, through air

Iowa State quarterback Bret Meyer has passed for 1,743 yards and rushed for 158 yards this season. Meyer is one of only five active college quarterbacks to throw for 6,000 yards and rush for 600 yards.

PHOTO COURTESY IOWA STATE SPORTS INFORMATION

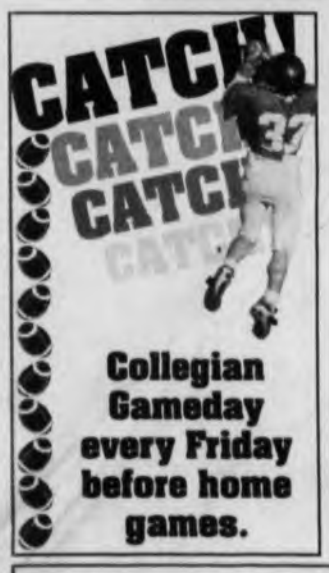
By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Coach Ron Prince said this is just another game and another opposing team that is full of playmakers going against the K-State football team at Snyder Family Stadium.

"I sound like a broken record when I come in here and say every week that (the opposing team) has a wide receiver that no one can cover, a running back that no one can tackle and a quarterback that makes a lot of plays," Prince said at his weekly press conference. "But that's really what's happened in this league. Every week you turn around, and it's the same story."

Quarterback Bret Meyer is the all-time Iowa State leader in passing (6,545 yards) and total offense (7,157). He is one of only five active collegiate quarterbacks to throw for at least 6,000 yards and rush for 600, and he is the only junior of the elite group. He is also second among active Division I-A non-senior quarterbacks in total offense.

The Wildcats' defenders said they know Meyer is effective when he is in the pocket, but he becomes more of a threat when he is forced outside of the pocket.



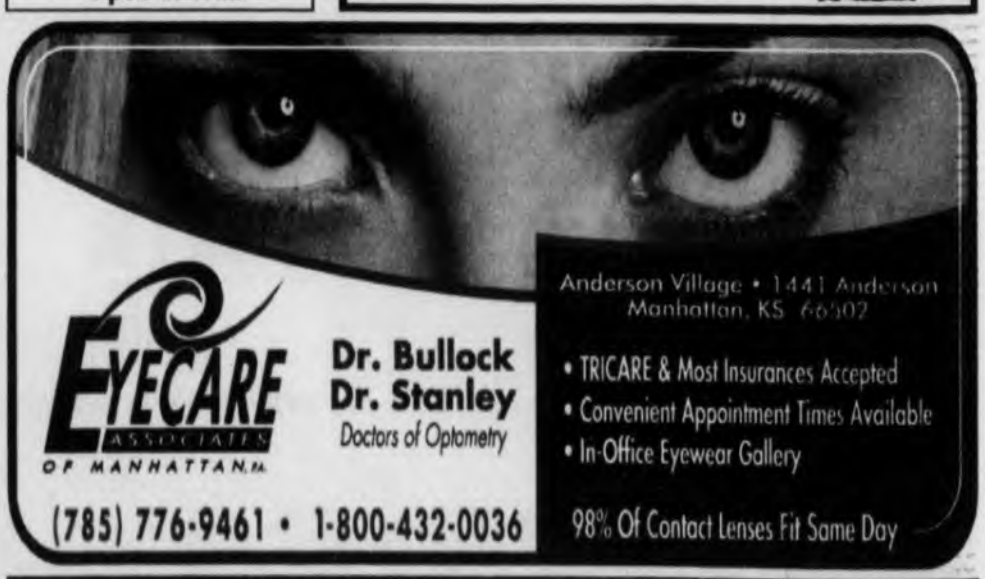
"We can't let Meyer roll out to his right," defensive end Rob Jackson said. "If he rolls out to his right, then he can be very deadly."

In eight games this season, Meyer has thrown for 1,743 yards and has a passing efficiency rating of 122.03. He has thrown for 10 touchdowns and nine interceptions. He also has rushed for 158 yards and has six touchdowns on the ground.

Meyer's best game of the season statistically came Sept. 30 in a 28-27 victory against Northern Iowa. Meyer completed a season-high 24 passes with only five incompletions. He threw two touchdowns and had 323 yards passing, which are both season highs for him.

"He's one of those quarterbacks, I guess like a (Reggie) McNeal and Brad Smith," defensive tackle Quintin Echols said. "You just got to respect his passing game and his running game. We know that, so it's not going to be any surprise to us.

"He has been there for a while, and he is very experienced. We just got to approach him our way and make him do what we want him to do. We can't let him dictate the game."



Good Luck Wildcats
from
Car Clinic Inc.
83 Combined Years of Experience
"We Care About You AND Your Car"
M-F 7:30 - 5:30
VISA
Approved Auto Repair
NAPA
785-539-1040

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7591
Lunch Special
$3 BIG BOULEVARDS
$3 Any Sandwich & chips, 11-2
$2 Enchilada Plates all day
Open at 11am

Celebrations of the Heart
Trivia Question:
Which of the following was never a KSU mascot?
A. Wildcat named Touchdown
B. Buffalo named Bill
C. Willie the Wildcat
D. Black Lab named Bosco
find the answer at
www.shopcelebrationsoftheheart.com
and enter a drawing
For a Once In a Lifetime Opportunity!

McCarney stays positive even after rough start

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When asked if his team would benefit more from a hug or a kick in the tail, Iowa State coach Dan McCarney chose the hug.

The Cyclones are off to one of their worst starts in recent history, losing their first four Big 12 conference games for only the second time in McCarney's 12-year coaching career at Iowa State. However, McCarney – the man who owns more wins and bowl game appearances than any other coach in Cyclone history – still believes in his players.

"These kids care," McCarney said. "We've built a proud tradition, and they want to succeed."

McCarney has seen his fair share of struggling football programs. As an assistant coach and a head coach, he has assisted the turnaround of three Division I-A college football teams.

He was an assistant coach at Iowa in 1979 when former Hawkeye coach Hayden Fry took over in the middle of 17 straight losing seasons. By the 1981 season, Iowa had won a share of the Big 10 title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

McCarney left Iowa in 1990 to become the defensive coordinator at Wisconsin under another former Iowa assistant, Barry Alvarez. Before their arrival, the Badgers had posted five straight losing seasons, but in 1993 they won their first Big 10 title in 31 years.

From there, Iowa State hired McCarney as head coach in 1994 following a winless season for the Cyclones. After 12 years at Iowa State, McCarney has led the Cyclones to five straight winning seasons.

"When you're a part of those programs and you see those things and contribute a little bit, you get a chance to put all those things in place when you become your own boss with your own team," McCarney said. "So it really helped prepare me when I got the chance at Iowa State."

Former K-State coach Bill Snyder and McCarney both worked as assistants under Fry at Iowa. Snyder said he respects the turnaround McCarney has managed at Iowa State.

"He's done some marvelous things at that university, both from a football standpoint and a humanitarian standpoint," Snyder said. "I've known Dan and his family for an awfully long period of time, and they are marvelous."

But Snyder and McCarney are only a few of several successful coaches who have served under Fry. Alvarez, Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops, South Florida coach Jim Leavitt and Arizona coach Mike Stoops are also members of the Fry coaching tree.

"All of us just owe so much to coach Fry, but we learned so much from each other," McCarney said. "It's pretty special to be a part of coach Fry's coaching tree."

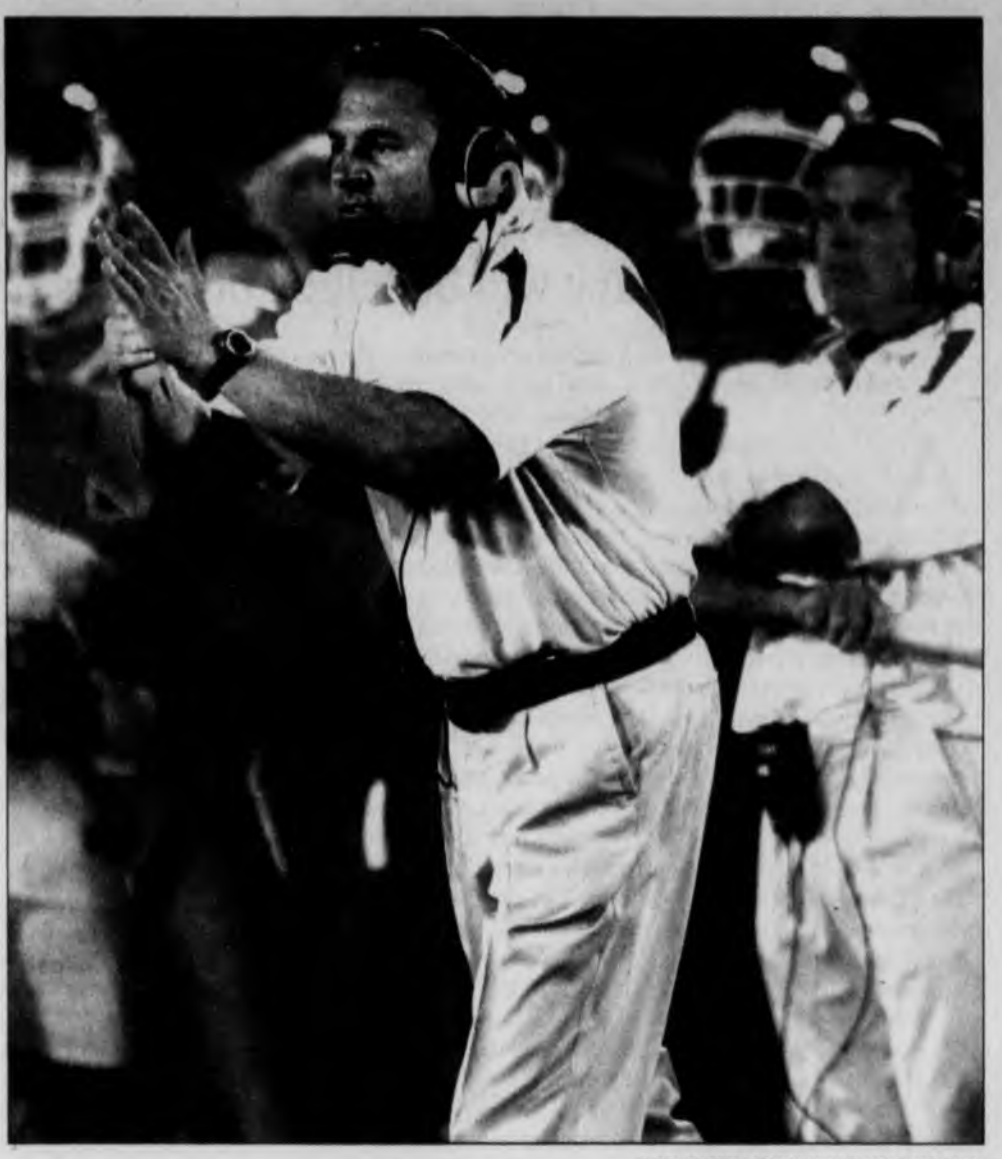


PHOTO COURTESY OF IOWA STATE SPORTS INFORMATION

Iowa State coach Dan McCarney and the Cyclones have lost their first four conference games for only the second time in McCarney's tenure. He has been a part of three college football turnarounds in his career.

Analysis

Despite poor record, Iowa State will present challenge for K-State

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Iowa State is not going to scare many teams in the Big 12 Conference.

At 3-5 overall with a winless conference record, the Cyclones are arguably the weakest opponent the Wildcats will face the rest of the season.

Still, the Cyclones present plenty of problems for the Wildcats.

QUARTERBACK

Last season against K-State, Cyclone quarterback Bret Meyer threw for three touchdown passes against the Wildcats. He completed 16 of 23 passes for 194 yards.

Though he isn't exactly lighting up the stat sheet, Meyer has been steady. He's averaging 217.9 yards passing per game.

RUNNING BACK

Senior running back Stevie Hicks has been impressive when given the chance. However, game situations have had an effect on the amount of carries he has received.

The Cyclones would like to give Hicks between 20 and 25 carries per game, but constantly playing from behind – as they have made a habit of doing this year – has forced the Cyclones to become a pass-heavy team.

WIDE RECEIVER

Wide receiver Todd Blythe is as dangerous a pass-catcher in the Big 12 as you will find. In eight games, Blythe has caught 30 balls for seven touchdowns.

The Cyclone offensive line has not afforded Blythe ample time to attack defenses deep down field, and as a result, his longest catch is 31 yards. With his size (6-foot-5) and speed, the Cyclones are perhaps wasting some of his talent.

No other Cyclone receiver has stepped up to take pressure off Blythe, either. Three players are second on the team in touchdown receptions with one apiece.

DEFENSIVE LINE

Senior defensive tackle Brent Curvey is one of the Big 12's best run-stoppers. He has 5.5 sacks, 10 tackles for loss and has forced one fumble.

At 6-foot and 295 pounds, Curvey is a bit undersized for his position. But he makes up for it with a nonstop motor and a knack for blowing offensive linemen off the ball.

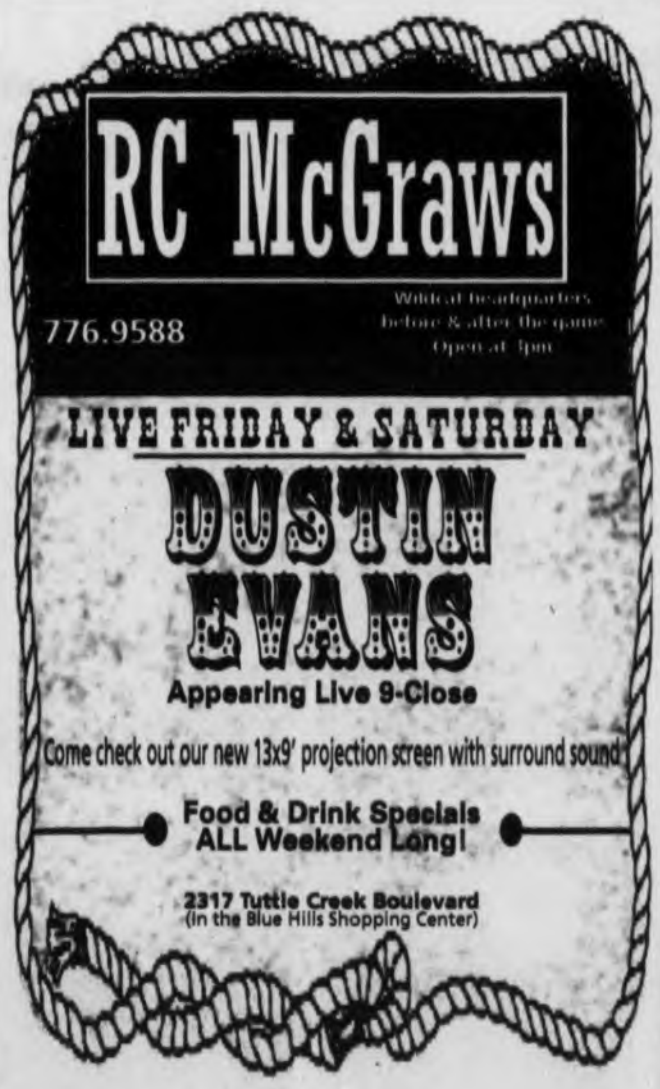
LINEBACKER

Junior linebacker Alvin Bowen leads the Big 12 in tackles with 107, and he is one of the most complete players in the conference.

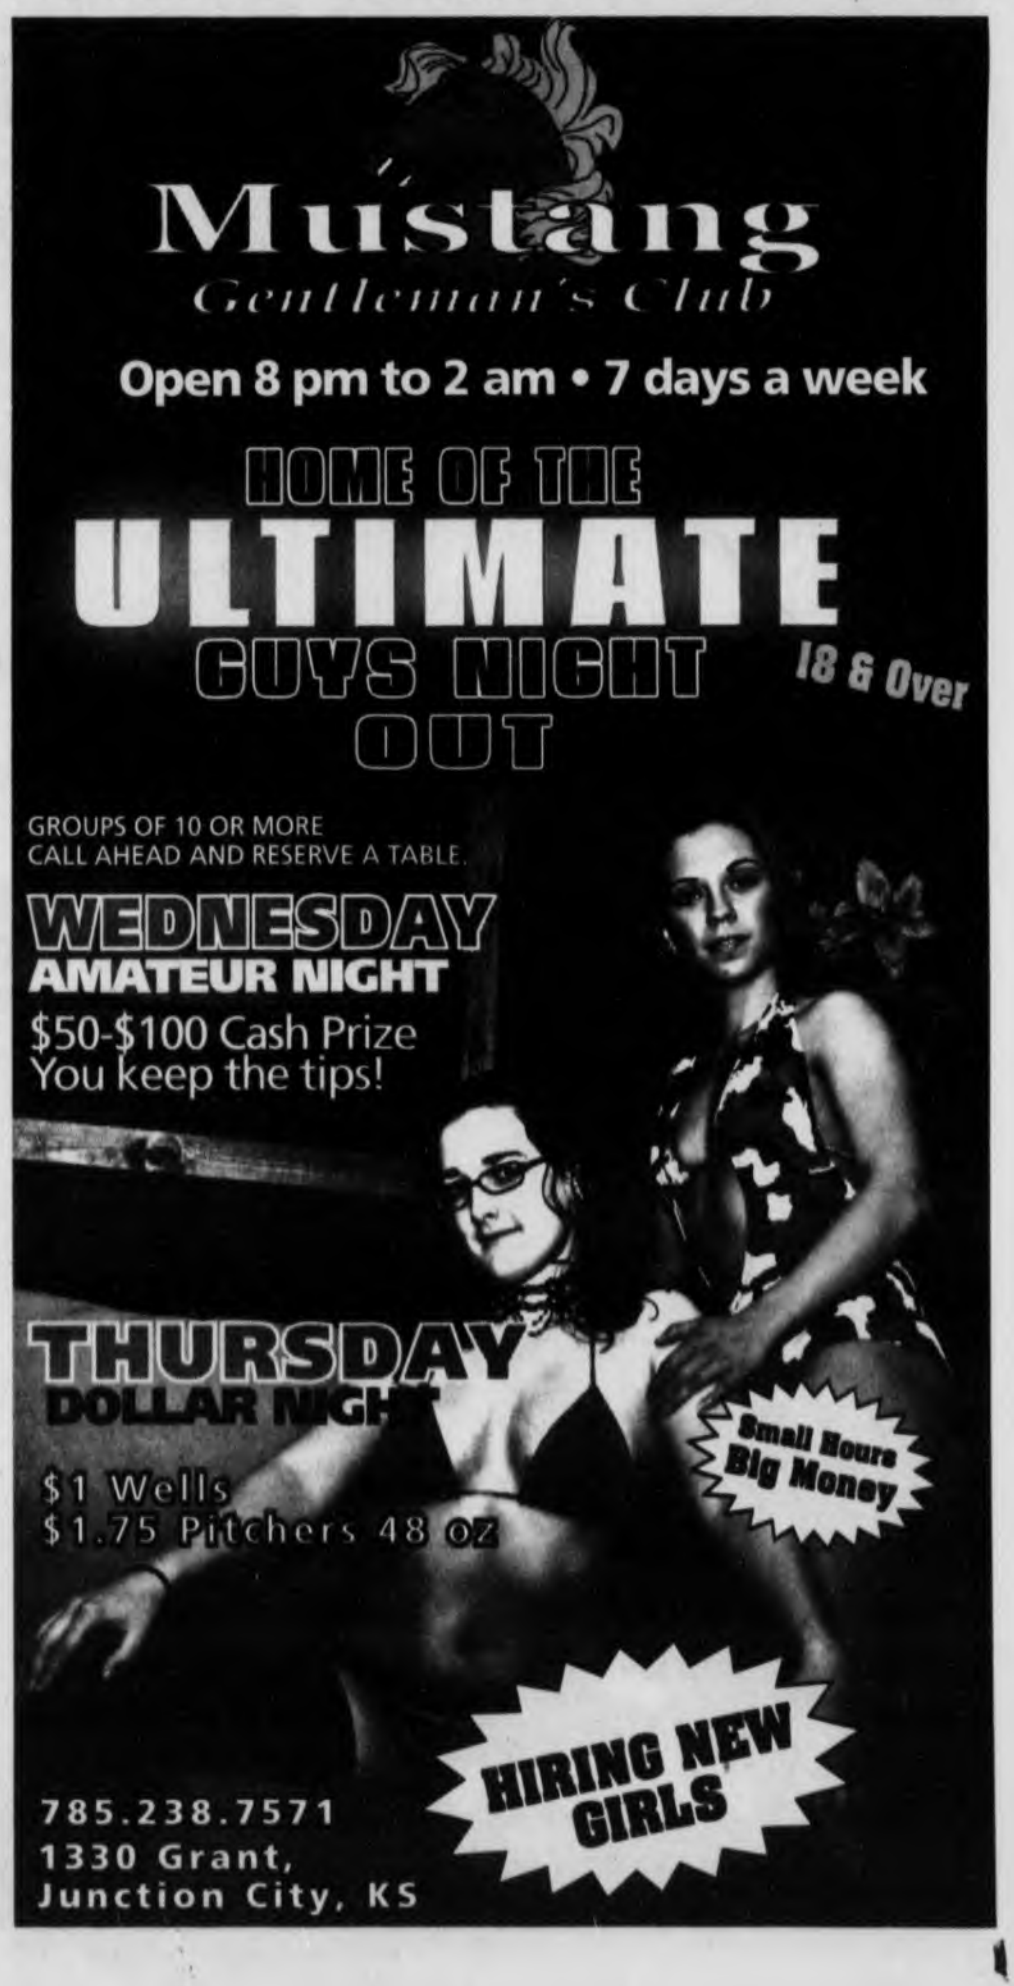
Bowen has a knack for filling running lanes, has great range, and is an above-average pass defender with solid coverage skills for a linebacker.

The Wildcats will key in on Bowen throughout the game, trying to keep him away from the ball and from making plays.

DEFENSIVE BACK



Sophomore Chris Singleton has been one of the few bright spots in the Cyclone secondary this season. He has two interceptions and three pass breakups.



His 35 tackles are sixth best on the team. Singleton has solid ball skills and is capable of making big plays, but he is just as prone to giving them up.

Several times this season he has been caught out of position – either because of a blown assignment or coverage – and has given up large gains. The Wildcats will try to expose some of those weaknesses on Saturday.

Simply irreplaceable

Loss of starting safety Marcus Watts for remainder of season due to hand injury will be felt by both defensive, special teams

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After all the hard work it took during the offseason to rehabilitate from a dislocated hip, now Marcus Watts has to start over.

His hip is fine. Unfortunately, his hand is not.

The junior free safety spent all of the past offseason recovering from a hip injury he suffered at the end of last season, but he recently injured his hand when he blocked a punt against Oklahoma State. The block was returned for a touchdown, but Watts immediately ran off the field clutching his right hand.

"It felt good, for a second," Watts said of the block after the OSU game. "After that, pain. It's nothing serious. There's no break, and even if there was, just cast it up and play next week."

Watts returned in the second half of the game, and even provided the game-winning interception, but he had no idea the injury would force him to sit out the remainder of the season.

After playing through the pain for the past two games, he is now set to have season-ending surgery to repair his hand.

The loss of Watts will hurt the team, as the safety was a key contributor on both defense and special teams.

His teammates said they will miss him, but they realize it just means it is time for someone else to step up.

"It's a big loss for the team," defensive end Ian Campbell said. "He was definitely a significant player for us – an impact guy. But I think we have the type of players that are going to be ready to step up and do what they need to do to replace him."

The player who will replace Watts at safety is sophomore Andrew Erker, a former walk-on who started the first four games of the season while Watts was still recovering from the dislocated hip. Erker has 15 total tackles this season.

Watts is the second member of the secondary to go down for the season. Cornerback Bryan Baldwin suffered a season-ending arm injury at the start of the Big 12 Conference season.

"In the defensive secondary, there's a big hole in that spot right now, but we have back-ups that have had a lot of snaps in games," defensive end Rob Jackson said. "They probably don't know the game as well as he does but have the ability to make plays. It might be a little burden on us, but I think we should be all right."

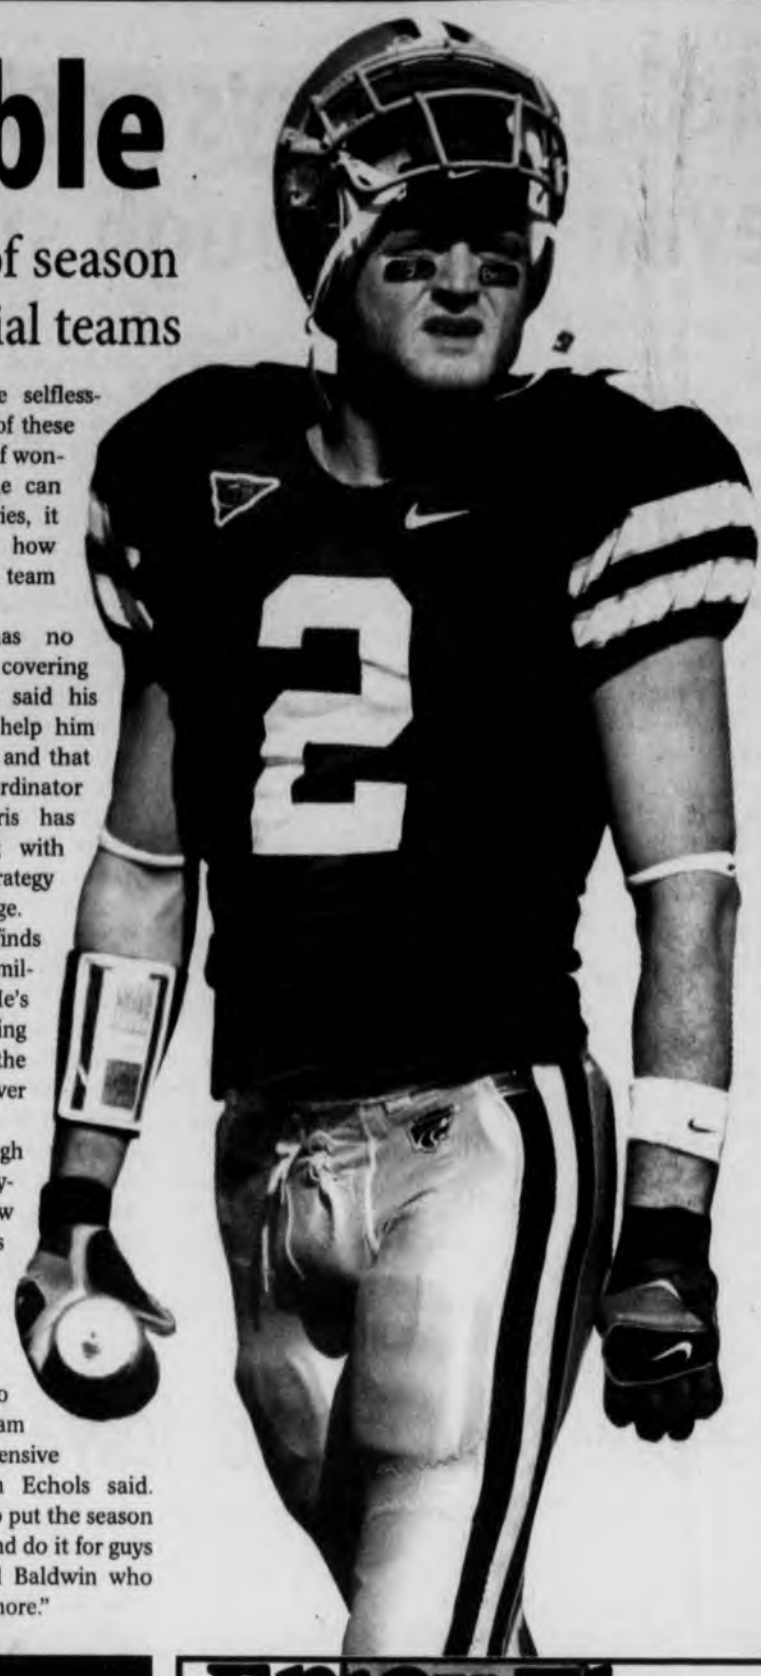
Perhaps the greatest effect will be felt by the special teams units, where Watts combined with Yamon Figurs to form what coach Ron Prince called one of the best punt coverage duos in the Big 12.

"It's a big loss for the team. He was definitely a significant player for us — an impact guy. But I think we have the type of players that are going to be ready to step up and do what they need to do to replace him."

Ian Campbell
DEFENSIVE END

Watts and Figurs repeatedly forced fair catches or limited yardage out of opposing punt returners and eventually caused teams to double-team both players.

Running back James Johnson was tapped by coach Ron Prince to step in for Watts on punt coverage.



"(Johnson) came to me on Sunday," Prince said. "He was one of the first kids in my office and said, 'I'd like to get in there and do some of the things Marcus has been doing.'

"I thought that was insightful for a kid. It just goes to show you the selflessness of some of these kids. Instead of wondering how he can get more carries, it was, 'Coach, how can I help the team more?'"

Johnson has no experience covering punts, but he said his speed should help him to be effective and that defensive coordinator Raheem Morris has been working with him on the strategy of punt coverage.

Now Watts finds himself in a familiar position. He's limited to helping his team from the sideline however he can.

"Even though he's not playing the next few games, he's helping the younger guys, and he's doing everything in his ability to make this team better," defensive tackle Quintin Echols said. "We're going to put the season in our hands and do it for guys like Watts and Baldwin who can't play anymore."

ROYAL PURPLE yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.

discover
[gopowercat.com]
beLoud, beProud, bePurple

Enjoy The Game
8 TVs
and some room to move
Finn's Pub
317 Poyntz Ave. • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 776-2119

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Candlewood Shopping Center 785.776.8830
3204 Kimball Avenue
Studio 32 for Hair
Call for an appointment with
Allysa, Connie, Kelly, Tina, or Verna Lee

Student Escape Night
Sundays after 4pm
only at Valentino's on 3003 Anderson Ave.
Dinner Buffet
only $4.99
with valid University Student ID.
Save over $3 - No Coupon Necessary
Some restrictions apply. Limited time only. Dine-in only. One offer per person, per visit. Not good with any other offer.
3003 Anderson Ave. 785-539-6444
Valentino's
• Mon - Sat 11am-9pm
• Sun 10am-9pm
• Sun Brunch 10am-2pm

EKART'S "SINCE 1965"
Motor Inn, Inc.
209 Sarber Lane
Dependable Auto Service
776-9058
•Oil Changes
•Brake Service
•Tire Rotation
•Computer diagnostics
•30-Pt. System Check
•Complete automotive repair
Go Cats!

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

Everything you need for tailgating is in
The FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor
south of Blockbuster on Westport Dr.

Jupiter String Quartet
Presented by
McCain Auditorium
November 17, 7:30pm
Pre-performance lecture by Proffessor Cora Cooper at 6:30 pm in room 204 McCain
The Jupiter String Quartet, based in Boston, has performed to critical acclaim across the United States and abroad.
Call the McCain Box Office at 532-6428 or order online at www.ksu.edu/mccain
Sponsored in part by The Kansas Art Commission, a state agency; The National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency; The K-State Fine Arts Fees and The Friends of McCain

COLLEGE PARK
UNIVERSITY CROSSING
NEW CLUBHOUSE
University Crossing
2215 College Ave.
Manhattan, KS 66502
789.539.0500 tel
collegeparkweb.com
coming in fall 2006
FEATURED
• fitness center
• computer lab
• game room
COLLEGE PARK

Safety Marcus Watts blocks an Oklahoma State punt in the second quarter that led to a 21-yard touchdown return by Daniel Gonzalez on Oct. 7. Watts injured his hand on the play and is now out for the season.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Prince's special teams emphasis sparks punt coverage, blocking

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

One of coach Ron Prince's first priorities when he took over the K-State football program was to place an emphasis on special teams.

Special teams is sometimes overlooked, but as Prince has said, it is often just as important as playing good offense or defense.

So far this season K-State's special teams have been, in a word, special. They have accounted for 73 of the Wildcats' 156 total points, including five touchdowns from the unit.

Prince has made sure that special teams isn't an afterthought and has spent plenty of time coaching it, something that wasn't done when Bill Snyder was coach.

"He's done a really good job putting an emphasis on it throughout practice," junior punter Tim Reyer said. "In the past, all special teams were at the beginning of practice – now they're throughout practice. They're really making sure things are down to a key."

The extra practice seemingly has paid off. The Wildcats have averaged 30.1 yards on kickoff returns and 10.5 yards on punt returns.

The coverage units have been just as productive. They have blocked punts, forced fumbles and have provided the team with solid field position throughout the season.

"We've punted the ball more than we've liked to, but what's happened in most games. Defensively, we've been in pretty good situations because of the punt unit," Prince said.

One of the reasons for the Wildcats' exceptional punt coverage this season has been the play of junior Marcus Watts and senior Yamon Figurs, Prince said.

"By and large, those two have been so dominant that, as a group, they've really impacted the game," he said. "Tim has done a good job, and Yamon and Marcus have been able to, basically, wherever the ball gets caught, it gets downed."

However, the Wildcats will have to find a way to replace Watts' production in terms of punt blocking and coverage. Watts will undergo season-ending surgery on an injured hand he sustained three weeks ago against Oklahoma State. He injured the hand when he blocked a punt against the Cowboys, but he has continued to play.

Junior James Johnson will try to fill the void left by Watts, but Prince indicated Johnson won't be able to do it alone.

"You can't replace (Watts) with one guy, so it will be a number of players who work in that area," he said.

The Wildcats also have received solid play in the kicking game. Reyer has averaged 40.3 yards per punt, and senior kicker Jeff Snodgrass has converted on 10-of-15 field goals, including a 53-yarder against Nebraska.

But it hasn't all been positive for the Wildcats. Prince likes his coverage units to be aggressive, and in the loss to Nebraska, that aggressiveness worked against them.

With Nebraska's field goal unit in place, the Huskers caught K-State off-guard with a fake attempt. The Wildcats over-pursued, lost coverage and gave up an easy touchdown pass from holder Jake Wesch to tight end Hunter Teafatiller.

Still, that same aggressiveness has worked to the Wildcats' advantage, particularly with punt blocking.

"If you get that block, then you're probably going to get a touchdown," Reyer said.

Collegian vs. KSDB 91.9

5 Games to watch

Collegian football picks

Team record: 115-45 K-State record: 22-10	 Nick Dunn (31-9)	 Jonathan Garten (28-12)	 Austin Meek (28-12)	 Jeffrey Rake (28-12)
K-State vs. Iowa State	K-State 24-20	K-State 28-20	K-State 28-27	K-State 20-18
No. 19 Oklahoma at No. 23 Missouri	Missouri 33-22	Oklahoma 31-21	Missouri 35-28	Oklahoma 24-23
Colorado at Kansas	Kansas 29-23	Kansas 24-20	Kansas 24-18	Kansas 23-13
No. 22 Texas A&M at Baylor	Texas A&M 14-7	Baylor 24-21	Texas A&M 31-17	Texas A&M 34-21
No. 8 Tennessee at South Carolina	South Carolina 42-3	South Carolina 35-23	Tennessee 35-14	Tennessee 21-0

KSDB 91.9 football picks

Team record: 127-33 K-State record: 26-6	 Heath Fanning (33-7)	 Kyle Finley (32-8)	 Scott Miller (31-9)	 James Westling (31-9)
K-State vs. Iowa State	K-State 21-13	K-State 20-17	K-State 23-17	K-State 27-17
No. 19 Oklahoma at No. 23 Missouri	Missouri 24-21	Missouri 38-24	Missouri 31-28	Missouri 31-28
Colorado at Kansas	Kansas 21-17	Kansas 28-14	Colorado 21-20	Kansas 20-7
No. 22 Texas A&M at Baylor	Texas A&M 20-17	Texas A&M 31-24	Texas A&M 34-27	Texas A&M 34-31
No. 8 Tennessee at South Carolina	Tennessee 27-7	Tennessee 27-20	Tennessee 34-20	Tennessee 24-13

5 Keys to Victory

Running game, Freeman TD key for win

By Austin Meek
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

1. A TD BY FREEMAN

Freeman insists he doesn't care how many touchdowns he throws as long as K-State wins, but the Wildcats have struggled in both departments lately.

2. 1-2 PUNCH

Leon Patton (112) and James Johnson (127) both cracked 100 yards against Missouri, the first time two K-State running backs topped the century mark since Eric Hickson and Mike Lawrence did so in 1995.

3. ACTION JACKSON

Defensive end Rob Jackson was a bright spot on an otherwise dismal day for the K-State defense last week. Jackson forced a fumble that helped the Wildcats grab an early lead.

4. THE WATTS LOSS

K-State needs other players to step up on defense, especially after being trampled last week in Columbia. Watts' replacement on the punt-coverage unit will have big shoes to fill.

5. ATTACK THE DEFENSE

Iowa State ranks last in the Big 12 in scoring defense and 11th in rush defense, pass defense and total defense.

COME GET A Be-Witchin' Hair Do!
612 N. 12TH • AGGIEVILLE • 539-2277
SHAGGIEVILLE

a Cut Above SALON
785.537.3200
walk-ins welcome!
1800 Claflin Road • Suite 110 • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

Catering or Delivery for the Game?
PLANET SUB
708 N. Manhattan • 537-8SUB
GOOD LUCK CATS!

THE PURPLE PIG
$4.99 STEAK NIGHT EVERY FRIDAY
$3.75 Long Island Ice Tea
•Sunday NFL ticket
•ESPN Game Plan
1119 Moro • 539-7444

Are you paying too much for auto insurance?
American Family rates are more competitive than you might think. Call me today to find out.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office – Madison, WI 53783
amfam.com
© 2006 092065 – Rev. 4/06

Tim Engle Agency, Inc.
3320 Anderson Ave
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 539-9200 Bus
(785) 537-8696 Fax
tengle@amfam.com

Jon Harper Agency
1814 Claflin Rd Ste 220
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 776-1855 Bus
(785) 539-2577 Fax
jharper@amfam.com

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Friday Specials
$2.50 Pounders
$4.00 Absolute Bombs
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$5.50 Booze Burger
3 Projection Screens
Saturday Specials
$4.25 Sobe Bombs
$4.50 Big Boys
$6.50 Chili Cheese Burger
16 Flat Screens
Sunday Specials
$2.50 Drinks, Amp Bombs
$2.00 Tall Boys & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$5.50 Guac Burger
1/2 Price Appetizers
100 Free T-Shirts
$3.00 Miller Lite & Bud Light Pounders on Game Day!
- ON GAMEDAY -
Patio open @ 3:00 pm
NFL Ticket- Catch all your favorite games!
Mon - Tues 4pm - 2am
Wed - Sun 11:30am - 2am
GO CATS!

Got a News Tip or Story Idea?
Call 532-6556 or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

Coming into form

James Johnson finally meets preseason hype as top recruit

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Eight weeks into the season, junior running back James Johnson finally displayed the ability coach Ron Prince expected when Johnson signed with the Wildcats last December.

Johnson – the junior college transfer from Blinn College in Port Arthur, Texas – was one of the most highly-touted recruits in K-State's 2006 class, but his production early in the season did not quite live up to expectations.

"Coach Prince has got that never-die attitude. So I knew if I got my opportunity, I was going to take advantage of it. The (offensive) line didn't give up at any time. They made it all possible for me."

James Johnson
RUNNING BACK

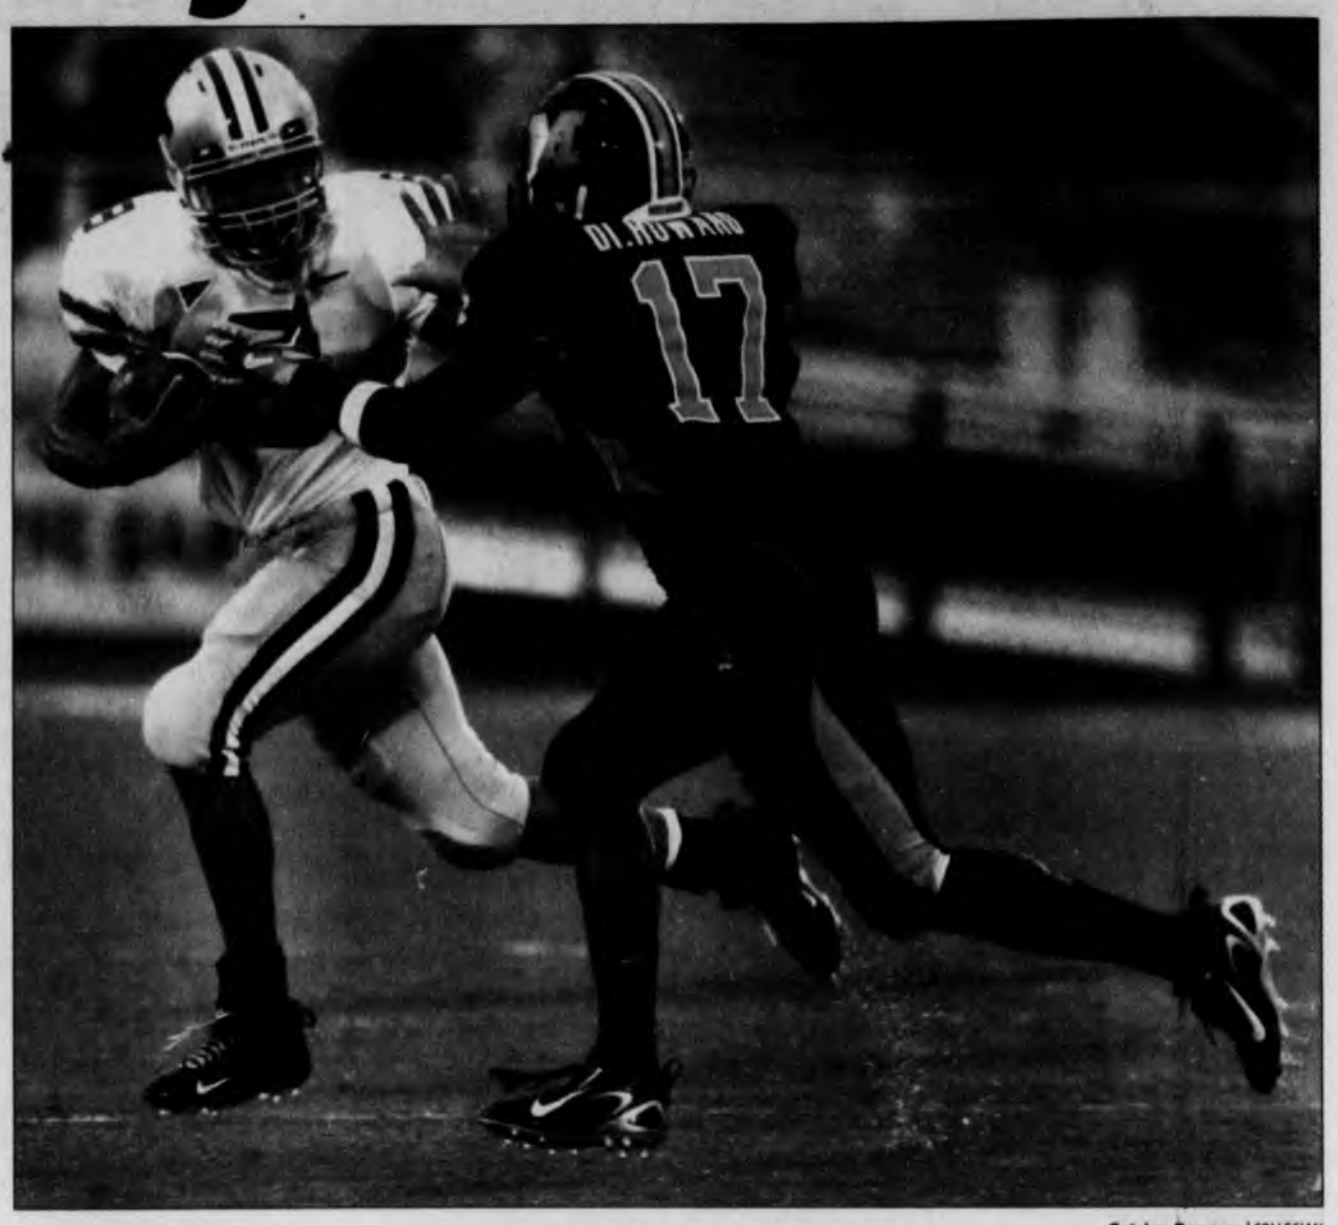
All that changed against Missouri, as Johnson exploded for 127 yards and a touchdown on 20 carries. His yardage and carry totals were obvious career highs, and the 9-yard touchdown was the first of his career.

Of his rushing yardage total, 103 came in the fourth quarter, when Prince gave Johnson a chance to prove himself.

"Coach Prince has got that never-die attitude," Johnson said. "So I knew if I got my opportunity, I was going to take advantage of it. The (offensive) line didn't give up. They could've given up at any time. They made it all possible for me."

The game was such a surprise because Johnson appeared out of nowhere to have a career day. In the first seven games of the season, he had only 21 yards rushing – a measly 3 yards per game.

Prince said in most cases it takes time for a junior college transfer to adjust to the increase in competition. The coach knows from experience.



During his playing days, Prince went to Dodge City (Kan.) Community College for two years before transferring to Appalachian State for his junior and senior seasons.

"These fellas have played against good competition," Prince said. "They're two years away from high school football, but there's still a transition. The speed of the game in this kind of conference – and just the rigors of going to class – finding your classes, all those little things."

Johnson certainly built a nice résumé at Blinn. As a freshman, he was a first-team NJCAA All-American and offensive MVP of the Southwest Junior College Football Conference.

In his two years, Johnson totaled 2,384 rushing yards and 36 touchdowns.

However, after struggling to qualify academically, Johnson arrived late to fall practice and had to catch up quickly.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Junior running back James Johnson rushed for a career- and game-high 127 yards on 20 carries in the 41-21 loss at Missouri on Oct. 21. In his previous four games, the transfer from Blinn College in Port Arthur, Texas, had rushed for only 27 yards.

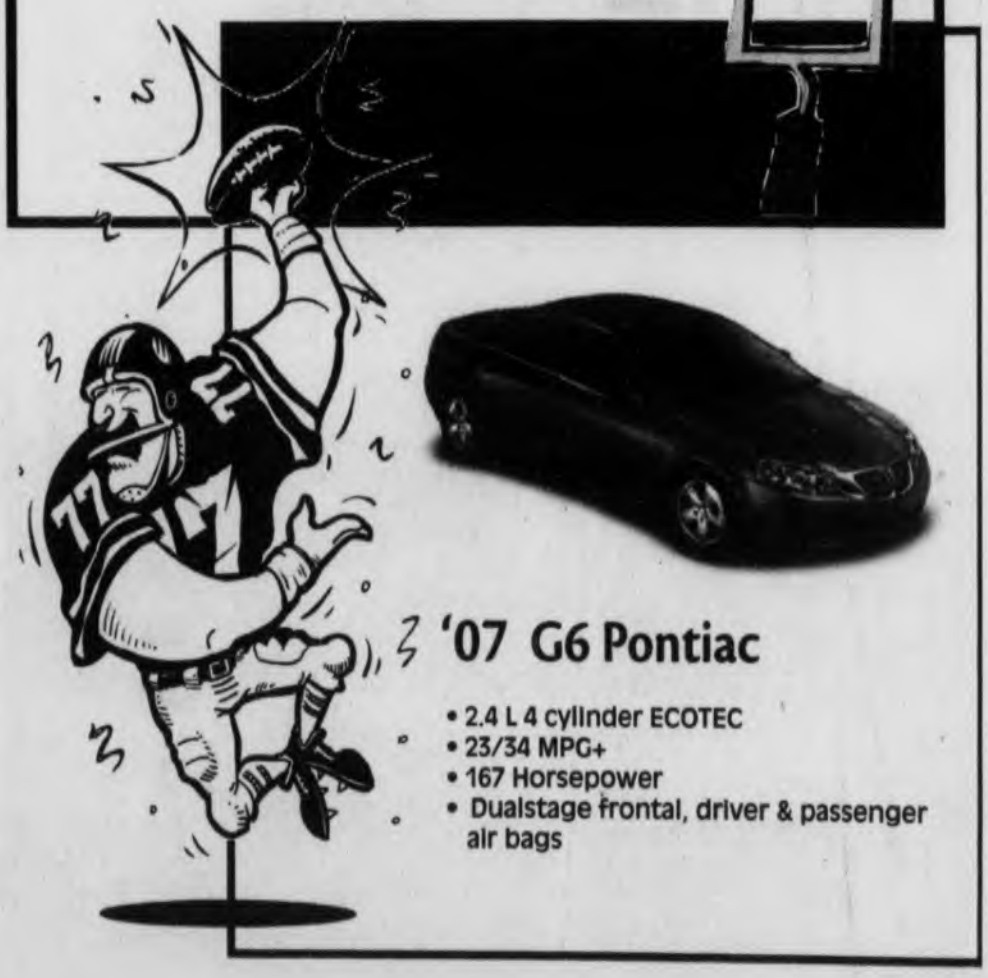
"I didn't get to train how I wanted to," Johnson said. "I had to come in and do two-a-days because it set me back a lot. We didn't really do that much conditioning (at Blinn), but it's different here. You run everywhere."

Johnson is making an impression on Prince off the field, too. After safety Marcus Watts went down with an injured hand, Johnson volunteered to take over for Watts on the special teams units.

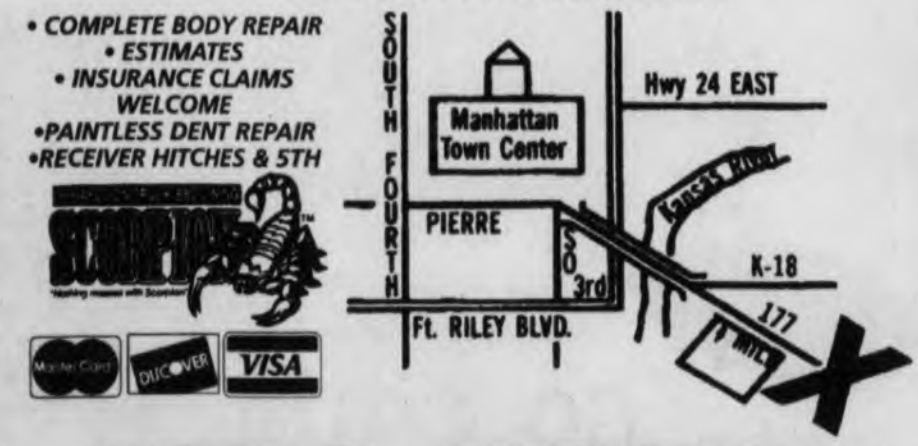
Johnson will fill in on the punt coverage team, replacing Watts at the "gunner position" opposite Yamon Figurs.

"I told coach Prince I think I can use my speed to get down there," Johnson said. "He was pretty happy, because he's always talking about how he wants players like that to do special teams."

Johnson is just one of the junior college transfers who are adjusting to life as Division I-A athletes. Defensive end Rob Jackson, defensive tackle Moses Manu and cornerback Antwon Moore all are beginning to contribute more to the team.



"I'm starting to get used to how fast the game is," Jackson said. "Offensive linemen are faster. Obviously running backs are faster. Quarterbacks have more of a presence as to where you are as a defensive lineman."



Prince said he is just glad to see the transfers, especially Johnson, start to produce more.

"It's about the time of year where we hope to see them start to take over a little bit and start to play like we've seen them play against other competition in the past," he said.

Everyday Low Prices
If You Didn't Buy It At Classic
You Probably Paid Too Much!!!
Best 30 Pack Cans -$11.45
Natural Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Keystone Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Miller High Life 30 Packs - $12.85
Busch and Busch Light 30 Packs - $14.10
Miller Lite and MGD 30 Packs - $15.99
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans - $15.99
Coors Light 30 Pack - $16.30
Celebrate Our Win With
Andre Champagne 750ML - $3.99
Be The Prince of Your Tailgate
On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, and Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99
Kentucky Deluxe 1.75L $10.99
UV Flavored Vodka Liters $11.49 and 750ML $8.99
Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

BRIGGS AUTO LANE
Is Cheering On The Cats

'06 JEEP GRANDE CHEROKEE
• 3 available 4WD systems
• Standard with 3.7 L V6
• Available 330 Horsepower 5.7 Hemi with MDS
• Best in class track management system

'07 G6 Pontiac
• 2.4 L 4 cylinder ECOTEC
• 23/34 MPG+
• 167 Horsepower
• Dualstage frontal, driver & passenger air bags

Alan Clark
BODY SHOP INC. SINCE 1967
"WHEN QUALITY COUNTS, COME SEE US"
• COMPLETE BODY REPAIR
• ESTIMATES
• INSURANCE CLAIMS WELCOME
•PAINTLESS DENT REPAIR
•RECEIVER HITCHES & 5TH

776-5333
2160 PILLSBURY DR. • 177 HWY SOUTH • MANHATTAN

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, October 30, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 51

INSIDE
Running back James Johnson led K-State to a 31-10 win
Sports, Page 16

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Katelyn Schmidt, junior in public relations, and Andrew Ellis, junior in political science, walk off the field after being announced as the K-State student ambassadors.

Student ambassadors named

By Jesse Sachdeva
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State students have two new representatives.

Katelyn Schmidt, junior in public relations, and Andrew Ellis, junior in political science, were elected as K-State's 2006-07 student ambassadors.

Schmidt and Ellis' victories were announced at halftime of Saturday's football game against Iowa State.

As ambassadors, Schmidt and Ellis will serve as the face and voice of the student body, representing K-State in meetings with alumni, prospective students, campus organizations and the Manhattan community.

Schmidt, who was born in South Korea and adopted by Australian parents, grew up in Sydney, Australia. Schmidt's family moved to the Kansas City, Kan., area when she was 15.

"When it came time to pick a college, K-State was the only school I looked at," Schmidt said. "I knew I didn't want to go to KU, and K-State was just the right distance from home."

Schmidt is involved in many campus organizations. A member of Delta Delta Delta sorority, Schmidt also serves as director of international relations for Student Government Association, and she is involved with Public Relations Student Society of America and several honorary organizations.

"I thought ambassador would be an interesting thing to apply for," she said. "I know this will be a good experience, and I'm really looking forward to representing K-State as well as I can."

Schmidt is a first generation K-State student, but Ellis has a different background.

K-State traditions go back several generations in Ellis' family. His great-great-grandfather was quarterback for the 1912 K-State football team, and members of his family have been going to K-State ever since.

Ellis' family moved around a lot when he was growing up; he lived in several Midwest cities, including Dallas, Wichita and Kansas City, Kan.

See AMBASSADORS Page 8

Best Buy opening draws 150

By Jesse Sachdeva
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

About 150 customers welcomed Manhattan's newest electronics superstore Friday morning with a grand-opening ceremony.

Best Buy's opening-day festivities began with a speech from Mayor Bruce Sneed and a performance from the K-State pep band to demonstrate support from both the community and university.

As part of the opening, Best Buy formally donated $10,000 to the United Way of Riley County. Though construction had only begun in the past few months, digital imaging supervisor Chris Herron said the store's opening was the culmination of five years of planning, civil legislation and market research.

"A lot went into designing the floor plan of the store," Herron said. "Five years of research and demographics surveys showed us which sections of the store and what products would best fit the Manhattan market."

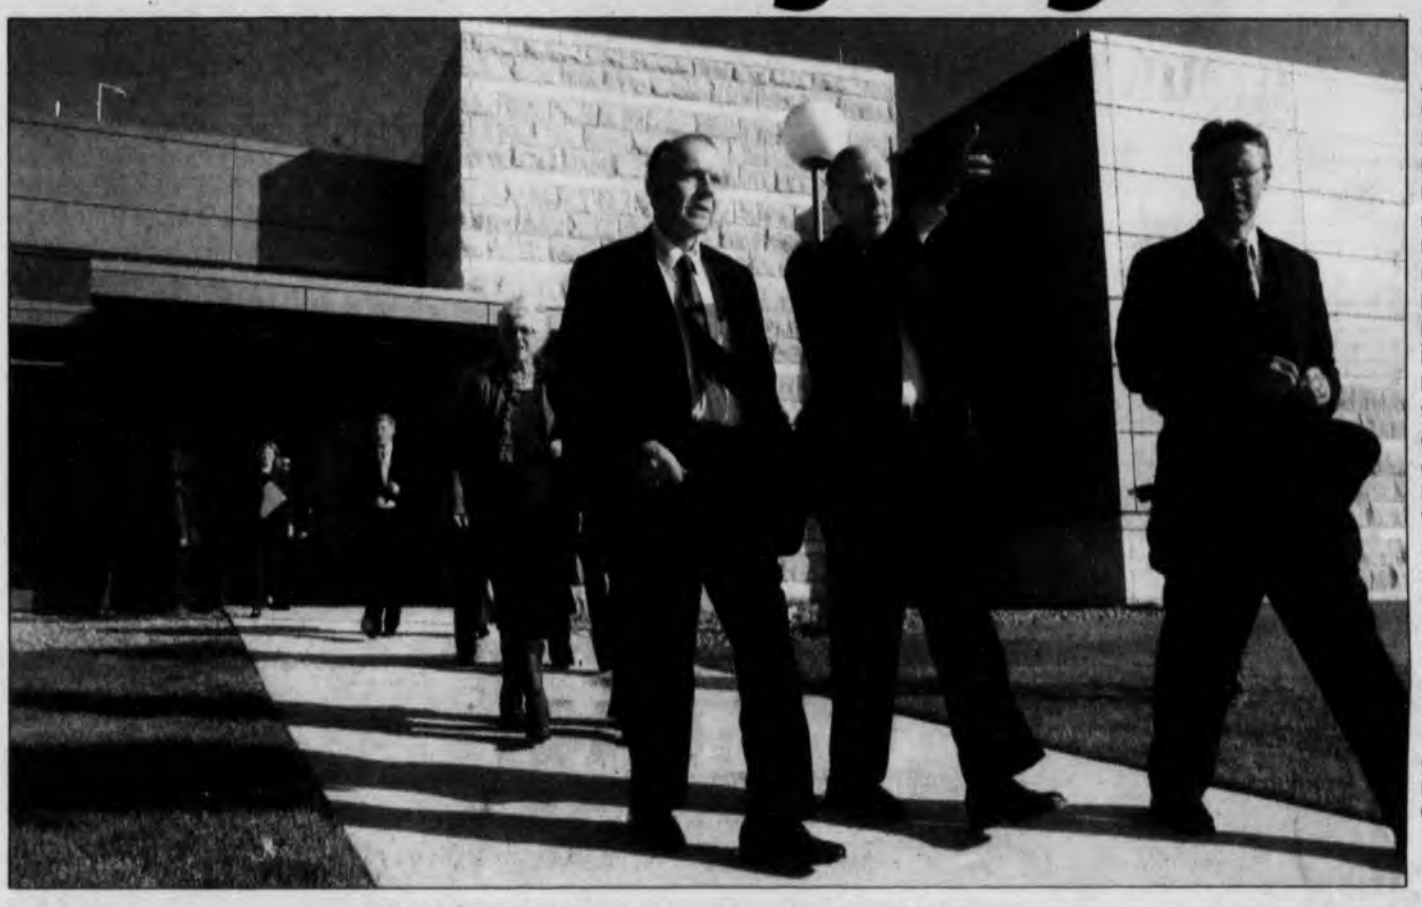
Herron said the store's 125 employees have worked tirelessly for the last three weeks to learn the corporate culture and stock the store shelves.

"We've been really impressed with the effort they've shown. Many of them have done above and beyond what we asked of them," he said.

Herron said the employees went through a training program called Care Plus, which taught them to treat each customer as an individual instead of just the target of a sales pitch.

"We approach each customer individually, asking them questions about their lifestyle, what they enjoy, what they're looking for – before ever mentioning a specific product," he said.

Many of Best Buy's new employees are students from K-State and Manhattan Christian College.



"They're willing to work around class schedules, or if tests and study groups come up," Troy McCabe, freshman in computer engineering, said.

McCabe, who worked at Best Buy in Olathe, Kan., said about 80 percent of the store's employees were new hires.

"Most of the new employees are settling in just fine and making new

See OPENING Page 8

Cutting edge

K-State president Jon Wefald walks with Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan, from the newly named Pat Roberts Hall, which houses the Biosecurity Research Institute, to the dedication ceremony. Roberts and Wefald took a tour of the $54 million facility before speeches and a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

K-State dedicates biosecurity research building to honor Sen. Pat Roberts

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Prior to the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, the term "biosecurity" was reserved for safety gurus and bulging government reports.

But once prominent officials and media representatives began receiving packages filled with anthrax spores, biosecurity and its ugly cousin, bioterrorism, became buzzwords on the lips of everyone from FBI agents to farmers.

Now K-State has joined the battle to promote the security of the United States' food supply, with a building named in honor of K-State alumnus and Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan.

The $54 million Pat Roberts Hall, home of the Biosecurity Research Institute, was dedicated Friday. It will provide K-State scientists a secure location in which to research threats to U.S. crops, livestock and citizens.

Roberts is the chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, a member of the Senate Committee on Armed Services, and a senior member of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry.

Roberts also was head of the intelligence committee's investigation into intelligence failures leading up to the Iraq invasion.

Roberts, Kansas' junior senator, along with Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, was present for the dedication ceremony.

At the ceremony, K-State president Jon Wefald noted that as early as 1999, Roberts cautioned the nation about "emerging threats," and as a result, K-State launched its food safety and security program.

According to a K-State press release, contained within the facility

See ROBERTS Page 8

Fans say tailgating brings together community, family

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Perry Piper, McFarland, Kan., resident, and Mike Ashenfelter, Wichita resident, both K-State alumni, grill chicken during the tailgating competition on Saturday.

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The All-University Homecoming tailgating competition capped off a week of school spirit by allowing alumni and fans to personally be involved with a competition of their own.

"Homecoming is not only for the students; it's about the entire community," said Matthew Scott, K-State alumnus and avid tailgater.

The tailgating competition required participants to incorporate the week's "Homecoming of Heroes" theme in the presentation of their tailgate, while still adhering to the typical tailgating components of taste and creativity.

The tailgates at Snyder Family Stadium were as varied as the style of automobiles attached to them. There were the classic hamburger and hot dog feasts, but the tailgates that stood out included a Justice League-inspired buffet and a tent decorated in the theme of former Wildcat athletes.

For a complete list of winners in all events, please check the Collegian Web site: www.kstatecollegian.com.

"It's fun to get creative and try something new," Scott said. "It just adds to the fun on game-day Saturdays."

Although Saturday was a competition, many tailgaters said winning the blue ribbon was not the only benefit of participating.

"We like tailgating, because it gets the family

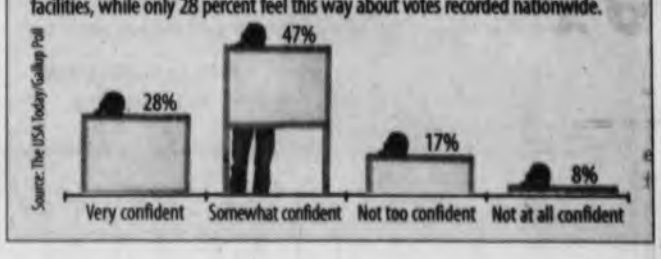
See TAILGATE Page 8

Today's forecast
Partly cloudy
High: 73 Low: 33

ONLINE

Indoor campfire
Goodnow Hall provided free food and fellowship for residents. Students were able to make s'mores in brightly colored microwaves, among other activities.

www.kstatecollegian.com



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

New software
Today is the last day students can use the Symantec AntiVirus for PCs. K-State is transitioning to new AntiVirus software. For the new software, computers must have Trend Micro OfficeScan installed. Macintosh computers will still use the Symantec system. For more information, visit antivirus.k-state.edu.

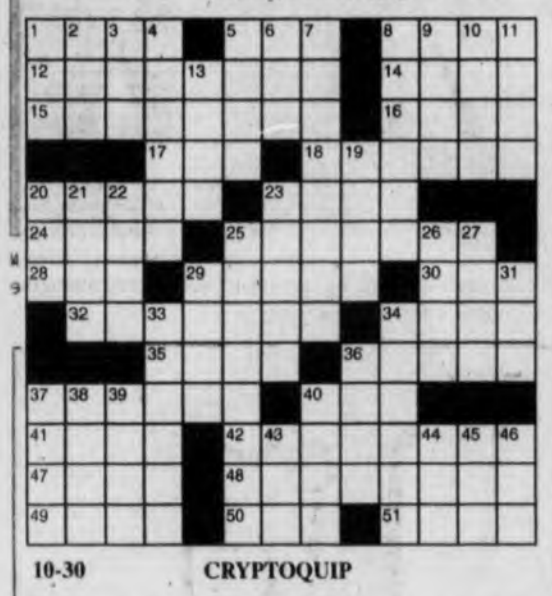
Abroad ambassador
Jeff VanSickle, senior in modern languages, was chosen as a 2006-07 Young Ambassador for the German Academic Exchange Service. He will advocate study in Germany to students at K-State. He was part of an exhange partnership between K-State and Justus-Liebig Universität in Giessen, Germany, in spring 2006.

Alpaca Fiber Design
Leeann Armstrong, senior in apparel design, was awarded a $5,000 scholarship for winning third in the Fiber to Fashion design competition. She received the award for her design using alpaca fibers. Designs were judged on how the designers fit the theme, "Alpaca — Coloring our world," into the design.

Will votes be accurately cast and counted nationwide?
Americans express a higher degree of confidence that the votes at their own voting facilities will be accurately cast and counted on Election Day. Two in three Americans (66 percent) say they are very confident about their own voting facilities, while only 28 percent feel this way about votes recorded nationwide.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 "— la Douce"
5 You can't stand having this
8 Unkempt one
12 As it happens
14 Staffer
15 Symbol of America
16 Check
17 — -relief
18 Corpulent
20 Take place
23 Hideaway
24 Whodunit basis
25 Biblical cover-up?
28 Total
29 Mah-jongg pieces
30 Space
32 Woody Allen movie
34 Relocate
35 Oil cartel
36 Boring tool
37 Phases
40 Clear the tables
41 Chess piece
42 Partridge's place
47 Abominable Snowman
48 City dweller
49 "— go bragh!"
50 Yea undoer
51 Ski lift type

DOWN
1 Retirement-plan acronym
2 Agent, for short
3 Treasure seeker's help
4 Very nearly
5 Osculation instruments
6 "— my brother's keeper?"
7 Genealogy texts for nobles
8 "No Exit" writer
9 Place
10 Valhalla VIP
11 Flex
13 Rip
19 Rembrandt's equipment
20 Chances, briefly
21 Organization
22 Prolonged sleep
23 Fragrant blossom
25 Developed in delicate detail
26 Astonished
27 Best-loved
29 Recording
31 Apiece
33 Bean
34 Had better refrain from 36 Emanation
37 Terrier type
38 Layer
39 Con
40 Infant
43 Historic period
44 Eve, originally
45 Greek vowel
46 Alway

Solution time: 27 mins.

H	E	S	■	O	L	E	O	■	S	A	R	A
U	G	H	■	M	O	D	E	■	C	L	A	N
T	O	R	E	A	D	O	R	■	A	I	N	T
■	■	A	C	H	E	■	I	M	A	G	E	■
A	L	P	H	A	■	H	U	M	P	■	■	■
V	I	N	O	■	C	U	S	P	I	D	O	R
E	R	E	■	D	O	M	E	S	■	O	W	E
S	A	L	V	A	D	O	R	■	C	O	E	D
■	■	■	E	V	E	R	■	H	Y	M	N	S
T	H	E	R	E	■	■	P	E	A	S	■	■
Y	O	G	I	■	S	P	L	E	N	D	O	R
P	L	A	T	■	O	R	A	L	■	A	N	A
E	D	D	Y	■	D	O	N	S	■	Y	O	N

Yesterday's answer 10-28

10-30 CRYPTOQUIP

BE KTVZ ECZUQS ACMS DZTSVYQR MT YZTD CG CAA. B ZQYHTM RTUQLTSK UCSQ CM CZCLAQ UBRGCHQ.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: SINCE THIS IS THE TIME TO SPRAY WATER ON MY PLANTS, I WOULD CALL IT A MIST OPPORTUNITY.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: A equals L

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from other universities

U. ILLINOIS AMONG TOP LGBT-FRIENDLY SCHOOLS

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. – The Advocate College Guide, the first-of-its-kind guide for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender students, named the University of Illinois in its top 100 campuses for LGBT students this year.

The guide used comments from LGBT students and an objective, 20-point scale to determine each campus' climate for LGBT students.

The scale includes factors like the number of LGBT educational events on campus, if domestic partner benefits are extended to same-sex couples, and the presence of an LGBT resource office.

Illinois' most beneficial resource to university students is the Office of LGBT Concerns, said Liz Wagner, political co-chair of PRIDE, an organization for gay and allied students.

The guide also cites the progressiveness of the administration as one of the key factors for the university's listing.

According to the guide, the university has included sexual orientation in the nondiscrimination policy since 1993 and added gender identity one year ago.

Even with budget reductions across campus, the Office of LGBT Concerns received additional funds to pay the salary for a full-time director and an assistant director.

"All these LGBT achievements are possible because of amazing allies – from the chancellor to the provost to the faculty," the guide said.

SQUIRREL CAUSES HOUR-LONG POWER OUTAGE AT DARTMOUTH

HANOVER, N.H. – A squirrel's venture onto a power line caused several residences one the north and west sides of Dartmouth's campus to lose power for about an hour Thursday afternoon.

Residences affected included all six halls of the McLaughlin Cluster and houses on Webster Avenue, which are on the north substation of the power grid.

The substation, which is on North Main Street, caught fire after the squirrel apparently attempted to cross between lines of a high-wire without removing its entire body from the line on which he previously perched. The charred remains of the squirrel were found at the scene.

The Fire Department arrived to extinguish the fire.

Plant operator Shaun Impey compared the squirrel to a fallen branch shorting a circuit.

"It is not an uncommon occurrence," Impey said. "It has happened before."

A number of grounding rods and lightning arrestors were destroyed in what Impey described as an "explosion." They were replaced by Granite State Electric, an electricity distribution subsidiary of National Grid and the sole power provider for buildings powered by the north substation.

Immediately after the outage, generators turned on to maintain emergency exit lights and card access readers in the buildings affected.

WEB SITE MAKES T-VALS AVAILABLE TO U. ARIZONA STUDENTS

TUCSON, Ariz. – As registration season continues, students have a myriad of options to help them select the right coursea.

While there are many tools at students' disposal for choosing classes during registration, including advisers, professors, friends' recommendations and the old reliable eeney-meeney-miney-mo, there is another: The University of Arizona's Teacher-Course Evaluations Web site.

The site, compiled from evaluations of past students, rates how well an instructor did his or her job, how much time course homework takes and how difficult students thought the course was.

The evaluations were first put online in January 1998, after years of lobbying of the Faculty Senate by the Associated Students of the University of Arizona to make them more accessible to students.

Gwendolyn Johnson, director of the Office of Institutional Research and Evaluation, said the evaluations Web site sees a lot of traffic, though the office does not keep exact numbers on how many people visit it.

While some students use it to get an idea of what to expect from an instructor, others actually use it as a tool for selecting courses.

Suzie Penaranda, a pre-nursing student at Pima Community College, said she used the teacher evaluation Web site when she was a student at Arizona.

Source: www.copyboy.com

TABERNACLE WOODS By Donnie Jay

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Chong Pyo Choe at 9 a.m. today in Ackert 324.

■ The Graduate/Professional School Fair is 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The KSU Ballroom Dance Club have a costume dance 8-10 p.m. Tuesday at Crossroads ECM. Everyone is welcome to attend.

■ Ross University School of Veterinary Medicine will offer an information seminar for students considering pursing a doctorate in veterinary medicine at 6 p.m. Wednesday in Union 209. Online registration is required. To register, visit www.RossU.edu/vet and select information seminars.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kyle Larson at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in Fiedler 2116.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Seong-Hyun Park at 10 a.m. Thursday in Throckmorton 2024.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Do You Know Where Your Brooms Are?
Claflin Books and Copies

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

PAT'S PAWN & GUN SHOP, INC.
WE BUY, SELL, AND TRADE
GUNS
SMITH & WESSON
HANDGUNS • RIFLES
COLT • RUGER
SHOTGUNS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.- 6 p.m.
SAT 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
506 Riley St • Ogden
539-0151

DON'T FORGET TO CHECK OUT
MENU MANIA
LOCATED ON PAGE 3 OF YOUR K-STATE COLLEGIAN
TO ADVERTISE IN MENU MANIA CALL 532-6560

Watch Monday Night Football Here:
on the Big Screen
$2.00 Wells & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$2.50 Hawaiian Punch & Tequila Bombs
$5.50 Tubby Yee-Haw Burger
MONDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 Bud & Bud Light Pitchers
Mountain Oyster Basket $4.50
TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Aggieville • Manhattan, KS

Did you sell more Girl Scout cookies than anyone else in your troop?
You'll make more than cookie crumbs working for us...
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling cookies.
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL
OR EMAIL JHARMON@KSU.EDU
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL, FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

Trick-or-treaters, floats, bands descend on Aggieville

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An epic battle unfolded Friday afternoon, as battalions of Spidermen, damsels, pirates and a lightsaber-wielding George W. Bush descended on Aggieville pillaging, plundering and mostly politely asking for the ultimate childhood treasure – candy.

But the tricking and treating was only the beginning of Friday's Aggieville festivities, which melded Halloween with the annual All-University Homecoming parade and pep rally.

Participating businesses decorated in varying degrees: from adorned windows to the conversion of The Dusty Bookshelf into a full-blown haunted house.

Diane Meredith, owner of The Dusty Bookshelf, said the atmosphere of the bookstore lends itself to a good haunting.

"You pretty much light some candles and shut off the lights," she said.

The downside of a good scare might be remembering it too well, and Meredith said occasionally children are nervous coming into the store long after the Halloween decorations come down.

Meredith said like many other Homecoming activities, The Dusty Bookshelf's haunted house has become a tradition.

"It kind of took on a life of its own, and now we can't stop doing it," she said. "We get phone calls asking when it is."

Of course, after the decorating and the spooks comes the candy. Lots and lots of candy.

Meredith, who also owns Acme Gifts and Thread, said the candy budget for the three stores came in at $225.

But even Meredith's three stores were outspent by Varney's Book Store, which bought almost $500 worth of candy.

"As much as it takes to make sure every child gets their fair share," Jeff Levine, co-owner of Varney's, said.

Many adults got in on the fun, too, and several families created a theme for the event.

"The best group of costumes I've seen is an entire family dressed up as the Addams Family," said Ellen Templan, sophomore in elementary education and candy distribution specialist at Acme Gifts.

After snagging candy from the local businesses, those still in the market were bombarded by float's candy-throwers walking in the parade, which began at Manhattan Town Center and ended outside of Varney's.

The parade itself was led by the Big Red One marching band and included everything from fraternity and sorority floats to United Way volunteers in pink tutus to a float dedicated to Rep. Jim Ryun, R-Kan.

Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, up for re-election, appeared alongside a number of other Democrat candidates and offered predictions about the Homecoming game and the Nov. 18 Governor's Cup between K-State and the University of Kansas.

"I think you're going to keep that trophy here in Manhattan," she said. "I'm rooting for it."

After the parade, the crowd moved to the parking lot south of Varney's for the pep rally, which included a speech by head football coach Ron Prince and a slideshow.

But the praise at the rally was not reserved solely for the football team.

Prince, along with other speakers, heaped praise on the K-State Marching Band.

"The band has been absolutely terrific this year," Prince said. "The playing of the Alma Mater and the fight song after the game is really important to us, and we're gonna sing that fight song tomorrow after a victory."

All-University Homecoming winners

Student organizations:
4. Delta Theta Sigma
3. Phi Eta Sigma
2. Black Student Union
1. Japanese Yosaki Dance Club

Residence halls:
4. Jardine Complex
3. Strong Complex and Marlatt Hall
2. Goodnow and Moore Halls
1. Ford, Haymaker and West Halls and Smurthwaite

Greek pairings
5. Kappa Delta, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Delta Chi
4. Alpha Delta Pi, Sigma Nu, Phi Delta Theta and Phi Beta Sigma
3. Kappa Alpha Theta, Pi Kappa Alpha, Delta Sigma Phi and Triangle
2. Pi Beta Phi, Alpha of Clovia, Lambda Chi Alpha and Kappa Sigma
1. Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Chi and Theta Xi

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Big Cat Adam Madison, senior in agricultural technology management, slaps hands with a child along the parade route in Aggieville during the All-University Homecoming parade Friday.

Menu Mania

Monday = Macho
Dairy Queen
$3.99 for a triple cheeseburger, large fry and large drink
1015 N. Third • 776-4117

25¢ Hot Wings
"BIGGER THAN AGGIEVILLES"
$5 Domestic 64 oz Pitchers
Bowinkle's Sports Bar
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022

Buy 1st Combination Plate and get the 2nd Half Off
Los Portales
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
With Student ID

HUNAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
$1.00 Off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
• 539-0888 • 539-8888

Monday Mania
$3.99 Large Cheese Pizza
Dine in or carry out
Delivery Hotline 770-3333
Open Late
Gumby's Pizza

$1 off Any Pita
The Pita Pit
We Deliver • 1131 More • 537-3995

Kramer Quik Cats
Convenience Store
Buy 1 made-to-order pizza, and get the 2nd half price!
(second pizza must be of equal or lesser value.)
Located in the Kramer Dining Center
6:30 p.m. - Midnight
Expires 12/15/06

Porter's
Mini Monday
20¢ mini corndogs
$1.00 mini bottles
$1.00 off all drinks

Hunan Express
Free Delivery: 537-0886
1116 Moro St. Aggieville • Fax: 539-9111
(only a few blocks south of KSU)
$3.99 Lunch Buffet 11:00-2:30
$4.99 Dinner Buffet 5:30-9:00
Valuable Coupon
Receive one of the following FREE
For delivery order of $15 or more
One soft drink (2 liter)
Two egg rolls
Four crab rangoons
Ten fried donuts
Purchase of $25 or more select one order from menu.

$2.00 any draw or bottle
Pete Hunan's BarbeQue Aggieville
1/2 price smoked wings
NOW HIRING WAITRESSES!!
Specific availability required:
Mon and Wed days

Soup & Sandwich Combo $5.50
We Deliver
Planet Sub
708 Manhattan Ave.
537-8SUB

FREE Small Sub
Quiznos Sub
mmm...TOASTY!

Is your lunch looking a little dull?
Check out Menu Mania and add some color to it!

$4.99 Buffet
w/ Student ID
Sunday & Monday after 4 p.m.
Valentino's
3003 Anderson Ave
539-6444

What's better than just sitting in lecture?
Sitting in lecture thinking about what to eat for lunch!
Check out Menu Mania for some good inspiration.

CLASH WEEK

Longevity vs. lessons

'Animal House' uses hilarious characters, dirty jokes to appeal to generations of fans

OWEN KENNEDY

Over time, the idea of what is funny and what goes too far changes drastically. My grandpa loves the movie "Young Frankenstein," but I doubt he would even smirk while watching "Team America: World Police."

But some comedic movies are so timeless, generation after generation can watch them and laugh all the same. Two movies I love to watch with my parents are no different: "Animal House" and "Caddyshack."

While "Caddyshack" has memorable conflicts and quotes, "Animal House" has characters to whom anyone can relate: the douche-bag frat guys, the laid-back, suave ladies' men, power-hungry higher-ups, and quiet-but-well-intentioned freshmen.

The battle between rich daddies' boys and the Delta Tau Chi house is classic. Good versus evil at its finest. The plot is simple: Dean Wormer and the Omegas try to kick the Deltas off campus just for trying to have a good time with a frat party or two. And throughout this conflict there are timeless dirty jokes and college moments. What more could one ask for?

I can't count the number of times my parents and I could not stop laughing after watching the romance scene with Greg and Mandy in the car, where Mandy asks one of the greatest questions ever asked: "Greg, is it supposed to be this soft?"

A bit dirty, yes, but how many movies can you watch with your parents during which you are laughing as hard as your dad is? Poppa Kennedy is glued to the screen every time John Belushi sneaks gracefully across campus to break into the administration building, or when you hear that Larry "Pinto" Kroger is about to lose his virginity to the 13-year-old daughter of the mayor.

Many movies try to copy the "Animal House" concept of college life and frat guys, but they won't run on futuristic cable in 30 years.

Somehow, "Animal House" just keeps attracting new generations of viewers, while maintaining its loyal following, most of which is adults who saw the movie multiple times when it came out.

When I come back for the 100th anniversary of my fraternity's presence at K-State in 13 years, I look forward to seeing a pledge brother's name with the words "whereabouts unknown" next to it.

When I watch this classic, I know my little sister and mom and dad are falling over laughing when they hear Pinto needs to be set up with a girl with a "morally casual attitude."

"Animal House" wasn't supposed to be that great. A few low-key actors and John Landis' and Harold Ramis' genius make a movie that should have been awful a masterpiece.

In 22 years, Animal House will celebrate the 50th anniversary of its release, and I know there will be showings all over the country to watch and re-watch such a work of art. And outside the theaters will be lines, miles long, with four or five generations of fans.

I'll be there, and so will people twice my age, and we all will be wearing our togas. I'll see you there.

Owen Kennedy is a junior in management. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

'Caddyshack' offers guide to life's ups, downs; characters demonstrate integrity, courage

BRETT KING

Throughout history, the people of the United States have always taken distinct sides and created struggles between groups.

With eternal struggles – like North vs. South and Budweiser vs. Miller – there is still one issue that reigns supreme. That is the timeless debate between "Caddyshack" and "Animal House."

On the surface, the movies are difficult to compare, due to their basic concept – the snobs verses the slobs. Each film has casts of top-notch comedians who ad-libbed many of the movies' key scenes. Despite the similarities, "Caddyshack" comes out on top of this epic bout.

"Animal House," in all of its greatness, is only a guide to how one should act in college. "Caddyshack" provides a guide for life's ups and downs, "which is nice."

The characters of Danny Noonan, Ty Webb and Carl Spackler provide examples of how one should handle situations that develop throughout one's lifetime.

Danny faces many of the same predicaments most people face while growing up. We are always told we have to go to college, or we will end up "right in the lumber yard." Is this really the only path we have to take for our future?

Wisdom provided by Ty to Danny demonstrates the endless possibilities we have in this country. "This isn't Russia." We can do or be anything. The key is to keep your integrity strong, remain loyal to your friends and not be afraid to take a gamble.

Ty demonstrates to viewers what it means to stay true to one's self. He does not become locked in the rat race of life or an image others expect of him.

I have always been told that you can tell a lot about a person by the way he or she plays golf. If a person cheats at golf, most likely he or she lies and cheats others. Ty has enough confidence in himself that he doesn't find it necessary to keep score but rather compares himself to other golfers only by height.

Carl is the underestimated genius of the film. People think he is "an idiot or something, 'cause all (he) does is cut lawns for a living." However, Carl fights his campaign against the gopher by using the ideas of Sun Tzu in the "Art Of War."

In his battles against the elusive gopher. Carl realizes traditional means of fighting will not allow him to achieve his objective. "To kill, you must know your enemy, and in this case, my enemy is a varmint."

He falls back in retreat to use the gopher's allies against him – "the harmless squirrel and the friendly rabbit."

Yes, in the end Carl might have destroyed the golf course by using too much plastic explosive, but I bet the gopher will think twice before going up against Carl again.

This issue can finally be put to rest after years of debate. My hope is that "Animal House" fans will finally realize that "Caddyshack" always will remain superior through the film's underlying themes and lessons it provides.

Brett King is a junior in political science. Please e-mail comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Elvis Achepohl | COLLEGIAN

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Dedication to faith shown by Muslims during Ramadan should be commended

The fast of Ramadan ended last week with the festival of Eid ul-Fitr.

During this month-long fast, Muslims spend much time in prayer and worship. The regulations of Ramadan are strict. They can eat and drink only after the sun sets; sexual relations and smoking also are prohibited.

Further, Ramadan is a time for Muslims to work more diligently to adhere to the teachings of the Qur'an and to avoid greed, lust, gossip and the like.

This dedication to their faith should be commended.

Most Americans could not imagine this extent of loyalty to one's faith.

To fast from food, drink, smoking and sex for the majority of each day is incomprehensible to most, but Muslims observe Ramadan in pursuit of something greater than themselves.

They use this month of restriction to turn their focus from the worries of this world to the glory of their god and their religion. They look past the short-term hardships to see the long-term gains.

Others could learn a great deal from this maturity of thought and faith demonstrated by Muslims' adherence to often uncomfortable but ultimately beneficial standards.

Islam is a frequently misunderstood religion, especially in the United States, but examining the reasoning behind Ramadan could foster respect for Muslims and give people goals for improving their own lives and faith.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Scooter girl is evil. She's tried to run me over twice.

Hey y'all, we need more cowbell.

Basketball tickets for sale on eBay.

Coach Prince, please don't embarrass me this weekend.

Scooter girl even scoots at night.

FarmHouse equals fun-haters.

Chuck Armstrong is right about guns, and hopefully someone will shoot him soon.

I just ran into a fairy and got glitter all over me.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Haunted house aids Bread Basket

By Eric Davis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity house was transformed into a Halloween-themed mansion for a few hours Sunday night.

The event, dubbed "Trick or Treat with a Greek," was a philanthropy for Pike and Kappa Delta sorority.

During the two-hour event, costumed children of all ages were given the opportunity to walk through a haunted house, participate in a cakewalk and build a haunted gingerbread house.

Children who didn't want to walk through the haunted house listened to Halloween stories in the library.

Carly Wagner, junior in grain science, painted children's faces in the dining room.

On the other side of the building, children walked from room to room, accepting candy from members of both houses. While all of the rooms for trick or treating were decorated, most of the work went into the haunted house.

A multi-room walk showcased people jumping out from behind doors and under tables.

This is the second year for the event, and both canned goods or monetary donations were accepted.

However, the evening was free of charge. "Several business from around the area donated nearly all of the supplies for the night, but some things we were on our own for," said Nikki Linn, junior in hotel and restaurant management, as she handed out candy.

"Trick or Treat with a Greek" was organized by Linn and Anthony Modica, sophomore in open option. The duo has been working on the event since early September, Linn said.

"We are expecting about 100 children this year, which is double what we had last year," she said.

Linn said all proceeds will be donated to the Flint Hills Bread Basket.

"When it comes down to it, we just wanted a way to better the community and raise some money for a good cause, and this event did a good job at achieving both of those things," she said.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Kelsey Morgan, sophomore in business administration pre-professional, helps Stacy Kovar, Manhattan resident, and her daughter Rachael, 2, get a prize from a fishing pole at Trick or Treat with a Greek.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
As a part of Peter's Magical Adventure, Kyle Lawrence, senior in political science, battles children as they traverse the pirate section of the passage. The adventure was sponsored by Leadership Studies and Programs and the American Humanics Student Association. It was part of Sunset Zoological Park's SPOOKtacular this weekend.

Annual zoo event sees record attendance

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sunset Zoological Park was wilder than usual this weekend.

The zoo's annual SPOOKtacular event entertained more than 2,000 costumed children and their families on Saturday with trick-or-treating at booths and games that tested their animal knowledge.

The event also took place on Sunday.

Dianne Paukstelis, marketing director for Sunset Zoo, said SPOOKtacular takes place every year the weekend before Halloween. However, this year's Saturday attendance was a record.

In years past, the attendance has been lower on Saturday because of K-State football games. Paukstelis said she surveyed the visitors on Saturday and found there was a large number of military families new to the area.

Paukstelis, dressed as Batwoman, drove around in a golf-cart she renamed the Batmobile to help with the activities.

"Did You Know?" games, in which children answered questions about zoo animals, were set in front of the zoo entrance.

The different world regions of the zoo, each of which include animals from their respective parts of the world, had themes and games like Harry Potter and the Wicked Witch of the West.

In the African region, pirates talked to children and gave out prizes from a treasure chest.

Children also played a game show, The Haunted Price is Right, with host Dracula.

Cary Klataske, sophomore in theater, played the part of Dracula for the show. He volunteered after hearing about the event in his acting class. He said the show's actors had short rehearsals before the event.

"We had a basic script to play off of, but nothing is set in stone," Klataske said.

Children trick-or-treated at 30 candy booths sponsored by area businesses and non-profit organizations throughout the zoo, Paukstelis said.

One of the booths, by Crimpers Hair Studio, had a spooky tent filled with skeletons and tombstones.

Paukstelis said more than 300 volunteers helped with the activities.

Several K-State organizations were involved, including Leadership Studies and Programs, which set up a Neverland tour. On the tour, children were led through Peter Pan's Magical Adventure in the Sunset Zoo Pavilion.

Ali Johnson, senior in public relations, said the activity was a project for Make-A-Difference Week. She said monetary donations were accepted for school supplies for children in Africa.

Other volunteers included community members who helped hand out candy and Sunset Zoo docents, trained volunteers who regularly help at the zoo.

Tom HAWK

Experienced, Common Sense Leadership

RE-ELECT TOM HAWK
State Representative 67th District

I Support:
- K-State
- Ft. Riley
- Small Business

"I have worked hard in my first term to do what is best for Manhattan/Ogden and Riley County. I believe in working with all legislators and both parties to be a problem-solver. My first commitment throughout my professional life as a teacher, counselor, and superintendent has been education. As a member of the House Utilities and Environment Committees the past two years, I have also learned how important sound energy and water policy is to the future of our state. I pledge to be a strong and reasonable voice for all of us as your State Representative." Tom Hawk

www.tomhawk.com

Prepared for the Job

Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Katha Hurt, Treasurer

Car Clinic, INC.

Before you roll out for the holidays,
Roll by to make sure you get there.
We're right on your way out of town!

- Tune ups, electrical repairs
- Heater & A/C service
- Computer engine analysis
- Transmission services
- Mon.-Fri. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

AAA Approved Auto Repair
NAPA AutoCare Center
ASE CERTIFIED

214 Colorado 539-1040

Advertisement

ZOMBIES INVADE CAMPUS!

Forum Hall 7pm Tues, Oct 31, 2006

Max Brooks, author of The Zombie Survival Guide. Courtesy Photo

7:00 pm Forum Hall, Brooks will be speaking...

Man gives advice on how to survive a zombie invasion

Greater Talent Network–Max Brooks is considered by many to be one of the world's foremost Zombie preparedness experts. According to the Office of Homeland Security, Brooks is the preeminent authority on dispatching the relentless, flesh-eating armies of Zombies that seem to be everywhere.
The Zombie Survival Guide is your key to success against the hordes of the undead that may be stalking you right now.

Son of Mel Brooks and Anne Bancroft, Max Brooks is completely dedicated to the cause of raising awareness on the issue of Zombie survival. He has devoted much of his life to the study and development of anti-ghoul security. He is, at present, the leading Western student in the Afro-Caribbean martial art of Mkunga-Lalem, the world's oldest and most effective anti-ghoul fighting skill.

Max Brooks: 10 Lessons For Surviving A Zombie Attack

Zombie chasing student. Sketch by Jameson Sedlacek

Book signing after the performance

Immediately after his speech, author Max Brooks will be signing copies of his book. The Zombie Survival Guide and World War Z: An Oral History of the Zombie War will be available to purchase at the show.

Costume contest, winner gets iPod

After the zombie survivalist speech and book signing, but to precede the film, UPC will be hosting a costume contest (all entries welcome), that will be decided by applause (bring your friends for support!) Winner will recieve a brand new Ipod Nano!

"Dawn of the Dead" to be shown at 9pm

Described by many as one of the greatest zombie films in the last thirty years, "Dawn of the Dead," entertains, educates, and inspires by giving a present day scenario on how to survive the inevitable zombie holocaust with limited resources. Promised to humor, spoof, and scare the living daylights out of you, "Dawn of the Dead" is a great way to spend your Halloween night!

SPORTS

Breakthrough performer

Zach Diles — Linebacker

The senior linebacker led the Wildcats in tackles with 12, including 10 solo stops. The 12 tackles is a season-high for Diles. He also finished with two sacks. Diles now ranks second on the team in tackles and sacks with 68 tackles and three sacks.

Turning point

Second quarter: Brandon Archer recovers a fumble at the 15-yard line.

K-State took advantage of Iowa State's mistakes throughout the game; the most glaring one was on a muffed punt. Iowa State's Chris Singleton chased the ball down after he thought punt returner Ryan Baum touched the ball. Instead of picking it up, he kicked it 17 yards backwards to the 15-yard line where Archer fell on it, giving possesion to K-State.

By the numbers

31

After falling behind 10-0 in the first quarter, the Wildcats came back and scored 31 unanswered points on the way to a 31-10 victory. During the comeback, freshman quarterback Josh Freeman threw the first touchdown of his career. Freeman now has one touchdown to eight interceptions.

Game MVP

Senior linebacker Brandon Archer might not have led the team in tackles this game, but he made two timely fumble recoveries. The first one came in the second quarter on a muffed punt at the 15-yard line, which led to a two-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Josh Freeman to John McCardle. The second recovery came at the end of the first half. Defensive back Antwon Moore forced receiver Jon Davis into a fumble at the K-State 3-yard line, and Archer recovered it there, keeping the game tied at 10-10.

Good win features karmic plays

AUSTIN MEEK

In 2000 B.C., when cavemen invented football, they determined, through a series of grunts, that winning is the desired outcome of the game. They also played with rocks. Eventually, rocks were replaced by oblong, inflated balls, which made punters happy. However, last we checked, winning is still the object of the game.

Sometimes, though, you watch a game that makes you wonder.

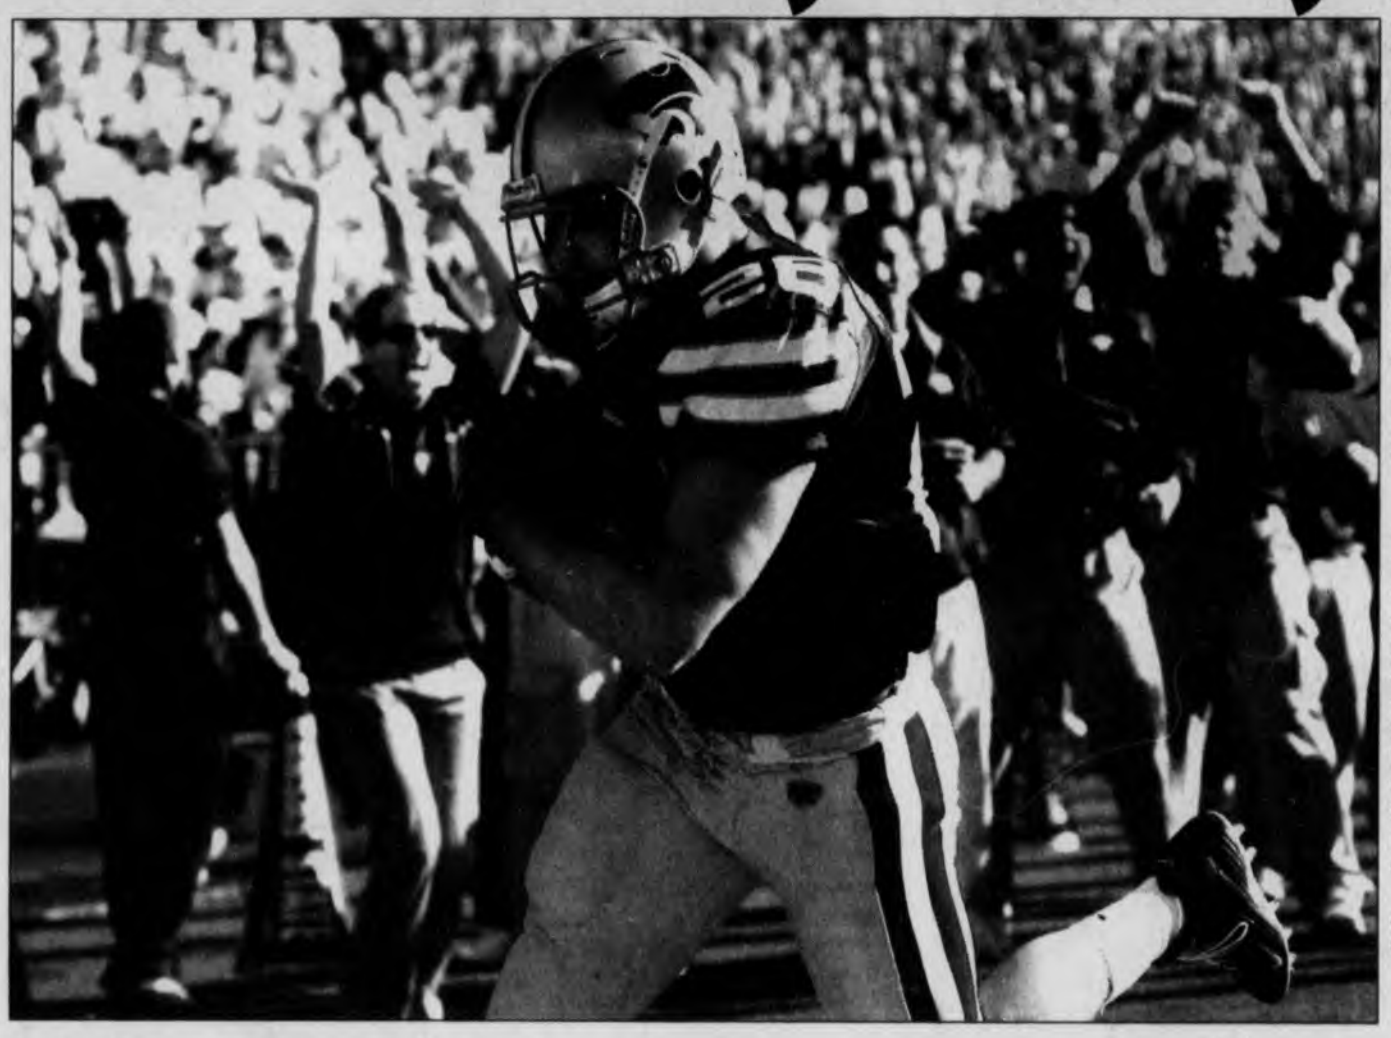
Eventually, K-State got it together and defeated hapless Iowa State 31-10. But for a while, it didn't look like either team was particularly concerned with winning.

This game did provide a bit of long-due karmic retribution. With K-State trailing 7-0 in the first quarter, Justin McKinney, who wears No. 22, barreled into Iowa State punt returner Ryan Baum while Tim Reyer's punt was still at a comfortable cruising altitude.

This was, of course, payback for a play that happened five years ago at the Coliseum, when Southern California's Troy Polamalu delivered a similar hit on K-State's Aaron Lockett, who then wore No. 22.

Polamalu, meanwhile, got his rightful punishment two weeks ago when Larry Johnson tackled him by the hair. Just goes to show that the football gods never forget a cheap shot.

And that wasn't even the worst special teams play of the half.



In the second quarter, Baum was back to field another punt. He appeared to collide with his own blocker, and the ball landed harmlessly on the turf. Iowa State's Chris Singleton, thinking Baum had touched the ball, chased the bouncing pigskin. However, Singleton ended up booting the ball towards his own end zone, and K-State's Brandon Archer recovered it.

"Baum got knocked down and was yelling 'Peter' to let them know to get away from it," Iowa State coach Dan McCarney said. "He was on the ground, and (Singleton) didn't hear it."

See KARMA Page 8

K-State 31, Iowa State 10

Runaway victory

Left: John McCardle scores a touchdown on a pass from quarterback Josh Freeman during K-State's 31-10 win over Iowa State on Saturday. The Wildcats improved to 2-3 in conference play and 5-4 overall.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Below: K-State's Brandon Archer tackles Iowa State's Jason Scales Saturday afternoon at Snyder Family Stadium. The Wildcats improved their record to 5-4 Saturday by beating the Cyclones 31-10.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Wildcats' 2nd conference win puts team 1 away from bowl eligibility

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Wildcats are now only one win away from bowl eligibility after finally showing the ability to finish off a drive in Saturday's 31-10 win over Iowa State.

The Wildcats (5-4, 2-3 Big 12) scored a touchdown and a field goal on two trips to the red zone, helping them beat the Cyclones (3-6, 0-5 Big 12) at Snyder Family Stadium. It was the first game of the year in which K-State scored every time it reached the opponent's 20-yard line.

"We're starting to get a better mentality of finishing, and it carries on at practice, and it carries onto the field," offensive lineman Greg Wafford said. "We're starting to be more aware, and we're growing – we've been growing since the first game. Today we had a good game, and we need to continue to build on that."

While the K-State offense had a breakthrough day, the Cyclones failed to capitalize on their opportunities. Iowa State scored only once on four trips inside the K-State 20-yard line.

K-State's red-zone touchdown came from a 2-yard play action pass from quarterback Josh Freeman to running back John McCardle.

"I was pretty wide open," McCardle said. "I was thinking, wow, if I drop this, it's going to look bad."

The touchdown, which tied the game in the second quarter, was set up after linebacker Brandon Archer recovered a muffed punt at the Iowa State 15-yard line. Cyclone punt returner Ryan Baum was unable to field the kick after one of his blockers was pushed into him. Iowa State defensive back Chris Singleton chased the ball and ended up kicking it to the 15-yard line, where Archer recovered it.

"I thought it hit his leg or something, so I tried to scoop it up, and I made a bad call," Singleton said.

Archer made another big play later in the second quarter, recovering a fumble on the K-State 3-yard line. The turnover came with the game tied at 10.

"With Brandon on the field, you can always have that kind of aspect," defensive end Ian Campbell said. "He's a smart player, and he's able to bring that to the game."

The second half belonged to the Wildcats, who outscored Iowa State 21-0 in the final two quarters. Leon Patton and James Johnson each had second-half touchdown runs of 30 yards or more.

"The competition is so close with those two players, and they're doing a good job with it," coach Ron Prince said.

Online

- The K-State football team has proved it can win with its back against the wall. Now it must do the same on the road.
- Check out recaps of weekend sporting events, including the volleyball team's straight-set loss at home to No. 1 Nebraska and the results for cross country.

www.kstatecollegian.com

Analysis

Johnson's start over Patton adds twist, not rift, to 3-man running back carousel

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

If there's one thing coach Ron Prince has proven in his first season at K-State, it's that he's not afraid to do something out of the ordinary.

After true freshman Leon Patton had seemingly emerged as the Wildcats' feature running back by rushing for more than 100 yards in two of his three starts, Prince decided to give junior James Johnson his first career start against Iowa State Saturday.

Johnson gained 127 yards the previous week in the 42-21 loss to Missouri, and Prince said that was only part of the reason Johnson got the nod over Patton.

"James Johnson continues to be very steady in practice and continues to improve," Prince said. "It wasn't only his performance last week in the game. You can see that he's just really hard to get your arms around. He's very slippery that way."

Johnson didn't disappoint, providing the Wildcats with a constant presence on the ground, rushing for 115 yards on 22 carries. The junior college transfer from Texas showed his potential for the big play when he broke a 32-yard touchdown run in the third quarter to gave K-State a 17-10 lead.

Patton replaced Johnson in the fourth quarter, and just when it seemed Patton was done for the game after only 4 yards on four carries, he came in to seal the victory with a 37-yard scamper to put the score at 24-10 with four minutes remaining.

"We've both got speed," Johnson said. "We both can take it to the house, and we're both unselfish. We just want to win all the time."

With the competition between the two, one might think it could cause a rift between teammates, but apparently that isn't the case.

"(Patton) is my little brother," Johnson said. "We're competitive with each other, but we help each other out. We're just friends – it isn't anything like that."

Patton is K-State's leading rusher this season with 374 yards, but he now might have to take a back seat to the Wildcats' newest star.

After the game, the question had to be asked: has Johnson emerged as K-State's feature back?

However, Prince refused to give insight into the running back situation.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
K-State's James Johnson breaks Iowa State tackles on his way to a big gain. Johnson ran for 115 yards and scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 32-yard run in the third quarter.

"I'm not really prepared to anoint anybody with that position," Prince said. "They've both had very good performances. In past seasons, I've been in this situation where we've played two running backs in this manner. The competition is so close between those two players."

Johnson continued the running back shuffle this season, becoming the fourth starter at the position following Carlos Alsup, Thomas Clayton and Patton.

However, his performance on Saturday is not necessarily an indication that he'll get the nod again next week.

"I'll just have to leave that up to the coaches," Johnson said.

Men in dresses

Photos by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Above: Cypress and Brown Sugar apply their makeup as they get dressed in drag for "Monica Moree's Circus presents: The Legend of Dragula," Friday night in Forum Hall in the K-State Student Union. The first-time event preceded the annual screening of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

Right: Hera Linn performs a lip-sync song as one of her three performances. About 160 people attended the show.

'Legend of Dragula' drag show draws 160 to see 5 performers dance to county, show tunes

By Kerry Fischer
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Makeup: $15. Wigs: $25. Black vinyl catsuit: $50. Looking better as a woman than a man: priceless.

The Union Program Council and the Queer Straight Alliance sponsored "Monica Moree's Circus presents: The Legend of Dragula," Friday night in Forum Hall to precede the annual showing of "The Rocky Horror Picture Show."

"I went to UPC and said, 'I want to do this,' and they said 'OK,'" Jason Dockins, QSA president, said.

Dockins said QSA paid for the drag show and the entertainers, and UPC took care of the advertising.

The total cost for the show was $500, which is less than what Monica Moree usually charges for a college show, Moree said.

"I usually charge about $2,000 for a very small show, like the one at K-State," she said.

The show began with Moree asking the 160 people in the audience if they were "ready for some hot cross-dressers?" After the cross-dressers, a quick Spanish lesson as a way to make the show educational – a request from QSA adviser Mary Kay Siefers.

Besides Moree, the performers included Fritz Capone, Hera Linn, Brown Sugar and Cypress. The five Wichita-based performers came to do the show at K-State after receiving an invitation from Moree.

Each performer danced and lip-synched to three songs – from country, to show tunes, to Marilyn Manson's rendition of "Sweet Dreams (Are Made of This)" by the Eurythmics.

Betweeen performances, Moree entertained the audience with humor and insults and even brought a first-time attendee on stage to make her more comfortable.

"I felt very privileged to share her stage," Kristal Huehl, sophomore in dance, said. "I have a new outlook on drag queens."

Saylor Burgess, senior in dance, was called out by Moree during the show. Moree picks on individual audience members as a way to set people at ease at her shows.

"I'm very honored that Monica Moree commented on my boobs," Burgess said. "I guess I'm easy to please."

Throughout the show, audience members approached the stage, brandishing dollar bills for the performers.

Together, the performers have 68 years experience doing drag.

"(Doing drag) was a camouflage for me to be out socially in the gay community. It's how I started doing it," Capone said.

Cypress and Linn started after dressing as women for Halloween, and Brown Sugar began doing drag after her boyfriend got fed up with her nit-picking and challenged Brown Sugar to do a better job if she thought she could.

"Drag has a long tradition," Brown Sugar said. "Since Shakespeare. The word drag means 'dressed as girl,' because it was illegal for women to ever appear on stage, so all the female parts were played by men. So it would say, for instance, in Hamlet, Ophelia, D.R.A.G – dressed as girl."

Moree said she thought the show was "incredibly successful."

"It was necessary to have an incredibly successful show because it gave QSA the opportunity to bring their presence out and let everyone know they're there," she said.

Moree said she expected 50 to 60 people at the show and was pleased to see more in attendance.

"The reason I enjoy campus shows is because I think college is a place to experience new things, and what better way to experience a drag show than in college?" she said.

The performers received a standing ovation at the end.

"It was the first time I've ever had it happen," Moree said.

She also said on Saturday morning, she had 22 new friend requests on Facebook.com and 10 friend requests on MySpace.com.

Moree said she arranged "just about everything" for the show, including travel, casting, finances and music.

"Coordination is a lot of fun for me," she said. "I'm someone who enjoys putting my all into something and then sitting back and watching it succeed."

All the performers agreed humor is an important part of any drag show.

"People should loosen up and enjoy the show, relax and have a good time," Cypress said. "It's not meant to be serious; these are men in dresses."

With the success of this show, Dockins said there will be another drag show next semester.

Salina resident Dustin Mathes attended the show with some friends and said a red-and-white-striped costume Moree wore "reminded me of a hot dog and the Fourth of July."

"She's hot. I would definitely take her home with me," he said.

For a multimedia presentation on Monica Moree, please visit the Collegian Web site: www.kstatecollegian.com.

THIS WEEK... A look at events that occurred during this week in history, other bizarre holidays, happenings

TODAY National Candy Corn Day

Candy corn has been around for more than 100 years under the creation of George Renninger, an employee of the Wunderlee Candy Company. When candy corn first appeared, it was popular among farmers because of its agrarian look, according to the National Confectioners Association. "The tri-color design was considered revolutionary, and the public went crazy for it," the association's Web site states. "Lack of machinery forced producers to make it from March to November. More than 35 million pounds of candy corn will be produced this year. That equates to nearly 9 billion pieces — enough to circle the moon nearly four times if laid end-to-end."

TUESDAY 1926: Magician Houdini dies of peritonitis

Harry Houdini, the most celebrated magician and escape artist of the 20th century, dies of peritonitis in a Detroit hospital. Just 12 days before, Houdini had been talking to a group of students after a lecture in Montreal when he commented on the strength of his stomach muscles and their ability to withstand hard blows. Suddenly, one of the students punched Houdini twice in the stomach, and it ruptured his appendix. He fell ill on the train to Detroit, and, after performing one last time, was hospitalized. Doctors operated on him, but to no avail. The burst appendix poisoned his system, and on Oct. 31 he died.

WEDNESDAY 1952: U.S. tests 1st hydrogen bomb

The United States detonates the world's first thermonuclear weapon, the hydrogen bomb, on Eniwetok atoll in the Pacific. The test gave the United States a short-lived advantage in the nuclear arms race with the Soviet Union. Following the successful Soviet detonation of an atomic device in September 1949, the United States accelerated its program to develop the next stage in atomic weaponry, a thermonuclear bomb. It was about 1,000 times more powerful than conventional nuclear devices.

THURSDAY National Deviled Egg Day

The concept of making deviled eggs originated in Rome, and today they are eaten around the world. Although most popular in France, deviled eggs make many appearances as an hors d'oeuvre at any potluck dinner across the country. The base ingredient for the eggs, which are hardboiled, then served cold, is mayonnaise. Other common ingredients used for the dish include vinegar, mustard, pickle relish, onion, poppyseed and green olives. For an easy deviled egg recipe, go to www.kstatecollegian.com.

FRIDAY 1956: CBS airs 'Oz' on TV

The "Wizard of Oz" is broadcast on television for the first time. Some 45 million people tuned in to CBS to see the movie, which was broadcast on Ford Star Jubilee. Judy Garland's 10-year-old daughter, Liza Minnelli, introduced the program. The original story, written by Frank L. Baum, was based on a Kansas girl, Dorothy, and her adventure down the Yellow Brick Road with her dog, a scarecrow, a tin man and a lion.

Source: History Channel; Photos: courtesy art

OPENING | Best Buy focuses on customer service

Continued from Page 1

friends," McCabe said.

General Manager John Callagy previously worked for Best Buy as the company's district service manager for the greater Kansas City area and has been with Best Buy for 11 years.

"We're very employee-driven. We use more of a bottom-up approach. Insight goes from stores, which goes to top management, all based on the opinions of employees and customers," Callagy said.

Noting how Best Buy adapts to the requests of its customers, Callagy said the store leadership communicates using earpieces instead of an overhead speaker system.

"Customers don't really like the overhead," he said. "We had gotten complaints about it scaring small children. With the earpieces, people are easier to get ahold of. It works more efficiently."

The store's opening comes as a relief to some Manhattan residents, who regularly travel to the company's nearest store in Topeka.

Marc Nash, senior in political science, said he often visits the Topeka Best Buy looking for video games and DVDs other Manhattan retailers don't carry.

"I'm glad the store here is finally open," Nash said. "It'll definitely save me some gas."

TAILGATE | Pre-game time creates excitement

Continued from Page 1

into it," Jeff Moore, K-State alumnus, said. "It does get everyone excited about the game, but more importantly, it gives the family some good quality time."

Moore said tailgating at Wildcat games became a weekly ritual when he purchased season tickets four years ago.

"When my daughter came to school here, we thought it would be a good, fun time to start tailgating, and we just never quit," Moore said.

The Moores arrive nearly three hours before kickoff to secure their location on the east side of the stadium and set up a 15-foot canopy tent. They use a wok to cook more than 8 pounds of meat and accents for breakfast burritos.

Moore's son Byron, senior in management, said he enjoys bringing friends to visit with his family.

"The tailgate is always a great time," Byron Moore said. "A lot of times, we don't want to leave, so we get terrible seats in the student section. We don't mind, though, because the tailgate is worth it."

Although the Moores did not win a prize in the competition, they said they still consider their tailgate a success.

"We had a great time; the food was good, and the Cats won," Jeff Moore said. "We'll definitely be back in two weeks for Texas."

ROBERTS | Research slated to begin in January

Continued from Page 1

is a state-of-the-art air system that filters the air exiting the building. The precautions taken in security underscore the delicate nature of the work that will be done; research will include studies of the avian flu and E. coli, a pathogen that has made recent headlines by contaminating the nation's spinach crop.

Not only will the air leaving the building be filtered, but also waste from the facility will be processed, and personnel will undergo specific training to minimize risk of exposure.

Work at the institute will span a variety of tasks, from the study of infectious disease to safer methods of food and meat processing.

The institute also will offer training on responding to disease outbreaks.

According to the press release, researchers will examine food products during the entire length of the processing procedure, or from the pasture to the plate. It is a process few other laboratories in the world can complete.

"Other than the national security purpose this center fulfills, this kind of investment is important because it will allow our state research institutions to compete nationally and internationally with the top research institutions in the world," Roberts said on his Web site. "It will allow us to bring the top researchers to Kansas."

Student Body President Lucas Maddy said choosing K-State as the site of the facility was a collaboration between the university and Roberts.

"(They) chose K-State because K-State exhibited the strongest interest in being a leader in this field," he said.

Research at the building is due to begin in January 2007.

AMBASSADORS | Pair to represent university

Conintued from Page 1

"Most of my family still lives in Manhattan," Ellis said. "I looked at several other schools, but K-State was far and away the best choice."

At K-State, Ellis has served as representative to the Interfraternity Council for his fraternity, Delta Upsilon. He works with Student Foundation, has qualified for honorary organizations like Chimes and Silver Key, and teaches University Experience.

"Teaching UE is great," Ellis said. "It gives me a wonderful opportunity to help freshmen adjust to the college life and give them opportunities to participate they might not have normally had."

Ellis said memories of watching All-University Homecoming parades as a child and seeing past ambassadors wave to the crowd are what inspired him to apply to be an ambassador.

"K-State is a good place right now, academically, athletically, and I just want to convey my love of K-State to prospective students and alumni," he said.

KARMA | Win over Iowa State not great, but keeps bowl hopes alive

Continued from Page 6

So, to recap, one Iowa State player is lying on the ground yelling "Peter!" while another kicks the ball toward his own end zone. The unintentional comedy is off the charts.

All joking aside, this was a good win for K-State. Not a great win, but a needed win.

The Wildcats played better in the second half. James Johnson showed last week's 127-yard performance was no fluke. Quietly, K-State is just one win away from a bowl game.

It was the kind of win that keeps a season alive, but it wasn't a signature win. The Wildcats will have a chance for one of those when Texas comes to town in two weeks.

Austin Meek is a senior in public relations. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Need something to do?
Try SuDoku
Located on the sudoku classified page

WHEN YOU'RE DONE READING ALL THE ARTICLES, DON'T FORGET TO WASTE MORE TIME IN LECTURE BY DOING THE
SUDOKU
LOCATED IN THE COLLEGIAN'S CLASSIFIEDS SECTION

Feelin' sleepy?
Wake up with a free coffee drink when you buy one.
This coupon is located in the blue section of your Campus Phone Book.
Not Valid without Phone Book Coupon.

GraduateandProfessionalSchoolFair
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 31
10 AM - 3 PM
K-STATE
STUDENT UNION BALLROOM

Career and Employment Services
Guiding You from College to Career
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
ces@k-state.edu • 785.532.6506
www.k-state.edu/ces

ADLER SCHOOL OF PROFESSIONAL PSYCHOLOGY....SCHOOL OF PROFESSIONAL PSYCHOLOGY
BAKER UNIVERSITY....SCHOOL OF NURSING
BASTYR UNIVERSITY....NATURALPATHIC MEDICINE, ACUPUNCTURE AND ORIENTAL MEDICINE AND NUTRITION
BETHEL UNIVERSITY....DEPARTMENT OF NURSING
CLEVELAND CHIROPRACTIC COLLEGE....DOCTOR OF CHIROPRACTIC PROGRAM
DES MOINES UNIVERSITY....COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE
FOREST INSTITUTE OF PROFESSIONAL PSYCHOLOGY....PROFESSIONAL PSYCHOLOGY
FORT HAYS STATE UNIVERSITY....DEPARTMENT OF NURSING
ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF OPTOMETRY....COLLEGE OF OPTOMETRY
KANSAS CITY UNIVERSITY OF MEDICINE AND BIOSCIENCE....COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....GRADUATE PROGRAM IN FOODSERVICE, HOSPITALITY MANAGEMENT & ADMINISTRATIVE DIETETICS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....COUNSELING AND EDUCATION PSYCHOLOGY
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....COLLEGE OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION GRADUATE PROGRAMS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....ARTS AND SCIENCES
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....FAMILY STUDIES AND HUMAN SERVICES
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....MASTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....APPAREL AND TEXTILES
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....REGIONAL AND COMMUNITY PLANNING
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....PHYSICS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....GRADUATE SCHOOL
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....GEOGRAPHY
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY....KINESIOLOGY
MIDWESTERN UNIVERSITY....OFFICE OF ADMISSIONS
NORTH KANSAS CITY HOSPIITAL....SCHOOL OF CLINICAL LABORATORY SCIENCE
OKLAHOMA CITY UNIVERSITY....SCHOOL OF LAW
PITTSBURG STATE UNIVERSITY....DEPARTMENT OF NURSING
ROCKHURST UNIVERSITY....SCHOOL OF GRADUATE STUDIES
ROSS UNIVERSITY....SCHOOL OF MEDICINE AND SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE
SAINT LUKES COLLEGE....SCHOOL OF NURSING-BSN PROGRAM
SAINT LUKE'S HOSPITAL....CLINICAL LABORATORY SCIENCE
ST. MATTHEWS UNIVERSITY....SCHOOL OF MEDICINE AND SCHOOL OF VETERINARY MEDICINE
UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT MERCY....SCHOOL OF DENISTRY
UNIVERSITY OF IOWA....COLLEGE OF LAW
UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS....SCHOOL OF BUSINESS
UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS....SCHOOL OF NURSING
UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS....SCHOOL OF MEDICINE
UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS....SCHOOL OF LAW
UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS OF ALLIED HEALTH....DEPARTMENT OF DIETETICS AND NUTRITION
UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS OF ALLIED HEALTH....DEPARTMENT OF OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS OF ALLIED HEALTH....DEPARTMENT OF RESPIRATORY CARE ED
UNIVERSITY OF KANSAS SCHOOL OF ALLIED HEALTH....DEPARTMENT OF CLINICAL LABORATORY SCIENCES
UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI....BIOCHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT
UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI....DIVISION OF BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES
UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI-COLUMBIA....DIVISION OF PLANT SCIENCES
UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI-ST.LOUIS....COLLEGE OF OPTOMETRY
UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA-LINCOLN....GRADUATE STUDIES
UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA....GRADUATE PROGRAMS BUSINESS COLLEGE
UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA....COLLEGE OF PHARMACY
UNIVERSITY OF TULSA....GRADUATE SCHOOL
UNIVERSITY OF TULSA....GRADUATE BUSINESS PROGRAM
UNIVERSITY OF TULSA....COLLEGE OF LAW
WASHBURN UNIVERSITY....SCHOOL OF LAW
WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE....HEALTH ADMINISTRATION PROGRAM
WICHITA STATE UNIVERSITY....GRADUATE SCHOOL
WICHITA STATE UNIVERSITY....COLLEGE OF HEALTH PROFESSIONALS

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

SMALL BLACK cat found by Hale Library late Monday night. No tag, white and green collar. Call 973-945-2747 or psl@ksu.edu.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

117 Rent-Duplexes

AVAILABLE NOW. 1019 Houston. Three-bedroom, one bath. Kitchen appliances, screened back porch. Close to city park, Aggieville, and downtown. $895. (417)849-2428.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Near Westloop. $300 per month plus one-half of utilities. Call 316-200-8735.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

Need a Subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

150 Sublease

APARTMENT AVAILABLE for sublease as soon as possible. Two-bedroom, full kitchen. Call 502-472-9033 or e-mail focused_ksn@yahoo.com.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

JANUARY SUBLEASER wanted for one bedroom apartment. Close to campus. $450 a month all utilities paid except electricity. 785-331-8842.

ONE OR two subleases nedded Spring 2007. Four-bedroom house, three blocks west of campus $290 plus utilities. 785-341-4869.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed new two-bedroom apartment. Washer/ Dryer. Close to campus and Aggieville. Needed in January. $400 per month per person. Call 816-668-9223 or 913-709-8615.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the resturant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

EARN EXTRA cash for next semester!!! We are looking for people to manage firework locations in Louisiana December 20 - January 2. Travel expenses and lodging provided. Call for details 1-800-546-2825.

FULL OR Part-time, flexible schedule, must be here for the holidays. Apply at Mrs. Powell's Bakery, Manhattan Town Center.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

MILL CREEK Valley USD #329 is looking for a Freshmen Girls' Basketball Coach for Wabaunsee High School in Alma. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315. MCV is an equal opportunity employer.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com.

PART-TIME clerical work. Some experience in Quickbooks and Excel preferred, but not required. Good communication and organization skills. Flexible work schedule. Hours: Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm. 785-587-0400.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RAMADA PLAZA, soon to be Holiday Inn at the Campus is now hiring: Night Bellman, Banquet Staff, Morning Restaurant Server and Morning Cook for weekends, Night Auditor, Maintenance and Sales Coordinator. Apply in person at 1641 Anderson Ave. 785-539-7531.

310 Help Wanted

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SIMPLY WIRELESS, your T-Mobile Exclusive Dealer is coming soon and has immediate openings for bright, energetic persons to join our sales team in Manhattan. We have openings for part-time retail sales representatives. Simply Wireless is a special place to work---a full dynamic environment where every person makes a difference. We are open for new and creative ideas to improve our company's market position. Our growth has been phenomenal and we're adding to our ranks. Your potential is only limited by your imagination as we grow; we've made a commitment to not lose sight of the reason for our success, our customers and the people who work here. Send resume to ecarlson@swphones.biz.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

STUDENT PROGRAMMER position available. Must be available at least 12 hours per week (up to 20). Starting pay is $10.00 to $12.00 per hour based on experience. Programming experience in Visual Basic or Visual Basic.Net required. Must possess good communication skills. Apply in person at 315-A Houston Street, Manhattan, KS. Contact jobs@stasyx.com with questions.

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

STUDENT SECRETARY/ RECEPTIONIST WANTED. The Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement is seeking a student with excellent command of Microsoft Word and Excel as well as exceptional skills in telephone answering etiquette, grammar, filing, use of dictaphone, scheduling appointments and a variety of other office duties. Must be a quick learner, self-motivated and very detailed oriented. Must be willing to work school breaks and summer. Preference given to a person with past office experience. The position will be available immediately continuing through fall, some of Christmas break, spring and summer. Workweek fall and spring semesters is a minimum of 25 hours and a maximum of 30 hours. Summer will require 30- 40 hours weekly. For an application, contact Dorothy Smith in the Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, 122 Anderson Hall. Starting salary commensurate with experience. Deadline for submission of application is Thursday, November 2, 4:-00 p.m. to: Dorothy Smith Office of the Vice President, 122 Anderson Hall 785-532-5942.

TO ALL COMPUTER PROGRAMMING STUDENTS GRADUATING in December. Full-time software developer position is available in Manhattan, KS. Must possess good communication skills. Apply via the e-recruiting system or email your resume directly to jobs@stasyx.com.

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
ADVERTISING DESIGN

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

1. ANTHOLOGY of Chinese Poetry (translated to English.) http://li_chungwang0.tripod.com 2. The Philosophy of Mechanics. http://lcwangmech.tripod.com.

T-MOBILE SIDEKICK. Camera/ Internet/ email. Drop sim card in and ready to go. $175 or best offer. 785-317-8263 or 785-537-9212.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

BE PROUD in purple in Boulder, Colorado November 4. Game tickets for sale, $50 each. Call Kathy at GTM Sportswear 785-537-8822 extension 1120.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

SPRING BREAK 2007 Celebration! 20th Anniversary with Sun Splash Tours. Free trip on every 12 before November 1. Free meals and parties, hottest deals ever. Group discounts on 6+. Hottest Spring Break destinations. 1-800-426-7710. www.sunsplashtour.com

Reach more readers

www.kstatecollegian.com

Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for an additional dollar.

Place your classified ad online. Get more bang for your buck.

ASInc.
Advance Services, Inc.
"Putting You First"
Let our friendly staff help with your job search!
25 Immediate openings for CSR positions
25 openings for Production
25 openings for Warehouse
Also openings for:
Assembly, General Laborers, Stock-handlers, Clerical, Concrete Labor
No Fees
Great Pay
Health/Life Insurance
All shifts available
Visit with Rosie or Darcy today at 408 Houston, Manhattan, KS
(785) 539-1770
8:00 am - 5:00 pm
M-F
SE HABLA ESPANOL

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

			8		1	6	2
1	4				3		9
5		2			6	7
2	3	4		7				1
			3		5
9				8		4	3	6
		9	5			1		7
	5		2				4	8
	6	7	9		8

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

NEED A ROOMMATE?
WANT FOOTBALL TICKETS?
TRYING TO SELL YOUR CAR?
TRY THE
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN.
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

Matt Combes, sophomore in music education, and James Coggins, senior in mass communications, compete in a costume competition before "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" Friday evening in the K-State Student Union Ballroom.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

1st-timers auctioned off at 'Rocky'

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Men were dressed as women; women were dressed in lingerie, and some wore even less at "The Rocky Horror Picture Show" Friday evening in the K-State Student Union Ballroom.

Some said they felt out of place in their attire, including Jen Kinkade, freshman in animal science and industry. It was her first time at the show, but she went with friends who had been before and told her to dress for the occasion.

After deliberating on what and how much to wear, Kincade decided to wear shorts, fishnets and a tank top.

"We wore fishnets," Kinkade said, "and we were overdressed."

Kinkade said the show was amusing yet shocking.

"I just thought that it was funny, some of the people who wore hardcore, all-out costumes," she said.

Sean Blake, junior in political science, said at a previous showing he attended, people drew a card and performed the action written on it.

At Friday's show, virgins to the production were lined up onstage and auctioned off for items the audience held up.

KQLA-FM 103.5 morning host Mary Renee Smith walked by each virgin, saying "How many STDs do you have?" or "I bet you can open that in your mouth," referring to a condom.

Although many virgins volunteered, some stayed in their seats to avoid embarrassment.

"It didn't shock me, because I've already been there," Blake said. "I mean, the friend that I went with had never gone before. I didn't expect to see so many guys as drags."

Each person who attended was given a bag of props that included a newspaper, crackers, rice and playing cards. When the opening festivities were over and the movie began, people reached for their bags of props.

At certain parts of the movie, the audience imitated the actors using these props. The rice, crackers and playing cards were thrown, and the newspaper was held as a shield from the rain.

"It would have been nice to have seen the movie, so that I had some idea what was going on," Kinkade said. "Actually, what I was thinking when I was sitting there was 'my parents said it was a funny movie.'"

She said it was hard to imagine her parents dressing up for the movie.

"It was odd thinking that my parents saw this," she said. "They said that when you go to 'The Rocky Horror Picture Show,' you have to dress up. They didn't say how to dress up."

Breaking the fast

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Wajiha Batool works on a design on the hand of Ellen Reynolds, administrative specialist for international programs. The henna tattoos were a part of Eid ul-Fitr, "End of Ramadan," celebration at the K-State Alumni Center Ballroom Friday evening. The event was sponsored and organized by the Office of International Programs. Ramadan is the ninth month of the Islamic calendar, a time when Muslims fast and concentrate on their faith, worship and contemplation. Since Sept. 24, they haven't been allowed to eat or drink during daylight hours, and smoking and sex also were forbidden during the fasting.

ROYAL PURPLE
yearbook
We've got the stories • you've got to read.

e-CHUG
An Online Alcohol Use Self-Screening Instrument
• Free access to take the e-CHUG (electronic Check-Up to Go)
• 6-7 minutes to complete
• Self Guided and completely anonymous
• Provides immediate individual feedback
go to: www.ksu.edu/counseling

Tom HAWK
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Kasha Hart Treasurer

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Customer Appreciation Week
Oct. 30 - Nov. 4
• 10% OFF Ink and Toner Refills All Week
• First 10 customers receive 1/2 OFF their order!
Refill your • Dell • HP • Lexmark
• Canon • Epson • Brother & Many More!
High Quality at 1/2 the Cost!
Stock up for the Holidays! Printing family photos and Holiday Cards
Cartridge World®
Save Big, Print Happy
100 E. Bluemont Suite H

Sudoku Scrimmage Answer Key

QB=Quarterback HB=Halfback G=Guard
FB=Fullback OT=Offensive Tackle C=Center
TE=Tight End WR=Wide Receiver P=Punter

WR	TE	G	C	P	FB	QB	OT	HB
QB	FB	HB	WR	TE	OT	P	C	G
P	C	OT	QB	G	HB	FB	WR	TE
FB	G	QB	TE	WR	P	C	HB	OT
TE	HB	WR	OT	QB	C	G	FB	P
C	OT	P	FB	HB	G	WR	TE	QB
G	QB	FB	HB	OT	WR	TE	P	C
HB	WR	TE	P	C	QB	OT	G	FB
OT	P	C	G	FB	TE	HB	QB	WR

Think someone is BOO-tiful?
Then put in a personal ad!
Come to Kedzie 103. Limit your message to 20 words.
Only first names will be printed in the ads.
Ads will run in the Collegian Oct. 31.
Deadline to purchase your ad is noon, Monday, Oct. 30.
ONLY $5!
Your name: _____
ID: _____
Phone number: _____
E-mail address: _____
Address: _____
Your message here: _____

Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

Game and Answer key also available online at http://royalpurple.ksu.edu
Your book. Your story. | royalpurple yearbook&dvd

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com

Tuesday, October 31, 2006

Vol. 111, No. 52

INSIDE

Every year, the candy industry creates more disgusting candy for children.

The Edge, Page 8

Professor: Stereotypical responses help relationships

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A K-State professor conducted a study that showed stereotypical responses to scary movies are OK.

In fact, they could help a relationship.

Richard Harris, professor of psychology, studied about 230 college students and their expected behaviors when watching scary movies. He said stereotypes ring true when people watch horror movies with a date.

"I was doing research on people's memory when it came to scary movies from childhood, and the study of gender roles was a branch off of the original study," Harris said. "Both men and women were not impressed when the other gender didn't live up to their social roles."

Stereotypically, the man is supposed to show no fear, while the woman is allowed to express emotion. Harris said responding differently actually might endanger the relationship.

"Guys didn't like it when their date was unafraid, and girls didn't like it when their dates were scared," he said.

According to the Washington Times, researchers found horror movies help showcase masculinity and femininity.

"Although the expected gender roles may seem old-fashioned, they are actually supported by research," Harris said.

Some K-State students said Harris' research is true.

"I want a guy with me when I watch a scary movie," Janie Anthony, senior in music education, said. "I don't handle the situation very well and tend to cut off the circulation in a guy's arm when I get scared."

Michael Bell, junior in architectural engineering, said he likes to make movies a little scarier for his dates.

"I like to watch a scary movie that I have already watched and then watch it with my date so I can make the movie a little more intense," he said.

However, not every situation is typical when men and women watch scary movies. Sometimes the roles are reversed.

"I don't feel like I need a guy to be there when I watch a scary movie," Amanda Thompson, junior in accounting, said. "I remember watching 'Texas Chain Saw Massacre' with two guys who had their hands over their eyes most of the movie."

Kyle Jeschke, junior in agriculture business, said he doesn't like scary movies, so he doesn't watch them.

For a better relationship, Harris said, people should stick to stereotypical responses.

"We thought that students with nontraditional gender-role attitudes would report differently, but they didn't," Harris said. "The more traditional the gender roles, the better the relationship."

Best place to _____ for Halloween

Compiled by Megan Moser

Get a costume

What: Halloween Bootique
Where: Manhattan Town Center
When: 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day

Halloween Bootique, a seasonal store that opens in Manhattan Town Center each fall, still has plenty of costumes and accessories, now at discounted prices.

Trick-or-treaters of all ages can find costumes, ranging from $4.99 for a super hero to $71.99 for an elaborate later dragon mask.

Women can find a variety of risqué costumes, from perennial favorites like a devil to unusual costumes, like a martini outfit that looks like an evening dress.

"We've sold a lot of short little Dorothy, Miss Muffet and Little Red Riding Hood costumes," store employee Brigette Burandt said.

Meanwhile, men can dress up as funny things like a one-night stand, which looks like a bedside table with a lamp, or a skeleton or vampire.

"We've been having a lot of people ask for Ninja Turtles costumes, but we only have them in kids' sizes," Burandt said. "Some people bought them anyway, but I don't know how that's going to work out."

The Halloween Bootique also sells costumes for children. A fleece cow costume for $29.24 will keep toddlers warm as they trick-or-treat, or they can dress as favorite characters like Shrek.

The store probably already has exceeded the $80,000 in sales it took in last year, Burandt said.

She said pirate costumes are among the most popular, especially after the release of the second "Pirates of the Caribbean" movie.

Matt Larman, resident of Dodge City, Kan., laughs at DaNesha McNeely, sophomore in animal science and industry, as she tries as a mask at the Halloween Bootique in Manhattan Town Center.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

After participating in the pumpkin walk, Madison Hawley, 18 months, dressed as Nemo, picks a pumpkin to take home.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Get scared

When: 7-10 tonight
Where: Basement of Building 211, Main Post, Fort Riley
Cost: $4; children 6 and under are free

While some of the best haunted attractions are further away, students can find a scary experience at a haunted house at Fort Riley.

The second-annual haunted house will feature 18 actors in a variety of scary scenes that include rats, ghosts and torturers.

Children who brave the haunted house will receive a trick-or-treat bag stuffed with candy and an activity book.

Dress up

What: Costume contest
When: Tonight
Where: Rusty's Last Chance Restaurant & Saloon

The best place to show off an your costume and possibly make back some money is at Last Chance.

Beginning at 9 p.m., people can enter a costume contest. A panel of judges will pick a winner to receive a cash prize of $1,000.

Then take advantage of Halloween drink specials.

Also, there is a free performance by KSU Jazz Combos at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Union Station.

Take kids

What: Spooky Storytime
Where: Manhattan Public Library
When: 2 p.m. today
Cost: Free

Kids can join in Halloween festivities and take in some literature at Manhattan Public Library's Spooky Storytime.

Children can come in costume and listen to Halloween-themed stories, then trick-or-treat around the library.

"We're hoping for a large turnout," children's library assistant Elizabeth Phillips said. "The stories aren't scary; they're appropriate for little-little ones, too. It should be fun."

Parents also can take kids to Manhattan Town Center from 5:30-7:30 p.m. to trick-or-treat around the mall.

Enjoy fall

Today is supposed to be sunny and 50 degrees, according to Weather.com, making it the perfect cool, fall day to be outside.

Walk around campus and take in the changing colors of the foliage, or go buy a pumpkin at The Westside Market and carve a jack-o-lantern in the great outdoors. Pumpkins cost as little as a few dollars, and carving kits cost $3-$10 at many local stores.

Josh Perez, junior in architecture, and his wife, Megan, 2000 K-State graduate, ride back on the hay rack after going through the corn maze and picking a pumpkin at Britts Garden Acres last week.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

'PARKing' protest advocates university's need for mass transit

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Adrienne Stolwyk, fourth-year student in architecture and member of Students for Environmental Action, occupies a parking stall in the K-State Student Union parking lot Monday morning as part of the organization's protest event.

By Kristina Monroe
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Members of Students for Environmental Action said the prevention of driving is the best solution to the parking congestion at K-State at a protest Monday.

More than 20 members of SEA presented PARKing (People Advocating Renewable transit at K-State) day Monday in the K-State Student Union parking lot. The protesters used club funds to pay the meters of the parking stalls they occupied.

The goal was to inform students of the need for renewable and mass transportation options.

"Building parking garages is addressing the parking congestion problem too late," said Becky Clark, SEA president and senior in biology.

"We want to see increased discussion on campus about parking. When SGA (Student Governing Association) pushed for the parking garage, most people were for it, but I think most of those people want a parking garage because they have been told by SGA to want one," Clark said. "There are four pages in the university's master plan, and parking is mentioned 47 times, and mass transit is only mentioned once."

SEA conducted a survey of residents of the Chase Manhattan and Founders Hill Apartment complexes and learned that, of those surveyed, 70 percent would use mass transit if it was available. The survey also found students in those areas spend an average of $20 a week in gas, or $1,040 a year.

The bio-diesel mass transit buses that have been proposed by SEA would cost a student taking 18 credit hours for three semesters, or 54 credit hours, $81 a year.

SEA also proposed other solutions. Members want K-State to follow examples set by other universities, like the University of North Carolina, and limit parking permits to students who live outside a preset boundary. UNC sets this limit 2 miles from the bell tower at the center of campus. Ideally, SEA would like K-State's boundary to be set 1 mile from Anderson Hall.

Hailey Petersen, freshman in biology, proposed a different solution.

"Underclassmen, particularly freshmen, shouldn't have cars," she said.

SEA liked Petersen's proposal.

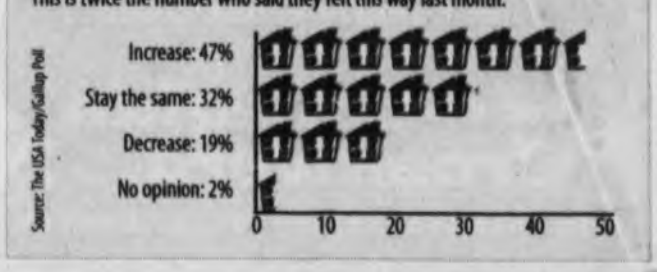
"My father graduated from K-State in 1981, and he said he wasn't allowed to have a car as a freshman," said Jamie Gentry, freshmen in animal science and pre-veterinary studies.

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 49 Low: 27

INSIDE

Women's rugby
For several years the K-State Women's Rugby Club has been proving rugby isn't just a man's sport anymore.

Sports, Page 6



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

When zombies attack
Max Brooks, son of actor Mel Brooks, will present 10 lessons for surviving a zombie attack at 7 tonight in Forum Hall. Brooks will sign copies of his book after the performance. There also will be a costume contest at which the winner will receive an iPod. A showing of "Dawn of the Dead" will follow the presentation.

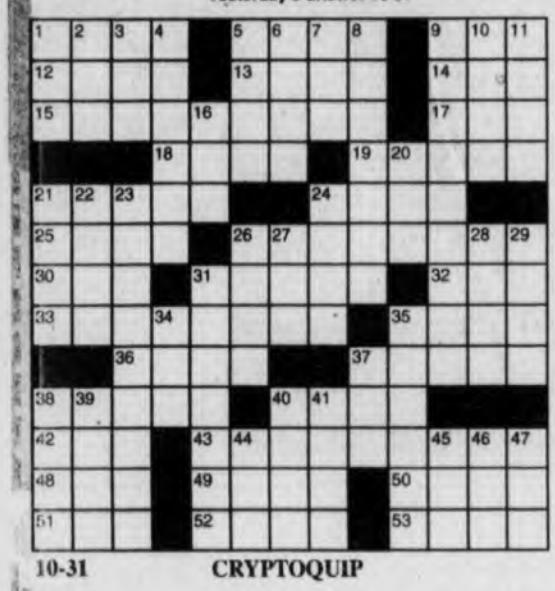
Industry award
Deborah Meyer-Brosdahl, associate professor of apparel, textiles and interior design, was a 2006 Apparel magazine All-Star Award winner for her contributions through teaching, research and service activities in the field of textile and apparel.

Monument design
Joshua Perez, junior in architecture, received top honors in the Bayer Stone Competition for designing a monument. He will develop his sign, which could be constructed by Bayer Stone. Aaron Dyck, sophomore in architecture, and Nicholas Whitney, sophomore in architecture, received second and third place, respectively.

House price expectations
About one in five consumers tell Gallup in the new PCI survey they believe average home prices in their communities will decline over the next 12 months. This is twice the number who said they felt this way last month.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Plumbing problem
5 Energizes, with "up"
9 Mischief
12 Destroy
13 Wield a blue pencil
14 "The — Daba Honeymoon"
15 Certain Londoner
17 "Bang!"
18 Avant-garde
19 Urge
21 Sew loosely
24 Fine
25 Choir member
26 Purple shade
30 Mainlander's memento
31 Rarin' to go
32 Gorilla
33 D.A.'s opponent
35 Kept tabs on
36 Cod pieces
37 Basilica sections
38 "Ya got me"
40 Scandinavian city
42 "A Chorus Line" song
43 Mixologist
48 "Monty Python" opener
49 Grown-up nits
50 Meditator's exercise
51 Ph. bk. data
52 Cheese choice
53 Cat call?

DOWN
1 Soon to arrive
2 Genetics abbr.
3 Driver's lic. et al.
4 Spud
5 Confined, with "up"
6 Whirlpool
7 Chart format
8 Picket-line participant
9 "Mauce" : "All in the Famil," .. "Mork and Mindy" : —
10 Reed instrument
11 Cry loudly
16 Before
20 Fellow
21 Hardly hirsute
22 Sheltered
23 Rigidity
24 Finished
26 Young chaps
27 Census statistic
28 Fencing tool
29 Ohio nine
31 Elevate
34 "Ich bin — Berliner"
35 Whom something is named for 37 Microbrewery product
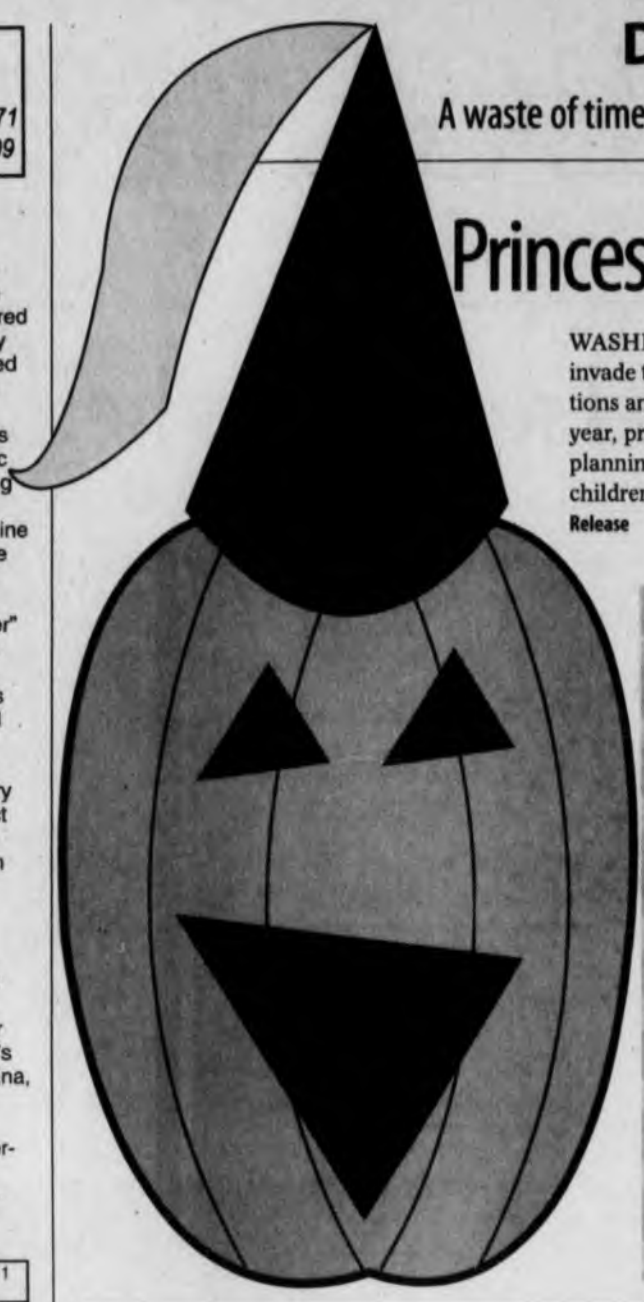
38 Slay
39 Golden rule word
40 Killer whale
41 Goblet part
44 Succor
45 Bambi's Aunt Ena, e.g.
46 Id counterpart
47 Uncultured

Solution time: 21 mins.

I	R	M	A		L	A	P		S	L	O	B
R	E	A	L	T	I	M	E		A	I	D	E
A	P	P	L	E	P	I	E		R	E	I	N
			B	A	S		R	O	T	U	N	D
O	C	C	U	R		L	A	I	R
P	L	O	T		F	I	G	L	E	A	F
S	U	M		T	I	L	E	S		G	A	P
	B	A	N	A	N	A	S		M	O	V	E
			O	P	E	C		A	U	G	E	R
S	T	A	G	E	S		B	U	S
K	I	N	G		P	E	A	R	T	R	E	E
Y	E	T	I		U	R	B	A	N	I	T	E
E	R	I	N		N	A	Y		T	B	A	R

Yesterday's answer 10-31



10-31 CRYPTOQUIP

J M D C N P W R E G Y K P R D T M D T L K H P N P W Z K J G K K Q E C L , G ' X K E N H M E H T P W Y X Q D R P C D N H P Q D Z C .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF YOUR FARMED LAND PRODUCES NO CROP AT ALL, I RECKON SOMEBODY MADE AN ARABLE MISTAKE.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: K equals S

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

Princess, Witch reign as top costumes

WASHINGTON, D.C., – From princesses to pirates, both the naughty and the nice will invade the streets today. The National Retail Federation's 2006 Halloween Consumer Intentions and Actions Survey, conducted by BIGresearch, found that for the second consecutive year, princess remains the most popular Halloween costume for children, with 3.97 million planning to dress up as such today. Other popular costumes will include pirates (1.72 million children), witches (1.65 million) and Spiderman (1.51 million). — National Retail Federation News Release

2006 Top Kids' Costumes
1 Princess	11.5%
2. Pirate	5.0%
3. Witch	4.8%
4. Spider-Man	4.4%
5. Superman	3.7%
6. Disney Princess (Ariel, Belle, Cinderella, Sleeping Beauty, Jasmine, Snow White)	3.1%
7. Power Ranger	2.9%
8. Pumpkin	2.2%
9. Cat	2.0%
10. Vampire	1.5%
11. Angel	1.4%
12. Fairy	1.4%
13. Ninja	1.4%
14. SpongeBob SquarePants	1.4%
15. Batman	1.3%

2006 Top Adults' Costumes
1. Witch	17.5%
2. Pirate	3.7%
3. Vampire	3.7%
4. Cat	2.6%
5. Clown	1.8%
6. Fairy	1.6%
7. Gypsy	1.6%
8. Superhero	1.6%
9. Ghost/Ghoul	1.4%
10. Dracula	1.3%
11. Devil	1.2%
12. Woman of the Night	1.1%
13. Nurse	1.1%
14. Pumpkin	1.1%
15. Athlete	1.0%

Source: The NRF 2006 Halloween Consumer Intentions and Actions Survey

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Graduate/Professional School Fair is 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The KSU Ballroom Dance Club is having a Costume Dance from 8-10 tonight at Crossroads ECM. Everyone is welcome to attend.

■ Lafene Health Center's 16th annual Health Fair is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Union Courtyard. There will be free popcorn, drinks and prizes.

■ Ross University School of Veterinary Medicine will offer an information seminar for students considering pursing a doctorate in veterinary medicine at 6 p.m. Wednesday in Union 209. Online registration is required. To register, visit www.RossU.edu/vet and select information seminars.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kyle Larson at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in Fiedler 2116.

■ Walk-in Flu Vaccine Clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Seong-Hyun Park at 10 a.m. Thursday in Throckmorton 2024.

■ John Segovia, engineer at General Electric and 2003 K-State graduate, will present a lecture at 4 p.m. Thursday in Rathbone 1066. The lecture is sponsored by the Multicultural Engineering Program.

■ Nobel laureate James Heckman will speak about the importance of early childhood education at a K-State Distinguished Lecture at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Forum Hall. The lecture is free and open to the public.

■ Coffee Hour will be presented at the International Student Center 4-5 p.m. Friday. The title is "Saudi Arabia: 100 Years of Successful Development."

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Rustin Clark at 1 p.m. Monday in Bluemont 106.

Corrections and clarifications

There was an error in Monday's Collegian. Bruce Snead is the mayor of Manhattan. The Collegian regrets the error. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

SUN CONNECTION
1125 Laramie
785.776.7486
1/2 Price Single Sessions
Happy Halloween!
(Unlimited Purchases)
Megas · Supers · Ultrabronze

LONGHORNS SALOON
$2.50 DOMESTIC PITCHERS
$2.00 DOMESTIC & BOTTLES
$2.00 DRINKS
SUNDAY, NOV 5
JASON BOLAND AND THE STRAGGLERS
Tickets $15 • On Sale Now

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword. . .
Now that's something you can bank on.

Tom HAWK
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Kathe Hurt Treasurer

Collegian Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

COLD STONE CREAMERY
"College Night"
Buy 1 Get 1 for 25¢!
any size creation
Every Tuesday
from 7-10p.m.
Subject to change at any time
(WITH KSU STUDENT ID)

A Common Sense Approach
Sydney Says:
"The Kansas economy is tied to good schools. We must make every effort to maintain the highest quality in public education."
The state must live up to its commitment to fund education:
• Pre-School thru K-16
• Early childhood and mentoring programs
• Manhattan Area Technical College
• Kansas State University
• Lessen the reliance on local option budgets (property tax)

SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
Endorsed by: EPAC (Educating All Children), KNEA, the political arm of KASB and USA - Kansas, Biz PAC, the Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce PAC (Citizens For Higher Education).
www.sydneycarlin.com
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District, John E. Carlin, Treasurer.

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan
537-7151
6th Annual Pimps & Hoes Party tonight
100 FREE t-shirts @ 8
$1.50 Blvd. Pints $1.50 Miller Lite Pints
$2.00 Miller Lite Bottles 1/2 Price Martinis
20¢ Pizza Rolls & Chicken Nuggets
Kitchen Open @ 4
NOW TAKING APPLICATIONS

WANT TO SHOP AROUND TOWN?
FOR LESS?
Manhattan Arts Center
Buy 1 ticket get 50% off another ticket of equal or lesser value. Fundraisers excluded.
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
Rent one DVD or game, get a 2nd rental at HALF PRICE!
Digital Shelf
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
Alan Clark BODY SHOP INC SINCE 1967
$25 off body or paint work
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
BEAR Computer Systems
5% off with student ID
New Computer System
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
CHECK OUT THESE GREAT DEALS, LOCATED IN THE COUPON SECTION IN THE BACK OF YOUR CAMPUS PHONE BOOK!

ReBecca Smith, junior in applied music, sings "Yesterday" by Mary Mary during the K-State Idol auditions Monday night in the Big 12 Room of the K-State Student Union.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

30 audition for K-State Idol

By Josh Rouse
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Before the lights brighten the stage for the K-State Idol competition on Nov. 8, potential performers must audition.

About 30 performers met Monday night in the K-State Student Union to audition for their chance to be in the spotlight. The genres of music performed were diverse, ranging from barbershop quintets and Broadway show tunes to country to Asian dance styles.

ReBecca Smith, junior in music performance and theater, performed "Yesterday" by Mary Mary for the judges.

"This is the first time I've ever done this," Smith said. "I think this is a good thing, because I think it's kind of hard for a lot of people to get out in front of people."

One of the three judges was Courtney Hauser, junior in mass communications. She compared her judging skills to those of American Idol's Paula Abdul, because she said she didn't judge too hard.

"I think it's a really great way to showcase abilities, because we had a really good response," Hauser said.

Graduate students aiming for tenure in academia should prepare to compete

By Jennifer Funk
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students have many options when applying for graduate school that will help if they decide to pursue the career path of a tenured professor, said Keith Gido, newly tenured associate professor of biology.

"There are so many undergrads who don't understand what's involved in getting into graduate school," he said. "Yet a lot of people envision themselves going on, being in an academic career."

Tenure is academic freedom in research and teaching. It is granted to faculty who undergo extensive evaluation of their research, teaching and service.

The tenure process begins once someone is hired on a tenure-track position. This generally includes a five-year probationary period.

The positions, however, are intensely competitive and require national searches for candidates, said Jane Rowlett, director of academic services. Nationally and at K-State, the number of tenure-track positions is declining.

The Office of Planning and Analysis said in 2005, 722 of 1,198 faculty were tenured and 241 were on tenure track.

Gido said part of the appeal of the positions – and why they are competitive – is the balance of teaching and research.

Getting into, and being productive in, a graduate program are the first crucial steps on the journey to tenure, Gido said.

"Graduate school is very different from undergraduate school," he said. "In grad school, you get paid to go to school, but you work very closely with an individual on a particular topic."

He said it is important for students to choose their area of specialty before applying to graduate school.

Rowlett said once in graduate school, students should talk with an adviser to learn specific criteria and standards for earning tenure in their field.

THE GOLDEN KEY ADVANTAGE
Scholarships + Internships & Job Opportunities + Recognition + Service + Networking

COME CHECK OUT GOLDEN KEY!

- When: November 2nd, 2006 7:00 – 8:30 p.m.
- Where: KSU Union Stateroom
- Who: All juniors and seniors with GPA 3.62 or higher

For More Information:
Donita Whitney-Bammerlin (Chapter Advisor)
donitab@ksu.edu
Rachel Collier (Chapter President) rcollier@ksu.edu www.goldenkey.org

EKART'S "SINCE 1965"
Motor Inn, Inc.
209 Sarber Lane
Dependable Auto Service
776-9058
•Oil Changes
•Brake Service
•Tire Rotation
•Computer diagnostics
•30-Pt. System Check
•Complete automotive repair
Go Cats!

OCTOBER SPECIAL
M-W 9-5 • Th-F 9-9 • Sat 9-5
Crum's Beauty College
512 Poyntz • 776-4794
Services performed by supervised students
50 years of excellence in education
Call today for enrollment information
Cosmetology/Manicuring
Instructor-Training/Evening Classes
$5.00 HAIRCUT ON HALLOWEEN DAY, 9-5

e-CHUG
An Online Alcohol Use Self-Screening Instrument
• Free access to take the e-CHUG (electronic Check-Up to Go)
• 6-7 minutes to complete
• Self Guided and completely anonymous
• Provides immediate individual feedback
go to: www.ksu.edu/counseling

Graduate & Professional School Fair
date: Today, October 31st
time: 10AM - 3PM
where: K-State Student Union Ballroom
Seize the opportunity to research programs, institutions, and admission procedures as well as meet with representatives from various colleges, universities and professional schools.
Career and Employment Services
Guiding You from College to Career
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
Manhattan, Kansas
ces@k-state.edu • 785-532-6506
www.k-state.edu/ces
To view a full list of participants go to the CES web site at www.k-state.edu/ces

Union Program Council
upcoming events

Tuesday, October 31
Max Brooks "10 Lessons for Surviving a Zombie Attack"
Costume contest and book signing will follow presentation.
Forum Hall • 7 pm
Film: Dawn of the Dead
Forum Hall • 9pm

Friday, November 3
Immigration Debate
Forum Hall • 7 pm
Film: Beauty and the Beast
Little Theatre: Saturday, November 4 • 7 & 9:30 pm, $1
Sunday, November 5 • 8 pm, $1

Saturday, November 4
Darryl Heikes, meet the artist reception
Kemper Art Gallery • 11 am - 1pm
Latin Jazz Band
Bosco Student Plaza • 11 am-1 pm
After Hours: Craig Kargas - Mentalist
Forum Hall • 7 pm
(will do a teaser at 5:20 at "Taste of K-State" in Alumni Center Ballroom)

William T. Kemper Art Gallery
Darryl Heikes, Former White House Photographer and K-State graduate
October 18 - November 8

Upcoming Events & Dates
Michael Ian Black
Tuesday, November 7, McCain Auditorium • 8 pm
TICKETS NOW AVAILABLE : 532 - 6428
McCain Box Office • 11 am-5 pm, Mon-Fri
Little Theatre Box Office • 11:30 am-1:30 pm, Mon-Fri
Students with ID $10
Non students $15
*Prices include all taxes & fees
K-State Idol
Wednesday, November 8, Forum Hall • 7 pm
College Bowl
Applications due Friday, November 10th
Volunteers needed!! Contact UPC office.
301 K-State Student Union
UPC phone - 532-6571
www.k-state.edu/upc
UPC hotline - 532-6572

OPINION

CLASH WEEK

Rush or relax?

Finishing in 4 years impresses employers with dedication, alleviates poor diet, hygiene

ALEX PEAK

I will wear the cap and gown, walk among my esteemed classmates and be handed an important – and expensive – piece of paper. My relatives will come, my mom will tear up, and I will make congratulatory bank.

At least, this is my hope for next semester. I am a senior, and I will graduate, as long as everything goes accordingly this spring, after four years of college.

I understand it's not unusual to take more than four years to earn a four-year degree. But as long as you're not failing classes or having other problems, is there a good excuse for needing the extra time? After all, what are the benefits of being a fifth-, sixth- or seventh-year senior in a major that doesn't require more than four years?

In defense, these extended seniors might say taking extra time is good thing, that they will be better prepared for the real world or that they're having the time of their life in college, etc.

While college is often called the best time of your life, is there really a need to make it last longer than it should? After all, too much of a good thing can be bad.

College is great. It's probably the only time in your life when it will be perfectly normal to go to Wal-Mart at 4 a.m., follow the ramen noodles and SpaghettiOs diet, or be able to Febreeze your clothes for months as a way of postponing doing laundry. These standards are acceptable for and typical of 18-year-olds through 20-somethings, but after that, it's just laziness.

Why would you want to continue this greasy college lifestyle when you can grow up and become part of the real world? Hint: when you get a diploma, you become more marketable, and when you get a job, you will make money. While money might not directly be the root of happiness, it certainly seems to be a key part of the formula. With a college degree and a job, you should, in theory, be able to live better.

In addition to general hygiene and diet, there are more benefits to graduating in four or fewer years. For instance, take finances. If your parents help you pay for school, they probably will appreciate if you pass all of your classes the first time through and if you complete your collegiate sequence in a fair amount of time. If you're paying for college on your own or with loans, it's less time you will have to work to earn money, or less debt you'll have to worry about paying back in the future.

Also, when future employers consider your résumé and see you finished school in a respectable stretch of time, they will be more likely to regard you as a smart and able person. They will be impressed by your hard work and dedication to finish school in four years' time, especially if you have good grades and some extracurriculars to pad your résumé.

If you have the ability, why not graduate on time? It will save you and your family money and grief. You'll probably be more respected, and no one will bombard you with questions or start making up rumors about why you really aren't graduating on time.

With the exception of a handful of problems or legitimate excuses (i.e. you suffer from mental or physical illness, a family member or friend dies, you get pregnant, etc.), college is doable in four years.

Alex Peak is a senior in mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustration by Christina Forsburg | COLLEGIAN

5th year of college allows students to determine goals before rushing into a career

MEGAN GREEN

I'm a fifth-year student, and I will graduate in December.

Most fifth-years agree to call this year our "victory lap" – and there are plenty of us. Many students stay on to complete their degrees in a longer time than it took, say, 10 years ago.

K-State offers a lot of majors and degrees, many of which have some kind of five-year graduation plan.

But let's look at it from my point of view. I am 22 years old, so if I had graduated in May, I would more than likely be working at a job in the real world.

Well, I can tell you right now, I have no idea what I want to do, and I definitely didn't know in the spring. I've learned quite a bit about what I want in a real job because of this fifth year of college. Having even the smallest bit of extra time to figure that out is great for anyone who plans to enter the workforce. How can we know exactly what we want to do after only four years of college? I am not in a hurry to graduate and work a nine-to-five job. I'm still young, and I am still learning about myself.

This is the time to find ourselves and who we are – not hurry into employment like our parents did so long ago. Times have changed; things aren't as simple.

Many students take off a semester or two to work and earn money for college or to travel around and see things that will educate us more than a classroom ever could.

And don't forget about the students who have to pay their way through college; they have to work so much that many cannot take a full load of classes, but they are in college and working toward a future.

And how many times have we gone to college seminars that say so many students change their majors so many times? I changed my major once, and it put me back a semester. This is not a bad thing.

I took the time to figure out what was right for me, and now my major suits me perfectly. But had I thought, "Well, I have this many credit hours, I might as well just finish in four years," I would be stuck for the rest of my life doing something I didn't really love to do.

That's not life; that's a Dilbert comic strip. I don't want that, and I don't know many people who do.

As a fifth-year, I finally feel ready to graduate. I now feel I have something to give a company.

And the best part about this year? I can really enjoy college, take it all in and not hurry through my last bit of what some say is the "best part of our lives."

I say, let's take our time and figure things out. Who cares how long it takes to graduate college? What interviewer cares about how long it took you to complete a degree? At least we did it. I'm a fifth-year, and I am proud to admit it.

Megan Green is a fifth-year student in mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Editors remember childhood costumes

The days of trick-or-treating are over for most of us. No longer can we ring doorbells, eagerly hold out a plastic jack-o-lantern and expect it to be filled with hundreds of sugary treats.

The following are a few of the Halloween costumes we wore as children:

Leann Sulzen – When I was seven years old, I was a devil. My mom still has a picture on the wall where I am making a mean devil face, and every time I look at it, I laugh.

Annette Lawless – I was a green Crayola crayon when I was four. My sister was orange. We had some pretty cool hats.

Zachary T. Eckels – I loved my blue dinosaur costume... until I got in trouble for stomping on a nun.

Owen Kennedy – In second grade I was Elmer Fudd. My mom bought an old brown dress jacket and a 10-gallon cowboy hat, and we cut the brim. And I put a Bugs Bunny toy in a net and carried it around.

Kerry Fischer – I wore my mom's old flannel shirts and my older sister's jeans as my "bum" costume. My mom even drew a beard and mustache on me.

Abby Brownback – One year I was a Spanish dancer. My mom took a black leotard and sewed on a red polka-dotted skirt and ruffles. Fabulous!

Anthony Mendoza – Backwards shirt, pants and hat makes you Kris Kross. "The Mack Daddy will make you/jump, jump/the Daddy Mack will make you/jump, jump/Kris Kross will make you/jump, jump/uh-huh-uh-huh." Enough said.

Megan Moser – In second grade, when I was missing my two front teeth, I was the Tooth Fairy. My mom made me a skirt out of pink netting, a sweatshirt with a felt tooth and a wand.

Emily Lawrence – I saw a picnic costume in American Girl magazine when I was in fourth grade and fell in love with it. One of my sisters went as an ant.

Steven Doll – When I was in elementry school, I dressed up as a dalmation, complete with floppy ears and a tail. My mom and I made it from white sweats, mittens and a visor, then painted on the black dots.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

To FarmHouse: you think you're so cool just because as soon as I knock down your yard art, you pick it back up. Ten points for you.

People need to stop making fun of scooter girl. OK?

Derby Dining Center, please keep making more riblet sandwiches. They are the best.

Well, it's official. Everybody loves the Fourum. Nobody loves Chuck Armstrong. What have you done, Collegian?

Thank you, scooter girl, for making my Monday mornings more enjoyable.

The redheaded Classy Cat rocks my world.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

FDA wants further study on safety of dental fillings

Dentists express opposing views on possible dangers of mercury poisoning from silver fillings

By Josh Rouse
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There is a substance in the mouths of millions of people that can cause inflammation of the lungs, tremors, coughing up blood and – in some cases – death.

That substance is mercury, and it is just one component of amalgams, the silver fillings used by dentists.

A joint panel of Food and Drug Administration advisers voted 13-7 against a federal report declaring that the dental fillings are completely safe, citing the need for further study. After a second 13-7 vote by the advisers, the FDA consultants said the report's conclusions were unreasonable due to the large amounts of quality information available.

Tom Barth, a local dentist, said he thinks the amalgam fillings are proven to be safe. He said most negative criticism of the silver fillings has been from people who give their opinions instead of citing actual research or proof.

"I don't think it's better or worse anyway," Barth said. "Amalgam is proven to be a very safe restoration. We have a lot of people who are not in mainstream dentistry giving opinions that aren't researched.

"We don't treat our patients by opinions – we treat them by research. Amalgam has a long track record of being a good restorative."

Barth said he has amalgams in his own mouth and is not worried about mercury poisoning. He said amalgams have a good track record, better than composites, in fact, because they have been around longer.

"Amalgam is proven to be a very safe restoration. We have a lot of people who are not in mainstream dentistry giving opinions that aren't researched. We don't treat our patients by opinions — we treat them by research."

Dr. Tom Barth
DDS

"There are people that don't like amalgam because of mercury, but when you condense it, a lot of the mercury comes to the surface," he said. "As you're carving it down, you get most of the mercury rich material in it. What mercury that is left in the metal, when it hardens, it remains in the metal. Nobody is being poisoned with the mercury in the amalgams."

Randy Regier, a K-State graduate and practicing dentist in Overland Park, Kan., agrees that amalgam is safe. However, he also said amalgam causes decay in teeth due to metal contraction that causes separation between the filling and tooth.

"I don't like them. They do so much damage to teeth over time," Regier said. "I've got amalgams in my mouth. I wouldn't have them in there if I thought they were unsafe, but the composite bonding is such superior material over amalgams, so anyone putting in amalgams still is practicing malpractice, I feel."

Ryan Gallagher, freshman in biology, plans to attend dental school. He said he agrees with the FDA advisers' decision.

"I think it's probably something that we should have looked into before we decided to put it into people's mouths," Gallagher said. "A lot of things we consider to be harmless usually aren't."

However, the American Dental Association disagrees. Dean Cloutier, president of the Connecticut State Dental Association, wrote a response to negative media coverage on the ADA's Web site, www.ada.org. In his response, Cloutier said special-interest groups are using amalgam to set public policy and are not listening to the experts.

"Major organizations entrusted with protecting the public's health have reviewed a veritable mountain of scientific evidence and concluded that amalgam is a safe, effective material to treat cavities," Cloutier said. "These include the National Institutes of Health, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the World Health Organization and the American Dental Association.

"Who do we want advising us about health care? These trusted scientific and public health organizations or a group that believes these agencies and the nation's dentists are involved in a vast conspiracy?"

Check Out sudoku in the Classifieds

The Salty Rim
1204 Moro 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
Halloween Specials!
$3 Double Captain Morgan's
$2.50 Domestic Pitchers
$4 Blue Moon Pitchers
1/2 Price Margaritas
$2 Import Bottles
1/2 Price Salsas
Free T-shirts @ 9
Patio Is Open
Now Taking Applications

Chapman's Alley
1210 Moro
537-0775
HAPPY HALLOWEEN
$2
ALL DRINKS
PREMIUMS, CALLS, DRAWS, SHOTS, BOTTLES
$3.50
BELFAST & ENERGY BOMBS
FREE POOL
100 FREE T-SHIRTS @9
CHAPPIE live on the patio

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

1/2 Price Drinks
$2.25 Big Beers
$3.50 Jager Bombs
Fat's
BAR & GRILL
Aggieville

HAPPY HALLOWEEN!!
Claflin Books and Copies

SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District

Krystallos Invites you to our
CHRISTMAS OPEN HOUSE
SUN. NOVEMBER 5TH 12-5:00 PM
FOOD DRINK FUN
Get a fun and early start on your Christmas shopping.
Buy $250.00 worth of merchandise and we will give you a $50.00 gift certificate free.

GOODSON AUTO TRIM
Since 1958
Complete Upholstering & Fabric • Custom Made Auto & Truck Seat Covers • Convertible Tops • Headliners • Boat Upholstery & Covers • Vinyl Tops
776-7679
201 SARBER LN • BETWEEN K-MART & WAL-MART

TUESDAY WEDNESDAY
Tacos
Margaritas
Taco Platter
BOBBY Ts
3240 Kimball Ave
537-8383
Steak Night
Bottles
Big Bobs
www.bobbyts.com
Karaoke @ 9pm

Halloween @ TUBBY'S Sports Bar
$2.50 UV Orange Bombs
$1.00 Jello Shots
$2.00 Pumpkin Punch Shots
Mon-Tues 4pm-2am
Wed-Sun 11:30-2am
Costume Party @ 9 pm
Dance Side Open!

k-state family day
Saturday, November 4, 2006
www.k-state.edu/familyday

SAKE SAKE SAKE
Bomb!
$3.00 Sake Bombs
TRY OUR NEW ASIAN STYLE BUFFET & MONGOLIAN BBQ
HUNAN
1304 WESTLOOP 539-8888
$1.00 OFF BUFFET
W/ VALID KSU ID

ENTIRE STOCK!!
Houseplants
50% off
Sub-Zero Pansies
50% off
Candlescape® Candle Products
25% off
FUJI Apples
$2.99
5 lb. bag!
OPEN 9am-7pm Daily. Sunday, too!
Eastside & Westside Market
E. Hwy. 24 or W. Ft. Riley blvd. Manhattan

Think You can Do Better?
SPRING 2007
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Executive Position
Editor in chief
• Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 10
• Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Photo Journalists • Desk Editors
• Graphic Journalists • Reporters
• Graphic Artists • Designers
• Online Journalists • Copy Editors
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 17
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103

FACULTY/STAFF Night - Nov. 3 $2 discount
KSU Theatre presents
TARTUFFE
by Moliere
HILARIOUS...
ENTERTAINING...
FUN, FUN, FUN!
November 2, 3 and 4
McCain Auditorium 8 p.m.
TKTS: McCain Box Office: open 11am to 5pm weekdays and at the K-State Union Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 weekdays. 532-6428 Online: ksu.edu/sctd
$8 student/child $11 military $13 public
Sponsored by Pizza Hut of Manhattan

Roughhousing

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Alicia Thiessen, junior in agribusiness and member of the women's rugby team, tries to run the ball past Missouri defenders during K-State's game Saturday at Memorial Stadium.

Injuries hinder chances for success

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Rugby is a physical and rough sport, usually associated with testosterone and a multitude of injuries. By no means is it a man's sport, though.

For several years, the K-State Women's Rugby Club has interested women of nearly every academic concentration.

"We're rough and tough, and we hurt people," said Alicia Gettel, senior in animal science and industry.

She said rugby is a great way to alleviate aggression and stress, and it is a good way to get in shape.

"You don't have to be thin and athletic to play," Gettel said. "Some girls that could not play basketball or volleyball in high school excel in this sport."

Caitlin James, senior in animal science and industry, said about 20 women play each week for the team, with up to 15 on the field at a time.

Although each woman has a different story for how she became involved, all of the players who take the field for practice every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday are there because they love the game.

"I have met so many friends through rugby, and it has helped me to broaden my horizons and try things that I never thought I would have tried," Alicia Thiessen, junior in agribusiness, said.

She said the atmosphere at practices is social and laid back, but during games, players get serious. The team is part of the Heart of America Rugby Football Union, which includes teams from Oklahoma State, Missouri, Kansas and other area teams.

James said only one player on the team had previous playing experience before joining the team, and less than half of the team returned from last semester's squad. Several players had never played the game and didn't even know the rules before they signed on to play.

"We are a really young team," James said. "Not only are we learning to play with each other, but also learning to play the game.

"We know this is a rebuilding year, but next semester will be better."

The team, which also plays during the spring, hopes to increase in size and recover from multiple injuries. James said several players have suffered serious injuries, including three knee injuries, a broken collar bone, a dislocated shoulder and several minor injuries.

"When you play a sport that involves the physical contact that rugby does, there are always going to be some bumps and bruises," Thiessen said.

Players said the absence of healthy bodies has hindered the development of the team.

At a recent tournament in Denton, Texas, only 11 players traveled with the team. One player separated a shoulder at the beginning of the first game, and the team was forced to play five players short for most of the tournament.

This has not halted the season, though.

"Rugby is so different than every other sport in America that you fall in love with it," James said. "You just have to keep playing."

That is just what the team will do. Even after losing to Missouri 51-0 on Saturday at Memorial Stadium, James said she is optimistic for the future.

Naomi Stauth, sophomore in athletic training, goes up for a catch on the in-bounds pass during the first half. When the ball goes out of bounds, there is a pass in, and teams lift one member into the air to get the ball.

NBA season begins, promises intriguing storylines

NICK DUNN

Halloween is here, and along with this holiday comes the beginning of the NBA season. The NBA isn't all that popular around here – mostly because there isn't a franchise within 300 miles of Manhattan – but really, the arrival of basketball season marks the beginning of the best time of year for sports.

Just the fact that basketball highlights will now flood the television instead of baseball is a reason to get excited. Alley-oops will replace those boring strikeouts. Sick of guys like Chris Carpenter and Kenny Rogers? Rest easy. Now you'll get your fill of Shaquille O'Neal and LeBron James.

The season tips off tonight when defending champion Miami Heat plays host to the new-look Chicago Bulls. That game will be the first of a number of intriguing storylines for the 2006-07 season.

This season is filled with potential excitement. You don't have to look too far to find something worth watching.

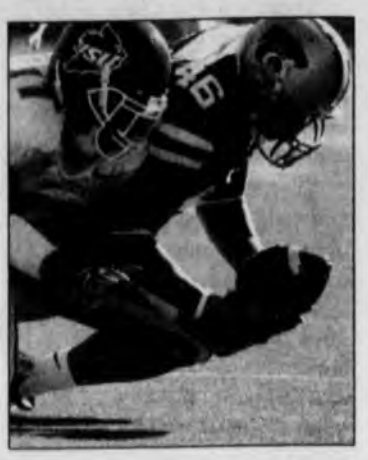
WILL HE 'ANSWER' THE CRITICS?

How many injuries will Allen Iverson sustain this season? Every year, A.I. seems to be plagued by more and more injuries. This year he's probably in store for at least four severely sprained ankles, a constant migraine headache and a couple jammed fingers. Don't worry though, he's "the toughest player in the league," so you won't be lucky enough to see him miss a game.

THE ODD COUPLE

How awkward will Yao Ming look in the paint again this season? Every year, the 7-foot-5 Chinese tower of immobility is supposed to carry the Houston Rockets to a title, and every year he cements the fact that he's really just painful to watch. Maybe this is the year he finally will mesh with Tracy McGrady. I have my doubts. Watching those two on court together is like trying to watch Ross Perot flirt with Paris Hilton.

WHO'S THE MAN?



On a more serious note, we can now let the debate continue. Who is better – LeBron James or Dwyane Wade? James has the endorsements, the statistics and the popularity, but Wade has the ring. Wade also seems to have used that ring to steal some of the limelight from James. Sure, Wade had Shaq's help to win that title, but let's be honest – Wade carried the Heat in the playoffs to that title. The thing about both of these stars is you just can't help but like them. This year should only increase the friendly rivalry.

Get ready, NBA fans – wherever you are. The NBA is back, and a solid eight months of basketball lie ahead. The league seems to be recovering from the dreaded generation of players that included Iverson, Vince Carter and Kobe Bryant. A new class led by James and Wade is taking over, and the league is better for it.

Nick Dunn is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

FBC | Archer selected as Big 12 Special Teams Player of the Week

Senior linebacker Brandon Archer made several big plays on defense during K-State's 31-10 victory over Iowa State on Saturday, including collecting 10 total tackles and pouncing on a fumble at the Wildcats' 3-yard line with 14 seconds to play in the first half to snuff out a potential Cyclone touchdown drive.

But it was his hustle on special teams that earned him honors from the Big 12 Conference Monday, as Archer was selected as the league's special teams player of the week for games of Oct. 28 in voting by a select panel of media that cover the conference, Big 12 officials announced.

Trailing 10-3 late in the second quarter, the senior from St. Paul, Minn., almost single-handedly got K-State back in the game, recovering a muffed punt at the Cyclones' 15-yard line to set up a game-tying touchdown.

On the play, Archer out-hustled a host of Cyclones after a Tim Reyer punt was touched by Iowa State at the 32-yard line and recovered the loose ball at the Cyclones' 15-yard line just before it went out-of-bounds.

Five plays later, Josh Freeman connected with John McCardle from two yards out to tie the game at 10 and the Wildcats never trailed again.

The recovery marked the fourth time this season that K-State's special teams unit has forced a turnover. Nationally, only Louisiana Tech with five has collected more turnovers on special teams this season than K-State.

FBC | ABC to air game against UT; time to be determined on Nov. 5

The Big 12 Conference and ABC Sports announced Monday that K-State's football game against Texas at Snyder Family Stadium on Nov. 11 has been selected for over-the-air distribution by the network.

ABC Sports, however, has opted to use the last of its three six-day picks to set the game time and will telecast the matchup at either 2:30 p.m. or 7 p.m.

Should ABC set a 2:30 p.m. kickoff for the Wildcats and Longhorns, K-State's men's basketball season-opener against William & Mary on Nov. 11 at Bramlage Coliseum will tip at 8 p.m. If ABC elects to air the Texas-K-State football game in primetime at 7 p.m., then the Wildcats' basketball game will start at 1 p.m.

ABC and the Big 12 Conference also announced that the network will televise either the Nebraska at Texas A&M game or the Texas Tech at Oklahoma contest in the time slot opposite K-State and Texas.

Network officials will determine which game will be placed in each particular broadcast window following the outcomes of this weekend's games. As a result, K-State will be unable to announce the official start times for both its football and basketball games on Nov. 11 until Nov. 5.

ROW | Novice 8 team takes 1st at Head of the Iowa Regatta

The K-State women's rowing team took the Novice Eight title for the second straight year at the Head of the Iowa Regatta on Sunday in Iowa City, Iowa.

The Novice Eight boat, comprised of freshmen Gina Raymonde, Shannon Carle, Nicole Vogt, Kris Richman, Emily Boswell, Jessica Layden, Baylee Lehmann, Kylie Hanson and Lanee Webb, placed first with a time of 15:07.29, three seconds ahead of the second place team from Wisconsin.

"We are quite pleased with the Novice Eight again claiming the title," coach Patrick Sweeney told K-State Sports Information. "They raced well amongst tough competition. Both the first and second novice boats had good performances."

The other two novice boats placed 12th and 27th.

The varsity squad competed in the Women's Novice 8+ event, finishing 10th with a time of 15:17.59. The second varsity finished 13th 15:44.51.

"The first varsity boat was a little disappointing today," Sweeney said. "Although we had good technique it was not raced aggressively. You just cannot give up five strokes per minute to your competition, especially in this tough field."

The Wildcats' next meet is the Sunflower Showdown on Nov. 11 against Kansas at Tuttle Creek Reservoir.

— Wendy Haun

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

AVAILABLE NOW. 1019 Houston. Three-bedroom, one bath. Kitchen appliances, screened back porch. Close to city park, Aggieville, and downtown. $895. (417)849-2428.

785 532 6555
Call for Collegian Classifieds

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/kstc

TRAVEL WITH STS to this year's top ten Spring Break destinations! Best deals guaranteed! Highest Rep Commissions. Visit www.ststravel.com or call 1-800-648-4849. Great group discounts.

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

FOUND: SET of keys with white ribbon in Union parking lot Monday morning. To claim come into 103 Kedzie or call 785-532-6555 to identify.

031 Halloween Personals

ADAM- you are the greatest friend I could ever ask for.

DANIEL, I love you Punkin! You are my prince charming! Love you forever and always, Kathryn

EMILY IS beautiful, even if she leaves her shoes in the living room or doesn't put her clothes away.

FROU, FROU I Love You! Hope you have a fantastic day and we're going to have so much fun tonight.

KIM AND Cara- you're too cute, too sweet, too amazing. TFJ and love always, Mary

MY BOO- I'm the only one that should be scaring you, but, watch out because I'm sure others are after you. The Big Boo

POOKY, JUST wanted to let you know how much I care about you! Just keep trying hard and know I'm always there for you. Love, Abs

SPUB TECHS- Thanks for keeping the cobwebs out of the computers. This would be a scary place without you! Wanda

THERE ARE boo-tiful people working in the business office, if you come out, don't come scary. The Party Crew and Pat.

TO ALL my boo-tiful ad designers- you keep me jumping and I'm not scared of anything! Wanda

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Near Westloop. $300 per month plus one-half of utilities. Call 316-200-8735.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

150 Sublease

APARTMENT AVAILABLE for sublease as soon as possible. Two-bedroom, full kitchen. Call 502-472-9033 or e-mail focused_ksn@yahoo.com.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January or before through May. Four-bedroom house close to campus, small pets ok. $300 plus 1/4 utilities. 785-313-3702.

JANUARY SUBLEASER wanted for one bedroom apartment. Close to campus. $450 a month all utilities paid except electricity. 785-331-8842.

ONE OR two subleases nedded Spring 2007. Four-bedroom house, three blocks west of campus $290 plus utilities. 785-341-4869.

SUBLEASER NEEDED next semester! Three-bedroom apartment, one and one-half bath, $750/ month plus electricity. One-half block from campus. Contact: riley2@ksu.edu.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

ADVERTISE HERE 785 532 6555

310 Help Wanted

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the resturant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

EARN EXTRA cash for next semester!!! We are looking for people to manage firework locations in Louisiana December 20 - January 2. Travel expenses and lodging provided. Call for details 1-800-546-2825.

FULL OR Part-time, flexible schedule, must be here for the holidays. Apply at Mrs. Powell's Bakery, Manhattan Town Center.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

MILL CREEK Valley USD #329 is looking for a Freshmen Girls' Basketball Coach for Wabaunsee High School in Alma. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315. MCV is an equal opportunity employer.

Need a subleaser Advertise 785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEW ANIMAL Hospital opening soon. Now hiring for positions: Receptionist, Vet Assistant/Tech, Groomer, experience preferred. Fill out application on www.greystoneah.com.

PART-TIME clerical work. Some experience in Quickbooks and Excel preferred, but not required. Good communication and organization skills. Flexible work schedule. Hours: Monday - Friday 9am - 5pm. 785-587-0400.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RAMADA PLAZA, soon to be Holiday Inn at the Campus is now hiring: Night Bellman, Banquet Staff, Morning Restaurant Server and Morning Cook for weekends, Night Auditor, Maintenance and Sales Coordinator. Apply in person at 1641 Anderson Ave. 785-539-7531.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

Find a Job Help Wanted Section

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT SECRETARY/ RECEPTIONIST WANTED. The Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement is seeking a student with excellent command of Microsoft Word and Excel as well as exceptional skills in telephone answering etiquette, grammar, filing, use of dictaphone, scheduling appointments and a variety of other office duties. Must be a quick learner, self-motivated and very detailed oriented. Must be willing to work school breaks and summer. Preference given to a person with past office experience. The position will be available immediately continuing through fall, some of Christmas break, spring and summer. Workweek fall and spring semesters is a minimum of 25 hours and a maximum of 30 hours. Summer will require 30- 40 hours weekly. For an application, contact Dorothy Smith in the Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, 122 Anderson Hall. Starting salary commensurate with experience. Deadline for submission of application is Thursday, November 2, 4:00 p.m. to: Dorothy Smith Office of the Vice President, 122 Anderson Hall 785-532-5942.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

310 Help Wanted

SIMPLY WIRELESS, your T-Mobile Exclusive Dealer is coming soon and has immediate openings for bright, energetic persons to join our sales team in Manhattan. We have openings for part-time retail sales representatives. Simply Wireless is a special place to work---a full dynamic environment where every person makes a difference. We are open for new and creative ideas to improve our company's market position. Our growth has been phenomenal and we're adding to our ranks. Your potential is only limited by your imagination as we grow; we've made a commitment to not lose sight of the reason for our success, our customers and the people who work here. Send resume to ecarlson@swphones.biz.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

Advertise in the Classifieds 785-532-6555

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

Need Some Help? Advertise it in the Collegian. FIRST

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

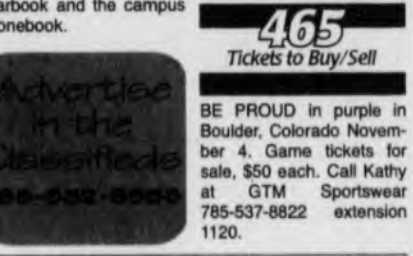
400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

1. ANTHOLOGY of Chinese Poetry (translated to English.) http://li_chungwang0.tripod.com 2. The Philosophy of Mechanics. http://lcwangmech.tripod.com.

T-MOBILE SIDEKICK. Camera/ Internet/ email. Drop sim card in and ready to go. $175 or best offer. 785-317-8263 or 785-537-9212.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell



BE PROUD in purple in Boulder, Colorado November 4. Game tickets for sale, $50 each. Call Kathy at GTM Sportswear 785-537-8822 extension 1120.

looking for a job?

CHECK THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

Riley County Police Department

Career Fair

November 4, 2006
11:00 am to 2:00 pm

Law Enforcement Center
Located at: 1001 S. Seth Child Rd.
Manhattan, Kansas

All interested individuals are invited to attend to learn about a professional career with RCPD (i.e. Police Officer, Corrections Officer, Dispatcher). There will be equipment displays as well as personnel on-site to answer all of your questions.
Free food and beverage will be served.
For additional information, please contact Human Resources at: 785-537-2112 ext. 2310 or ext. 2320
dsilva@rileycountypolice.org

Advertising Design Practicum/Newspaper MC 385

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M.
FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

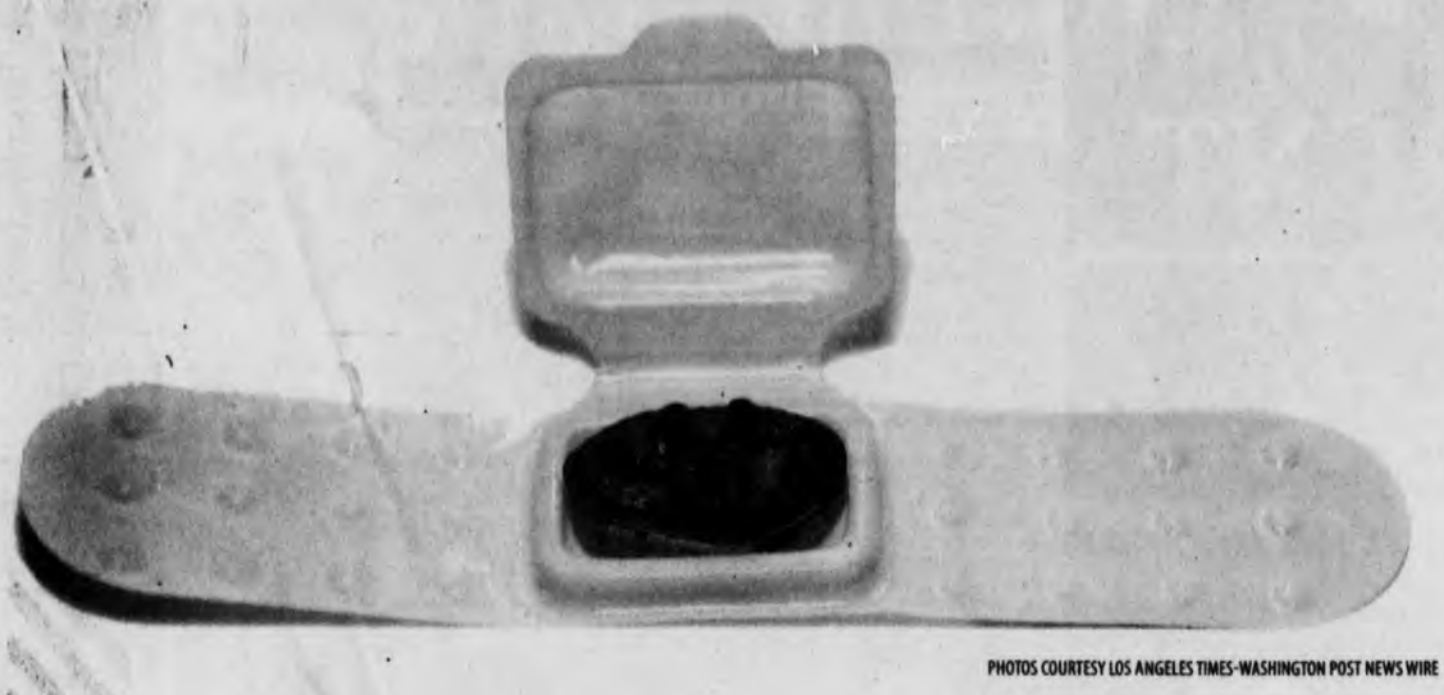
Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

Quiznos Sub MMMM...TOASTY!



sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

		9						3
4			3		8		1
			1	9		7
3					2
	5	4	7		6	9	2
			9					6
		5		1	9
	7		2		5			4
8						1

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

PHOTOS COURTESY LOS ANGELES TIMES-WASHINGTON POST NEWS WIRE

Gross gummies

Candy industry bases new creations on bodily functions, insects, toilets

KRIS FITZGERALD

Imagine this for a second: you're 5 years old, holding your mother's hand. She looks at you and says, "Dear, would you like some candy?"

You instantly get a giant grin on your face. You hear the word you've longed for, the greatest word to any 5-year-old's ears: candy.

So you go into the store, mouth drooling with anticipation of what's to come. Which one will you choose? You stand in the aisle with all the candy, and you can't decide between the gummy worms or the Jolly Ranchers. Finally, your little heart settles on the bag of gummy worms.

Choosing candy was simple back then. The selection was rather uncomplicated – some gummy candies, Sweet Tarts, nothing too heavy.

Youth today have more candy options than we could have dreamed of having in an entire lifetime when we were that age. As selection broadens, candies become more complicated. Some candies have layers upon layers of different flavors. Others change colors from one lick to the next. The kinds that stand out to me today are the gross candies, the candies most popular during Halloween.

To be honest, I think if I had to decide between a bloody bandage candy or a toilet sucker, I'd be a little confused, scared and probably would start eating vegetables.

Among some of the grossest candies on the market today, candyaddict.com featured the top 10, and here are some of the most gruesome.

Featured at No. 10 on its list, but would top mine, are the White Chocolate Maggots. They come in a little can, and when you open them, you get the tingling, puking sensation one would receive when faced with real maggots.

One of the weirdest concoctions of candy I have ever come across in my short lifespan is the Chocka Ca-Ca, which ranks as the No. 5 gross candy on the Web site. This wonderful chocolate treat is a diaper with a brown, lumpy present inside.

Who knows what this could lead to – people mistaking real diapers for these tasty little Chocka Ca-Cas?

Another new candy on the market is earwax candy. It even comes with its own Q-tip to dig this jelly-like substance out of the pink plastic ear.

Although the aforementioned candies might seem a bit odd, candy producers do not hold back.

The candy that ranks No. 2 on the list is insect-filled suckers. These have any bug you want in them – ants, cockroaches, beetles, grasshoppers, crickets, a tequila-flavored worm and even scorpions. Yes, I said scorpions. Bugs might provide protein, but it is not necessary for a company to create suckers with such bugs in them.

To top off the competition, businesses have produced one of the grossest candies on the market – Lick Your Wounds Candy. This candy, which came out in September, is a big hit with kids, but not such a big hit with adults. You actually unwrap a bandage, put it on, and it leaves a "scab" on your skin. You then lick some of it off and put the bandage back on, to – as they put it – "save some for later."

I remember trying to save gum and Jolly Ranchers when I was little. You know where it ended up? Yeah, that's right. In my hair. But before you laugh at my misery of a childhood, remember yours as well.

So after reviewing some horrific examples of candy, I just have to ask, "Why?"

Why do candy companies feel the grosser the candy gets, the higher profit margin they will make?

I remember the good old days of Blow Pops, Dubble Bubble, gummy worms and Sweet Tarts. These were basic candies, and you didn't need an instruction manual on how to eat them. But as I'm sure candy will continue to seem weirder to me as I get older, and more complex, the younger generation will demand it even more.

Just remember: it's not your children's fault they want to eat their own scabs. Candy companies said it's OK.

Kris Fitzgerald is a freshman in pre-psychology. Please send comments to edge@spub.ksu.edu.

TOP 10 GROSSEST CANDIES

1. Lick Your Wounds Candy
2. Candy With Real Bugs
3. Earwax Candy
4. Bertie Botts Every Flavor Beans, including flavors like dirt, booger, earwax, soap, grass and vomit
5. Poop Candy
6. Fear Factor Candy
7. Harry Potter Cockroach Clusters
8. Sour Flush Candy
9. Hose Nose
10. White Chocolate Maggots

Source: www.candyaddict.com

FAST FACTS ABOUT CANDY

- Halloween is the biggest holiday of the year when it comes to candy sales estimated at $1.93 billion in 2005. About one quarter of all candy sold each year is purchased between Sept. 15 and Nov. 10.
- Chocolate is America's favorite flavor. A recent survey revealed that 52 percent of U.S. adults said they like chocolate best. The second favorite flavor was a tie (at 12 percent each) between berry flavors and vanilla.
- Gummi bears were originally called dancing bears.
- In 1994, Susan Montgomery Williams of Fresno, Calif., set the record for largest bubble blown at 23-inches in diameter.
- U.S. chocolate manufacturers use 40 percent of the almonds produced in the United States and 25 percent of domestic peanuts.
- U.S. chocolate manufacturers use about 3.5 million gallons of whole milk every day to make chocolate.
- About 65 percent of American chocolate-eaters prefer milk chocolate.
- On Oct. 15, 1999, the world's largest jar of jelly beans was unveiled. It weighed 6,050 pounds.
- Each year, U.S. manufacturers produce more than 16 billion jelly beans for Easter — that's enough to completely fill a plastic Easter egg 89-feet high and 60-feet wide (about the height of a nine-story office building).
- The world's largest lollipop was certified on June 25, 2002. It weighed 4,031 pounds (with stick), measured 18.9-inches thick and was more than 15-feet tall with stick (about as tall a a giraffe).
- Licorice is sometimes referred to as Spanish juice or sweet wood.
- Today's machines produce 5,900 lollipops per minute.
- Salt water taffy was "invented" in Atlantic City in 1883.

Source: National Confectioners Association

HALLOWEEN MOVIES ON TV

- Times for movies airing today
- () denotes times playing Wednesday

"Beetlejuice," PG
A ghoul helps a newly dead couple haunt others.
Comedy Central — 9 a.m.

"Bride of Chucky," R
Animated by a vicious killer's spirit, a battered doll and its mate seek help from neighbors to regain human form.
SCIFI — 1 p.m.

"Candyman 3: Day of the Dead," R
A woman tries to disprove a legend that her ancestor can appear and kill people with his hook.
SCIFI — 9 a.m.

"Carrie," R
A social misfit with psychic powers wreaks havoc at her prom to get even with pranksters.
USA — 10:30 a.m.

"Christina's House," R
A teenager fears for her sanity when strange occurrences give her new home a menacing air.
LIFE — 8 p.m.

"Dawn of the Dead," R
A nurse, a police officer and other residents of Milwaukee fight flesh-eating zombies while trapped in a mall.
USA — 2:30 p.m.

"Freddy vs. Jason," R
Teens are caught in the middle of a battle between the razor-clawed Freddy and the masked killer Jason.
SCIFI — 3 p.m.

"Halloween," R
John Carpenter's chiller about an escaped maniac who returns to his hometown to continue his bloody rampage.
AMC — 11:30 a.m., 10:45 p.m.

"Halloween: Resurrection," R
Internet users watch six collegians as they spend the night in Michael Myers' childhood home.
AMC — 9 p.m., (2:30 a.m.)

"Halloween 2," R
A killer follows his injured target to the hospital on Oct. 31.
AMC — 1:15 p.m.

"Halloween III: Season of the Witch," R
Two people discover that a TV commercial cues a madman's Halloween masks to explode.
AMC — 7:45 a.m., 3:15 p.m.

"Halloween 4: The Return of Michael Myers," R
Dr. Loomis renews his hunt for killer Mike, who has escaped from the hospital once again.
AMC — 9:45 a.m., 5:15 p.m.

"Halloween 5: The Revenge of Michael Meyers," R
Dr. Loomis meets Mike's 9-year-old niece, who seems to know when he's going to kill next.
AMC — 7 p.m., (12:30 a.m.)

"I Still Know What You Did Last Summer," R
A killer with a hook returns to stalk a young woman and her friends at a tropical island resort.
FX — 10 a.m.

"Jeepers Creepers," R
A cloaked figure terrorizes two siblings after they discover mutilated bodies in a country drainpipe.
SCIFI — 5 p.m.

"Jeepers Creepers 2," R
A winged creature terrorizes basketball players, coaches and cheerleaders stranded on a highway.
SCIFI — 7 p.m.

"Leprechaun: Back 2 tha Hood," R
A young woman and her friends incur the wrath of an evil leprechaun who will stop at nothing to protect his gold.
BET — 7 p.m.

"Night of the Living Dead," NR
People hide in a house from carnivorous walking corpses revived by radiation fallout.
SCIFI — 7 a.m.; G4 — 9 p.m., (12 a.m.)

"Red Dragon," R
A former FBI agent asks Dr. Hannibal Lecter for help in stopping a serial killer who slaughters families.
USA — 8 p.m.

"Shaun of the Dead," R
An aimless TV salesman and his best pal must save their friends from the zombies that have overrun London.
COMEDY — 4 p.m.

"The Rage: Carrie 2," R
After her friend commits suicide, a girl discovers she has telekinetic powers to seek revenge on her humiliators.
USA — 12:30 p.m.

"The Sixth Sense," PG-13
A child psychologist helps a boy traumatized by spirits.
FAM — 7 p.m.

"The Texas Chainsaw Massacre," R
Young adults encounter a houseful of demented butchers who chase them with chain saws and other deadly tools.
FUSE — 7 p.m., 10 p.m.

Source: www.yahootv.com

BUTTERED | 'Woe is me,' cries Sister-Blister...

By Jess Boatwright

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Wednesday, November 1, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 53

INSIDE

Beat the stress, clear your mind with a relaxing Yoga workout

Page 6

When zombies attack

Left: As Max Brooks, comedian and self-proclaimed expert on zombies, plays the role of an attacking zombie, Andrea Peterson, freshman in open option, helps demonstrate how to use a machete to have a zombie kill itself.

Below: Cary Klataske, sophomore in theater, Meghan Newman, junior in English, and Kyle Malone, junior in political science, laugh at one of Brooks' jokes during his presentation.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Author tells audience members why horror movies have it wrong

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Instead of spending Halloween evening walking Manhattan's streets and racketeering candy, nearly 200 students made the trip to Forum Hall not only to laugh, but also to learn how to survive a future zombie outbreak. Max Brooks, comedian and self-proclaimed expert on zombies, presented his 10 steps to surviving a zombie attack at the K-State Student Union last night.

"This is a cautionary tale, an oral history of a future conflict," said Brooks, son of legendary comedian Mel Brooks and actress Anne Bancroft.

Brooks, who has won an Emmy for his writing on "Saturday Night Live," warned students that although his two bestselling novels on zombie survival might be filed in the humor section, he was not in the mood to joke.

"Let it be known that I find nothing funny about being killed or eaten by zombies," he said.

In the event of a future zombie attack, Brooks cautioned the crowd not to follow contemporary ideas presented in movies or video games, but instead to stay practical. He advocated using a bike instead of a car, going to a cemetery instead of a hospital and using a machete instead of a shotgun.

"These things aren't sexy. They're not cool, but they will save your life," Brooks said.

Brooks's comedy left the crowd members, many of whom were in zombie costume to celebrate the event, in stitches. Students said one element that added to the event was Brooks' interaction with the crowd.

"I liked the fact that he was picking on the crowd a little bit," Jason Stanley, sophomore in accounting, said. "It showed he was very witty and had improvisational talent."

Like his father, Brooks has a talent for parody, one that he uses when speaking about zombies. During his presentation, Brooks chuckled about how the traditional zombie movies just don't use common sense.

"When a zombie is chasing you what is the best way to get away?" Brooks asked the crowd.

As many students shouted out answers ranging from a tank to a fan boat, Brooks simply turned around and walked swiftly offstage to a roar of laughter from the crowd.

"He was hilarious," Rider Frey, sophomore in Biology, said. "His jokes were simple, but that's what made them good."

Brooks has been on the New York Times Bestseller List twice, once with his "The Zombie Survival Guide" and once with "World War Z: An Oral History of the Zombie War." The movie rights to "World War Z" have recently been purchased by Paramount Pictures, and Brad Pitt's production company, Plan B, will produce the film.

Although flattered, Brooks said that he would not write the screenplay to the film, and said he feels he could not do it right.

Those who missed the presentation, but still are interested in learning the keys to zombie survival, can visit www.zombiesurvivalguide.com for more information.

2 students mugged Monday night

By Austin Apple
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two K-State students were robbed at gunpoint Monday night.

Lt. Mike Quintanar of the Riley County Police Department said Brittany Blasdel, freshman in criminology, and Mark Reynolds, sophomore in electrical engineering, were robbed at gun point on 900 N. 11th Street.

"We were walking north on 11th street on the east side, in the alley between Vattier and Kearney, when a man in a hoodie and jeans walked up with a gun held out and asked me for my purse," Blasdel said. She said the pair was coming from a costume party.

She was able to persuade the suspect to just take her cash, Blasdel said.

"He then turned to Mark and asked for his money," Blasdel said.

The suspect then ran off down the fence, Blasdel said.

Afterward, Blasdel and Reynolds both stood there for a while before letting other people know what happened, Blasdel said.

"We saw another girl walking alone and we walked her to where she was headed and we told other people that this guy was out there," Blasdel said.

The suspect got away with $23 in cash and $4 in cigarettes.

"I never thought this would happen in Manhattan," Blasdel said.

Evangelist visits, condemns students

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

George Smock, campus evangelist, speaks to a crowd of students Tuesday afternoon on Bosco Student Plaza. Smock travels using shock evangelism at universities nationwide.

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When it comes to subtle points, George "Jed" Smock doesn't have any, or at least none that he shows. He's dressed in a three-piece tweed suit. In his hand is a Holy Bible. Behind him is a sign that says "Fear God." In front of him are what he claims to be hell-bound sinners.

"You need a good spanking with the Scripture," he told a crowd at Bosco Student Plaza Tuesday. "You need a good Bible beating."

Smock has hand-delivered his style of fire-and-brimstone, confrontational evangelism to campus grounds around the country, and Tuesday he arrived at Bosco Student Plaza to deliver his vehement message.

But his fierce condemnation of what he sees as the rabidly immoral behavior of university students leaves some bristling with indignation and others mocking and jeering.

"He makes the beginning of several quality theological arguments. He just doesn't articulate them very well, and I'm just terribly amused by all the fresh-out-of-high-school undergraduates who really bring up these god-awful points," said Marquis Clark, graduate student in political science and women's studies.

Opposition to Smock's rhetoric comes not only from students. In fact, many Christian groups have said they oppose his preaching methods.

"Someone comes in like that and basically drops the bomb and drives away the next day, and the rest of us campus ministers have to clean up the mess," said Bryan Elliott, director of Chi Alpha campus ministries.

Elliott said he and other campus ministers prefer developing relationships with students rather than Smock's blunt and direct attacks.

"I have more students open up to me when I develop a relationship with them," Elliot said.

Smock said his methods are unorthodox by modern Christian standards but remains committed to his controversial methods.

"Jesus' first message wasn't, 'Smile I love you,' but, 'Repent and praise the gospel,'" he said.

Preaching and prayer has, admittedly, not always been Smock's path.

Smock said he was originally a university professor who was caught

See PREACHER Page 5

Electronic equipment stolen from EZ Audio

By Austin Apple
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Almost $25,000 of merchandise was stolen from EZ Audio Monday morning when the business was buglarized, said Lt. Mike Quintanar of the Riley County Police Department.

The burglary occured between midnight and 9:57 a.m. Monday. Quintanar said someone forced entry through the front door of the business, which is located at 1815 Fort Riley Blvd.

Quintanar said the stolen merchandise included $1,200 worth of neon lights, $100 in cordless drills, a $15,000 sound meter, three CD players valued at $600, parts to a Cadillac valued at $4,000, and speakers valued at $4,097.

The damage to the front door was estimated at about $500.

The case is still under investigation.

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 54 Low: 24

INSIDE

Voting day preparations
Incumbent Jerry Moran will face-off against John Doll in the 1st Congressional election. To find out more about both candidates, see story Page 5

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Health Fair
Lafene Health Center will have its Health Fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today at the Union Courtyard. Departments within Lafene will provide information about health issues. Prizes will be given to attendees, including a football autographed by Ron Prince.

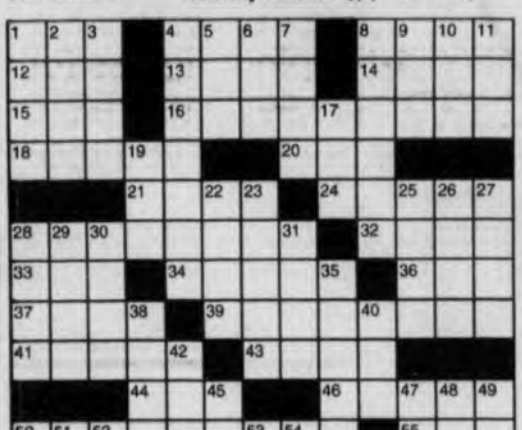
Merit list
Jonathan Spikes, graduate in curriculum and instruction, and Elizabeth Hill, senior in history, were ranked in the top 1 percent of the National Order of Merit List for the Army ROTC. Hill is the highest ranked cadet in Kansas, ranking eighth in the nation of 3,806 cadets.

Honored family
Hal and Phyllis Broadie will be honored at several events Saturday during the Family Day celebration. They were nominated by their grandchildren Weston Fox, sophomore in electrical engineering, and Bethany Fox, junior in pre-nursing. Each of the couple's daughters and grandchildren has attended K-State.

Party time
Americans between the ages of 18 and 34 are more likely to say they usually attend a Halloween party, wear a costume or display Halloween decorations.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 "—Impossible"
4 Ms. Moore
8 Competent
12 Ovine comment
13 Square
14 Cheat at hide-and-seek
15 Sort
16 Crawly creature
18 "Star Trek" genre
20 Raw rock
21 "Diary of — Housewife"
24 Vibes
28 Dollar : cents :: peso : —
32 Leeway
33 Miss. neighbor
34 Clark's partner
36 "The Greatest"
37 Nasty stinger
39 Focused
41 Trap
43 Upper House legislator
44 Rock band's need
46 Colorado ski mecca
50 Roman soldier
55 Conductor de Waart
56 Malaria symptom
57 "It shouldn't happen to —"
58 Past
59 Frogs' home
60 Sulk
61 Author Deighton

DOWN
1 Wading bird
2 After-bath application
3 H.H. Munro's pseudonym
4 What's the point of mathematics?
5 Cain's mother
6 Lavatory sign
7 Grooving on
8 Show up
9 Spell-down
10 Started
11 — out a living
17 Annoy
19 Corpulent
22 Opposite of "sans"
23 Wooden peg
25 Bellow
26 Beauty spot
27 Surrounded by
28 Cornfield chatter
29 Verve
30 Houston acronym
31 China (Pref.)
35 Odd
38 Talked on and on
40 Mag. staffers
42 Ostrich's kin
45 Stroller
47 Ring out
48 Advantage
49 Midday
50 Upper limit
51 Freudian concept
52 Sister
53 Altar affirmative
54 "Alley —"

Solution time: 21 mins.

D	R	I	P		P	E	P	S		H	O	B
U	N	D	O		E	D	I	T		A	B	A
E	A	S	T	E	N	D	E	R		P	O	W
			A	R	T	Y		I	M	P	E	L
B	A	S	T	E		O	K	A	Y
A	L	T	O		L	A	V	E	N	D	E	R
L	E	I		E	A	G	E	R		A	P	E
D	E	F	E	N	D	E	R		E	Y	E	D
		F	I	N	S			A	P	S	E	S
D	U	N	N	O		O	S	L	O
O	N	E		B	A	R	T	E	N	D	E	R
I	T	S		L	I	C	E		Y	O	G	A
N	O	S		E	D	A	M		M	E	O	W

Yesterday's answer 11-1

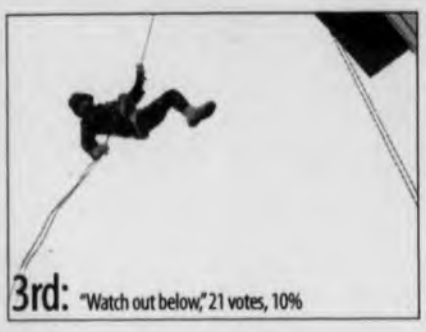
11-1 CRYPTOQUIP

PRMC OEHF PRWGDMO BFWCD CMMBG XE ZM FMJWQQMB, W QWDM XE XRWCD EJ WX YG ZEHFZEC FMCMPYQ.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHEN YOU MAIL SOME CHECKS TO YOUR SWISS BANK, I'D SAY THAT COULD BE MONEY TO BERN.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: X equals T

ON THE WEB



LIke the Collegian, but doesn't leave ink on your fingers

Your picks for Photos of the Week

Don't forget to vote for this week's photos at www.kstatecollegian.com

TABERNACLE WOODS

By Donnie Jay

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Lafene Health Center's 16th-annual Health Fair is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the Union Courtyard. There will be free popcorn, drinks and prizes.
- An Ink Barrell Chat featuring faculty panelists discussing their experiences with diversity in Collegian coverage will be at 2:30 p.m. today in Kedzie 4.
- There will be a SafeZone training advanced session, "Encountering Depressed or Suicidal Students," from 4 to 5:30 p.m. today in Union 212. Check-in is at 4:45 p.m.
- Ross University School of Veterinary Medicine will offer an information seminar for students considering pursing a doctorate in veterinary medicine at 6 tonight in Union 209. Online registration is required. To register, visit www.RossU.edu/vet and select "attend a Ross seminar."
- The Fair Trade Film Series will be 6:30-8:45 tonight at the Manhattan Public Library Auditorium. The topic is "The Case for Fair Trade: Exploring Challenges and Alternatives." The films "No Logo," "Not for Sale" and "The Global Assemblyline" will be presented.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kyle Larson at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in Fiedler 2116.
- Walk-in Flu Vaccine Clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

Corrections and clarifications

There was an error in Tuesday's Collegian. The University Master Plan has 69 pages. The Collegian regrets the error. The Collegian regrets the error. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

$1.50 Drinks
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
$2 DRINKS $2.25 BOTTLES
SUNDAY · NOV. 5TH · JASON BOLAND
· AND THE STRAGGLERS ·
TICKETS $15 · ON SALE NOW!

GUMBY'S Pizza
We roll ours fatter...
We are talking about our
50¢ pizza rolls
All Day sauce extra
$1 Bud & Bud Light Draws
50¢ Pool All Day

GET ACT!VATED!
It's as easy as 1, 2, 3:
1. Activate your free Wildcat Works! eRecruiting account.
2. Upload your résumé.
3. Publish your résumé.
Questions? Stop in between noon - 4 p.m. for Walk-in Wednesday!
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career
www.k-state.edu/ces

k-state family day
Saturday, November 4, 2006
www.k-state.edu/familyday

A Common Sense Approach
Sydney Says:
"The Kansas economy is tied to good schools. We must make every effort to maintain the highest quality in public education."
The state must live up to its commitment to fund education:
• Pre-School thru K-16
• Early childhood and mentoring programs
• Manhattan Area Technical College
• Kansas State University
• Lessen the reliance on local option budgets (property tax)
SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
Endorsed by: EPAC (Educating All Children), KNEA, the political arm of KASB and USA - Kansas, Biz PAC, the Greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce PAC (Citizens For Higher Education).
www.sydneycarlin.com
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District, John E. Carlin, Treasurer.

Advertise here.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
110 Kedzie 785-532-6560

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS
Student Legal Services Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 4:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request.
for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

Mall provides safe place for kids to trick or treat

Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"Trick or treat," 3-year-old Jose Vera said.

Vera, dressed as a soldier, was participating in the annual Boo Party at the Manhattan Town Center.

"I want to be like my dad," Vera said. "My dad's in the army, too."

The Boo Party, which took place Tuesday evening, gave children the opportunity to trick-or-treat inside the mall. Many of the stores handed out candy to the kids as they walked through the mall.

"We do have a couple of stores that don't participate for various reasons like staffing," Sara Van Allen, marketing manager for the mall, said. "But for the most part, we have 98 percent of the stores participate."

The Boo Party had many events planned including a "Creepy Costume Contest" and two Susan G. Komen foundation charity events: pumpkin painting in the center court for a $2 donation; and the ATA Black Belt Academy's Board Breaks for the Cure, where participants attempt to break 1,000 wooden boards in one hour to benefit the foundation.

"If you give a can of food for the Flint Hills Breadbasket at the customer service desk, you get a free trick-or-treat bag," Van Allen said.

There were long lines in front of stores as children and parents waited to get candy.

"Rumor has it there should be around 3,000 kids here tonight," said Katie Lane, junior in communication science and employee at Bath and Body Works.

Each store is advised to buy between 3,000 to 4,000 pieces of candy, Van Allen said.

"I love this for the fact that you get to see all the little ones and the creativity and the parents," Van Allen said. "It's just the most fun."

Children of all ages were around the mall participating in all of the events.

"I'm a snow tiger because of a report at school," 7-year-old Kameryn Vargo said. "We went to the computer lab and learned about tigers and how quiet they are."

Many parents said they believe trick-or-treating at the mall is a great idea.

"It'll be a different experience for the kids," John Vargo, Junction City resident, said. "It's a different approach for trick-or-treating, and it's definitely a lot safer."

Store managers also said the event helped with sales. Hot Topic assistant manager Mike O'Brien said when the store participated last year sold more Halloween items.

"It's also a lot of fun, and I get to dress up," O'Brien said.

Michelle Mesa, visual manager of Hollister, Co., said the store loves to support the community and see all the children.

"We're excited to see the kids in the store," she said. "It's fun to see the costumes and the people. All the little witches and the little lions."

Reaching for stability

Derek Harvey, senior intelligence adviser to Army General George Casey, the top commander of U.S. forces in Iraq, presents a lecture titled "The State of the Environment in Iraq" Tuesday morning in Forum Hall. The lecture, which was open only to K-State students and faculty, dealt with the various forces operating in Iraq and obstacles to reaching stability in the region.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Check Out sudoku in the Classifieds

dependable, quality service
√color copies
Claflin Books and Copies

Tom HAWK
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Katha Hurt Treasurer

University Distinguished Lecture
James J. Heckman, Ph.D. is the Henry Schultz Distinguished Service Professor of Economics at the University of Chicago. He is an expert on the economic effects of early education on educational attainment and quality of later life.
Heckman, a labor economist who won the Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences in 2000, has discovered that the crucial period for educational intervention for at-risk children is before the age of five. Outcomes for these children can be significantly improved with access to high-quality, early education programs.
James J. Heckman, Ph. D.
2000 Nobel Laureate
"Skills, Schools and Synapses"
Friday, November 3, 2006
1:30 p.m. Lecture
K-State Union Forum Hall
Reception to Follow
College of Human Ecology • College of Education • Department of Economics • Institute for Academic Alliances • University Distinguished Lecture Committee

Have friends that eat all your food?
Next time, get a 1-topping Big Ass for $11.99 so there's enough for you too.
GUMBY'S Pizza
This coupon is located in the blue Menu Guide section of your Campus Phone Book.

DISTINGUISHED SPEAKERS SERIES 2006
CENTER FOR THE UNDERSTANDING OF ORIGINS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
"GENIE'S TOP 10 WAYS TO TEACH EVOLUTION BETTER"
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3RD, 4:30PM, THOMPSON 101
EUGENIE C. SCOTT
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR SCIENCE EDUCATION

FACULTY/STAFF Night - Nov. 3 $2 discount
KSU Theatre presents
TARTUFFE
by Moliere
HILARIOUS...
ENTERTAINING...
FUN, FUN, FUN!
November 2, 3 and 4
McCain Auditorium 8 p.m.
TKTS: McCain Box Office: open 11am to 5pm weekdays and at the K-State Union Little Theatre Box Office
11:30 to 1:30 weekdays. 532-6428 Online: ksu.edu/sctd
$8 student/child $11 military $13 public
Sponsored by Pizza Hut of Manhattan

Mondays mean Menu Mania
Every Monday look in the Collegian for the hottest deals from the hottest restaurants
To advertise in Menu Mania, Call 785-632-6560

Have you ever had to convince everyone that working on the Homecoming Float would be "fun"?
Our paper is a lot more fun to work with than toilet paper.
Collegian Advertising Sales- We're not selling toiletries
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL or email jkarmon@ksu.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL FRIDAY, NOV. 17 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

The Awesome Life with MICHAEL IAN BLACK
AS SEEN ON COMEDY CENTRAL'S STELLA, VH1'S I LOVE THE 70'S / 80'S / 90'S & WET HOT AMERICAN SUMMER
TUESDAY NOV 7, 2006
8:00 PM
McCAIN AUDITORIUM
McCain Box Office: 532-6428
11am-5pm, Mon-Fri
Little Theatre Box Office:
11:30am-1:30pm, Mon-Fri
TICKETS
ADVANCE TICKETS
STUDENTS W I.D. $10
NON STUDENTS $15
DAY OF THE SHOW
STUDENTS W I.D. $15
NON STUDENTS $20
*PRICE INCLUDES TAXES AND FEES
IN BLACK with MICHAEL

OPINION

CLASH WEEK

Technology or tradition

Wooden pencils fun to chew on, but mechanical pencils better projectiles, more efficient to use, cheaper to maintain

KERRY FISCHER

When it comes to writing utensils, ink pens rank at the top of my list. A close second are mechanical pencils. Since writing is a big part of my career, it's important to have writing utensils that keep up with my rapid hand movements. If I can't use a pen, I reach for a mechanical pencil.

They are far superior to wooden pencils. For starters, mechanical pencils never have to be sharpened. There's nothing worse than hearing the grating sound of a pencil sharpener chewing up a wooden pencil in the middle of an exam. Honestly, how can a person concentrate with that noise boring into her skull? At least with mechanical pencils, all it takes is a couple clicks of the top and, poof. New lead appears. You didn't even have to leave your seat, nor did you break anyone's concentration.

Since mechanical pencils are made of plastic, all you need is one. Period. There's no reason to purchase pack after pack of mechanical pencils because they will never get smaller. Replacing the lead in them is easy and cheap. You can buy a container of lead for about a nickel, and it lasts an entire semester. Since I'm sure we all want new ways to save money, here you go. Buy mechanical pencils, and rest easy knowing you saved yourself a few dollars.

Furthermore, not only is the lead in a mechanical pencil replaceable, so is the eraser. How many wooden pencils do you know that boast that nifty trick? Once the eraser on a wooden pencil is worn down, that's it. You are left with a wooden stub that has no top.

In addition, mechanical pencils don't smear as bad on paper. If an instructor hands back a paper with comments written in pencil, chances are he or she used a mechanical pencil because he or she knows mechanical pencils have stronger staying power. Plus, comments are easier to decipher, since mechanical pencil lead is smaller and stays sharper for more than five seconds.

To be fair, wooden pencils do have a few redeeming qualities. They help ease nerves because they are soft enough to chew on. Leaving teeth marks in a wooden pencil is almost as therapeutic as punching someone, without the added risks of broken bones or retaliation. Secondly, wooden pencils stick in the ceiling much more effectively than mechanical pencils, perhaps because the lead is thicker or perhaps because they are better shaped as projectile weapons. Finally, wooden pencils are easily broken, so when a roommate pisses you off, snap a wooden pencil and put it out of its misery. Trust me – you'll be glad you did.

So, next time you take a trip to Wal-Mart and meander into the school supply aisle, try something new and buy a mechanical pencil. It will be a loyal friend and companion for the remainder of your college career and you'll reap the benefits tenfold.

Kerry Fischer is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Wooden pencils great for writing long assignments, let user experience history, much safer than mechanical pencils

LACEY D. MACKEY

Classic. Yellow. Pink topper. Writes like a dream.

The traditional wooden pencil: it's part of history, people.

In ancient times, scribes etched out writings with thin rods made of lead. Although we still refer to the marking substance in the middle of pencils as lead, they are now made of graphite. Wait, it gets better.

Small children living on the prairies of the United States would complete long division and spelling words with a wooden pencil, diligently scribbling away at their primers, trying to overcome harsh winters and lack of food.

Do you think Laura Ingalls Wilder would have used a mechanical pencil? Mm-hmm. Didn't think so.

Now, I'll give mechanical pencils a point for being useful for math, especially those icky powers and square roots, etc.

When studying English or writing papers, it seems like a sacrilege to use anything but a wooden pencil. I'm sure if Shakespeare would have had the option, he would have chosen a wooden pencil. Great writers go with a classic.

It's true. Mechanical pencils, or "Eversharps," as we used to call them, supposedly never run out of lead. You don't need a pencil sharpener. Shavings are lost in the abyss. Blah, blah, blah.

But that incessant clicking. Yeah, it's fun for a while and keeps you alive during bouts of severe boredom, but have you ever been in class behind an incessant clicker? Not my idea of entertainment.

On the topic of annoying noises, have you ever had a mechanical pencil that squeaks when you write with it? Unnatural. You begin wondering if a mouse got caught in your pencil. That's just awkward.

How about the classic lead break-off? Try to start writing with a mechanical pencil, and magically, the lead seems to break at an inopportune moment.

It's dangerous, this fierce breaking that easily could put an eye out with the correct trajectory (although, I have not encountered a case of blindness due to high-speed mechanical lead – yet). While a wooden pencil also breaks, you get the pleasure of rising from your chair (a.k.a. exercise – no Rec for wooden-pencil users) and sharpening your pencil. You might count this a liability, but it breaks up a monotonous class, and, if you see a cutie, it's an extra opportunity to catch his or her eye. And you thought sharpening your pencil was boring.

What about those pretend nubs on the ends of mechanical pencils they call erasers? Ha. I laugh at the face of nubby erasers. When the eraser on a mechanical pencil gets too low, you have to dig it out of its cave with a sharp object. Nast-o. When a wooden pencil's eraser is depleted, it cannot be replaced, but let's be honest – pencil-top erasers look cooler on a wooden pencil than mechanical.

Now, let's talk about some premier pencils.

The Dixon Ticonderoga. It's the iPod nano of pencils.

Started in 1913, this pencil company was named after Fort Ticonderoga, the military post in New York. Patriotic and useful.

The company produces about half a billion pencils annually, according to the Dixon Ticonderoga Web site. Did you catch that? Half a billion pencils. They write pretty, too.

Wooden pencils. Past, present and future. The writing utensil of choice. Use it, keep it and live the history. And even if you are a mechanical lover, keep a wooden pencil in the backpack for grins. It would make Laura Ingalls Wilder proud.

Lacey D. Mackey is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Evangelist shouldn't change your views

An individual is confronted with the opportunity to change his or her opinions and beliefs, be it in the area of sports, food preferences or political affiliation, many times each day.

But few beliefs are as fiercely defended and challenged as religion.

Anyone on campus can see this by listening to or walking near evangelist George Smock.

Speaking in Bosco Student Plaza, Smock has preached ideals that some might see as the extremes of a radical. He is a classic example of why some people strongly oppose any kind of religious faith.

Certain extremists who take their religion out of context are nothing new, but since someone of the sort is so close to our learning environment, we should use it to do just that: learn.

We all should take a lesson from Smock and do the opposite of what he does and preaches. No one should take what he says seriously or allow it to influence his religious decision or choice.

Often, one believer can give a bad name or image to people of the same faith, and Smock is such a believer.

He ruins a belief system set on love, brotherhood and forgiveness, using it to tell listeners why they should reject and shun anyone who is not a carbon copy of Smock.

We encourage everyone to see Smock, and listen to what he has to say. But his words should not have an influence on the day to day lives or decisions of anyone who pays attention to him.

Be open-minded towards him and others with whom you disagree, even if they aren't.

CAMPUS FOURUM
395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

I love warm fall days, because just when you thought they had gone into hibernation, Jean shorts make one last glorious return.

Can you sneeze in my ear, so I can put my tongue up your nose? That'd be great, and hot.

So the city put up crossing guards on north Manhattan, but everybody fails to push the buttons. Ironic? I think not.

On behalf on all Christians, allow me to apologize for the ridiculous evangelist yesterday in the Bosco Student Lounge.

How much trouble can you get into if you order a water at Mcdonald's and fill it up with pop?

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

PREACHER | Evangelist talks of his experiences with occasions of converts, assaults, broken bones

Continued from Page 1

up in the socially turbulent times of the 1960s.

"I turned on, tuned in and dropped out," he said.

On the way to studying Hinduism in India, he stopped at a hippy commune, and there is where his conversion happened, he said.

"It was there, on Christmas day in 1971, that a man dressed in mid-east attire came and planted a cross in the midst of our hippy band and started preaching in the name of Jesus," he said.

Smock has been evangelizing on campuses since 1974 with contributions from churches and individuals. Some of his contributors, Smock said, began as his opponents.

He also has more than his fair share of occupational hazards. In addition to the standard cheers, Smock's fire has landed him in the middle of protests. He said on a few occasions he has been physically assaulted, resulting in broken bones.

"That doens't disturb me when they mock," he said. "The most sacred solemn moment in history was when Jesus was hanging on the cross, and the multitude stood at the foot of the cross and mocked."

The job has its rewards as well.

Although rare, Smock said on occasion people will proclaim their faith during his appearances, and one such convert became his wife.

"They'll go back to their dorm room and in the solitude of their dorm room they'll think, 'Why did I let that preacher affect me so much?'" he said.

Some of Smock's critics contend his approach pushes the line between shocking and simply vulgar with blatant and, at times, over-the-top references to sex and sexuality. In one display, he used an electrical extension cord and its plug for a demonstration of male and female genitalia.

"It's not something I would say in church or in polite society," he said. "But this is college campus ... it's somewhat a 'Saturday Night Live' approach to evangelism."

Though his means might be unpopular and his presence riling, Smock contends his methods are necessary for the audience.

"You've got to shock them out of their spiritual difference and spiritual apathy," he said.

Whatever his goals, his crowd-stirring methods remain controversial, and for some, simply amusing.

"It's made my entire day," Clark said. "I think its awesome."

Smock will speak today at Bosco Student Plaza before moving on to the University of Kansas.

Face off

	Jerry Moran	John Doll
Party	[illegible]	[illegible]
Political experience	Four terms in Congress; eight years in Kansas Senate	None
Residence	[illegible]	[illegible]
Birth date	May 29, 1954	July 3, 1957
Previous work	[illegible]	[illegible]
Education	Bachelor of Science, University of Kansas - 1976 Juris Doctor degree, University of Kansas Law – 1981	Bachelor of Science, St. Mary of the Plains College - 1979 Graduate school, Emporia State University
Quote	"[illegible] get far ahead of the processions in Washington."	"I will give our government back to its rightful owners, the people, where it belongs."
Prediction from a poll by Congressional Quarterly	91%	8%

District election candidates agree on rights, differ on war in Iraq, issues with immigration

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Incumbent congressman Jerry Moran will face off against former teacher and businessman John Doll in the 1st Congressional District election. The 1st District, often referred to as the "Big First," contains 69 Kansas counties, encompassing most of the central, western and some eastern parts of the state.

In a televised debate on Oct. 20, both candidates commented on foreign and domestic policy issues.

In terms of security, both men said constitutionally guaranteed rights should trump the domestic measures taken.

However, the men do not agree on the purpose of the Iraq war. Both candidates have said the time to leave Iraq is quickly approaching.

"We need to get out of Iraq, and we need to get out soon," Doll said. "We were misled. There is no objective."

While Moran took another approacth.

"Things have deteriorated dramatically," Moran said. "We cannot become an occupying force. It is, in very short order, time for the Iraqi people to stand up for themselves."

The candidates agree the topic of illegal immigration is important to constituents of the 1st District. While both men agree a problem exists, they differ on who is to blame.

"Generally, the comment is, 'What part of illegal don't you understand?'" Moran said.

Moran said he believes an answer resides in enforcing the border with Mexico to stop illegal immigrants from entering the country.

Doll said it is not the immigrants, but the employers, who will be key to stopping illegal immigration.

"We need to put the responsibility on the employer," Doll said.

You know how great food smells when you don't have to make it yourself?

We can get that for you.

Check out the MENU GUIDE in back of the Campus Phone Book

Available in Kedzie 103
Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings

"She was a beautiful bride."

Once in a Lifetime,
in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.

To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103.
To advertise, call 532-6560.

Collegian Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Krystallos Invites you to our
CHRISTMAS OPEN HOUSE
SUN. NOVEMBER 5TH 12-5:00 PM
FOOD DRINK FUN
Get a fun and early start on your Christmas shopping.
Buy $250.00 worth of merchandise and we will give you a $50.00 gift certificate free.

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.

for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm

Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Wednesday Specials
$2 any pint & wells
$2.50 uv blue bombs
$3.50 flavored long islands, carbombs & summerbeer

We're Looking For YOU!

Executive Position
Spring 2007
Editor in chief
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 10
Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15

News Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
•Copy Editors • Designers
•Photojournalists
•Graphic Journalists
•Graphic Artists
•Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 17

Pick up applications in Kedzie 103
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A LOT CAN BE SAID ABOUT A LITTLE BIT OF SPACE.....
IT WORKS
To give it a try, call or stop by Collegian advertising 103 Kedzie 785-532-6560

Just let it out...
YELL at the Public Editor
Logan C. Adams, Public Editor of the Collegian, will be available today on the first floor of the K-State Student Union from 10am - 12pm to hear your thoughts.
Until then, e-mail him at publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu
* Intentionally defaced by the Collegian Staff

WHEN YOU'RE DONE READING ALL THE ARTICLES, DON'T FORGET TO WASTE MORE TIME IN LECTURE BY DOING THE
SUDOKU
LOCATED IN THE COLLEGIAN'S CLASSIFIEDS SECTION

SPORTS

How to keep a motivated workout

Staying motivated is the key to staying in the weight room.

Wake up. Get ready. Go to class. Go work out. Do your homework. Go to bed.

TRENT SCOTT

Then follow the same routine day after day. How monotonous.

Being bored with school comes naturally, but that does not mean you have to be bored with your workout.

Loss of interest in an exercise routine is a huge adversary of exercise adherence. According to the American Council on Exercise, 50 percent of the people who begin a routine will quit within the first six months.

Don't become a statistic. Here are some ways to keep yourself motivated and your workout interesting.

CHANGE YOUR WORKOUT

You have been doing the same routine for the last two months. Well guess what – your body is bored.

Sticking to the same routine for extended periods of time allows your body to grow accustomed to the stress you put on it, and once your body is able to handle this stress, it no longer has to adapt to complete your workout. This means you are lifting the same weights and seeing the same results that you did a month ago.

Keep your body guessing. Change the number of sets you do or the number of repetitions. It can be as easy as adding five pounds to every lift.

Alter your routine every two to six weeks to keep your body and your mind from getting bored.

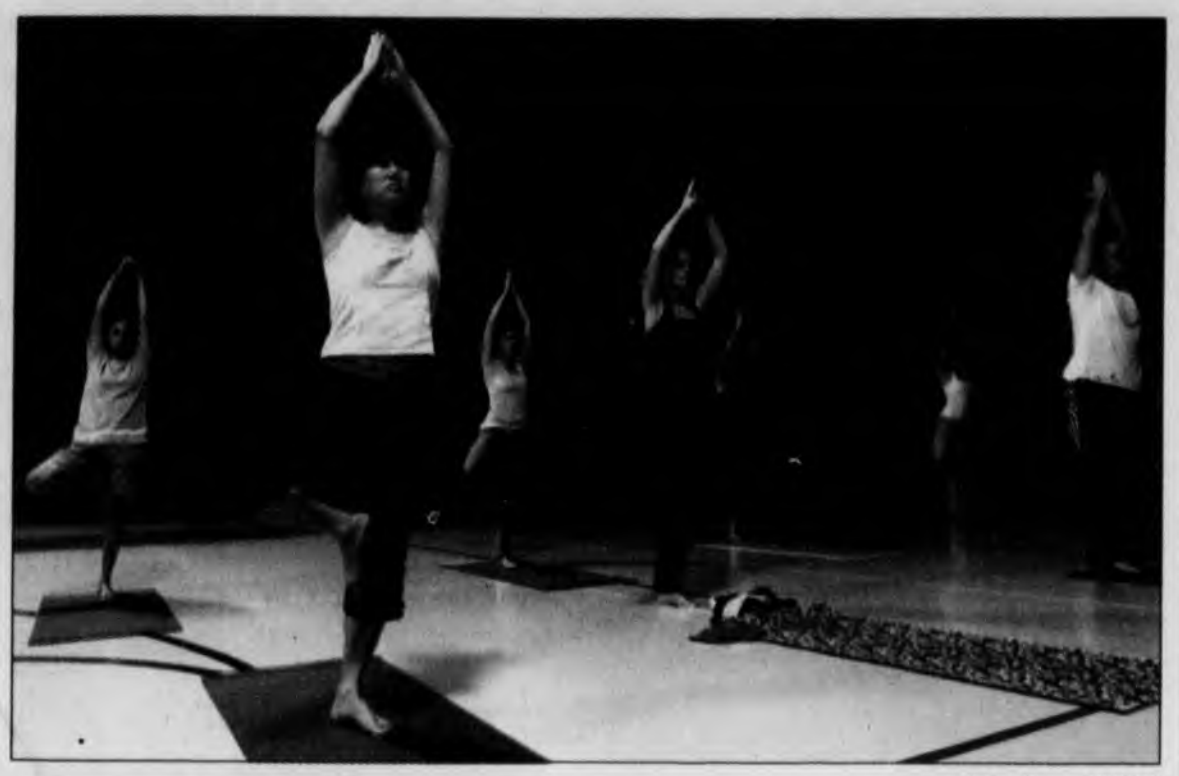
CRANK THE TUNES

Adding a little music to your workout can make a world of difference. If you have failed to do so already, go out and buy a personal music device. Then get to the gym and turn up the volume.

Music is a great way to get pumped up and excited about blasting your way through the next set.

GET A PERSONAL TRAINER

Yeah, I might be tooting my own horn, but getting a personal trainer might just be the best money you have spent on yourself in a long time. It's easier to get motivated when you have someone motivated for you.



Personal trainers are educated and experienced in a multitude of ways to keep you from getting bored and to keep you seeing the results you want.

Trent Scott is a junior in nutrition and exercise science and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Your health | Staying interested

Mind and body

Who knew yoga could be this good?

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Working out on the Cycle Plus, Mindy Parry, senior in kinesiology, does the 20-minute part of her daily routine Sept. 15, 2005, at Peters Recreation Complex.

By Melissa Haug
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Overall health cannot be measured in physical strength and stamina alone. Both men and women must strive to enhance their mental health and flexibility as well. Many fail to realize that soundness of mind plays a major role in maintaining well being for the long haul.

One way to zest up your workout routine while improving mental stability is to consider taking yoga on a regular basis.

This form of exercise not only has long-term health benefits, but also is relatively safe and provides a low-impact workout for individuals of all ages.

"The many variations for all poses allow people of all experience levels to take part and feel the benefits," said Katie James, group fitness instructor at Peters Recreation Complex.

"Yoga benefits me personally, both mentally and physically. It's my time out of my day to relax and take a step back and slow down to really enjoy life," said the senior in dietetics, nutrition and kinesiology.

Yoga can be performed in virtually any environment: at home, in a hotel room on a trip or during classes at local facilities.

When performed appropriately it serves as a mindful exercise that provides soundness of the entire body.

According to the Aerobics and Fitness Association of America, yoga is a way to make space in and around joints while increasing flexibility.

Yoga postures create new alignments and proper functioning of the body and its organs by aiding in muscle balance development and movement stability, as well as flexibility and overall relaxation.

Yoga postures create new alignments and proper functioning of the body and its organs by aiding in muscle balance development and movement stability, as well as flexibility and overall relaxation, according to the American Council on Exercise.

According to ACE, yoga benefits the cardiorespiratory system by decreasing resting blood pressure and improving pulmonary function, while increasing maximum oxygen consumption and physical work capacity.

It benefits the musculoskeletal system by increasing muscular strength and flexibility, while instilling balance control. It improves posture and decreases risk of falls among older adults.

Yoga affects the psychobiological aspect of the body by increasing cognitive performance and decreasing stress hormones, according to ACE. It also helps reduce symptoms of insomnia, while improving relaxation and psychological well being. It even has been known to decrease risk and symptoms of osteoarthritis.

Yoga, however, is more than including a "inner-self element" into your physical activity. This type of exercise requires noncompetitive meditation, along with mental focus.

Although males are reluctant to partake in yoga, the benefits of the exercise are not discriminatory.

"Flexibility, which has been shown to improve performance in athletics and overall physical fitness, allows muscles to relax and stretch," James said. "Males should also know that they will be working all the muscle groups, sometimes in ways they are not used to, allowing for muscle strength and toning gains to occur."

There are two specific types of yoga. Hatha yoga is particularly favorable for individuals struggling with arthritis, asthma, low-back pain and postural problems. The other, Tai Chi, is beneficial in enhancing motor skills and balance.

"Yoga harmonizes the mind with the body, resulting in real quantum benefits," James said. "It's no closed secret, the will power of the mind has enabled people to achieve extraordinary physical feats. This certainly proves, beyond doubt, the mind and body connection."

Melissa Haug is a senior in public health nutrition and dietetics and a nutrition consultant and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | K-State travels to Colorado for match with Buffaloes tonight

A season that has not lived up to expectations has done nothing to change the approach taken by K-State women's volleyball coach Suzie Fritz.

"I'm disappointed that we are not meeting our (expectations), but I'm not going to coach them any different," she said. "You have to be really good to win in this league."

The Wildcats (9-14, 1-12 Big 12) were predicted to finish fourth in the Big 12 Conference Preseason Volleyball Poll, but find themselves in last place, with just one conference win so far this season.

After starting off the season 8-1 and ranked as high as 24th in the CSTV/AVCA Coaches Poll, the Wildcats have lost 13 of 14 matches heading into their match at Colorado tonight.

Still, Fritz said she is focused on the present and is not looking ahead to next season or beyond.

"This is it, I'm just thinking about Colorado," she said.

K-State at Colorado
Where: Coors Events Center, Boulder, Colo.
Time: 8 tonight
Radio: 1350 KMAN
Live stats available at k-statesports.com

The last time K-State played Colorado (12-8, 8-5 Big 12) was Oct. 7 at Aheam Field House. The Buffaloes defeated the Wildcats 3-0 and won each game by just two points.

But this has been a year where the Wildcats have struggled to win close games and matches. The Wildcats have played six five-game matches and have lost all of them.

Fritz said she has been forced to find new ways to get results for her team.

"I've had to search and search and search and search, to try and find answers," she said. "We've had to work really hard."

One switch the Wildcats have made was moving junior Angie Lastra from libero to the outside hitter position — a change that took place shortly after the Wildcats' loss to Colorado earlier this season.

Since then, the Wildcats have managed to pull out their lone conference victory and have played better offensively.

Lastra has led the Wildcat attack the last six matches with 102 kills and has provided her team with a spark at the outside hitter position. Sophomore middle blocker Megan Farr has also contributed, registering double figures in kills four of the last five matches and leading the team with a .322 hitting percentage.

Since the Wildcats are too far down in the standings to compete for a conference title, Farr said her team will play fearlessly the rest of the season — starting with the Buffaloes.

"We really have nothing to lose," she said. "Worst-case scenario is we lose again ... so we'll just work our hardest."

— Jeffrey Rake

GLF | Wildcats make up 10 spots on final day of tournament

The K-State Women's Golf team shot up the leaderboard on the final day of the Watts Palmetto in Kiawah Island, S.C., going from 16th to sixth in the final round of the fall season.

The Wildcats shot a three-round total of 313-305-292—910 to claim their fourth top-10 team finish of the season. The final round 292 was a season low for the Wildcats, beating their previous best 306 at New Mexico State.

The combined team score of 910 is also a season low, beating the squad's 925, which was also shot at NMSU.

"The team did a great job today and we finished on a strong note with a 292," said head coach Kristi Knight. "They are excited with the strong finish and I hope they enjoy how satisfying it feels to play well. This is the ability they have. I am proud of all of them."

Senior Helene Robert carded a 76-76-74—226 to finish tied for 20th, extending K-State's streak to nine straight tournaments with an individual top-20 finisher.

Junior Hailey Mireles finished up at 79-80-71—230, to tie for 38th. Her final round of 71 (-1) was two strokes better than her previous career single-round low of 73 at the 2006 Big 12 Championships, and is the first below-par round of her collegiate career.

Junior Kali Quick posted scores of 76-77-77—230 to finish tied with Mireles for 38th place.

Senior Katy Heffel posted an 82-75-74—231 to finish tied for 41st. Heffel carded seven birdies over her final two rounds to help the team to its sixth place finish.

Junior Michelle Regan rounded out the K-State scoring, finishing with an 83-77-73—233 and tying for 50th.

News & Notes

Wide receiver Moreira doubtful for Saturday's game

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Senior wide receiver Jermaine Moreira is doubtful for Saturday's game against Colorado, coach Ron Prince said Tuesday at his weekly press conference. Moreira is the teams leader with 419 receiving yards and is second in catches on the team, behind tight end Rashaad Norwood, with 23.

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Coach Ron Prince said Jermaine Moreira, K-State's leading receiver, is doubtful for Saturday's game at Colorado because of the injury that held him out of last week's game.

"Moreira is doubtful at this time," Prince said. "We had a situation last week – late in the week – and he was doubtful for (last week), and now he's doubtful again."

This season, Moreira leads the Wildcats with 419 receiving yards and two touchdown catches.

RUNNING BACK BATTLE

So far this season, four different running backs have started for K-State.

James Johnson became the latest player to win the No. 1 spot, starting for the first time of his K-State career against Iowa State last Saturday. He rushed for 115 yards on 22 carries, scoring a touchdown.

He and true freshman Leon Patton are the top two running backs on on K-State's depth chart. Patton has started three games this year and leads the Wildcats with 374 rushing yards.

"We're looking for competition every day in practice," Prince said. "No matter what the score is, we're interested in how everyone is performing."

Prince said senior Thomas Clayton still has not been medically cleared.

GOING BOWLING?

Prince said his team's goal has been to get to November with the chance of making it to a bowl game. With a 5-4 record, K-State only needs to win one of its three remaining games to become bowl eligible.

"This is not the time or place to blink," Prince said. "This is the time or place to put another good week of practice together so we can go out and play as well as we can."

The last time K-State advanced to post-season play was in 2004 when the team lost to Ohio State 35-28 in the Fiesta Bowl.

Library's Spooky Storytime provides safe entertainment, treats

By Josh Rouse
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

While the big kids were preparing for Halloween hijinks, the little ones were having a party of their own.

The Manhattan Public Library offered its first Spooky Storytime Tuesday afternoon. A variety of events took place, including story time, singing, poems and trick-or-treating through the library.

Librarians read children several spooky stories, including "Moonlight the Halloween Cat," "Sweets and Treats" and "Peek-a-Booo." Melissa Lienemann, programming assistant, said reading the stories to the children was a good opportunity for them to trick-or-treat in a safe environment.

"I think it's good, especially for the little ones," Lienemann said. "Most of our audience was toddler age. We took them trick or treating around the library. It was a nice opportunity to do that during daylight."

"We just decided this year to do a separate thing and make it kind of a special occasion. I believe this is our first year of doing it separate."

Melissa Lienemann
PROGRAM ASSISTANT

All 37 of the children were clad in costumes, which included pirates, knights, ladybugs, a Hershey's kiss and even a K-State football player.

Accompanied by 48 adults, children had the opportunity to explore the library and get some sugary sweets along the way.

"We used to do Halloween stories just during our regular story times during the week," Lienemann said. "We just decided this year to do a separate thing and make it kind of a special occasion. I believe this is our first year of doing it separate."

Rhonna Hargett, a staff member at the library, brought her 3-year-old son Joseph to the festivities.

She said it was a good opportunity for her son and the other children who came.

"Well, I mean, anytime for him to be around reading and to enjoy stories is a good opportunity," Hargett said.

"Getting to know other areas of the library and seeing people that work there is a good thing. All the studies say any reading is going to help them out in school. The more they are around reading, the better it will be for the future. And I think it's just fun – good, healthy, wholesome fun."

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

FOUND: IPOD, describe and give location found to claim. 785-532-7946.

FOUND: SET of keys with white ribbon in Union parking lot Monday morning. To claim come into 103 Kedzie or call 785-532-6555 to identify.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

looking for a job?
CHECK THE
COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

145 Roommate Wanted

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Near Westloop. $300 per month plus one-half of utilities. Call 316-200-8735.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January or before through May. Four-bedroom house close to campus, small pets ok. $300 plus 1/4 utilities. 785-313-3702.

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath, apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

JANUARY SUBLEASER wanted for one bedroom apartment. Close to campus. $450 a month all utilities paid except electricity. 785-331-8842.

ONE OR two subleases nedded Spring 2007. Four-bedroom house, three blocks west of campus $290 plus utilities. 785-341-4869.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Living with guys in a five - bedroom house, two blocks from campus. Rent $288. Call Matt 913-908-7097.

SUBLEASE: FEMALE needed. One room of two-bedroom, two bathrooms, furnished, at 2215 College Ave. $375 a month. Call 785-317-0345.

SUBLEASER NEEDED next semester! Three-bedroom apartment, one and one-half bath, $750/ month plus electricity. One-half block from campus. Contact: riley2@ksu.edu.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for line cook positions, must have previous experience. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for servers, lunchtime availability preferred. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MILL CREEK Valley USD #329 is looking for a Freshmen Girls' Basketball Coach for Wabaunsee High School in Alma. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315. MCV is an equal opportunity employer.

RAMADA PLAZA, soon to be Holiday Inn at the Campus is now hiring: Night Bellman, Banquet Staff, Morning Restaurant Server and Morning Cook for weekends, Night Auditor, Maintenance and Sales Coordinator. Apply in person at 1641 Anderson Ave. 785-539-7531.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

310 Help Wanted

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

310 Help Wanted

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

PITA PIT, late night delivery drivers wanted, good pay plus great tips. In-store crew positions also available. Apply in person, 1131 Moro, Aggieville.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast management. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

TECHNICAL WRITER- Organized, detail-oriented, full-time Technical Writer with strong initiative needed immediately for a contract research and consulting firm. Must have strong written and oral communication skills with background in editing and proofreading. Word processing skills (MSWord, WordPerfect) a must with desktop publishing skills preferred. Responsible for supporting and producing high quality on-line documentation of information systems in addition to a variety of writing, editing, and proofing assignments. Bachelor's degree required. Excellent benefits. Send cover letter and resume to DPRA Department TW, 200 Research Drive, Manhattan, KS 66503; fax 785-539-5353; or e-mail manhattanjobs@dpra.com. No calls please. DPRA Incorporated Equal Opportunity Employer. M/F/D/V

310 Help Wanted

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

SIMPLY WIRELESS, your T-Mobile Exclusive Dealer is coming soon and has immediate openings for bright, energetic persons to join our sales team in Manhattan. We have openings for part-time retail sales representatives. Simply Wireless is a special place to work---a full dynamic environment where every person makes a difference. We are open for new and creative ideas to improve our company's market position. Our growth has been phenomenal and we're adding to our ranks. Your potential is only limited by your imagination as we grow; we've made a commitment to not lose sight of the reason for our success, our customers and the people who work here. Send resume to ecarlson@swphones.biz.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS Inc. at Kansas State University is seeking a full-time bookkeeper and accountant. Job responsibilities include financial record keeping, working with the director to develop the annual $1.3 million budget, inventory of equipment and some event planning. The position is a 12 month assignment and includes salary and benefits commensurate with experience and education. Minimum one-year experience in professional accounting work. Bachelor's required. To apply send cover letter, resume and recommendations to Linda S. Puntney, director of Student Publications Inc., 103 Kedzie, Manhattan, KS 66506 by November 1, 2006. Student Publications Inc is an equal opportunity employer and actively seeks diversity among its employees. Student Publications Inc. is a local agency of Kansas State University responsible for publishing the 11,500 circulation daily Collegian, the 492-page Royal Purple yearbook and the campus phonebook.

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT SECRETARY/ RECEPTIONIST WANTED. The Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement is seeking a student with excellent command of Microsoft Word and Excel as well as exceptional skills in telephone answering etiquette, grammar, filing, use of dictaphone, scheduling appointments and a variety of other office duties. Must be a quick learner, self-motivated and very detailed oriented. Must be willing to work school breaks and summer. Preference given to a person with past office experience. The position will be available immediately continuing through fall, some of Christmas break, spring and summer. Workweek fall and spring semesters is a minimum of 25 hours and a maximum of 30 hours. Summer will require 30- 40 hours weekly. For an application, contact Dorothy Smith in the Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, 122 Anderson Hall. Starting salary commensurate with experience. Deadline for submission of application is Thursday, November 2, 4:-00 p.m. to: Dorothy Smith Office of the Vice President, 122 Anderson Hall 785-532-5942.

Work
Advertise in the Classifieds
Call

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

1. ANTHOLOGY of Chinese Poetry (translated to English.) http://li_chung-wang0.tripod.com 2. The Philosophy of Mechanics. http://lcwangmech.tripod.-com.

KNOW WHEN someone enters your apartment, dorm, or bedroom. Security system that calls your cell phone. Simple one time $50 solution. www.-1lowbuy.com.

T-MOBILE SIDEKICK. Camera/ Internet/ email. Drop sim card in and ready to go. $175 or best offer. 785-317-8263 or 785-537-9212.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

BE PROUD in purple in Boulder, Colorado November 4. Game tickets for sale, $50 each. Call Kathy at GTM Sportswear 785-537-8822 extension 1120.

Call 785-532-6555 to advertise here

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 College Ski Week
BRECKENRIDGE
Ski 5 Resorts for the Price of 1
Breckenridge, Vail, Beaver Creek, Keystone & A Basin
$179
1-800-SKI-WILD
1-800-754-9453
www.ubski.com

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

6				8				4
		2						7
			5		3	2		6
			6			3	2	5
		5		7		6
4	9	6			5
5		1	4		2
9						1
7				9				3

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
ADVERTISING DESIGN

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@collegian.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

TOP ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

BOB BARKER ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT FROM SHOW

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Barker is heading toward his last showcase, his final "Come on down." The silver-haired daytime-TV icon is retiring in June, he told The Associated Press Tuesday.

Barker
GAME SHOW HOST

"I will be 83 years old on Dec. 12," he said, "and I've decided to retire while I'm still young."

He'll hang up his microphone after 35 years as the host of "The Price Is Right" and 50 years overall in television.

Though he has considered retirement for at least 10 years, Barker said he has so much fun doing the show he hasn't been able to leave.

"I've gone on and on and on to this ancient age because I've enjoyed it," he said. "I've thoroughly enjoyed it, and I'm going to miss it."

BULLOCK, LATIFAH, COURIC NAMED 'GLAMOUR WOMEN'

NEW YORK — Sandra Bullock, Queen Latifah and Katie Couric were three of the biggest names to be honored at the 17th-Annual Glamour Women of the Year awards Oct. 30 in New York, but all honorees this year came with significant accomplishments under their belts.

On the fashion front, three generations of Missoni's were honored — Angela, Rosita & Margherita Missoni — while former supermodel Iman, who is devoting herself to the AIDS crisis in Africa, was honored for her efforts to fund antiretroviral drugs for children and working with Keep a Child Alive.

The 202,949 women of the U.S. Military were collectively honored, as was Major Tammy Duckworth, who lost her legs during combat in 2004 in Iraq after her helicopter was shot down.

Another "Woman of the Year" included Laurie David, global warming activist who produced "An Inconvenient Truth" featuring former Vice President Al Gore.

MOST DOWNLOADED PINUP TO POSE FOR PLAYBOY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — She's been heralded for years as the most downloaded person on the Internet, which means ... you know what it means. People love looking at Cindy Margolis.

What it hasn't meant, all these years, though, as all those millions of lookers know, is seeing even one picture of this 21st-century pinup queen without at least a little something covering her.

No longer.

Margolis, who has been titillating fans since she was an undergrad at Cal State Northridge with her own line of greeting cards, has posed au natural for Playboy. The December issue, with her on the cover, hits newsstands Friday.

FAN SUES ROLLING STONES FOR CANCELED CONCERT

NEW YORK (Reuters) — The Rolling Stones on Tuesday canceled an upcoming concert in Hawaii and rescheduled three other performances, while a fan sued the band for $51 million for pulling out of a New Jersey show last week.

Singer Mick Jagger, 63, was with a sore throat, forcing the last-minute postponement of Friday's Atlantic City show, a rare theater show in New York that was delayed by a day until Wednesday, and now stadium gigs in Oakland, Calif., Vancouver, Canada, and Los Angeles.

Additionally, a Nov. 22 date scheduled for Honolulu's Aloha Stadium — the Stones' first in Hawaii since 1998 — has been canceled. The band's spokeswoman said she did not know why it was scrapped, but the Stones have been dogged by poor ticket sales in some cities. It also would have been costly for the band to fly in its stage and a large retinue.

Japanese trio Boris appropriate for all types, levels of metal fans

"Pink"
Grade: A-
Album review by Mark Sibilla

Six months ago, if you would've told me I was not only going to listen to but absolutely love metal music, I would've scoffed at you.

Excuse me, if you will, as I recount my journey evolving into (or being intelligently designed as) a certified metalhead.

I enjoy almost every genre of music; but never could get into metal.

I think this was because of prejudices I held against those who listen to metal – I never wanted to be associated as a metal type of person. As far as my biases were concerned, I had three breeds of the "Metallus Auditous" (those who listen to metal) species.

The first consists of two similar groups, at least in terms of tastes in metal: frat boys and country boys. The figurative sun in their solar system of musical-knowledge is "Sweet Home Alabama" by Lynyrd Skynyrd. Around this bright star are about 50 planets (i.e., songs), which consist of some Black Sabbath and Metallica floating amongst Slipknot and crappy nu-metal songs.

These creatures generally crank their metal while tailgating, barbecuing and doing keg stands.

The second variety consists of those who generally listen to prog-metal like Tool and dinosaurs from the 1970s like Rush and Yes. This breed rarely sees sunlight and listens to its music while trading bong hits and playing Dungeons and Dragons in the basement while their parents are out of the house.

Finally, there is the extreme metalhead. This individual is the 58-year-old, tattooed man complete with leather vest or the person who seldom leaves the house without his now-sleeveless Iron Maiden T-shirt that hasn't been washed since the 1983 tour.

This individual usually has a mohawk or a mullet and a variety of tattoos and piercings. He also has never missed an Ozzfest or KISS reunion show – ever.

I like barbecue, beer, bong hits and the occasional Tool album, so why don't I like metal?

I didn't have a good answer, but one day in April, on a whim, I purchased an album from doom/death/drone-metal band SUNN O))).

The album consisted of heavy tribal drums, bowel-rattling, down-tuned power chords, and shrill and repetitive guitar lines. Above all of this were vocals that ranged from inhuman guttural growls to piercing demon-shrieks.

This equation of me plus doom metal should have been like trying to divide by zero, but for some strange reason, the music was just crazy enough to pique my interest and enjoyable enough to get me interested in metal.

A few months later, American shores received the album "Pink" by Japanese power-trio Boris. This is Boris' first official American release. It is by far one of the best albums of the year and an album that even those disgusted by metal could like.

"Pink" begins ironically/appropriately with a song titled "Farewell." Some gentle buzzing and atmospherics begin the song, until about one minute later, when a huge drum fill and a mighty, distorted guitar slash take the listener on a psychedelic trip across acid-washed soundscapes.

While the music is heavy, the melodies are beautiful and the vocals are smooth and inviting. The absolute acme of the song occurs at four-and-one-half minutes, when a magnificent guitar solo soars above the beautiful melee created by the drums and bass.

The seven-minute opener is somewhat misleading because Boris is not here to soothe its audience; it is here to obliterate the eardrums and keep adrenaline surging. Thus, with a speeding guitar intro and an exclamatory howl, Boris barrels headfirst into the title track.

With amazing lead guitar work by Wata, steady bass support by Takeshi and inhuman tempo changes made by Atsuo on drums, the members of Boris reveal themselves to be true masters of metal (and why shouldn't they be – they've been around for more than 10 years).

"Woman on the Screen" picks up the tempo and increases the intensity of the riffing and shredding shared between guitar and bass. Amazingly, the band pushes things into the red even further with the fourth song, "Nothing Special," which is pure speed metal. Within two minutes, the song barrels through its run time before fading into shrieking feedback.

Boris offers a slight breather with "Blackout." This break isn't like walking a few laps after running five miles. It is more akin to getting kneed in the stomach instead of having your head beat against the wall. "Blackout" is Boris stretching its legs into different forms of metal – in this instance, that of doom and drone.

The thundering bass lines rumble the entrails; the drums are constantly pounding, filling the track with breakdowns that would cause the listener to fear for the health of the drum-heads. This all occurs as a squealing guitar line weaves in and out of the rhythm section and the ghostly vocals fill in any centimeter of the track not fully occupied by the other sepulchral sounds.

It would take much longer than my allotted space to describe the remaining excellence of "Pink." There is the driving, instrumental, "Electric," the dueling vocal and instrumental melodies of "Pseudo-Bread," the laid-back stoner rock of "Afterburner" and the powerful, surging "Six, Three Times."

After a short, languid instrumental interlude akin to Pink Floyd's "Shine on You Crazy Diamond," the best track on the album, "Just Abandoned My-Self," is released from its cage.

It is a three-movement song that begins with instrumental thrash metal and a surprisingly melodic vocal arrangement. It then segues into a noise/drone section as a severely distorted bass thunders underneath slow drum fills and beautiful guitar lines.

The song ends with pure distortion coupled with eastern-sounding guitar lines that bubble just below the surface of the sea of noise.

By the time "Pink" is finished, I am exhausted but in a state of pure ecstasy. This is an album in which no song is similar, but the album remains coherent due to the band's pure energy, vicious playing and common desire to create a veritable smorgasbord for metal listeners of all experience levels.

I have much to learn, but my desire to expand my metal horizons is ever growing. Any album that can not only offer repeated listens across months, but also give me the desire to explore an entirely new genre will definitely hold a spot in my heart.

HOROSCOPES

Your horoscope digest for today

Aquarius

The reputation that you earn may now become your first concern. You may gain some public recognition, or a promotion or financial backing now. People you work with or people in authority may look upon you favorably now. You're ready to show some initiative or take on an independent project.

Aries

Today you may become concerned about a secret you have learned. Or you may be attracted to a secretive person or a secret love affair. Ultimately, the truth will set you free — and now it could come out. Let go of any self-righteousness before it blows up in your face.

Cancer

You seem more mysterious or sexy — deep feelings are not revealed. Now you could be more honest and open, which improves all relationships. You have more creative ideas now and can express them easily and clearly. Your lover or loved ones may seem to enjoy you just being yourself. Over-valuing money and possessions may bring some loss or limitations.

Capricorn

Today you may surprise someone by doing what you've never done. Your everyday world might become more interesting, unusual or exciting. It is not the best time to spend money since you are being led by old emotions. You tend to socialize, network and communicate more now. You feel more sociable and others respond in a friendly way.

Gemini

It's a good time for work involving clear thinking or speaking. You're more inclined to modesty when praised for your ability. But you may feel like you should be getting more credit for what you do. You might seek some sense of meaning and purpose in your daily duties. Not following your "true calling" now may mean a crisis could nudge you.

Libra

You may be thinking quite a lot of holding on to what you've got. You might think more about the things you value and how to attain them. You might make an impulsive or unwise purchase just to boost your ego. Learn how to better manage or build on your resources: money, mentors and talents.

Pisces

You may say you "need some space" — or take off to some other place. It's a very good time for metaphysical, psychic or spiritual work. You might think more about the meaning and purpose of life — the big picture. Now you could benefit from joining a consciousness-raising group.

Leo

An issue that may come up now concerns a home or land somehow. It's a time to put down roots, buy a home or expand your space. You need to work on yourself now and focus inward, not on externals. Hidden subconscious parts of you may be revealed by your reactions.

Scorpio

You're less inhibited now, more outgoing, and ready to "go for it." Your mind is quick and clear now, but may be restless or scattered. In any creative work you may become more innovative or experimental.

Sagittarius

Believing you can lose is the same as saying "This I choose." Past programming may subconsciously be undermining your present efforts. Today you may seem more consciously aware of your unconscious motivations. The study of psychology, astrology or spirituality might help you now.

Taurus

A mate or partner could oppose a strategy that you propose. You might need some professional advice or a second opinion on something. You might seek or give some emotional support at work, as if it were at home. You could gain now by working in partnership with others — not alone.

Virgo

By the middle of the week, you should have stuff squared away and be ready for a little romance — and it's ready for you, if your remarkable compatibility with someone is any indication. Talk about clicking. A little tandem soul-searching can also happen, making for lots of bonding. Watch what you say this weekend, though; it may seem logical to you, but someone else could be mystified.

Source: www.astrologyzine.com

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, November 2, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 54

INSIDE
The women's tennis team is ready to close out the season
Sports, Page 6

Rumsfeld to lecture next week

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A key figure in U.S. foreign policy during the Iraq war will address the K-State community next week.

Rumsfeld
U.S. SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld will present the 146th Landon Lecture at 11 a.m. Nov. 9 at Bramlage Coliseum.

Ticket distribution for K-State students, faculty and staff members will take place 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., or all tickets are gone, on Monday on the first floor of the K-State Student Union.

Students and faculty members must present their K-State IDs to receive a ticket, and tickets will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis, said Charles Reagan, chairman of the Landon Lecture Series. Seats are reserved, so students should pick up their tickets with the people they want to sit with.

Due to the anticipated high demand for seating, the lecture will be restricted to K-State students, faculty and staff members, Landon patrons, invited guests, and military service members from Fort Riley, Reagan said.

There are about 3,000 tickets

See RUMSFELD Page 8

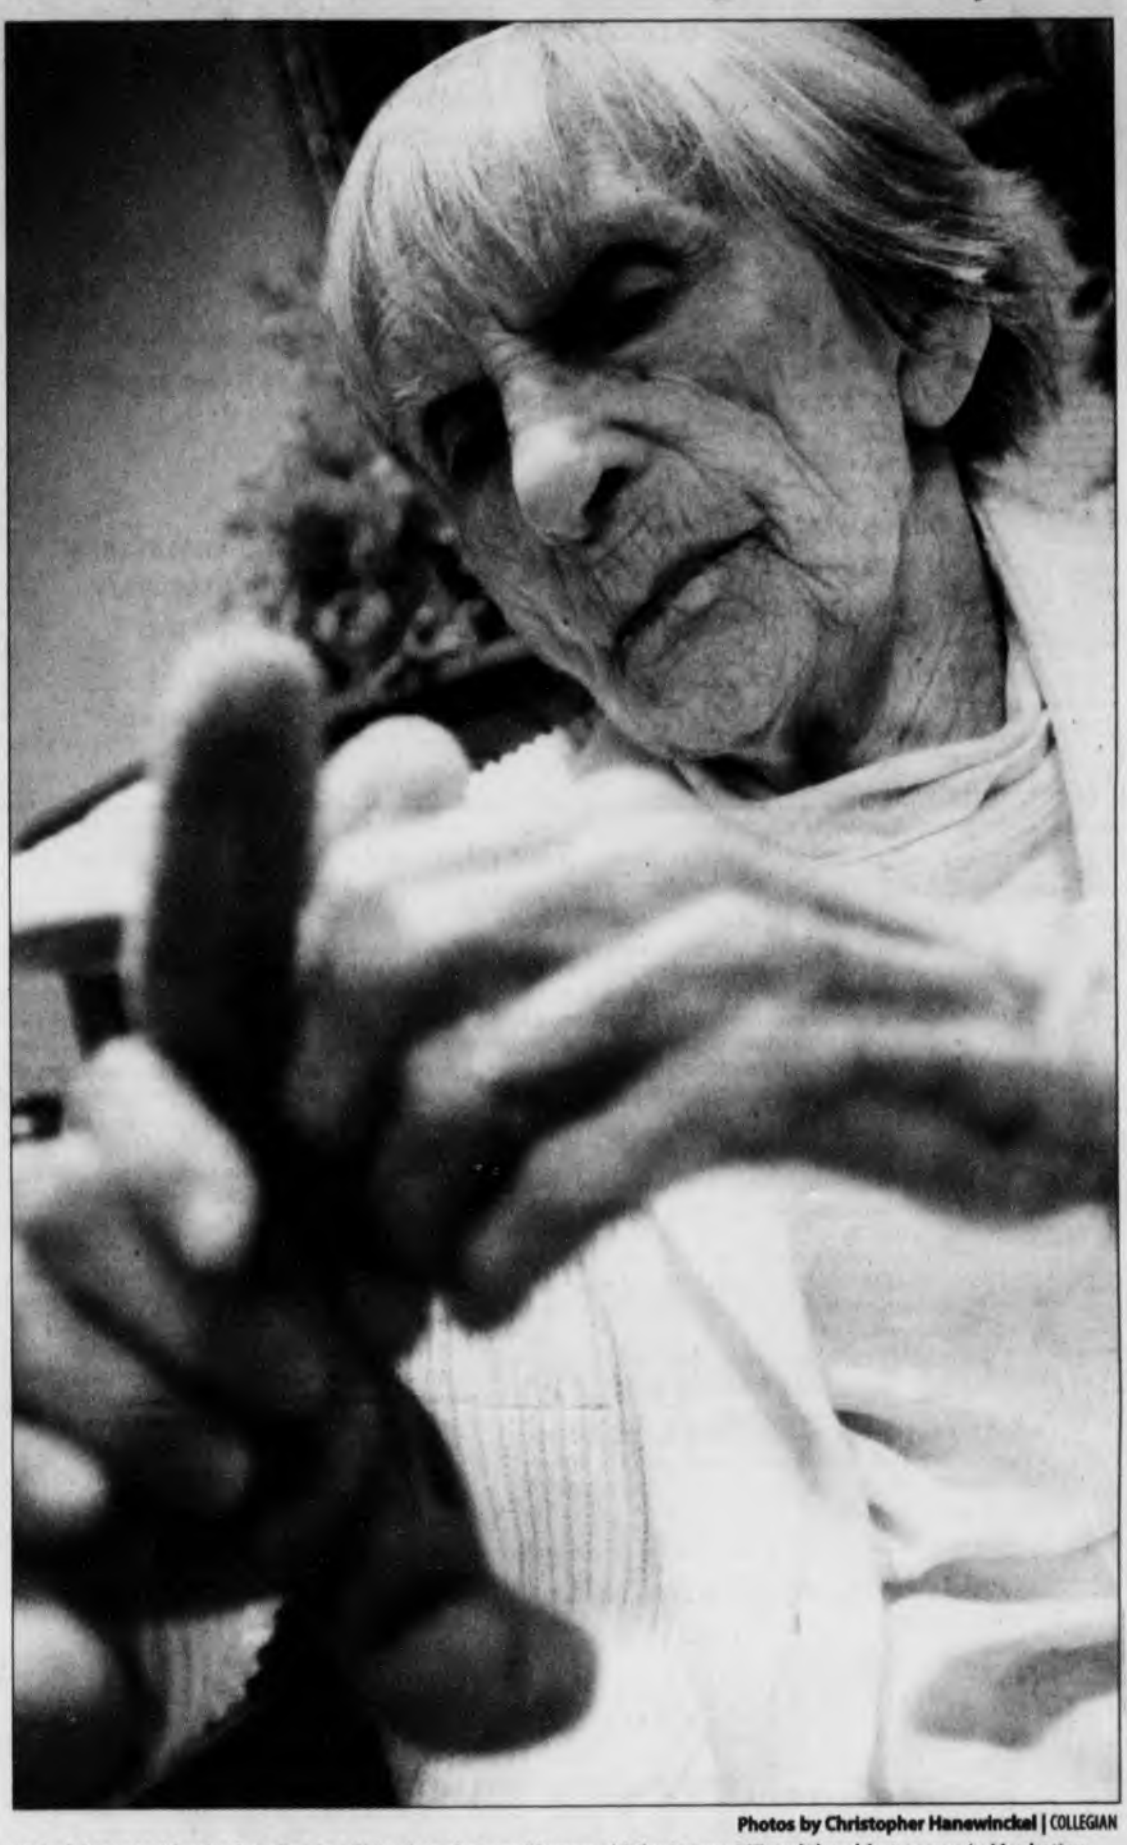
Burglary suspect arrested

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An ongoing investigation led to the arrest of a St. George, Kan., man Tuesday for several residential burglaries, said Capt. Gary Grubbs of the Riley County Police Department.

Jason Calhoun, 28, was arrested for four counts of aggravated residential burglary, one count of battery of a law enforcement officer, and one count of obstruction of the legal process, Grubbs said.

"The charges are related to Calhoun entering residences – in several cases where people have been home – and taking various items," said Grubbs, captain of the Criminal Investigations Division.



Most of the targeted residences are located in the area north of Poyntz Avenue and east of Denison Avenue, according to a news release.

Grubbs said additional charges might come at a later date pending investigation. Aggravated residential burglary is a felony offense.

Calhoun is confined in the Riley County Jail on $25,000 bond.

Anyone with information about the suspect or burglaries is asked to contact the RCPD at (785) 537-2112 or Crime Stoppers at (785) 539-7777.

Grand old party

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Mabel Iles voted for the first time in 1920, when she was 20 years old. Iles is now 107 and the oldest person in Manhattan. She has missed only one presidential or gubernatorial election.

107-year-old local woman first voted in 1920 election

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Mabel Iles was 20 years old the first time she voted.

Her age was not remarkable, nor was her vote, but the occasion was. The year was 1920, and it was the first time women were allowed to vote in a federal election.

Now 107 and the oldest person in Manhattan, Iles said she remembers the day as fairly uneventful. She said there were no protests, but she was excited to have the opportunity to vote. Her late twin sister, Mary, was less enthusiastic but went along anyway.

"There were quite a few women there," said Iles, who has lived in the area most of her life. "I thought it was pretty neat for women to get the vote. Any of the women who didn't take advantage of it, I thought they just didn't have any sense. They were given that advantage and then not to take advantage of it, I thought it was too bad."

Iles, who now lives at Meadowlark Hills, cast her ballot for Warren Harding and has voted consistently Republican ever since.

Iles has never missed a presidential or gubernatorial election, except once, when she was sick. The only time she voted across party lines was when she supported a Democratic friend running for county coroner.

A few years ago, Iles was scheduled to speak at a Manhattan Republican convention with friend and Meadowlark Hills executive director Jeff Chapman. A few days before the event, Iles fell and broke her hip.

To console her, Chapman bought Iles a stuffed elephant to represent the Republican party.

"I named him Jeff," Iles said. "When he gave him to me, some of the gals were standing around, and we were talking about it. It was time for me to go to bed or something, and I said that I was going to sleep all night with Jeff. The girls just howled; they thought it was so funny."

Iles said the elephant has been a

See MABEL Page 8

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

Browsing through fair-trade alpaca wool clothing, Hailey Petersen, freshman in biology, looks at gloves with her boyfriend, Richie Weerts, freshman in business.

Co-op sells handmade Bolivian wool

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Pictures of families and alpacas hung behind the line of colorful wool made by members of Bolivian communities.

Sweaters, gloves and hats were brought from the country to sell around the world, including places like K-State.

The Bolivian sweater sale in Bosco Student Plaza this week is organized by the Bolivian Fair Trade Co-op in conjunction with the Latina sorority Sigma Lambda Gamma.

The sign behind the sale reads "Manos with Bolivia," meaning "hands with Bolivia," and stands for the connection the Bolivians have with the handmade work they sell from the wool of alpacas, said Mario Andradetarifa, director of the co-op.

Andradetarifa said the co-op brings the wool to locations around the world to sell for better wages for the people in Bolivia. He said the annual event also shares the country's culture.

"People like the wool. It makes them warm," he said. "In exchange, it makes the people in Bolivia happy that they buy from them."

Andradetarifa said the co-op works with Sigma Lambda Gamma for the event because it is a multi-cultural sorority that is involved with community service.

Araceli Hernandez, senior in secondary education and member of Sigma Lambda Gamma, said the event is a fundraiser for the sorority. When the members help work the sale, they are given part of the proceeds.

"But some of the girls (in the sorority) are the best customers," she said.

Hernandez said the members of the sorority typically buy items from the sale every year. She said a lot of the smaller items, like gloves and ski hats, sell the best.

Saud Alfahaid, freshman in electrical engineering, was looking for a sweater at the sale. He said he wanted one that represented the culture well.

"It's an interesting culture in South America," he said.

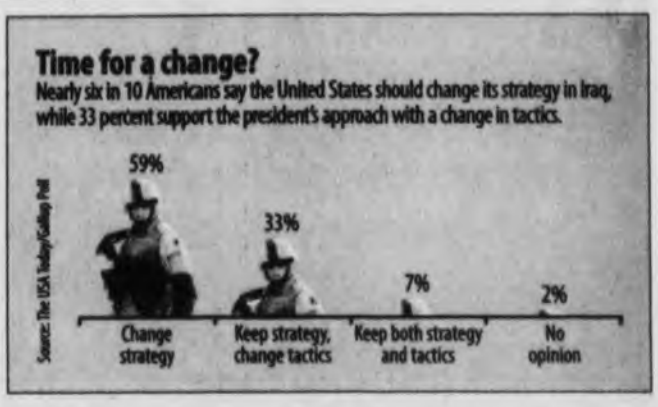
Andradetarifa said items range in price from $10 to $39. A lot of the colors are bright because those are common in the culture, but grays and browns are mixed in, too.

The sale ends Friday.

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 55 Low: 28

INSIDE

Tartuffe
The set design for Tartuffe started at the beginning of the year through research, and is now ready for the upcoming show.



Page 3

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

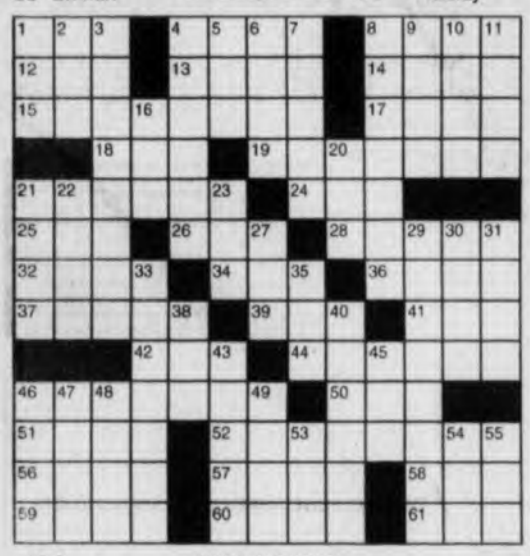
Engineering speaker
John Segovia, propulsion/process engineer for General Electric Aviation, will speak as a part of the Cargill Multicultural Engineering Mentor Program and Lecture Series at 4 p.m. today in Rathbone 1066. He was a 2003 K-State graduate in mechanical engineering.

Evolution speech
Eugenie C. Scott will speak about "The once and future intelligent design," at 7 tonight in the banquet hall at the K-State Alumni Center. She is the executive director of the National Center for Science Education, which is dedicated to keeping evolution in the classroom. She also will speak at 4 p.m. Friday in Thompson 101.

Student tickets for sale
Any tickets unclaimed by K-State students for the Washburn game will go on sale to the public for $15 at 5 p.m. Saturday before the 8 p.m. tipoff. Students have until 4 p.m. Friday to pick up their tickets at the K-State Athletic Ticket Office in Bramlage Coliseum.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Venom ejector
4 Speedy
8 Base runner's goal
12 Grazing site
13 Ready for the picking
14 State with certainty
15 Scaly anteater
17 Reply to "Shall we?"
18 Press for payment
19 Oscar candidate
21 Score
24 Gist
25 That guy
26 Emulate Johnny Appleseed
28 Put one over on
32 Rainbow
34 Grecian vessel
36 Story
37 Denominations
39 "Uh-huh"
41 Collar
42 Feedbag tidbit
44 Ordeals
46 Small racing dog
50 Computer key
51 "You —?"
52 Temple to the gods
56 Edmonton's prov.
57 Fix text
58 Commotion
59 Info (Sl.)
60 Catch sight of 61 Stitch

DOWN
1 Heidi's height
2 Vast expanse
3 Widespread disease
4 Facades
5 Have a bug
6 "Wheel of Fortune" option
7 Mortise's partner
8 Popular food fish
9 It takes the cake
10 Apportion
11 Gaelic
16 Oater prop
20 Slander
21 Anything but that
22 Finish line
23 One of us
27 Ironic
29 Cure-alls
30 Mideast airline
31 Socialist candidate Eugene
33 Makeshift
35 Trawler need
38 Fool
40 Attractive
43 Reservation residence
45 Somewhat (Suff.)
46 End the day's filming
47 Headlight?
48 Busy with
49 Small amounts
53 Pinch
54 Praise in verse
55 Without delay

Solution time: 25 mins.

I	T	S		D	E	M	I		A	B	L	E
B	A	A		E	V	E	N		P	E	E	K
I	L	K		C	E	N	T	I	P	E	D	E
S	C	I	F	I			O	R	E
			A	M	A	D		K	A	R	M	A
C	E	N	T	A	V	O	S		R	O	O	M
A	L	A		L	E	W	I	S		A	L	I
W	A	S	P		C	E	N	T	E	R	E	D
S	N	A	R	E		L	O	R	D
			A	M	P			A	S	P	E	N
C	E	N	T	U	R	I	O	N		E	D	O
A	G	U	E		A	D	O	G		A	G	O
P	O	N	D		M	O	P	E		L	E	N

Yesterday's answer 11-2

11-2 CRYPTOQUIP

TS F LDRBJ QBFGX AFVJUBJ YFTU, PDMUJ LDM BKZBNX ATY XD QB RVDPV FG F ZDGX-DSSTNB DK?

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHEN YOUR WHISKEY DRINK NEEDS TO BE REFILLED, I LIKE TO THINK OF IT AS BOURBON RENEWAL.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: L equals Y

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

How much do you know about "El día de los muertos?"

Today is the second day of "Día de los muertos" – or Day of the Dead – in Hispanic cultures. It is also called All Souls Day, when family members and friends who have died are remembered. How much do you know about "El día de los muertos?"

1. Who does the first "día de los muertos" celebrate?
a. Adults
b. Infants and children
c. Pets

2. What other culture has a holiday that celebrates death?
a. Russian
b. German
c. Chinese

3. Who began "El día de los muertos"?
a. Aztec Indians
b. The Spanish explorers
c. Menudo

4. During what months were the two "días de los muertos" celebrated before it was moved to November?
a. April and May
b. June and July
c. July and August

5. What is the traditional food for the holiday?
a. Meat of the Dead or "Carne de muertos"
b. Bread of the Dead or "Pan de muertos"
c. Candies of the Dead or "Dulces de muertos"

6. Who is remembered during the second "día de los muertos?"
a. Adults
b. Infants and Children
c. Pets

7. Who tried to eliminate the holiday by viewing it as a pagan ritual?
a. China
b. Spain
c. Mexico

8. What kind of environment exists when observers visit a cemetary during "El día de los muertos"?
a. A picnic. People listen to music.
b. Somber. It's a day of grieving.
c. Sad. People mourn the loss of their dead ones.

Courtesy Art

If you answered 0-3 correctly, you need to brush up on your Hispanic holidays. "El día de los muertos" is important to many people, even at K-State. If you're in Spanish, ask your teacher about it ... in Spanish, of course.

If you answered 4-6 correctly, you've taken a couple of Spanish classes, haven't you? Maybe go to a local cemetery to see people celebrating "El día de los muertos."

If you answered 7-8 correctly, bien hecho! You definitely know what you're talking about, whether you celebrate it yourself or you have written papers about it. Take this opportunity to teach others about the holiday.

Source: www.holidayinsights.com

Compiled by Kristen Roderick | COLLEGIAN

Answers: 1.b, 2.c, 3.a, 4.c, 5.b, 6.a, 7.b, 8.a

The planner
Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kyle Larson at 8:30 a.m. today in Fiedler 2116.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Seong-Hyun Park at 10 a.m. today in Throckmorton 2024.

■ John Segovia, engineer at General Electric and 2003 K-State graduate, will present a lecture at 4 p.m. today in Rathbone 1066. The lecture is sponsored by the Multicultural Engineering Program.

■ Golden Key Honor Society will have a question-and-answer session 7-8:30 p.m. today in the Union Stateroom. All juniors and seniors with a GPA 3.62 or above who are interested in joining Golden Key are encouraged to attend.

■ The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy will present "Speak Out!" noon to 1 p.m. Friday in Bosco Student Plaza. Step up to the open mic and speak your mind on what issue will influence your vote Tuesday.

■ Nobel laureate James Heckman will speak about the importance of early childhood education at a K-State Distinguished Lecture at 1:30 p.m. Friday in Forum Hall. The lecture is free and open to the public.

■ Coffee Hour will be presented at the International Student Center 4-5 p.m. Friday. The title is "Saudi Arabia: 100 Years of Successful Development."

■ The Fair Trade in the Heartland Conference is Friday through Sunday. The cost is $10 for students and $25 for the public. Online registration is available. For more information visit, www.lawrencefairtrade.org.

■ Applications are available for Wildcat Warm-up director positions. The deadline to apply is Monday. For more information, e-mail Emily Lehning at lehning@k-state.edu.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

Wallace's Alley
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2 Boulevards Blue Moon Killian's Widmer Wheat and Domestic Bottles
$1.75 Domestic Draws
LIVE MUSIC ON THE PATIO
Mikey Needleman

Porter's
537-7151 706 N. Manhattan Ave
50¢ TACOS Hard & Soft
$3.00 Jager Bombs & Red Bull and Vodkas
$2.00 Import Bottles & Micros
$1.50 Any Pint
$3.00 Any Sandwich
11-2 (Open @ 11)

Thursday Nights @
TUBBY'S Sports Bar
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$2.00 Shots, Wells & Bottles
Mon-Tues 4pm-2am
Wed-Sun 11:30-2am

XL
Extra-Large Cheese Pizza
only $5.99
GUMBY'S Pizza
DELIVERY HOTLINE!
770-333

FACULTY/STAFF Night - Nov. 3 $2 discount
KSU Theatre presents
TARTUFFE
by Moliere
HILARIOUS...
ENTERTAINING...
FUN, FUN, FUN!
November 2, 3 and 4
McCain Auditorium 8 p.m.
TKTS: McCain Box Office: open 11am to 5pm weekdays and at the K-State Union Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 to 1:30 weekdays. 532-6428 Online: ksu.edu/sctd
$8 student/child $11 military $13 public
Sponsored by Pizza Hut of Manhattan

Think You can Do Better?
SPRING 2007
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Executive Position
Editor in chief
• Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 10
• Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Photo Journalists • Desk Editors
• Graphic Journalists • Reporters
• Graphic Artists • Designers
• Online Journalists • Copy Editors
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 17
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103

International Students in Agriculture Panel
International students discuss agricultural policies and practices in their native countries
Tuesday, November 7, 2006
6:30 p.m.
Waters Room 231
Free refreshments served following the panel.
Sponsored by Sigma Alpha
Kansas State University SGA Student Governing Association

'Tartuffe' set construction requires research, efficiency

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Performers rehearse on the completed set Tuesday evening at McCain Auditorium for the play "Tartuffe." The set design for the play began at the beginning of the semester.

It's easy to be pulled into the story while watching a performance and concentrating on the movements and expressions of the actors.

However, this can result in overlooking the set design and the work put into it, which, for Moliere's "Tartuffe," began at the beginning of the semester.

Kathy Voecks, leader of set construction for "Tartuffe," said at the beginning of the fall semester, she met with the play's director and costume and lighting designers to talk about the issues in the play and what they wanted to communicate to the audience.

"It's a really amazing creative experience, like starting with the text and envisioning what everything will be," she said.

Voecks said she did visual research about architecture to decide what would best fit the set and decided to create a contemporary and upscale home.

She said "Tartuffe" is ultimately about what constitutes true faith.

"It's like, if you have to make a choice, you should choose to be trusting instead of being too limited," she said.

Since the underlying theme of the play deals with religion versus hypocrisy, Voecks said the set design contains a lot of religious elements.

Dan Matthews, technical director for "Tartuffe," received the drawing designs from Voecks.

He said scene-shop employees and students in classes helped build the set, which took three weeks to construct.

"It was a fairly simple set. There wasn't anything especially challenging about it," Matthews said.

The set is built from raw materials, and some of the furniture on the set is rented or used from KSU Theatre's stock, he said.

"The biggest issue with 'Tartuffe' was the time restraints," Matthews said.

He said, because the previous performance was much bigger, there was not as much time to construct the set for "Tartuffe."

Josh Zeman, scene-shop foreman for the play, said he was in charge of overseeing daily work on the set.

He agreed that the time restraint was a challenge, because the set constructors had a week or two less than usual.

The show's director is Charlotte MacFarland, associate professor in speech, theater and dance.

To order tickets for the show, call (785) 532-6428 or visit the McCain Box Office from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

you can finally buy a book WORTH ITS PRICE
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
On sale in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

hungry? check out the Menu Guide in back of the Campus Phone Book Available in Kedzie 103 Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Got a News Tip or Story Idea? Call 532-6556 or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

LONGHORNS SALOON
1115 MORO · 776-8770
$1.50 DRINKS & DRAWS
· SUNDAY NOV 5 · JASON BOLAND AND THE STRAGGLERS
TICKETS $15 · ON SALE NOW

Tom HAWK
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Kathe Hurt Treasurer

fax transmission & reception service
Claflin Books and Copies

WANT TO PAMPER YOURSELF? FOR LESS?
Great Clips for hair
HAIRCUT & BLOWDRY $8.99 REG. $12.00
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
A CUT ABOVE Hair and Nail Salon
$10 off a full set of nails
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
American Academy of Cosmetology & Massage Therapy
$25.00 Special Heated Stone Massage
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
1/2 price SPA PEDICURE
Crum's
Not Valid without Phone Book coupon
CHECK OUT THESE GREAT DEALS, LOCATED IN THE COUPON SECTION IN THE BACK OF YOUR CAMPUS PHONE BOOK!

ORIGINS
DISTINGUISHED SPEAKERS SERIES 2006
CENTER FOR THE UNDERSTANDING OF ORIGINS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
"THE ONCE AND FUTURE INTELLIGENT DESIGN"
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2ND, 7:00PM, ALUMNI CENTER
"GENIE'S TOP 10 WAYS TO TEACH EVOLUTION BETTER"
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3RD, 4:30PM, THOMPSON 101
EUGENIE C. SCOTT
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF THE NATIONAL CENTER FOR SCIENCE EDUCATION

The best K-State Football coverage in the land is in your campus paper.
GAMEDAY 2006
Coming at you every Friday this football season.

" The Collegian has helped us out by getting the word to the students about our "College Night." Since advertising with the Collegian, we have had lines out the door on Tuesday nights. This exposure to the students is necessary to make us successful in Manhattan. We want to thank all the students and look forward to seeing them in the future." -- Marvin Self
Coldstone Creamery

WE'VE GOT 'EM, AND YOU WANT 'EM
Collegian Advertising
Your Number 1 source for reaching the K-State Community!
Reaching 23,000 Financial Aid recipients daily.
Let them know where to spend it
and where to get a job when they need more $!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

CLASH WEEK

United or solo?

Fraternities, sororities create communities of people who truly know, care for each other

CHRISTINA FORSBERG

I'll admit the only reason I went through sorority Recruitment in fall 2004 was because my mother wisely suggested it. I had no intention of joining a greek house, but I went through Recruitment intending to make some new friends before the school year started.

I came in with some horribly stereotypical images of what greek life was like. Fortunately, the greek community at K-State does not reflect all of the negative stereotypes that might exist at other universities. One exhausting but successful week later, however, I found myself a part of the greek community.

Members of sororities have the best of both worlds, because the majority of them live in the residence halls their freshman year and then can choose to live in their respective greek houses for the following years. I made quite a few friends with other greeks and non-greeks during my freshman year and participated in activities with both. There really isn't a rift between greeks and non-greeks; we like to mingle.

Contrary to popular belief, joining a greek house is not akin to "buying your friends." My greek experience at K-State has been voluntary, fun and less expensive than living on campus.

According to K-State's costs analysis, students living in the residence halls, even with the cheapest 10-meal plan, pay $5,772 for an academic year on the Manhattan campus. Living in a fraternity costs, on average, about $4,500 for the academic year, plus a one-time initiation fee that runs about $370, depending on the chapter. Put those two numbers together and in-house fraternity members pay only $4,870 per academic year. If they live-in during their sophomore through senior years, they pay even less for those academic years.

Sorority members, for their freshman year, pay dues on average of $545 per semester while living in residence halls. Including the payment of a one-time building fund fee and intiation fee, they pay an average of $4,860. Even if the freshman year out-of-house dues are added to the in-house costs, sorority members pay only $5,605, and the price drops below $5,000 if they live in-house their junior and senior years.

Beyond the numbers, the experience is the most important aspect of greek life. Living in the residence halls can make it tempting for some who are timid or shy, as I had been, to stay in their rooms and remain disconnected from campus life. The close friends made in the greek system are made for life. The men or women who live in your house know you and know you well enough to say more than just "hi" in the hallway.

In my sorority, everyone's doors are usually always open, and everyone welcomes visitors to watch a movie, study, vent or just relax. The men or women in your house will know more than just your name and major, and they care about you. I've had many experiences of being treated to Call Hall ice cream or Dara's soda by someone in the house who'd been thinking about me or knew I was having a rough week.

Greek life doesn't just allow for some opportunities to make friends and get involved on campus and in the community, but it immerses members in them. There are many greeks who are volunteers, leaders on campus, members of SGA, the Collegian, and even work at the residence hall dining centers. Being greek also facilitates a connection with members of other chapters on other campuses and networks you with alumni of your fraternity or sorority at K-State and nationwide.

Not everyone will find greek life appealing, but you'll never know for yourself until you give recruitment a try. The worst that can happen? You'll make some really great friends in the process.

Christina Forsberg is a junior in economics and English literature. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Residence halls offer amenities, but allow students freedom to take opportunities

RYAN SPENCER

First let me say two things: One, there are advantages to living both in the greek system as well as in the residence halls; your choice just depends on what you're looking for. Two, they are called residence halls, not dorms. Nothing makes me more agitated than when someone refers to them as "dorms."

That said, I would like to tell you the advantages of living in the halls. I am the president of the KSU Association of Residence Halls and have lived in the halls for six years. I know what you're saying: "Ew, you're one of those creepy old guys that's still in the dorms." Old? Yes. Creepy? Sometimes. Dorms? No. The residence hall system at K-State is one of the best in the Big 12 Conference in my opinion, and yes, I've seen other systems.

We have an amazing staff system, great rates and the freedom to do your own thing (to the extent of the law). We have one of the best dining systems in the country. How do I know that, you ask? The 14 national awards we've won for our menus and themed dinners in the past five years tells me. Hall food is often stereotyped right up there with airplane food in quality, but freshmen have often told me our food is "surprisingly good" and offers more options than they thought it would.

Then you have the vast array of amenities that we provide: broadband Internet, free local phone service, three cable TV packages from which to choose, centralized HVAC, 24-hour security, $0.75/load laundry, and countless everyday items available from our front desks. And this list doesn't even touch on the numerous leadership positions, employment opportunities and volunteer opportunities available at every level.

We are the single largest employer of students at K-State and are proud of it.

The residence halls offer all the help you need when it comes to your academics, too. Your resident assistant and senior staff are there to help you in any way they can. We have two academic resource centers that can set up dinners with your professors, get you in contact with other department advisers on campus, and offer all kinds of free tutoring.

The biggest difference you'll see between the halls and the greek system is the freedom you have. Not one minute of your time is ever scheduled for you. You are only required to attend two floor meetings a semester for procedural reasons, and you will never be forced to sign up and participate in anything you don't want to or be told to buy anything you don't want to. Why do you think we don't compete against the greeks in All-University Homecoming?

We can't require our whole hall to show up to anything; we only encourage participation.

So come on over to the res halls. Our front desks and phones are always available and ready to help, our variety of food is always hot, and you can always find us doing our own thing.

Ryan Spencer is a senior in hotel and restaurant management. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustration by Christina Forsberg
COLLEGIAN

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Bikers need clearer path designations

A man riding a bicycle nearly hits a woman hurrying to class. It happens every day, but technically, it's not the biker's fault.

Unless the person riding the bike reads the maps online, they don't know where they should ride. Most people don't know the bicycle rules or when it is OK to ride on campus.

In the past, there was oil-based paint on the sidewalk that showed where it was OK to ride a bicycle and where to dismount. It was removed because the paint was slippery when wet.

We commend Parking Services for taking the potentially dangerous paint away, but aren't there other options?

There are many ways to ensure safety of both bikers and pedestrians.

First, Parking Services should look for paint that is not oil-based. It might be more expensive, but if it works, it could be great alternative marker.

If this doesn't work, Parking Services could post more signs. Signs are not slippery, and they generally don't get in the way of either bikers or pedestrians.

Once again, we applaud Parking Services for considering the safety of students and removing the slippery paint, but there are other options to make bikers aware of on-campus regulations.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

The evangelist just announced he's a DU.

K-State aviation is bringing sexy back.

This is the original scooter girl, since fall 2001.

And I have never hit anybody, although I have been hit by a car once.

Apparently Full Metal Alchemist is the new Buffy the Vampire Slayer.

I have to pee solid.

It's 1 a.m., and I just saw mustard walking down the street.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

TO THE EDITOR

Opinion page content should carry meaning, address current topics like elections, N. Korea

Editor,

When I opened the Collegian to the Opinion page on Monday, I was more than a little appalled at what I saw. I honestly can't think of anything less important than what Brett King and Owen Kennedy think about two movies that everyone has seen and that no one cares about.

In your efforts to improve the Collegian, I'm not sure using the Opinion page for movie reviews is really a step forward. If you are out of ideas, you might turn on your TV every once in a while. I don't know if you've heard, but there's an election coming up soon. There are even some rumors flying around that Democrats might pick up a few seats in Congress. If these issues don't float your boat, how about North Korea?

I can't help but notice you've been relatively silent on this front since the nuclear weapons test a few weeks ago. Now I'm just throwing out ideas here, and you can take them or leave them. After all, you are the editor.

However, I can tell you that on any day, the Fourum has more substance to it than the two pieces you showcased Monday ever will. I am begging the Collegian staff to write about something, anything that matters. This is supposed to be a newspaper.

Kyle Malone
JUNIOR IN POLITICAL SCIENCE

Readers horrified by racist comments at parade, urge leaders to discipline offenders promptly

Editor,

We were appalled by members of certain fraternity houses at the K-State All-University Homecoming parade. What should have been an enjoyable time was marred by vicious comments made by two fraternity members as they passed. While others there shouted "Purple Pride," these two shouted "White Pride."

Not only were we shocked, but dismayed, as they stared at the 4-year-old African-American girl next to us. It was a hurtful comment and a disgrace to the community they were representing. They might think it funny, but racism isn't a joke.

Even more appalling was that they were surrounded by other students. Yet we didn't see a single person stop them or take a stand. We challenge those that were there to come forward and those in charge to take quick disciplinary actions against the fraternity involved.

There were four organizations involved in this float, and unfortunately, I only caught the name of the ones in the back: FIJI. We thank the members of this organization that we found later who, after learning what happened, apologized and promised to help find the perpetrators.

We don't know which fraternity was involved, but to those boys: shame on you. To those who didn't stop it: shame on you, too. To those who step up: thank you. And to those that were hurt: this is not what we stand for.

We stand for Purple Pride, and that's the only color that really matters.

Michelle Andes and Audra Akin
CONCERNED CITIZENS AND MOTHERS

Rik Andes
K-STATE FACULTY, INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

Biking regulations often overlooked on campus

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The walk between classes can be a dangerous one for pedestrians when they share the sidewalk with bikers.

"Yesterday, I almost got hit," Brett Hartin, senior in secondary education, said. "They're always on the sidewalk. It's a sidewalk, emphasis on the 'walk.'"

"Yesterday, I almost got hit. "They're (bicycles) always on the sidewalk. It's a sidewalk, emphasis on the 'walk.'"
Brett Hartin
Senior in secondary education

Parking Services does have regulations for bikers on campus. It is illegal for bikers to ride on university sidewalks from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday unless otherwise specified on the campus bike map.

The regulations were put into effect about 14 years ago, K-State bicycle officer Tim Schrag said. People complained about bikes brushing or hitting them on campus. Since then, Schrag said bikers on campus have not caused a large problem.

"It's only a problem when classes let out, around 20 after the hour," Schrag said. "It all boils down to respecting each other, each other's right to use the sidewalk and being courteous."

There is also a regulation that says bikers must dismount in crosswalks.

"Crosswalks are for pedestrians only. Biking across them is illegal, but it's done quite frequently by everyone," Schrag said. "I think the main problem with it is that bikers enter the crosswalk too fast."

Bikers caught in violation of the regulations can receive a $15 fine from the K-State Police. However, citations are not given often, Schrag said.

"I could write more jaywalking pedestrian violations," Schrag said.

Many students are not aware of the biking regulations, Mike Walsh, senior in biology, said.

"I've only heard about them recently," said Walsh, who uses a bike on campus. "They don't really have the regulations posted."

Schrag also has noticed the lack of signs, letting students know where biking is permitted.

"In the past, there were a lot of signs put up and painting on the sidewalk," Schrag said. "That's something I would like to see again."

Parking Services is responsible for posting or marking where bikes are permitted, something it has done in the past, said Gary Leitnaker, assistant vice president for Human Resources and Parking at K-State.

"They used to have a diamond painted on the sidewalk that was different colors that were referred to on a map and would show where you could or could not ride your bike," Leitnaker said. "These diamonds were painted on with an oil-based enamel that would become slick and unsafe when wet."

Because of the safety issue, Parking Services stopped painting the sidewalks, Leitnaker said. There are no plans to bring back the sidewalk paintings.

To learn about the regulations and see the campus bike map, bikers can visit www.ksu.edu/parking or pick up a brochure from Parking Services.

ROYAL PURPLE
we've got the stories you've got to read
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555.

Where do you find Your News?
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

Need something to do?
Try SuDoku
Located on the classified page
sudoku

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
in the Collegian, the first friday of the mon

ADVERTISING 532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

DINING ETIQUETTE
Deadline to register:
November 3 • 532-6506
Event information:
November 9, 5:30 p.m.
Derby Dining Center Gold Room
Professional attire is requested.
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career

Collegian Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

The Salty Rim
1204 MORO 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$1 SPIKES
1/2 PRICE MARGARITAS
$2 MICROS & IMPORTS
$2 DOMESTIC BOTTLES
PARTY PIC NIGHT

RC McGraws
776.9588
Wildcat headquarters before & after the game
Open at 3pm
LIVE SATURDAY
SECOND WIND
Appearing 9 -Close
Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound
Food & Drink Specials ALL Weekend Long!
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)

ExpertTire
Everyday Discount Prices
307 N. 3rd St. • 785-776-8311
Standard brake service special
• install brake pads
• resurface rotors
• road test vehicle
$79.99
Price per axle. Front wheel disc. Most vehicles. Grease seals and wheel bearing repack extra if required.
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad
Bosch wiper blade rebate
Purchase a Bosch Micro Edge wiper blade and receive a $1.00 rebate by mail. Limit of 6 blades with a maximum rebate of $6.00 per household. save $2.00 per pair
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad.
Wiper blades to fit most vehicles. See store for details.
standard oil change special!
• install new filter
• refill up to 5 quarts Synthetic Blend motor oil
• lubricate chassis (if applicable)
$16.99
Most vehicles. Add $2.50 for oil filter recycling.
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad.
brand value starts here!
limit 6 per customer.
Firestone
$33 FR 380 Tires
P155/80R13
55,000 mile limited warranty
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad.
Mon-Fri 7am-6pm
Sat 7am-6pm
Open Sun 8am-5pm
www.ExpertTire.com

THURSDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 FISH BOWLS
$2.00 BOTTLES
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Sick of signs in your apartment complex?
Students for STRAWN
Kansas State Representative
66th District
Tell Your Landlord
• Fix the Sink
• Turn on the Heat
• Repair the Deck...

Bob with Students for Strawn President Jenna Newsum
...VOTE FOR BOB STRAWN
Paid for by Bob Strawn for Kansas State Representative, Art Loub Treasurer.

Recovery

Photos by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Junior Tereza Prochazkova stretches in an attempt to return a volley during the K-State women's tennis team practice Tuesday afternoon on the tennis courts at Peters Recreation Complex. The team will play its final tournament of the fall season on Nov. 5.

Right: Junior Fernanda Da Valle tries to return the ball to a teammate while practicing Tuesday afternoon.

Bottom: Katerina Kudlackova hits a backhand return while practicing against Tereza Prochazkova during warm-up Tuesday.

Despite injuries, women's tennis team uses fall season to improve for spring

By Jessi Hernandez
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After dealing with numerous injuries, the K-State women's tennis team is whole once again – almost.

As the Wildcats prepare for their final tournament of the fall season, only one player, sophomore Maria Perevoschikova, still is unable to play.

Though injuries have hindered several players during the season, the team has been able to improve its play, and several members have achieved top results in tournaments thus far.

At the Intercollegiate Tennis Association Central Region Tournament in Tulsa, Okla., the Wildcats made a strong showing, with all four players in the Main Draw advancing past the first round in singles and doubles play. The team drew tougher competition in the second round, however, and junior Viviana Yrureta was the only singles player to pick up a win. Yrureta and doubles partner sophomore Katerina Kudlackova advanced to the quarterfinals before being defeated on Oct. 21.

Coach Steve Bietau said he is pleased with the efforts of the team and thinks the women's play in Tulsa was strong and consistent, though not above or below expectations.

"In a tournament like that, it's sometimes hard to gauge, because it depends on who you draw," he said.

Bietau said, overall, the health of the team has improved this season, with Olga Klimova and Fernanda Da Valle recently returning from injury.

"Those two girls in particular, when they've gotten to play and a chance to have some sustained work, then they've played better – there's no magic to it," he said.

Bietau said the team has shown a strong work ethic and has put forth more effort in conditioning this fall, which has started to pay off.

"We've had some solid results and have played pretty consistently, so I'm real happy with the fall to this point," he said.

Junior captain Klimova, who recently returned after having knee problems, said the fall season has gone well for the team in terms of tournament results and individual levels of play. She said she is looking forward to this weekend's Arizona State Thunderbird Invitational because it provides another chance to improve before spring.

"I remember from the previous tournaments in Arizona, you always play many matches there, and it kind of gets you in a shape that you really have to focus on the matches, so I hope we will improve ourselves," she said.

Junior Tamar Kvaratskhelia said the team has improved since last season, but she isn't satisfied with how it has competed, saying the team could have done better, especially at regionals.

However, she said fall tournaments are a starting block for good tennis, so her expectations for this weekend are more performance- than result-based – for the most part.

"As a team, I hope everybody will play the way the coaches want us to perform," she said. "That we'll play the way they want us to play, and perform so they'll be satisfied – it doesn't matter if we win or if we lose, but it's like for the future reference.

"And for me? Oh, I want (to win) the tournament. There. Period."

Fans continue to support Wildcat volleyball

The K-State women's volleyball team hasn't been this bad for a long time.

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

The Wildcats continue to practice hard and play competitively in matches, but the wins just aren't coming for this inexperienced squad.

With its 3-2 loss to Colorado on Wednesday night in Boulder, Colo., the team continues to slide into one of its worst losing droughts since 1993.

K-State has lost 14 of its last 15 matches, and the drought includes a 10-match losing streak that was snapped Oct. 18 with a victory over Texas Tech. The Wildcats haven't won since then, and they are in the midst of a four-game losing skid.

Their most recent home loss came last Saturday at the hands of the No. 1-ranked team in the country, Nebraska.

While the 3-0 (30-21, 30-24, 30-22) defeat by the Cornhuskers was not surprising, something else caught my attention.

Out of all the statistics from the match, the number 1,894 stuck out most. That is how many fans came to Ahearn Field House to cheer on the struggling Wildcats, a season-high for attendance at Ahearn. I was amazed to see how many people came to watch a match that was clearly going to be a blowout.

Now, maybe some fans came to the match because they wanted to see the No.-1 team in the country, but I would like to think K-State fans are just that supportive of their sports teams.

It seems that no matter how bad the Wildcats are doing, there is always a large number of people who come to support the teams.

I wasn't the only one who couldn't help but notice the season-high numbers.

Coach Suzie Fritz had something to say after the match about the crowd.

"I am humbled by all the people that still come to watch this team play," Fritz said. "We appreciate everyone hanging in there with us, and it means a lot to us that the K-State fans are still with us and are still there to support us. It was a great crowd."

She's right – it was a great crowd.

I don't see the Wildcats getting out of this slump any time soon, but hopefully they can win a match or two down the stretch to give some hope for the future of the program.

K-State will play its next two matches at home against Texas A&M and Baylor on Saturday and Wednesday, respectively. Both are rematches of losses earlier in the season, but I expect the Wildcats to take at least one of these two matches.

Win or lose, those women are giving their all out there, and fans should continue showing support by coming out to cheer them on.

Cedrique Flemming is a senior in print journalism and business. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | Wildcats lose at Colorado, have dropped 4 straight matches

The last time the K-State women's volleyball team played Colorado, it lost each game by two points in a 3-0 sweep on Oct. 7 at Ahearn Field House.

The games were just as close this time, and K-State again found itself on the losing end of things.

The Buffaloes defeated the Wildcats 3-2 (27-30, 37-35, 33-31, 23-30, 15-12) Wednesday night at the Coors Events Center in Boulder, Colo., extending K-State's losing streak to four matches.

It was the seventh-straight, five-game loss for the Wildcats (9-15, 1-13 Big 12) this season.

In the opening game, the Wildcats committed four attack errors early and fell behind 7-3. They didn't trail for long, however, as senior outside hitter Sandy Werner and junior setter Stacey Spiegelberg led them back. The two combined for 10 kills in the game, helping the Wildcats take leads of 19-16 and 25-20, before eventually winning 30-27.

With an opportunity to take a 2-0 lead in game two, the Wildcats were unable to take advantage. Leading 30-29, Spiegelberg recorded a service error that prolonged the game. The Wildcats and Buffaloes (13-8, 9-5 Big 12) exchanged points until Colorado scored two-straight points to win 37-35.

After the break, K-State and Colorado split the next two games, sending the match into a decisive fifth game.

The Buffaloes took an early 7-5 lead, but freshman middle blocker Kelsey Chipman registered a pair of kills to help the Wildcats eventually pull even at 8-8. Both teams exchanged points until the Buffaloes finally took control.

Colorado finished with a 3-0 run to take the game 15-12, giving it the season sweep over the Wildcats.

— Jeffrey Rake

Associated Press

RUN | Track coach to be charged with obstructing steroid probe

SAN FRANCISCO — Track coach Trevor Graham, who helped launch a three-year federal probe of steroid use by elite athletes, is expected to be charged as soon as Thursday with obstructing the investigation, two Justice Department officials with knowledge of the investigation told The Associated Press.

Graham

Speaking on condition of anonymity because the charges had not been made public, the officials said Graham would be charged with making false statements to authorities investigating steroid use in sports.

Graham operates Raleigh-based Sprint Capitol USA, a team of about 10 athletes that includes 100-meter co-world record holder Justin Gatlin, who tested positive for testosterone and other steroids in April.

He also coached sprinter Marion Jones, who won five medals at the 2000 Sydney Games with him, and her former boyfriend Tim Montgomery, who was suspended from competition for two years, although he never tested positive for a banned substance.

MLB | Oldest living man to play professional baseball dies at 111

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Silas Simmons, a pitcher-outfielder in the Negro Leagues who was said to be the oldest living professional baseball player, died two weeks after his 111th birthday.

Simmons

He died Sunday in a retirement nursing home, Zion Hill Mortuary said Wednesday.

Simmons, a left-hander, played for several teams from 1912-29, including the New York Lincoln Giants of the Eastern Colored League, the Cuban Stars and the Blue Ribbons of Germantown, who later became the Homestead Grays.

He was born in Middleton, Del., in 1895, the same year as Babe Ruth, and was honored by the Center for Negro League Baseball Research on his birthday on Oct. 14. A Tampa Bay Devil Rays fan, Simmons was presented with a No. 111 jersey. Researchers this year identified him as the oldest living man to have played professionally.

Pilots take 6th in region

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State-Salina placed sixth at the regional SAFECON competition in Salina on Oct. 16.

SAFECON, which stands for Safety and Flight Evaluation Conference, is a competition devoted to the skill, safety, sport and education of college flying, said Katie Mayes, coordinator of public and alumni relations at K-State-Salina.

K-State-Salina was host to the national competition last year and has been host to other regional and national competitions as well.

"The fact that NIFA has chosen K-State at Salina so many times tells me that we have a superb aviation program here at K-State," Mayes said.

Seven teams participated in this year's regional competition, with K-State-Salina finishing sixth overall and the University of Central Missouri taking first.

"I'm pretty happy with our placement," Micah Westblade, senior flight instructor, said. "We have a pretty young team, with many of last year's members being seniors."

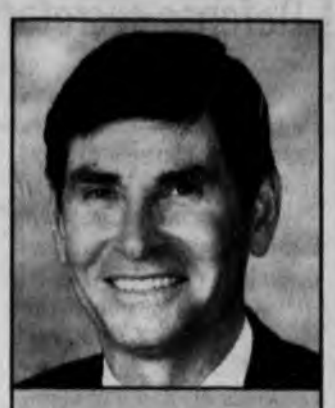
Being host to the event made it more affordable to enter participants in the competition, Westblade said.

"This allows us to enter more participants than we would normally be able send to an away regional because of transportation and lodging costs," Westblade said.

Usually the team consists of eight to 12 members, but 15 members competed this year.

Students pay for their own flight time and training for the event. An hour of flight time costs a student $92.

Students must put in at least three hours of flight time to properly prepare for the event, Westblade said.



Although the team did not place high enough to go to nationals they said they gained experience that will carry over into next year.

"You just can't train experience," Westblade said. "We have made it to nationals every year since the club started 11 years ago and hope to be back next year."

The events in the competition are navigation, short field approach, message drop, computer accuracy, aircraft recognition, ground trainer, SCAN and Preflight.

Individually, some K-State-Salina students placed among the region's top competitors. Janelle Baron placed 10th out of all 100 competitors for Top Pilot. Westblade placed 13th of 71 for top-scoring male, and Baron placed second of eight for top-scoring female.

Face off

	Jim Ryun	Nancy Boyda
Party	Republican	Democrat
Political experience	U.S. Congressman (1996-present)	Candidate for U.S. Congress (2004)
Residence	Lawrence	Topeka
Birth date	May 29, 1954	Aug. 2, 1955
Previous work	U.S. Olympian, businessman	Analytical chemist
Education	University of Kansas — 1970	William Jewel College — 1977
Quote	"The United States is not a nation based upon race, creed or religion — we are a nation based upon our loyalty and allegiance to our country and her principles."	"Nothing will change until we change Congress."
Prediction from a poll by Congressional Quarterly	Toss-up	Toss-up

Boyda challenges incumbent Ryun in rematch of 2004 campaign for Kansas' 2nd-district seat

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In a rematch of the 2004 election, Nancy Boyda will challenge Rep. Jim Ryun for Kansas' second-district Congressional seat.

The second district includes 26 counties that stretch from Nebraska to Oklahoma. It includes west Lawrence, Topeka and Manhattan.

The race, which was won easily by Ryun in 2004, was predicted by many to be more of the same this year. However, in the last two weeks, Boyda has made a late surge, and the race now is predicted to be a dead heat.

Although the state is typically Republican, the second district has a history of being primarily Democratic.

Before 1994, Democrats held the seat for 20 of 24 years.

President Bush is expected to speak in Topeka this Saturday to rally support for Ryun, who is attempting to clinch his sixth term in the House of Representatives.

Seeing a chance to win a close election, the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee reportedly has spent $339,000 in the campaign against Ryun, although Boyda herself has said she will not accept campaign funding from Washington, D.C., sources, opting instead for a grassroots campaign.

Boyda argues Ryun has been a ghost in Congress. She claims Ryun is part of the Republican system that has done nothing with its power.

Conversely, Boyda has never held a political office. Many voters said she has not proven herself to be a viable candidate, but rather just an alternative to voting for Ryun.

Students greet returning troops

By Anna Quisenberry
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The last mile on foot is hardly comparable to 38 hours and 11,000 miles the 300 soldiers have already traveled from a war.

They now breathe in the familiar brisk air of a Kansas morning, one that smells like clean dew on grass instead of the haze of gun smoke.

The cheers grow louder with each step.

Inside the hangar are hundreds of spouses, parents and children. The anticipation grows as these soldiers know they soon will see the faces of their loved ones – faces they only dreamed of seeing after each convoy mission or mortar attack in the dead of night.

Their eyes showed dark circles of fatigue from flying through nine time zones, but when they catch a familiar face smiling back, each soldier stands a little taller and breathes a little quicker.

Not all of the soldiers in this squadron, however, are lucky enough to have someone to greet them.

But a new program called Operation Welcome Home aims to change that. The program was created to surprise unsuspecting soldiers who either don't have family or are stationed out of Fort Riley and unable to see their family.

For the past month, members of the Manhattan community have worked together to create greeting packages to give to the soldiers upon their arrival. The packages provide posters, balloons, cookies, and best of all, a sense of importance.

Many K-State sororities have joined the efforts to support the troops. Valerie Bottoni, junior in apparel marketing and design, organized the participation of Chi Omega members. Bottoni said there were more than 68 women who welcomed 25 soldiers early Wednesday morning.

"Preparation for Operation Welcome Home seemed quite stressful at times, but it all came together at the end," Bottoni said. "From the emotional high of their return, it was definitely a rewarding experience being able to witness the pride of the soldiers representing our country and the families and friends showing them support."

Joelle Mausolf, the military relations manager to the City of Manhattan, said she thought of the idea for Operation Welcome Home after talking to the public affairs office at Fort Riley.

"The response this year was amazing," Mausolf said. "The response would be overwhelming if we asked anyone to do it."

For security reasons, the time of the redeployment ceremony could not be released until 24 hours before the intended time of the soldiers' arrival.

It just happened to be at 3 a.m. Wednesday morning, so participants sacrificed Halloween activities to put the final touches on their surprises for the soldiers. At 1:45 a.m., participants carpooled to the post to greet the soldiers.

"It was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," said Allison Rees, sophomore in social work and member of Chi O. "It was definitely worth waking up so early to see the joy and shock in their faces."

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our advertising sales representatives by calling...
532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Sick of your Roommates?
Find a subleaser by advertising in the classifieds.
Call 532-6555.

SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District

RAMBLERS
Steakhouse & Saloon
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner- 2 complete dinners
$2.00 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

Krystallos Invites you to our
CHRISTMAS OPEN HOUSE
SUN. NOVEMBER 5TH 12-5:00 PM
FOOD DRINK FUN
Get a fun and early start on your Christmas shopping.
Buy $250.00 worth of merchandise and we will give you a $50.00 gift certificate free.

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.50 Michelob Family Pints
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
$1.99 Margaritas
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

Did you lead your team to victory?
You'll get more than your name in the paper...
Your leadership skills are what we need. We're looking for strong individuals to help lead our sales teams for the spring semester. Working hours are in between classes.
Monday - Friday 9am-5pm

Collegian Advertising • K-State Phone Book
Manager and Asst. Manager Applications available in 103 Kedzie Hall
Applications and cover letter due in 103 Kedzie Hall, Friday, Nov. 10, 4 pm
For more information CALL 785-532-0723

RUMSFELD | Defense secretary to give lecture in Bramlage, attend dedication ceremony for Myers Hall

Continued from Page 1

available for students, 900 available for faculty and staff, 200 for media, 1,000 for military and 800 for Landon patrons and special guests.

Rumsfeld, a former Navy pilot, was sworn in as the 21st Secretary of Defense on Jan. 20, 2001. He also served as the 13th Secretary of Defense in 1975, as well as White House Chief of Staff, U.S. Ambassador to NATO, U.S. Congressman and chief executive officer of two Fortune 500 companies.

Rumsfeld is the fourth U.S. Secretary of Defense to present a Landon Lecture in the series' 40-year history. Prior defense secretary lecturers include Caspar Weinberger in 1984, William Perry in 1995, and William S. Cohen in 1997.

Reagan said he met with Rumsfeld's officials at the Pentagon in mid-September.

"He's been on our list for several years," Reagan said. "We sent out an invitation several years ago and sent follow-up letters."

Rumsfeld's lecture was scheduled to coincide with the dedication ceremony for the renaming of K-State's Military Science Building to Gen. Richard B. Myers Hall, Reagan said.

Rumsfeld will be present at the dedication ceremony, which will take place at 1 p.m. Nov. 9.

Reagan said Rumsfeld's speech topic is unknown, but the lecture and question-and-answer time will be about one hour total.

Jim Muller, assistant director of Bramlage, said he anticipates doors will open for the lecture at 10 a.m.

"However, we've not yet received full information from Rumsfeld's full security team on what precautions will need to be made," Muller said.

Backpacks, purses and bags will not be allowed in Bramlage during the lecture, and attendants will be subject to searches upon entrance, Muller said.

Bramlage officials will hear more about final security measures Tuesday, Muller said.

Parking for the lecture also will be first-come, first-served, and parking lots will open at about 9:30 a.m., but the time is subject to change based on security measures, Muller said.

Seating capacity for Rumsfeld's lecture will be about 6,000 people, Muller said. Seating accommodations for disabled people also will be available at the lecture.

Stephen Long, assistant professor of political science, said Rumsfeld is one of the more controversial defense secretaries in recent years.

"He's definitely been a controversial secretary of defense because of his personal management style, which is very direct, straightforward and aggressive," Long said. "There's a percent that he doesn't take very well to dissent on issues of leadership."

Ticket pick-up
When: 11 a.m. to 4 pm, or until all tickets are distributed, Nov. 6
Where: First floor, K-State Student Union
How much: Free with K-State ID

Long's teaching specialties include international relations, international conflict and security studies.

Rumsfeld made news earlier this week after the Pentagon made a decision to hire more public relations officials, according to a report from CNN.com on Monday. The report states that Rumsfeld "has complained bitterly that the press focuses too much attention on bad news coming out of Iraq and not enough on progress being made there."

Long said he doesn't expect the speech to change Kansans' minds on Rumsfeld's leadership and policies.

"Generally speaking, Manhattan, Kan., is a fairly safe venue for Secretary Rumsfeld, because it's an area that's very supportive of the military and fairly conservative," Long said.

"Just as it was a safe visit for President Bush (at K-State in January), I expect it to be fairly supportive of Rumsfeld."

MABEL | Long-time voter didn't support Kennedy

Continued from Page 1

good companion.

"I slept with Jeff a lot," she said with a grin. "In fact, I think I slept with Jeff last night."

Iles has voted for more than half of the 43 presidents in the nation's history.

Among those presidents she didn't like were John F. Kennedy and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

"I never did like the Roosevelts real well," she said. "None of them. The Kennedys, I thought all of them needed help."

She also said President Bush has done a good job.

"Well, he's Republican, isn't he?" Iles said.

Though she has fulfilled her civic duty by voting regularly, Iles said she is not sure she has seen a woman fit to be the next president.

"I don't like that idea," she said of a female president. "I don't know; I just don't think that they have any business that high in politics. That's a man's job."

Iles was a homemaker and mother of three for many years. However, she has done things women of her generation were not expected to do, like learn to drive when her late husband Ed, a longtime Co-op manager, bought a new Chrysler.

"My husband taught me to drive the first week we got the car," she said. "He was talking to a man one day, and they didn't think I could hear. The man said, 'Doesn't it make you want to crawl up the wall when your wife's driving?' And Ed said, 'No, Mabel's a good driver.' That did me more good than anything."

Iles said it is important to vote. Not doing so, she said, is a waste of the privilege.

"I always say, if you don't vote, don't gripe," she said. "If you do vote and don't like it, why, you can say so."

See a photo opportunity? Call 532-6556 KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword. . .
Now that's something you can bank on.

Your Neighbor, Your Friend, Your Advocate
- She has supported State Higher Education Funding to curb tuition increases
- As Ranking Member of the Higher Education Committee Sydney built a coalition to protect KSU Founding in:
  - VET Med, Research and Extension and Building Maintenance
- As a member of the state House Economic Development Committee Sydney worked to:
  - Create new jobs in Bio-science and Agriculture
  - Encourage Entrepreneurship in Kansas through the Angel Investment
  - Network by helping develop the Economic Growth Act
- Sydney Carlin is fighting for Kansas State University Students
  She has supported:
  - Funding for KSU Building Maintenance
  - Faculty and Employee raises
  - Expanded Student Loan Programs
  - Enhanced Student Health Plans
  - Supported faculty and staff with pay increases

Sydney Carlin is Endorsed by the Citizen For Higher Education, EPAC (Educating All Children), KNEA, The political arm of KASB and USA-Kansas, Biz Pac, the greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce Pac.
www.sydneycarlin.com
Pd. for by the committee to select Carlin, State Representative 66th District, John E. Carlin, Treasurer.
SYDNEY CARLIN

Working hard for K-State.

Governor Kathleen Sebelius

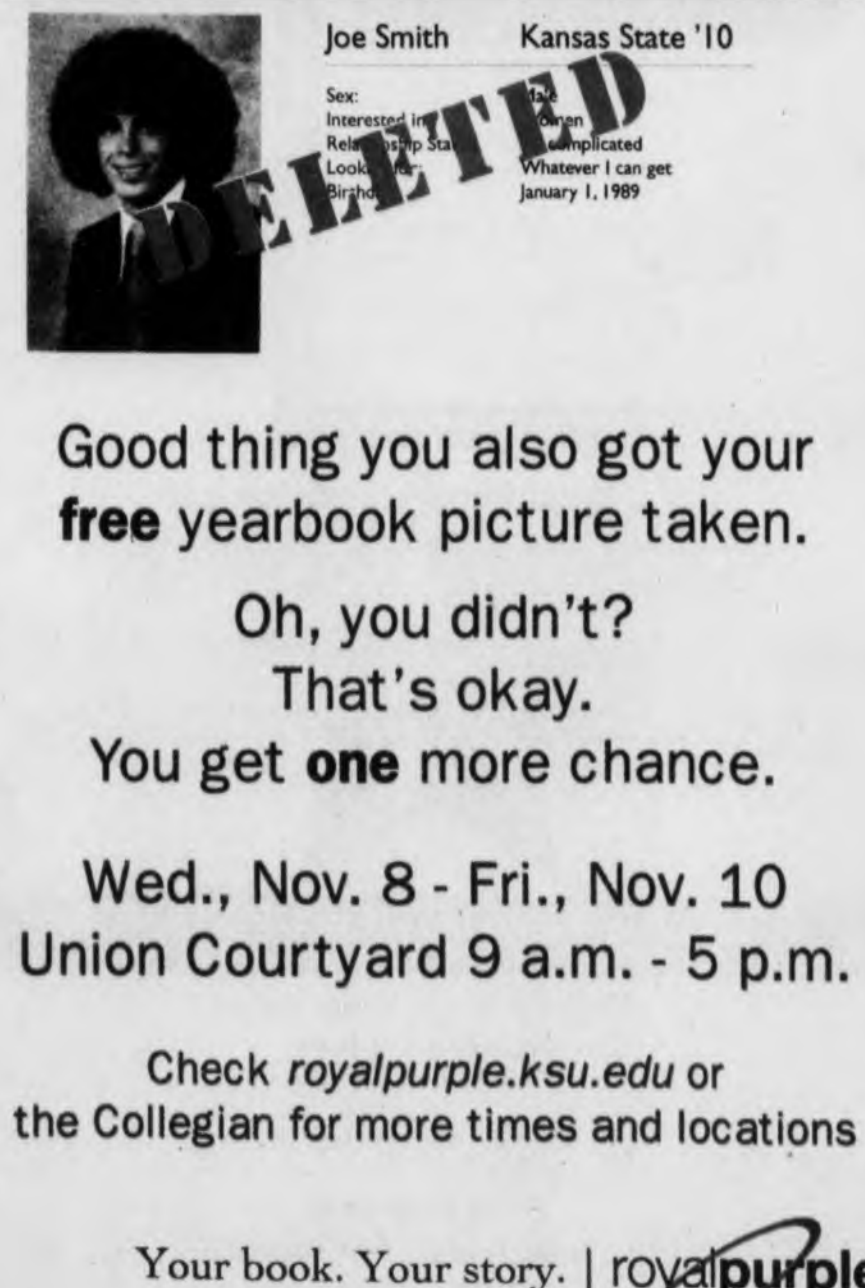
State Representative Sydney Carlin 66th District

State Representative Tom Hawk 67th District

The quality of your education here at K-State depends on having strong advocates for our university in the Kansas Legislature.

We need proven leaders, working with Governor Kathleen Sebelius, to make sure that K-State gets funding for new programs, improving staff salaries, maintaining buildings and keeping our best faculty. Simply put: The K-State budget directly affects you. We need people like Manhattan's Sydney Carlin and Tom Hawk in the Kansas House to work for bipartisan support for our university.

Last session, when anti-education conservatives tried to slash funding for higher education, Sydney and Tom worked to build support among Republicans and Democrats to preserve K-State's budget.



Effective leadership depends on cooperation, not partisan politics. Keep a proven, pro-education leadership team working for you. On November 7, re-elect Governor Kathleen Sebelius and Manhattan's State Representatives, Sydney Carlin and Tom Hawk.

Sebelius. Carlin. Hawk.

PROVEN LEADERSHIP WORKING FOR YOU.

Paid for by the Riley County Democratic Party.

Where will your Facebook profile be in 20 years?

Good thing you also got your free yearbook picture taken.

Oh, you didn't?
That's okay.
You get one more chance.

Wed., Nov. 8 - Fri., Nov. 10
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Check royalpurple.ksu.edu or the Collegian for more times and locations

Your book. Your story. | royalpurple yearbook&dvd

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

117 Rent-Duplexes

AVAILABLE NOW. 1019 Houston. Three-bedroom, one bath. Kitchen appliances, screened back porch. Close to city park, Aggieville, and downtown. $895. (417)849-2428.

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

FOUND: IPOD, describe and give location found to claim. 785-532-7946.

FOUND: SET of keys with white ribbon in Union parking lot Monday morning. To claim come into 103 Kedzie or call 785-532-6555 to identify.

LOST: DISPOSABLE camera, Saturday, 10/28, north of football stadium. Not valuable, just sentimental, almost full. If found, please return to Kedzie 105.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

CLASSIFIED ADS

LET THEM WORK FOR YOU

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom apartment. Near Westloop. $300 per month plus one-half of utilities. Call 316-200-8735.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January or before through May. Four-bedroom house close to campus, small pets ok. $300 plus 1/4 utilities. 785-313-3702.

JANUARY SUBLEASER wanted for one bedroom apartment. Close to campus. $450 a month all utilities paid except electricity. 785-331-8842.

ONE OR two subleases nedded Spring 2007. Four-bedroom house, three blocks west of campus $290 plus utilities. 785-341-4869.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Living with guys in a five - bedroom house, two blocks from campus. Rent $288. Call Matt 913-908-7097.

SUBLEASE: FEMALE needed. One room of two-bedroom, two bathrooms, furnished, at 2215 College Ave. $375 a month. Call 785-317-0345.

SUBLEASER NEEDED next semester! Three-bedroom apartment, one and one-half bath, $750/ month plus electricity. One-half block from campus. Contact: riley2@ksu.edu.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

ADVERTISE HERE
Display Ads 785-532-6560
or
Classifieds 785-532-6555

150 Sublease

SUBLEASER WANTED for Catholic women's house. Two blocks from campus. $310/ month includes: utilities, food, rent. Live in dorms? May work deal! Call 785-366-6342.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

FULL-TIME DELIVERY/ warehouse work. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. (785)-539-4466.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

310 Help Wanted

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for line cook positions, must have previous experience. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for servers, lunchtime availability preferred. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MILL CREEK Valley USD #329 is looking for a Freshmen Girls' Basketball Coach for Wabaunsee High School in Alma. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315. MCV is an equal opportunity employer.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

PART-TIME SALES person. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

PITA PIT, late night delivery drivers wanted, good pay plus great tips. In-store crew positions also available. Apply in person, 1131 Moro, Aggieville.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RAMADA PLAZA, soon to be Holiday Inn at the Campus is now hiring: Night Bellman, Banquet Staff, Morning Restaurant Server and Morning Cook for weekends, Night Auditor, Maintenance and Sales Coordinator. Apply in person at 1641 Anderson Ave. 785-539-7531.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

310 Help Wanted

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

SIMPLY WIRELESS, your T-Mobile Exclusive Dealer is coming soon and has immediate openings for bright, energetic persons to join our sales team in Manhattan. We have openings for part-time retail sales representatives. Simply Wireless is a special place to work---a full dynamic environment where every person makes a difference. We are open for new and creative ideas to improve our company's market position. Our growth has been phenomenal and we're adding to our ranks. Your potential is only limited by your imagination as we grow; we've made a commitment to not lose sight of the reason for our success, our customers and the people who work here. Send resume to ecarlson@swphones.biz.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

STUDENT SECRETARY/ RECEPTIONIST WANTED. The Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement is seeking a student with excellent command of Microsoft Word and Excel as well as exceptional skills in telephone answering etiquette, grammar, filing, use of dictaphone, scheduling appointments and a variety of other office duties. Must be a quick learner, self-motivated and very detailed oriented. Must be willing to work school breaks and summer. Preference given to a person with past office experience. The position will be available immediately continuing through fall, some of Christmas break, spring and summer. Workweek fall and spring semesters is a minimum of 25 hours and a maximum of 30 hours. Summer will require 30- 40 hours weekly. For an application, contact Dorothy Smith in the Office of the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, 122 Anderson Hall. Starting salary commensurate with experience. Deadline for submission of application is Thursday, November 2, 4:-00 p.m. to: Dorothy Smith Office of the Vice President, 122 Anderson Hall 785-532-5942.

ADVERTISE.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS • 785-532-6555

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

ADVERTISING Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

ADVERTISE IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS.
785 532 6555

785-532-6560
Advertise Here!

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

1. ANTHOLOGY of Chinese Poetry (translated to English.) http://li_chungwang0.tripod.com 2. The Philosophy of Mechanics. http://lcwangmech.tripod.com.

KNOW WHEN someone enters your apartment, dorm, or bedroom. Security system that calls your cell phone. Simple one time $50 solution. www.1lowbuy.com.

CHURCH RUMMAGE SALE. College Avenue United Methodist Church, 1609 College Avenue, Fellowship Hall. Friday November 3rd- 5:00pm to 8:00pm; Saturday November 4th- 7:30am to noon. Major items: Storey & Clark studio piano- good shape, needs tuning; stainless steel kitchen sink- like new; kids monkey bars and trapeze set; living room drapes; televisions; bicycles; much, much more.

465 Tickets to Buy/Sell

BE PROUD in purple in Boulder, Colorado November 4. Game tickets for sale, $50 each. Call Kathy at GTM Sportswear 785-537-8822 extension 1120.

Quiznos Sub
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

		3	4		2	6
	1	6	7		9	8	4
	4					1
6			2	9	8			4
	9					7
	5	8	9		1	3	6
		7	5		4	1

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

000 Bulletin Board

010-Announcements
020-Lost and Found
030-Post Its
040-Meetings/Events
050-Parties-n-More
060-Greek Affairs

100 Housing/Real Estate

101-Rentals Wanted
105-Rent-Apt. Furnished
110-Rent-Apt. Unfurnished
115-Rooms Available
117-Rent-Duplexes
120-Rent-Houses
125-Sale-Houses
130-Rent-Mobile Homes
135-Sale-Mobile Homes
140-Rent-Garages
145-Roommate Wanted
150-Sublease
155-Stable/Pasture
160-Office Space
165-Storage Space

200 Service Directory

205-Tutor
215-Desktop Publishing
220-Weight Loss & Nutrition
225-Pregnancy Testing
230-Lawn Care
235-Child Care
240-Musicians/DJs
245-Pet/Livestock Services
250-Automotive Repair
255-Other Services

300 Employment/Careers

310-Help Wanted
320-Volunteers Needed
330-Business Opportunities
340-Fundraisers/Scholarships

400 Open Market

405-Wanted to Buy
410-Items for Sale
415-Furniture to Buy/Sell
420-Garage/Yard Sales
430-Antiques
435-Computers
445-Music Instruments
450-Pets/Livestock & Supplies
455-Sporting Equipment
460-Electronic Equipment
465-Tickets to Buy/Sell

500 Transportation

510-Automobiles
520-Bicycles
530-Motorcycles

600 Travel/Trips

610-Tour Packages
630-Spring Break

To help you find what you are looking for, the classified ads have been arranged by category and sub-category. All categories are marked by one of the large images, and sub-categories are preceded by a number designation.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Classified Rates

1 DAY 20 words or less $10.50 each word over 20 20¢ per word	4 DAYS 20 words or less $17.90 each word over 20 35¢ per word
2 DAYS 20 words or less $12.95 each word over 20 25¢ per word	5 DAYS 20 words or less $20.00 each word over 20 40¢ per word
3 DAYS 20 words or less $15.65 each word over 20 30¢ per word	(consecutive day rate)

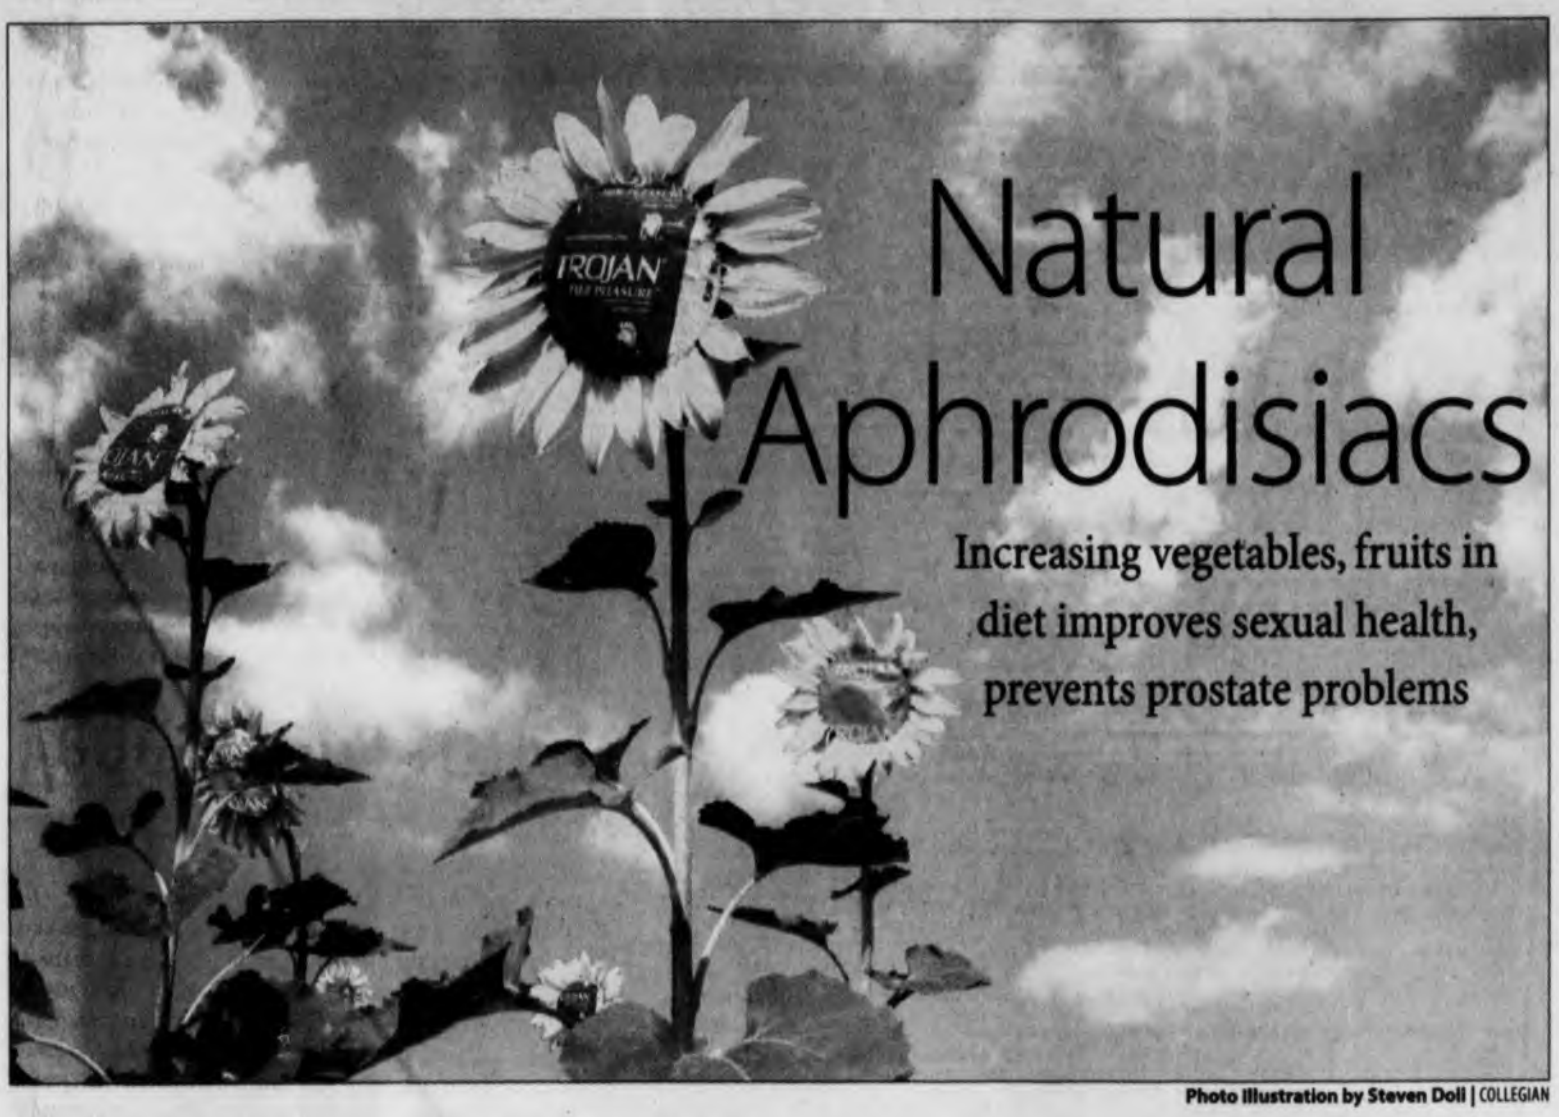

Photo illustration by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

While a healthy vegetarian diet is known to reduce risk of diabetes, heart disease and other health implications, it also cam improve another vital asset to one's life: sexual health.

According to research reported at the meeting of the American Society for Reproductive Medicine last week, the more produce a man consumed, the less sluggish his sperm.

The study included 48 infertile men and 10 fertile men who had children in the past year. The participants were asked to complete questionnaires about their diets and sexual health. Research concluded that 83 percent of the infertile men had a low intake of fruits and vegetables – about less than five servings per day – in comparison with their fertile counterparts. About 40 percent of fertile men in the study did not meet their daily recommended intake of fruits and vegetables.

"We think that sperm quality is affected by dietary antioxidant intake," said author Dr. Vivian Lewis in an MSNBC report.

Lewis is a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Rochester in Rochester, N.Y.

She said the antioxidants found in produce might improve the health of one's sperm, including their tendency to be sluggish or their ability to fertilize an egg. More specifically, antioxidants found in bright-colored produce – leafy greens, tomatoes, peppers and oranges – were associated with strong, healthy sperm in the study.

For years, other researchers also have said there are several health benefits associated with eating vegetables. The benefits, however, are not limited to men.

Physicians with the American Heart Association agree that eating meat can cause clogging of the arteries that go to all organs of the body, not just the heart. An October study from the AHA concluded that poor eating habits, especially for those who eat meat, could lead to one's impotence.

Regulating meat intake will not only lead to a healthier lifestyle, but also can improve the sexual health of men and women. According to the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, several vegan foods are loaded with natural aphrodisiac nutrients.

Foods like chocolate, licorice, nuts and soy are known as sexual stimulants, said Dr. Alan Hirsch of the Smell and Taste Treatment and Research Foundation. Fruits and vegetables like asparagus, bananas, carrots, chili peppers and pumpkins are known as hormone stimulants.

For more than 25 years, Hirsch has dedicated his career to helping people understand how taste and smell can improve their lives.

His research concluded that pure vegetarians are about one-ninth as likely as meat-eaters to be overweight and report needing less sleep and having more energy than meat-eaters.

And when it comes to eating out, Hirsch said the smell of barbecue or roasted meat reduces sexual desire in women.

Among his most recent research about male stimulation, the smell of lavender and pumpkin pie increase a man's penile flow by 40 percent. Doughnuts and black licorice increase penile flow by 31.5 percent. Oranges increase penile flow by about 20 percent, along with the scent pairs of lavender with doughnut and black licorice with cola.

For women, Hirsch said the smell of Good & Plenty increases vaginal blood flow by 14 percent.

The information from these studies proves quite useful and should not go unnoticed, said Carrie Wahlberg, Junction City nutritionist and resident.

"What one must understand is that living a good healthy life and having a good sexual life go hand in hand," Wahlberg said. "People should not limit themselves to just candles and cologne. Live a healthy life, and enjoy it to its fullest. They will feel good. They will look good. And then the benefits will show up the the bedroom."

— MSNBC News contributed to this article

Try serving your lover these scrumptious vegan aphrodisiacs to put both of you in the mood:

Bananas: A fruit with a sexy shape, bananas are said to contain chemicals that can lift your mood and make you more confident. Bananas are also famously high in potassium, a nutrient that boost energy and aids in sex hormone production.

Berries: The perfect foods to feed your lover, strawberries, raspberries and blueberries are high in vitamin C, which is important for making sex hormones and neurotransmitters.

Chili peppers: These sizzling veggies will spice up your meal and your evening. Adding chili peppers to your dishes gets your heart pumping and produces neurochemicals known as endorphins, which make you happier.

Chocolate: Nothing shows your love — or your compassion — better than a box of vegan chocolates for your sweetheart. Chocolate contains the chemical phenylethylamine, which is believed to stimulate romantic feelings by making you happy and excited. Its natural caffeine provides an added boost by giving you more energy.

Licorice: A fun food to hand-feed your lover, researchers have found that the smell of licorice mixed with cucumber is the most sexually stimulating scent for women. Licorice is widely believed to produce feelings of love and lust — particularly in women.

Nuts: Men should eat cashews, pecans, almonds, walnuts and other nuts to take in a healthy amount of zinc, which keeps men potent and prevents prostate problems. Nuts are also high in protein, which gives you the energy to keep going throughout the day — and night.

Pumpkin: Neurological research has shown that the scent of pumpkin pie is a sexual stimulant for both men and women, increasing male penile blood flow by 40 percent. Pumpkin seeds are one of the best vegan sources of zinc, which, for men, is crucial for potency and in preventing prostate problems.

Soy: Soy isn't just protein-packed and amazingly versatile — it's also great for the sex lives of both guys and gals. For women, soy's natural nutrients have been linked to less PMS and better lubrication. The benefits for guys are even better: soy has been found to lower men's chances for developing cancer of the prostate (a vital gland for keeping everything pumping in the bedroom). Researchers at K-State found soy protein was just as good as beef for guys trying to gain muscle mass. But quite unlike cow flesh, tofu and veggie burgers have zero cholesterol and almost no saturated fat, substances that lead to heart disease, impotence and other not-so-sexy stuff, like bad breath and body odor.

Source: PETA

Vegetarians struggle in middle of barbecue state

REGINA NOWAK

It seems no matter where you go in Manhattan, you are bombarded with the message of many meat lovers.

Being a vegetarian in Kansas is really something. If nothing else, I learned at least that in my past three months in Manhattan.

To finally come out of the closet (although people recommended I keep quiet about it), I have to admit it – I am a vegetarian, and I have been for about nine years now. I do not eat meat, not even chicken. I also do not eat fish. The official name of the way I nourish is called "ovo-lacto-vegetarian," because I do drink milk and consume dairy products and eggs.

Please don't start with questions like, "Would vegetarians eat carrots if they had faces?" or "Do vegetarians hate plants?"

Being a vegetarian is not some kind of disease. We don't want to ruin the cattle industry, nor do we want to steal your food's food.

I decided to become a vegetarian when I was 13. Initially, it was because I saw a video in biology class about how animals – chicken in particular – are bred and treated. I didn't want to be the reason for their suffering or any animals' suffering. I don't think it is appropriate to treat animals like this simply because we were able to invent some weapons. I don't believe we "fought our way to the top of the food chain" and thus can treat everything else the way we want.

Maybe you could give it a shot some time and just try to imagine what it is like in my shoes. So many celebrations in the American culture are based on enjoying food together. For example, the traditional Thanksgiving turkey is about to come up. Participating in an event like this is quite difficult. I want to spend time with my family and friends, yet there always has to be a special dish, because nobody wants to get rid of the meat and have a tofu turkey instead.

Furthermore, just think about all the little issues vegetarians deal with every day. Plain yogurt or ice cream – does it contain gelatin? What about pudding? Does this soup consist of vegetable or beef stew? Is there bacon in the mashed potatoes? (By the way, there usually is.)

Kansas is a barbecue state. It's the nation's second-largest producer of beef cattle, and Manhattan is right in the middle of it. It's a steak state, and Manhattan is a steak city. You certainly can survive, but it is not that easy, though being a vegetarian is as difficult as you make it.

While there are few options for vegetarians who eat at restaurants in Manhattan, I have taken note of a few places that do offer a reasonable variety of menu items, including: The Pita Pit, 4 Olives Wine Bar, Panera Bread, Bluestem Bistro, Chili's, Chipotle, Royal Thai Cuisine, and Applebee's Neighborhood Bar and Grill.

Although the variety of vegetarian-friendly restaurants in Manhattan doesn't seem vast, they are good for surviving a semester in a steak town in the middle of a barbecue state. And since I survived a year in Texas – the nation's largest producer of beef cattle – I will be able to handle the second-largest producer as well.

I know I haven't been to a lot of restaurants yet, since I only arrived three months ago. If you have more suggestions for vegetarians, let me know, and I'm more than willing to give them a shot.

Regina Nowak is a non-degree seeking student in journalism. Please send comments to edge@spub.ksu.edu.

CELEB NEWS

Blockbuster to accept online DVD returns in stores

CHICAGO (Reuters) — Blockbuster Inc. said Wednesday it is changing its online movie rental policy to allow customers to return DVDs either through the mail or at its stores.

Under the new Total Access plan, which begins on Wednesday, customers can receive a free in-store movie rental if they return to stores those DVDs that are rented online.

Rival online DVD rental company Netflix Inc. only operates through the mail.

Blockbuster said it added about 150,000 net subscribers to its online program during the third quarter. At the end of September, it had about 1.5 million online subscribers.

Its new policy should help Blockbuster meet its goal of 2 million subscribers by the end of the year, Chairman and Chief Executive John Antioco said in a statement.

Blockbuster said that by returning movies to a store, online renters will speed up delivery of their next movie.

Madonna's film company files idea-theft lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maverick Films, the production company co-founded by Madonna, has filed a lawsuit alleging another film company stole ideas to benefit a competing project.

The lawsuit, filed Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court, claims Beverly Hills-based Inferno Distribution unfairly represented itself to gain access to confidential information about a movie Maverick is making called "The Stanford Prison Experiment."

Inferno announced in early October that it was funding a remake of the German film "Das Experiment," based on the Stanford Prison Experiment of 1971.

Maverick's lawsuit alleges misappropriation of trade secrets, unfair competition, breach of contract and fraud. It seeks an injunction preventing Inferno from producing or marketing any film based on the Stanford Prison Experiment. It also seeks damages of at least $50 million.

The lawsuit claims Inferno and partner Bill Johnson "represented that they had no involvement in a competing film project and that all information provided to them would be maintained in the strictest confidence. Defendants lied."

Maverick acquired rights to the story in 2002 from Philip G. Zimbardo, a psychology professor at Stanford University who conducted an experiment on obedience in 1971. He recruited 24 men to portray inmates and guards in a prison setting. Zimbardo planned to study the men for two weeks, but dangerous behavior among them prompted him to stop the experiment after six days.

According to the lawsuit, Maverick began developing its film based on the experiment in June 2003 and first met with Johnson and Inferno in May 2006.

Johnson told The Associated Press the lawsuit was groundless.

"Maverick knew full well when they approached us to finance their movie that we were looking at the other project," he said. "We didn't like the project, and that's why we passed on it. This is just a classic case of sour grapes."

TV RATINGS

■ For the week of Oct. 23-29
■ Viewers measured in millions

Top TV shows	Viewers
1. "Desperate Housewives" ABC, Sunday, 8 p.m.	21.2
2. "Dancing with the Stars" ABC, Tuesday, 7 p.m.	20.7
3. "Dancing with the Stars" ABC, Wednesday, 7 p.m.	20.0

4. "CSI: Miami" CBS, Monday, 9 p.m.	17.8
5. "CSI: NY" CBS, Wednesday, 9 p.m.	17.4
6. "Football: Dallas vs. S. Carol." CBS, Wednesday, 9 p.m.	17.3
7. "Lost" ABC, Wednesday, 8 p.m.	17.1
8. "CSI" CBS, Thursday, 8 p.m.	16.8
8. "Criminal Minds" CBS, Wednesday, 8 p.m.	16.8
10. "60 Minutes" CBS, Sunday, 6:21 p.m.	16.5

Source: www.ew.com

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, November 3, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 55

Special Section
The Wildcats prepare for Colorado and a shot at bowl eligibility.

Lost in the crowd

High student-adviser ratios rush enrollment, sometimes hindering proper pursuit of degree

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Alyssa Miller didn't receive the best advice her first time at K-State.

Miller, junior in psychology, came to K-State in April 2006 to enroll in classes as a transfer student. When she came to campus, she had her first meeting with an adviser.

"Pretty much, she shoved me in front of a computer and gave me a book," Miller said. "I didn't know anything about what I was supposed to be taking. I came in as a junior. I don't just want to take freshman classes. I want to get this over with."

While sitting with a group of other transfer students, Miller said she was told to look through a curriculum book and pick classes that were interesting, but she also was informed that many of the classes she would need for her major would be filled.

Her adviser suggested a few classes, but Miller said she was overwhelmed.

"I sat there and cried and told my mom I didn't even want to come to K-State," she said.

Miller said she left with an uneasy feeling and later found out one of the classes she needed to take to get into future psychology classes was only available in the fall semester – a class she was not told she needed to enroll in.

Although Miller struggled with her first advising session, she said she sought help from the same adviser this semester and found her to be helpful.

Coming to K-State from a community college, Miller said she thought K-State advisers and staff would tell her the classes she would need, which was not the case.

◆◆◆◆

When Christopher Able, senior in finance, started at K-State, he was an engineering student. After Able changed his major, he switched to the College of Business Administration and found he was not getting the advice or face time he wanted.

"They just kind of rushed over everything," he said.

Able said five advisers are in charge of all of the students in the college, making the ratio about 500 students to one adviser. Students only get about 20 minutes with their adviser, Able said, despite what their appointment might be about.

"You just can't walk (up) to your adviser," he said. "You don't really get to know your adviser very well."

In 2004, students complained about the adviser-student ratio in the College of Business Administration, and the administration set up an open discussion for students to voice concerns. However, only 15-20 people showed up.

Able said students in the college don't know there is another way to be advised.

"A lot of the students don't think about it because they're not aware of it," he said.

Ike Ehie, associate dean of the College of Business Administration, confirmed the ratio of students to advisers, but said the five advisers are full-time, which he said was incomparable to faculty advising in other colleges.

"It's like comparing apples and oranges," he said.

While the ratio was previously 700 or 800 students to one adviser, Ehie said the administration feels the current number is just right.

After complaints about the advising in the college a few years ago, Ehie said the college has made steps to change advising, including raising salaries and offering extensive training. He said student ratings of

See ADVISERS Page 10

Chimes names couple family of the year

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two Manhattan residents have been named K-State's Family of the Year.

Chimes Junior Honorary named Hal and Phyllis Broadie K-State's Honorary Family. They will be honored during Family Day Saturday.

For a complete list of Family Day events, visit www.k-state.edu/familyday.

"Even though there were less than 10 applications, making the final decision for Honorary Family was very difficult," said Lauren Luhrs, Family Day coordinator for Chimes and junior in human ecology and mass communications.

Chimes received nominations for the couple from their grandchildren, Weston and Bethany Fox. Weston Fox is a sophomore in electrical engineering, and Bethany Fox is junior in pre-nursing.

"Values of unconditional love, faith and the importance of an education were always present. Hal and Phyllis were always good role models for family values and the importance of education," the Foxes wrote of the Broadies in their nomination.

Weston Fox said his mother told him about the application for Family of the Year.

"I felt they had quite a legacy going," Weston Fox said. "Both of them attended K-State as well as their four daughters, and now their grandchildren."

The Broadie daughters also married fellow K-State students.

"We were very pleased to have been chosen," Phyllis Broadie said.

While at K-State, Hal Broadie was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and lived near Phyllis Burns, who was a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

The Family of the Year will be honored with a brunch at 10 a.m. Saturday. They will be presented with a plaque that honors them as Family of the Year between the second and third volleyball games as the Wildcats play the Texas A&M Aggies.

This Saturday is Family Day, and there will be events on campus throughout the day.

Professor speaks about 1st local settlers

Lauren Ritterbush, associate professor in sociology, anthropology and social work, speaks to attendees about the previous inhabitants of the Manhattan area Thursday evening at Manhattan Public Library.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

More than 40 people gathered in the auditorium of the Manhattan Public Library last night to hear Lauren Ritterbush, associate professor in sociology, anthropology and social work, speak about the previous inhabitants of the Manhattan area.

Some residents came hoping to learn more about the history of their community.

"I'm interested in the heritage, and I have a lot of Indian friends," Adelene Guzzo, Manhattan resident, said. "I hope to gain a knowledge and an insight to the culture of Indians."

Chris Nechols, Manhattan High School junior, attended the presentation to receive extra credit for a course and to better understand what he learned in his U.S. history class.

"We just got done with the Civil War and the Western movement," Nechols said. "I thought it'd be cool to learn more about the subject and hear about it from another point of view besides my teacher's."

Ritterbush began by touching on the history of the Konza Native Americans, who lived in the area in a village called the Blue Earth Village from about 1796 to 1825. An expedition through their village reported around 120 lodges there at that time, Ritterbush said.

"We're talking a population of at least 1,000 people at this location," she said.

The Konza Native Americans were not the original occupants of this land. Nearly 800 years ago, the area was

See RITTERBUSH Page 11

White House confirms Bush visit

By Sam Hananel
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON – The White House on Thursday confirmed that President Bush will visit Topeka this weekend to stump for Rep. Jim Ryun, R-Kan., who is facing a tougher-than-expected race for re-election.

Bush

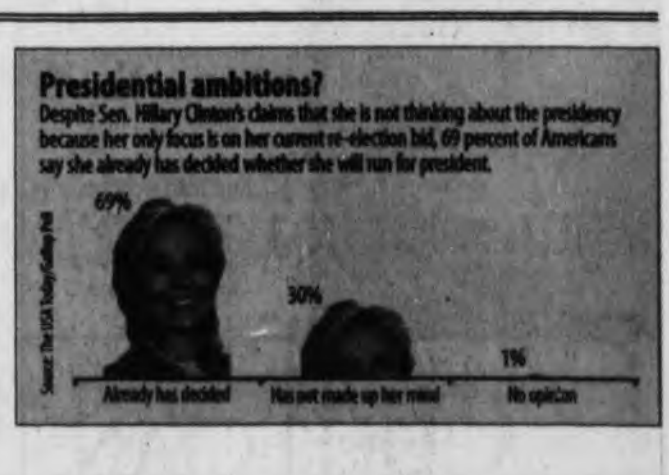
Bush will speak at a 6:20 p.m. rally for Ryun on Sunday at the Kansas Expocentre.

Ryun conceded for the first time this week that he's in a close race rematch with Democrat Nancy Boyda.

Today's forecast
Partly cloudy
High: 60 Low: 39

INSIDE

Once in a Lifetime
Getting married or planning a bachelor party? Learn some tips in our monthly wedding and engagement section.



Pages 8 and 9

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

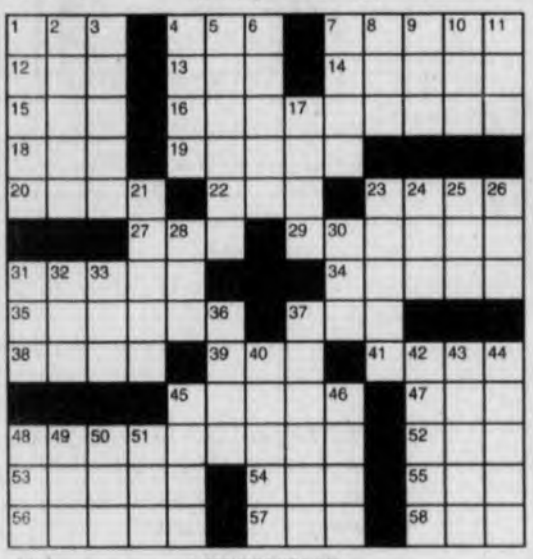
Annual exhibit to open
"Wrap it up," an annual art exhibit and sale, begins Saturday at the Manhattan Arts Center. It starts with a public reception 5-7 p.m. A private reception for arts center members is 3-5 p.m. For the complete story, please visit the Collegian Web site at www.kstatecollegian.com.

RCPD to recruit
The Riley County Police Department is looking for officers. The department will have a recruiting event from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the Riley County Law Enforcement Center. For the complete story, please visit the Collegian Web site at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Evolution advocate
Eugenie Scott is passionate about evolution. And, as she demonstrated Thursday night, she's not afraid to take on evolution's opponents. Scott spoke at the fall's final event for The Center for the Understanding of Origins. For the complete story, please visit the Collegian Web site at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Pouch
4 Type squares
7 Tape-recorder parts
12 That girl
13 Acquire
14 Correspond
15 Previous to 16 Tries
18 Back talk
19 Dulcet
20 Greek-salad ingredient
22 Mound stat
23 "Cheers" supply
27 Cover
29 Falsely ingratiating
31 Refuge
34 Squabble
35 "Last night I — I went to Manderley again"
37 Get under one's skin
38 Poor grades
39 Thither
41 To a degree
45 Quickly
47 Glutton
48 Has punishment coming
52 Gelid
53 Part of the retina
54 H, to Socrates
55 Siesta
56 More cunning
57 Actor Benicio — Toro
58 Superlative ending

DOWN
1 Ledge
2 Avian penthouse
3 Went on all fours
4 Coop collection
5 Spoke like Morris
6 Take the helm
7 Huck's transport
8 "I" strain
9 Screw up
10 Wahine's bestowal
11 Congeal
17 Sailor's septet
21 Jennifer Garner series
23 Kennel cacophony
24 Work unit
25 Flightless bird
26 Catcher's place
28 Doctrine
30 Scratch the surface
31 Peculiar
32 Exist
33 Witness
36 Glitch in print
37 Spur on
40 Propelled a scull
42 Utter a thought
43 Countertop minerals
44 Home of the Sphinx
45 Somewhere out there
46 Listending abbr.
48 Conditions
49 Impresario Hurok
50 Collegiate climber
51 Born

Solution time: 25 mins.

A	S	P		F	A	S	T		H	O	M	E
L	E	A		R	I	P	E		A	V	E	R
P	A	N	G	O	L	I	N		L	E	T	S
		D	U	N		N	O	M	I	N	E	E
T	W	E	N	T	Y		N	U	B
H	I	M		S	O	W		D	U	P	E	D
I	R	I	S		U	R	N		T	A	L	E
S	E	C	T	S		Y	E	P		N	A	B
			O	A	T		T	R	I	A	L	S
W	H	I	P	P	E	T		E	S	C
R	A	N	G		P	A	N	T	H	E	O	N
A	L	T	A		E	D	I	T		A	D	O
P	O	O	P		E	S	P	Y		S	E	W

Yesterday's answer 11-3

11-3 CRYPTOQUIP

TF UND AVXAVLDUXV XB UND NTEQUDO NXEFD, L SEDFF L CXEWO FTJ JXE'VD LUF BVLSNUBEW XCQDV.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A YOKED BEAST HANDLED MAIL, WOULD YOU EXPECT HIM TO BE KNOWN AS A POST-OFFICE OX?

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: V equals R

BEST BETS

Your social calendar for the weekend

3 Friday

Feature Film: "Beauty and the Beast"
8 p.m. Union Little Theatre*
Admission: $1

In honor of Family Day, UPC is showing this Disney classic. It's the story of Belle, a girl who wants something more out of life. Due to a wrong turn by her father, Maurice, Belle ends up meeting the Beast, a prince who lives as a beast because he could not love.

*Movie also shows at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Saturday and at 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission for Saturday and Sunday is $1.

"Tartuffe"
8 p.m. McCain Auditorium*
Admission: $13 for general public, K-State faculty and seniors, $8 for students and children, $11 for military

When a religious hypocrite, Tartuffe, ingratiates himself with Orgon and his mother Madame Pernelle, he is accepted into their home with the promise of Orgon's daughter as his bride. But is Tartuffe really who he seems, and can the family with whom he stays be saved from the problems it faces? The play is performed by KSU Theatre.

*There is also an 8 p.m. Saturday showing. Admission is the same.

4 Saturday

K-State at Colorado
2:40 p.m. CST Folsom Field

The Wildcats take on the Colorado Buffaloes at Boulder, in a game that is sure to be exciting. K-State needs this win to qualify for a bowl game. The game is televised on FSN, so be sure to flip the television to that channel and cheer for the Wildcats.

UPC After Hours
7 p.m. Forum Hall

Come see mentalist Craig Karges wow audience members with his tricks. After Hours is on Saturday so families who are visiting K-State can enjoy the show as well.

5 Sunday

Open Mic Night
4 p.m. PJ.'s Bar

Let everyone hear your beautiful rendition of "I Will Survive" at open mic night. Who knows? Maybe you'll be discovered, and it will kick-start your music career.

The planner
Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy will present "Speak Out!" noon to 1 p.m. today in Bosco Student Plaza. Step up to the open mic and speak your mind on what issue will influence your vote Tuesday.

■ Nobel laureate James Heckman will speak about the importance of early childhood education at a K-State Distinguished Lecture at 1:30 p.m. today in Forum Hall. The lecture is free and open to the public.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Pathinihannadige Rodrigo at 3 p.m. today in Rathbone 2064.

■ Coffee Hour will be presented at the International Student Center 4-5 p.m. today. The title is "Saudi Arabia: 100 Years of Successful Development."

■ The Fair Trade in the Heartland Conference is today through Sunday. The cost is $10 for students and $25 for the public. Online registration is available. For more information visit, www.lawrencefairtrade.org.

■ Applications are available for Wildcat Warm-up director positions. The deadline to apply is Monday. For more information, e-mail Emily Lehning at lehning@k-state.edu.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Rustin Clark at 1 p.m. Monday in Bluemont 106.

■ There will be a session on overseas teaching at 7 p.m. Nov. 7 in Union 212. It is sponsored by Career & Employment Services (www.k-state.edu/ces).

■ A Fair Trade Marketplace will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday in the Union Ballroom.

■ Rink Dickinson, co-founder and co-executive director of Equal Exchange, will present his lecture "A Taste for Justice" at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union Ballroom. The event is part of the Lou Douglas Lecture Series on Public Issues.

Corrections and clarifications

There was an error in the Oct. 27 issue of the Collegian. The women's rugby team is in the club division of the Heart of America Rugby Union. There was an error in Thursday's Collegian. Mabel Iles, Manhattan, was 21 years old in 1920. The Collegian regrets the errors.

If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Kansas State University

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

Tom HAWK
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Kasha Hurt Treasurer

Sertoma Luncheon Club
Rummage Sale and Benefit Breakfast
7-11 a.m.
Saturday, Nov. 4
Pottorf Hall, CICO Park
Get your breakfast tickets at the door.

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

$2 OFF IN NOVEMBER
REPAIRING
•Shoes & Boots
•Purses & Luggage
•Harness
•Back Packs
• Birkenstocks
•Leathercoats
• Satin Shoe Dying
ULTRA GRIP for ice and snow, reduce slipping. $15.99
MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR
Hours: M-F 8:30-6 • Sat. 8-12 216 S. 4th St. • 4th & Poyntz • 776-1193

WHEN YOU'RE DONE READING ALL THE ARTICLES, DON'T FORGET TO WASTE MORE TIME IN LECTURE BY DOING THE
SUDOKU
LOCATED IN THE COLLEGIAN'S CLASSIFIEDS SECTION

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

International Students in Agriculture Panel
International students discuss agricultural policies and practices in their native countries
Tuesday, November 7, 2006
6:30 p.m.
Waters Room 231
Free refreshments served following the panel.
Sponsored by Sigma Alpha
Kansas State University
SGA
Student Governing Association

Did you sell more magazines than anyone else in your 6th grade class?
We'll give you more than a turn at the pencil machine...
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling magazines.
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL or email jharmon@ksu.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL, FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

'Victory Tour' stops at K-State

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Republican candidates for state offices visited K-State Thursday morning as part of a four-day pre-election bus tour, called "Victory 2006 Tour," that will cover nearly 2,000 miles and include stops in at least 30 communities.

The group, which includes gubernatorial candidate Rep. Jim Barnett, R-Emporia; Rep. Jim Ryun, R-Kan.; and incumbent Attorney General Phill Kline started the day at the GOP headquarters in Topeka before arriving at the K-State Alumni Center at about 9 a.m.

Ron Freeman, executive director of the Kansas GOP and father of K-State quarterback Josh Freeman, also spoke.

Kline, who is in a tight race with Johnson County district attorney Paul Morrison, recently has been criticized and investigated for fundraising involving churches.

Kline defended his practices Tuesday, saying he has receptions at separate venues when he is in a town to preach.

Clint Blaes, junior in agricultural communications and journalism, said the candidates didn't say anything that surprised him.

"It was really the same issues they've been talking about throughout the campaign," he said.

Blaes, a Republican, said it was fun to have a chance to see the candidates in person.

"I was surprised at how lively and entertaining they were," he said. "They're not just the people you see in TV ads."

After about 45 minutes, the tour left Manhattan for its next stop in Junction City.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Attorney general incumbent Phill Kline, R-Kan., talks with Mary Geiger and Clint Blaes, seniors in agricultural communications and journalism, after speeches by Republican candidates for state offices Thursday morning.

Conference's speakers, workshops to educate students on fair trade

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Fair Trade in the Heartland Conference will be in Manhattan this Friday and Saturday as a part of Fair Trade Week.

"We want to educate students about fair trade and make them more aware of what goes on in the world and the consequences of their actions," said Sarah Mitts, who is helping with the planning of the conference. "This is my interest. I think it's important as young people to be aware of what's going on around the world."

Fair trade ensures no one is taken advantage of or receives unfair treatment in work and wages, Mitts, senior in business management, said.

"It is ensuring fair wages are paid to local artisans and small farmers around the world and providing them with representation in the markets and ensuring that they're getting enough wages, enough money, enough services and enough opportunities, just like everyone else," Mitts said. "The fair trade organizations give people representation, help them get loans, educate them and make sure they get equal treatment."

The idea of Fair Trade Week came about after Rink Dickinson, the co-founder and co-executive director of Equal Exchange, was booked to give a Lou Douglas lecture on fair trade, said Linda Teener, executive director of UFM Community Learning Center. Equal Exchange is the oldest and largest for-profit fair trade company in the United States, according to its Web site.

The conference will begin today with registration and a gathering, followed by an address by keynote speaker Kattie Somerfield, the director of fair trade projects at Lutheran World Relief.

Somerfield will discuss the efforts of Lutheran World Relief, which includes advocating fair trade for farming families and artisans as well as offering relief to people in need in 35 countries throughout the world. Since she is from a religious organization, Somerfield also will discuss the partnership among the church, fair trade and relief, Mitts said.

On Saturday, two speakers will address fair trade. One speaker is Jim French, the lead organizer of Oxfam America. His will be speech will be titled "Immigrations, Environment and Trade Policy."

"The thing that's great about this conference is that representatives from big organizations with fair trade are coming," Mitts said.

There also will be workshops throughout the day for participants to learn more about fair trade, like a workshop titled "Organizing on Campus."

Mitts said the workshop is a panel discussion of campus ministries talking about what they're doing on their campuses to advocate fair trade.

"It will be creating awareness about what other universities are doing and encouraging our campus to take actions," Mitts said. "We have a lot of organizations for students advocating human rights, for environment and for women's rights, but none exclusively for fair trade."

Some students said they don't know a lot about fair trade, so they want to learn more about it.

"I don't really know anything about fair trade," Jeremy Anterola, junior in landscape architecture, said. "I definitely think that having a conference here will help raise awareness on campus."

The conference is expected to bring in more than 100 people from K-State, the University of Kansas and the University of Tulsa. The majority of those attending are expected to be students, Mitts said.

Activities will take place on K-State's campus as well as at the CrossRoads of ECM.

For more information on the conference, visit www.lawrencefairtrade.org.

Need something to do?
Try SuDoku
Located on the classified page
sudoku

PREPARE FOR THE SEASON WITH carhartt
NOW 15% OFF!
LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
MON-FRI 9-6 · SATURDAY 9-5
8426 E. HWY 24 · 785.776.8715

✓electronic file submission
Claflin Books and Copies

SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District.

ATTENTION Faculty and Staff
Ask why discerning faculty members have us manage their Regents' Retirement Plan Accounts
Kramer Capital Management
601 Leavenworth - Manhattan
785-539-0110
www.rickkramer.com
email with subject: "Regent Plan" to rgkramer@cox.net

University Distinguished Lecture

James J. Heckman, Ph.D. is the Henry Schultz Distinguished Service Professor of Economics at the University of Chicago. He is an expert on the economic effects of early education on educational attainment and quality of later life.

Heckman, a labor economist who won the Nobel Prize in Economic Sciences in 2000, has discovered that the critical period for educational intervention for at risk children is before the age of five. Outcomes for these children can be significantly improved with access to high-quality, early educational programs.

James J. Heckman, Ph. D.
2000 Nobel Laureate

"Skills, Schools and Synapses"

Friday, November 3, 2006
1:30 p.m. Lecture
K-State Union Forum Hall
Reception to Follow

College of Human Ecology • College of Education • Department of Economics • Institute for Academic Alliances • University Distinguished Lecture Committee

Where will your Facebook profile be in 20 years?

facebook Kansas State

Joe Smith Kansas State '10
Sex:
Interested in Relationship Status
Looking for Birthday
Whatever I can get
January 1, 1989

DELETED

Good thing you also got your free yearbook picture taken.

Oh, you didn't?
That's okay.
You get one more chance.

Wed., Nov. 8 - Fri., Nov. 10
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Check royalpurple.ksu.edu or the Collegian for more times and locations

Your book. Your story. | royalpurple yearbook & dvd

RE-ELECT SYDNEY CARLIN
Representing You
66TH DISTRICT

Your Neighbor, Your Friend, Your Advocate
• She has supported State Higher Education Funding to curb tuition increases
• As Ranking Member of the Higher Education Committee, Sydney built a coalition to protect KSU Funding For:
– VET Med, Research, Extension and Building Maintenance
• As a member of the state House Economic Development Committee, Sydney helped design the Economic Growth Act
– Creating Quality Jobs for KSU Graduates in Research, Bio-Sciences and Agriculture
– Stimulating Entrepreneurship in Kansas with the Angel Investment Network
• "Stands Up" for Kansas State University Students
– Funding for KSU Building Maintenance – Faculty and Employee raises
– Expanded Student Loan Programs – Enhanced Student Health Plans
Sydney Carlin is Endorsed by the Citizen For Higher Education, EPAC (Educating All Children), KNEA, The political arm of KASB and USA-Kansas, Biz-PAC, the greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce PAC
www.sydneycarlin.com
Paid for by the committee to Re-Elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District, John B. Carlin, Treasurer.

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

CLASH WEEK

Both sides of the story

Fox News broadcasts unbiased coverage from 'fair and balanced' view of all events

CHUCK ARMSTRONG

Have you heard the news? Apparently, the U.S. president is an idiotic, greedy, war-mongering, lying, capitalistic pig.

At least, this is what the majority of today's media would have you believe.

On Halloween, the breaking coverage of John Kerry insulting the soldiers in Iraq was all over the news. Every television station and Web site discussed Kerry's comments.

CNN.com would have you believe Kerry was attacked by radical conservatives. It was not Kerry's fault; it was merely a botched joke. Foxnews.com would have you believe that what Kerry said, joke or not, was a terrible thing to say and that he owes the soldiers in Iraq an apology.

Ah, Fox News. "We Report. You decide." Why can't all media have this attitude?

Try Fox News. Is Shepherd Smith taking cheap shots at liberals? Is Jane Skinner belittling Kerry for his ludicrous comments?

Check out www.foxnews.com sometime. Are the articles attacking Democrats? Do the reporters write subjective stories? No.

What Fox News does so beautifully is report the news from a fair and balanced viewpoint. Yes, "fair and balanced."

And what makes Fox News fair, balanced and much better than any other news source?

In June, Department of Defense intelligence reported that since 2003, 500 chemical weapons have been discovered in Iraq – weapons Saddam Hussein told inspectors were destroyed.

My guess is that most of you did not hear this. The news broke on the balanced show "Hannity (conservative) and Colmes (liberal)." CNN's Web site, however, has no articles on this monumental discovery.

Why? Perhaps CNN, among many other news sources, realized that by reporting this, Bush's invasion suddenly is justified with concrete evidence of weapons of mass destruction.

But CNN does have are articles on the recent Kerry situation, insinuating Republicans are at fault for attacking him. Is this unbiased?

While CNN blamed Republicans for accusing Kerry, Fox News presented an objective view of the situation with no hidden messages.

There is little fair, unbiased news available. The story on the 500 weapons found in Iraq should have been broadcast worldwide, but it was found only on Fox News at the time.

Fox News might have conservative Bill O'Reilly hosting a show each evening, but what channel doesn't have a biased talk show host?

Thank God that we, as American citizens, have the opportunity to obtain unbiased news from an objective source. Don't take your news from O'Reilly. Don't even take your news from Sean Hannity. Their job is to be subjective.

Take your news from the source that isn't trying to convince you of anything, but simply gives you the news.

Plus, at least Fox News doesn't have anyone like Larry King.

Chuck Armstrong is a junior in English education. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

CNN presents news objectively, then switches to coverage of other significant happenings

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

I had no clue how to start my column today. When something goes without saying, it becomes quite hard to convince people who still ignore the obvious truth.

So I spent about four hours flipping between channels 26 and 27. The difference between the two was astounding.

During the painful amount of time I forced myself to watch the channel, Fox newscasters did nothing but attack Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., for comments he made about young adults needing to go to college to avoid military service.

Admittedly, this was the news of the day for every station. Fox did nothing wrong by bringing it up and providing a discussion. The problem is how it went about the coverage.

Although Kerry had made a comment earlier in the day explaining his remark, Fox felt it was only necessary to quote a few of his lines out of context. I was surprised, though, that Fox had at least one commentator defending Kerry, while the other blasted him out of the water.

I hoped I had been wrong about Fox. Here Fox's commentators were ready to provide me with both sides of the story and let me make up my own mind. However, as soon as they spoke, I once again became dismayed that anyone could even think it was news.

After quickly rolling over for every point made against him, the commentator defending Kerry actually went as far as to say, "That's why I vote Republican."

Let's pause and think about this. The commentator not only rolled over, but also suggested the candidates for whom viewers should vote this month. By every standard I've learned in journalism, this is not news – it's propaganda.

True journalism is taking both sides of a story and presenting them equally. You give the man who burns flags as much attention as the marine fighting for them. Unless it's an editorial, your opinion doesn't matter and should be omitted.

I'll admit, though, on a few occasions I saw CNN allow the opinions of the commentators to leak into the story, and it was every bit as wrong as when Fox did it. However, these periods of shallowness are few and far between.

While Fox wouldn't shut up about how evil Kerry is, CNN spent about 30 minutes showing Bush's response, Kerry's response and every other opinion one could have on the matter. It then updated viewers on Iraq, China and other national events of importance.

Much of the news presented was disheartening. Hearing more young soldiers have died in Iraq was the last thing I wanted to think about on an already down day. And seeing a video clip of the fire that has been taking the lives of firefighters in California was almost too much.

But we must understand that this is what news is. We can't ignore all of the bad things going on in the world because another channel can entertain us. It has nothing to do with your political party. If you can't view the worst our country has to offer, how can you find a way to change it?

Zachary T. Eckels is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustration by Donnie Jay | COLLEGIAN

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Advising not necessary for all students

It's easy to tell when advising season starts.

Professors who double as advisers put sign-ups on their office doors, and it's nearly impossible to meet with them about class-related issues and problems.

The majority of academic advisers generally advise more than 50 students within a given major. Therefore, they are overwhelmed with advisees and might not be able to give students the best advice about what classes they need to take to graduate.

While we recognize the importance of advising in keeping students on the graduation track, something needs to be done to change the way advising works at K-State.

We are all college students. We should be able to look at the necessary curriculum requirements and hash out a schedule that keeps us on track for graduation without relying on advisers to tell us what we need to take to get out of here on time.

We are not saying advisers and advising should be eliminated altogether. Freshmen who are new to college enrollment should meet with their advisers to grasp the gist of enrollment and to initiate a relationship with the adviser they will have for the next four or five years.

Leaving advising open only to those students who need assistance with enrollment would take some of the pressure off advisers and allow them to spend more time with the students who need their help the most.

Advising is a necessary part of college, but it shouldn't be something students dread every semester.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Squirrels are after me. They think I'm nuts.

My roommate would like to tell the guy she walked in on in the bathroom today that she's very, very sorry. And for future reference, lock the door. That's all.

Point 1: Everybody likes scooter girl — we're not making fun of her. Point 2: Scooter girl should run for student body prez. More people know her name than know who the actual student body prez is. (No offense to Lucas Maddy).

So someone explain to me why I can't ride my bike on the sidewalk, but Facilities can drive their four-wheelers on the sidewalks wherever they want.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Face off

	Chuck Ahner	Dennis Moore
Party	Republican	Democrat
Political experience	None	U.S. Congressman (1999-present)
Residence	Overland Park, Kan.	Lenexa, Kan.
Birth date	May 19, 1966	Nov. 8, 1945
Previous work	Businessman	Attorney
Education	U. S. Military Academy Boston University	University of Kansas — 1967 Washburn Law School —1970
Quote	"I look around and see the need for clear, concise leadership —Republican leadership in Congress for our community"	"While I strongly support our troops, I am very concerned about the current state of affairs in Iraq."
Prediction from a poll by Congressional Quarterly	48%	55%
Stance on Economics	Wants to make Bush's tax cuts permanent	Supports target cut, but not all of Bush's tax cuts
Stance on Gay Marriage	Supports Constitutional ban	Decision should be left to the states

Incumbent Moore campaigns for 5th term against businessman Ahner in 3rd district

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Political newcomer Chuck Ahner will challenge incumbent Rep. Dennis Moore for Kansas' third-district Congressional seat on Nov. 7.

The third district encompasses Wyandotte and Johnson counties and the eastern portion of Douglas County, which includes Lawrence.

Dennis Moore will attempt to win his fifth-consecutive term. He has served as the district's representative since 1999.

Most of the debate in this race focuses on the war in Iraq, domestic safety and terrorism.

Among Moore's top priorities are national security, affordable healthcare and a comprehensive energy strategy.

"National security is a huge issue, and I tell folks the most important function of government on a national level is to protect our country and our people," Moore said during an October press conference. "On 9/11, that job was not done. We've got to make sure we have the pieces in place to make sure that never happens again."

Ahner said he hopes to win the election by showing it is time for change in Washington, D.C., and that incumbents like Moore are stifling the change this county needs.

"Part of it is I don't have any prior political experience," Ahner said. "People don't want a politician. There's really an anti-incumbency mood going on. People want change. They want action, and they don't want to have the same old, same old going on in D.C."

Ahner said key issues in this election are defense and security, economic growth, affordable healthcare, energy independence and education access.

Both men have military experience. Moore served in the National Guard, while Ahner attended West Point and then worked in military intelligence.

From the Public Editor

Diversity coverage needs compassion

LOGAN C. ADAMS

It seems the more I learn, the less I know.

At least that's how I felt after the first Ink Barrel Chat Wednesday afternoon when diversity was the subject.

The chats are a series of panel discussions organized by our adviser, Kim Baltrip, to bring Collegian staff and readers together in one room. This chat featured five faculty panelists and drew 35 people.

I certainly learned plenty from the chat, but my head was spinning when I left.

The problem is that diversity is not some concrete component you can boost at will. There is no lever deep in the bowels of Kedzie Hall we can throw open and suddenly cover every culture perfectly.

Diversity is an idea, and it tough to define. I've been trying to figure it out for months.

Then, as I lay on the newsroom couch and listened to my tape of the chat eight hours after it ended, an answer appeared. You could say a funny thing happened between complaints about the Fourum.

Here it is: I think we might have been talking about the wrong word.

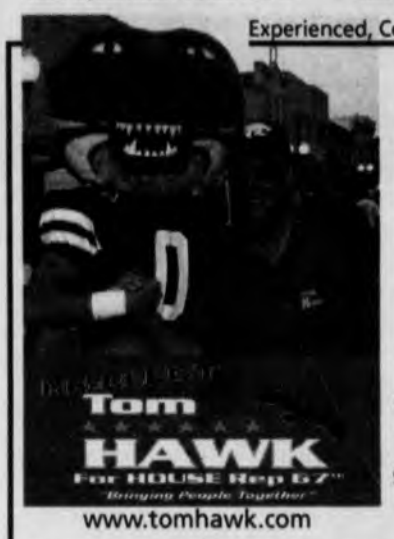
Some have said we need more stories about the minorities on campus. I don't dispute that, but that sounds more like a need for fairness.

Some also say we need to make fewer mistakes reporting on different cultures. That might be true, but the word that should be stressed is accuracy.

Others say we offend people with no concern for their beliefs and reinforce stereotypes. These problems call for compassion, understanding and knowledge.

Finally, some say we have a negative attitude toward some minority cultures. I don't know if that's true, but professionalism would be the solution.

The thing is, these virtues are expected from every journalist. Good journalism and diversity are really one in the same.



Journalism is best learned by doing, and diversity is too. Not that we shouldn't consider training – we should – but consider this: There is no mistake a journalist could never make, just mistakes a journalist will never make again.

K-State is a perfect place for young journalists to start learning about diversity and coverage. There are dozens of minority groups, all with stories to tell and plenty of people watching to point out when mistakes are made.

There are other steps we must take, like better education, but journalism itself can teach us diversity. We just need to work harder.

Logan C. Adams is the Collegian's public editor and a senior in print journalism. Send comments to publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu or catch him in person 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday in the K-State Student Union, first floor.

Experienced, Common Sense Leadership

www.tomhawk.com

RE-ELECT TOM HAWK
State Representative
67th District

I Support:
- K-State
- Ft. Riley
- Small Business

Higher Ed Report Card Grades Legislators
In the Oct. 19, 2006 Collegian, Rep. Tom Hawk received a top grade of "Honor Roll" Supporter by the Citizens for Higher Education!

"I am pleased to have gained this honor roll designation indicating my life-long support for education. I am proud of my three degrees from KSU: BS in Math, MS in Counseling, and PHD in Educational Administration. I believe in working with all legislators and both parties to be a problem-solver. My first commitment throughout my professional life as a teacher, counselor and superintendent of the Manhattan Public Schools has been education. As a member of the House Utilities and Environment Committees during my first term, I have also learned how important sound energy and water policy is to the future of our state. I pledge to be a strong and reasonable voice for all of us as your State Representative."

Prepared for the Job

Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Katha Hurt, Treasurer

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

In the beginning

Men's basketball coach Bob Huggins is greeted by his players as he comes onto the court during "Madness in Manhattan" Oct. 13 at Bramlage Coliseum. The team will play an exhibition game against Washburn at 8 p.m. Saturday at Bramlage.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

K-State to play Washburn in public exhibition after closed Marquette game

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

This is what everyone has been waiting for.

Sure, it's just an exhibition game against Washburn, but K-State fans will have their first chance to see men's basketball coach Bob Huggins and his new-look team in action when the Wildcats take on the Ichabods at 8 p.m. Saturday in Bramlage Coliseum.

K-State already played Marquette in a private scrimmage Sunday at home, and Huggins said it served as a good opportunity to work on certain situations and play against solid competition. The two teams did not keep score.

"It was great being able to play a team of that caliber," Huggins said. "Both teams got a lot out of it. We got to play against zone, we got to play against man. We got to go against a little bit of pressure."

Washburn at K-State
When: 8 p.m. Saturday
Where: Bramlage Coliseum
■ Any tickets unclaimed by K-State students for the Washburn game will go on sale to the public for $15 at 5 p.m. Saturday. Students have until 4 p.m. today to pick up their tickets at the K-State Athletic Ticket Office in Bramlage.

Huggins previously said the chance to take on a high-quality opponent in private helps a team more than blowing out a Division-II opponent by 25 points.

"I think everybody wants to do it," he said. "Do you give up that revenue for something that in all honesty probably helps you more? Some people aren't able to give up that revenue. Other people are, and I don't think there's any question that that's best for the team."

Huggins would declare only two probable starters for Saturday's contest – forwards Cartier Martin and David Hoskins. These two led the Wildcats in scoring last season, with 18.0 and 13.1 points per game, respectively.

Huggins repeatedly has praised the work ethic and progress of Martin and Hoskins throughout the preseason. The other positions are still

See BASKETBALL Page 11

Wildcats set to open season with exhibition game against Emporia State despite loss of center Hamlin

K-State's Shalee Lehning drives to the basket, while Colorado's Yari Escalera defends her last season at Bramlage Coliseum. The Wildcats open their season at 2 p.m. Sunday against Emporia State.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The last time the K-State women's basketball team played at Bramlage Coliseum, it defeated Marquette 77-65 to take the Women's National Invitation Tournament title.

Emporia State at K-State
Where: Bramlage Coliseum
When: 2 p.m. Sunday
Radio: KMAN 1350 AM
Live stats available at k-statesports.com.

K-State will be host to the third-ranked team in Division II, Emporia State, at 2 p.m. Sunday in an exhibition game. It will be the 11th meeting between the schools, who will play for the first time since last season, when K-State won 60-46.

Last season marked the fifth-consecutive 20-win season for the Wildcats, who also made their fifth-straight postseason appearance.

If K-State is to build on that, it will have plenty of returning talent to help.

The Wildcats have four starters and eight players overall returning from last year's team. Among them is senior guard Claire Coggins, who averaged a team-high 13.5 points per game last season. Coggins was named an All-Big 12 Second Team selection and was honored as the Most Valuable Player in the WNIT last season.

Sophomore guard Shalee Lehning, who set a single-season assists record last season for K-State, also returns. Between Coggins, Lehning and junior Kimberly Dietz, the Wildcats should have one of the most talented backcourts in the Big 12 Conference.

In the frontcourt, the Wildcats lost freshman JoAnn Hamlin, who transferred to Iowa in the offseason. Hamlin's departure leaves a gaping hole for the Wildcats, as they lack depth at the center position.

Though Hamlin left, another player will return. Junior forward Shana Wheeler is healthy again after missing most of last season with an anterior cruciate ligament injury. Wheeler played in just nine games last year.

Playing alongside her in the post will be sophomore Marlies Gipson, one of the league's best shot blockers last season.

Gipson had 62 blocks, helping her earn Big 12 All-Rookie Team honors.

The Wildcats have won 14 straight pre-season exhibition games dating back to the 1998-99 season.

Breeders' Cup serves as World Series of horse racing

On Saturday, the picture-in-a-picture on my television will be in full swing.

Usually it's because I'm watching several football games and trying to keep up. However, Saturday, it will be for a different reason. The Breeders' Cup, fall's version of the Triple Crown horse races, will take place at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky.

WENDY HAUN

I have not missed one race of the Triple Crown in more than five years. The Triple Crown, otherwise known as the racing sequence of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes, all occur in May and June, each spaced three weeks apart.

The only horses that compete are 3-year-olds. With the Breeders' Cup, there is a race for everyone, and $20 million total will be handed out to the winners.

This year, the most anticipated showdown is between Bernardini, this year's Preakness winner and decendant of Secretariat, and Lava Man, a horse trained primarily on the West Coast. The horse has lost only one race.

The two headline a 13-horse battle in the Breeders' Cup Classic for a cool $5 million.

Another set of races will be the Juvenile Fillies, for 2-year-old female horses, and the Juvenile, for 2-year-old colts.

These two races most likely will provide a good preview of who will be the stand-outs for next year's Triple Crown.

Other races include turf races, which will be run on the inner grassy area, the mile, for horses that can't stand up to the longer distances of 1 1/16 miles, 1 1/8 miles, 1 1/4 miles and 1 1/2 miles. There also will be a sprint, which will be only six furlongs, or 3/4 mile.

For horse racing, Saturday is the World Series, the NBA Finals and the first weekend of the NFL playoffs all rolled into one. (The Super Bowl, for all of you wondering, would be the Kentucky Derby.)

The athletes are not just the men and women who ride the horses, but the horses, too. They are a team that works together flawlessly for our entertainment.

So tomorrow, I will be rooting for K-State, but at the same time, I'll be watching Bernardini try to secure that Breeders' Cup Classic victory.

Wendy Haun is a junior in mass communications. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

Where to watch the Wildcats this season

The Winners:
Atmosphere: Kite's Bar & Grill
Food selection: Willie's Sports Bar & Grill
Drink (choices): Old Chicago
Entertainment: Purple Pig Tavern

After weeks of intense analysis and countless hours of research, the big moment has finally arrived. It's time to unveil the winners of, "Where to watch the Wildcats."

With more than 50 years of history in the heart of Aggieville, Kite's Bar & Grill is a place K-State fans of all ages have grown up with. Along with them, the bar itself has grown up and today is one of the best Wildcat hangouts in all of Manhattan. The combination of classic photos, brick walls, modern televisions and a new outdoor patio make Kite's an obvious choice for best atmosphere.

Because Manhattan has so many great restaurants, it is difficult to choose which has the best food. However, when it comes to good food combined with a good place to watch K-State, Willie's Sports Bar & Grill is the clear winner. Willie's is one of the few bars that prides itself on its food. The menu is never condensed on game days and is sure to make you forget you're eating at a bar.

Since every bar's primary function is to serve drinks, it would seem difficult to decide which one does it the best. Not so. Old Chicago is hands-down the best place to get a drink while watching K-State play. With 110 beer varieties, including a full-service bar, no one else even comes close.

Finally, when it comes to keeping yourself entertained while watching the game, no one does it better than the Purple Pig Tavern. The Purple Pig has two touch-screen gaming systems, a Golden Tee golf game, two darts boards, a pool table and a jukebox. Additionally, the weekend's game is re-broadcast every Wednesday in case you want relive the excitement one more time.

— Reviewed by Dayne Logan

VOL | K-State to attempt to snap 4-match losing streak on Saturday

After a close 3-2 loss to Colorado Wednesday night in Boulder, Colo., the K-State women's volleyball team returns home to play Texas A&M on Saturday.

The Wildcats (9-15, 1-13 Big 12) are on a four-match losing streak and have just one conference win all season. Wednesday's loss was the seventh time this season they have dropped a five-game match.

Texas A&M at K-State
When: 1 p.m. Saturday
Where: Ahearn Field House
Live stats available at k-statesports.com.

Earlier this season against Texas A&M (10-12, 3-11 Big 12), the Wildcats fell in five games at College Station on Sept. 22.

Like the Wildcats, the Aggies have struggled to find success in the Big 12 Conference this season. They have won just two of their last 10 matches since playing K-State.

The Wildcat offense has been led recently by freshman middle blocker Kelsey Chipman, who registered career highs in both kills (20) and blocks (15) against Colorado. K-State also has received solid play at the outside hitter position. Junior Angie Lastra has 113 kills in the last seven matches, as well as 92 digs.

Sophomore middle blockers Megan Farr and Megan Kroeker also have contributed. Kroeker leads the team with 130 blocks, while Farr leads the team with a .314 hitting percentage.

The Wildcats have defeated the Aggies 10 straight times at home.

— Jeffrey Rake

Associated Press

CFB | Former Sooner quarterback ruled ineligible to play this season

HUNTSVILLE, Texas — Former Oklahoma quarterback Rhett Bomar was ruled ineligible Wednesday to play for Sam Houston State this season but will return in 2007 with two years of eligibility remaining.

Bomar and offensive lineman J.D. Quinn were kicked off the Sooners' squad in August for accepting payment for more work than they performed at a car dealership, a violation of NCAA rules.

The 6-foot-2, 215-pound Bomar transferred to Sam Houston and Quinn to Montana, both Division I-AA schools.

Quinn also was ruled ineligible by the NCAA but will be allowed to play next season, Montana associate athletic director Dave Guffey said.

Senate forms committee to assess recreational needs

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Student Senate approved the appointment of a technology director in the president's cabinet at its meeting Thursday.

Stephen Floyd, junior in fine arts, was named technology director, a position that has been vacant since the beginning of this term, Student Body President Lucas Maddy said.

The position was created after Wildcat Information Network, an online portal created by 2004-05 Student Body President Hayley Urkevich, failed to retain users. The WIN site had almost no hits by mid-September, Maddy said, and it lacked the personnel to continue successfully.

Floyd was a WIN employee, and part of his duties will be developing a long-term outlook for another portal like WIN, should students ever show a desire for one, Maddy said.

Senate also approved the creation of a special committee, chaired by Jason Topp, junior in agribusiness, to examine long-term strategies for Peters Recreation Complex.

Maddy said the purpose of the committee is to determine whether there will be a need to expand recreational services at K-State as population and usage increase and some facilities become obsolete.

The committee will create a proposal for university administration and will dissolve at the end of the term, though the plan is intended to look five to 10 years down the road.

Maddy said the measure was "preemptive with a cause."

"There are concerns that the Rec complex doesn't have the capacity or isn't modern enough," he said. "This study will determine if there will be a need for expansion."

According to the bill, the purpose of the committee is to create guidelines to measure K-State's recreational needs, develop budgetary guidelines for future expansion, and form a proposal to be presented to Senate and university administration.

Senators also made allocations to Students for Environmental Action, Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic Council.

College guarantees spots for Kuwaitis

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An agreement signed with Kuwait will increase the diversity of the students in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Chris Ross, professor in anatomy and physiology, said the agreement, made this fall, guarantees that students who come to K-State from Kuwait for veterinary medicine will start in the undergraduate pre-veterinary medicine program.

"We would like to do everything we can to make sure these students are successful in vet school," he said.

Ross said there are no veterinary medicine schools in Kuwait, and no veterinarians in the country are Kuwaiti. He said there is a strong national interest in to educating the citizens.

Ross said it is the choice of a student's sponsor if the student has to return to Kuwait after receiving his or her degree.

"The motivation behind the agreement was that, in general, the veterinary school is always looking for good applicants," he said.

He said there are difficulties with how to identify qualified applicants, so a template was created that lists the college's expectations.

Jim Lewis, director of international pre-admissions and recruiting, said the agreement guarantees that every year, two students from Kuwait will come to K-State and begin the pre-veterinary medicine undergraduate program.

With the agreement, highly qualified students are chosen by the government, and then the government sponsors their education in the United States, Lewis said.

He said whether the agreements are with a university or the government, specifics are known by both parties, and guarantees are involved, like the qualifications and number of students expected.

"This kind is one-sided that the United States university is giving education because it is the place to come," he said. "The U.S. still has the best in the sense of its deepest and widest of choices."

Ken Holland, associate provost of international programs, said Kuwait is the first country to sign the agreement, which also has been proposed to a few other schools abroad. He said within the agreement, students are sponsored by their government, which covers education costs.

The College of Veterinary Medicine is the only college that has made agreements like this with schools abroad because it is the only one that has expressed interest, Holland said.

"The college is trying to expand its international student population, and this is an excellent way to do that," he said.

Young singer, songwriter to perform in BirdHouse Music Series

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Brian Joseph, singer and songwriter, will be the featured artist in this Friday's BirdHouse Acoustic Music Series performance at 8 p.m in Grosh Hall at the Manhattan Arts Center.

"Brian Joseph sounds like a young, early Paul Simon," said Tess Purvis, marketing and program director at the center. "He's more soulful, husky, manly voice."

The series, which is put on by the arts center, invites four different singers and songwriters in the fall and the spring.

"You get to hear music by the guys who wrote it," Purvis said.

Birdhouse Music Series presents Brian Joseph
8 p.m. Friday, Manhattan Arts Center, 1520 Poyntz Ave.
Students $13
Adults $16

Joseph is working on his fourth album, "If I Never Sleep Again." He recorded his first album in 1999 after walking away from an acting career. Since then, he has toured internationally and won numerous awards, including an award at the Telluride Troubador competition.

"We have had him before, and I think people really liked him," said Penny Senften, executive director of the center.

The last featured artists in the 11-year series were Kimmel and Mondlock, the songwriters for the movies "Serendipity" and "Runaway Bride."

"It's always been one of our most popular programs," Senften said. "It's the kind of music that has no age limit."

Senften said people enjoy the concerts because of the size of the hall.

"People feel they can connect with the artist," she said.

Tickets for the show are available at the arts center. They are $13 for students and $16 for adults.

collegian Explore it ksatecollegian.com

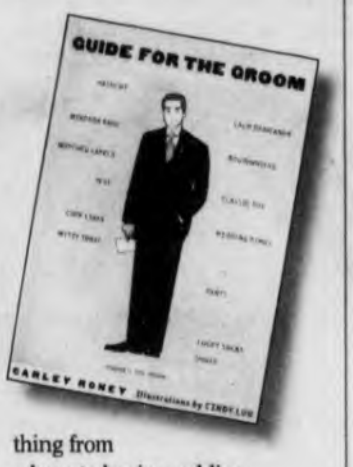
SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station
at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

The K-State greek community would like to congratulate:
Dr. Tom Vontz
-Faculty of the month
Erin Learned
-Greek of the month
Gail Kelly
-Alum of the month
Thank you for your hard work!

The People Speak
Public Forums
ICDD Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy
Speak Out!
Influencing the vote
What issues will influence your vote on Tuesday?
Step up to the open mic and speak your mind!
Friday, November 3
12:00 p.m. to 1:00 p.m.
Bosco Student Plaza
Moderated by SGA President Lucas Maddy

Sick of signs in your apartment complex?
Students for STRAWN
Kansas State Representative
66th District
Tell Your Landlord
• Fix the Sink
• Turn on the Heat
• Repair the Deck...

Bob with Students for Strawn President Jenna Newsum
...VOTE FOR BOB STRAWN
Paid for by Bob Strawn for Kansas State Representative, Art Loub Treasurer.



THE BEST K-STATE FOOTBALL COVERAGE IN THE LAND... PICK ONE UP TODAY!
GAMEDAY2006

Exerpt from Page 94 in "The Knot: Guide for the Groom"

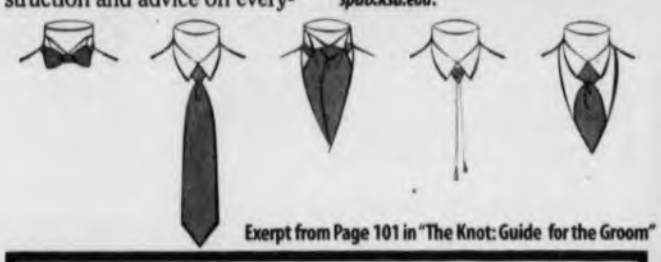
Guide book involves groom in planning

"The Knot: Guide for the Groom"
By Carley Roney
Illustrations by Cindy Luu
Grade: B+
Reviewed by Emily Lawrence

'In the forward of "The Knot Guide for the Groom," author Carley Roney writes that grooms should, "Consider this book (their) cheat sheet."

Not to be read cover to cover, this 4x6 guide is intended to be a resource "when you want the facts on what's important to you (or what your bride has decided to be important to you)."

Roney, co-founder and editor in chief of The Knot, definitely has the credentials to explore the details a groom needs to know. Her light, often comedic, magazine-style writing is further complemented by Cindy Luu's cartoon-style illustrations.



One illustration shows a profile of a bride with a dotted cross section of what's on her mind. Wedding details take up about 95 percent, leaving a mere 5 percent for thoughts of the groom.

This book offers great instruction and advice on everything from where to begin wedding plans to the honeymoon.

The online resource links are satisfactory, but they seem only to reference www.theknot.com and a few partnering vendors. Like a lot of things in the wedding biz, it's not as objective as one would hope.

This book could be a useful purchase. It's not too expensive – $14.95 – and it gets the groom involved. But if your soon-to-be groom is anything like mine, the biggest challenge will be getting him to even open the cover.

Emily Lawrence is a senior in secondary education. She will be getting married this summer, but she has been obsessed with weddings since before she got the ring. Please send comments to collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Exerpt from Page 101 in "The Knot: Guide for the Groom"

Bachelor blues

Think twice before telling all; don't give her reason to doubt

Illustration by Donald Lee | COLLEGIAN

Remember the time you went to your brother/cousin/friend's bachelor party?

ANTHONY MENDOZA

Oh yeah, that time. It was such a fun night you felt the need to tell everyone about it in great detail, especially your girlfriend at the time. From comic to erotic, you spilled every last detail.

Now you're in trouble, because the woman who used to be your girlfriend is now wearing the ring you just gave her, and your wedding is a few months away.

There's a comedy skit by Chris Rock about women. "A woman will forgive, but she'll never forget."

Now it's your turn. It's time for your bachelor party, and all the raunchy things you've done and participated in at others' bachelor parties are floating through her mind as she sits at home or hangs out with her girlfriends.

She might have forgiven you for being in attendance, but she'll never forget what you told her happened there.

"Is he going to cheat on me?" "He better not touch that girl." And the best one of them all, "I think we should just have a co-bachelor and bacholerette party."

Why the last suggestion? She doesn't trust you or the partygoers, who build up a power called "liquid courage," with a bit of alcohol in their system. It's kryptonite; common sense lurks, but it usually loses out.

It's your fault, men. It's your fault for opening your mouth and revealing all this information. You've given your fiancée a reason to be nervous.

She now has the right to check the names of those invited and approve or disapprove the list of degenerates, I mean friends, you have invited. But worst of all, because there is no reason for her to trust you on your last night as a bachelor, implementing a spy for the night just to keep an eye on her groom is well-warranted.

Well, men, I am that person. I am the person who opened his mouth about bachelor parties I've been to everywhere from people's backyards to a hotel across the street from Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif.

So what have I learned from my experience at bachelor parties and the number of times my fiancée has drilled into me about how she doesn't want me to have one?

I actually don't want one like that. Sure, they are fun, but c'mon, they get expensive, someone has to organize it, and the only person I know who would be able to coordinate such a large event on short notice would be my fiancée.

I have a feeling she might not be up for this one unless it includes streamers and balloons.

Take the easy way out, gentlemen. Just hang out with the boys. If you feel the need to go to a gentlemen's club, fine, but limit the money you take. Also, key advice to those planning bachelor parties at a particular gentleman's club near Manhattan: don't wear a belt with your pants. It will be turned into a weapon used against you. Those who have experienced the sacrifice or seen it in person know what I am speaking of. Those too hard-headed to take my advice deserve what is coming to them.

The bruises and scrapes on your chest and back will be all the evidence your fiancée needs to bust you, if her spy has not already done so.

Anthony Mendoza is a senior in print journalism. He will graduate in December, and he is getting married in June or July. Please send comments to collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Thomas JEWELERS
Same Day Repair Service
"For the gift of pride, let us be your guide."
419 Poyntz • Downtown 776-7600

Heirloom Portraits
MANHATTAN'S PREMIER WEDDING PHOTOGRAPHER
776-1175

WE DON'T JUST DELIVER FLOWERS. WE DELIVER Emotion
NEED FLOWERS QUICK?
STOP BY OUR COOLER IN THE UNION FOR YOUR EVERYDAY FLORAL NEEDS!
Kistner's Flowers
776-7989
1½ MILE SOUTH OF THE MALL ON US 177
WWW.KISTNERSFLOWERS.COM

Manhattan Bridal Show
www.manhattanbridalshow.com

Shirley Russell, Floral Artist & Preservationist
Floral Preservation Artisans
Let us Preserve the Memories of Your Life...
422 Wickham Road • Manhattan, KS 66502
785.539.4914
serussell@preservedfloralart.com • www.preservedfloralart.com
* Keepsake Framing Specialist *

Bridal Packages
Body Treatments
Manicures Pedicures
Crum's Beauty College
M-W 9-5
Th-F 9-9
Sat 9-5
512 Poyntz
776-4794
Services performed by supervised students

Dress her in Diamonds from:
REED & ELLIOTT Jewelers
Diamond Specialists
402 Poyntz 776-4000

PREMIERE EVENTS
Your "Happily Ever After" starts with Premiere Events. We are your full-service wedding and event planning company creating storybook weddings especially for you. Call us at:
785-776-0749
1019 Poyntz, Suite C
premiereeventskansas.com

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
in the Collegian, the first friday of the month.

Ross and Lauren Terry
For Exceptional Portraiture... alan honey PHOTOGRAPHY
785.537.2210
4806 vue du lac C. manhattan, ks 66503
www.alanhoneyphotography.com

ONCE IN A LIFETIME

Paulson – Rice

Heidi LaVelle Paulson, senior in print journalism, and Justin Dean Rice, announce their engagement.

Heidi is the daughter of Jim and LaRinda Paulson, Chester, Va, and Justin is the son of Dean and Cathy Rice, Holton, Kan.

They plan a September 22, 2007 wedding in Holton, Kan.

Williams – Siebold

Jennifer Williams, 2006 graduate of Neosho County Community College, and Andrew Siebold, 2003 K-State graduate with a bachelor of science in mechanical engineering, announce their engagement.

Jennifer is the daughter of Kenneth Williams, Wichita Kan., and Kathleen Williams, Independence, Kan., and Andrew is the son of Tom and Linda Siebold, Clay Center, Kan.

They plan a February 10, 2007 wedding in Kansas City, Mo.

Children's activities make receptions more enjoyable for all

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Planning activities for children during a wedding reception can make the event more enjoyable for guests and their families.

While some couples choose not to extend guests' invitations to include their children, many brides and grooms include them to boost attendance on their big day, said Jenne Andrews, owner of Premiere Events.

"Many couples invite children, especially if lots of their guests are coming from out of town," she said. "They know that if these guests can't bring their kids, they probably won't come."

Speeches, toasts and fancy food often make dinner the most boring part of a reception for many children.

Andrews said clients have provided coloring pages and crayons at each table or offered alternative kids' meals like macaroni and cheese to make the evening more fun for young guests.

If adult guests plan to dine and converse for several hours, setting up a separate kids' table of puzzles and board games, or showing a movie in another room might be a good idea, Andrews said. Some couples even provide childcare so parents can enjoy the reception.

"Anytime you can make your guests more comfortable, whether they're adults or children, you're getting your money's worth out of your reception," she said.

Also, children will be less likely to run around the reception hall or get hurt when they are entertained, Andrews said.

"Kids running around can be dangerous when there are candles or other things that could break or spill," she said. "They could also potentially run into a waiter or another guest."

Annie Shultz, senior in print journalism, said she and her husband decided to include guests' children in their wedding reception last May.

"There are so many kids in my family and my husband's family," she said. "To not invite them would have split families apart."

Shultz placed themed centerpieces at each table, incorporating toys like Barbie dolls and remote controlled trucks that children could play with and take home.

She also asked the deejay to play child-friendly songs, including the Hokie Pokie and the funky chicken dance, during the reception so young guests could participate.

"Guests told me that the reception was really fun," Shultz said. "I was glad to know that people enjoyed themselves and didn't have to worry about their kids."

TOPPING IT OFF

Sculptor models cake toppers after couple, other details

This custom cake topper, modeled after the couple above, was hand-crafted. It took two weeks for Stubitsch to sculpt.

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The wedding cake toppers Dawn Stubitsch makes are literally one-of-a-kind.

For $2,300, Stubitsch sculpts polymer clay likenesses of the betrothed couple. She said she receives requests through her Web site, www.thumbprintkids.com, from all over the world, and most people are on a waiting list for a year or more. Each sculpture takes about two weeks of solid work.

"I'm only taking about 16 toppers next year," she said. "Since there's a lot of work involved, I didn't want to try to speed up the process."

Once a couple makes a request, Stubitsch gets photographs of the couple and information on the wedding dress and bouquet.

Some designs have only a bride and groom, while others are far more complicated. Stubitsch said her most difficult design was a couple on a motorcycle. Now she is working on sculpture of a couple with seven animals: two snakes, a ferret, two cats, a large dog and an iguana.

"It's fun," said Stubitsch, who has a degree in art. "I enjoy doing it. I enjoy the reactions people give when they finally get it."

She said she likes knowing her piece is an important part of the couple's day.

"People have said that the topper is one of the things they look forward to the most for their wedding," she said. "It's really rewarding."

Because each figure is so important and expensive, Stubitsch has a gallery of the figurines and photographs of the couples they are modeled after.

"I try to do this because people who are ordering don't know how good of a likeness it's going to be," she said. "They're paying a lot of money, and this eases them a little bit and lets them know that it's not a scam."

Stubitsch first started sculpting cake toppers when she ran across an article about someone who made similar sculptures. She said she has improved over the years and recently completed a cake topper for her son and his bride.

"It's been really rewarding work," Stubitsch said.

Compiled by Megan Moser
Photos by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

401 Poyntz Avenue 785.587.1830
Celebrations of the Heart
Congratulations to our October Brides & Grooms!
Sale wedding gowns 25-75% off
Tuxedo rentals starting at $59
Newly arriving formals for Spring 2007
Sale formals 25-75% off
For the Special Occasions in Life
Bridal Formal Wear Tuxedo Rental sale

Weisners BRIDAL BOUTIQUE
Bridal Gown Inventory Reduction
25% to 45% off
786.776.6100 314 Poyntz

LIGHT IT UP
PROFESSIONAL DISC JOCKEYS
• receptions
• ceremonies
www.kansasdiscjockey.com
• video projection
• free travel
785-565-8054

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our advertising sales representatives by calling...
785-532-6560

Free Wedding Consultations
So you can feel beautiful inside and out on your special day
Gift with any purchase
Call Christel and schedule an appointment today!
Arbonne International Independant Consultant
785.468.3501
ARBONNE® INTERNATIONAL
Swiss Design • Made in the USA
• Skincare • Aromatherapy • Color • Hair • Nutritional • Weight Loss •

Palace
Wedding REGISTRY
704 N. MANHATTAN AVE
MANHATTAN, KS 66502
785.539.7654
THEPALACEAGGIEVILLE.COM

Tuxedos for... weddings - formals - special events
Borck Brothers
FINE MEN'S & WOMEN'S APPAREL
Manhattan • Salina
Seth Child Commons-Manhattan
785-537-8636 or 888-642-7848 www.borck-bros.com
Mon thru Thurs 9:30am to 7pm
Fri & Sat 9:30am to 6pm Sunday 1pm to 5pm

ADVISERS | Students can speed up enrollment process by learning classes, requirements before appointment

Continued from Page 1

advisers have dramatically increased in recent semesters.

But the main problem still stands – students are not using their advisers.

"Students are not utilizing their advisers to the fullest," Ehie said.

◆◆◆◆

Since 2004, Keith Powers, adviser in the College of Education, said the students in the College of Education have been directed to a central office. Students are assigned to an adviser for their entire time at K-State, and new students go through a three-week orientation program to help them determine their undergraduate plan during their time at K-State.

Powers said the staff tries to maintain close ties with advisees, ensuring their success in and out of the classroom.

"We just have a staff here of advisers who are dedicated to working with students, whether it's academic or if it's other things they need advising," he said.

To help the advisers know how they are doing and what needs improvement, Powers said the staff relies on surveys students fill out before they enroll for the spring semester.

"We review that in the spring and see what things can help meet the students' needs," he said.

If students feel they have not had the necessary communication for enrollment or advising, Powers said students can ask for a new adviser.

The College of Arts and Sciences has a two-pronged advising system, said Alison Wheatley, assistant dean in the College of Arts and Sciences. Students who want to earn multiple degrees or are in the open option major can find advisers in the dean's office.

Wheatley said most of the departments in the college have faculty advisers, usually with one lead adviser who sees students or helps set them up with other faculty advisers.

Because the college has the most students of any college at K-State, Wheatley said it sometimes can be difficult for faculty advisers to juggle advising appointments and teaching classes.

"I think it is sometimes – especially around enrollment time – difficult for faculty to spend as much time as they want to with each student," she said. "Just the constraint of the other advisees that they have and the other teaching responsibilities they have, they might have some problems."

To speed up the process, Wheatley said after students' first semester, they usually try to make an appointment early to ensure they get to meet with their adviser.

Wheatley said she has been pleased with the responses of most students to their advisers trying to take time to discuss present and future academic issues.

"The long-range academic and long-range career plan – advisers need to remember to talk to students about," she said. "In the rush of the moment, that sometimes gets slighted. That's a challenge we keep working on."

◆◆◆◆

Kevin Donnelly, assistant dean of the College of Agriculture, said the college uses faculty advisers, and nearly every faculty appointment has advisees. Donnelly said this spreads the job out among 90 to 100 faculty members.

"I think the culture in the College of Ag is, it's expected in the teaching assignment," he said. "We think it's a big advantage with our students."

The ratio of students to faculty is about 20 to one, and Donnelly said this allows students to get to know their adviser without burdening the faculty member with too many student advisees.

Overall, Donnelly said students have ranked the college's advising fairly highly, saying advisers are available and helpful. Transfer students who come from community colleges where they do not get much face time with an adviser rate the system particularly highly.

"I think that's not 100 percent true every day, but we encourage our advisers to have an open-door policy," Donnelly said.

To encourage students to meet their advisers, Donnelly said when he teaches an introductory class in the college, he gives students an assignment to find and interview their advisers.

To be successful during enrollment, Powers said students can help their advisers by being acquainted with which classes they want to take by looking at the undergraduate student handbook or browsing course information online.

Miller's advice to students preparing for enrollment:

"Have in mind what classes you want to take and what you think is interesting," she said. "Don't expect everybody to do everything for you."

k-state
family day
Saturday, November 4, 2006
www.k-state.edu/familyday

Gotta Sweet Tooth?
Indulge it with a free dessert when you buy one.
bistro
This coupon is located in the blue section of your Campus Phone Book.
Not Valid without Phone Book Coupon.

SAKE SAKE SAKE
Bomb!
$3.00 Sake Bombs
TRY OUR NEW ASIAN STYLE BUFFET & MONGOLIAN BBQ
HUNAN
1304 WESTLOOP 539-8888
$1.00 OFF BUFFET W/ VALID KSU ID

RELIGION Directory

newhope CHURCH
Pursuing relationships that change the world
WORSHIP SERVICE 9 AM
3905 Green Valley Rd.

Join the Directory
785-532-6560

MANHATTAN JEWISH CONGREGATION
Worship: Fri. 7:30 pm
1509 Wreath Ave, Manhattan
Everyone welcome!
www.manhattanjewishcong.org
In association with HILLEL the Jewish student organization
www.k-state.edu/hillel

Welcome to FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Saturday Service 5:30 p.m.
Sunday Worship 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Church School for all ages 9:45 a.m.
www.firstlutheranmanhattan.org
10th & Poyntz 785-537-8532

Muslim Student Association (MSA)
DAILY WORSHIP 5:45AM - 9:45PM
FRIDAY PRAYER (JUMUAH) 2:30PM
MSU Q-MAC CENTER OF MANHATTAN
1214 HILTON HEIGHTS
MANHATTAN, KS 66502
785.776.1033

MANHATTAN MENNONITE CHURCH
1000 Fremont 539-4079
Worship: 10:45 SS: 9:30
Richard & Barbara Gehring, Pastors
K-State Student Group
www.manhattan.ks.us.mennonite.net
Potluck 1st and 3rd Sunday after worship

JOURNEY MINISTRIES
University Christian Church
2800 Claflin • 776.5440
(across from Taco Hut)
9:45 & 11:00 Contemporary Service
9:45 Breakfast and Bible Study
Chris Herrington • www.uccks.org

Call Courtney
to get your Religion Directory ad placed in the Collegian.
785-532-6560

CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
ecm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/ecm
David Jones, Pastor
Sundays
5:30 pm Table Fellowship
Mondays
7 pm Prayer and Motion
9 pm Money Matters
Thursdays
8 pm Faith Forum
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00, 10:30, 10:40
• Sunday School at 9:15
Steve Ratliff, Senior Pastor
Brian Anderson, Assoc. Pastor
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086
N W E S Barnes Kimball Bluemont Tuttle Creek Blvd

Peace Lutheran Church
P.E.A.C.E
Worship Sundays 8:30 and 11:00 Contemporary Service 5:00 p.m.
Pastor Michael Ide
2500 Kimball
539-7371
www.peace-to-you.org
With Christ . . . Gather . . . Grow and Go Forth!

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
2121 Blue Hills Road
539-8691
9:45 am Sunday School
11:00 am Sunday Worship
Praise Team Twice Each Month
www.centeredinchrist.us
1801 Anderson Ave 539-3051
Baptist Campus Center

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
10:45 a.m. Children's Church
11:45 a.m. Contemporary Worship Service
Fellowship meal to follow service
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:00, 9:30, 11:00 a.m.
Collegiate Bible Hour Class 11:00 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
785-776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (Where reason and intuition guide our personal journey)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Child Care Provided.
A Welcoming Congregation.
Rev. Michael Nelson
For information call (785) 537-2349
www.uufm.net

First Christian Church
(Disciples of Christ)
9:00 a.m. Sunday School
10:15 a.m. Worship Service
11:30 a.m. Radio Broadcast 95.3 FM
Neil Engle
Pastor
776-8790
5th and Humboldt
Courthouse Square
fccmanhattan.org

Services & Events:
Sunday Morning Service @ 10:30 a.m.
College Ministry (Happy Hour)
Sunday Evening Service @ 7 p.m.
Free Meal @ 6 p.m.

Celebration Service
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..."
Contemporary Worship Service
Sundays at 11:45 a.m.
Everyone is Welcome
College Fellowship Dinner to follow service
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

COLLEGE CONNECTION
Jammin' 4 Jesus
Tuesday 7:00 pm
at Manhattan Free Methodist Church
1231 Poyntz Ave,
Across From City Park
www.living4one.org
785-776-4029
Experience God's Presence

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening 4p.m. Danforth Chapel
Your Invited!
Tuesday 7-8pm
Bible Study @ Luther House
Good vs. Evil
with the Chronicles of Narnia
Thursday 6pm
Meal and Conservation
Sunday 5pm
Spaghetti Meal @ Luther House
Worship 6pm with Holy Communion
Danforth Chapel
• On Campus •
Everyone is Welcome!
www.ksu.edu/lcm-elca
lcmelca@ksu.edu
Any Questions? 313-3895 or 539-4491
LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
1745 Anderson
•SE Corner of Denison & Anderson•
ELCA

First United Methodist Church
612 Poyntz Ave
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-776-8821
www.fumcmanhattan.com
www.ksu.edu/umcm
Traditional Worship:
Sun 8:30 & 11am
Sanctuary
Contemporary Worship:
Sun 8:45am - Harris Activity Center
Casual dress, free donuts
Sunday School - 9:45am
Communion Service
5:30 pm Wed

Trumpeters of God Ministries
P.O. Box 772, Manhattan, KS 66505-0772
Vision:
Gospel of Christ, Power of God, Salvation for Believers
Worship Service @ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
Sunday School: 9:30-10:15 a.m.
Sunday Service: 10:15-12:00 Noon
Good Morning Jesus @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Monday: 5:30-6:30 a.m.
Bible Study @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Thursday: 7:00-8:30 p.m.
Prayer Vigil @ CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Ave.
Friday: 10:00-12:00 Midnight
Monthly Holy Ghost Conference
@ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
First Friday of every month @ 7:00-10:00 p.m.
Quarterly Fasting & Prayer Meeting
First Seven days of every quarter. Venue varies
Contact
Pastor Ebenezer Ogunyinka
Phone: 785-317-5103
Web page: www.ksu.edu/trumpeters
Email: trumpeters@ksu.edu

You are welcome at...
First Assembly of God
Weekly Services
Sunday
Traditional Service 8:00 am
Sunday School 9:30 am
Contemporary Service 10:45 am
Prayer Meeting 6:00 pm
Wednesday
Bible Study 7:00 pm
Youth Group (grades 7-12)
Royal Rangers (Boys Clubs)
Missionettes (Girls Clubs)
Chi Alpha Campus Ministries 7:00 pm
(KSU Little Theater)
Gary Av Candlewood Dr Seth Child Rd Kimball Av
Nursery Provided for All Services
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

RITTERBUSH | Region's original settlers traced to 9500-6000 B.C. based on archeological evidence

Continued from Page 1

occupied by Central Plains Tradition Indians, Ritterbush said.

Archeologists have found arrowheads and chipped stone knives and scrappers left behind by the Central Plains tradition Native Americans from 1000 to 1400 A.D.

"They didn't have metal tools, so they used stone," Ritterbush said. "Fortunately we live in the Flint Hills."

Archeologists have evidence of people settling this area even earlier. Ritterbush tracked the settlers of this land back to the years between 9500 and 6000 B.C.

This era is known as the Paleoindian Period. The Native Americans of the time hunted large game like the wholly mammoth.

Settlers from that period are represented in Riley County, Ritterbush said.

Mary Alice Schlesener, Manhattan resident, said the presentation was thought-provoking.

"It was stimulating," Schlesener said. "It made you think."

Ritterbush said she hoped her presentation helped the audience realize the presence and life of the Native Americans who once lived in the area.

"What I hope for is that they understand the history, or pre-history, of this area of Manhattan and that it goes back thousands of years," she said.

BASKETBALL | Bramlage sold out for 1st time

Continued from Page 6

completely up in the air, Huggins said.

K-State and Washburn played 39 times between 1905 and 1946, but they have met only once since then. The Wildcats beat the Ichabods 76-60 when the schools last met in 1998.

Saturday's contest will serve as a final tune-up before the regular season tips off with a Nov. 11 home game against William & Mary. After attendances of 4,490 and 4,718 for last season's two exhibition games, the game against Washburn is sold out. Season tickets are sold out for the first time in the 19-year history of Bramlage.

"For our guys it's good when they get to play in front of a crowd," Huggins said. "Marquette was terrific, but there wasn't anybody in there. It's really good for some of our guys that haven't been in that kind of environment."

HUGGINS ADDS 2 PLAYERS TO ROSTER

K-State men's basketball coach Bob Huggins announced on Thursday the addition of James Franklin and Brady Johnson to the program as walk-ons.

"James and Brady are quality young players," Huggins said. "They will give our program additional depth and will certainly be valuable assets to this year's team."

The pair were selected to join the team from about 50 candidates at a tryout open to all students on Oct. 16.

Franklin is a 6-foot, 190-pound point guard from Kansas City, Kan., and Johnson is a 6-foot-7, 220-pound forward from Salina.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

CLASSIFIED ADS

LET THEM WORK FOR YOU

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

FOUND: IPOD, describe and give location found to claim. 785-532-7946.

LOST: DISPOSABLE camera, Saturday, 10/28, north of football stadium. Not valuable, just sentimental, almost full. If found, please return to Kedzie 105.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

117 Rent-Duplexes

AVAILABLE NOW. 1019 Houston. Three-bedroom, one bath. Kitchen appliances, screened back porch. Close to city park, Aggieville, and downtown. $895. (417)849-2428.

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

145 Roommate Wanted

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January or before through May. Four-bedroom house close to campus, small pets ok. $300 plus 1/4 utilities. 785-313-3702.

ONE OR two subleases nedded Spring 2007. Four-bedroom house, three blocks west of campus $290 plus utilities. 785-341-4869.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Living with guys in a five - bedroom house, two blocks from campus. Rent $288. Call Matt 913-908-7097.

SUBLEASE: FEMALE needed. One room of two-bedroom, two bathrooms, furnished, at 2215 College Ave. $375 a month. Call 785-317-0345.

SUBLEASER NEEDED next semester! Three-bedroom apartment, one and one-half bath, $750/ month plus electricity. One-half block from campus. Contact: riley2@ksu.edu.

SUBLEASER WANTED for Catholic women's house. Two blocks from campus. $310/ month includes: utilities, food, rent. Live in dorms? May work deal! Call 785-366-6342.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

Need a Subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

FULL-TIME DELIVERY/ warehouse work. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. (785)-539-4466.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

310 Help Wanted

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for line cook positions, must have previous experience. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for servers, lunchtime availability preferred. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MILL CREEK Valley USD #329 is looking for a Freshmen Girls' Basketball Coach for Wabaunsee High School in Alma. Please contact Don Ginavan at 785-765-3315. MCV is an equal opportunity employer.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

PART-TIME SALES person. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

PITA PIT, late night delivery drivers wanted, good pay plus great tips. In-store crew positions also available. Apply in person, 1131 Moro, Aggieville.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast management. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

310 Help Wanted

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

RAMADA PLAZA, soon to be Holiday Inn at the Campus is now hiring: Night Bellman, Banquet Staff, Morning Restaurant Server and Morning Cook for weekends, Night Auditor, Maintenance and Sales Coordinator. Apply in person at 1641 Anderson Ave. 785-539-7531.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

ADVERTISE HERE
785 532 6555

310 Help Wanted

TECHNICAL WRITER- Organized, detail-oriented, full-time Technical Writer with strong initiative needed immediately for a contract research and consulting firm. Must have strong written and oral communication skills with background in editing and proofreading. Word processing skills (MSWord, WordPerfect) a must with desktop publishing skills preferred. Responsible for supporting and producing high quality on-line documentation of information systems in addition to a variety of writing, editing, and proofing assignments. Bachelor's degree required. Excellent benefits. Send cover letter and resume to DPRA Department TW, 200 Research Drive, Manhattan, KS 66503; fax 785-539-5353; or e-mail manhattanjobs@dpra.com. No calls please. DPRA Incorporated Equal Opportunity Employer. M/F/D/V

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

KNOW WHEN someone enters your apartment, dorm, or bedroom. Security system that calls your cell phone. Simple one time $50 solution. www.-1lowbuy.com.

426 VATTIER (in back) 8-12 Saturday last time around, most everything, one-half off! Kitchen, knickknack, computer, beanie babies, name brand clothes, and much more.

CHURCH RUMMAGE SALE. College Avenue United Methodist Church, 1609 College Avenue, Fellowship Hall. Friday November 3rd- 5:00pm to 8:00pm; Saturday November 4th- 7:30am to noon. Major items: Storey & Clark studio piano- good shape, needs tuning; stainless steel kitchen sink- like new; kids monkey bars and trapeze set; living room drapes; televisions; bicycles; much, much more.

410 Items for Sale

RUMMAGE SALE and Breakfast 7- 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 4. CD's, books, toys, furniture, miscellaneous. Pottorf Hall, CiCo Park.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

ADVERTISE IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS
785 532 6555

Got old stuff?
GET RID OF IT!
in the
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

			9	8	3
	3			6				2
		5					4
		4				7	9
			3		9
	6	7				8
	4					5
2				5			8
			8	3	1

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
785.532.6555

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
ADVERTISING DESIGN

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M.
FOR MORE INFORMATION.

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

ADVERTISE.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS • 785-532-6555

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@kstatecollegian.com

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

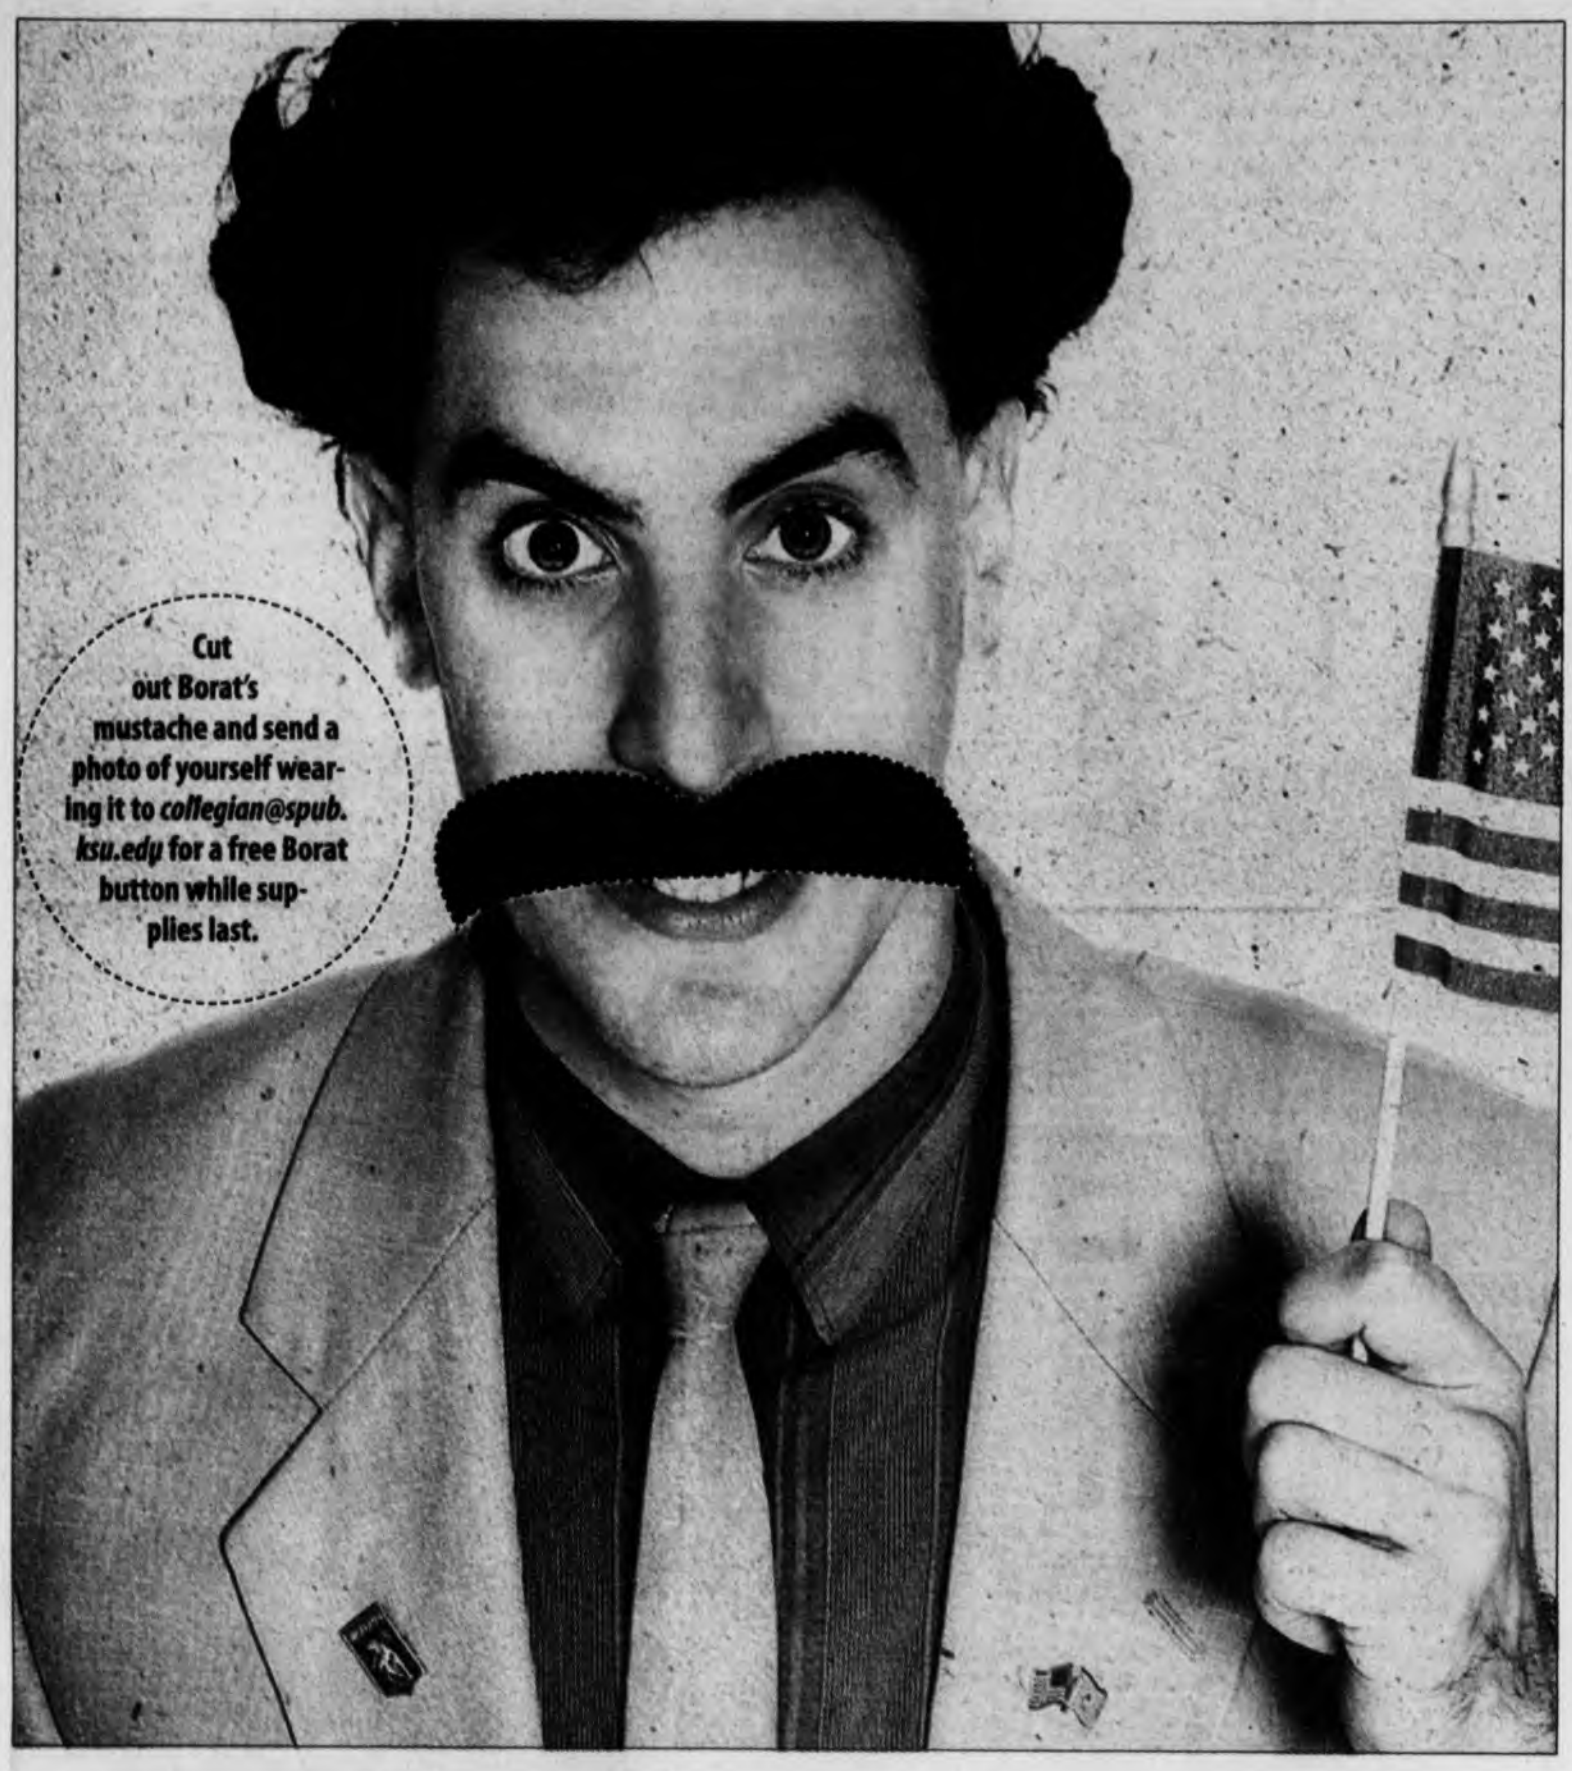
How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections



If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

BORAT

CULTURAL LEARNINGS OF 'BORAT' FOR MAKE BENEFIT GLORIOUS MOVIE-FILM VEIWERS

Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make Benefit Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan

Grade: A

Reviewed by Brendan Praeger

"Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make Benefit Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan" is one of the most tasteless, offensive and politically incorrect movies I've ever seen.

It's also more endearing and hilarious than any other comedy released in recent memory.

The movie unfolds like a documentary. It follows Kazakhstani TV personality Borat, who is dispatched to the "U.S. and A" to report on the "greatest country in the world." With a documentary crew in tow, Borat becomes more interested in locating and marrying Pamela Anderson than his assignment.

Borat, played by Sacha Baron Cohen, originated as a character on Cohen's popular television series, "Da Ali G Show." Most films that evolve from television characters tend to spread themselves a little too thin. Just look at almost any movie that's ever come from a "Saturday Night Live" skit (except "Wayne's World,"). Luckily, Borat makes a smooth transition to the big screen because of Cohen's incredibly dedicated and consistent performance.

The same "Candid Camera" style of comedy that was used in the show appears often in the movie, and the unsuspecting subjects of Borat's interviews provide better responses to his antics than actors ever could. His interviewees range from congressmen and feminists to fraternity members and driver's education instructors. Most of the situations are funny on their own, but they become even more funny when you consider most of the people onscreen aren't in on the joke.

One scene shows a naked Borat chasing his naked producer through a hotel hallway into a packed conference. Yes, it's disgusting, but a scene that ordinarily would be marginally entertaining becomes a comedic masterpiece due to the responses of horrified pedestrians and the subsequent arrest of the naked foreigners.

The movie has gained plenty of attention for its racist content, but don't believe everything you hear – most of it is misleading. Yes, there is a lot of objectionable material, but Borat's ignorance never comes across as hateful. The Americans interviewed display far more hateful qualities. Some of the atrocities suggested by the Americans include bringing back slavery and killing homosexuals, and they're not acting.

If you can look past the potentially offensive material, Borat is an endearing and lovable character. He's innocent, selfless, caring and loyal to his country. Not many other characters could proposition a hooker and make it seem sweet and innocent.

"Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make Benefit Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan" is comedy and satire at its best. It's the hardest I've laughed in a movie theater since the first "Jackass," and it's so memorable and quotable I'm still laughing a week later.

It has all the makings of a cult classic that will bring in hefty DVD sales for years to come.

I can't wait to see it again, and for a financially challenged college student faced with rising ticket prices and limited leisure time, that's saying a lot.

PHOTOS COURTESY 20TH CENTURY FOX

On an American highway, Borat's friend scares other motorists.

Little known fact:

The Times (London) wrote a piece titled "Ali G Creator is in fact Leading Civil Rights Scholar," which examined how Baron Cohen made a pilgrimage to the birthplace of Martin Luther King while doing research for his dissertation in Cambridge. Titled " A Case of Mistaking Identities – the Jewish Black Alliance," the thesis examines the nature of cooperation between the African-American and Jewish communities and suggests ways of improving relations in the current time. Cohen's professor describes it as a work of importance on the civil rights movement, and it is suggested reading for history students in Cambridge.

Source: 20th Century Fox

MOVIE TIMES

■ Times for today through Sunday.

■ () denotes times playing Saturday and Sunday only.

★ New movies at Seth Childs Cinema this week.

★ "Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make Benefit Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan," R, 84 min.
(1:15, 3:20), 5:25, 7:30, 9:35

Kazakhstani TV personality Borat is dispatched to the United States to report on the "greatest country in the world." With a documentary crew in tow, Borat becomes more interested in locating and marrying Pamela Anderson than on his assignment.

★ "Flushed Away," PG, 85 min.
(1:00), 5:10, 7:15, 9:35

The story of an uptown rat that gets flushed down the toilet from his penthouse apartment, ending in the sewers of London, where he has to learn a whole new and different way of life.

★ "The Santa Clause 3: The Escape Clause," G, 98 min.
(1:00, 3:15), 5:30, 7:45, 10:00

Santa (Tim Allen), aka Scott Calvin, is faced with double-duty: how to keep his new family happy, and how to stop Jack Frost (Martin Short) from taking over Christmas.

★ "Kidtoon Films: A Christmas Carol," G, 90 min.
(1:00, 3:00)

"Saw III," R, 107 min.
(1:30), 4:15, 7:00, 9:30

"Flicka," PG, 95 min.
4:15, 7:10, 9:20

"Flags of our Fathers," R, 132 min.
(1:15), 4:10, 7:05, 9:50

"The Prestige," PG-13, 130 min.
(1:05), 4:00, 7:05, 10:00

"Man of the Year," PG-13, 115 min.
7:10, 9:45

"The Departed," R, 149 min.
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 10:00

"Open Season," PG, 86 min.
(1:05, 3:05), 5:05

Source: www.carmike.com. Call (785) 776-9886 for show times.

Local Netflix favorites

Netflix.com members in and around Manhattan, Kansas are currently renting these titles much more than other members.

1. The Fog
2. Nip/Tuck: Season 2
3. Drop Dead Sexy
4. Grandma's Boy
5. Phat Girlz
6. Garfield: A Tail of Two Kitties
7. Just My Luck
8. Veronica Mars: Season 2
9. Hitch
10. Larry the Cable Guy: Health Inspector
11. Hoot
12. Nip/Tuck: Season 1
13. Click
14. Saw
15. Saw 2
16. The Omen 666
17. The Benchwarmers
18. A Sound of Thunder
19. RV
20. Bring It On: All or Nothing

GAMEDAY
GUIDE
www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, Nov. 3, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 55

Busting Buffaloes

Will Colorado break K-State's window of opportunity to qualify for a bowl game?

See story Page 3

Road trip

Boulder, Colo.

See Pages 4-5

Illustration by Donald Lee | COLLEGIAN

Off the field Page 2 | 'Hawk Love' Page 3 | What's the kicker thinking? Page 6 | Kevin Lopina Page 7 | The Rivalry Page 8

Gameday forecast

Partly cloudy
High: 58 Low: 36

K-State at Colorado

2:40 p.m. (CST) Saturday
History: Colorado leads series 43-17-1
TV/Radio: Fox Sports Net/K-State Sports Network

Player to watch

In his last two games, running back James Johnson has rushed for more than 100 yards in each contest. On Saturday in Boulder, Johnson will face the second-best rush defense in the conference. Colorado allows 2.9 yards per carry and 96.6 yards per game.

Off the Field with Tim Reyer

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tim Reyer is a junior punter and member of the Ray Guy Award watch list for the Wildcat football team. He averages 41 yards per punt and has downed 12 punts inside the 20-yard line. He kicked his longest punt, 71 yards, during his freshman season.

Q. What is it like coming from this area out of high school and becoming a regular contributor to the Wildcat football team?
A. It was very exciting. Coming from Rock Creek, which is a really small school, it was just a really big change. When I got into that first game, I was really nervous, but I got more experience and adapted to it.

Q. Do you like to listen to any music before the game to get you ready?
A. Not really. I usually try to not think about the game much at all, because with punting and kicking, it is more of a mental game for us. My problem is that I try to think too much and try to be too perfect with it.

Q. What is your favorite off-the-field activity?
A. I wish I had time for off-the-field activities. I like playing golf or video games. Right now I don't have much money, so I usually try to play at Wildcat Creek.

Q. Who is tougher – kickers or punters?
A. I am going to say punters. For football, there is really no difference between the two, like who should be bigger or not. Since I'm a punter, I will have to say punter.

Q. Do you still get crap from the play last year where you forgot to go on the field for a punt?
A. I really got it at the beginning of the year, before the season actually started. I haven't really heard much about it now and throughout the season. I still, every so often, hear someone make a wisecrack about it.

Q. Did you have a Halloween costume this year?
A. I was actually getting down about it, because I was waiting for the last second. So me, my girlfriend and my friends just decided to go to Kmart just to see what they had, and I found a kid's medium Superman outfit. I kind of cut it apart and bought a blue Under Armour shirt from Wal-Mart and put that under it. Actually, it worked out pretty well. It looked pretty funny.

K-State vs. Colorado

OFFENSE

✓ As difficult as it might be to believe, the Wildcats are ranked ahead of Colorado in just about every offensive category. K-State's offense has been inconsistent all season, but with Colorado averaging a mere 14 points per game, the Wildcats will only need to put together a few key drives to secure a victory in Boulder.

To say Colorado's offense is bad is an understatement. The Buffaloes enter this week's game ranked last in the Big 12 in passing offense, passing efficiency, scoring offense and total offense. In fact, they have scored only 12 touchdowns all season and average just 14 points per game.

DEFENSE

Even

K-State's defense has proven throughout the season that it can defend against the pass. With the abysmal state of Colorado's passing attack, the K-State secondary could have a field day. However, the key for the Wildcats this weekend will be shutting down the Buffalo offense inside the red zone just like opposing defenses have done to Colorado all season.

Despite the struggles the offense has had this season, the Colorado defense has been quite solid. The Buffs have the second-strongest rush defense in the Big 12 and are in the middle of the pack in pass defense. The most impressive defensive statistic, however, is its average of more than three turnovers per game. Those turnovers could make the difference this week.

Even

SPECIAL TEAMS

✓ With the exception of the punting game, the Wildcat special teams have been the most consistent part of the team this year. If the return men can come up with a big return or two this weekend, it could very well prove to be the straw that breaks the Buffaloes' back. If not, the Wildcats will find themselves hard-pressed for points against a stout Colorado defense.

The Colorado special teams has had two different story lines so far this season. First, punter Matt DiLallo and kicker Terrence Wheatley are ranked second in the Big 12 in their respective categories. Conversely, the Buffaloes rank near the bottom of the Big 12 in kickoff and punt returns. Those poor return numbers might prove to be the Buffaloes' undoing.

PREDICTION

This week's game involves two strikingly similar teams. Both K-State and Colorado have strong defenses coupled with inconsistent offenses. The only big difference is the motivation factor. Even though K-State has not won in Boulder since 2000 and have lost the last two games against Colorado, with bowl eligibility up for grabs, look for an inspired Wildcat team to grit it out and come up with a hard-fought win against a Colorado team down on its luck.

K-State 13, Colorado 6

BOBBY T's WILDCAT REPLAY
4:30PM 6:30PM 8:30 PM
TUESDAY
3240 KIMBALL AVE. · 537-8383

SALON ESSENTIALS
Salon • Spa • Tanning Resort
½ PRICE FACIALS & MASSAGES
• Includes Glycolic Peels
• Microderm Abrasion
• All Spa Facials
Exp. 11/30/06
FROM 9AM-1PM MON.-FRI.
121 S. SETH CHILDS 539-5752

discover
[gopowercat.com]
beLoud, bePROUD, bePurple

Collegian
xplore
it!
kstatecollegian.com

RC McGraws
776.9588
Wildcat headquarters before & after the game
Open at 3pm
LIVE SATURDAY
SECOND WIND
Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound
Food & Drink Specials ALL Weekend Long!
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)

Saturday Night Salsa
with DJ Luis
$2.50 • Sangria • Margaritas • Coronas
$2.75 . Pounders
BOWINKLE'S
Sports Bar
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022
College Football Package
ESPN Game Plan:
Catch all your major games on our 120" TVs!
Ask for our GREAT daily food and drink specials

Campus Phone Books you can finally Buy A Book WORTH ITS PRICE on sale NOW in Kedzie 103 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

'Hawk Love'

With the program's reputation on the line, 1st-year coach Dan Hawkins installs his positive-thinking recipe for success

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Colorado coach Dan Hawkins won't be looking for anyone's sympathy. He knew what he was getting into when he left Boise State to coach the Buffaloes.

He knew about the university enforcing tougher recruiting rules due to a recruiting scandal under the previous staff. He knew Colorado's lack of an indoor practice facility would hurt his chances of signing high-profile prospects. He also knew he would be repairing the Buffaloes' pride after they were outscored 119-16 in their last three games of the 2005 season.

None of this fazed Hawkins.

However, he wasn't expecting his team to struggle as much as it has, losing all but one game this season. Still, Hawkins said he isn't worried.

"I've told people many, many times I'm not frustrated," he said. "Frustration is when you don't know what to do. Frustration is when you've had it up to here, and you can't take it anymore.

"I've never had any of those emotions at all."

What might be the hardest thing about turning the Colorado program back in the right direction is not improving the play on the field but fixing the university's reputation off of it.

Other than the recruiting scandal – three women claimed they were raped by Colorado players and recruits and filed a suit against the university in 2004 – the reputation of Buffalo fans has taken some shots, too. Stadium officials ejected two sections of fans at Folsom Field after students threw bottles and other debris onto the field during a 30-3 loss to Nebraska in 2005.

After Hawkins accepted the Colorado job last year, he said his solution to the ugly stereotype of the football program would be his own brand of medicine called "Hawk Love." In case you've never heard of "Hawk Love," it refers to Hawkins' personal and positive attention given to all aspects of his programs.

"There have been some scars, but we'll get over that," Hawkins said during his introductory press conference on Dec. 19, 2005. "So let's throw a little 'Hawk Love' out there, and let's get going."

But Hawkins' alternative methods don't just end with what he said. He has been known to enliven practices by having offensive and defensive linemen throw passes to each other in seven-on-seven drills.

Hawkins said he traces his coaching influences back to his time spent as a player and coach at the University of California-Davis. He said he also is inspired by philosophy and books.

"I've done a lot of reading and a lot of listening," Hawkins said.

Although Hawkins' positive mentality might seem to be just what a program with a negative reputation needs, it hasn't resulted in a move to the win column.

The Buffaloes are 1-8 and rank last in the Big 12 in scoring with 14.2 points per game.

However, Colorado hasn't been a pushover, either. The Buffaloes have stayed competitive in nearly all of their games, with their worst loss being a 24-3 loss to Oklahoma.

"You look at every game – other than offensively at Oklahoma – we've had chances in every game, and our guys continue to battle," Hawkins said. "I know that life is about the details, and life is about those little things. Those are the things that we continue to take stock of."

PHOTO COURTESY COLORADO SPORTS INFORMATION

Breakthrough win would relieve pressure for bowl eligibility

Colorado is just another game for the K-State football players.

At least that's what they'll tell you.

JONATHAN GARTEN

The truth is that a win on Saturday would lift a giant weight off the Wildcats' shoulders. One more victory would allow them to stop worrying about bowl eligibility.

But, as several players were quick to point out at Tuesday's press conference, winning six games doesn't guarantee postseason play.

"If you're bowl-eligible, that doesn't mean you're going to a bowl," offensive lineman Greg Wafford said. "So you just want to play every game like you're trying to qualify."

He's right. There will be teams with six wins that do not play a bowl game.

But it won't be likely that one of those teams would be the Wildcats, should they reach the magic number.

K-State fans are known for strong turnouts at bowl games. In the past, they typically have outnumbered opposing fans at bowl games and even this year have had strong showings at away games.

Even though fans have nothing to do with how good the team is, they still give K-State an advantage in making a bowl game.

The reason is simple economics.

If a bowl is forced to choose between two six-win teams, then its organizers probably will choose the one that can bring more fans and, more importantly, more money.

Although a win against the Buffaloes would be big, it won't come easily. Colorado provides some interesting problems for the Wildcats.

The Buffaloes rank second in the conference in stopping the run, allowing less than 100 yards per game.

K-State has yet to beat a team that is strong against the run. In fact, the Wildcats' only two conference wins have come against Oklahoma State and Iowa State, who both give up about 150 rushing yards per game.

If the Buffaloes shut down K-State's ground attack, it will force quarterback Josh Freeman to win the game on his own. So far, that has been a disaster for the Wildcats. In Freeman's two wins as a starter – also against Oklahoma State and Iowa State – he has thrown the ball 20 times or fewer.

K-State's history at Folsom Field is not on the Wildcats' side, either. Since 1990, K-State has won twice in Boulder.

Winning on the road has been a struggle for the Wildcats in the last two years. They have won only two road games since 2004.

But there's no doubt a win Saturday would allow K-State to relax. The Wildcats don't want to be forced to beat Texas next week or put their eligibility on the line at Kansas in the final week of their season.

No, it would be much easier to get it over with on Saturday.

Jonathan Garten is a junior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Once in a Lifetime engagements and weddings —Everyone's doing it.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

CATCH! CATCH! CATCH!
Collegian Gameday every Friday before home games.

Catering or Delivery for the Game?
PLANET SUB
708 N. Manhattan • 537-8SUB
GOOD LUCK CATS!

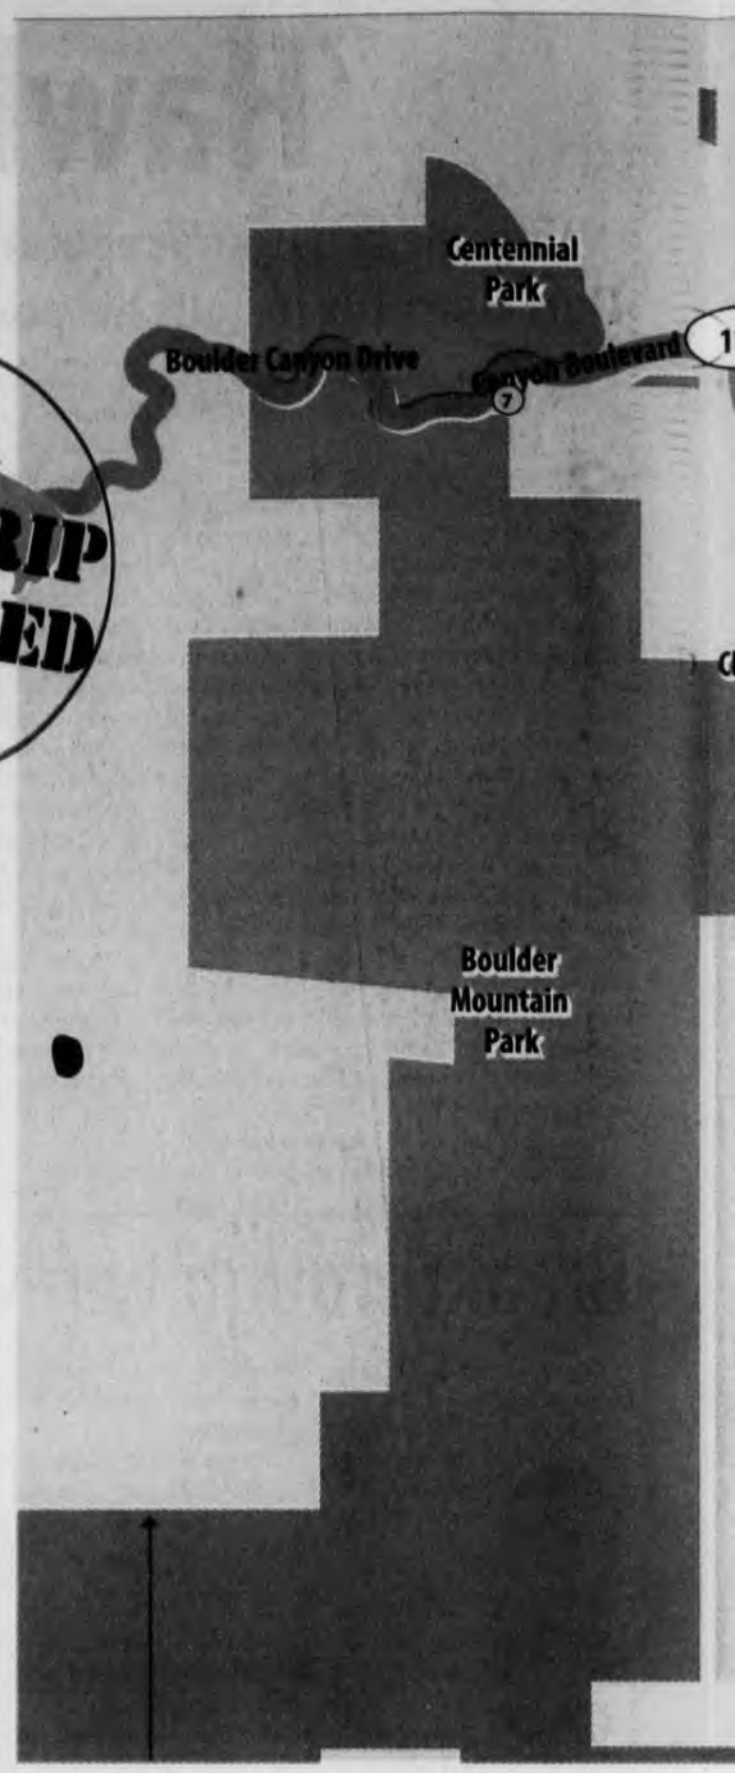
Pepsi 12-packs $3.99
Natty Light 30-packs $12.79
SHORT STOP
2010 Tuttle Creek Blvd

Over 850 rentals in the Manhattan & Junction City area
McCullough Development
mdiproperties.com • 785.776.3804

Mustang
Gentleman's Club
Open 8 pm to 2 am • 7 days a week
HOME OF THE ULTIMATE GUYS NIGHT OUT
18 & Over
GROUPS OF 10 OR MORE
CALL AHEAD AND RESERVE A TABLE
WEDNESDAY
AMATEUR NIGHT
$50-$100 Cash Prize
You keep the tips!
THURSDAY
DOLLAR NIGHT
$1 Wells
$1.75 Pitchers 48 oz
HIRING NEW GIRLS
785-238-7571
1330 Grant, Junction City, KS
Small Hours Big Money

Boulder, Colo.

Check out the many restaurants, bars and shops in "The Hill," Boulder's Aggieville, before or after the game



Quick information

- Population: 119,673
- Location: Less than an hour's drive northwest of Denver. A two-hour drive from Colorado's ski resorts.
- Enrollment: 25,000
- Colorado football: In 1990, Colorado won its first and only football National Championship. Rashaan Salaam won the Heisman Trophy in 1994 and is the only Buffalo to win the award.
- Mascot: A live buffalo named Ralphie (Pictured left)
- Colorado's football games are played on ① Folsom Field
  - Year opened: 1924
  - Capacity: 53,750
  - Colorado's all-time record at Folsom: 280-130-10

ROADTRIP CERTIFIED

—Compiled by Jonathan Garten, Graphics by Emily Lawrence | KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
PHOTOS COURTESY OF COLORADO SPORTS INFORMATION, BOULDER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Hotels/Motels

Several places called were either sold out or had limited availability at press time. You might be better off staying in Denver and making the commute before the game.

⑤ Boulder Creek Quality Inn and Suites
Where: 2020 Arapahoe Ave.
Phone: (303) 449-7550
Price: $109.95/night
Features: Hot breakfast, indoor pool, indoor sauna and is a five-minute walk from Folsom Field.

④ Hotel Boulderado
Where: 2115 13th St.
Phone: (303) 442-4344
Price: $208/night
Features: Below the hotel is the Catacombs Bar, which offers live blues music.

⑦ Foot of the Mountain Motel (Pictured Above)
Where: 200 Arapahoe Ave.
Phone: (303) 442-5683
Price: $75/night
Features: There are several trails for running, hiking and biking.

Bars:

If you're looking for a place to watch the game or just want to hang out and have a beer afterward, then check out "The Hill," the district just west of campus. It's similar to Aggieville and features several restaurants, bars and shops.

② Conor O'Neill's Irish Pub
An Irish bar that serves a combination of pints, stouts, lagers, cider and ales. Also features $3 appetizers and an Irish brunch.
Where: 1922 13th St.
Phone: (303) 449-1922

③ Dark Horse
One of Boulder's oldest bars. You can watch the game on its big-screen television or listen to live music at night.
Where: 2922 Baseline Road
Phone: (303) 442-8126

④ Trilogy Wine Bar
If beer isn't your drink of choice, then try Trilogy for a wide variety of wines. It also plays jazz, funk and reggae music.
Where: 2017 13th St.
Phone: (303) 473-9463

Restaurants

⑥ Casa Alvarez
What to order: Several meals combine seafood and Mexican food. It also serves a wide variety of margaritas and tequilas.
Where: 3161 Walnut St.
Phone: (303) 546-0630
Price range: $5-$15

⑨ Boulder Cork (Pictured Left)
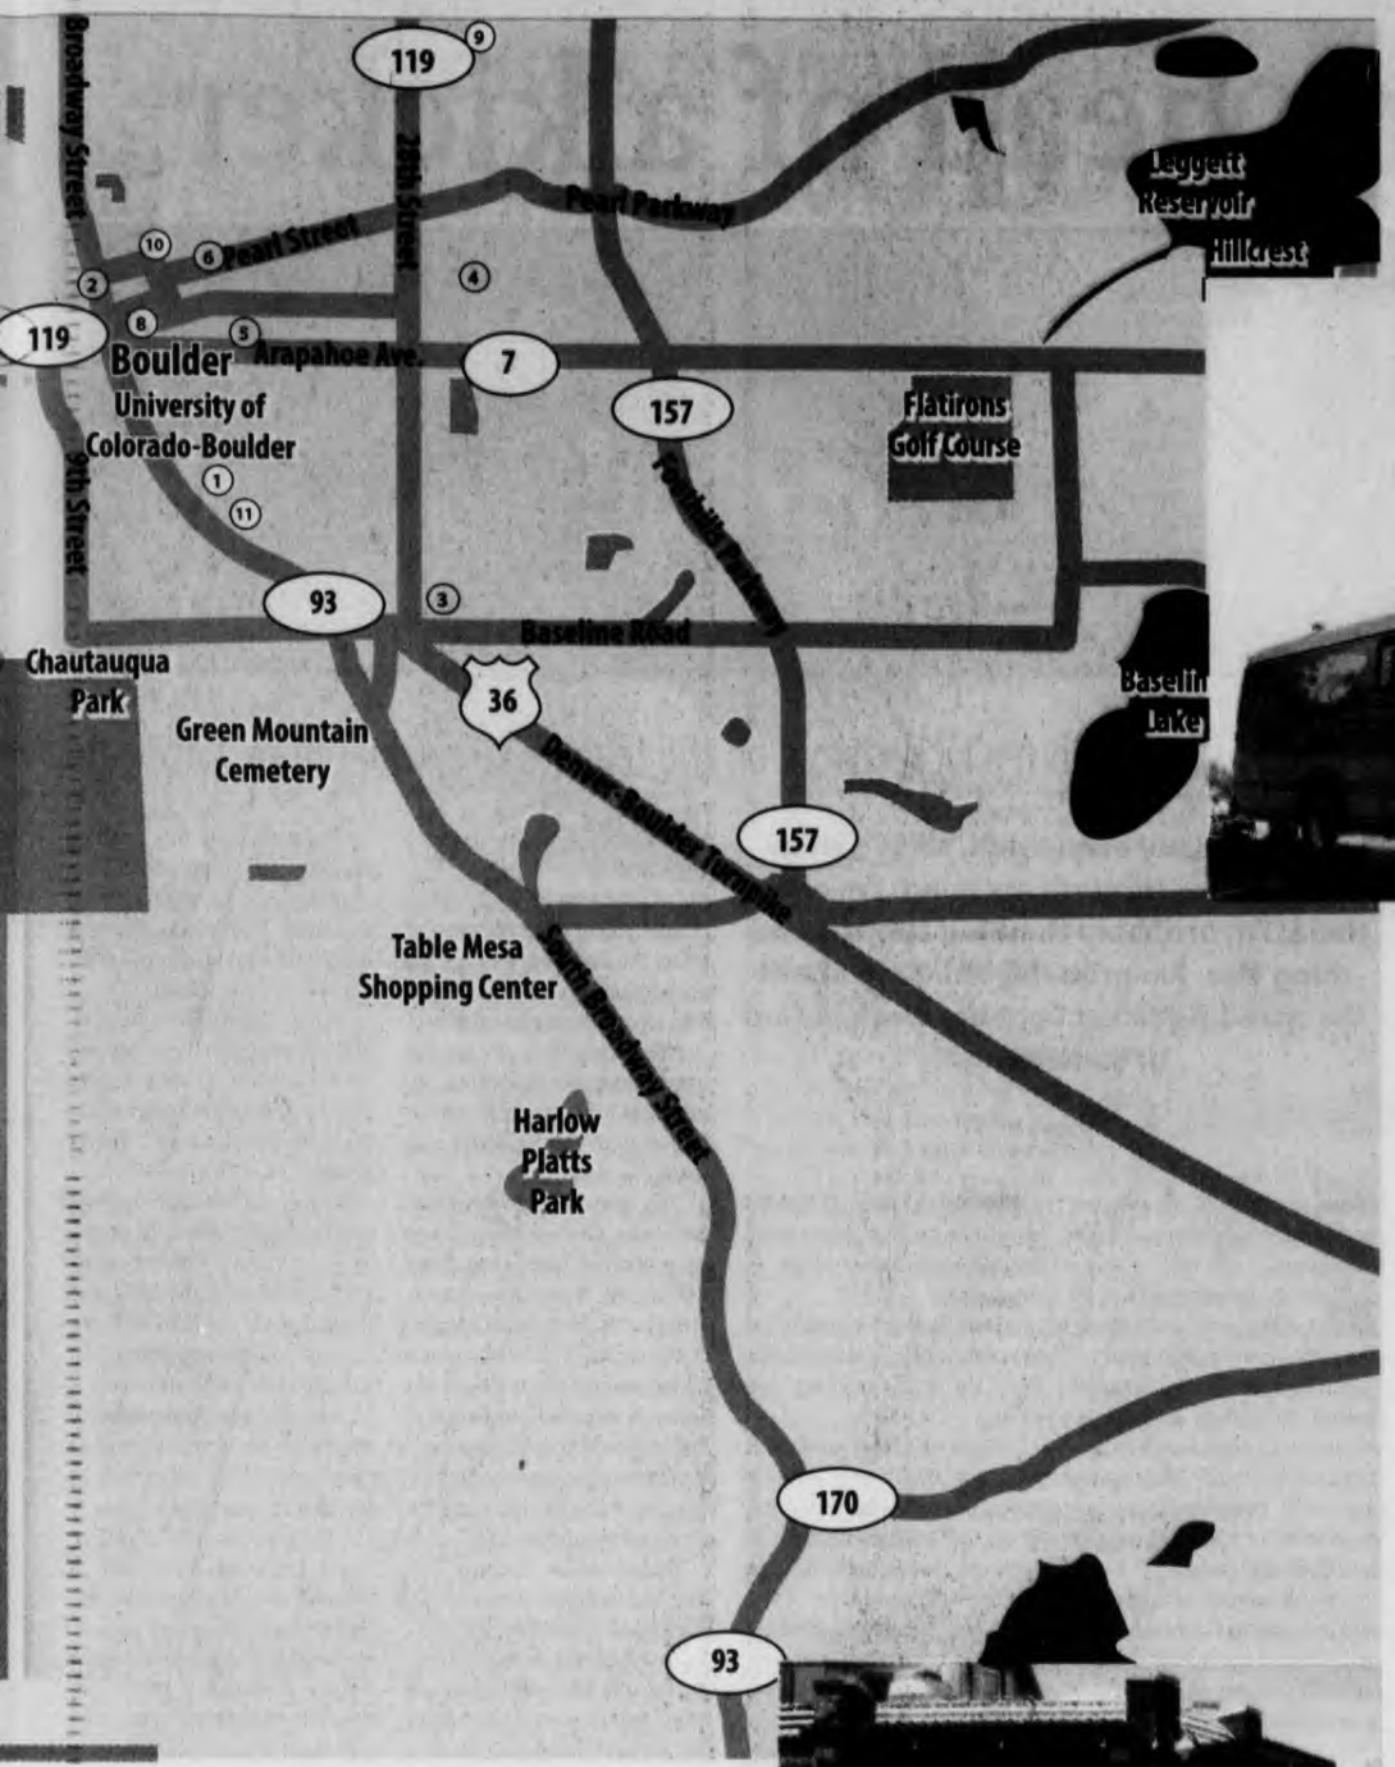
History: Opened in 1969. It is Boulder's oldest steakhouse.
What to order: Everything from chicken and steak to lobster and other seafood dishes.
Game days: Call ahead and make reservations.
Where: 3295 30th St.
Phone: (303) 443-9505
Price range: $15-$30

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave.
537-7151
Lunch Special
$3 BIG BOULEVARDS
$3 Any Sandwich & chips, 11-2
$2 Enchilada Plates all day
Open at 11am

539-5269
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
LIBRARY



Sick 'em, CATS!
$5 OFF for New Clients
607 N. 11TH • AGGIEVILLE • 565-0612
BARK AVENUE CANINE DESIGNS

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

EYECARE ASSOCIATES OF MANHATTAN, PA
Dr. Bullock
Dr. Stanley
Doctors of Optometry
Anderson Village • 1441 Anderson
Manhattan, KS 66502
• TRICARE & Most Insurances Accepted
• Convenient Appointment Times Available
• In-Office Eyewear Gallery
98% Of Contact Lenses Fit Same Day
(785) 776-9461 • 1-800-432-0036

Alan Clark
BODY SHOP INC. SINCE 1967
"WHEN QUALITY COUNTS, COME SEE US"
• COMPLETE BODY REPAIR
• ESTIMATES
• INSURANCE CLAIMS WELCOME
•PAINTLESS DENT REPAIR
•RECEIVER HITCHES & 5TH
SCORPION
MasterCard DISCOVER VISA
SOUTH FOURTH
Manhattan Town Center
Hwy 24 EAST
PIERRE
S 3rd
Kansas River
K-18
177
Ft. RILEY BLVD.
776-5333
2160 PILLSBURY DR. • 177 HWY SOUTH • MANHATTAN

GALLERY
Glenn Theodore
FOR HAIR
Hair & Color
$10 off
785-776-5632
3266 Kimball Ave. Candlewood

On the Road

Wildcat Express

- Purpose: to follow the Wildcat football team and to be the ultimate tailgating vehicle
- Year/Model: 1973 International school bus
- Bought in: 1998
- Colors: purple and silver
- Cost: $6,000 invested in the bus, not counting hours of labor
- Capacity:
- Miles: Odometer doesn't work
- Features: Purple and gray exterior, restroom, central heat, central air, fold-out beds, refrigerator and satellite.
- Other uses: Camping trips and Country Stampede
- Roadtrips: Lawrence and Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City, Mo.
- Famous guests: College Gameday stars Kirk Herbstreit, Lee Corso and Chris Fowler visited the Wildcat Express when K-State beat Nebraska 40-30 in 1998.
- Former owner: Lee Parker said he and Cory Ramsey bought the bus from an "old hippie" in Amarillo, Texas, who painted it baby blue

The original name was "Wildcat Express," but Lee Parker calls it his "Tailgating Machine."

Parker and his friend Cory Ramsey decided they needed something to haul them and their college buddies to K-State home games from Amarillo, Texas. So in 1998, the two bought a baby blue 1973 International school bus in Amarillo.

"We needed a rig to drive back and forth from home games," Parker said.

Parker said the bus has turned into a $6,000 investment – not including the hours spent painting and modifying the bus – for the two men. A restroom, central heat and air, fold-out beds, a refrigerator and a satellite dish are a few of its features.

"It's a tailgating machine, really," Parker said. "It's got everything you need for tailgating, but it's not too nice that you can't come in here with muddy shoes."

— Compiled by Jonathan Garten | KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

⑩ RedFish New Orleans Brewhouse
What to order: It serves cajun dishes like Jambalaya and Seafood Gumbo. It also features several hand-crafted beers.
Music: Live jazz music on most nights
Where: 2027 13th St.
Phone: (303) 440-5858

⑪ The Sink (Pictured right)
History: Opened in 1923. Features the artwork of several former Colorado artists on the ceiling. Actor Robert Redford worked as a janitor at The Sink in 1955.
What to order: It serves 18 beers on tap and the "Sinkburger."
Where: 1165 13th St.
Phone: (303) 444-7465
Price range: $6-$15

Inside the head of a kicker

You might just see them on the field for 1 play at a time, but a kicker's role on the team is far greater than it appears

By Austin Meek
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Don't miss. Did the wind just pick up? Watch your technique. Don't miss. What if it's a bad snap? Hmm, I'm hungry. If I miss this kick, the game's over. Don't miss. Stop thinking. Don't miss.

Kicker is a pressure-packed position, unequalled in the world of sports.

Kickers spend much of the game on the sideline, booting footballs into a net. Then, suddenly, they're called upon to take the field and make a kick that could decide the outcome of the game.

For many kickers, tuning out the constant stream of unwanted thoughts is half the battle. K-State's Jeff Snodgrass has a simple solution.

"I don't really even think," Snodgrass said. "I'm out there; I'm probably thinking about something else. I'm probably thinking about the speeding ticket I got the week before or something.

Coaches try to pressure opposing kickers by calling timeouts right before an important field-goal attempt. While "icing the kicker" is one of the oldest strategies in the book, Snodgrass said it has little effect.

"It's just a myth," Snodgrass said. "It really doesn't affect too many people.

"At least, I hope it doesn't."

Colorado coach Dan Hawkins knows a thing or two about kickers – he coached All-American Tyler Jones at Boise State, and his current placekicker, Mason Crosby, was the Lou Groza Award runner-up last season.

"I've been blessed to be around a lot of very good kickers," Hawkins said. "Mason's got the same steely-eyed mentality as all those guys."

Like most successful kickers, Crosby knows how to deliver in the clutch. Entering his senior year, Crosby had missed just one fourth-quarter kick in his career. Against K-State last season, Crosby hit a 50-yard field goal with six seconds remaining to give Colorado a 23-20 win.

However, most kickers – even the good ones – know how it feels to miss with the game on the line. K-State's Jared Parker recalls one such experience during his prep career at Ankeny (Iowa) High School.

"We were playing our rival. I missed a PAT, the first (missed) PAT of my career," Parker said. "I was really upset, because we hadn't beat this team in like three years.

"I don't really even think. I don't know what goes through my mind. I'm out there; I'm probably thinking about something else. I'm probably thinking about the speeding ticket I got the week before or something."

Jeff Snodgrass
PLACE KICKER

"I ended up coming back at the end of the game and kicking the game-winning field goal."

Parker's story has a happy ending, but not all kickers are so fortunate. Kansas City's Jan Stenerud kicked 373 field goals in his NFL career but is best remembered for a 31-yard miss in a 1971 playoff game.

"You can have a bad kick and just pray to God that you'll get another opportunity," Parker said. "When you do, you've got to take advantage of it."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

"Ninety percent of this game is mental, and the other half is physical."
– Yogi Berra

Berra was talking about baseball, but his words also apply to placekicking. While the art of kicking is largely mental, the physical aspect can't be overlooked.

Coach Ron Prince said Crosby's strong leg is what makes him one of the nation's best kickers.

"Once he clears mid-court, he's got the green light to shoot," Prince said. "If the ball is spotted anywhere on (the opponent's) side of the field, he can probably make it."

Crosby is listed at 6-foot-2, 215 pounds, but Parker said not all kickers are built like linebackers.

When it comes to kicking, technique is more important than strength, Parker said.

"In golf, you can be the strongest guy in the world, but if you just go up there and swing as hard as you can, it's not going to go down the fairway," Parker said. "That's kind of how it is with kicking."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The kicker's job doesn't end when the ball goes through the uprights. There also are kickoffs, which Parker handles.

"The kickoffs I do are the more high-pressure kickoffs, the on-sides and specialty kicks," Parker said. "Those aren't easy to do."

The statistics prove Parker's point. Big 12 Conference teams have allowed just five successful on-side kicks this season, and one of those was Oregon's controversial recovery against Oklahoma earlier in the season. Officials awarded possession to Oregon, even though the Sooners appeared to recover the ball. Oregon went on to score the go-ahead touchdown.

Parker said a successful on-side kick requires practice, creativity and a little acting ability.

"A lot of it is selling it, making the officials call the ball our way," Parker said. "The whole Oregon and Oklahoma fiasco, a lot of it was because when Oregon got the ball, they pointed the other way. They sold it."

There was no question who recovered Parker's on-side kick in K-State's game against Louisville earlier this season.

"I did a surprise on-side right, and Marcus Watts recovered it," Parker said. "It was a great play by him, even though it was probably the best kick I've ever done."

Parker also attempted an on-side on the first play of K-State's Sept. 17 victory over Marshall. Parker recovered the kick after it traveled the required 10 yards, but an off-sides penalty on K-State nullified the recovery.

Even though the play was unsuccessful, it represents Prince's "bold and daring" approach to the kicking game..

"It's great to have someone that understands what kind of weapon special teams can be," Parker said. "It's great to have a coach that lets us use those threats. We've got a lot of stuff that we haven't used yet, and there's still games left to use them in."

ROYAL PURPLE
we've got the stories you've got to read
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 785-532-6555.

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Candlewood Shopping Center 785.776.8830
3204 Kimball Avenue
Studio 32 for Hair
Call for an appointment with
Allysa, Connie, Kelly, Tina, or Verna Lee

a Cut Above SALON
785.537.3200
walk-ins welcome!
1800 Claflin Road • Suite 110 • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

Purple Pig
Watch Party
KSU vs. Colorado
Doors Open at 11 AM
Kickoff 2:30 Saturday

Enjoy The Game
8 TVs
and some room to move
Finn's Pub
317 Poyntz Ave. • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 776-2119

Bring in this coupon and
SAVE $1
on any regular 16 oz.
BLIZZARD
Offer good only 11/3, 11/4, 11/5
DQ 2 Locations!
1015 N. 3rd St.
3116 Anderson Ave.
Consumer must pay any sales tax. Limit 1 per coupon and 1 coupon per cust
Redeemable only on items selling at regular price. Good only at Manhattan st

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Friday Specials
$2.50 Pounders
$4.00 Absolute Bombs
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$5.50 Booze Burger
3 Projection Screens
$3.00 Miller Lite & Bud Light Pounders on Game Day!
Saturday Specials
$4.25 Sobe Bombs
$4.50 Big Boys
$6.50 Chili Cheese Burger
16 Flat Screens
- ON GAMEDAY -
Patio open @ 3:00 pm
Sunday Specials
$2.50 Drinks, Amp Bombs
$2.00 Tall Boys & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$5.50 Guac Burger
1/2 Price Appetizers
100 Free T-Shirts
NFL Ticket- Catch all your favorite games!
GO CATS!
Mon - Tues 4pm - 2am
Wed - Sun 11:30am - 2am

Everyday Low Prices
If You Didn't Buy It At Classic You Probably Paid Too Much!!!
Best 30 Pack Cans -$11.45
Natural Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Keystone Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Miller High Life 30 Packs - $12.85
Busch and Busch Light 30 Packs - $14.10
Miller Lite and MGD 30 Packs - $15.99
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans - $15.99
Coors Light 30 Pack - $16.30
Celebrate Our Win With
Andre Champagne 750ML - $3.99
Be The Prince of Your Tailgate
On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, and Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99
Kentucky Deluxe 1.75L $10.99
UV Flavored Vodka Liters $11.49 and 750ML $8.99
Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

Lopina discusses motivation for transfer to Washington State

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When quarterback Kevin Lopina decided to sign with K-State, he thought he would be playing for former coach Bill Snyder and his staff. However, Snyder decided to retire after last season, and coach Ron Prince took his place.

Lopina, who said he primarily came to K-State because of Snyder, decided to give the new coaching staff a try. But his desire to be closer to home as well as some situations within the football program, resulted in him leaving K-State.

Quarterback Kevin Lopina was the first of three quarterbacks to transfer from the K-State football program before the season started. Lopina, a Bill Snyder recruit, now plays at Washington State.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Q. When you were at K-State, there were five quarterbacks on the roster, and now it is down to two. How surprised were you to hear that after you left, quarterbacks Allan Evridge and Allen Webb also left?

A. I wasn't surprised at all. I mean, I guess I just kind of saw the writing on the wall a lot quicker than they did. When we came in for spring ball, the coaches kind of had their mind made up, I think. I'm not saying anything bad about coach (Ron) Prince or what he's doing, but he recruited Josh Freeman, and I don't know what promises were made and things like that, but you could just tell that there was a little bit of favoritism toward him and some of the things that he did. And I was like, "You know what? I'm not going to sit around here and just let this happen – I'm going to do something about it." I worked hard in practice; I didn't think I did that bad at all. I just didn't get as many reps as I thought I would.

Q. What were you seeing in practice that gave you the indication Prince would in fact go with Freeman at quarterback?

A. There were just small things. You could just tell day by day that we were getting less and less reps, and they would have personal meetings with coaches that we didn't even know about it. And to me, I don't even know the word to say it, I guess it's just sort of scandalous, or kind of deceiving, just in a sneaky way. I was just like, "I don't want to be a part of this if they are going to treat me different than they treat everybody else."

Q. When you left K-State, you issued a statement that said you left because of coach Bill Snyder's retirement and your desire to play closer to home. What else played a role in your decision?

A. I came to K-State for coach Snyder and his program and his coaches, and it was just a big blow when all of them had left. Every single coach from that coaching staff left. When the new coaches came in, I felt like I had to prove myself all over again, which was fine for me, because that's how it is. But I just felt like I wasn't given a great opportunity.

Q. Once you informed coach Prince of your decision to leave, did he do anything to try to convince you to stay?

A. He told me he didn't want me to leave and said he wished I hadn't made that decision. But it took a long time for me to get my release. I don't know if he was just trying to get me to change my mind or give up, but I kept calling everyday and kept saying, "Can I please get my release?" And they kept holding it, and we didn't really know why. Eventually I got it after the last day of school, but I wish I would have gotten it earlier so I could have contacted other schools. But that's probably the only thing he did– he just held my release an extra two to three weeks.

Q. How difficult of a decision was it to leave, and did it take you a long time to arrive at that decision?

A. I liked K-State a lot, especially coach Snyder and the things he did. Once he left, I didn't know if I wanted to be that far away from home anymore. I came out here for all these coaches, and now they were all gone, and I decided that I'd give it a shot and see what the coaches were all about and go through spring ball. But spring ball, to me, wasn't what I expected. The next day, I ended up in the coach's office.

Q. Did you get the impression that since this was a new era in K-State football, that Prince wanted to kick it off with a player he brought in – a guy he recruited?

A. I see where coach Prince is coming from. He recruited a four-star quarterback, and he was supposed to be the best recruit K-State has ever had. And a lot of the fans were like, "Well, he's got to play him." I don't know if he felt pressured, but I guess he thought it was best for K-State to go in that direction. In doing that, though, he ran out three quality quarterbacks. The way Evridge played last year, he did a really good job. Now he's at Wisconsin, and you don't just go to Wisconsin if you're not a good quarterback. He didn't even give Evridge one rep all of spring – it's ridiculous. He's a Big 12 starting quarterback out of eight or nine games, and you aren't going to give him an opportunity? I guess you could say that coach Prince kind of ran us out in a way. I don't know if that was his intention or what, but there's only two now, and Dylan's a senior.

Collegian vs. KSDB 91.9

5 Games to watch

Collegian football picks

Team record: 130-50 K-State record: 26-10	 Nick Dunn (34-11)	 Jonathan Garten (31-14)	 Austin Meek (32-13)	 Jeffrey Rake (33-12)
K-State at Colorado	K-State 22-20	Colorado 2-0	Colorado 20-17	Colorado 23-14
Missouri at Nebraska	Nebraska 17-16	Nebraska 24-20	Nebraska 28-16	Nebraska 24-17
No. 18 Oklahoma at No. 21 Texas A&M	Texas A&M 24-17	Oklahoma 23-17	Oklahoma 31-24	Texas A&M 30-23
Kansas at Iowa State	Iowa State 49-0	Iowa State 21-20	Kansas 23-21	Iowa State 23-20
No. 13 LSU at No. 8 Tennessee	Tennessee 33-26	Tennessee 28-24	Tennessee 27-24	Tennessee 21-7

KSDB 91.9 football picks

Team record: 142-38 K-State record: 30-6	 Heath Fanning (37-8)	 Kyle Finley (36-9)	 Scott Miller (34-11)	 James Westling (35-10)
K-State at Colorado	K-State 24-21	K-State 24-13	K-State 24-13	K-State 17-7
Missouri at Nebraska	Nebraska 21-18	Nebraska 31-24	Nebraska 34-23	Nebraska 27-21
No. 18 Oklahoma at No. 21 Texas A&M	Oklahoma 28-17	Oklahoma 17-14	Oklahoma 28-21	Oklahoma 24-16
Kansas at Iowa State	Iowa State 21-17	Iowa State 21-17	Iowa State 21-17	Iowa State 37-31
No. 13 LSU at No. 8 Tennessee	Tennessee 31-21	LSU 27-24	Tennessee 31-24	Tennessee 20-14

Celebrations of the Heart
Trivia Question:
How many times in a row has K-State beat Missouri?
find the answer at
www.shopcelebrationsoftheheart.com
and enter a drawing
For a Once In a Lifetime Opportunity!

PAT'S PAWN & GUN SHOP, INC.
WE BUY, SELL, AND TRADE
GUNS
SMITH & WESSON
HANDGUNS • RIFLES
COLT • RUGER
SHOTGUNS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.- 6 p.m.
SAT 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
506 Riley St • Ogden
539-0151

COME GET YOUR Shag on!
hi-lites • trendy hair styles
men's/women's hair cuts
612 N. 12TH • AGGIEVILLE • 539-2277
SHAGGIEVILLE

Wash-n PALACE
"Largest & Cleanest Facility in Manhattan"
Q: What happens when your hangers are empty and your laundry bag is full?
A: You drop off your laundry for wash, dry and fold service.
• Coin Laundry
• Drive-up Window & Door
• Jumbo Computerized Driers & Large Capacity Washers
• Big Screen TV & Pool Table
3216 Candlewood 537-9833
Coin-op Open 24 Hours
Dry Cleaning & Drop off
Monday - Saturday: 7am-7pm
Sunday: 12pm - 7pm

Customized coverage. Quick claims response.
Auto Insurance
Call today for a free, no-obligation quote.
Chan Stowell
FARM BUREAU FINANCIAL SERVICES
2630 Farm Bureau Rd
Manhattan
(785)537-0339
Auto Home Life College Retirement

Krystallos Invites you to our
CHRISTMAS OPEN HOUSE
SUN. NOVEMBER 5TH 12-5:00 PM
FOOD DRINK FUN
Get a fun and early start on your Christmas shopping.
Buy $250.00 worth of merchandise and we will give you a $50.00 gift certificate free.

COLLEGE PARK
UNIVERSITY CROSSING
NEW CLUBHOUSE
University Crossing
2215 College Ave.
Manhattan, KS 66502
789.539.0500 tel
collegeparkweb.com
coming in fall 2006
FEATURED
• fitness center
• computer lab
• game room
COLLEGE PARK

Check out our NEW 13x9' Projection Screen with surround sound
Come watch the Cats' Beat the Buffs
Great Food & Drink Specials
776.9588
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)
RC McGraws

Settling the score

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Then-senior offensive lineman Jon Doty takes a last glance at the scoreboard before leaving Folsom Field on Nov. 13, 2004. K-State's 38-31 loss knocked them out of bowl contention for the first time in 11 years.

Quentin Echols still remembers the day vividly.

The Wildcats were tied at 31 with Colorado in Boulder, Colo., and the game looked destined for overtime. But then one of those plays happened – a play the losing team has trouble forgetting.

"That's one of those memories that's hard to get out of my mind," Echols, K-State's senior defensive tackle, said. "I promise, I thought about it the other day. I remember how we lost two years ago with the last-second pass, 80 yards. You don't want to experience that again."

Actually, the play went for 64 yards – a desperation heave from Buffalo quarterback Joel Klatt to receiver Ron Monteilh in the final seconds that shocked the Wildcats and gave the Buffaloes a 38-31 victory.

That play was just one of many in a series that has gained steam since the start of Big 12 Conference play in 1996. A number of games have gone down to the wire between K-State and Colorado, and virtually every game has had a lot riding on it.

Since 2000, no team beside K-State or Colorado has won the Big 12 North title. The last school to do so other than those two was Nebraska in 1999, and even then K-State had a share of the North Division crown.

K-State has lost four of the last five against the Buffaloes, but the teams are split 5-5 since 1996. Last year, Colorado kicker Mason Crosby nailed a 50-yard field goal in the final seconds to hand the Wildcats a 23-20 loss.

Even with all of the history, the schools aren't considered by many fans to be rivals.

"For me personally, every team in the Big 12 is kind of a rival," Echols said. "To our fans, it doesn't really seem like a rival. It's probably because it's so far away. But for the players, we treat every game as a rivalry."

The Wildcats have lost their last seven Big 12 road games and have a particularly bad history in Boulder, posting only a 4-26 all-time record. Some think the increase in altitude could play a role, but others feel that is just a myth.

"I haven't heard horrible things about it," defensive end Ian Campbell said. "I'm used to the cold, so it's not going to bother me too much. Just don't let it be a distraction."

Echols said he is one of only four players on the team who made the trip two years ago, and the Wildcats will try hard to avenge the last-second loss.

"We're anxious for a win all the time," he said. "The older guys don't want to see that again. We don't want to lose, period, and you hate to lose like that."

Since the start of Big 12 Conference play in 1996, K-State and Colorado have had a heated series, splitting the games 5-5. A number of those games have been determined in the final seconds.

Oct. 29, 2005 — K-State punt returner Jermaine Moreira fumbled a punt with 55 seconds to go in the Wildcats' 23-20 loss in Manhattan. Colorado kicker Mason Crosby nailed the game-winning 50-yard field goal in the final seconds, and Moreira suffered a severe head injury as a result of the botched punt.

Nov. 13, 2004 — Colorado quarterback Joel Klatt connected with Ron Monteilh in the final seconds to give the Buffaloes a 38-31 victory in Boulder, Colo. The loss gave K-State a 4-6 record and snapped the Wildcats' streak of 11 consecutive bowl games.

Oct. 18, 2003 — K-State snapped a three-game slide with a dominating 49-20 victory over the Buffaloes at home. The win was the first of seven straight for the Wildcats on the way to the Big 12 Championship.

Oct. 5, 2002 — Colorado scored three touchdowns of 70 yards or more (two pass, one rush) to drop No. 13 K-State 35-31 in Boulder. The Wildcats' comeback fell short when they elected to kick a field goal to pull to within four but never got the ball back.

Oct. 6, 2001 — Colorado stunned No. 12 K-State 16-6 on Wagner Field in the second loss of a four-game skid that sent the Wildcats out of the Top 25 for the rest of the season. Sophomore quarterback Ell Roberson was sacked six times as K-State managed just 196 yards of total offense.

Sept. 30, 2000 — Safety Jon McGraw had two interceptions, one of which he returned for a 71-yard touchdown as No. 5 K-State beat Colorado 44-21. This was the last time the Wildcats won in Boulder.

Nov. 6, 1999 — No. 6 K-State led 20-0 late in the fourth quarter, but Buffalo quarterback Mike Moschetti connected with Javon Green for touchdowns of 70 and 64 yards to keep the game close. The Wildcats held on for the 20-14 victory and improved to 9-0 on the season.

Oct. 10, 1998 — No. 5 K-State snapped a 25-game losing streak at Folsom Field, beating No. 14 Colorado 16-9. The top-ranked defense in the nation, led by linebacker Mark Simoneau, held the Buffaloes to 37 rushing yards on 31 attempts. The win was part of an 11-0 regular season for K-State.

Nov. 15, 1997 — K-State broke a 13-year losing streak to Colorado, as the No. 10 Wildcats defeated the Buffaloes 37-20 in Boulder. The win all but cemented a spot in the Fiesta Bowl for the 9-1 Wildcats.

Nov. 16, 1996 — Senior wide receiver Kevin Lockett broke the conference record of 203 career receptions, but it wasn't enough, as No. 6 Colorado beat No. 9 K-State 12-0. This was the last time the Wildcats were shut out in a game.

Source: K-State Collegian

Colorado defense presents several problems for K-State offense

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The struggling K-State offense will have its hands full Saturday when it travels to Boulder, Colo., to play Colorado.

The Buffaloes enter this weekend's matchup with the second-ranked total defense during Big 12 Conference play this year, only giving up 324.6 yards per game.

K-State's offense is 10th in the Big 12, averaging 326.8 yards per game, and it has scored seven touchdowns in conference play, the smallest fewest of any team in the Big 12.

"Their defense doesn't play like a 1-8 football team," quarterback Josh Freeman said. "They are playing like a team that has a chance to play in a big bowl game."

The Colorado defense is anchored by its linebackers, which coach Ron Prince said is possibly the best set of linebackers his team has faced this season.

K-State junior Jordon Dizon averages 10.8 tackles per game during conference play, which is second-best in the Big 12. His counterpart, Colorado senior Thaddaeus Washington, is 10th overall in the conference with 8.6 tackles per game.

Online

■ Find out what K-State must do to knock off Colorado in Boulder for the first time since 2000.

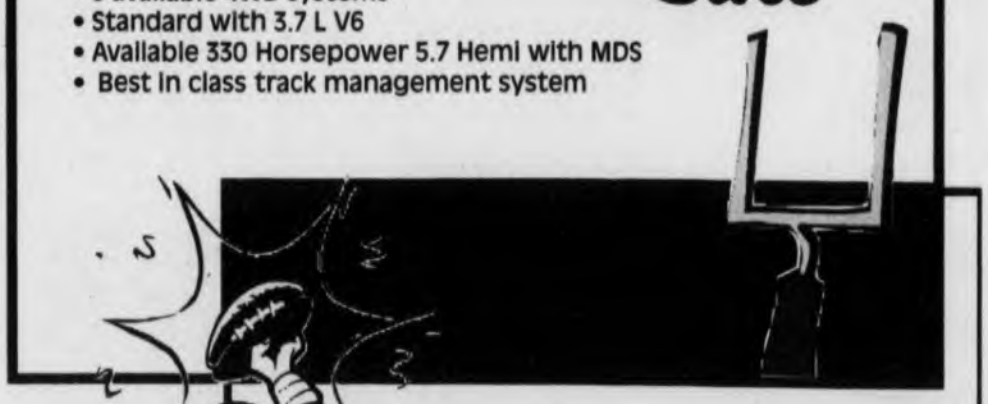
www.kstatecollegian.com

"These guys are physical – there's no flaw in their game," Prince said. "They've been very difficult to run the ball against, and they are very effective as blitzers."

The playmaker in the secondary is junior cornerback Terrence Wheatley. He has more interceptions in conference play (4) than any player in the Big 12.

The defensive line is anchored by senior Abraham Wright, who leads the Big 12 in sacks with 10.5. Prince compared him to NFL players Corey Moore and Dwight Freeney.

"I think he is every bit of a player as (Moore and Freeney) were in college," Prince said. "Every game, he's just living in the backfield, and if you don't take great steps to deal with him, he's the kind of player that can wreck the game."



Colorado has many playmakers, but it hasn't translated into victories, as the team is 1-8 overall and 1-4 in the Big 12.

Prince said he doesn't care about records, and he knows winning a conference game on the road is a difficult task, no matter where a team plays.

"To be able to go on the road and play well will do us a lot of good," he said.

LONGHORNS SALOON
1115 Moro 776-8770
FRIDAY & SATURDAY
$2.50 MILLER LITE POUNDERS
SUNDAY, NOV 5
JASON BOLAND AND THE STRAGGLERS
Tickets $15 • On Sale Now

BRIGGS AUTO LANE
Is Cheering On The Cats

'06 JEEP GRANDE CHEROKEE
• 3 available 4WD systems
• Standard with 3.7 L V6
• Available 330 Horsepower 5.7 Hemi with MDS
• Best in class track management system

'07 G6 Pontiac
• 2.4 L 4 cylinder ECOTEC
• 23/34 MPG+
• 167 Horsepower
• Dualstage frontal, driver & passenger air bags

Jupiter String Quartet
Presented by McCain Auditorium
November 17, 7:30pm
Pre-performance lecture by Proffessor Cora Cooper at 6:30 pm in room 204 McCain
The Jupiter String Quartet, based in Boston, has performed to critical acclaim across the United States and abroad.
Call the McCain Box Office at 532-6428 or order online at www.ksu.edu/mccain
Sponsored in part by The Kansas Art Commission, a state agency; The National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency; The K-State Fine Arts Fees and The Friends of McCain

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, November 6, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 56

INSIDE

The men's team edged Washburn 94-90 in triple overtime.

See story Page 8

Bush stumps for Ryun in Topeka

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Just when Nancy Boyda was starting to look like the lead candidate in the race for Kansas' second-district congressional seat, the GOP pulled out its ace in the hole.

President Bush spoke to nearly 8,500 Kansans last night at the Kansas Expocentre in Topeka to garner support for Rep. Jim Ryun, R-Kan.

"I think it shows that our base is energized, and I think good things are going to happen for us," said Ron Freeman, executive director of the Kansas Republican Party.

President Bush tugged on the heartstrings of the traditional Kansas conservative, as his speech focused mainly on taxes and homeland security.

"The Democrats seem to think that the federal government can spend your money better than you can," Bush said. "If the Democrat election predictions are as good as their economic predictions, we're going to have a good day on Tuesday."

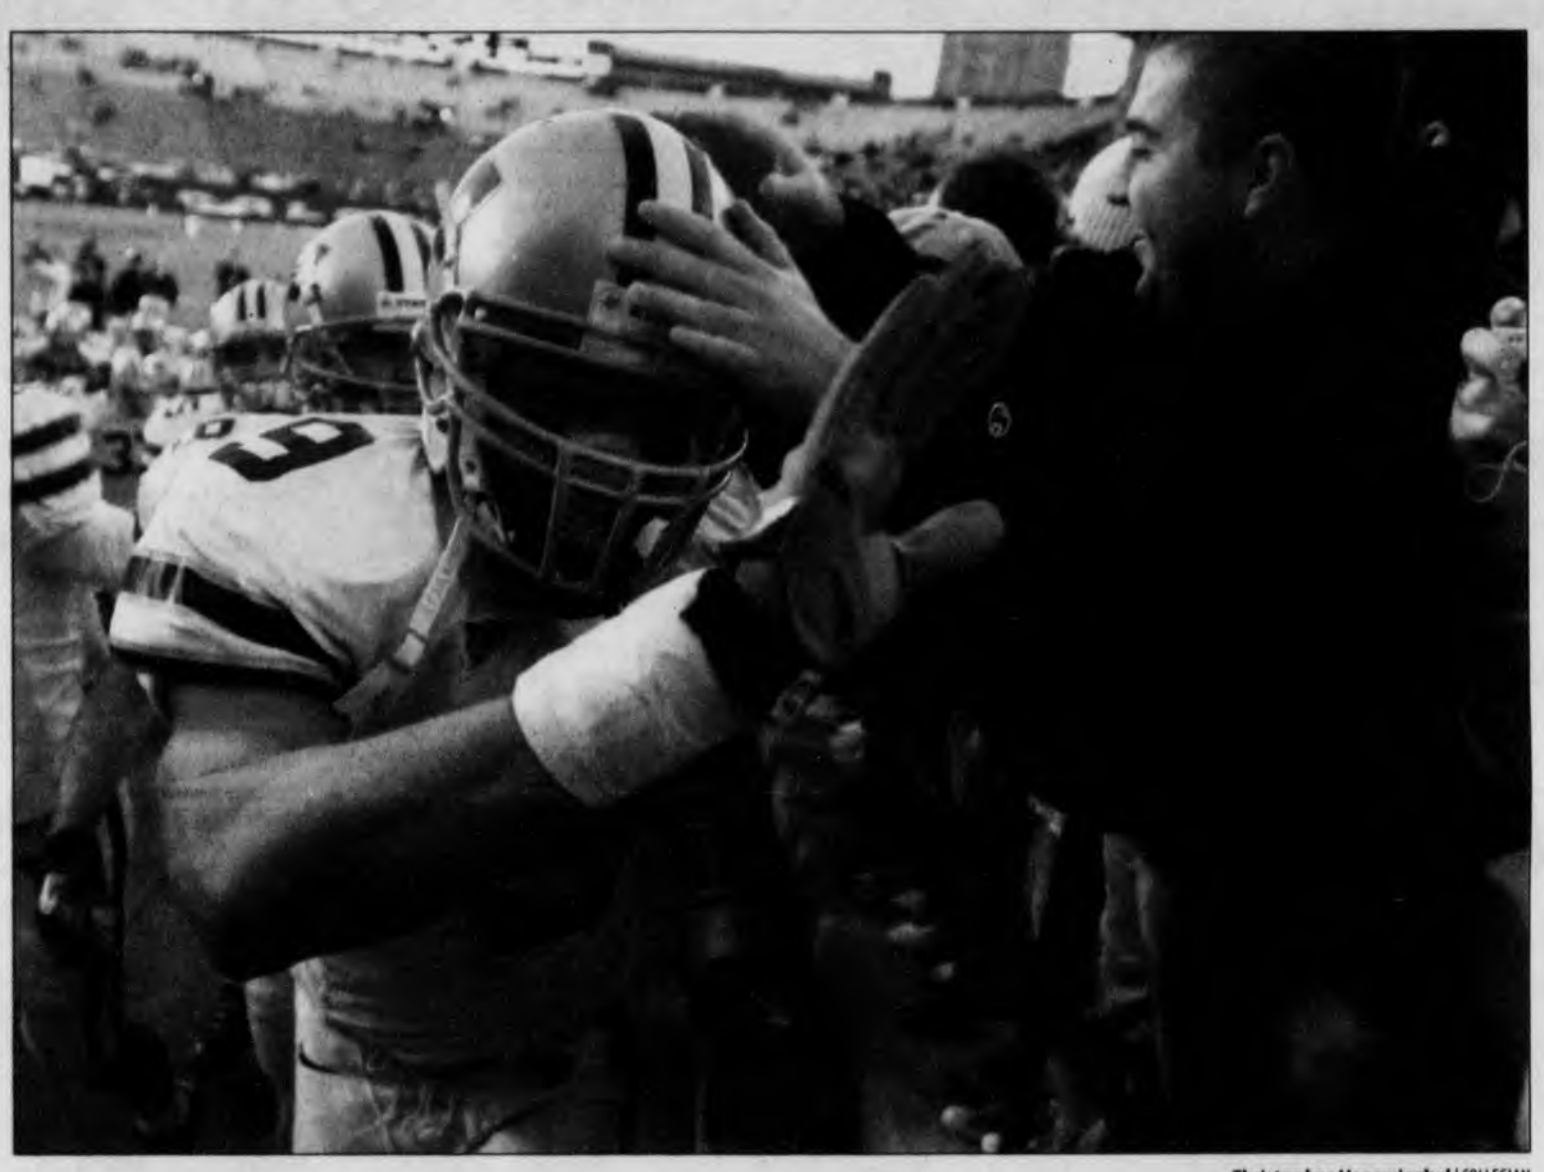
On the issue of Iraq, Bush said it is important to realize that while the Democratic candidates criticize and call for a change in the course, they don't have a plan for success.

"When they criticize us, ask them this question: 'What's your plan,'" Bush said. "They don't have a plan. We have a plan, and part of that plan is to send Jim Ryun back to Congress."

However, Bush tried to make it clear that he does not believe Democrats are unpatriotic for their criticism of the war in Iraq.

"I am not saying those people are

See BUSH Page 7



Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

President George W. Bush speaks to attendees about political issues and the upcoming election at the Kansas Expocentre in Topeka as part of the "Victory 2006 Tour" Sunday evening.

BOWL BOUND

See Sports Page 10

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

K-State's Kyle Williams celebrates with fans after a 34-21 win over Colorado on Saturday afternoon in Boulder, Colo. The win makes the Wildcats bowl-eligible for the first time since 2003. K-State lost to Ohio State in the Fiesta Bowl 35-28 on Jan. 2, 2004, at Sun Devil Stadium in Tempe, Ariz .

Kline subpoenas 90 records

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Attorney General Phill Kline's office is reviewing 90 medical records subpoenaed from two abortion clinics as part of his investigation into alleged cases of child rape, failure to report child rape, and violations of the state's late-term abortion statute.

"I have never sought the women's identities," Kline said in a news release. "I do not need their identities. Their privacy is protected by a protocol my office established with the district court judge to remove the identifying information of the women from the very beginning."

Sherriene Jones, communication director for Kline, said the protocol by Kline's office was followed from the beginning. Before the office received the medical records, the judge took out all personal information like names, addresses, and

See KLINE Page 7

Operation busts local trafficking ring

By Leann Sulzen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

More than 40 people were arrested after an investigation led to the discovery of a large drug trafficking ring in the area.

For two and a half years, the Junction City-Geary County drug operations group has led operation "Duck Hunt," an investigation that targeted cocaine and marijuana trafficking in Manhattan and Junction City, according to a release from the Junction City Police Department.

The investigation revealed three main suppliers who sold large amounts of cocaine and marijuana to distributors, who conducted street-level sales in the area, according to the release.

This organization distributed 15-20 kilograms of cocaine and 200-300 pounds of marijuana a month.

On Wednesday, nine people were indicted by a federal grand jury as part of the investigation.

The investigation is ongoing.

Despite protests, immigrants don't register, vote

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"Today we march; tomorrow we vote," was the slogan of the May 1 protest called A Day Without Immigrants.

Tomorrow is here, but by most records, the votes are not.

The intervening months between the rally and the elections have shown a disparity between words and actions. The Day Without Immigrants protests that galvanized millions in May have not resulted in a boom in voting or even voter registrations.

Even in cities that fielded strong protests May 1, the marginal increase in either voter registration or primary voting might indicate that the mobilization of large voting blocks has been absent. According to an Associated Press article, registration levels in Los Angeles, a city that saw 600,000 protesters, are well below levels attained in 2004.

Although those in favor of broader immigrant rights have subsided as election season nears, others lobbying for more aggressive measures to secure the southern border and curtail illegal immigration have kept the issue – and their points of view – in the headlines.

Following the adage of "the squeaky wheel gets the grease," lawmakers have stepped up recent efforts to cultivate their own get-tough images, with recent efforts culminating in President Bush signing a controversial bill authorizing 700 miles of new fencing along the porous U.S.-Mexico border.

However, Joe Aistrup, head of the Department of Political Science, said even if the effect of Hispanic voters is minimal in 2006, it is too early to discount their growing political awareness altogether. Aistrup said, at present, the hurdles involved with politicizing Hispanic communities center largely on disparate labor forces.

En el Internet

Para leer esta historia en español, por favor visite www.kstatecollegian.com

Within these forces is a complex mix of people in various stages of citizenship. Some are illegal immigrants; others are in the country legally on work permits or as resident aliens, and some might be full citizens with voting rights who, due to the transient nature of some jobs, are unable to secure a residency long enough to register.

"The slice of the pie in terms of what those groups are trying to mobilize becomes smaller and smaller when you run into each of those issues," he said.

"Yes, if all of those people were legal to the United States, if all of those people were indeed citizens of the United States, then at that particular point in time, the ability to make huge gains in voter registration would be there," Aistrup said. "But they're severely hamstrung by the fact that many are not citizens, and even if they're legal to be here, they can't vote."

Despite these obstacles, Aistrup said the inevitability of a law providing a means of amnesty for illegal aliens and the maturation of younger Hispanics eventually will exert pressure on the voting population.

"In 15-20 years, the people who are right now in high school will be just getting into that period in life when they're starting to own homes, starting to have families," he said. "Generally, with that life cycle change comes voting."

But immigration issues are not nationally homogenous. While firebrand pro- and anti-immigration candidates sound off in border- and immigrant-heavy states, the issue is one of little

See VOTE Page 7

Today's forecast
Morning showers
High: 69 Low: 42

ONLINE

A great mystery
The Great Manhattan Mystery Conclave was this weekend in the Ramada Plaza Hotel. The event featured numerous local and national mystery writers.
See article at k-statecollegian.com.

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Rumsfeld tickets
Tickets for Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's Landon Lecture will be available 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. today in Forum Hall. Students must show their ID, and tickets will be given on a first-come, first-served basis. Those who want to sit together should pick up their tickets together.

Festival of Nations
Pianist Vienna Teng will perform for Festival of Nations from noon to 1 p.m. today in Union Courtyard. This Festival of Nations will feature culture from Korea. Korean food will be served. For more information about Festival of Nations, visit www.ksu.edu/upc.

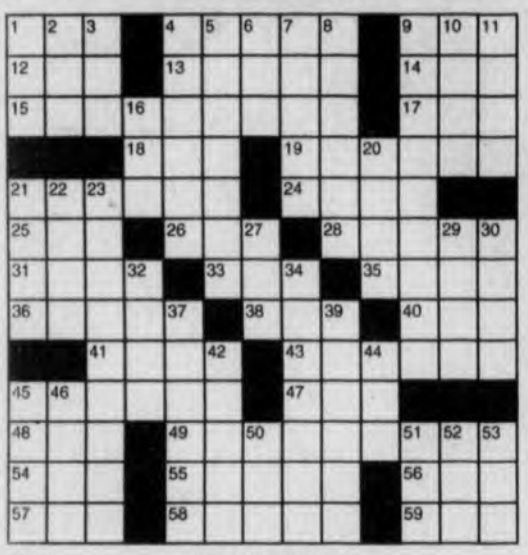
Portrait to be unveiled
A portrait of former K-State president Duane C. Acker will be unveiled at 3 p.m. today in Anderson Hall. Acker served as K-State president from 1975 to 1986. The portrait was painted by Clive Fullagher, associate professor of psychology. A reception will follow the unveiling in the Tadtman Board Room of the K-State Student Union.

Who should be in charge?
52% of Americans think the country would be better off with the Democrats in control of Congress.

Source: The USA Today/Gallup Poll

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERY

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Recede
4 Icy pinnacle
9 Young gent
12 Storm center
13 "The Devil Wears —"
14 Nevada town
15 "Top Ten List" reader
17 Pirouette pivot
18 From here, to Scots
19 Goldie Hawn, to Kate Hudson
21 Whale variety
24 This twice follows "Que"
25 Raw rock
26 Pesticide letters
28 Lint collector
31 Catcher's aid
33 Madam's counterpart
35 "Zounds!"
36 Iranian faith
38 Energy
40 — -de-France
41 Additionally
43 Association football
45 Hit hard
47 — -la-la
48 Japanese sash
49 Everly Brothers hit
54 Chic no more
55 Took the wheel
56 Uncultured
57 Pigpen
58 Avid
59 Sailor's assent

DOWN
1 Conger or moray
2 "See ya!"
3 Wager
4 Gushed forth
5 Quick, purposeful trips
6 Aries
7 Second president
8 Lake boats
9 Sluggish
10 Lotion additive
11 Color worker
16 Phonograph inventor's monogram
20 Sycamore, for one
21 Long pass, in football
22 Met melody
23 Deadliness
27 Gratuity
29 Big wind
30 German river
32 Of great height
34 Fidgety
37 Wagner's "Tristan und —"
39 "Night and Day" composer
42 Phantom's bailiwick
44 Taxi
45 Courts
46 Touch
50 Dress (up)
51 Historic time
52 Has permission
53 Female sheep

Solution time: 27 mins.

S	A	C		E	M	S		R	E	E	L	S
H	E	R		G	E	T		A	G	R	E	E
E	R	E		G	O	E	S	F	O	R	I	T
L	I	P		S	W	E	E	T
F	E	T	A		E	R	A		B	E	E	R
			L	I	D		S	M	A	R	M	Y
O	A	S	I	S				A	R	G	U	E
D	R	E	A	M	T		I	R	K
D	E	E	S		Y	O	N		S	O	M	E
				A	P	A	C	E		P	I	G
I	S	I	N	F	O	R	I	T		I	C	Y
F	O	V	E	A		E	T	A		N	A	P
S	L	Y	E	R		D	E	L		E	S	T

Yesterday's answer 11-4

11-6 CRYPTOQUIP

OSKX ESNX, HGIXE VKTVWK WTTP GE BTI CIAKWB, N HIKRR BTI GCK ACGONXH WGXP REGCKR.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: AS THE PROPRIETOR OF THE HAUNTED HOUSE, I GUESS I WOULD SAY YOU'RE ITS FRIGHTFUL OWNER.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: V equals P

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from other universities

TEXAS A&M OFFERS NEWS, SPORTS PODCASTS

COLLEGE STATION, Texas – Texas A&M is one of four universities in the nation – including the University of Michigan, Stanford University and the University of Wisconsin-Madison – offering podcasts this fall.

iTunesU is a service through which A&M will host university content online through podcasts.

Podcasting is a technology that offers access to downloadable audio content covering areas of comedy, sports, news and education, among others. iTunesU provides free educational content from universities around the country.

The audio and video files can be accessed at itunes.tamu.edu and downloaded to iPods, computers or any other MP3 compatible player.

HARDSHIP NEEDED TO LEARN KUNG FU, INSTRUCTOR SAYS

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. – University of New Mexico kung fu instructor Jamal Morris kicks academia out the door and uses life experiences to teach his students the ancient martial art.

Hardship is necessary to learn kung fu and have a happy life, he said.

"Kung fu means to refine," he said. "The more assaults you have daily on your physical being and mental and spiritual, the better you are equipped."

INDIANA U. STUDENTS MARK MEXICAN HOLIDAY

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. – Passersby on Fee Lane Thursday night might have noticed a crowd of students standing around the cemetery in front of Foster Residence Hall. More than 40 IU students gathered to learn more about Dia de los Muertos, the Day of the Dead.

In the cemetery, members of La Casa served hot chocolate to keep students warm while Lillian Casillas, director of the La Casa Latinó Cultural Center, spoke about her own family's traditions for celebrating Dia de los Muertos when she was growing up.

Source: www.copyboy.com

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ Applications are available for Wildcat Warm-up director positions. The deadline to apply is today. For more information, e-mail Emily Lehning at lehning@k-state.edu.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Rustin Clark at 1 p.m. today in Bluemont 106.

■ Sigma Alpha will present an International Students in Agriculture Panel at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Waters 231.

■ There will be a session on overseas teaching at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. It is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.

■ The next Students for Environmental Action meeting will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Union 213.

■ A Fair Trade Marketplace will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday in the Union Ballroom.

■ Alpha Gamma Epsilon Student Gerontology Club will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday in Leasure 103.

■ Career and Employment Services will have a dining etiquette workshop at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the Gold Room at the Derby Dining Center. Participants must have registered by Nov. 3.

■ Sign up for the intramural swim meet by Thursday in the office at the Peters Recreation Complex. The swim meet will be at 7 p.m. Nov. 16 and Nov. 20 at the Natatorium. The entry fee is $1.08 per person (including tax). For more information, call (785) 532-6980.

■ Rink Dickinson, co-founder and co-executive director of Equal Exchange, will present his lecture "A Taste for Justice" at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union Ballroom. The event is part of the Lou Douglas Lecture Series on Public Issues.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District

dependable, quality service
√5¢ self-serve copies
Claflin Books and Copies

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Aggieville • Manhattan, KS
MONDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 Bud & Bud Light Pitchers
$2.00 Wells & Shots
Watch Monday Night Football Here: on the Big Screen

Just let it out...
YELL
at the Public Editor
Logan C. Adams, Public Editor of the Collegian, will be available today on the first floor of the K-State Student Union from 11am - 1pm to hear your thoughts.
Until then, e-mail him at publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu

International Students in Agriculture Panel
International students discuss agricultural policies and practices in their native countries
Tuesday, November 7, 2006
6:30 p.m.
Waters Room 231
Free refreshments served following the panel.
Sponsored by Sigma Alpha
Kansas State University SGA Student Governing Association

Think You can Do Better!
SPRING 2007
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Executive Position
Editor in chief
• Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 10
• Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Photo Journalists • Desk Editors
• Graphic Journalists • Reporters
• Graphic Artists • Designers
• Online Journalists • Copy Editors
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 17
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103

Interactive Exhibition
Indian Student Association & SGA present
KSHITIJ
The Horizon
Dance, music, interactive exhibitions and food...
"Let us be a part of the wonderful gathering!!"
Date: 12th Nov. 2006 (Sunday)
12:00 pm-1:00 pm: Exhibition (Union Courtyard)
1:30 pm-4:00 pm: Cultural Program (Forum Hall)
4:15 pm-5:15 pm: Exhibition-Free Mehendi (Union Courtyard)
5:30 pm-8:30 pm: Indian Dinner (Durland Atrium)
Dinner Tickets:
Available from 1st Nov. (11 am to 1 pm) at K-State Union OR email isa@ksu.edu OR call 539-3873,
Rates: $4(student members), $5(non-student members) $10(non-members)
Free Admission for Exhibition & Cultural Program
Delicious Food

Engineering honor society cleans, paints K-Hill letters in traditional service project

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Engineering students looked like tiny specs at the top of Prospect Point, more commonly known as K-Hill, this weekend as they cleaned and painted the white letters for engineering honor society Tau Beta Pi.

The society polishes the letters every fall, Ryan White, senior in mechanical engineering, said.

"It's kind of fun," he said. "It's an interesting perspective on the top of the hill, and you feel like you're helping the community."

Members of the organization climbed down parts of the hill to clean up weeds around the letters.

Some wore belts with ropes attached so they could be harnessed while standing on the letters.

Others mixed the whitewash paint that was tossed onto the letters.

Maggie Lock, senior in mechanical engineering, said the project has been a Tau Beta Pi tradition for years.

She said the letter K was built in 1921 by an engineering honor society, and the S came in 1930.

At the time, the letters stood for the abbreviation KSAC, Kansas State Agricultural College.

The original plans were to construct the rest of the letters, but the university's name changed to Kansas State College, and finally to Kansas State University.

Richard Hayter, dean of the College of Engineering and chief adviser for Tau Beta Pi, said hee does not anticipate the addition of the letter U to the hill.

Hayter said the part of the hill where an extra letter would be constructed is too unstable and rough.

With the funding it would take to prepare the terrain for construction, it would not be practical, and the letter would likely deteriorate quickly.

Hayter said the Manhattan Fire Department brought a water truck and donated all of the water needed for the project.

He said the county also helps with the project by picking up trash that is left after the cleaning of the letters.

Lisa Linck, occupational safety officer, was at the hill with the students and said it was the first time a safety coordinator has been involved with the project.

"It's on a trial basis. I'm looking at different types of fall equipment," she said.

Hayter said he knows of no injuries that have occurred while students have been working on the project.

"Just a lot of really messy people," he said, while students with paint-covered hair and clothes poured paint on the letters.

White said Tau Beta Pi has about 80 members, all juniors and seniors in all programs of engineering.

He said there are 30 initiates added in the fall and 20 added in the spring through an application process whereby people are invited based on their grades.

He said the group is involved with community service and has two to three projects it does each year.

The group had to reschedule the painting for this past weekend because of poor weather conditions last month.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Sweeping off the limestone K, Kevin Kohls, junior in biological and agricultural engineering, cleans K-Hill before helping whitewash the letters.

Read the Gameday edition Fridays before home games.

Experienced, Common Sense Leadership

www.tomhawk.com

RE-ELECT TOM HAWK
State Representative
67th District

I Support:
- K-State
- Ft. Riley
- Small Business

Higher Ed Report Card Grades Legislators
In the Oct. 19, 2006 Collegian, Rep. Tom Hawk received a top grade of "Honor Roll" Supporter by the Citizens for Higher Education!

"I am pleased to have gained this honor roll designation indicating my life-long support for education. I am proud of my three degrees from KSU: BS in Math, MS in Counseling, and PHD in Educational Administration. I believe in working with all legislators and both parties to be a problem-solver. My first commitment throughout my professional life as a teacher, counselor and superintendent of the Manhattan Public Schools has been education. As a member of the House Utilities and Environment Committees during my first term, I have also learned how important sound energy and water policy is to the future of our state. I pledge to be a strong and reasonable voice for all of us as your State Representative."

Prepared for the Job

Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Katha Hurt, Treasurer

Campus Phone Books you can finally Buy A Book WORTH ITS PRICE NOW in Kedzie 103 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

Menu Mania

$4.99 Buffet w/ Student ID Sunday & Monday after 4 p.m.
Valentino's
3003 Anderson Ave
539-6444

$1 off Any Pita
the Pita Pit
We Deliver • 1131 Moro • 537-3995

Porter's
Mini Monday
20¢ mini corndogs
$1.00 mini bottles
$1.00 off all drinks

HUNAM
Chinese Restaurant and Mongolian BBQ
Newly Renovated
$1.00 Off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.00 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888

BUY 1ST COMBINATION PLATE and get THE 2ND HALF OFF
El Potrillo mexican restaurant & cantina
539-9557
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
WITH STUDENT ID

Soup Sandwich Combo $5.50
We Deliver
PLANET SUB
708 Manhattan Ave. 537-8SUB

Kramer Quik Cats Convenience Store
Buy 1 made-to-order pizza, and get the 2nd half price!
(second pizza must be of equal or lesser value.)
Located in the Kramer Dining Center
6:30 p.m. - Midnight
Expires 12/15/06

Monday Mania
$3.99 Large Cheese Pizza
Dine in or carry out
Delivery Hotline 770-3333
GUMBY'S Pizza
Open Late

25¢ HOT WINGS
"BIGGER THAN AGGIEVILLES"
$5 DOMESTIC 64 oz. PITCHERS
BOWINKLE'S Sports Bar
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022

HUNAN EXPRESS
FREE DELIVERY: 537-0886
1116 MORO ST. AGGIEVILLE • FAX: 539-9111
(ONLY A FEW BLOCKS SOUTH OF KSU)
$3.99 LUNCH BUFFET 11:00-2:30
$4.99 DINNER BUFFET 5:00-9:00
VALUABLE COUPON
RECEIVE ONE OF THE FOLLOWING FREE
FOR DELIVERY ORDER OF $15 OR MORE
ONE SOFT DRINK (2 LITER)
TWO EGG ROLLS
FOUR CRAB RANGOONS
TEN FRIED DONUTS
PURCHASE OF $25 OR MORE SELECT ONE ORDER FROM MENU.

COVERING THE GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH...
Following your NEW Kansas State Wildcats and Your CHAMPION Lady Cats
2006-2007
Look for our season preview issue this Wednesday in the Collegian

$2.00 ANY DRAW OR BOTTLE
Pat's Blue Ribbon BarBeQue Aggieville
1/2 PRICE SMOKED WINGS

FREE Small Sub with purchase of any regular & large toasty combo
QUIZNOS SUB
776-6300 2815 Anderson Ave
539-8500 900 Hayes Dr.

Priority: people

Most local candidates show they truly care about voters, but others do whatever it takes to win

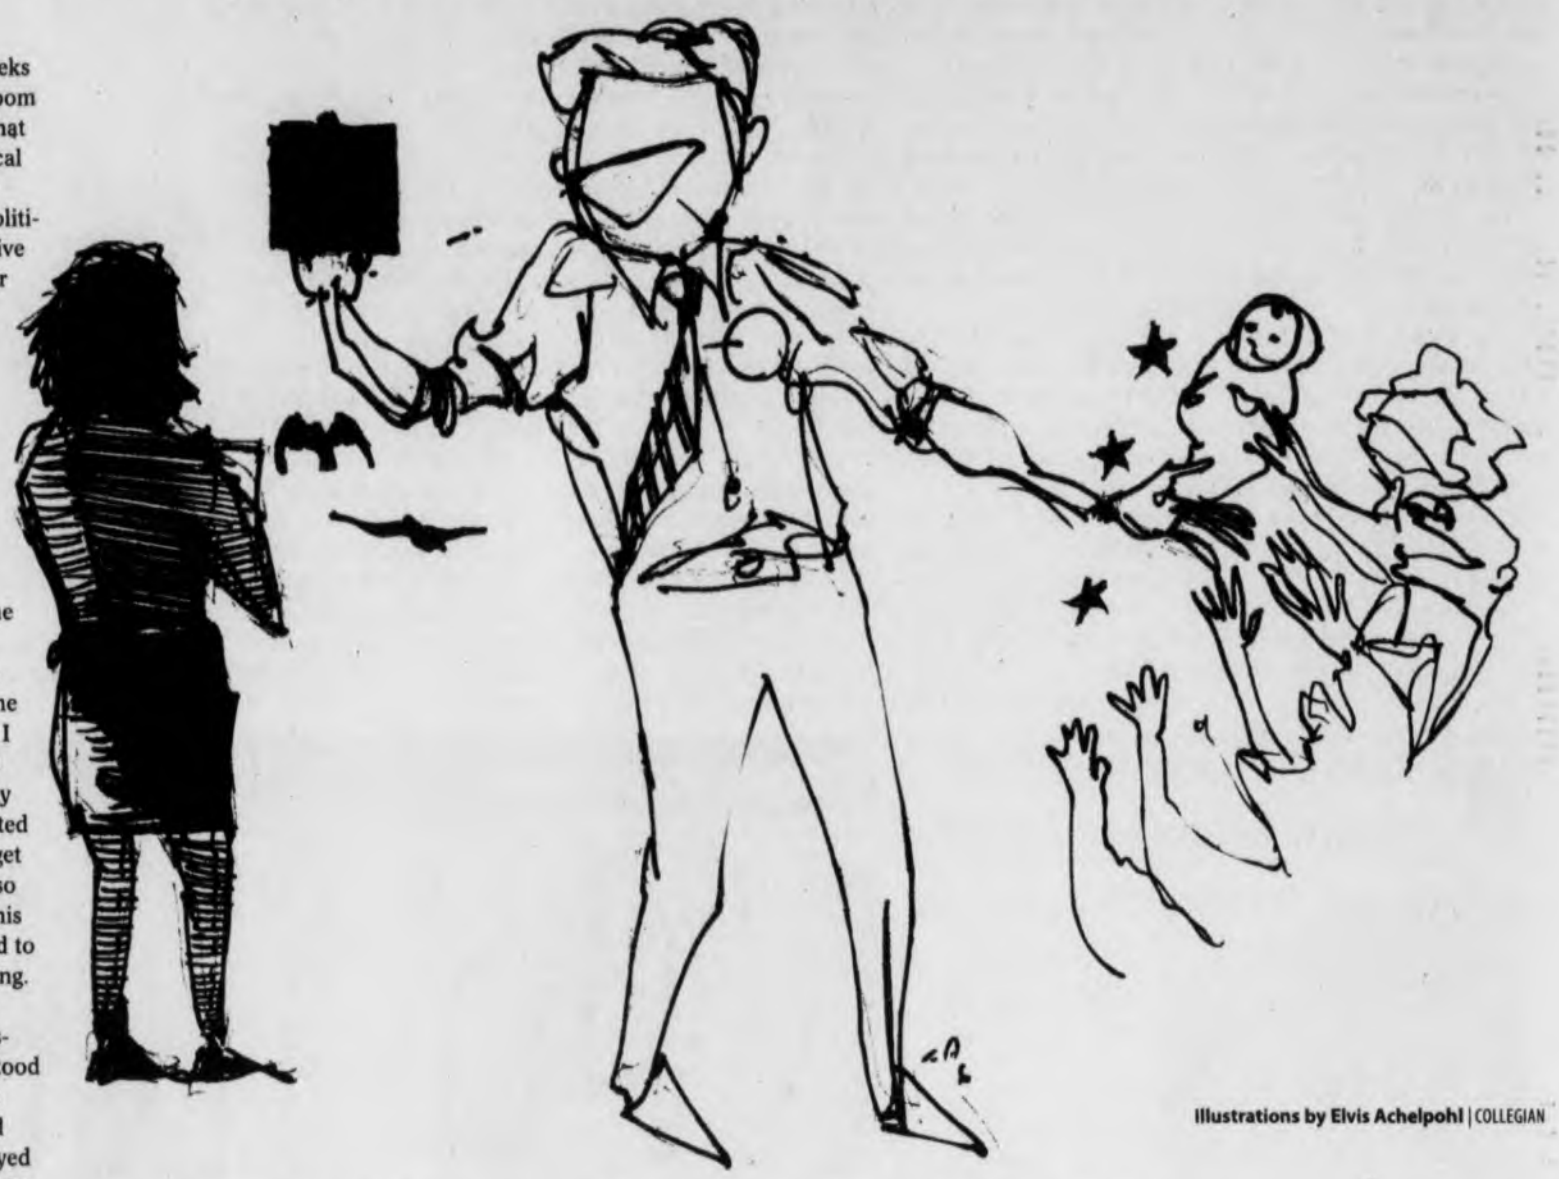
KELSEY CHILDRESS

As I began my shift as a waitress at a popular restaurant in Manhattan a few weeks ago, I learned I would be in the banquet room serving a luncheon club that was to host four of the local politicians running in the Nov. 7 elections. These politicians had the chance to give their "sales pitch" for their respective campaign.

I entered the room before the meeting started, facing groups of people making small talk. As is typical for this group, I went around and asked each person what he or she would like to drink. The only female politician, a local candidate running for re-election, was particularly pleasant, as were two older gentlemen, even though they were the guests of honor.

However, it was the last candidate, one who easily could be my father, who gave me a revealing look into the world of politics. I politely asked him for his drink order, and he made eye contact with me, but promptly ignored me, even though I hadn't interrupted him in any way. I stood there, needing to get the drink order before the meeting began so I wouldn't disturb the introductions, but this politician didn't bat an eye as he attempted to charm the woman to whom he was speaking.

He kept speaking to her in such a fake manner it seemed my asking a simple question had disrupted his song and dance. I stood there, unfazed, until the woman for whom he was performing finally stopped him and repeated my question. He answered, annoyed that I, a lowly waitress, could possibly talk to him like an equal.



After his hasty reply, I removed myself from the room and instantly decided this politician, who claims to love and represent K-State students, would not receive my vote.

It makes me wonder if all those campaign goals and beliefs for a better Kansas are really true. It appears politicians will say almost anything to be elected, whether it be false promises or negative backlash against an opponent.

Good candidates live up to their promises and truly strive to make their county or state a better place. If the people entrust them with that great responsibility, it is their duty to uphold the integrity of their office.

It is when you see people at their grittiest, doing whatever it takes to win, that you see their greediness. The female candidate stayed long after the meeting to answer the questions of one older lady. Even though this candidate must have had a thousand other things to do, she still took the time to speak to this one person. She really cared about what this lady had to say.

And to me – a simple waitress with a vote equal to the mayor's, the dishwasher's or the governor's – this meant a lot.

Illustrations by Elvis Achelpohl | COLLEGIAN

Kelsey Childress is a junior in English. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Death sentence will martyr Hussein, possibly lead to civil war

ZACHARY T. ECKELS

Spending the past couple of decades amid the accusations that Saddam Hussein was such a brutal dictator, one would think Sunday's death sentence would be no surprise. It all went exactly as we thought; Hussein was pulled from the hole, cleaned up, given a trial and promptly sentenced to death.

The only problem with this scenario: We're dealing with an entirely different culture that's not always going to see things our way. And, since we're the ones making changes for it, I feel it's important to try and walk in the others' shoes.

Let's start with a brief overview.

There are two main groups of Muslims in Iraq: the Sunni branch and the Shiite branch. The difference in their beliefs, for which they are willing to die, center on who should have been the successors of Muhammed.

Quite simplified, after Muhammed died, there were four caliphs installed to lead the Muslims, and the Sunnis were happy with this. However, the Shiites believe only the heirs of the fourth caliph, Ali, are the true successors.

This all changed after World War I. At this time, the Ottoman Empire was dismantled, and the reign of the caliphs was ended. From the beginning of this break, there were disputes over territory and who should remain in power.

By the time Hussein worked his way into power, nothing was different. He had people executed and fought for the control of more land. Not exactly the leadership I'd want a country to have, but by remaining subservient, the people tacitly accepted it.

However, during the Anfal Campaign, Hussein did go too far. He committed genocide and faced the consequences. The world clearly agreed Hussein had been punished enough after the Gulf War, as it allowed him to remain in power.

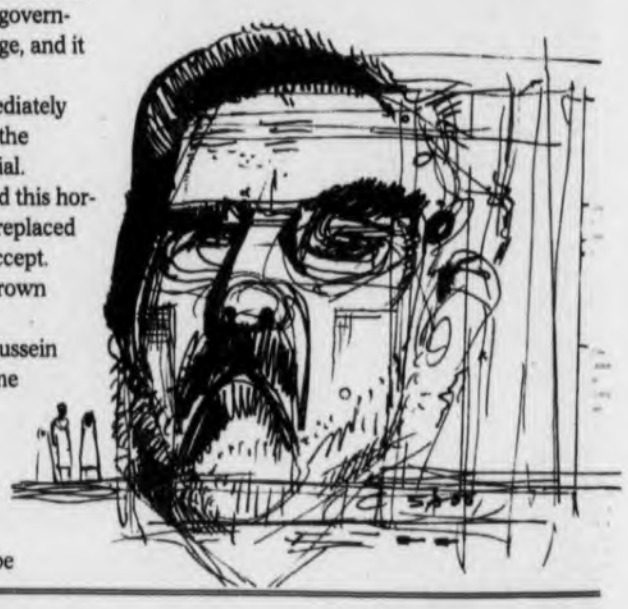
This is why it's so odd we needed to start a second war just to give Hussein a trial. The issue had been dropped, and the world moved on. The crusaders had no need to get involved again.

Then, as if an unnecessary trial wasn't bad enough, the government we installed failed to present a trial that appeared even remotely fair.

Sure, it tried to retain our image of heroically putting an evil man to justice through the proper channels. However, he only was allowed to use Iraqi lawyers, and they were sure to install a Shiite judge, Abdullah al-Amiri, to decide the Sunni's fate.

All right, just because he was a Shiite doesn't mean the judge was unfair. In fact, al-Amiri was so just, he told Saddam he was not a dictator.

I see examining a man's actions instead of using incriminating terms as a good thing. However, this wonderful new democracy we established seems to feel differently. The new Iraqi government decided it needed a new chief judge, and it chose Mohammed Oreibi al-Khalifa.



This judge wasted no time. He immediately threw Hussein out of court for arguing the change of judges in the middle of the trial.

When his lawyers rightfully protested this horribly unjust decision, they simply were replaced with new lawyers Hussein refused to accept. When he argued, he was once again thrown out of the court.

At this instant, it doesn't matter if Hussein was guilty or innocent. This isn't the time to argue whether he deserves life or death. Right now we have to realize this case was as open and shut as we expected, but there are still people who think he should be in power.

If we allow this man to die, he will be converted into a Sunni martyr. On the brink of a civil war, the last thing we need to be doing is sparking matches.

Zachary T. Eckels is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Mosier | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Jonas Hogg | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTAION EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Citizens must vote in Tuesday's election to assert rights to privacy, confidentiality

Privacy rights might be a broad and debatable topic, but rights of confidentiality are an important part of many processes. Yet, as you read this, our government is ignoring these rights.

The journalists who won awards for their history-changing story that exposed the Balco scandal are now being jailed for their refusal to release the names of their confidential sources.

Also right now, Attorney General Phill Kline's office is reviewing medical records subpoenaed from abortion clinics. This might be part of his investigation into alleged cases of child rape, failure to report child rape and violations of abortion statutes, but it is still an egregious violation of doctor-patient confidentiality.

Offering and expecting confidentiality has allowed patients to tell their doctors things that might save their lives.

Offering and expecting confidentiality has allowed journalists to obtain the sources they need to tell the stories that expose corruption and change history.

Just as a clients need to know they can tell their lawyer anything and still receive a fair trial, sources and patients deserve the same rights.

As citizens vote this Tuesday, we hope that if privacy or confidentiality matter in the slightest, they will vote accordingly.

We must not forget that, especially in this case, our votes can make a difference.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

I'm in college, and I don't want babies, so I'll be eating all the meat I can.

Why do people have to take up my section for three straight hours and then tip me not quite 15 percent? And why is the Fourum so short, because I probably won't even get in it since it is.

I have a kid. I had sex at an early age, and now I go to school.

I really don't want my daughter dating one of those people.

Oh, Franky, baby.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Face off

	Todd Tiahrt	Garth McGinn
Party	Republican	Democrat
Political experience	U.S. House of Representatives (1994-present) Deputy Majority Whip (present)	None
Residence	Goddard, Kan.	Bel Aire, Kan.
Previous work	Proposal Manager - BoeingBoston	Senior Systems Engineer - LSI Logic
Education	Evangel College - 1975 Southwest Missouri State (MBA) - 1989	Wichita State University Baker (MBA)
Quote	"There are people in this country who believe we are not taxed enough, we should attempt to negotiate a treaty with terrorists, and believe the United States is more responsible for terrorism than Osama bin Laden. I believe those people are wrong."	"It is time for change and fresh ideas. It is time to end the corruption. It is time to stand up and rise to the challenge."
Prediction from a poll by Congressional Quarterly	67 percent	20 percent

Incumbent Tiahrt looks set to win 7th term as 4th district representative over McGinn

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Incumbent Todd Tiahrt is set to collect his seventh term in Congress after what should be an all but ceremonial election in Kansas' fourth district. The district includes the Wichita area of Sedgwick County and nine surrounding southern counties.

Tiahrt, Congress' deputy majority whip, told the Wichita Eagle last Wednesday he is confident he will be re-elected.

Tiahrt was first elected to Congress in 1994, and he said he has improved his job performance through the years.

"I think I've become more effective at my job by better understanding the system, building relationships, (and) listening to my constituents," he told the Wichita Eagle.

Tiahrt's platform includes the return of foreign jobs to the United States, border control, national security and the continuation of the war on terror.

Tiahrt's opponent, Garth McGinn, said he still thinks he can win the race.

"Everywhere I go, I have Republicans shaking my hand saying they'll vote for me because of the mess our country is in," McGinn said to the Eagle.

McGinn's platform includes issues like affordable health care, energy conservation and ending the war in Iraq.

MISSOURI RACE CLOSE

With control of Congress in the balance, the Missouri Senate race between Republican U.S. Senator Jim Talent and his Democratic challenger, state auditor Claire McCaskill, is one of the most closely watched races in the country.

According to Rasmussen Reports, on Nov. 4, McCaskill led Talent 49 to 48 percent.

One of the biggest issues in the race is stem-cell research. The topic became even more heated when actor Michael J. Fox appeared in a McCaskill campaign ad on the topic.

Fox, who has battled Parkinson's disease for more than 10 years, said electing McCaskill could further the search for cures for diseases like his. Talent opposed federal funding of embryonic stem-cell research.

BROWNBACK ANSWERS ONLINE POSTS

Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., was featured in the Yahoo! News "Talk to Power" series last week. The online series invites viewers to post questions and get video responses from politicians.

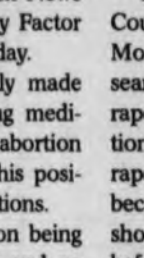
Those who wrote in asked about topics ranging from the war in Iraq to patent laws.

"Talk to Power" is a part of the "Generation Next" series aimed at 16- to 25-year-olds.

KLINE APPEARS ON O'REILLY FACTOR

Kansas attorney general incumbent Phill Kline made an appearance on the Fox News program "The O'Reilly Factor with Bill O'Reilly" Friday.

Kline, who recently made headlines by obtaining medical records from state abortion clinics, talked about his position on late-term abortions.



"There's a deception being perpetrated in Kansas and on America, and that is that we cannot recognize any value at any time in an unborn child," Kline said on the show. "And therefore, we have to cover up that deception by not admitting, at any time, that there ought to be any scrutiny of what is happening inside abortion clinics. And as a result, they can be safe havens for child rapists."

Kline's opponent, Johnson County District Attorney Paul Morrison, has likened Kline's searches for evidence of child rape, illegal late-term abortions and failure to report child rape to a "fishing expedition," because he said Kline did not show a crime was committed before taking the records.

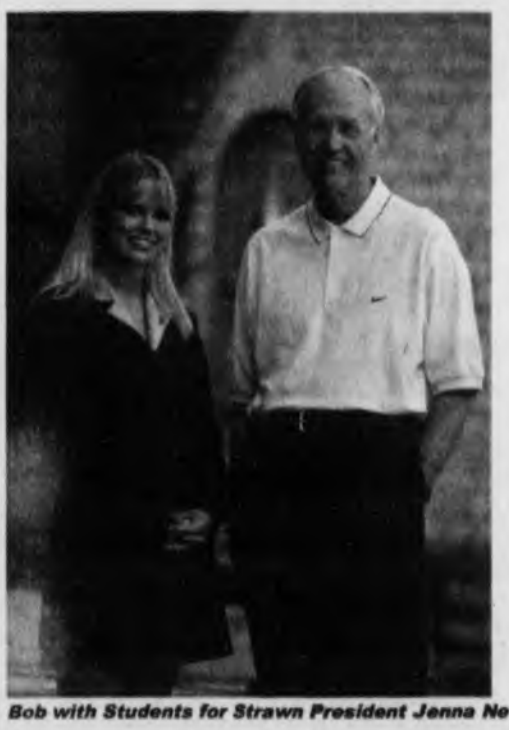
DON'T FORGET TO CHECK OUT
MENU MANIA
LOCATED ON PAGE 3 OF YOUR K-STATE COLLEGIAN
TO ADVERTISE IN MENU MANIA CALL 532-6560

$2 OFF IN NOVEMBER
REPAIRING
•Shoes & Boots
•Purses & Luggage
•Harness
•Back Packs
• Birkenstocks
•Leather Coats
• Satin Shoe Dying

ULTRA GRIP for ice and snow.
reduce slipping.
$15.99
MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR

SAKE SAKE SAKE
Bomb!
$3.00 Sake Bombs
TRY OUR NEW ASIAN STYLE BUFFET & MONGOLIAN BBQ

YAMI 539-8888 1304 WESTLOOP
$1.00 OFF BUFFET W/ VALID KSU ID



GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma, and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

$1.50 Wells
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL Aggieville

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA

LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER MANHATTAN

Call 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Sick of signs in your apartment complex?
Students for STRAWN
Kansas State Representative
66th District
Tell Your Landlord
• Fix the Sink
• Turn on the Heat
• Repair the Deck...

Bob with Students for Strawn President Jenna Newsum
...VOTE FOR BOB STRAWN
Paid for by Bob Strawn for Kansas State Representative, Art Loub Treasurer.

We're you elected Class Speaker for your high school graduation?
Working for us your name will be on a check instead of a graduation program.
Your leadership skills are what we need. We're looking for strong individuals to help lead our sales teams for the spring semester. Working hours are in between classes.
Monday - Friday 9am-5pm
Collegian Advertising • K-State Phone Book
Manager and Asst. Manager Applications available in 103 Kedzie Hall
Applications and cover letter due in 103 Kedzie Hall Friday, Nov. 10, 4 pm
For more information CALL 785-532-0723

They formed a band

Londoners' songs tell simple stories, use British wit

Art Brut, "Bang Bang Rock and Roll"
Grade: A-
Album review by Mark Sibilla

It always seemed to me that punk music's main ethos was subversion of the status quo. American bands like The Dead Kennedys worked to shake the masses from their stupor under the rule of President Ronald Reagan, while The Sex Pistols preached a similar gospel of revolution in its native England nearly a decade earlier.

The bands in the New York club scene that crystallized the aesthetic for punk – The Ramones, Patti Smith, Talking Heads, etc. – had a slightly less radical agenda. In the early 1970s, prog(ressive)-rock was the dominant musical force and caused rock 'n' roll to become challenging and overbearing. Punk's solution was to strip rock to its essentials – three or four chords, a simple, catchy melody and wonderfully mindless lyrics.

The debut of South London's Art Brut, "Bang Bang Rock and Roll," falls squarely in the latter camp. The band packs three-minute songs with tight instrumentation and ironic, often hilarious, lyrics about everything from forming a band, finding love, discovering rock 'n' roll and experiencing sexual impotence.

And the lyrics are what really set Art Brut apart. Frontman Eddie Argos tries to strip away any pretentiousness by using simple language to construct simple stories; it is his exuberant presentation that truly sells his message.

The group's first single, "Formed a Band," is perhaps the perfect distillation of Art Brut's sound and intentions. The band offers the musical equivalent of a Starbucks Frappuccino – short, quick bursts of rock with a little kick that stays with you after the song is finished.

In the song, the listener is introduced to Argos' distinctive vocal styling, which will be an acquired taste for some. He speaks and shouts more than he sings, and his nasally, British-accented voice doesn't help matters much. However, by the second time the chorus begins, it's hard not to succumb to Argos' enthusiasm as he excitedly yells, "Look at us! We formed a band!"

Argos' lyrics are drenched in a sly irony. In the second song, "My Little Brother," Argos sings about his little brother who is "only 22, and he's out of control." What is his brother's problem? Why, he has discovered that evil of all evils, rock 'n' roll.

Not all of the songs contain Argos' droll British wit. In "Emily Kane," he writes a love song to an old flame from when he was 15 for whom he still pines.

"There's so much about you I miss, the clumsy way we used to kiss," Argos longingly sings. During the song's bridge, Argos says he hasn't seen Emily in 10 years before pausing and adding the exact time down to the second since he last saw her.

The band slows down the tempo for "Rusted Guns of Milan." With Argos' perverse take on the Little Engine That Could ("I know I can; I know I can...") and clever perception of his situation, it is the most funny yet most poignant song about erectile dysfunction I have ever heard.

Even a throwaway song like "Modern Art" is made essential due to the outright enthusiasm the band has in playing behind Argos shouting about how modern art makes him "want to rock out."

Perhaps the best song on the album is "Good Weekend," in which Argos excitedly details his new girlfriend over a driving surf-rock riff. The song's climax comes when Argos shouts, "I've seen her naked twice!" What easily could have been boorish actually is quite charming; it recalls the giddy excitement felt when any new couple joyfully experiences each other's bodies.

The second half of "Bang Bang Rock and Roll" is definitely not lacking in material, but it loses a little steam when compared to the knockout singles on side one. Songs like the laid-back, "Moving to L.A." and the exceptional title track are great offerings late in the album.

Art Brut's mission statement is easily summarized in the chorus of "Bad Weekend." Argos snidely spits, "Popular culture no longer applies to me." As the name of the band implies (a term meaning "art created outside the realm of popular culture" coined by artist Jean Dubuffet), Art Brut longs to create rock music that lasts.

In a pop culture world where a single will make you "The Next Big Thing," but you are forgotten even before your first album hits, Art Brut show us that if you're unhappy with rock 'n' roll, don't sit around and complain; take action. Art Brut formed a band, and we are better off for it.

Musician returns to BirdHouse series with 3rd CD

By Katelynn Hasler
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Musician Brian Joseph entertained audience members with his acoustic performance Friday night at the Manhattan Arts Center.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Brian Joseph performs Friday night at the Manhattan Arts Center. He was part of the art center's BirdHouse Concert series.

Eight times a year, the arts center presents musicians and singer/songwriters who combine jazz, blues, folk and country music in the BirdHouse Acoustic Music series.

Barefoot on the theater's plain black set and oriental rug, Joseph performed for his second time in the BirdHouse series.

"While I know it's been a long week for many," said Robbie Bear, booking agent for the arts center, "coming here to a show and relaxing in this fashion is just so rewarding."

Joseph is on a two-week tour that has taken him through Illinois, Nebraska and Kansas, after the recent release of his third CD, "The King of Echo Park," which is about being a new parent, he said. His performance included songs from that album, as well as political, comedic and sentimental pieces.

"I take on a character voice to bring up big issues in a way that people will really hear me," Joseph said. "Humor is another way. If you can get people to laugh, they'll listen."

Joseph writes the music and lyrics for the majority of his songs. He said he also co-writes several of his pieces with other artists. He occasionally, but rarely, performs other artists' songs, he said.

He sells close to 10,000 records a year, and he used to perform in about 150 touring shows each year. Recently, that number has dropped to about 100, partly because of Joseph's new income from writing music for TV shows, but mostly due to his family, he said.

"I really don't like to be away from my boys that long," he said.

In his performance, Joseph played the guitar, the ukulele and the piano. The house lights were raised several times as he talked and joked with the audience, encouraging them to join in his songs more than once.

Many audience members said they enjoyed Joseph's performance.

"He makes it fun; that's for sure," audience member Sarah Blair said. "He puts his heart into it, and he's talented, too – what with all the different instruments he plays."

Another audience member, Theresa McCarty, said she was surprised at how much she enjoyed a performance of music that is not normally her style.

"It's really been just a pleasant surprise about how this has turned out to be," she said. "He's got nice writing talent."

McCarty wasn't the only person surprised. Joseph said a lot of his earlier opinions about Kansas and other states have changed since he started touring.

"I've found Kansas to be very surprising – in a good way," he said. "Being from California, it's very easy to become cynical about the Midwest, but I've really liked it here."

Joseph said he was pleased with his performance and was happy about the laughter and applause he received, he said.

"I had a good time performing, and the audience seemed to like it," he said. "But sometimes when you're up here, it's hard to know what everyone's really thinking."

The next performance in the BirdHouse series will be Dec. 2.

Bear described the next performer, Mark Erelli, as one with an intellectual and avante-cowboy style of music.

Tickets are available at the arts center, the Dusty Bookshelf, and Claflin Books and Copies.

THIS WEEK... A look at events that occurred during this week in history, other bizarre holidays, happenings

TODAY — National Saxophone Day

The saxophone is in the family of reed-sounded wind musical instruments invented by the Belgian instrument-maker Adolphe Sax in about 1840. The saxophone combines in its construction the single reed and mouthpiece of the clarinet, a metal body and a widened version of the conical bore of the oboe. The most common saxophones are the soprano, the alto, the tenor and the baritone, all of which have a compass of about two and a half octaves.

TUESDAY — 1991: Magic Johnson retires because of HIV

On this day in 1991, basketball legend Earvin "Magic" Johnson stuns the world by announcing his sudden retirement from the Los Angeles Lakers after testing positive for HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. At the time, many Americans viewed AIDS as a gay white man's disease. Johnson, left, is a heterosexual and was one of the first sports stars to go public about his HIV-positive status. Today, he has a foundation to educate people about HIV.

WEDNESDAY — 1887: Doc Holliday dies from tuberculosis

On this day, Doc Holliday — gunslinger, gambler and occasional dentist — dies from tuberculosis. Though he was perhaps most famous for his participation in the shootout at the O.K. Corral in Tombstone, Ariz., John Henry "Doc" Holliday earned his bad reputation well before that famous feud. Born in Georgia, Holliday was raised in the tradition of the southern gentleman. He earned his nickname when he graduated from the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery in 1872.

THURSDAY — 1971: Boy Scout leader murders his own family

John Emil List slaughters his entire family in their Westfield, N.J., home and then disappears. Though police quickly identified List as the most likely suspect in the murders, it took 18 years for them to locate him and close the case.

John List was an outwardly normal and successful father. A Sunday school teacher and Boy Scout troop leader, List was a strict disciplinarian who insisted his children follow extremely rigid rules. Unfortunately, things were not as in control as they appeared. List lost his accounting job when his company moved from the New Jersey area in 1971, and he had kept his employment situation a secret from his family.

FRIDAY — 1969: The debut of 'Sesame Street'

"Sesame Street," a pioneering TV show that would teach generations of young children the alphabet and how to count, makes its broadcast debut. "Sesame Street," with its memorable theme song ("Can you tell me how to get/How to get to 'Sesame Street'") went on to become the most widely viewed children's program in the world. It has aired in more than 120 countries. Since its inception, more than 74 million Americans have watched the show.

Source: History Channel; Photos: courtesy art.

KLINE | Incest, late-term abortions under investigation

Continued from Page 1

telephone and social security numbers.

The information that is included are questions the doctors asked the patients, like if the pregnancy was a result of rape, if the woman was harmed during the rape and the reason for the abortion, Jones said.

"The only people under investigation are rapists, abortion doctors if they perform late-term abortions, or failed to report a rape, also the second doctor who allowed the late abortion to occur – not the women or the children," Jones said.

The Shawnee County District Court received the subpoenaed records from the abortion clinics on Aug. 5. The records were released Oct. 24.

Jones said Kline confirmed the potential crimes under investigation include rape by force or fear, failure to report suspicion of child sexual abuse (child rape and rape by force or fear) by the abortion clinic, incest, falsifying information by abortion doctors and violations of the state's late-term abortion statute.

In Kansas, the only reason for a late abortion would be danger to the life of the mother, Jones said.

Angela Hubler, director of the Women's Studies Program, said this is an issue women should be concerned about.

"It is a privacy issue between a doctor and a woman," Hubler said. "This shows we can't take that relationship for granted."

Under a revised interpretation of child-abuse reporting statutes proposed by Kline in 2003, counselors, therapists and doctors would have to report what they hear to state authorities. This assumes any sexual activity involving people under age 16 constitutes child abuse, even if both parties are consenting minors.

VOTE | Efforts fail to mobilize Hispanic population importance to many voters. In fact, many polls of the election's top issues fail to mention immigration altogether.

Continued from Page 1

Even in immigrant-heavy areas of Kansas, like Garden City, the issue is not a large factor in campaigns, said Tim Cruz, who is running as a Democrat for the Kansas State Board of Education.

Cruz, former Garden City mayor, said as part of his campaign, he and the Kansas Democrat Party have helped people register to vote, but he has not received much feedback from voters on immigration issues.

"I've only had one person call me on that and ask me my stance... as I told him, the state school board doesn't set the standards for who can go to school and who can't," he said.

On a deeper level, Hispanic voters might feel disillusioned with the election process, giving those attempting to mobilize voters an additional obstacle.

Clemente Herrera, senior in architecture, planning and design, said efforts are being made, but the results are lacking.

Herrera said efforts at government levels, like translating ballots into Spanish, also have been somewhat unsuccessful.

But when immigrants compose, by some estimates, 12 percent of the population, Herrera said a mass awakening of Hispanics as a political group is unavoidable.

"That issue will arise even stronger in a time to come," he said.

BUSH | Republicans emphasize 'Get Out the Vote'

Continued from Page 1

unpatriotic; I'm just saying they're wrong," he said. "If I didn't think we would succeed, I would pull our troops out."

The incumbent Republican government is depending heavily on voter turnout to maintain its control of Congress. Across the nation, volunteers are using the strategy G.O.T.V., or Get Out the Vote, to increase Republican support.

"The message is to get out and vote," Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., said. "These elections are very tight, and now it's all a turnout issue."

In Kansas, the Republican party has a distinct advantage in numbers.

Forty-seven percent of Kansas voters are registered Republicans, while 20 percent are registered Democrats.

The atmosphere of the evening was not that of a traditional political rally.

Painted faces and homemade support signs were scattered throughout the arena while cheerleaders danced onstage to upbeat rock. An elephant mascot moseyed through the crowd handing pom-poms to children.

Instead of gracing the stage to the traditional tune of "Hail to the Chief," Bush strolled out as Van Halen's "Right Now" blasted from the sound system. Bush did not wear a tie, and he looked casual and comfortable as he walked across the stage and raised Ryun's hand.

Ryun commended Bush for his kind words and said he was grateful to have the president support his campaign just 48 hours before the election.

"It was wonderful to have him come," Ryun said. "He really highlighted the difference between Republicans and Democrats. We're for lower taxes, we're for national defense, and I thought he did a great job of rallying Republicans."

Ryun, whose second district includes Manhattan, said he wants to send a clear message to K-State students.

"I want to tell the students that I'm for them," Ryun said. "I've worked on making sure that they will have a better future.

"If you allow greater taxation and allow those kinds of ideas to take precedence, you're going to make it a lot more difficult for students once they leave school to be able to provide for their families. Lower taxes are a part of that."

Boyda, Ryun's Democratic opponent, said having Bush in Kansas might actually increase support for her campaign.

"We're Kansas, and we'll welcome him, hopefully graciously, but I think people are going to send the message to Washington, D.C., that we've had enough," Boyda said during a rally on Sunday.

As the rally drew to a close, Bush emphasized the important choice voters will make Tuesday.

"In 48 hours, Americans are going to the box, and they have a clear choice to make," Bush said.

"If you believe in those people that criticize their opponents and offer no plan at all, vote Democrat. If you believe it is necessary to stay the course and lay the foundation of peace for generations to come, you vote Republican."

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword. . .
Now that's something you can bank on.

Crimpers Hair Studio
November anniversary specials
31 YEARS IN AGGIEVILLE
$50 FOIL HILITE ADD ANOTHER COLOR AND CUT $20
$16 LIP AND BROW COMBO
$30 SET OF NAILS
$30 BACK WAX
$50 BASIC MANICURE/ PEDICURE COMBO
$45 BRAZILIAN
$65 ONE HOUR MASSAGE 4 TWO $37 ONE HOUR MASSAGE
Hair Studio
539-7621

OVERSEAS TEACHING WORKSHOP
All students welcome. Learn the benefits of teaching in a foreign country.
7 p.m., November 7
Union 212
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career
www.k-state.edu/ces

Balancing national security with civil liberties in a post-9/11 world
Judith Miller
Best-selling author and former investigative reporter for The New York Times
10:30 a.m.
Friday, Nov. 10, 2006
Forum Hall — K-State Student Union
Kansas State University
Free and open to the public
Miller is the keynote speaker for Community Readiness Communications: Accurate Messages in Times of Crisis, sponsored by the McCormick Tribune Foundation, the A. Q. Miller School of Journalism & Mass Communications and the Huck Boyd National Center for Community Media

Union Program Council
upcoming events
Monday, November 6
Festival of Nations: Pianist Vienna Teng
Union Courtyard • noon - 1pm
Featuring Korean culture and free food.
Tuesday, November 7
UPC All Meeting
Union Station • 5:30 pm
Come help plan events!!
Comedian: Michael Ian Black
McCain Auditorium • 8pm
TICKETS NOW AVAILABLE: 532 - 6428
McCain Box Office • 11 am-5 pm, Mon-Fri
Little Theatre Box Office • 11:30 am-1:30 pm, Mon-Fri
Advance Day of Show
Students with ID $10 $15
Non students $15 $20
*Prices include all taxes & fees
Wednesday, November 8
K-State Idol "Search for K-State's Most Talented Performer!"
Forum Hall • 7 pm
Friday, November 10
Film: Idlewild starring Outkast
Forum Hall • 8 p, $1
Also shown: Saturday, November 11 • 7 & 9:30 pm, $2
Sunday, November 12 • 8 pm, $2
After Hours: Comedian Andrew Kennedy
Union Courtyard • 10 pm
Check him out at www.andrewkennedylive.com.
College Bowl Tournament
Registration due by 4 pm in UPC office.
William T. Kemper Art Gallery
Darryl Heikes, Former White House Photographer and K-State graduate
October 18 - November 8
301 K-State Student Union
UPC phone - 532-6571
www.k-state.edu/upc
UPC hotline - 532-6572

Have you ever had to convince everyone that working on the Homecoming Float would be "fun"?
Our paper is a lot more fun to work with than toilet paper.
Collegian Advertising Sales- We're not selling toiletries
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes. Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL or email jharmon@ksu.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL, FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

Advertise in GAMEDAY
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

Ichabods give Wildcats early test

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State men's basketball team did not look like a Bob Huggins-coached team Saturday night against Washburn University.

The Wildcats were out-rebounded, out-shot and out-hustled for much of the game.

In front of a crowd of nearly 10,000, the Wildcats finally defeated the Washburn Ichabods 94-90 in triple overtime.

"We got out-rebounded," Huggins said. "If we don't make shots, that means rebounds are available, and we have to find ways to get them."

K-State was out-rebounded 62-59 and struggled from beyond the arc, connecting on only 4-of-30 three-point attempts.

The Ichabods, who lost to Kansas by 30 points only two days earlier, led by as many as nine points during the first half, but they could not make the winning shots in regulation or overtime.

Led by Paul Byers, a native of Marysville, Kan., the Ichabods had an answer for every lead the Wildcats could muster.

"We were playing very tough," Byers said, who led the Ichabods with 26 points. "We came into half and said, 'Now it's time to get serious. We have a real chance of doing this, and it's time to buckle down.'"

David Hoskins led the way for K-State, finishing with 29 points and 10 rebounds.

Hoskins left the game with three minutes to go in the third overtime, going down on the floor with leg cramps. Huggins said Hoskins received I.V. treatments after the game to re-hydrate.

Online

■ Find out how the equestrian team finished, how the volleyball team fared against Texas A&M, how the women's basketball team's did against Emporia State on Sunday, and how the fans felt about the men's program prior to the game.

www.kstatecollegian.com

"Dave competes," Huggins said. "Dave wants to win, and I got to get Dave to try to pull a couple of guys with him."

Cartier Martin contributed 19 points.

The leading scorer and three-point shooter from last season made only 1-of-10 three-point attempts, but he made 10 free throws, including four in the last minute of play to close out the win.

"It wasn't a surprise to me that he didn't make any shots," Huggins said. "But we have to win when he doesn't make shots."

K-State also had problems establishing an inside game.

"What post play?" Huggins said. "I'm trying to find it. It's hard to have post play; I bet we could put walruses out there that might be able to catch it better than some of those guys can catch it."

Luis Colon, Darren Kent and Serge Afeli combined for 10 points and 13 rebounds in 47 minutes of play.

At times, Huggins even elected to play the 6-foot-7 Martin and the 6-foot-5 Hoskins in the post.

Jason Bennett, the 7-foot-3 freshman, did not play in the game.

"That's totally up to Jason. I believe that you come to work every day," Huggins said.

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
Men's basketball coach Bob Huggins yells at his team during the second half of K-State's 94-90 triple-overtime win over Division-II Washburn Saturday night at Bramlage Coliseum.

3rd 'Praise, Power and Prayer' unites denominations for worship

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

They were joined together for one reason – to praise the Lord.

Workers of Wisdom presented the third-annual "Praise, Power and Prayer" event Saturday evening in All Faiths Chapel.

This event was created three years ago to unite Christians from all over campus and the Manhattan community, regardless of their denomination, Jahvelle Rhone, president of WOW, said.

Rhone said it is important for Christians to go outside of their comfort zone to break racial stereotypes.

"We are bridging the gap between races," she said.

The Christian ministries involved were Manahattan Christian Fellowship, United Black Voices, InterVarsity Christian Fellowship, Prajin and Christian sorority Beta Sigma Chi.

"Some people think that all black churches do is yell, rock and clap, and some think that whites have silent, held-back worship," Rhone said.

Rhone said the event is all about unity.

"This fellowship gives us an avenue for every person, regardless of their background to praise the Lord," Bailey Embry, president of Prajin, said. "We are all praising the Lord; we just do it in different ways."

Jared Miller, president of InterVarsity, said the mingling of the ministries provides a learning experience.

"We learn from each other," he said. "We praise the same God, even though it may look different to the outside."

WOW and InterVarsity have other joint activities in which they participate, including nationwide conferences and Urbana student missions, a mission trip to share their faith to people in Africa who are infected with or have family members with HIV and AIDS, Bryon Williams, administrator of WOW, said.

The speaker was Rev. Cedric Hook, pastor of New Harvest Church of God in Christ in Kansas City, Kan.

The key scripture was Pslams 133:1, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

The speaker's message highlighted Christians being one in spirit in one Lord and how a Christian's mouth and heart should agree with their actions.

He also addressed unity.

"You can't have unity without peace and understanding," Hook said.

He said there are three steps of change: awareness, commitment and practice.

"This event was good, because it brings different races together; we all are the same, even though we receive Jesus in different ways," said Eston Bell, member of United Black Voices.

ATTENTION Faculty and Staff
Get professional objective advice regarding your Regents' Retirement Plan.
Have it professionally managed by a local registered investment advisor
Kramer Capital Management
601 Leavenworth - Manhattan
785-539-0110
www.rickkramer.com
email with subject: "Regent Plan" to rgkramer@cox.net

GET NOTICED..... & stand out from the crowd.
ATTENTION FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORES
GAIN INTERVIEW SKILLS AND BUILD YOUR RESUME!
PRESENTATION:
Jack Taylor, Assistant Director of Admissions
"The Importance of getting involved & making connections"
BREAK OUT SESSION:
Jim Habenberg, Prestigious Scholarship Advisor "Applications"
BREAK OUT SESSION:
Mary Hale Tolar, Associate Director of Educational Leadership "Interviews"
BREAK OUT SESSION:
K-State Career and Employment Services "Resumes"
Self-Advocacy Workshop
Hosted by Alpha Kappa Sigma Music Society
November 8 • 3:30-5 p.m. Union 213
November 9 • 3:30-5 p.m. Union 206
SIGN UP BY MONDAY, NOV. 6 BY E-MAILING MAAJO@KSU.EDU OR AMY2@KSU.EDU

Tom HAWK
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Kathe Hart Treasurer

PAT'S PAWN & GUN SHOP, INC.
WE BUY, SELL, AND TRADE
GUNS
SMITH & WESSON
HANDGUNS • RIFLES
COLT • RUGER
SHOTGUNS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.- 6 p.m.
SAT 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
506 Riley St • Ogden
539-0151

we're serious this time.

At 50, you'll want to show everyone what you looked like in college.
So, come get your free yearbook picture taken:
Wednesday, Nov. 8th
Union 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Kramer Dining Center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.
Thursday, Nov. 9th
Union 4:30 - 6 p.m.
Derby Dining Center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.
Friday, Nov. 10th
Union 4:30 - 6 p.m.
Vet Med
It will also prove that you actually did attend college.
Your book. Your story.
royalpurple yearbook&dvd

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Hungry?
A large 1-Topping Big New Yorker Pizza for $7.99 would fix that.
This coupon is located in the coupon section of your Campus Phone Book.
Not Valid without Phone Book Coupon

RE-ELECT SYDNEY CARLIN
Representing You
66TH DISTRICT
Your Neighbor, Your Friend, Your Advocate
•She has supported State Higher Education Funding to curb tuition increases
•As Ranking Member of the Higher Education Committee, Sydney built a coalition to protect KSU Funding For:
– VET Med, Research, Extension and Building Maintenance
•As a member of the state House Economic Development Committee, Sydney helped design the Economic Growth Act
– Creating Quality Jobs for KSU Graduates in Research, Bio-Sciences and Agriculture
– Stimulating Entrepreneurship in Kansas with the Angel Investment Network
•"Stands Up" for Kansas State University Students
– Funding for KSU Building Maintenance – Faculty and Employee raises
– Expanded Student Loan Programs – Enhanced Student Health Plans
Sydney Carlin is Endorsed by the Citizen For Higher Education, EPAC (Educating All Children), KNEA, The political arm of KASB and USA-Kansas, Biz-PAC, the greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce PAC.
www.sydneycarlin.com
Paid for by the committee to Re-Elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District, John E. Carlin, Treasurer.

Voice of K-State football, pets headline Family Day events

By Eric Davis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students and their families were given a chance to see what K-State has to offer on Saturday at the K-State Alumni Center.

"A Taste of K-State was an opportunity for high schoolers and their families to see what makes K-State so special," said Nick Sutcliffe, senior in marketing and finance.

Many of those who attended paid $10 to sample foods at the booths of several organizations.

There were tables set up by various colleges, including the College of Engineering, which had its solar car on display.

Also on display was information about the Jardine Redevelopment Project.

Near the solar car were three coolers, each filled with various energy drinks. Mike Thompson, junior in kinesiology, sampled Amp Energy Drink.

"I can see why they are giving it away. This stuff is terrible," Thompson said.

The voice of K-State football, Dave Lewis, also was present. He played music and announced the K-State football game as he watched it on a television behind him.

As families walked out the doors, they were greeted by Nova the Beagle, who represented the College of Veterinary Medicine. Nova is a part of Pets and People, a club of College of Veterinary Medicine students who take pets into hospitals and nursing homes in an attempt to bring cheer to those who cannot otherwise see animals.

Leah Wellman, Nova's owner and a fifth-year student in veterinary medicine, said she had a difficult time answering questions as Nova rummaged through a bag of treats.

"The dogs are really just a shameless ploy to get people to stop by our table," Wellman said.

Sally Porter, mother of student John Porter, freshman in mechanical engineering, talks with Alison Wheatley, assistant dean for the College of Arts and Sciences, at one of the booths for "A Taste of K-State" Saturday evening at the K-State Alumni Center.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

150 Sublease

SUBLEASER NEEDED AS SOON AS POSSIBLE $375 PER MONTH. Great Furnished Apartment, will have your own bathroom. Call 785-317-6384.

785 532 6555

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

LOST: DISPOSABLE camera, Saturday, 10/28, north of football stadium. Not valuable, just sentimental, almost full. If found, please return to Kedzie 105.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. One block from campus. $300 per month plus one-half utilities. Call Alissa 913-593-5212.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January in two-bedroom apartment one block from campus. Call 913-522-7094, ask for Megan.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January or before through May. Four-bedroom house close to campus, small pets ok. $300 plus 1/4 utilities. 785-313-3702.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for five-bedroom house. January through May. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 940-594-1481.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Living with guys in a five-bedroom house, two blocks from campus. Rent $288. Call Matt 913-908-7097.

SUBLEASER NEEDED next semester! Three-bedroom apartment, one and one-half bath, $750/ month plus electricity. One-half block from campus. Contact: riley2@ksu.edu.

SUBLEASER WANTED for Catholic women's house. Two blocks from campus. $310/ month includes: utilities, food, rent. Live in dorms? May work deal! Call 785-366-6342.

ADVERTISE.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the restaurant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part-time, 4 hour shifts or full-time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

FULL-TIME DELIVERY/ warehouse work. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

310 Help Wanted

JOIN CAMP SOUTHWOODS AND HAVE THE BEST SUMMER OF YOUR LIFE! Southwoods is a co-ed residential camp in New York's Adirondack Mountains. Southwoods is seeking ENTHUSIATIC, ENERGETIC, AND FUN LOVING individuals to make an impact on a child's life. Positions/ internships are available in the areas of Counselors, Outdoor Adventure, Activity Coaches & Waterfront Staff. Benefits include salary, room & board, laundry, & the best summer of your life. For more information & to complete an application visit our website www.southwoods.com or please contact us, 1-888-449-3357.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for line cook positions, must have previous experience. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for servers, lunchtime availability preferred. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.ksu.edu for position and application information.

PART-TIME SALES person. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

PITA PIT, late night delivery drivers wanted, good pay plus great tips. In-store crew positions also available. Apply in person, 1131 Moro, Aggieville.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

310 Help Wanted

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full-time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

RAMADA PLAZA, soon to be Holiday Inn at the Campus is now hiring: Night Bellman, Banquet Staff, Morning Restaurant Server and Morning Cook for weekends, Night Auditor, Maintenance and Sales Coordinator. Apply in person at 1641 Anderson Ave. 785-539-7531.

RANDALL'S FORMAL Wear is looking for a part-time sales person with outstanding customer service skills. Flexible hours great starting wage and commission program. If you would like to join our team stop by and fill out an application at 100 Manhattan Town Center Mall. 785-770-9011.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

310 Help Wanted

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

2004 CHEVY Cavalier, silver, 34,500 miles, $8500 under warranty, great student car. Sleeper sofa, $100, tan recliner, $50. Call 785-317-1985.

KNOW WHEN someone enters your apartment, dorm, or bedroom. Security system that calls your cell phone. Simple one time $50 solution. www.1lowbuy.com.

looking for a job?
CHECK THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

			8		7	5	9
	9		4	6		3	2	7
1	2
		8		5		4		2
	4		2		8		1
2		3		7		6
							6	3
7	3	2		1	5		8
	8	1	3		9

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
785.532.6555

ADVERTISING Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 Internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Breakthrough performer

James Franklin — offensive coordinator

After struggling somewhat in the beginning of the season, Franklin and his offense finally seem to be clicking. Franklin found a nice balance between run and pass plays and even managed 188 yards on the ground against the league's second-ranked rush defense.

Turning point

Fourth quarter: Jordy Nelson scores on a 74-yard touchdown catch.

After Colorado closed the gap to 20-14, Nelson turned a simple 5-yard out route into a game-changing touchdown. Facing a crucial third-and-four from their own 26-yard line, Josh Freeman dumped the ball off to Nelson, who broke a few tackles and then used blocks from Leon Patton and Yamon Figurs to go all the way to the end zone.

By the numbers

439

The 439 yards of total offense were K-State's highest output of the season. It was also the most Colorado has given up all year, more than the likes of Missouri, Georgia, Arizona State or Colorado State could muster on the Buffaloes.

Game MVP

True freshman quarterback Josh Freeman had easily the best start of his career. Freeman connected on 22-of-26 passes, or 84.6 percent, which was the highest completion percentage for a Wildcat quarterback since Brian Kavanagh hit 86.4 percent of his passes in 1996 against Indiana State. Freeman finished the day with 251 yards and two touchdowns. The two scores gave him three on the season and were the first two to K-State wide receivers (Jordy Nelson and Yamon Figurs).

Freeman flawless in victory

BOULDER, Colo. – Was that Peyton Manning or Josh Freeman out here Saturday against Colorado?

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

The true freshman quarterback had the best game of his young career, completing 22-of-26 passes for 251 yards and a career-high two touchdowns.

He looked outstanding as he led his team to a 34-21 victory over the Buffaloes.

Freeman was finding receivers with deadly accuracy all game, and Colorado did not have an answer for the Wildcat offense, which racked up a season-high 439 yards of total offense. He was 18-of-19 going into the fourth quarter and had a string of 15 consecutive completed passes that spanned midway through the first quarter to the beginning of the fourth quarter.

His passer rating of 191.2, and his 84.6 completion percentage was just shy of the K-State record of 86.4, set in 1996 by Brian Kavanagh against Indiana State.

Freeman's decision-making all game was incredible, and only one of his four incompletions was his fault. He easily could have been 23 of 24, and here's why.

1ST INCOMPLETION TO RECEIVER FIGURS

On the first drive of the game, Freeman tried to hook up with Yamon Figurs on a 10-yard comeback route, but Figurs dropped the pass on what appeared to be an interference penalty uncalled by the referees. Figurs' defender got to him too early, causing him to miss the catch, but Freeman responded by completing his next 15 passes.

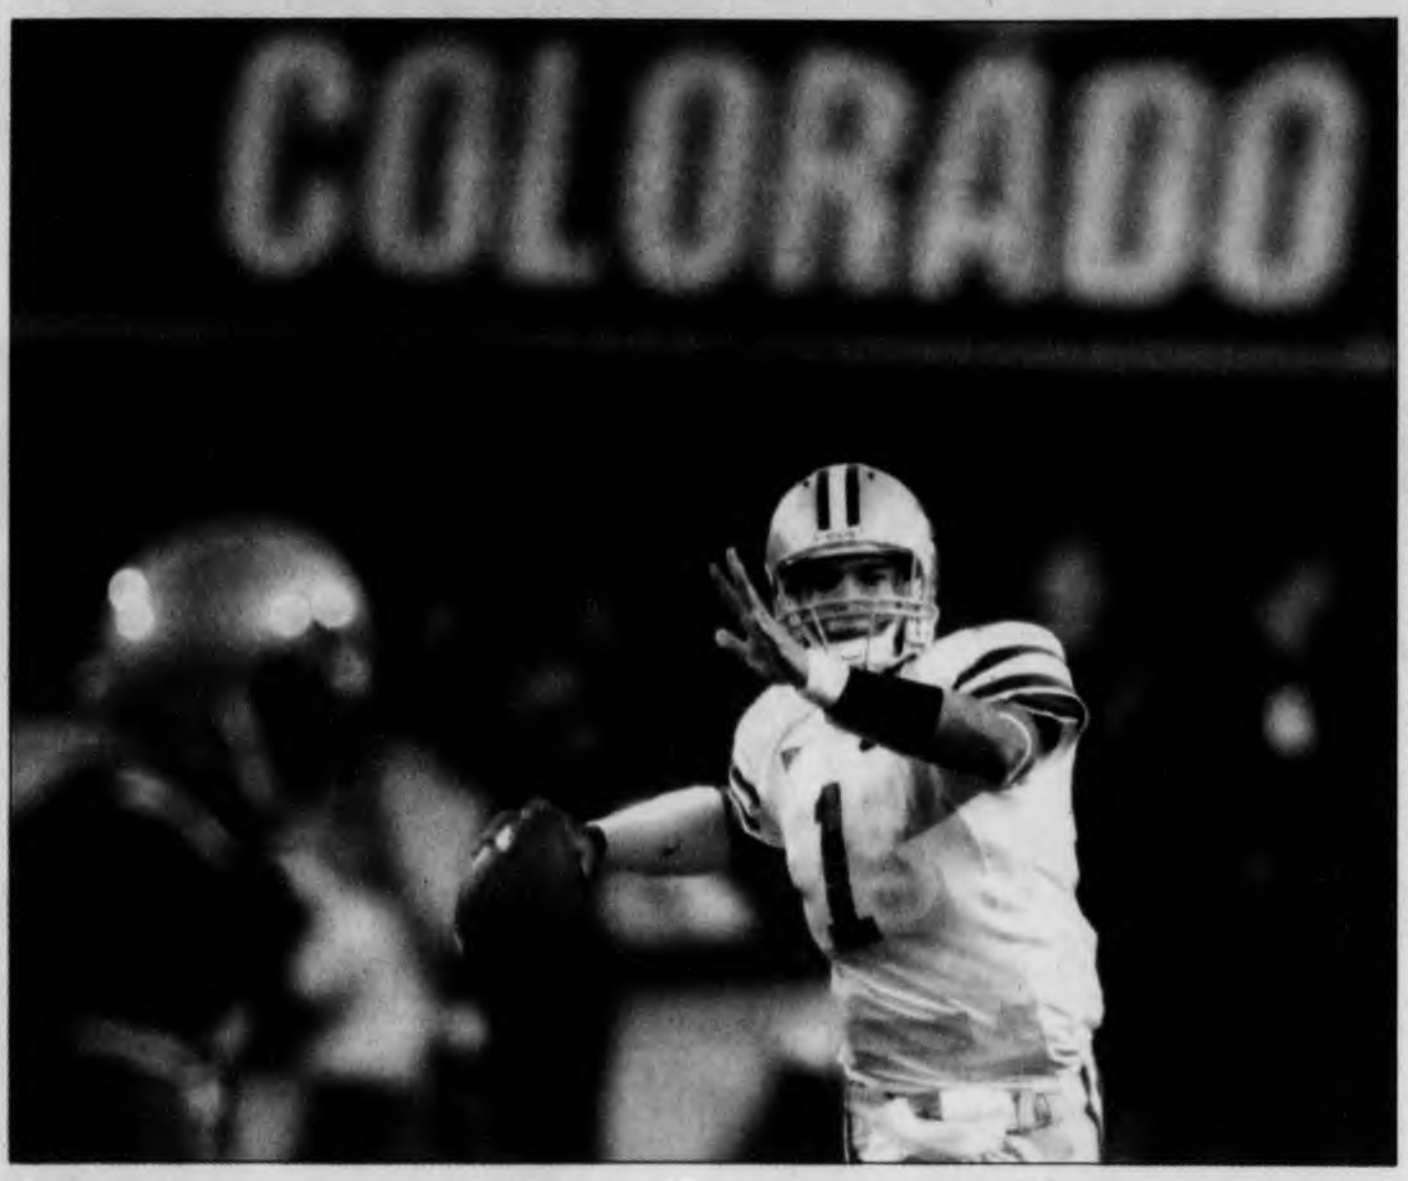
2ND INCOMPLETION

Freeman rolled out to his right and threw the ball out of the back of the end zone after seeing all of his receivers were covered by Buffalo defenders. He opted not to risk throwing an interception or take a sack, and he knew just throwing it away would give his team a chance at a field goal, which kicker Jeff Snodgrass made on the next play.

3RD INCOMPLETION TO TIGHT END MASTRUD

Prince called a play-action pass that was run to perfection early in the fourth. The defense bit on the play and tight end Jeron Mastrud was wide open on the right side of the field. Freeman hit him in the chest with the ball, but Mastrud dropped the pass.

4TH INCOMPLETION TO TIGHT END NORWOOD



The Wildcats were running out the clock in the final drive of the game, and Prince decided to try to pick up a few more yards by calling another play-action. Rashaad Norwood had three defenders around him, but Freeman decided to try to rifle the ball in between them. He overshot his tight end, and the ball went right through the outstretched arms of a Colorado defender.

Freeman is starting to come into his own, but don't get too excited yet, because the true test awaits him on Saturday when No. 4-ranked Texas comes to town to play K-State in a nationally televised game.

Cedrique Flemming is a senior in print journalism and business. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

K-State 34, Colorado 21

Busted Buffaloes

Left: K-State quarterback Josh Freeman looks down field for an open receiver. Freeman completed 22-of-26 passes for 251 yards to lead the Wildcats to their sixth win of the season.

Christopher Hanewinckel
COLLEGIAN

Below: Jordy Nelson runs 74 yards and earns a touchdown Saturday in the Wildcats' 34-21 win over Colorado. Nelson finished the game with 117 yards, helping the Wildcats improve their record to 6-4 and 3-3 in Big 12 Conference play.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

K-State ousts Colorado 34-21, becomes bowl-eligible for 1st time since 2003

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

BOULDER, Colo. – Greg Wafford couldn't have asked for a better birthday present.

Wafford – an offensive tackle for the K-State football team – celebrated his 21st birthday Saturday by helping make the Wildcats bowl eligible for the first time since the 2003 season.

"This was a good one, because I've never had a football game on my birthday," Wafford said. "And it was on TV, so my family was watching back home."

Wafford was part of an offense that is finding its groove at the right time. K-State (6-4, 3-3 Big 12) totaled a season-high 439 yards of offense and beat Colorado 34-21 Saturday in Boulder.

K-State scored 17 points in both the second and fourth quarters. By reaching the six-win mark, the team qualifies for a bowl game for the first time since it went to the 2004 Fiesta Bowl.

Online

■ Early in the season, the offense was blamed for the Wildcats' struggles. After a convincing performance on Saturday at Colorado, there's a different story.

www.kstatecollegian.com

Quarterback Josh Freeman had the best start of his young career, completing 22-of-26 passes for 251 yards and two touchdowns. At one point, Freeman completed 15 straight passes, but he said he had no idea what kind of game he was having statistically.

"I was just paying attention to the score," Freeman said. "I didn't know anything about my stats. I was just trying to score."

Freeman certainly helped provide the Wildcats with plenty of scores, and some of them came at crucial times.

K-State dominated the first half and went to the break with a comfortable 17-0 lead, but the Buffaloes (1-9, 1-5 Big 12) responded at the beginning of the second half. Then, early in the fourth quarter, Colorado quarterback Bernard Jackson scored on a 62-yard touchdown run to close the gap to 20-14.

"In the recent past, we might have put our head down and been like, 'Oh, here we go again,'" defensive tackle Quintin Echols said. "But this year it's like, 'OK, they got one. Let's suck it up and get back.'"

The offense took the field needing to respond to help change the momentum. Facing a third-and-four from their own 26-yard line, Freeman connected with wide receiver Jordy Nelson on a 5-yard completion. Nelson broke the first tackle and then took it 74 yards for a touchdown.

The score gave the Wildcats a 27-14 lead, but also gave the offense some much-needed confidence.

"The defense, they've been carrying us at the beginning of the season, so we're just trying to play our game and help the defense out," running back James Johnson said. "We're getting more and more comfortable, because the offensive line is getting better every week. The offensive line is the key."

Johnson and his backfield mate Leon Patton helped provide the Wildcats with 188 yards on the ground.

The win was the first for K-State in Boulder since 2000 and the first conference road victory since 2004, when the Wildcats won 35-24 at Missouri.

"I almost forgot what it feels like (to win on the road), but it feels great," Echols said.

Analysis

K-State runs ball, contains quarterback for 1 half

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

BOULDER, Colo. – Despite the 1-8 record Colorado brought into Saturday's game, the Buffaloes were still a dangerous team to K-State.

Colorado's ability to shut down the run could have pressured true freshman quarterback Josh Freeman into making mistakes. On the other side of the ball, the Wildcats' priority was containing the Buffaloes' mobile quarterback, Bernard Jackson.

K-STATE RUSHING ATTACK

If there was one thing the Buffaloes had proven in their first nine games, it was that they could shut down the run. Colorado was ranked second in the Big 12 Conference in run defense, allowing less than 100 yards per game.

The Wildcats struggled to run the ball early in the game, picking up only 6 yards rushing on eight first-quarter carries. But offensive coordinator James Franklin and coach Ron Prince stuck to their game plan of running the ball, and the Wildcats finished the half with 68 rushing yards on 22 carries.

K-State also put its effective rushing attack to work late in the game. The Wildcats' 120 second-half rushing yards helped protect their lead.

Freeman helped, completing all but one of his passes in the first quarter.

"I thought we did a really good job of play-calling, which put Josh in a position to make some passes that were not only high-percentage, but it gave us some opportunity for a run after the catch," Prince said.

SLOWING DOWN JACKSON

The Wildcat defense kept Jackson from running wild – for one half.

K-State knew exactly how the Buffaloes planned to use Jackson. Every time he began to run in the first half, he was met by several Wildcats.

Jackson did find limited success throwing the ball during play-action passes or bootlegs, but he ended up overthrowing his receivers by several yards on obvious passing situations.

After the half, Jackson looked like a different player, rushing for 92 yards and throwing for another 83.

Colorado did not sway from its first-half game plan, but unlike the first 30 minutes of the game, the Buffaloes' offense thrived. What changed was the Wildcats' tackling.

"They were working a little harder, but we were just missing tackles," defensive tackle Quintin Echols said. "I know that I missed a tackle in the backfield – missed two tackles actually."

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Tuesday, November 7, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 57

INSIDE

Research shows there are many risks associated with caffeine.

The Edge, Page 10

Plugged in 2006

Early surveys show young voters show up in increasing numbers to voice opinions on Election Day

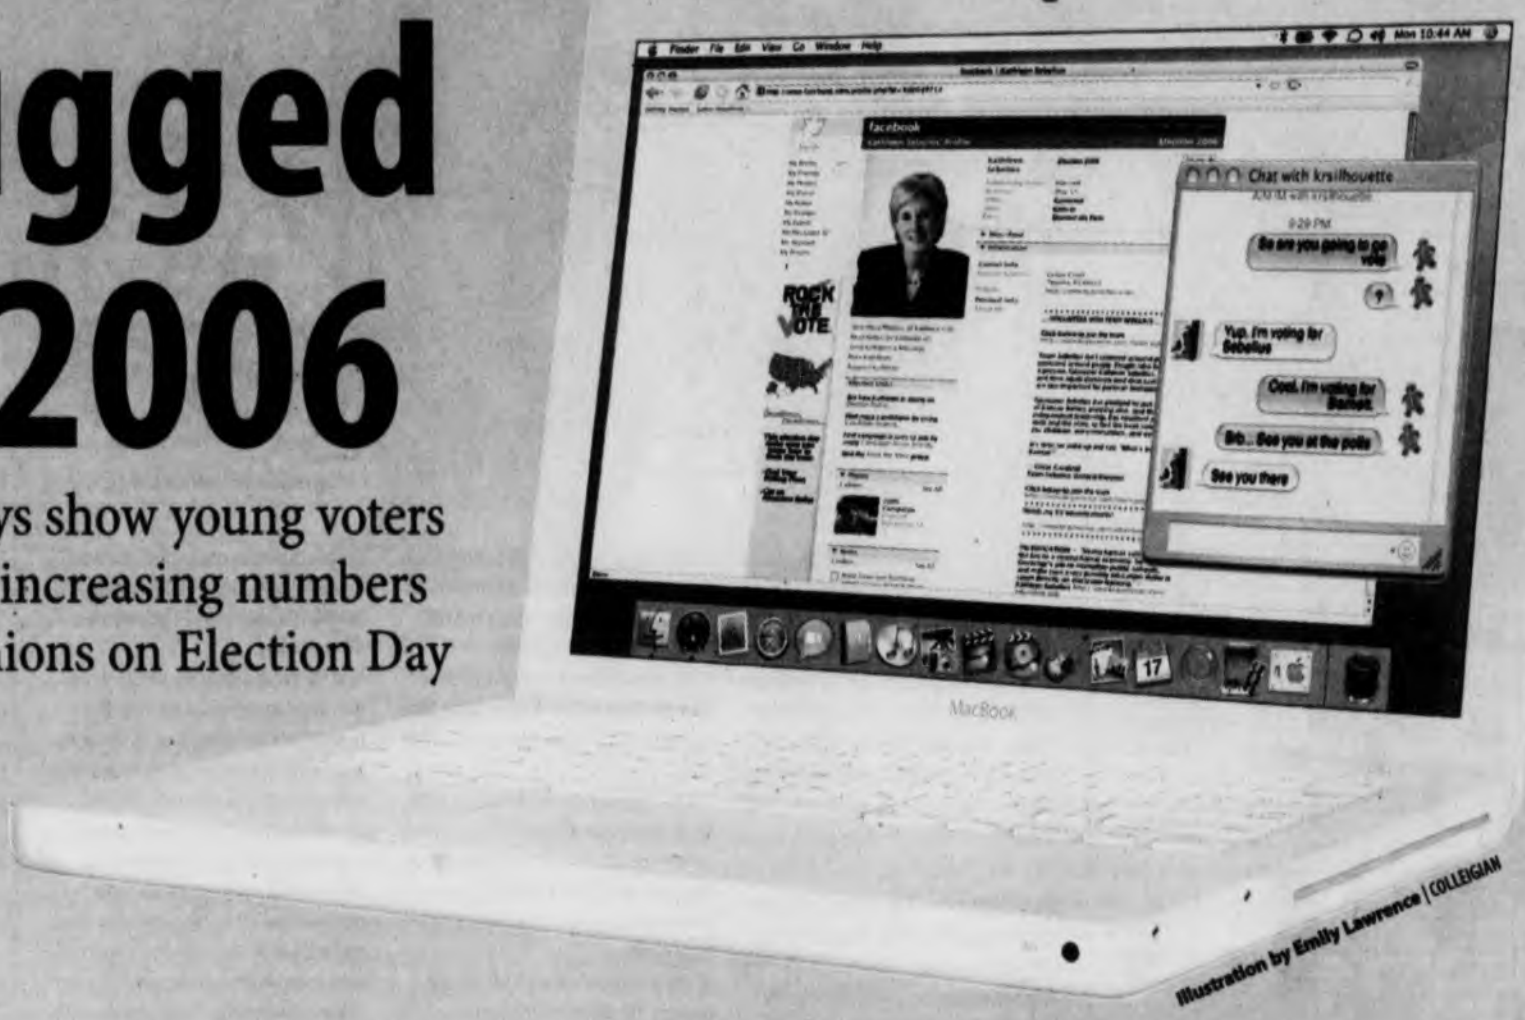


Illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Today is Election Day, and young voters are likely to make a strong showing at the polls.

Though history says young people are disengaged, recent studies show 5 million more young adults voted 2004 than in 2000, according to a report from the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

Though the turnout might not reach that number in this year's midterm election, the surge could be close to that of the 1994 election, the last midterm election to follow a similar increase in youth voting.

According to Quick Facts on Young Voters, 2006, 22 percent of young adults voted in the most recent midterm election in 2002. In 1994, 26 percent of 18- to 29-year-olds voted.

"I think it's a very crucial election, so those are good numbers to hear," said Aaron Apel, president of KSU Young Democrats. "A lot of people realize how important this election is. I think they actually realize that they can make an impact for the future in what direction our country is taking."

Vote today

- Registered voters can cast their ballots from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. today.
- To find out where you need to vote, type in your address at https://myvoteinfo.voteks.org.
- First-time voters will be required to show identification. Acceptable forms of identification include driver's license or non-driver's ID card, bank statement, paycheck, government check, utility bill and other government documents like Medicare or Medicaid documents, military ID, student ID or a passport.

Apel said he thinks part of the increase is due to the issues involved in the election, like Iraq, immigration and tuition rates.

"I think it's not necessarily an increase in saying, 'Let's go vote,'" he said. "I think it's more of the political climate. People feel more responsibility."

Marcus Hernandez, KSU College Republicans member, said he has heard students talking about today's elections more than usual.

"People are saying they need to go home and vote," he said. "I think that definitely the war in Iraq has had a lot to do with people thinking they need to vote or not."

He said students ambivalent about voting should recall the Iraqi elections last year.

"I would ask them to take a look at Iraq last year, with the country being able to vote for the first time in elections, and think about how they were excited to be free to be able to vote," Hernandez said. "We need to think about what we went through to get that right."

A study by the Center for Information and Research on Civic Learning and Engagement also shows more young people are involved in their communities.

In the last year, 36 percent of people ages 15-25 have volunteered, almost 20 percent have been involved in community issues, and nearly 25 percent have raised money for charity, according to the study, which was conducted from April 27 to June 11, 2005, and sampled 1,700 people ages 15-25.

Despite the increased level of civic engagement, the data show two-thirds of young people are disengaged and 20 percent are not involved in any type of civic participation.

Among young citizens, African-American youth are the most politically engaged racial or ethnic group, the study found. They are the most likely to vote, belong to political groups, donate money and participate in campaigns.

Asian-Americans, on the other hand, are the most civically engaged; they volunteer, work on community problems and sign petitions more than other groups. However, they also are the least likely to vote. Only 20 percent of Asian-American youth ages 20-25 said they were regular voters.

The same study showed voters were jaded when it came to government. There has been a 20-percent increase in young Americans who say "government is always wasteful and inefficient" since 2002, the study found, though a majority of Americans still believe government should do more to solve problems.

Students said their votes carry extra weight in some of Kansas' close races.

"It really is going to come down to every single vote," Apel said. "It's going to be a very interesting day."

By the numbers

40.7 million voters ages 18-29

20 million voters ages 66-77

21 percent of the population composes eligible voters ages 18-29

23 percent decrease of young citizens who are white between 1972 and 2000

10 percent increase of young citizens who are Hispanic between 1976 and 2000

Morrison leads Kline in polls of attorney general race

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Democrat Paul Morrison led the polls in the race for Kansas attorney general as of Monday, edging out Republican incumbent Phill Kline.

Morrison, Johnson County district attorney, was ahead of Kline 56 percent to 43 percent, according to a SurveyUSA poll conducted exclusively for KCTV-TV Kansas City and KWCH-TV Wichita, according to a recent news release.

These results are identical to those posted three weeks earlier, though Kline led for a short time.

One of this race's critical debates is over the abortion records Kline subpoenaed to investigate crimes.

"The candidates have been trying to frame this issue in the way that benefits them the most," said Joe Aistrup, head of the Department of Political Science.

"Morrison wants to frame the issue as a privacy issue," Aistrup said. "As such, government should not invade a person's private medical records unless it is investigating a specific crime for which it has probable cause. When framed in this manner, Morrison appeals to a broad cross-section of voters, including both liberals and conservatives."

Morrison has told media that Kline's requests are an invasion of privacy.

"Regardless of your position on abortion, Phill Kline's inquisition into our most private medical records is a serious invasion of Kansans' right to medical privacy," said Morrison in an interview. "Kline will claim it was about punishing child rape, but in reality, the vast majority of the records he requested were those of adult women."

Aistrup said Kline appeals to parents.

"Kline wants to frame the issue within the context of investigating possible violations of statutory rape," Aistrup said. "Thus, he frames his actions as trying to protect children from sexual predators. When the issue is framed this way, Kline appeals to a broad cross-section of voters, including, but not limited to, women and men who are parents of young girls."

Supporters say Kline acts in the best interests of innocent citizens.

"They aren't investigating women and children, but child rapists and abortion doctors," said Sherriene Jones, communications director for Kline's office and campaign. "Kline never sought out the names of women, just the doctors' notes."

Kline has been investigating abortion records for years, Jones said. Kline attained abortion records not only from abortion clinics, but also from hospitals and doctor's offices, she said.

Kline has reviewed 90 of more than 36,000 existing records, Jones said.

Morrison's top priority is keeping violent criminals and sexual predators out of our neighborhoods, according to his campaign Web site.

Morrison said Kline has used the power of his office to push his personal political agenda.

"He has wasted the taxpayers' time and money to pursue an agenda that does not make Kansans safe," Morrison said.

Check on your candidate

Phill Kline
Republican
www.klineforag.com

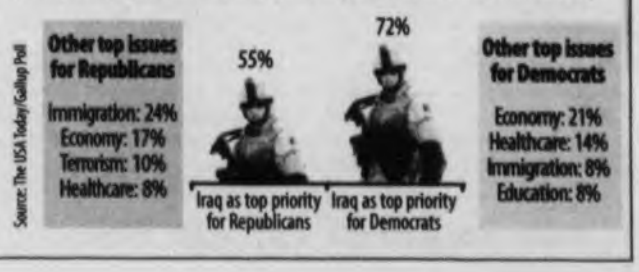
Paul Morrison
Democrat
www.morrisonforag.com

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 75 Low: 47

INSIDE

David Hoskins
The junior guard/forward has changed his game a bit with the help of a new physique and a little help from a doctor who is a KU fan.

Sports, Page 6



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Buy fair trade
A marketplace will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today through Thursday and will feature fairly traded products from Equal Exchange, Ten Thousand Villages, MarketPlace India and other venders. A fair-trade dialogue and discussion will take place from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Union Courtyard.

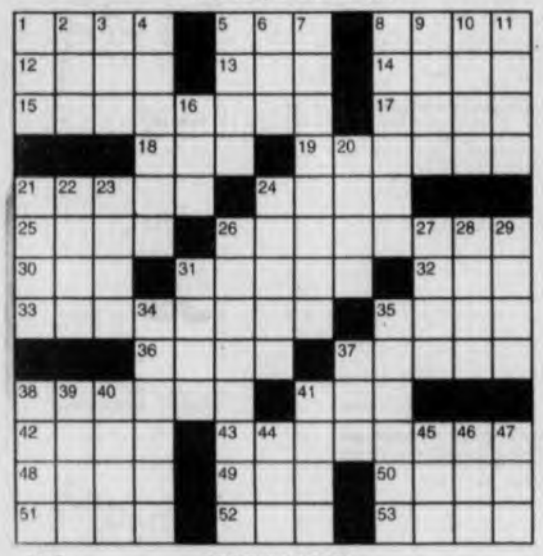
Women of change
Involving Women Artisans of India in Social Change will be 1-2:30 p.m. today in the Sunflower Room of the K-State Student Union. This will be an informal conversation with Pushpika Freitas of MarketPlace India. There also will be displays and a film.

Winery award
Dan Gensch, junior in architecture, was awarded $1,000 and the Honor Award for the creation of a hypothetical 12,000 square-foot winery. T.J. Siemons, senior in architecture, Austin Marsh and Adam Wagoner, both juniors in architecture, won merit awards and $500 for their hypothetical wineries.

America's top priority
Despite their differences, the war in Iraq is the top priority for members of both parties, though Democrats are much more likely than Republicans to mention Iraq.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERY

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 January through December
5 Tree fluid
8 PC picture
12 Oppositionist
13 Mongrel
14 California wine valley
15 Memento
17 Child's play
18 Total
19 Courage
21 Knapsack part
24 Staffer
25 Melt
26 Recover from, overnight
30 "— the fields we go"
31 Reject with disdain
32 Compete
33 Tom's aperture?
35 Disappear gradually
36 Atmosphere
37 Sample episode
38 Mexican menu item
41 Youngster
42 Secondhand
43 In one's heart
48 Place
49 Little demon
50 Waikiki wingding
51 Reindeer herder, probably
52 Director's call
53 Formerly, formerly

DOWN
1 Run up the phone bill
2 Compass pt.
3 Chewed and swallowed
4 Coarse-toothed tool
5 Con game
6 Diving bird
7 Opening night
8 Foot part
9 Is unable
10 October stone
11 Scruff of the neck
16 Dine
20 Paradise
21 Cease
22 You
23 Unusual
24 "Be-Bop-—"
26 Intermittent
27 Ellipse
28 Faithful pooch
29 Thirds of a yard
31 Close
34 Settled a debt
35 Hoedown instrument
37 "Great Expectations" hero
38 Right end of a gas gauge
39 Largest continent
40 Military vehicle
41 Maintained
44 Ostrich's relative
45 "— Town"
46 Existed
47 Fanatic

Solution time: 21 mins.

E	B	B		S	E	R	A	C		L	A	D
E	Y	E		P	R	A	D	A		E	L	Y
L	E	T	T	E	R	M	A	N		T	O	E
			A	W	A		M	O	T	H	E	R
B	A	L	E	E	N		S	E	R	A
O	R	E		D	D	T		S	E	R	G	E
M	I	T	T		S	I	R		E	G	A	D
B	A	H	A	I		P	E	P		I	L	E
		A	L	S	O		S	O	C	C	E	R
W	A	L	L	O	P		T	R	A
O	B	I		L	E	T	I	T	B	E	M	E
O	U	T		D	R	O	V	E		R	A	W
S	T	Y		E	A	G	E	R		A	Y	E

Yesterday's answer 11-7

11-7 CRYPTOQUIP

NRJBZHR WD VKKM CKE SH VOBEZRC ND HWBOO YBMBHSPRH. DKZ WSEYP HBD YR'H PSJX-HXSQQRC.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHEN THIN, GAUNT PEOPLE LOOK AT YOU RUDELY, I GUESS YOU ARE DRAWING LANK STARES.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: K equals O

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

How to secure the shotgun seat

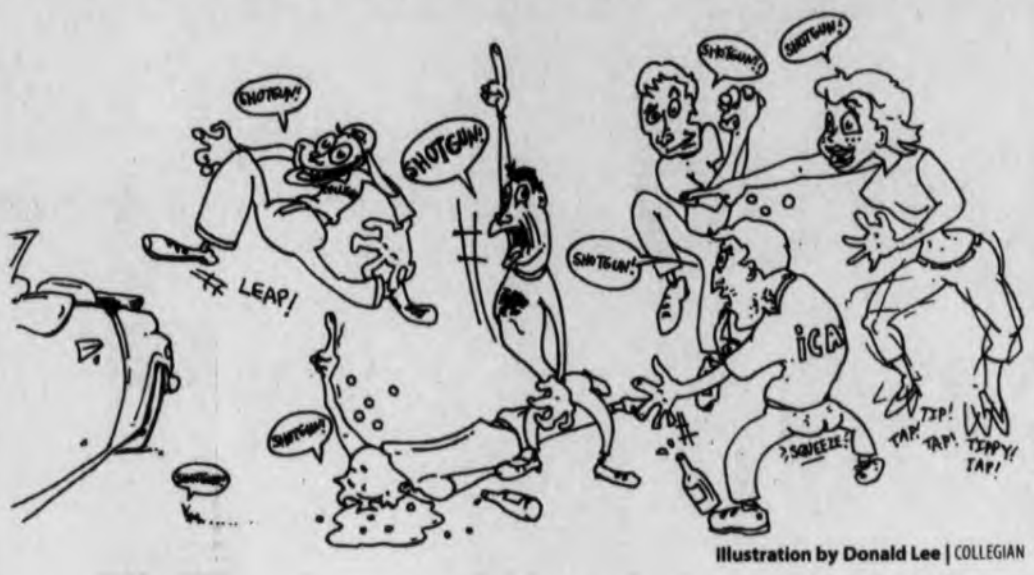


Illustration by Donald Lee | COLLEGIAN

Being college students, it is inevitable we will need a ride from someone at some point during our university careers. Riding shotgun is an important part of any drive, and, therefore, rules are necessary. The next time you want to ride shotgun, follow these rules, and you will be victorious.

Section I — General Rules

1) The first person to yell "shotgun" gets to ride in the front seat.
2) The remaining back seats are to be divvied up in the same manner by being the first to call "back right seat," etc.
3) The yelling of the word "shotgun" must be loud enough to be heard by at least one witness. If no witness is to be found, or in case of a tie, the driver has the final word. After all, it is most likely the driver's car. (Note: If it isn't the driver's car, and the owner is present, the owner's decision is final. But the owner must be sober, or his judgment will be deferred to the driver.)
4) Early calls are strictly prohibited. All occupants of the vehicle (including the driver) must be outside of the building and directly on the way to the vehicle before shotgun can be called. Under no circumstances will a person call shotgun inside a building. For sake of simplicity, a garage is considered to be outside. Parking structures and detached garages are always considered outdoors, even if they are underground.
5) A person will only call shotgun for one way of a trip. Shotgun can never be called while inside a vehicle or still technically on the way to the first location. For example, one cannot get out of a vehicle and call shotgun for the return journey.
6) Since everyone is created equal, men have the same right as women to the front seat of the car. Women don't own the front seat.
7) One is allowed to ride shotgun as many times as one can call it, but for oneself only. No one can call shotgun for a slower friend, unless the friend has a speech or mental handicap that prevents the physical calling of shotgun.
8) The driver has final say in all ties and disputes. The driver has the right to suspend or remove all shotgun privileges from anyone.

Section II — Special Cases

These exceptions to the rules listed above should be considered in the order presented. The case listed first will take precedence over any of the cases listed beneath it, when applicable.
1) In the instance the normal driver of a vehicle is drunk or otherwise unable to perform duties as driver, he is automatically given shotgun.
2) In the instance the person who owns the vehicle is not driving, then she is automatically given shotgun, unless it is declined.
3) In the instance the driver's spouse, lover, partner or hired prostitute for the evening is going to accompany the group, he is automatically given shotgun, unless he declines.
4) In the instance one of the passengers becomes so ill during the course of the journey that other occupants feel she will toss her cookies, then the ill person should be given shotgun to make appropriate use of the window.
5) In the instance only one person knows how to get to a given location and this person is not the driver, then, as the designated navigator for the group, he automatically gets shotgun, unless it is declined.
6) In the instance one of the occupants is too wide or tall to fit comfortably in the back seat, the driver should show mercy and award shotgun to the genetic misfit. The driver and other passengers are encouraged to continually taunt the poor fellow as they make a three-hour trip with the person while crammed in the back.

Section III — The Survival Of The Fittest Rules

1) If the driver so wishes, he/she may institute the Survival Of The Fittest Rules on the process of calling shotgun. In this case, all rules, excepting 1.8, are suspended and the passenger seat is occupied by whoever can take it by force.
2) The driver must announce the institution of the Survival Of The Fittest Rules with reasonable warning to all passengers. This clause reduces the amount of blood lost by passengers and the damage done to the vehicle.
3) Please follow the above rules to the best of your ability. If there are any arguments or exceptions not covered in these rules, please refer to rule 1.8.

Source: www.bored.com

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- Sigma Alpha will present an International Students in Agriculture Panel at 6:30 tonight in Waters 231.
- There will be a session on overseas teaching at 7 tonight in Union 212. It is sponsored by Career and Employment Services. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/ces.
- The next Students for Environmental Action meeting will be at 8 tonight in Union 213.
- A Fair Trade Marketplace will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today through Thursday in the Union Ballroom.
- Alpha Gamma Epsilon Student Gerontology Club will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday in Leasure 103.
- Sign up for the intramural swim meet by Thursday in the office at the Peters Recreation Complex. The swim meet will be at 7 p.m. on Nov. 16 and Nov. 20 at the Natatorium. The entry fee is $1.08 per person (including tax). For more information, call (785) 532-6980.
- Rink Dickinson, cofounder and co-executive director of Equal Exchange, will present his lecture, "A Taste for Justice," at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union Ballroom. The event is part of the Lou Douglas Lecture Series on Public Issues.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

dependable. quality service. ✓We can print from your Zip Disk, CD-Rom, or USB flash drive. Claflin Books and Copies

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

Stick it to me TUESDAY
Buy 1 Get 1 FREE Pokey Stix (of equal or lesser value)
GUMBY'S Pizza
Open Late
Delivery Hotline: 770-3333

COLD STONE CREAMERY
"College Night"
Buy1 Get 1 for 25¢!
any size creation
Every Tuesday
from 7-10p.m.
Subject to change at any time
(WITH KSU STUDENT ID)

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Tuesday Specials
$2.00 Wells & Shots
$3.00 Energy Drinks & Big Boys
Nip/Tuck Tuesday
Come enjoy the show... at 9pm On Big Screen
Mon-Tues 4pm -2am • Wed-Sun 11:30am -2am

Experienced, Common Sense Leadership

RE-ELECT TOM HAWK
State Representative 67th District
I Support:
• K-State
• Ft. Riley
• Small Business
Higher Ed Report Card Grades Legislators
In the Oct. 19, 2006 Collegian, Rep. Tom Hawk received a top grade of "Honor Roll" Supporter by the Citizens for Higher Education!
www.tomhawk.com
"I am pleased to have gained this honor roll designation indicating my life-long support for education. I am proud of my three degrees from KSU: BS in Math, MS in Counseling, and PHD in Educational Administration. I believe in working with all legislators and both parties to be a problem-solver. My first commitment throughout my professional life as a teacher, counselor and superintendent of the Manhattan Public Schools has been education. As a member of the House Utilities and Environment Committees during my first term, I have also learned how important sound energy and water policy is to the future of our state. I pledge to be a strong and reasonable voice for all of us as your State Representative."
Prepared for the Job
Paid for by Hawk for House Committee, Katha Hurt, Treasurer

International Students in Agriculture Panel
International students discuss agricultural policies and practices in their native countries
Tuesday, November 7, 2006
6:30 p.m.
Waters Room 231
Free refreshments served following the panel.
Sponsored by Sigma Alpha
Kansas State University SGA Student Governing Association

We're Looking For YOU!
Executive Position

News Staff Positions
Spring 2007 Editor in chief
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 10
Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
•Copy Editors • Designers
•Photojournalists
•Graphic Journalists
•Graphic Artists
•Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 17
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tickets remain for Rumsfeld's Landon Lecture

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Donald Rumsfeld
146th Landon Lecture
Time: 11 a.m.
Day: Thursday
Place: Bramlage Coliseum
The lecture also will be broadcast live on Cox Cable's channel 8 in Manhattan and Junction City and can be seen live on the Internet (http://www.k-state.edu/landon).

Some tickets for Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's Landon Lecture went undistributed Monday.

At press time, Jim Muller, assistant director of Bramlage Coliseum, said it was not known how many tickets were left for the lecture, which is scheduled for 11 a.m. Thursday at Bramlage Coliseum.

"We will not know until later (Monday) afternoon," Muller said. "Those numbers will be given to Charles Reagan (chair of the Landon Lecture Series), and it will be up to him to release those numbers, and then any other information regarding tickets will come from his office."

K-State students, faculty and staff members will need to present their K-State IDs at the lecture, Muller said.

"At this point, we don't intend to let people who don't have tickets in the parking lot for security reasons," he said. "So we don't anticipate handing out tickets at the door."

Muller and graduate assistants and interns with Bramlage Athletic Operations, distributed the tickets in Forum Hall in the K-State Student Union.

While distribution was scheduled to start at 11 a.m., Muller said it began at 10:30 a.m. Tickets were distributed in Forum Hall because the Union is a central location for students and faculty, Muller said.

"There was a line out the door initially, which we handled pretty quickly," Muller said. "We're just checking K-State IDs and handing out tickets, so the line moves relatively quickly."

Due to the anticipated high demand for seating, the lecture will be restricted to K-State students, faculty and staff members as well as Landon patrons, invited guests and military service members from Fort Riley, Reagan told the Collegian last week.

Student, faculty and staff tickets also were allocated to K-State-Salina and will be distributed by the dean's office.

There were about 3,000 tickets available for students, 900 available for faculty and staff, 200 for media, 1,000 for military and 800 for Landon patrons and special guests.

Rumsfeld, a former Navy pilot, was sworn in as the 21st secretary of Defense in 2001. He also served as the 13th secretary of Defense in 1975, White House chief of staff, U.S. ambassador to NATO, U.S. Congressman and chief executive officer of two Fortune 500 companies.

Rumsfeld is the fourth U.S. secretary of Defense to present a Landon Lecture in the series' 40-year history. Prior defense secretary lecturers include Caspar Weinberger in 1984, William Perry in 1995, and William S. Cohen in 1997.

Kristen Just and Ian Hartsook, both sophomores in interior design, picked up their tickets together at 2 p.m. Monday. Just said they though tickets might be gone by afternoon.

"I just think he's an important person to see," Just said. "Since I couldn't see President Bush (at K-State in January), I wanted to see Rumsfeld."

Hailey Petersen, freshman in biology, will attend the lecture.

"It's an interesting opportunity to hear someone important," Petersen said. "I'm not really well-versed on his stances, and I consider myself fairly moderate. However, he's a fairly important guy, and a lot of things he says merit importance and attention."

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN

After 10:30 a.m. Monday, students pick up tickets in Forum Hall for Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's speech, which will be Thursday at Bramlage Coliseum. The 146th Landon Lecture will be at 11 a.m. It will be broadcast live on Cox Cable's Channel 8 and live on the Internet at www.k-state.edu/landon.

Once in a Lifetime engagements and weddings —Everyone's doing it.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

See a photo opportunity?
Call 532-6556
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

GET NOTICED.... & stand out from the crowd.
Self-Advocacy Workshop
Hosted by Mortar Board Senior Honor Society
Refreshments following workshop
PRESENTATION:
Jack Taylor, Assistant Director of Admissions
"The importance of getting involved & making connections"
BREAK OUT SESSION:
Jim Hohenbary, Prestigious Scholarship Advisor
"Applications"
BREAK OUT SESSION:
Mary Hale Tolar, Associate Director of Educational Leadership
"Interviews"
BREAK OUT SESSION:
K-State Career and Employment Services
"Resumes"
ATTENTION FRESHMEN AND SOPHOMORES:
GAIN INTERVIEW SKILLS AND BUILD YOUR RESUME!
November 8 • 3:30-5 p.m. Union 213
November 9 • 3:30-5 p.m. Union 206

we're serious this time.

At 50, you'll want to show everyone what you looked like in college.

So, come get your free yearbook picture taken:

Wednesday, Nov. 8th
Union 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Kramer Dining Center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Thursday, Nov. 9th
Union 4:30 - 6 p.m.
Derby Dining Center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Friday, Nov. 10th
Union 4:30 - 6 p.m.
Vet Med

It will also prove that you actually did attend college.

Your book. Your story.
royalpurple yearbook & dvd

Sick of signs in your apartment complex?

Students for STRAWN
Kansas State Representative
66th District

Tell Your Landlord

- Fix the Sink
- Turn on the Heat
- Repair the Deck...

Bob with Students for Strawn President Jenna Newsum

...VOTE FOR BOB STRAWN

Paid for by Bob Strawn for Kansas State Representative, Art Loub Treasurer.

What the job requires

Attorney general's investigation of abortion records upholds state law, protects children

JESSI HERNANDEZ

After Kansas Attorney General Phill Kline's appearance on "The O'Reilly Factor" on Nov. 3, Wichita abortion provider George Tiller announced he will ask the Kansas Supreme Court to investigate both Kline and O'Reilly in regard to comments the host made about abortion records, a Wichita Eagle article said Sunday.

Kline discussed his reasons for obtaining the medical records of 90 patients from two Kansas abortion clinics, including Tiller's, and said he wanted to make sure illegal late-term abortions weren't being performed.

Late-term abortions are illegal in Kansas unless the mother's life is in danger or if carrying the pregnancy to term will inflict permanent damage to a physical bodily function.

According to the article in the Eagle, O'Reilly responded to Kline's information with, "Our information says that on almost every medical sheet – and obviously we have a source inside here – it says, 'depression.' I don't know whether you have that information or not – I don't know – but that's what it says."

Tiller now wants the Supreme Court to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate the two parties and take possession of the medical records.

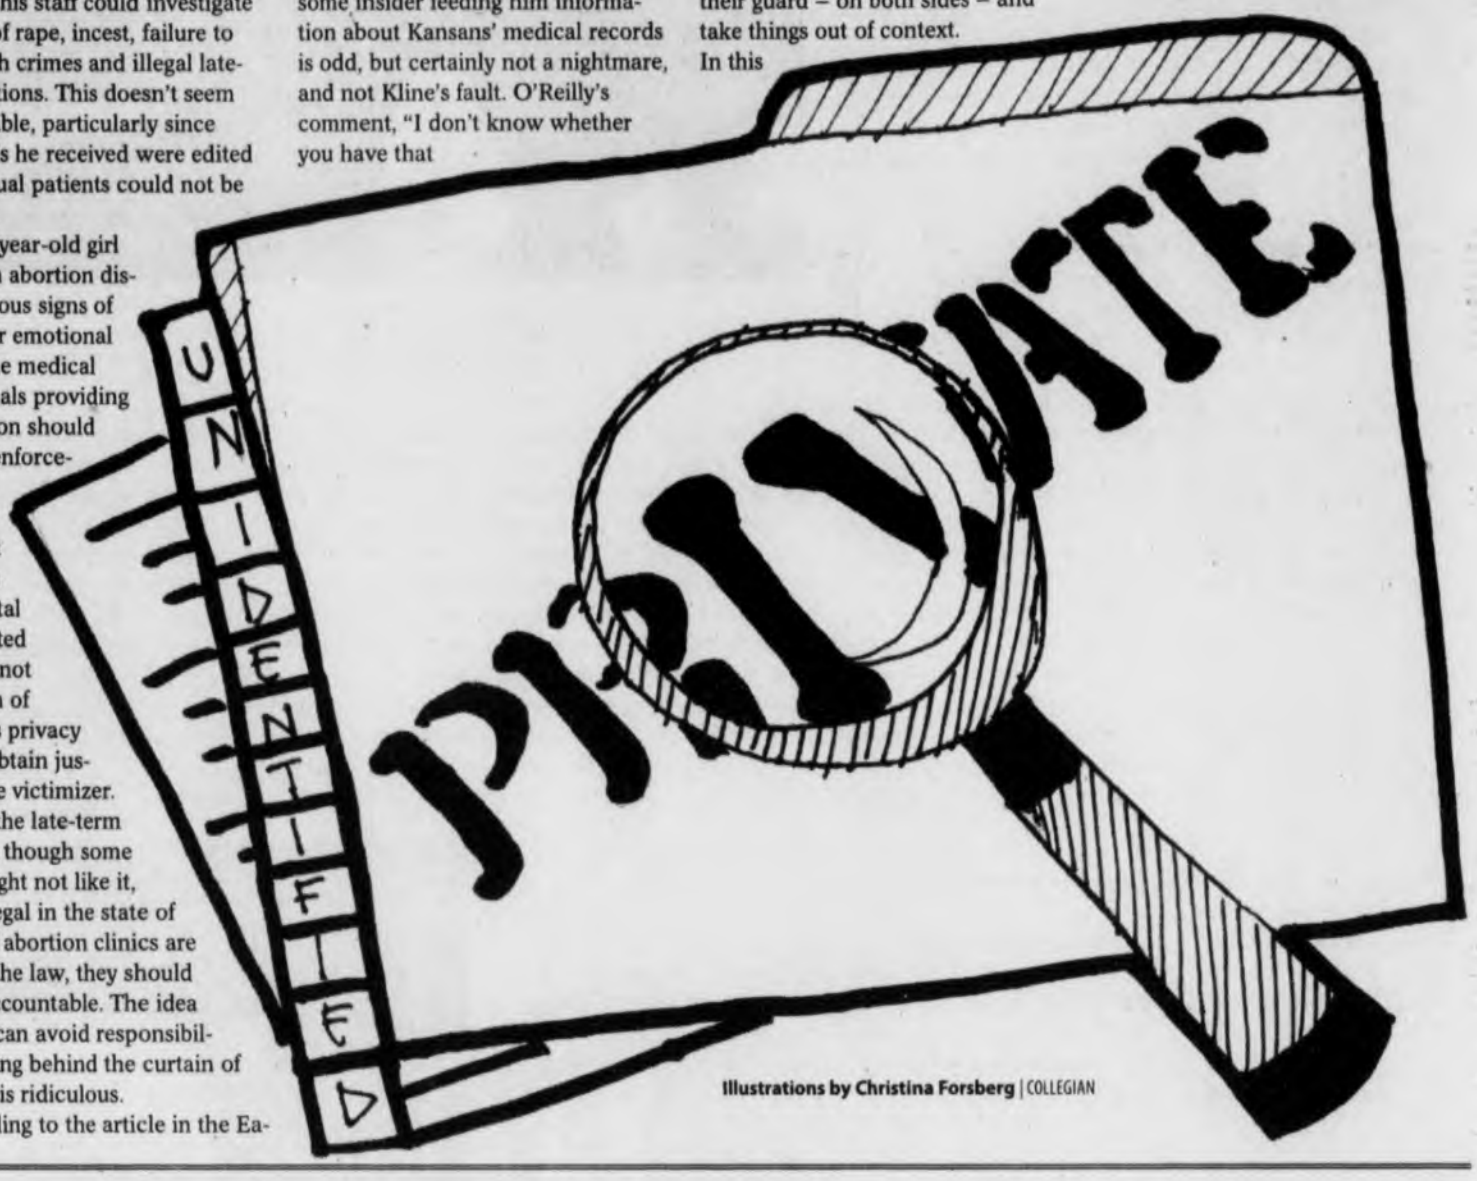
Kline's two-year battle over these medical records has been a significant issue in his race against Johnson County District Attorney Paul Morrison, and O'Reilly's comment could be the tipping point that puts an end to Kline's time in office.

What I don't understand is why this whole medical records affair has caused so much drama.

I know personal medical records are sensitive for some people, especially when it comes to the issue of abortion. What I don't get is why they're practically sacred.

Kline said he wanted the records so he and his staff could investigate for cases of rape, incest, failure to report such crimes and illegal late-term abortions. This doesn't seem unreasonable, particularly since the records he received were edited so individual patients could not be identified.

If a 12-year-old girl seeking an abortion displays obvious signs of physical or emotional trauma, the medical professionals providing her abortion should alert law enforcement of a possible crime, just as doctors of a hospital are obligated to do. It's not a violation of someone's privacy to try to obtain justice for the victimizer.



As for the late-term abortions, though some people might not like it, they're illegal in the state of Kansas. If abortion clinics are breaking the law, they should be held accountable. The idea that they can avoid responsibility by hiding behind the curtain of "privacy" is ridiculous.

According to the article in the Eagle, Tiller's attorney, Pedro Irigonegaray, was quoted having said, "This has been our concern from the beginning, that if he ended up with these records, that just this type of event would occur. Our worst nightmare has happened ... women in America deserve better than this."

Yes, the idea that O'Reilly has some insider feeding him information about Kansans' medical records is odd, but certainly not a nightmare, and not Kline's fault. O'Reilly's comment, "I don't know whether you have that information or not" eradicates the idea that Kline had anything to do with O'Reily's inside knowledge.

I don't know much about Kline's time in office. He very well might not deserve to win today, but it will not be because of the business with the medical records. People hear "abortion" and automatically put up their guard – on both sides – and take things out of context. In this instance, Kline was just trying to make sure the laws of the state of Kansas were being enforced, which, I believe, technically is his job.

Jessi Hernandez is a junior in English. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

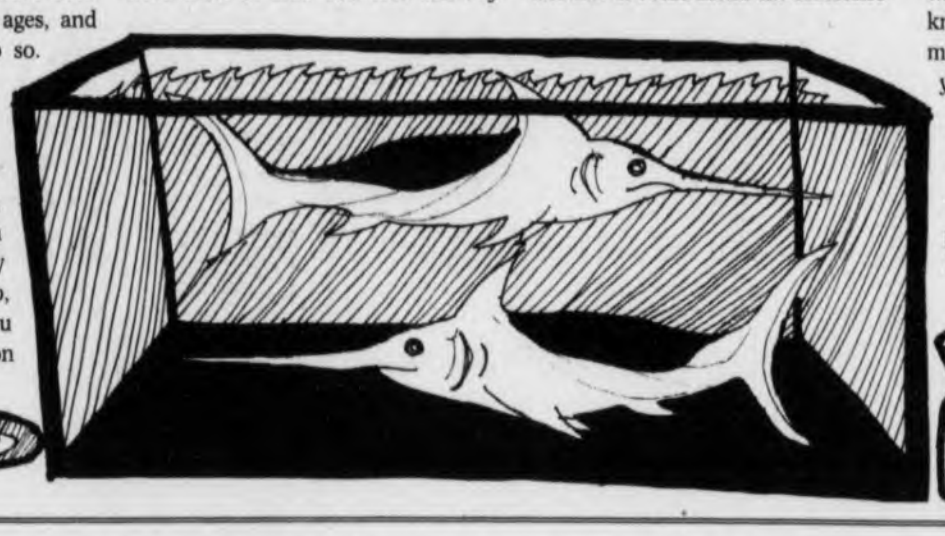
Celebrities top average Joes with knowledge of how to be cool

BECKY STEINERT

Celebrities are better than you, and I'll tell you why.

They co-own ultra-trendy nightclubs. They buy summer houses made of solid gold. They are the only ones who are attractive by the correct standards; non-celebrity women (or "Betty McPlainfaces," as I like to call them) really need to step up looks-wise. And though scholars have risked their lives to keep the knowledge secret, celebrities technically are above the laws of society, morals, the land and physics.

But don't fret. You, too, can be almost as good as a celebrity without actually being one. Your life still won't have any purpose, but you've got to do something. Begin by making demands – lots of them – but make them as reasonable as possible. For example, I now have a few demands about what will be in my room every night when I enter: a large tank of live swordfish, three black olives that don't touch each other, a window that faces west in the morning and east at night, and finally, a pitcher of powdered lemonade that has been stirred with a wooden spoon, chemically separated into its original ingredients, and then mixed back together. I don't drink it, but I can't sleep if it's not there. Celebrities have been making such demands for ages, and frankly, they're right to do so. If inferiors don't learn to avoid eye contact, they'll get sassy.



If there's one thing we can learn from celebrities, it's that inventing a religion will make you perpetually cool. If you choose to do so, there are some guidelines you should follow. This religion should have all the trendiness of an established religion but without the hassle of structure or doctrine. It should have no historical basis or ties to an actual god. It should be completely synthetic and pull you out from under an emotional avalanche. You might want to consider the possibility of peace being drawn from within the individual, but this is up to you. It's your fake religion, after all.

Money buys happiness, so you'll need a lot of that. You also can buy things like friendship and love. If you do decide to buy love, however, I wouldn't get tied down, because you should also consider legally marrying your money. It doesn't really matter how you obtain said money, either, just as long as you have it. Why be an actor when you can be an actor who designs clothes and footwear and fragrances and cosmetics and produces albums and owns a restaurant? It could mean the difference between making an obscene amount of money and making a filthy, demonic, god-forsaken amount of supermoney. The choice is yours. Celebrities learned this long ago, and kudos to them.

Acting in romantic comedies also gives the godlike Glitterati license to know everything about areas like politics. Do you think you know who should be president? You don't. Know who does? Sean Penn. And do you know how he knows? Because he's famous, that's how. Let celebrities guide you in politics, love and life, because they know more than you ever could because they make movies.

In the end, everything comes down to how beautiful someone was at one point or how popular they were for a limited period of time.

Everything else is immaterial.

Becky Steinert is a freshman in psychology. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Mosier | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Jonas Hogg | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTAION EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Every person's vote does count, especially in this year's neck-and-neck elections

Make sure you cast your ballot today.

William E. Simon, secretary of the Treasury during the Nixon administration, said, "Bad politicians are sent to Washington, (D.C.) by good people who don't vote."

Though some cynical citizens will claim their votes don't count, in this election that simply is not true. Several statewide elections are deadlocked, so every vote will count.

The heated race for attorney general is neck-and-neck, and important issues of privacy hang in the balance.

Meanwhile, the 2nd Congressional District race between Democrat Nancy Boyda and incumbent Rep. Jim Ryun, R-Kan., is so tight Ryun called in the big guns, President Bush, to draw support.

Kansans also will choose the governor who will lead their state for the next four years. The two candidates, incumbent Democratic Gov. Kathleen Sebelius and challenger Sen. Jim Barnett, R-Emporia, differ substantially on issues of educational funding, economic growth and taxation.

Other candidates for office will support or oppose many bills that directly affect our lives, like tuition rates, health care and, of course, taxes.

If ambivalence has been your excuse for not voting, it won't fly in this year's election.

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

I just saw a dead Willie the Wildcat alongside I-70.

I just saw scooter boy. Maybe he should get with scooter girl, and they can have a bunch of little scooters.

Nancy Boyda.

Man, Republicans, you've really screwed up America over the last six years.

If you're so cold, why don't you wear some clothes?

We're going to secede and form an IFC of our own: the Interfraternity Confederation.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Face off

	Jim Barnett	Kathleen Sebelius
Party	Republican	Democrat
Political experience	State senator (2000-present)	Kansas governor (2002-present)
Hometown	Emporia, Kan.	Topeka
Previous work	Physician	Insurance commissioner
Education	Emporia State University of Kansas (MD)	Trinity College University of Kansas
Quote	"The people of Kansas desire change and demand accountability from their governor, qualities that have been severely lacking in the current governor."	"A healthy state encourages many voices — and plenty of listening."
Prediction from a poll by Congressional Quarterly	40 percent	57 percent

State Sen. Barnett challenges Gov. Sebelius in campaign headlined by economic issues

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In one of the most publicized races in the state, Democratic Gov. Kathleen Sebelius is expected to retain her seat as Kansas' governor.

Challenging the incumbent is Sen. Jim Barnett, R-Emporia.

Sebelius has been Kansas' governor since January 2003. In her 2002 victory, she defeated Tim Shallenburger by receiving 53 percent of the vote.

During her four-year term, she has worked to expand the economy, create jobs and make Kansas a leader in the quest for alternative energy.

"I think a lot of what's been done in four years is we've gotten positioned for the future," Sebelius said in an interview with the Kansas City Star in October. "We've gotten things back on track. I'm so enthusiastic about the potential we have."

Sebelius has said her economic plan for the state has saved Kansans nearly $1 billion by increasing government efficiency. She said Kansas has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation, and the economy is in good shape.

Barnett does not share the same optimism. Instead, he argues the economy is not thriving in Kansas, and Kansans need to help stimulate business so their children will not have to leave the state to find work.

"Creating more and better jobs for Kansas workers will be one of the most important tasks required of our next governor," Barnett said. "It is time Kansas stopped trailing our neighboring states in the number of jobs we create."

The Barnett plan calls for a new investment tax cut to help businesses and an end to the estate tax to help families.

Education is another key issue in this race. Sebelius claims her education plan will raise $466 million for public schools over her next term without an increase in taxes.

However, Barnett said Sebelius' plan will funnel money into smaller schools while leaving larger, more populated schools with a smaller portion of the funding.

In a recent campaign mailer, Barnett said Sebelius was "robbing Johnson County children."

Barnett's education plan calls instead for $495 million over the next three years.

TO THE EDITOR

Discriminatory remarks made at parade don't represent values of greek community

Editor,

As members of the greek Homecoming pairing referenced in Thursday's letter to the editor, the women of Alpha Xi Delta would like to assure the community that we in no way support or condone insensitivity or discrimination toward any minority group.

The statements made by those two men were disrespectful, inappropriate and uncharacteristic of the greek community as a whole. Our members and our chapter value human decency and respect toward all people.

The Alpha Xi Deltas in attendance were not aware of the situation. We are as disappointed and offended about the comments as the rest of the community.

We sincerely apologize for the harm and hurt the comments caused.

Ashley Renz
SENIOR IN MANAGEMENT AND ALPHA XI DELTA PRESIDENT

Mary Bershenyi
JUNIOR IN MASS COMMUNICATIONS AND ALPHA XI DELTA PUBLIC RELATIONS VICE PRESIDENT

ON BEHALF OF THE WOMEN OF ALPHA XI DELTA SORORITY

Fraternity apologizes to K-State, Manhattan for racist comments; action will be taken

Dear students and faculty of K-State and members of the Manhattan community,

In the Nov. 2 edition of the K-State Collegian, serious claims of racism and insensitive conduct at the annual Homecoming parade were raised against the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity (Fiji).

Indeed, after investigating the matter, we were saddened to discover that members of our chapter were responsible for the abhorrent conduct.

We would like to take this opportunity to apologize to the entire K-State community, as well as the greater Manhattan community. We also would like to apologize to our Homecoming partners and the other fraternities and sororities at K-State for casting a poor reflection on the greek community.

The actions of these members are not in line with the values of Phi Gamma Delta and are unacceptable to us. We have been working closely with our graduate brothers and our national fraternity to see that appropriate action is taken against the members responsible, to educate our members about the harm this type of behavior causes and to ensure that these mistakes do not happen again in the future.

We also would like to thank those people who stood up and brought this matter to our attention, so that we can use this as an opportunity to better ourselves and our chapter.

We at Phi Gamma Delta are sorry for failing to live up to the high standards we set for ourselves as members of the Manhattan and K-State communities. We would appreciate your continued support as we work to address these issues.

Sincerely,

The brothers of Phi Gamma Delta

Need something to do?
Try SuDoku
Located on the sudoku classified page

The Salty Rim
1204 Moro 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$2.50 Domestic Pitchers
$4 Blue Moon Pitchers
1/2 Price Margaritas
$2 Import Bottles
1/2 Price Salsas
Patio Is Open
Now Taking Applications

TUESDAY WEDNESDAY
Tacos
Margaritas
Taco Platter
BOBBY Ts
3240 Kimball Ave
537-8383
Steak Night
Bottles
Big Bobs
www.bobbyts.com
Karaoke @ 9pm

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian's
Gameday
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

Car Clinic, INC.
Before you roll out for the holidays,
Roll by to make sure you get there.
We're right on your way out of town!
• Tune ups, electrical repairs
• Heater & A/C service
• Computer engine analysis
• Transmission services
• Mon.-Fri. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
AAA Approved Auto Repair
NAPA AutoCare Center
ASE CERTIFIED
214 Colorado 539-1040

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7151
20¢ Pizza Rolls &
Chicken Nuggets
1/2 Price Martinis
$1.50 Any Pints & Wells
$2.00 Domestic Bottles
Kitchen Open at 4pm
Now Taking Applications

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS
Student Legal Services Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 4:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request
for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

"SEARCH FOR K-STATE'S MOST TALENTED PERFORMER!"
K-STATE IDOL
WEDNESDAY
NOVEMBER 8
FORUM HALL GROUND FLOOR K-STATE STUDENT UNION 7:00PM

Getting Started in Evening College

Working students and adults may apply and be admitted to a K-State Evening College program at anytime. Once admitted, you may enroll in courses during the next Evening College session. For K-State admissions, visit www.k-state.edu/admit.

Through 8- or 16-week night classes or a combination of night classes and distance education courses, you can earn a bachelor's degree or enhance your skills

ENROLL NOW FOR SPRING 2007 8- OR 16-WEEK TERMS
8-week term classes run from January 11 - March 5, 2007.
16-week term classes run from January 11 - May 11, 2007.

www.dce.ksu.edu/eveningcollege

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
EVENING College

For more information, call 1-800-622-2KSU or 785-532-5575 today.
informationdce@ksu.edu

Expanded Hours. Expanded Learning. Expanded Opportunities.

After receiving LASIK eye surgery in the offseason to improve his vision, junior David Hoskins also has bettered his outside shot, leadership abilities

Seeing straight

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

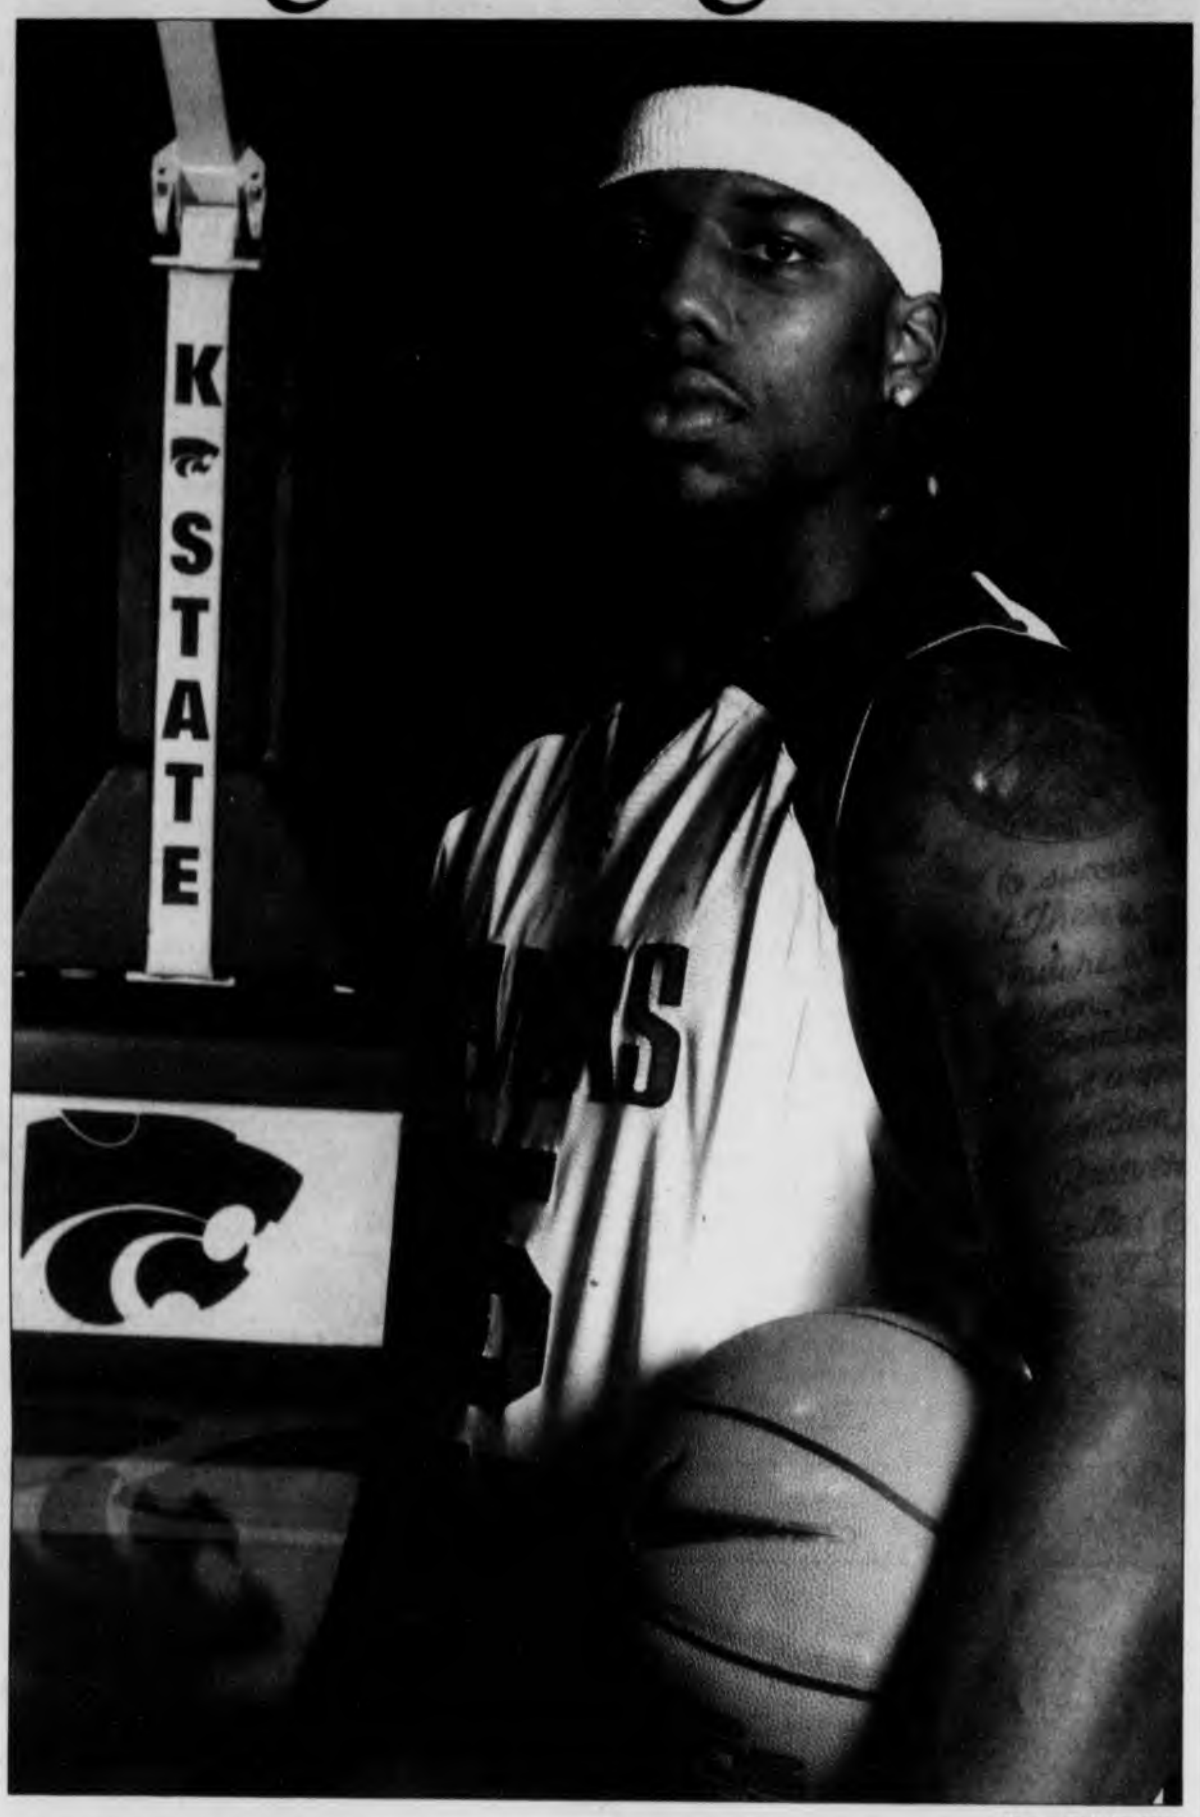
On a typical play last season, David Hoskins would get the ball on the perimeter, pass up a somewhat open jump shot and drive into the trees that awaited him in the lane.

The strategy worked relatively well, as Hoskins earned Big 12 Conference All-Newcomer honors from the league's media after averaging 13.1 points per game.

There was only one problem, Hoskins – the 6-foot-5, 225-pound junior guard/forward – didn't usually play that style of basketball. Before his arrival at K-State, Hoskins spent the majority of games on the perimeter.

"I can do all that," Hoskins said, referring to his abilities to shoot and handle the ball. "But when I got here, it was a situation where I was the best post player we had. We didn't really have any guys that could post up strong, so I took that role upon myself."

"He's stepping out on the perimeter more. He's playing the three, shooting the ball, getting to the cup a lot. Now he's versatile — he can play in, he can play out."
Lance Harris
GUARD



This year, the situation down low is slightly different. The addition of freshmen Jason Bennett and Luis Colon has provided the Wildcats with some much-needed size, and Hoskins spent the entire offseason improving his outside game and his vision.

Hoskins received LASIK eye surgery on both eyes over the summer.

"I can see the rim now," he said. "So I think that helped out a lot."

Being able to see the rim is important to being a good outside shooter, but the surgery had an unexpected element.

"My doctor was a KU friend, so I was really worried about it," Hoskins said.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
David Hoskins, junior guard/forward, did several things during the offseason to improve his game. Hoskins underwent LASIK surgery to improve his eyesight, increased his squat and bench press, and developed an outside shot to go with his inside game.

Yes, thanks to a Jayhawk, Hoskins' vision is now 20/20, and that is only one reason for the change he expects in his game.

Hoskins worked hard during the offseason with new strength and conditioning coach Scott Greenawalt doing a variety of workouts he called "a lot more intense" than anything he had ever done.

Hoskins' squat went up 200 pounds. His bench press increased by 150 pounds.

Both of those improvements caused his vertical to go up – as fans witnessed when he won the dunk contest at "Madness in Manhattan."

So when the Detroit native takes the court this season, he could be seen as a completely different player – by the fans and by his teammates.

"He's stepping out on the perimeter more," senior guard Lance Harris said. "He's playing the three, shooting the ball, getting to the cup a lot. Now he's versatile – he can play in; he can play out."

Hoskins showed Saturday in K-State's marathon exhibition victory that he can step up when needed. He finished with 29 points and 10 rebounds in 44 minutes.

But he was forced to come out in the third overtime because of severe cramps.

"Dave was great," coach Bob Huggins said. "He competes – he wants to win. I have to get Dave to try and pull a couple other guys along with him."

Hoskins' work ethic has received constant praise from Huggins throughout the preseason.

In the early practices, Huggins was quick to say Hoskins and Cartier Martin had the best chance of starting out of anyone on the roster.

After a disappointing season for the Wildcats last year, Hoskins said he was excited when he learned Huggins was named the new coach.

"That let me know right there that it was going to be a big change," Hoskins said. "I was a Cincinnati fan growing up, because I was right there in Detroit, so I know about his history. I was excited from day one."

After qualifying for a bowl, what's left to play for?

NICK DUNN

So this is what it feels like to qualify for a bowl.

Now that K-State's football team has its coveted six wins and will likely go bowling for the first time since 2003, the question becomes, "Where do the Wildcats go from here?"

Throughout the preseason and the beginning of the regular season, the talk was centered around getting to a bowl (by the fans and the media, that is). Are the Wildcats going to get to six wins? Do you think they're going to make it to a bowl?

Well, they're here, and the "ending" was rather anti-climatic. It almost seems like a letdown – obviously it's not a letdown, but the feeling around town is the mission is accomplished.

The Wildcats are 6-4, and they've exceeded almost everyone's expectations. There's nothing left to complain about.

Remember when K-State was predicted to finish last in the Big 12 North Division?

It's about time we give coach Ron Prince some credit. He's withstood an unfair amount of criticism for the majority of the season and has led his team to a remarkable record for a first-year coach. He's led this team – primarily the same team Bill Snyder couldn't get to a bowl – to six wins and counting.

What game have the Wildcats lost but should've won? You could make an argument for Baylor, but even that was a tough game.

Where would K-State be now if Prince had decided to stick it out with Dylan Meier and Thomas Clayton? The decision to start true freshmen Josh Freeman and Leon Patton didn't receive much support at the time, but those two certainly have helped the team get to where it is.

So where do the Wildcats go from here? The truth is, this could just be the beginning. Sure, it's a long-shot, but why not dream big and hope K-State knocks off Texas? Anything can happen when a highly ranked team goes on the road for a conference game, especially when that game happens to be nationally televised and played in front of an amped-up crowd.

Even if that upset doesn't happen (and it probably won't), there's still a lot left to play for in the season finale at Kansas.

First, K-State hasn't guaranteed itself a spot in a bowl game. It is only bowl-eligible – another win would secure it. Second, it most likely will have the chance to keep the Jayhawks from qualifying for a bowl with a victory in Lawrence.

It goes without saying that would be a big deal.

In all reality, there is a lot left to play for. The team's one-game-at-a-time mentality, no matter how cliché it is, seems to be working.

There's no reason to think the season's mission has been accomplished. Another win or two would be nice icing on the cake.

Nick Dunn is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

FBC | Freeman selected as Big 12 Offensive Player of the Week

K-State quarterback Josh Freeman was nearly flawless in leading the Wildcats to a 34-21 road victory at Colorado Saturday that made the Wildcats bowl-eligible for the first time since 2003.

On Monday, Freeman was rewarded for his play, as the freshman was named the league's Offensive Player of the Week for games of Nov. 4 in voting by a select panel of media that cover the conference, Big 12 officials announced.

Freeman completed 22-of-26 passes (84.6 percent) for 251 yards and two touchdowns against the Buffaloes, and he finished the game without a turnover.

His 84.6 completion percentage is the highest in any Big 12 conference game this year and the second-best in K-State history behind Brian Kavanagh's 19-for-22 (86.4 percent) effort vs. Indiana State in 1996.

On the day, Freeman engineered six K-State scoring drives, including a key 74-yard hook-up with Jordy Nelson early in the fourth-quarter that put K-State on top 27-14. The play is the Wildcats' longest from scrimmage this season and one of the longest pass plays in the Big 12 this year.

Freeman opened the game by completing 18 of his first 19 attempts and did not miss his second pass until a fourth-quarter drop by tight end Jeron Mastrud.

Freeman is the fourth Wildcat to earn conference player-of-the-week honors this season – K-State's most since having five in 2003 – and the first K-State quarterback to do so since Ell Roberson received the award after his performance in K-State's 38-9 win at Nebraska on Nov. 15, 2003.

FBC | Football parking plan in effect for Saturday's games

Parking priority at the K-State sports complex for fans attending the football and men's basketball games on Saturday will be given to those with football parking passes, athletics officials said Monday.

The Big 12 Conference and ABC announced the football game against defending national champion Texas will begin at 7 p.m. That means the Bob Huggins era begins for men's basketball with the regular-season tipoff against William & Mary at 1 p.m. in Bramlage Coliseum.

The east and west parking lots surrounding Snyder Family Stadium and Bramlage are reserved for donors to the Ahearn Scholarship Fund. Those with football parking passes will be admitted into those lots and allowed to park in their reserved or VIP space as usual for a football game. The parking lots will open at 10:30 a.m., prior to the men's basketball game.

Fans attending the basketball game who don't have football parking passes but display their basketball season parking passes may park in the grass lot east of Snyder Family Stadium or in the paved lot of the Peters Recreation Center for $5 on a first-come, first-served basis. Those without football or basketball parking passes may park in the grass lot or Rec Complex for $10 as is customary for home football games.

FBC | Fox Sports Net scheduled to televise Sunflower Showdown

The K-State Department of Intercollegiate Athletics received word Monday from Fox Sports Net and the Big 12 Conference that the Wildcats' regular-season finale at Kansas on Nov. 18 will be cablecast by the network beginning at 2:30 p.m.

It is the third time in as many weeks and the fifth time this season the Wildcats have been selected to be part of the Big 12 weekly television package.

The selection also marks the second straight year the Sunflower State Showdown has been telecast by Fox Sports Net.

As a result of the television selection and start time, K-State athletics department officials have set an 8:05 p.m. tipoff time for the Wildcats' men's basketball game on Nov. 18 at Bramlage Coliseum vs. Tennessee Tech.

Comedian to perform stand-up tonight in McCain

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Comedian Michael Ian Black will perform stand-up comedy at 8 tonight in McCain Auditorium.

This event is something sponsor Union Program Council has planned for a long time, said Erica Boatman, junior in apparel design and UPC entertainment co-chair.

The previous entertainment co-chairs also worked to bring Black to K-State; however, Boatman said it was not difficult to get Black to perform here.

"It wasn't too hard," Boatman said. "We just needed to find a good date."

Black has starred in television shows including "The State," "Ed," "Stella" and VH1's "I Love the 70s/80s/90s." He also starred in the film "Wet Hot American Summer." For more than a decade, Black has written, produced and performed comedy.

Michael Ian Black

Tickets are still on sale for Michael Ian Black's performance. They cost $15 for students and $20 for non-students. To purchase tickets, visit the McCain Box Office 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. or the Little Theatre Box Office 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Jake Acosta, junior in English, said he looks forward to Black's performance because of his previous work.

"I really like the show 'Stella' he was in," Acosta said. "I'm excited in the same way I was excited for Mo Rocca."

Acosta said he expects a good show from Black.

"I expect it to be humorously insightful," Acosta said. "I feel like he's a pretty smart guy."

Many students are excited for Black's stand-up, Boatman said, but some need to see his picture before they realizewho he is.

"I think a lot of people need to put a face to the name; then they're like, 'Oh, yeah. I love him. He's hilarious,'" Boatman said.

Boatman said she thinks Black's stand-up act will be a hit with students because of his comedic style.

"I know he tends to be a little raunchy in his stand-up," Boatman said, "but I think that's more of the comedic style a lot of students like."

Tickets are still available for students who would like to attend Black's show.

"It's not currently sold out, but we have had a lot of sales," said Becki Ronen, freshman music performance and employee at the McCain Box Office.

New Jersey OKs homosexual marriages

State's supreme court votes to grant equal constitutional rights to gay couples; legislature to decide how to recognize unions

By Mike Kelly
and Kristen Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A recent New Jersey Supreme Court vote allowing gay marriage is increasing the topic's controversy.

Around the nation, the issue of same-sex marriage is becoming a considerable political platform, and residents of eight states will vote today on ballot measures limiting gay marriage or unions. However, Kansas is not included in those eight states, though some residents think it should be.

"We'd all love to see Kansas visit the gay marriage amendment," said Jason Dockins, president of the Queer Straight Alliance. "It is unconstitutional to tell people who they can marry and who they can and can't love."

The Nov. 1 vote in New Jersey made it the second state to allow gay marriage. In a 4-3 vote, the court decided same-sex couples have the same constitutional rights as heterosexual couples.

"Although we cannot find that a fundamental right to same-sex marriage exists in this state, the unequal dispensation of rights and benefits to committed same-sex partners can no longer be tolerated under our state constitution," said Justice Barry T. Albin, who wrote the majority opinion.

The court decided it was up to the state's Democrat-controlled legislature to determine how homosexual unions should be recognized. The legislature now has 180 days to decide either to rewrite the state's marriage laws to include same-sex couples or to create some type of civil union.

"I certainly would love to have the legal benefits of marriage," Mary Kay Siefers, professor of leadership studies, said. "I am in a committed same-sex relationship, and there is no doubt in my mind that the benefits are powerful, and it is something I would like the opportunity to have."

While there are issues regarding the word "marriage," Siefers said terminology is not important to her.

"For me, the wording isn't as important as the outcome," she said. "If they call it a civil union and I get those benefits, I consider it a success."

Conservatives in New Jersey and nationwide continue to push legislation that either bans gay marriage or defines marriage as a union between a man and a woman.

"The decision of the New Jersey Supreme Court only deepens the constitutional crisis with respect to the protection of traditional marriage and warrants swift, decisive action by Congress in the form of passage of the Marriage Protection Amendment," Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., said in a news release. "Huge social changes should be decided by the people and their elected representatives and should not be forced by the courts."

Although Kansans will not vote on the issue today, members of Queer Straight Alliance and members of the community are working in other ways, Dockins said. He said the members are trying to get the phrases "sexual orientation" and "gender identity/expression" included in Manhattan's non-discrimination clause.

"We're still fighting things like that, let alone marriage," he said.

Dockins talked about the marriage amendment passed on April 5 that included a gay marriage ban.

"The bad thing about the past marriage amendment was that it did more than ban gay marriage. I wish people would have taken a better look at that," he said.

Although the amendment was passed, Dockins said he has not received any backlash for being gay while living in Manhattan.

"As far as being gay and living in Kansas, I mean, we're in Kansas. What do you expect?" Dockins said. "But I think Manhattan is a lot more accepting than people like to think. And as far as Manhattan goes, we're still pushing forward."

Book hits on Russia

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A K-State professor has written a book about the Russian military.

Dale Herspring, professor of political science at K-State, wrote a book titled "The Kremlin and the High Command: Presidential Impact on the Russian Military from Gorbachev to Putin," from his experience with the Russian military.

It analyzes the correlation between the Russian military and the leadership of Presidents Mikhail Gorbachev, Boris Yeltsin and Vladimir Putin. He was the first author to write a book on this topic.

He said the issue needs to be recognized by society.

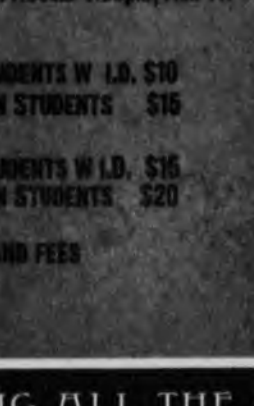
"I have spent a lifetime dealing with the Russian military, as a diplomat serving in the USSR/Russia, as a U.S. Navy officer taking part in most of the exchanges between the U.S. Navy and the Soviet/Russian Navy (and army), all of which gave me the inside view of the Russian military," Herspring said when describing the extent of his experience.

The book describes the affairs with Russia, Eastern Germany and the United States. According to www.facsnet.org, Herspring is one of the most knowledgeable experts in the nation on Russia, Germany, and Eastern Europe.

For 15 years, he has gathered information about the Russian military, although his book was published in October 2006. He said his intelligence on the Russian military is more resourceful than some of the leading agencies.

"Last summer I was asked to brief CIA analyses, and it quickly became obvious that my data holdings were more detailed and larger than the agency's," Herspring said.

His latest book is the 11th he's written, and he's writing two more. The next book will focus on Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld's relationship with the military, Herspring said.



Herspring said it is important for professors to spread their knowledge.

"In my humble opinion, a faculty member who does not publish does not deserve to be one," he said. "Finishing such a book and having contemporaries view it as a significant contribution to the field is very rewarding, regardless of whether they agree with it."

EKART'S "SINCE 1965"
Motor Inn, Inc.
209 Sarber Lane
Dependable Auto Service
776-9058
•Oil Changes
•Brake Service
•Tire Rotation
•Computer diagnostics
•30-Pt. System Check
•Complete automotive repair
Go Cats!

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Mallard's Alley
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2 ALL DRINKS
PREMIUMS, CALLS, DRAWS, SHOTS, BOTTLES
$3.50
BELFAST & ENERGY BOMBS
FREE POOL
CHAPPIE live on the patio
NOW HIRING ALL POSITIONS!

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

for more information visit the website at http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm
The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.
Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

The Awesome Life with MICHAEL IAN BLACK TONIGHT
AS SEEN ON COMEDY CENTRAL'S STELLA, VH1'S I LOVE THE 70'S / 80'S / 90'S & WET HOT AMERICAN SUMMER
TUESDAY NOV 7, 2006
8:00 PM McCAIN AUDITORIUM
McCain Box Office: 532-6428 11am-5pm, Mon-Fri
Little Theatre Box Office: 11:30am-1:30pm, Mon-Fri
TICKETS
ADVANCE TICKETS
STUDENTS W I.D. $10
NON STUDENTS $15
DAY OF THE SHOW
STUDENTS W I.D. $15
NON STUDENTS $20
*PRICE INCLUDES TAXES AND FEES

IN BLACK
upc

LONGHORNS SALOON
$2.00 $2.50 DRINKS
DOMESTIC PITCHERS & DOMESTIC BOTTLES
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9TH
BLEU EDMONDSON
WITH SPECIAL GUEST FULL THROTTLE

Did you sell more Girl Scout cookies than anyone else in your troop?
You'll make more than cookie crumbs working for us...
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling cookies.
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL or email jhammond@kstate.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL FRIDAY NOV. 17 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

WHEN YOU'RE DONE READING ALL THE ARTICLES, DON'T FORGET TO WASTE MORE TIME IN LECTURE BY DOING THE
SUDOKU
LOCATED IN THE COLLEGIAN'S CLASSIFIEDS SECTION

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Wheat was passed up by corn as Kansas' top produce in 2000.

Corn tops wheat as No. 1 crop in Kansas due to its versatility

By Josh Rouse
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The state of Kansas has almost always been famous for its wheat. Now, a new crop is threatening to unseat the top produce in Kansas: corn.

Corn overtook wheat production in 2000 and has remained on top ever since.

A widening spectrum of practical uses for corn, which include ethanol, soda and low-carbohydrate foods, have made corn more useful than wheat.

Kraig Roozeboom, assistant professor of agronomy, said he wouldn't be surprised if this was only a temporary phenomenon.

"Actually, wheat prices are very strong, and the acreage of wheat getting planted this fall is – from what I understand it – increased," Roozeboom said.

"Next year it wouldn't surprise me a bit if wheat jumps back up front. I don't think there's any long-term, great change in our ag economy just because corn passed up wheat."

Roozeboom said while wheat would most likely regain its ranking, the future might produce a different outcome. He said 10 years in the future, corn production might take off again due to improvement and breeding.

"If the bio-energy thing really takes off, there could be an even stronger demand for corn and feed stocks for ethanol plants," he said. "Part of the reason that corn acreage and yields have gotten to the point they are now may be because you have a couple of things going on. The cropping systems are in place to take care of the somewhat challenging environments that we have in Kansas.

"Also, corn improvement and crop breeding has made corn yields more stable over the years to where corn can withstand more adverse conditions than it could, say, 20 years ago. I think that process is going to continue to work. Corn can fit on some of the more challenging acres where previously there only was wheat."

Brett Grauerholz, freshman in horticulture, said he has seen the effect of corn demand at his farm in St. Mary's, Kan. He said, in his experience, corn always has been more profitable than wheat, because it is more cost-efficient to produce.

"There is more money involved in corn production than there is in wheat production," he said. "That's the bottom line."

Grauerholz also said prices fluctuate depending on location and type of farmland. He said there are several factors that go into the cost of the production of corn.

"It varies where you're sitting at in Kansas and in various parts of the nation," he said. "It just varies how much rainfall you get, what kind of ground you run on, what your restrictions are. This is just from a north-central Kansas point of view where we don't get much rain. We've been in a drought for the past four years."

Ted Schroeder, professor of agricultural economics, said enhanced technology would provide traditional wheat farmers with a potential alternative crop. He said any time producer flexibility increases and alternative crop options are provided, it is likely to improve producer wealth potential.

"Corn production in Kansas has expanded in recent years for a number of reasons, mostly related to technology," Schroeder said. "First, corn varieties have been developed that are considerably more drought-tolerant than older varieties, encouraging expansion of corn production in areas that used to not consider corn a viable alternative crop.

"Second, moisture-conserving tillage practices have conserved moisture, providing more opportunity to grow crops like corn that require more moisture relative to wheat.

"Third, growth rates in corn yields over time have greatly exceeded wheat yield growth rates, making corn a more economically attractive crop over time relative to wheat, all else constant.

"Of course, increased costs of nitrogen and irrigation pumping have slowed corn production growth in recent years in Kansas from what it otherwise would have been."

Josh Yarrow, senior in civil engineering, said corn's triumph won't have much of an effect on his family's farm in Morganville, Kan. He said the farm mainly produces wheat, and the family probably will continue what it has been doing. He also said he thought it was odd to see corn become the top crop.

"It's kind of surprising, because for the longest time, wheat was the main crop here in Kansas," he said. "It's kind of weird to see it change over to corn. I guess it really doesn't matter to us farmers as long as we have crops to plant, whether it's corn or wheat or milo, as long as there's something there to plant and the demand is there for at least one type of crop that you can rely on.

"Like if the demand for wheat goes really low, you can switch over to growing corn or wherever that demand is. It won't really affect farmers that much. It's just kind of surprising to see how it does change."

Your Neighbor, Your Friend, Your Advocate

- She has supported State Higher Education Funding to curb tuition increases
- As Ranking Member of the Higher Education Committee, Sydney built a coalition to protect KSU Funding For:
  - VET Med, Research, Extension and Building Maintenance
- As a member of the state House Economic Development Committee, Sydney helped design the Economic Growth Act
  - Creating Quality Jobs for KSU Graduates in Research, Bio-Sciences and Agriculture
  - Stimulating Entrepreneurship in Kansas with the Angel Investment Network
- "Stands Up" for Kansas State University Students
  - Funding for KSU Building Maintenance
  - Faculty and Employee raises
  - Expanded Student Loan Programs
  - Enhanced Student Health Plans

Sydney Carlin is Endorsed by the Citizen For Higher Education, EPAC (Educating All Children), KNEA, The political arm of KASB and USA-Kansas, Biz-PAC, the greater Kansas City Chamber of Commerce PAC.

www.sydneycarlin.com

Paid for by the committee to Re-Elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District, John E/Carlin, Treasurer.

SYDNEY CARLIN

the menu with a never ending happy hour.

Dollar Menu

i'm lovin' it®

Immigration plays role in 2nd-district race as Bush signs fence act

By Jesse Sachdeva
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With midterm elections today, one issue that has returned to the forefront of many campaigns is immigration.

In the 2nd Congressional district race between incumbent Rep. Jim Ryun, R-Kan., and Democratic challenger Nancy Boyda, immigration has been a highly debated issues.

The recent signing of the Secure Fence Act by President Bush has sparked discussion across the political spectrum. The bill calls for an additional 700 miles of fencing to be built along the U.S.-Mexico border in an effort to stop, or at least slow, Mexican immigration. The wall would include a 361-mile stretch from Calexico, Calif., to Douglas, Ariz.; a 176-mile stretch from Laredo, Texas, to Brownsville, Texas; a 51-mile stretch from Columbus, N.M., to El Paso, Texas; and a 22-mile stretch in Tecate, Calif.

According to an Oct. 26 press release from Ryun's office, Congressional spending on immigration-related border security and enforcement has quadrupled since 1995.

According to the release, Ryun recently traveled to Yuma, Ariz., to survey the building of fencing there. While speaking with Border Patrol agents, Ryun learned 644 people from "countries of interest, such as Iraq, Iran and North Korea" were captured attempting to cross the border illegally.

While the signing of the bill authorizes the building of the fence, it does not authorize the funding necessary to do so. Department of Homeland Security estimates have shown the fence could cost as much as $2 billion to build, and the bill has appropriated only as much as $1.2 billion. This, as well as opposition from the Mexican government, has led some to doubt that the fence will be built.

"I think this is a step in the right direction," said Benjamin Davis, president of KSU College Republicans. "Of course, the next step will be to seek the funding to actually build the fence.

"I think it's the desire of the American people to want to secure our borders."

Sue Zschoche, chair of the Department of History, said the signing of the bill is a hollow action without the funding to back it, and the timing is meant to carry political weight in the midterm elections.

"This seems very political to me," Zschoche said. "Just because the fence has been approved doesn't mean it will get the funding."

Zschoche also noted immigration, as it relates to wage laws, is not new news.

"This debate is something that has been around throughout American history," she said. "It happened with Irish immigrants in the 1800s, and it's still happening today."

Aaron Apel, president of KSU Young Democrats, said the building of the fence is not a permanent solution to the immigration problem, and other measures should be taken, citing Boyda's plan for immigration reform.

"Boyda's stance is that this is a national security issue, and that more efficient border control methods should be used as opposed to the fence," Apel said. "She also supports a fair wage system and documentation for the illegal immigrants that are already here."

Though the Secure Fence Act probably will have the most effect in border states, the idea of national security makes it an important issue for this election, Dale Herspring, professor of political science, said.

"Just as easy as it is for drugs or laborers to cross the border, so could someone who wants to blow up Americans," he said.

Locally, Herspring said the issue will play a large role in the race between Ryun and Boyda.

"Boyda wants Kansas to become part of an immigration superhighway, and that's something that Ryun doesn't support," he said.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

785 532 6555
Call for Collegian Classifieds

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

150 Sublease

SUBLEASER NEEDED as soon as possible $375 per month. Great Furnished Apartment, will have your own bathroom. Call 785-317-6384.

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

DOES YOUR student organization need a website? My web design class is looking for a project to complete. If you are interested, please contact Michael Barnes at barnesm@ksu.edu, or call 785-341-9483.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

ROOMATE NEEDED for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet neighborhood, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

ROOMMATES WANTED: Five-bedroom house, January through May. Close to campus, washer/ dryer, $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 913-206-5289.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. One block from campus. $300 per month plus one-half utilities. Call Alissa 913-593-5212.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for five-bedroom house. January through May. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 940-594-1481.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January in two-bedroom apartment one block from campus. Call 913-522-7094, ask for Megan.

150 Sublease

ONE TO Three subleasers needed spring 2007 for three-bedroom, one and one half bath apartment, one minute walk to campus. $780 per month or $260 per person plus electricity. Contact: dgray@ksu.edu or 913-481-1334.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Living with guys in a five - bedroom house, two blocks from campus. Rent $288. Call Matt 913-908-7097.

SUBLEASER WANTED for Catholic women's house. Two blocks from campus. $310/ month includes: utilities, food, rent. Live in dorms? May work deal! Call 785-366-6342.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

310 Help Wanted

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the restaurant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

FULL-TIME DELIVERY/ warehouse work. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

310 Help Wanted

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HELP NEEDED with fall yard clean up. Includes cleaning out flower beds and raking leaves. Work your schedule. Call 785-539-1086.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for line cook positions, must have previous experience. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MANHATTAN COUNTRY Club is now accepting applications for servers, lunchtime availability preferred. Apply in person, 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

PART-TIME SALES person. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

PITA PIT, late night delivery drivers wanted, good pay plus great tips. In-store crew positions also available. Apply in person, 1131 Moro, Aggieville.

JOIN CAMP SOUTHWOODS AND HAVE THE BEST SUMMER OF YOUR LIFE! Southwoods is a co-ed residential camp in New York's Adirondack Mountains. Southwoods is seeking ENTHUSIATIC, ENERGETIC, AND FUN LOVING individuals to make an impact on a child's life. Positions/ Internships are available in the areas of Counselors, Outdoor Adventure, Activity Coaches & Waterfront Staff. Benefits include salary, room & board, laundry, & the best summer of your life. For more information & to complete an application visit our website www.southwoods.com or please contact us, 1-888-449-3357.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RANDALL'S FORMAL Wear is looking for a part-time sales person with outstanding customer service skills. Flexible hours great starting wage and commission program. If you would like to join our team stop by and fill out an application at 100 Manhattan Town Center Mall. 785-770-9011.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

310 Help Wanted

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

VICTORIA'S SECRET in Manhattan Town Center, now hiring part-time seasonal help. Must be available most weekends now through January 15 and the weeks prior to and of Thanksgiving and Christmas. To join our team apply in the store this week.

SUBSCRIBE TO THE COLLEGIAN 785 532 6555

Quiznos Sub MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

5				1				4
9	7		2		4		5	1
	4						9
		4	1	6	5	8
		5	7	9	3	2
	1						3
3	9		4		8		6	7
6				3				8

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

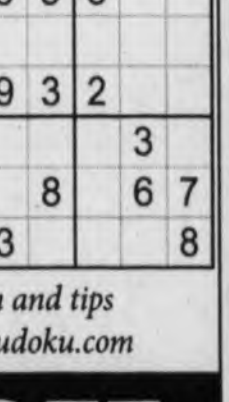
$2 OFF any regular or large sub

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

2004 CHEVY Cavalier, silver, 34,500 miles, $8500 under warranty, great student car. Sleeper sofa, $100, tan recliner, $50. Call 785-317-1985.

KNOW WHEN someone enters your apartment, dorm, or bedroom. Security system that calls your cell phone. Simple one time $50 solution. www.1lowbuy.com.



500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

FOR SALE 2002 Saturn Vue. $8,300 or best offer. 75,000 miles. Runs great. CD, power windows, doors, locks, sunroof. 785-341-1830.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

get a job
look in the classifieds

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
ADVERTISING DESIGN

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 Internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M.
FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Moderate consumption of caffeine healthy, but excessive use can lead to health risks of increased heart rate, depression

By Kris Fitzgerald
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Studying late into the night, working more than 30 hours a week, trying to pay bills, leading an active social life and trying to stay on top of classes can be a difficult task.

Many argue the demands of college can lead students to abuse the most widely overlooked legal drug: caffeine.

Students across the nation resort to using caffeine to give their mind and body that extra push to stay ahead, according to the National Institutes of Health. This increasing addiction is seen in the popularity of drinks like Red Bull and Starbucks Coffee and of over-the-counter caffeine pills like Stackers.

According to the International Food Information Council, the average adult consumes 200 milligrams of caffeine daily. Although the safe daily consumption is about 300 milligrams daily, each person's body handles caffeine differently.

When asked if caffeine is an adequate way to focus on studying, Dianna Schalles, a nutritionist at Lafene Medical Center, said, "In amounts of 300 milligrams or less a day, caffeine can increase alertness and aid concentration. Consuming more than that can increase anxiety levels, jitters and irritability."

Despite health concerns, some students depend on caffeine to stay energized.

"I have one 20-ounce cup of coffee in the morning before classes, and if I know I'm going to be studying late that night, I'll have another one before I study," Riley Zarda, junior in mass communications, said. "It generally gives me about two hours extra of being wide awake."

Zarda said she usually drinks coffee a couple of times a week and has not experienced any sleep trouble. When she does drink a lot of caffeine multiple days in a row, she said her body is a little sluggish.

For people who have been labeled obese, some researchers say higher doses of caffeine could hurt their ability to lose weight.

How much is in that?

Foods and beverages		Milligrams of caffeine (average)
Coffee (8 oz.)	Brewed, drip	137 mg
	Instant	76 mg
Tea (8 oz.)	Brewed	48 mg
	Instant	26-36 mg
Caffeinated soft drinks, like cola (12 oz.)		37 mg
Hot cocoa (12 oz.)		8-12 mg
Chocolate milk (8 oz.)		5-8 mg
Dark chocolate (1.45 oz bar)		30 mg
Milk chocolate (1.55 oz bar)		11 mg
Semi-sweet chocolate chips (1/4 cup)		26-28 mg
Chocolate syrup (1 oz.)		3 mg
Coffee ice cream/frozen yogurt (1/2 cup)		2 mg

Source: U.S. Department of Agriculture, 2000.

People with weight problems aren't the only ones who should use caffeine with caution.

Researchers from the American Diabetes Association say the effects of caffeine depend on how much a person consumes and how healthy that person is.

Caffeine also adds calories, Schalles said.

"Regular colas and coffee drinks can quickly pile on the calories," she said. "For example, a 20-ounce regular cola equals 250 empty calories."

However, the Food and Drug Administration has said caffeine is safe and even healthy when used in moderation.

While caffeine overuse can create an addiction, the IFIC says moderate caffeine use should not be classified with addictive drugs of abuse. The IFIC Web site says the phrase "being addicted to caffeine," often is used loosely, like being "addicted" to riding a bike or running.

Because there are a considerable number of risks, health professionals suggest alternatives to caffeine use. Schalles said there are many ways to ensure a more healthy approach than caffeine-filled drinks and supplements.

"Don't use caffeine as a substitute for food," she said. "If you're truly hungry, you need to fuel your brain and body with food. Adequate sleep and physical activity also help optimize alertness and concentration."

According to the IFIC, if people exceed the recommended usage caffeine, they should try to cut down slowly on the amount of intake to achieve a healthier state.

If people cut caffeine out of their lives completely, the IFIC says they are likely to experience headaches, fatigue or drowsiness. Generally, though, these symptoms will go away in one or two days.

When spending late nights cramming for tests, remember alternatives like exercise and adequate sleep could give you the same energy boost as a can of Red Bull – and they're a little healthier, too.

Fast facts about caffeine

What is caffeine?
Caffeine is a naturally occurring, flavorless chemical that acts as a stimulant to the central nervous system and as a diuretic. Caffeine also can be synthetically produced.

In what foods is it found?
It appears naturally in coffee, tea and cocoa beans, and it is added in small amounts to colas to enhance their flavor. It also is added to appetite suppressants, cold medicines and pain relievers.

Is it something my body needs to function properly?
No. In fact, some dietitians say children should consume as little as possible, because it does act as an appetite suppressant and might dull their appetite for foods they need to grow. Pregnant women often are advised to avoid caffeine as well. However, there is no health risk associated with moderate caffeine consumption. (Three 8-ounce cups of coffee a day is moderate. Ten cups of coffee is excessive.)
Excessive caffeine intake can lead to an increased heart rate, nausea, vomiting, heartburn, dehydration, anxiety, depression, difficulty sleeping and tremors.

Is it really possible to be addicted to caffeine?
You bet. People who try to quit consuming caffeine cold-turkey are likely to experience headaches, irritability, nausea and other symptoms. Doctors say that if you want to you reduce the amount of caffeine you consume everyday, slow down gradually to avoid these withdrawal symptoms.

Source: U.S. Department of Agriculture

ELECTION BINGO 2006

Tonight, while you watch the results from the polls on television, entertain yourself (and a few friends) with the Collegian's version of election night bingo.

Any time you hear one of the phrases listed on your card, mark that box.

For those of you seeking a bit of extra adventure this evening, for each box you mark, feel free to take a drink of your favorite beverage – tequila, rum, apple cider, soda, etc.

Annette Lawless | COLLEGIAN

B	I	N	G	O
My fellow	Too close to call	Mandate	Control of the House	Saddam Hussein
Back to you	Mark Foley	Michael J. Fox	Gay marriage	Speaker Dennis Hastert
God bless America	Nip and tuck	FREE SPACE	John Kerry	Ohio
Florida	Blue state	Campaign trail	Exit polling	Liberal
Taxes	A real horse race	Weapons of mass destruction	Time will tell	Terrorism

B	I	N	G	O
God bless America	Red state	Michael J. Fox	Mandate	Back to you
Florida	Mark Foley	Campaign trail	Conservative	Terrorism
My fellow...	A real horse race	FREE SPACE	Weapons of mass destruction	John Kerry
Libertarian	Nip and tuck	Support the troops	Saddam Hussein	Taxes
Stem cell	A referendum on the Iraq war	Control of the House	Gay marriage	Too close to call

B	I	N	G	O
Independent	My fellow...	Blue state	Gay marriage	Exit polling
Terrorism	Ohio	Weapons of mass destruction	God bless you	A real nail-biter
Osama bin Laden	Too close to call	FREE SPACE	John Kerry	Speaker Dennis Hastert
Conservative	Control of the Senate	Stem cell	Campaign trail	Florida
Mark Foley	A real horse race	Support the troops	Nip and tuck	A referendum on the Iraq war

BUTTERED | Ring in Flesh = Not Good Outcome

By Jess Boatwright

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Wednesday, November 8, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 58

SPECIAL SECTION
Men's basketball coach Bob Huggins has brought a new attitude to K-State

Vote '06

New ballot system implemented in Riley County, children encouraged to rock the vote, inspire parents

GOVERNOR/LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR
Jim Barnett/Susan Wagle (R) 41%
Kathleen Sebelius/Mark Parkinson (D) 58%
Richard Lee Ranzau/Ellen L. Verell (F) 1%
Carl Kramer/Kalor Hebron (L) 1%

Yesterday's election went off without a hitch, even with the introduction of a new ballot system. The electronic voting system was devised as a way to more efficiently collect votes.

The electronic, touch-screen machines were introduced throughout Riley County. It was the only system used this year in the county.

According to county clerk Rich Vargo, the new system worked better than last year, and there were no electronic problems.

"It's better because you don't have so many paper ballots. It's a much better system," Vargo said. "We are able to process a large number of ballots faster."

Below are the Election results:

STUDENTS VOLUNTEER, INTRODUCE KIDS TO VOTING

Lola Gieber, 5, watches her father Brian Gieber fill out a form allowing her to vote at the Grace Baptist Church on Tuesday evening. Kids Voting USA allows anyone under 18 to vote.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

By Megan Molitor
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It didn't matter if you were 8 or 18 today, you could still cast your vote at many Manhattan locations.

Kids Voting USA is an organization whose goal is to "get students involved and ready to be educated, engaged citizens," according to www.kidsvotingusa.org.

"Students learn about democracy through a combination of classroom activities, an authentic voting experience, and family dialogue," the Web site stated.

K-State students volunteered their time to work the Kids Voting tables, where children who accompanied their parents could cast their own vote for governor, U.S. House of Representatives or state offices, complete with pictures of the candidates.

One location that took part was the K-State Foundation Center.

Nick Martin, junior in speech communication, said they worked around school hours so kids were available to attend.

"We were open from 7 to 9 a.m., and we'll be here from 3 to 7 this evening," Martin said Tuesday night.

He said that the program also works around what is called the trickle effect.

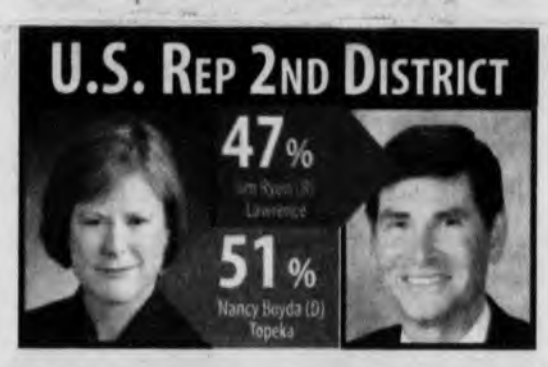
"If a child urges his parents to go vote so that he can participate in the program, then the parent is more likely to go and vote," Martin said.

The results will be calculated at the end of the day, and will be available in a couple weeks, as it is a nationwide program, said Julia Svendblad, senior in business management and human resources.

"It gives kids a chance to see how grown-ups vote," Svendblad said. "If they get into the routine of voting, then they have a better chance of voting when they come of age."

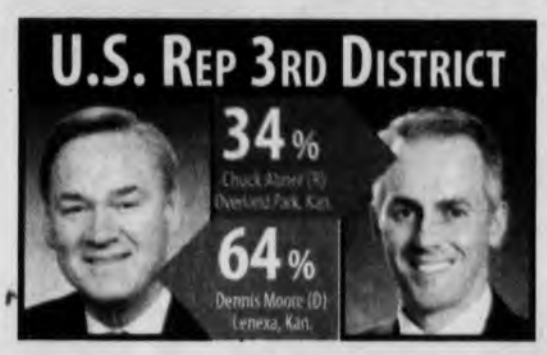
While less than 10 children attended, both said the children enjoyed it.

"One really little girl came in with her dad so he could help her fill out the ballot, and made him pick out only the girls, because she didn't want to vote for any boys," Svendblad said.



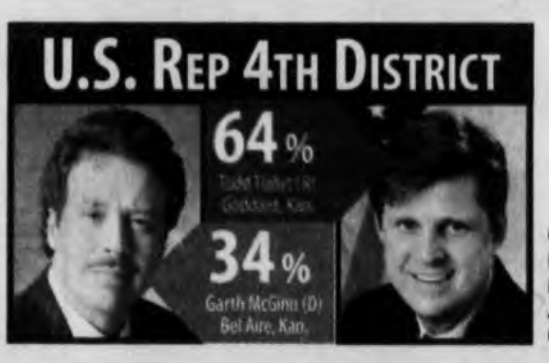
This was the first year of participation for both Svendblad and Martin.

U.S. REP 1ST DISTRICT



79% Jerry Moran (R) Hays, Kan.
19% John Doll (D) Garden City, Kan.

U.S. REP 2ND DISTRICT



47% Jim Ryun (R) Lawrence
51% Nancy Boyda (D) Topeka

U.S. REP 3RD DISTRICT

34% Chuck Ahner (R) Overland Park, Kan.
64% Dennis Moore (D) Lenexa, Kan.

U.S. REP 4TH DISTRICT

64% Todd Tiahrt (R) Goddard, Kan.
34% Garth McGinn (D) Bel Aire, Kan.

STATE OFFICES

Secretary of State
David Haley (D) 32%
Ron Thornburgh (R) 64%
Rob Hodgkinson (L) 3%
Joseph L. Martin (F) 2%

Attorney General
Phill Kline (R) 42%
Paul Morrison (D) 58%

State Treasurer
Lynn Jenkins (R) 65%
Larry Wilson (D) 35%

Insurance Commissioner
Patrick Wilbur (L) 4%
Sandy Praeger (R) 63%
Bonnie Sharp (D) 32%

State Rep, 67th District
Tom Hawk, (D) 58%
Dick Miller (R) 43%

* Results as of 2:30 a.m. press time.
For additional election results please visit www.kstatecollegian.com

Compiled by Emily Lawrence, Megan Moser, and Josh Rouse
COLLEGIAN

Workshop teaches women self defense, rape prevention tactics

By Eric Davis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Alpha Delta Pi sorority and FarmHouse fraternity were host to a self-defense workshop Tuesday night to educate women about self defense.

Alissa Pickel, senior in elementary education and event coordinator, said it is important for women to know how to defend themselves in the case they are ever attacked by a man.

"This is the first time we have done this and we hope to have about 350 girls," Pickel said.

The workshop was led by staff members from the Ali Kemp Foundation. Ali Kemp was a K-State student and a member of the Pi Beta Phi sorority who was murdered June 18, 2002, as she worked at a pool in her hometown of Leawood, Kan., according to former articles in the Collegian.

Grant Yost, senior in mechanical engineering, said rather than a specific style of defense, the girls were taught specific moves to avoid attackers.

"They are going to learn moves like the one that (a) Raiders lineman got ejected for on Monday Night Football," Yost said as he helped several of his fraternity brothers fill the bases of dummies for the girls to hit and kick.

Following the workshop there was a reception in the next room. The main purpose of the reception was to raise money for the foundation itself. A $3 donation was requested, but not required for the reception, while the workshop was free.

"It's an opportunity for the girls to eat after they did all those workouts," Yost said.

Also shown during the evening was a presentation on the Ali Kemp Foundation, information on who Ali Kemp was and a video from America's Most Wanted.

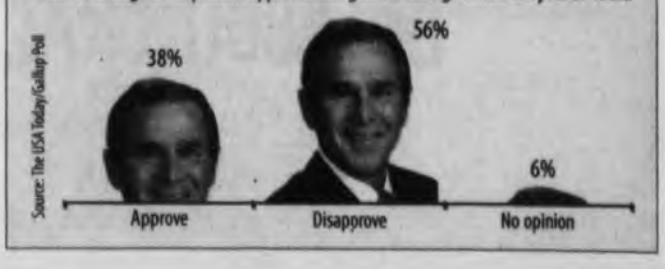
Melissa Zielke, senior in elementary education, uses a "palm-heal strike" to hit a dummy while practicing one of the tactics taught during a workshop Tuesday night in the ballroom of the K-State Student Union.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 83 Low: 49

INSIDE

Stress busters
As the semester winds down and stress is on the rise, discover some techniques to relieve the tension.
See Sports, Page 5



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

K-State Idol
K-State Idol will be at 7 tonight in Forum Hall. Similar to television series "American Idol," students will perform songs for a set of judges. At the end, one champion will be selected. Auditions for K-State Idol were Oct. 30. For more information about K-State Idol, visit www.ksu.edu/upc.

Landon Lecture
There are about 1,000 tickets still available for Thursday's Landon Lecture with U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. They will be distributed beginning at 10 a.m. today at the northwest ticket window of Bramlage Coliseum until tickets are gone. They will be distributed on a first come, first served basis.

Time change
The Military Science Building dedication to Gen. Richard B. Myers Hall has been changed to 1 p.m. Thursday so U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld can attend. Myers was the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the principal military adviser for Rumsfeld, President Bush and the National Security Council.

Bush's pre-election job-approval rating
President Bush's approval rating is lower than the 46 percent job-approval rating President Clinton had before the 1994 Republican landslide, and also lower than President Reagan's 42 percent approval rating in the strong Democratic year of 1982.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Zoo structure
5 Hold the rights to
8 Andy's pal
12 Emcee Trebek
13 Caviar base
14 Tiddlywinks, for one
15 Maker of small cars
17 Elevator name
18 Actor Davis
19 Doctrines
21 Salver
24 Former U.A.R. member
25 Last word spoken in "The Wizard of Oz"
28 "— and Circumstance"
30 Conditions
33 Geologic period
34 Auto style
35 Foreman foe
36 Drench
37 Deuce topper
38 Speak unclearly
39 Seesaw quorum
41 Timber wolf
43 Little bits of hardware
46 Time for a shower?
50 Bee keeper played by Peter Fonda
51 Famed WWI spy
54 State secretary under JFK
55 Employ
56 Part of the loop
57 Crockett portrayer Parker
58 Dead heat
59 "— Misbehavin'"

DOWN
1 GIs' concealment garb, for short
2 "Oh, woe"
3 Comprehends
4 Enthuse
5 Sphere
6 Seek the heart of
7 Barbershop call
8 Great pain
9 Fabric
10 Leave out
11 Mtg.
16 That girl
20 "Sports-zone" network
22 Mimic
23 Mountain air?
25 Chop
26 Mined-over matter
27 Futon
29 BLT enhancer
31 Winter ailment
32 Round Table address
34 Pack away
38 Ms. Loren
40 Certain sets of seven
42 Sheepish comment
43 Cruise the Internet
44 Hint
45 Pornography
47 Hindu princess
48 Press agent?
49 Fluff
52 "— was saying, ..."
53 Ball prop

Solution time: 21 mins.

Y	E	A	R		S	A	P		I	C	O	N
A	N	T	I		C	U	R		N	A	P	A
K	E	E	P	S	A	K	E		S	N	A	P
			S	U	M		M	E	T	T	L	E
S	T	R	A	P		A	I	D	E
T	H	A	W		S	L	E	E	P	O	F	F
O	E	R		S	P	U	R	N		V	I	E
P	E	E	P	H	O	L	E		F	A	D	E
			A	U	R	A		P	I	L	O	T
F	A	J	I	T	A		K	I	D
U	S	E	D			D	E	E	P	D	O	W	N
L	I	S	U			I	M	P		L	U	A	U
L	A	P	P		C	U	T		E	R	S	T

Yesterday's answer 11-8

1	2	3	4	■	5	6	7	■	8	9	10	11
12				■	13			■	14
15				16				■	17
18					■	■	19	20
■	■	■	21		22	23	■	24			■	■
25	26	27		■	28		29		■	30	31	32
33			■	34					■	35
36			■	37				■	38
■	■	39	40		■	41		42		■	■	■
43	44				45	■	■	46		47	48	49
50				■	51	52	53
54				■	55			■	56
57				■	58			■	59

11-8 CRYPTOQUIP

PT FPTG OX QNHS FNBRPJR LNHDG PD GJXPSGFQ LHUBSHU, P'B DOQ QNH'SG O INSGB INOSBGS.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: BECAUSE MY POOR DOG IS PLAGUED BY SMALL PARASITES, YOU MIGHT SAY HE'S TICK-SKINNED.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: S equals R

ON THE WEB

The version of the Collegian that doesn't leave ink on your fingers

Your picks for Photo of the Week

1st: "High Five," 32 votes, 32%

Don't forget to vote for this week's photos at www.kstatecollegian.com.

2nd: "Fighting Forces," 25 votes, 25%

3rd: "Defeated Again," 16 votes, 16%

TABERNACLE WOODS

By Donnie Jay

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

- A Fair Trade Marketplace will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today through Thursday in the Union Ballroom.
- Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.
- Alpha Gamma Epsilon Student Gerontology Club will meet at 5 p.m. Thursday in Leasure 103.
- Career and Employment Services will have a dining etiquette workshop at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the Gold Room at the Derby Dining Center. Participants must have been registered by Nov. 3.
- Sign up for the intramural swim meet by Thursday in the office at the Peters Recreation Complex. The swim meet will be at 7 p.m. Nov. 16 and 20 at the Natatorium. The entry fee is $1.08 per person (including tax). For more information, call 532-6980.
- Rink Dickinson, co-founder and co-executive director of Equal Exchange, will present his lecture "A Taste for Justice" at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Union Ballroom. The event is part of the Lou Douglas Lecture Series on Public Issues.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jill Bieker at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Practice Management Center in Trotter Hall.
- The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Denise Guy at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Bluemont 368.
- There will be a SafeZone training advanced session titled "A View from Under the Rainbow GBLTQ Topics and Information" 5-6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. Check in is at 4:45 p.m.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

FALL into SAVINGS
SALON 1
$20 Any highlight or color and haircut
$10 Any highlight or color
$6 Men's Haircut, Eyebrow Wax, Lip Wax
3104 ANDERSON AVE. 785.539.3626 MANHATTAN, KS 66503
HURRY IN! APPOINTMENTS ARE LIMITED! EXPIRES 11.30.06

GOODSON AUTO TRIM
Since 1958
Complete Upholstering & Fabric • Custom Made Auto & Truck Seat Covers • Convertible Tops • Headliners • Boat Upholstery & Covers • Vinyl Tops
776-7679
201 SARBER LN • BETWEEN K-MART & WAL-MART

Think You can Do Better?
SPRING 2007
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Executive Position
Editor in chief
• Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 10
• Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors • News Editors
• Photo Journalists • Desk Editors
• Graphic Journalists • Reporters
• Graphic Artists • Designers
• Online Journalists • Copy Editors
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 17
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Wednesday Specials
$2 any pint & wells
$2.50 uv blue bombs
$3.50 flavored long islands, carbombs & summerbeer

GUMBY'S Pizza
We roll ours fatter...
We are talking about our
50¢ pizza rolls All Day sauce extra
$1 Bud & Bud Light Draws
50¢ Pool All Day

OUR PIGS DON'T GET ADDED GROWTH HORMONES, ANTIBIOTICS OR ADDITIONAL TIME WHEN TAKING STANDARDIZED TESTS.
HONEST INGREDIENTS. Chipotle
IN AGGIEVILLE

K-state alumni new owners of Harry's and Howdy's

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The new owners of Harry's Restaurant and Howdy's, the adjacent deli, are K-State alumni.

The couple, Evan and Andrea Grier, bought the restaurants, 418 Poyntz, Aug. 1 from former owner Julie Haynes.

"We were living in California and we've always wanted to have our own business," Andrea said. "We approached Julie about buying the place. Harry's has always been a special place to us because we came here when we were students and it's the best food in town."

When the couple bought the restaurants, they kept the entire staff, including the executive chef, pastry chef and sous chef.

"We're fortunate to have a core group of people who've been here and contributed to the previous success of the restaurant," Evan said. "We look forward to carrying on the tradition of great food and top-notch service."

The couple, who said they plan to keep Harry's in its traditional state, have made improvements for the restaurant.

"We launched our Web site, www.harrysmanhattan.com, these past two months and we're continuing to develop it," Andrea said. "We have our menu, maps, how to contact us and the daily lunch and dinner specials for both Howdy's and Harry's on the site. We're also going to add the capabilities to make reservations online."

The menu for Harry's will change throughout the year and the dessert menu will change three to four times a year, the couple said. They expect new changes to the menu to be completed by the time basketball season starts.

"There are a lot of different menu choices that are very, very affordable," Andrea said. "It's like a good bottle of wine; you shouldn't always save it for a special occasion. You can come down and have a fresh, brick-oven pizza and a beer for $10."

The menu offers a range of dishes including Harry's burger and the sesame salmon with prices from $6 to $34.

"People say our filets are the best they've ever had," Evan said. "And customer favorites are our bruschetta appetizer and the filet royale. A close second is our prime rib."

Howdy's, the lunch place next door, and what Andrea calls "Manhattan's best-kept secret," is a deli counter that features a special dish everyday. It's open 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"It's a casual lunch deli that comes from a high-end full-service kitchen," Evan said.

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
K-State alumni Evan and Andrea Grier bought Harry's Restaurant and Howdy's, the adjacent deli, located at 418 Poyntz from former owner Julie Haynes on Aug. 1.

"There's not many of those around. Howdy's is the best lunch deal for students."

Prices at Howdy's range from $5.25 to $7.

Everything is made from scratch at both restaurants, Evan said.

Andrea said Harry's really cannot be compared to any place in Kansas City or Wichita, and most patrons agree.

Meghan Orr, two-year employee and current training manager of Harry's, said the transition to new ownership has been smooth.

"I love Harry's," she said. "I think Manhattan is lucky to have it. As a member of the community I think it's great to have a fine dining restaurant in such a small community. The new owners are smart and they know what they are doing. I really like them."

Both Evan and Andrea Grier agree Harry's and Howdy's are not just about the food – they're about the people.

Magic with a message

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Tennyson McCarty and Jim Munroe will present "The Maze" at 8 tonight in the K-State Student Union Ballroom. The event is free and open to the public.

McCarty and Munroe will also perform card tricks and illusions from about 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in the Bosco Student Plaza.

Dave Diefendorf, director for Midwest Student Ministries, said the illusionists could be compared to David Blaine, a street and close-up magic and stunt performer.

They will approach people around campus while doing their street-style magic.

During the evening performance, Diefendorf said the illusionists will perform more elaborate illusions and bigger tricks, tying in a message of reality and truth.

For more information visit www.whatisthemaze.com.

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

dependable, quality service
√5¢ self-serve copies
Claflin Books and Copies

ATTENTION Faculty and Staff
Ask why discerning faculty members have us manage their
Regents' Retirement Plan Accounts
Kramer Capital Management
601 Leavenworth - Manhattan
785-539-0110
www.rickkramer.com
email with subject: "Regent Plan" to rgkramer@cox.net

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

$1.50 Drinks
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL

we're serious this time.

At 50, you'll want to show everyone what you looked like in college.
So, come get your free yearbook picture taken:
Today, Nov. 8
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Kramer Dining Center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.
Thursday, Nov. 9
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Derby Dining center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.
Friday, Nov. 10
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Vet Med 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
It will also prove that you actually did attend college.
royalpurple yearbook

LANDON LECTURE SERIES
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY

Donald Rumsfeld
Secretary of Defense
Thursday, November 9, 2006
11:00 a.m.
Bramlage Coliseum

To losers of all parties

Both Democrats, Republicans have opportunities to improve strategies

JONAS HOGG

Undoubtedly, the greatest tragedy of 2006 is that every officeholder from sea to shining sea was not promptly tossed out on his or her ginormous bureaucratic behind.

Being that we are encumbered with some form of government which excludes me in my rightful position as "Beloved leader whose intellect rises above mountains and whose wisdom fills the depths of the sea," we must resign ourselves to another round of the United States' one-party system posing as a two-party system.

However, in my infinite graciousness, here is advice to both parties.

Dear Democrats,

Through some bizarre crank in space and time, the American voters – both living and dead – have given you another shot at power. Contrary to popular belief, you weren't voted out because we thought the other guys would do better. You were voted out because they couldn't possibly do any worse.

After the Berlin Wall came down, the Democratic Congress along with President Billy Boy Clinton had carte blanche to remake the world. This you did not do, and you did not do it in such a spectacular way, the party that had been kept out of power for years came roaring back.

Instead of a strong presence in the world and standing up when fanatics bombed military barracks, we got political correctness, a presidency that devolved into a worldwide laughingstock, and the entire decade of the '90s, which could be called, in general, a horrible, tacky misadventure.

My advice is to lay off these looney social programs that no one except East-Coasters like. If you insist on bringing these up, I shall insist on slapping you until these ideas are replaced by actual measures the American public will buy into – and yes, I am willing to keep slapping, keep slapping, keep slapping until the common sense you so desperately need is osmosed from my mighty hand into your thin, gruelish brains.

Dear Republicans,

Knock it off.

When we decided to give you oafs the reigns of power, we did it in good faith that you were too stupid to accomplish anything, which is what we wanted.

Somehow, somewhere, you forgot that you were not, in fact, Democrats. You fail to realize that if we wanted Democrats, we would have voted for Democrats.

So when the party of Ronald Reagan started grabbing money with both hands and with a loud "Yee-haw" and began spending like sailors on shore leave, we were left wondering where the Republican party had gone. My insight was to check under a rock. Upon looking I found not only the Republicans but our civil liberties and parking service employees' self-respect.

Plumbing my pool of wisdom, I offer the following to Republicans: start shopping for 2008 candidates today.

Everyone except you ninnies has figured out the Democrats have a healthy pick of winnable candidates. You, on the other hand, have randy congressmen from Florida. I predict that if you run Frist or any other bumbler against any Democrat ticket that has an Obama, Richardson or, dare I say, Sebelius on it, you are going to lose, lose, lose like the stinking hog-faced losers that you seem determined to be.

Most of us don't buy the social conservative thing. We want a fiscal conservative who will decentralize witch-burnings back to the gay-prostitute shopping, meth-doing super churches where they belong.

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell | COLLEGIAN

Jonas Hogg is a sophomore in sociology, international studies and Russian. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Sarcasm exposes gruesome reality of partial-birth abortions

KODY COOPER

Today, the U.S. Supreme Court will hear two arguments on the federal law banning partial-birth abortion.

The cases come six years after Stenberg v. Carhart, where the Supreme Court upheld 5-4 a woman's right to obtain a partial-birth abortion.

With the replacement of Justice Sandra Day O'Connor by Justice Samuel Alito, many think the new court will overturn that decision.

What exactly is a partial-birth abortion? (WARNING: if you have a weak stomach, stop reading now.)

First the abortionist dilates the mother's cervix, and the fetus is extracted with forceps. The fetus is then dismembered piecemeal or, as one doctor testified, the abortionist "basically tears off pieces of the fetus and pulls them out."

Some abortion doctors don't favor tearing fetuses limb from limb. Instead, they prefer a more imaginative method called "dilation and extraction." When fetuses are more developed in the mid to late second trimester and early third trimester, the abortionist must be a bit more creative.

After dilating the cervix, the abortionist grabs the fetus by its feet and pulls him or her out of the uterus into the vaginal cavity. Just a few inches from birth, the fetus is stuck in this position, partially dangling outside the mother's body. The abortionist then stabs the fetal skull with a pair of scissors and proceeds to vacuum out his or her "intracranial contents."

The Supreme Court declared in 2000 that this procedure was protected by the U.S. Constitution.

As I have asked before, I continue to ponder what Thomas Jefferson really meant when he said, "What signify a few lives lost in a century or two? The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time, with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure."

I don't think he was talking about autocratic monarchs and democratic colonials. No, he was talking about despotic fetuses and oppressed women.

The fetus is not a nascent human being but a tyrant. Partial-birth abortion isn't murder – it's fertilization. It is only with a little uterine blood from patriotic women mixed with the wicked blood of partially-birthed and aborted tyrants that we have the fecund manure necessary to fertilize the tree of female liberty.

Without this steady flow of bloody fertilizer, there is no guarantee women can continue to divorce sex from procreation. Women cannot be guaranteed to have sex without the responsibility of motherhood.

So, I rhetorically ask the Supreme Court: what signify forty million lives lost in a decade or two? The tree of female liberty must be refreshed with the blood of patriotic women and tyrannical fetuses. Unwanted babies are its natural manure.

Now, I'm sure we'll hear the banal nagging of Christians. They'll cry out all human beings have dignity and deserve equal respect and treatment no matter their stage of development.

Well, I point them to their Bibles and Hebrews 9:22, which says, "Without the shedding of blood, there is no forgiveness of sins."

My dear Christians, open your ears that you may hear.

Unless we continue to shed the blood of partially birthed fetuses, we will never atone for two hundred years of sinfully forcing women to have children.

May the blood continue to flow, and may we be forgiven.

Editor's note: While the content of this column might be offensive, it is sarcastic.

Kody Cooper is a fifth year senior in political science and Spanish. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Mosier | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTAION EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads.....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Students should attend Rumsfeld lecture, demand answers to their many questions

As reporters, there are times we would give our left arms to get face time with a significant U.S. politician. To be able to ask any question we want to a figurehead like the Secretary of Defense is a great opportunity in the journalism world.

That's why, when we see students using that precious time following a Landon Lecture to fawn over the dignitary du jour or ask a relatively inane question, it's difficult to watch.

Donald Rumsfeld, a major player in the Iraq war and national security, will speak on campus Thursday. Many tickets to his speech are yet unspoken for, and to welcome him with a half-empty coliseum would be embarassing.

Whether students agree with his politics or not, it will be worthwhile to hear what a man in his position has to say. Furthermore, those students who most vehemently oppose Rumsfeld's stances should want to go the most, if only to demand answers to their questions.

Even those who aren't involved in politics are likely to get a better understanding of the decisions that affect major world events by listening to such a lecture.

On Thursday, let's fill Bramlage Coliseum and grill Rumsfeld, proving the K-State student body is not only politically savvy but also vigilant of world events.

CAMPUS FOURUM
395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Why are all those people protesting Jim Ryun waving?

Sometimes I put my roommate's glasses in the toilet when she isn't home.

Hey, Phill Kline, I'm sorry about your situation. But if you need a job, my pool needs cleaning. Thanks.

What's with the guy that has all those pieces of flair on his backpack? Does he work at Tchotskes or something?

Dude, I saw scooter girl off the scooter. It was amazing.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Your health | Mental strength

Stress busters

By Trent Scott
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It's November and the semester is almost over.

Wait a second. It's November.

That means the last round of tests are coming up, finals are just a few weeks away, and that project you've been putting off for the last two months is laughing at you as it slaps you in your unsuspecting face.

It's going to be a great month.

With all of the responsibilities that come with the end of the semester, so does stress.

Unmanaged, stress can lead to a number of problems and turn your wonderful life into a saddening and meager existence. According to the American Institute of Stress, excess stress can lead to weight gain, constant tiredness, weakness, fatigue and even more threatening, cardiovascular disease and hypertension.

Therefore, it is crucial to relieve stress effectively and regularly, and exercise is a great way to do just that.

Here's a workout that won't take a lot of your time but is sure to put your mind and body at ease.

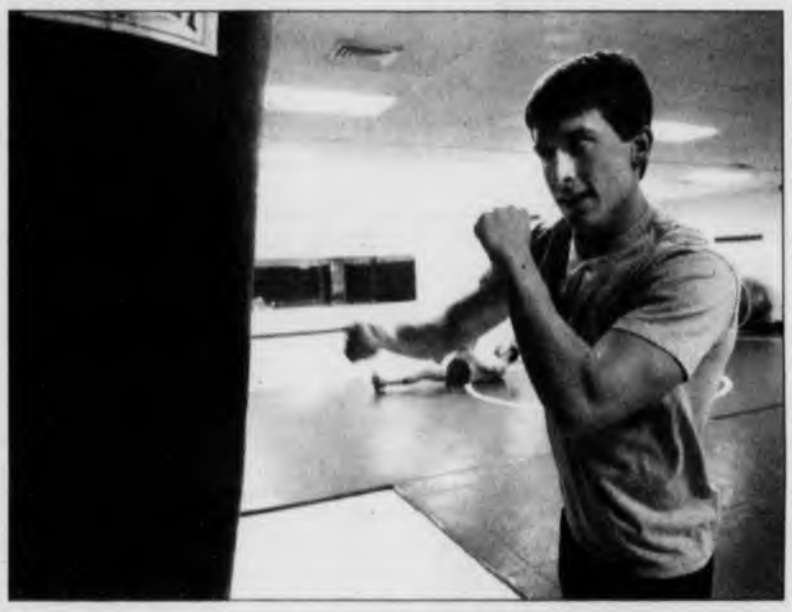
Run for 15 minutes

Running loosens you up and gets your blood flowing. Whether it be on a treadmill or the track, run at a pace that is 60 to 70 percent of your maximum heart rate. You can find your maximum heart rate by using simple math. Take your age and subtract that number from 220.

1. Climb stairs for 10 minutes

Hop on a stair mill and climb at a pace that is comfortable yet brisk. Try skipping every other stair for a minute at a time to really activate the large muscle groups of your lower body.

3. Jump rope for five sets at 50 repetitions per set



Jumping rope is a great cardiovascular and total-body workout.

Jump ropes can be checked out from the equipment desk on the first floor of Peters Recreation Complex.

2. Do three sets of push-ups to exhaustion

Push-ups are a great exercise that uses many of the muscle groups of your upper body. Do as many repetitions as you can for each set to work your chest and arms.

4. Hit a punching bag for four 1-minute sets

This is undoubtedly the ultimate stress-relieving exercise. If you've never whaled on a punching bag before, I promise that doing so for a minute will really get your heart racing. It's a fantastic aerobic and upper-body workout and nothing releases stress like pounding your fists into something.

Punching bags can be found on the second floor of the Rec Complex in the Combatives Room.

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

'Comfort food' is not the answer to handling stress

MELISSA HAUG

As your daily schedule becomes swamped with meetings, work, social dilemmas, exams and homework, be aware of how stress affects your daily eating habits.

Are you an emotional eater or do you lose your appetite and sleep when you've got a lot on your mind? Do you tend to pack on the "winter weight" or feel more fatigued when stress causes a lost appetite?

This winter, don't let stress get the best of you. Instead, fight back by eating healthy and exercising.

Emotional eaters might find themselves reaching for that handful of Hershey's Hugs or Kisses when the going gets tough, and although a "hug" would be nice at that moment, a chocolate one is not a quality replacement.

With anger, depression and stress, mood-triggered eating gives a "feel-good" sensation. However, eating to cope with momentary emotions only leads to negative feelings later.

Learning to deal with stress in a positive way, without the excess calories, can improve mood-triggered eating habits while increasing self-awareness and self-satisfaction.

Although you might lack an appetite, skipping meals and snacks will leave you feeling even more tired or fatigued. Lack of a proper diet hampers concentration, and increases your irritability.

Consider eating by the clock instead of by your appetite when chaos creeps up on you.

The ideal way to keep your body in proper working order this season is to improve your eating habits. Start by journaling your current habits to recognize areas of needed improvement.

Then reduce high-fat meals by including more fruits, vegetables and whole grains in your diet.

Fruits, vegetables and whole grains provide a variety of necessary vitamins, minerals and fiber that keep both taste buds and tummies satisfied.

Fruits and vegetables can double as a low-calorie, fat-free treat, or a healthy side dish. Whole grains give your body the energy boost it needs to take on daily activities.

Regular exercise serves as a substantial method in reducing stress. By burning excess calories, you not only forget about the reason you are stressed, but you also prevent weight gain and increase your appetite for healthy foods.

Go the extra mile this winter, literally, and reduce stress, manage weight, and eat healthy. You'll feel better about yourself. I promise.

Melissa Haug is a senior in public health nutrition and dietetics and a nutrition consultant and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

News & Notes

Moreira out for season, Watts not ruling out a return

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Senior wide receiver Jermaine Moreira will not play for the remainder of the season due to an undisclosed injury, coach Ron Prince announced during Tuesday's press conference.

"It's a medical issue there," Prince said. "We're trying to get all the final answers for that. We'll probably announce that later with the specifics, but Jermaine will not play."

Despite missing the last two games, Moreira is still K-State's leader in receiving yardage. He has 23 receptions for 419 yards this season.

Moreira will finish his career as a Wildcat ranked seventh with 114 career receptions, and eighth in career receiving yards with 1,587.

K-STATE SET TO PLAY TEXAS

Texas (9-1 overall, 6-0 Big 12 Conference) arrives in Manhattan ranked No. 4 in the nation. This will be the fourth game for the Wildcats this season against a ranked opponent.

K-State is 0-3 in those matchups this season and has not beaten a ranked team since the 2003 Big 12 Championship victory over Oklahoma.

"They're an impressive team on tape," Prince said of Texas. "They have a very good coaching staff. With all that said, we like our chances. We like our home crowd. We like being here."

True freshman running back Leon Patton is again listed as the starter on the depth chart, after James Johnson started the last two games.

WATTS COULD BE BACK

Junior safety Marcus Watts – previously thought to be out for the season due to a hand injury he suffered five weeks ago – might be available to play if K-State receives a bid for a bowl game, Prince said.

Because K-State has a 6-4 record, the team likely will play a game in the later part of December for the first time in two seasons, which could allow Watts to make a return.

"If you listen to his text message and voice mail and e-mail to me after the game, you'd think that's the case," Prince said. "He's decided that that's the case. We'll have to see what the medical people say."

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | K-State takes on Baylor tonight at Ahearn Field House

The K-State women's volleyball team began its tumble toward the bottom of the Big 12 Conference standings in a match against Baylor on Sept. 9 in Waco, Texas.

That match, a 3-1 loss to the Bears, was the Wildcats' first conference match of the season. Things haven't improved since.

The Wildcats (9-16, 1-14 Big 12) have lost 14 of 15 conference matches and sit alone at the bottom of the standings, two full games behind Kansas. With just five matches remaining, the Wildcats have little time to climb out of last place.

Baylor at K-State
When: 7 tonight
Where: Ahearn Field House
Radio: 1350 KMAN
Live stats available at k-statesports.com

K-State will get its first opportunity to do so starting with Wednesday's rematch against the Bears (15-11, 4-10 Big 12) at Ahearn Field House.

Like the Wildcats, the Bears have struggled to win in conference play this season. However, they have been able to pull out wins in two of their last three matches — including a 3-2 win against then-No. 16 Missouri.

K-State will try to counter with its own attack, which has received solid play from sophomore middle blocker Megan Farr. In four of the last seven matches, Farr has registered double figures in kills — including career high efforts of 15 kills in matches against Oklahoma and at Missouri.

Sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker also has been steady, pacing the Wildcats with a team-high 132 blocks. Kroeker averages 1.42 blocks per game, which ranks fourth in the Big 12.

— Jeffrey Rake

CBK | No. 1 high school recruit Beasley could sign with K-State

Michael Beasley will get his chance to stay true to his word today.

Beasley and three other K-State verbal commits can sign with the Wildcats today, which is National Signing Day for men's college basketball.

Huggins

Beasley, who is the No. 1 men's basketball recruit for the 2007 class according to Rivals.com, verbally committed to K-State on June 23. While at "Madness in Manhattan" on Oct. 13, he said he would sign with the Wildcats the first day he could.

"Definitely, I'm a Kansas State Wildcat," Beasley said.

Guards Fred Brown and Jacob Pullen and forward Dominique Sutton are three other players who might sign with K-State today. All three players are rated as three-star recruits on Rivals.

Coach Bob Huggins announced on Nov. 3 that Bill Walker signed a financial aid agreement and could join the team on Dec. 16. Walker, who is the No. 6-ranked player for the 2007 class according to Rivals, graduated from North College Hill High School in Cincinnati early after the state of Ohio ruled he had used all of his basketball playing eligibility.

Associated Press

CBK | Giles dismissed from team, 1 week after being reinstated

LAWRENCE — Kansas Jayhawks forward C.J. Giles was dismissed from the team Tuesday after a student reported Giles had dragged her from his apartment by her feet and hit her.

University police ticketed Giles for misdemeanor battery, and he was given a notice to appear in municipal court on the battery charge. Giles was not taken into custody.

In dismissing Giles from the team, coach Bill Self noted Giles' "pattern of irresponsible behavior and disrespect for team rules."

Giles had been reinstated to the team last week but was told he would not be allowed to play in any games this semester. Self announced Oct. 17 that the 6-foot-11 junior would be barred from practice until he resolved personal issues, which included, but were not limited to, poor academic performance.

At the time, Giles had an appearance pending in Douglas County District Court on allegations of owing $4,097 in child support to the mother of his 1-year-old son.

A judge later postponed the hearing to Jan. 8, 2007.

A stand-up performance

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Comedian Michael Ian Black performs Tuesday evening in McCain Auditorium. Black has performed on Comedy Central's "Stella," VH1's "I Love the '70s/'80s/'90s" and "Wet Hot American Summer."

Black tells of showbiz successes, failures, spends time on Q&A session

By Eric Brown
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

"I do not tell jokes," Michael Ian Black said midway through his performance Tuesday night. "I am just the guy who talks about the Rubik's Cube on VH1."

Black's stand-up comedy performance in McCain Auditorium, sponsored by the Union Program Council, covered an array of topics. Whether the 35-year-old comedian, actor and comedy writer was discussing white power, comparing the president to the Nazi party, describing his strategy for avoiding bear attacks or trying to convince the crowd that 85 percent of men are homosexuals, the 601 attendees responded enthusiastically throughout the show.

Black performs for a crowd Tuesday evening in McCain Auditorium.

"I enjoyed the performance in general," Cameron Traxson, junior in elementary education, said. "He definitely kept me laughing the whole time."

Black remained on stage to answer questions. One audience member asked why the Comedy Central show "Stella," which Black created, only lasted one season.

"Because you're the only one who watched it, my friend," Black responded.

Black also rewarded a member of the audience with $2 for being the first to ever observe that he holds the microphone to his chin when he performs.

Erica Boatman, entertainment co-chair for the Union Program Council, said she thought the show was a success.

"I felt like the show was great," said Boatman, junior in apparel marketing and design. "Many of the audience members knew all of his former work, and I think that he responded positively to that as well."

But those who were not familiar with Black's work also enjoyed the performance.

"I didn't really know that much about him beforehand," Addie Snyder, junior in elementary education, said. "I think seeing his show tonight has caused me to have more of an interest in his comedy."

Biography

Michael Ian Black was born in Chicago,but his family moved to Hillsborough, N.J., when he was young. His parents divorced when he was three. When he was seven, his father died during neurological surgery following a mysterious assault.

Michael attended New York University's Tisch School of the Arts but left before graduation. It was there he met and joined the core group of the comedy group The State, which had a short run with its own MTV show, "The State" (1993), before attempting a move to CBS in the mid '90s; its make-or-break Halloween special fell short of expectations, and a CBS series never came into fruition. Since then Black has appeared as a regular on Comedy Central's "Reno 911!" (2003) starring Thomas Lennon, Ben Garant and Kerri Kenney.

In addition to his regular television appearances, he also performs in the comedy group "Stella" (2005) with fellow State alumni Michael Showalter and David Wain.

Fast Facts

- Was the voice of the pets.com sock puppet.
- He is a middle child
- Was not the original choice to play Phil Stubbs on NBC's "Ed" (2000); fellow "I Love the '80s" (2002) (mini) commentator Donal Logue played the role in the first episode, but backed out due to scheduling conflicts.
- Has a daughter, Ruth, born 2003. She made an appearance in the "Stella" (2005) short "Friendship."
- His birth name, Schwartz, is derived from the German word "schwarz," which has the same meaning as his stage name, Black. He has joked that he dropped the name Schwartz because "I'm ashamed of my Jewishness." However, the comedy group "Stella" (2005)'s uniting theme is the 3 members' Jewishness (Black, Michael Showalter, and David Wain).
- Real name is Michael Schwartz, but changed his name to Michael Ian Black because there was already a popular actor named Michael Schwartz.

Source: Internet Movie Database

November is peak apple season — make that pie

Upon the release of the movie "American Pie," people started paying a little bit of attention – accompanied by many giggles – to the traditional American dessert.

While some of us might still giggle at the sight of an apple pie, I will admit I cannot resist. And I seriously doubt many others can, too.

ANNETTE LAWLESS

According to the Michigan Apple Committee, the average American consumes about 19 pounds of fresh apples each year. Among those apples consumed, about 300 varieties are grown in the United States, including fun and exotic names like the Cleopatra, Tsugaru, Pewaukee, Keepsake, Elstar, Pink Princess, Sayaka and Winter Banana.

In spirit of my love for the apple and with November being the peak of apple season, I want to be sure everyone enjoys a good slice of warm apple pie.

Try one of these tasty recipes to satisfy your needs to have a good bit of apple right here in the Little Apple.

Annette Lawless is a senior in political science, print journalism and public relations. Please send comments to edge@spub.ksu.edu.

APPLE CRISP

Ingredients:

6 Granny Smith or Washington apples, peeled, cored and slice thinly
1 cup water
1 (18.25 ounce) package white cake mix
1 cup brown sugar, packed
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 cup margarine, melted

Directions:

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
2. Lightly grease a 9 x13 inch baking dish.
3. Arrange apples in an even layer in bottom of baking dish. Pour water over apples.
4. In a medium bowl, mix cake mix, brown sugar and cinnamon. Stir melted butter or margarine until ingredients are blended. Mixture should appear crumbly. Sprinkle over apples.
5. Bake in preheated oven for 50 to 55 minutes.

Tip:

1. For softer apples, slice apples thinly and cook in skillet with 1/4 cup water for five minutes. Add a couple drops of lemon juice so preserve the apples' tart flavor.
2. Feel free to add extra spices like nutmeg or cloves to this recipe. You should be wary, though, not to add too many spices. Spices should not overpower the flavor of your apples.

APPLE CAKE

Ingredients:

2 eggs
1 cup vegetable oil
1/4 cup freshly squeezed orange juice
2 cups white sugar
2 cups all purpose flour
4 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking soda
4 cups Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored and finely chopped (about four to six apples)
1 cup walnuts, coarsely chopped

Directions:

1. Preheat oven to 325. Butter and flour a 10-inch cake pan.
2. Combine dry ingredients and set aside.
3. Whip eggs until frothy, about three to four minutes then add oil and orange juice and mix thoroughly. Add dry ingredients and beat with whip at low speed until thoroughly combined.
4. Fold in apples and walnuts. Pour into prepared cake pan.
5. Bake at 325 for one hour or until firm on top. Cover with aluminum foil if top gets too brown.
6. Cool on rack five minutes, then invert onto rack and cool completely.

Source: Food Network

CELEB NEWS

Spears files for divorce after two-year marriage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Britney Spears filed for divorce Tuesday from Kevin Federline, officials said. The Los Angeles County Superior Court filing cites "irreconcilable differences," said court spokeswoman Kathy Roberts.

Spears
POP SINGER

Spears, 24, married rapper Kevin Federline, 28, in 2004. They have a 1-year-old son, Sean Preston, and an infant son who was born Sept. 12. The couple has not confirmed the infant's name, which is reportedly Jayden James.

Google to expand into radio industry

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Web search leader Google Inc. is hiring scores of radio sales people and is spending heavily in a bid to expand its position in the $20 billion radio industry.

Google spokesman Michael Mayzel said this week that the company will begin a public test of Google Audio Ads by the end of the year. Advertisers will be able to go online and sign up for targeted radio ads using the same AdWords system they use to buy Web search ads.

Google is generally testing its ability to move into offline media, this week saying it would help customers buy advertisements in 50 U.S. newspapers.

It made a clear move into radio in January when it agreed to pay more than $1 billion, depending on performance, for dMarc Broadcasting Inc., which connects advertisers to radio stations through an automated advertising system.

BILLBOARD CHARTS TOP 10

The Hot 100

1. Justin Timberlake, "My Love"
2. Akon Featuring Eminem, "Smack That"
3. Ludacris featuring Pharrell, "Money Maker"
4. Hinder, "Lips Of An Angel"
5. Justin Timberlake, "SexyBack"
6. Fergie, "Fergalicious"

7. The Fray, "How To Save A Life"
8. Snow Patrol "Chasing Cars"
9. JoJo, "Too Little Too Late"
9. Chris Brown, "Say Goodbye"

Source: www.billboard.com

WEEKEND BOX OFFICE

■ The weekend totals listed are measured in millions of dollars.

Top movies	Total
1. "Borat: Cultural Learnings..." 20th Century Fox	26.3
2. "The Santa Clause 3" Warner Bros. Pictures	20.0
3. "Flushed Away" Dreamworks	19.1
4. "Saw III" Lionsgate	15.5

"The Departed" | Courtesy photo

5. "The Departed" Warner Bros. Pictures	8.0
5. "The Prestige" Warner Bros. Pictures	7.8
7. "Flags of Our Fathers" Warner Bros. Pictures, Dreamworks	4.5
8. "Man of the Year" Universal Pictures	3.8
9. "Open Season" Sony Pictures	3.1
10. "The Queen" Miramax Films	3.0

Source: www.movies.yahoo.com

Media conference addresses crisis communication

By Christina Hansen
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Producing trustworthy communications during times of crisis will be the focus of a conference beginning today at the K-State Student Union.

The conference, "Community Readiness Communications: Accurate Messages in Times of Crisis," is sponsored by the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications, the Huck Boyd National Center for Community Media and a grant from the McCormick Tribune Foundation.

Gloria Freeland, director of the Huck Boyd Center, said the conference's goal is to bring journalists, military personnel, health and safety experts and public officials together, and teach them how to present informed messages during crisis situations.

"We want people to know who they can turn to for accurate information," she said. "We also want to help people make their own back-up plans in case of an emergency situation."

Understanding how the emergency and disaster-response system operates and the role of emergency personnel might help the media produce more responsible coverage in times like natural disasters and terrorist attacks, Freeland said.

"Sometimes people rush to get something on the air or in the paper, but it's not necessarily accurate," she said. "I think this tends to make the situation worse."

The three-day Community Readiness Communications conference will feature 50 speakers from the journalism and public relations industries, as well as from the military and universities across the country.

The conference's keynote speaker is Judith Miller, former New York Times reporter who spent 85 days in jail in 2005 for refusing to reveal a confidential source to federal authorities in the Valerie Plame case.

Angela Powers, director of the journalism school, said the conference's speakers and forums will address the media's coverage of crisis situations, in line with K-State's priority on food safety and biosecurity.

"Attendees will have the opportunity to engage in discussions and formulate plans for disaster situations such as a bioterrorist attack or an outbreak of avian flu." Powers said. "Without responsible media, the public will not be properly informed. We have the means to teach responsible journalism."

Nate Schmidt, junior in public relations, said he supports ensuring only accurate, trustworthy information is passed on to the public.

"Journalists have to know when they have the right amount of information," Schmidt said. "It's about finding the balance between timely coverage and accurate coverage."

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

SUBLEASER NEEDED as soon as possible $375 per month. Great Furnished Apartment, will have your own bathroom. Call 785-317-6384.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

DOES YOUR student organization need a website? My web design class is looking for a project to complete. If you are interested, please contact Michael Barnes at barnesm@ksu.edu, or call 785-341-9483.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking. Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

ROOMMATES WANTED: Five-bedroom house, January through May. Close to campus, washer/ dryer, $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 913-206-5289.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January in two-bedroom apartment one block from campus. Call 913-522-7094, ask for Megan.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for five-bedroom house. January through May. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 940-594-1481.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. One block from campus. $300 per month plus one-half utilities. Call Alissa 913-593-5212.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted to share two-bedroom house. Pets ok. $350/ month plus one-half utilities. Call Ashley, 816-215-7474.

ONE TO Three subleasers needed spring 2007 for three-bedroom, one and one half bath apartment, one minute walk to campus. $780 per month or $260 per person plus electricity. Contact: dgray@ksu.edu or 913-481-1334.

SUBLEASER WANTED for Catholic women's house. Two blocks from campus. $310/ month includes: utilities, food, rent. Live in dorms? May work deal! Call 785-366-6342.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed for January. Two-bedroom apartment close to Aggieville and campus. $400 plus utilities. 816-668-9223, 913-709-8615.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

FULL-TIME DELIVERY/ warehouse work. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HELP NEEDED with fall yard clean up. Includes cleaning out flower beds and raking leaves. Work your schedule. Call 785-539-1086.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232-0454

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the restaurant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

Find a Job
Help Wanted Section

310 Help Wanted

INFANT CHILD CARE at Manhattan residence close to campus. Will work with YOUR schedule. Looking for responsible and dependable person who loves babies and needs a little extra cash. Need help approx. 10- 20 hours per week. Hourly rate negotiable. Call 630-430-3323/ email angelbb19@hotmail.com.

INTERNET MARKETING outdoor travel booking agency www.adventure-soutdoor.com. Help needed with search engine optimization. Experience helpful. 5 - 10 hours per week. Good pay. Contact Mitch Trumpp 913-449-5830.

JOIN CAMP SOUTHWOODS AND HAVE THE BEST SUMMER OF YOUR LIFE! Southwoods is a co-ed residential camp in New York's Adirondack Mountains. Southwoods is seeking ENTHUSIATIC, ENERGETIC, AND FUN LOVING individuals to make an impact on a child's life. Positions/ internships are available in the areas of Counselors, Outdoor Adventure, Activity Coaches & Waterfront Staff. Benefits include salary, room & board, laundry, & the best summer of your life. For more information & to complete an application visit our website www.southwoods.com or please contact us, 1-888-449-3357.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEWSPAPER DISPATCHER The Manhattan Mercury is accepting applicaitons for the position of Newspaper Dispatcher. This is a part-time entry4evel position. Shifts include weekdays 4:-30 p.m. to 7:30- 8:00 p.m. and Sunday 6:00 a.m. to 12 noon. Weekly hours and days scheduled vary. Successful applicants will possess a valid Kansas Drivers License and a dependable vehicle. Vehicle mileage is reimbursed. Apply at or send letter of application to: The Manhattan Mercury, 318 North 5th, Manhattan, Kansas. Manhattan Mercury is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.-ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

PART-TIME SALES person. Must be dependable and able to work some weekends. Contact Jared at Feldkamp's Furniture. 785-539-4466.

PERSONAL CARE Attendant needed in Manhattan to assist a person with a disability. For more information contact Christine at 1-800-569-5926.

310 Help Wanted

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

RANDALL'S FORMAL Wear is looking for a part-time sales person with outstanding customer service skills. Flexible hours great starting wage and commission program. If you would like to join our team stop by and fill out an application at 100 Manhattan Town Center Mall. 785-770-9011.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

310 Help Wanted

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

VICTORIA'S SECRET in Manhattan Town Center, now hiring part-time seasonal help. Must be available most weekends now through January 15 and the weeks prior to and of Thanksgiving and Christmas. To join our team apply in the store this week.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

2004 CHEVY Cavalier, silver, 34,500 miles, $8500 under warranty, great student car. Sleeper sofa, $100, tan recliner, $50. Call 785-317-1985.

445 Music Instruments

IBANEZ ACOUSTIC/ Electric for sale. Includes hardshell case and guitar humidifier. Only one year old, very nice! Call 316-518-2846.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

FOR SALE 2002 Saturn Vue. $8,300 or best offer. 75,000 miles. Runs great. CD, power windows, doors, locks, sunroof. 785-341-1830.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low Prices Guaranteed. Group discounts for 6+. Book 20 people, get 3 free trips! www.SpringBreakdiscounts.com or 800-838-8202.

LT Works
Advertise in the Classifieds
Call
785 532 6555

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

785 532 6555

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!
$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

	1
2	9		4		3	1
7					9		5	8
			3			7	8
	7	3				6	1
	5	9			8
4	6		9					1
		7	1		5		4	2
							3

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
785.532.6555

ADVERTISING Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 Internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M.
FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Area partnership brings growth, opportunities

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A new building at the K-State research park is under construction.

The building will be the new headquarters for the National Institute for Strategic Technology Acquisition and Commercialization.

NISTAC was founded in 1997 as a non-profit corporation between K-State, the State of Kansas, the City of Manhattan and the Manhattan Chamber of Commerce. The program focuses on strengthening the Manhattan regional economy through the commercialization of technologies including those arising from research at K-State.

The actual construction costs $4.5 million, but filling the building with equipment will add up to $5.6 million.

The City of Manhattan received a $1 million grant from the Kansas Bioscience Authority. The rest is coming from a city share of a county-wide sales tax from which the city's portion is dedicated to economic initiatives, such as the new research building.

Construction began around December last year, but the planning for the project has been two years in the making.

Diane Stoddard, deputy city manager, said she was satisfied with construction and said the project is going along well.

Kent Glasscock, president and chief operating officer of NISTAC, said he hopes to have the building finished by April.

Once completed, the city-owned building will be managed by NISTAC.

"There is greater activity and job creation in Manhattan and the community lately," Glasscock said. "The building will respond to the current need to create higher-paid and technology-based jobs and also to support startup companies."

The new building will help NISTAC workers perform benchmarks in terms of job creation on an average salary base. Within the first ten years of operation, NISTAC headquarters will create about 100 jobs paying on average twice the current average salary in Manhattan, Glasscock said.

The City of Manhattan and NISTAC have a city-owned building on Hayes Street, Stoddard said.

"NISTAC incubates a lot of business that directly draws back into the city," she said.

She said this was a good investment in terms of economic development as NISTAC is involved in creating quality jobs, economic growth and wealth.

Stoddard said she hopes the partnership with K-State will include students getting involved in high-quality jobs that would give them opportunities to work after graduating from K-State and to stay in Manhattan.

"We have a very strong program of internships with K-State students," Glasscock said. "Those with NISTAC itself and also with the K-State research foundation, which will also be located in the new building."

Additionally, he said he hopes internships in new start-up companies will be available.

Ken Williams has previously interned with NISTAC.

He graduated from K-State in 2004 with an master's degree in business administration. While pursuing his master's degree, he interned in technology entrepreneurship.

"Before I started the MBA and before I got on that internship program I didn't know that there are such careers connected to licensing," he said.

Williams said he thinks that the internship helped him shape his career.

"People that went through the internship program have pretty good opportunities in getting a job at NISTAC later," he said.

2 traffic projects postponed until agreements are made

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Commissioners chose not to pass two projects, Heritage Square South and Limey Pointe, at their meeting Tuesday because agreements have not been finalized.

A project at Heritage Square South will make it possible for travelers on U.S. Highway 24 to see businesses in remote locations by increasing the height and size of their signs.

Five businesses' signs situated 800 feet from the highway will be 50-feet high and will have a 220-square-foot surface, mayor Bruce Snead said.

"The growth and development of the Heritage Square South development agreement is a significant move for the city to expand into Pottawatomie County at the request of the developer," Snead said.

The goal of the Limey Pointe project is to aid the flow of traffic at the intersection of McCall Road and Tuttle Creek Boulevard. Jeff Hancock, director of Public Works, said he is not certain whether the intersection will be a four-way stop. Manhattan Urban Area Subdivision Regulations will determine the construction standards.

The projects have not yet been passed because the terms of the agreements have not been established.

"There are agreements between the city and Pottawatomie and the Blue Township Sewer District that need to be completed," Snead said.

ROYAL PURPLE yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555.

Need help with your resume?
Got a couple of quick questions?
WALK-IN WEDNESDAYS
Come in between noon - 4 pm today and meet with a career advisor.
No appointment necessary!
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn
CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

ExpertTire
Everyday Discount Prices
307 N. 3rd St. • 785-776-8311
Standard brake service special
• install brake pads
• resurface rotors
• road test vehicle
$79.99
Price per axle. Front wheel disc. Most vehicles. Grease seals and wheel bearing repack extra if required.
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad
Bosch wiper blade rebate
Purchase a Bosch Micro Edge wiper blade and receive a $1.00 rebate by mail. Limit of 6 blades with a maximum rebate of $6.00 per household. save $2.00 per pair
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad.
Wiper blades to fit most vehicles. See store for details.
standard oil change special!
• install new filter
• refill up to 5 quarts Synthetic Blend motor oil
• lubricate chassis (if applicable)
$16.99
Most vehicles. Add $2.50 for oil filter recycling.
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad.
brand value starts here!
limit 6 per customer.
Firestone
$33 FR 380 Tires
P155/80R13
55,000 mile limited warranty
save thru Dec. 2nd with this ad.
Mon-Fri 7am-6pm
Sat 7am-6pm
Open Sun 8am-5pm
www.ExpertTire.com

VETERANS DAY CELEBRATION
"VETERANS: AMERICA'S HEROES"
Thursday, November 9, 2006
2:00 p.m. Plaque Dedication Train Depot
Dedication to Veterans departing or returning to Train Depot
Friday, November 10, 2006
7:00-9:00 a.m. Veterans Day Breakfast
$6.00 Donation
VFW Post 1796, 212 South Fourth
9:00 a.m. State and Territorial Flag Display
Courthouse Plaza
9:30 a.m. Veterans Day Honor Parade
Grand Marshall - General Richard B. Myers, United States Air Force, Retired
Former Chairman of Joint Chiefs of Staff
Immediately Following Parade
Dedication of Veterans Memorial Bells - Courthouse Lawn
11:00 a.m. Commemorative Program - Wareham Opera House
Speaker: General Richard B. Myers
6:00 p.m. Veterans Day Recognition Banquet
All Veterans Welcomed
American Legion Post 27, 318 S. Second
$12.00 per person - Reservations required 785-776-4616
6:30-11:30 p.m. Veteran's Day Dance
American Legion Post 27
$10.00 couple, $6.00 individual
In the event of inclement weather the cancellation of the parade will be announced on KMAN 1350 AM and 93.1 FM by 7:30 a.m. on November 11th.
Flint Hills Veterans Coalition/City of Manhattan

Bluemont Thanksgiving Buffet
For Reservations call 532-6068
Bluemont Room & Main Ballroom
2nd Floor • K-State Student Union
Thursday, November 16 • 11 am - 1:30 pm
Tossed Salad w/ Assorted Toppings and Dressings
Fresh Array of Thanksgiving Salads
Green Bean Casserole
Corn O'Brien
$7.95 (includes tax)
Cash and Credit Card only
Pineapple Ham
Roasted Turkey w/ Gravy, Dressing, & Cranberry Sauce
Herb Roasted Pork Loin w/ Cinnamon Apple Glaze
Candied Yams
Sour Cream Mashed Potatoes
Breaded Mushrooms
Assortment of Fresh Harvest Breads
Medley of Fall Gourmet Desserts

Getting Started in Evening College

Working students and adults may apply and be admitted to a K-State Evening College program at anytime. Once admitted, you may enroll in courses during the next Evening College session. For K-State admissions, visit www.k-state.edu/admit.
Through 8- or 16-week night classes or a combination of night classes and distance education courses, you can earn a bachelor's degree or enhance your skills
ENROLL NOW FOR SPRING 2007 8- OR 16-WEEK TERMS
8-week term classes run from January 11 - March 5, 2007.
16-week term classes run from January 11 - May 11, 2007.
www.dce.ksu.edu/eveningcollege
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
EVENING College
For more information, call 1-800-622-2KSU or 785-532-5575 today.
informationdce@ksu.edu
Expanded Hours. Expanded Learning. Expanded Opportunities.

Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 KEDZIE • 785-532-6560

TIPOFF GUIDE

www.kstatecollegian.com | Wednesday, Nov. 8, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 58

A whole new game
Bob Huggins has brought attention to the K-State's men's, women's basketball programs.
See story Page 3

Catrina Rawson

Off the court Page 2 | Team leader Page 2 | Scott Greenawalt Page 3 | Walk-ons Page 3 | Shana Wheeler Page 4

Player to watch

Senior guard/forward Cartier Martin might have finished with 19 points in the exhibition win over Washburn, but he struggled from the field. Martin shot 4-of-19 from the field and 1-of-10 from behind the arc.

K-State women vs. Wisconsin-Green Bay

7 p.m. Friday

K-State men vs. William & Mary

1 p.m. Saturday

Player to watch

In K-State's 64-59 loss to Divison-II Emporia State on Sunday, senior Claire Coggins finished with 16 points on 6-of-14 shooting from the field. With a lack of a dominant inside presence, Coggins will be a key player in every K-State game this season.

Off the Court with Ryan Patzwald

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Most people know him as "the mohawk guy," but he does have a name. Ryan Patzwald is a junior walk-on for the Wildcat basketball team. He transferred from Cincinnati, where he also was a walk-on under coach Bob Huggins. The 5-foot-11 (which includes the 2-inch mohawk, Patzwald said) guard recently answered questions on the reason for his mohawk to his relationship with coach Huggins and more.

Q. Why the enormous mohawk?
A. To be honest with you, I do not think coach Huggins likes it too much. I think that is why I do it, to try to get under his skin a little bit. One of my buddies back home bet me that I wouldn't do it, but I really don't care. My parents hate it, but I don't really mind.

Q. How long do you plan on keeping the mohawk?
A. I am not cutting it until we end the basketball season. So it is going to be pretty long by the time March rolls around.

Q. What is it like being a walk-on under Bob Huggins?
A. It is kind of hard because you are expected to do everything the other guys are supposed to do. I am not nearly as athletic as half of the guys out here, so it is not as easy when you're 5'9" – 5'11" if you count the mohawk. It is hard to keep up.

Q. In Cincinnati, you were arrested for a DUI. What did you learn from that experience?
A. Don't drink and drive. Huggins got one also, and we all make mistakes. I definitely learned from it, but you cannot change the past. You can only work on the future.

Q. Do you ever get confused for a ball boy or fan?
A. All of the time. I had to show some ID to get into Madness in Manhattan. UC was even worse, though, because they never had any white walk-ons. If I looked at me, I would not say, "Oh, my God, there's a basketball player." I just laugh about it.

Q. Have you convinced other players on the team to have mohawks for the whole season?
A. Actually, I don't think they have the balls to wear them. I think Cartier (Martin) and Akeem (Wright) are going to cut their mohawks when the season starts going. They don't have the guts to keep them. Everyone else pretty much thinks they are ugly. I am going to do my best to try to convince everybody, but it is not going as I planned.

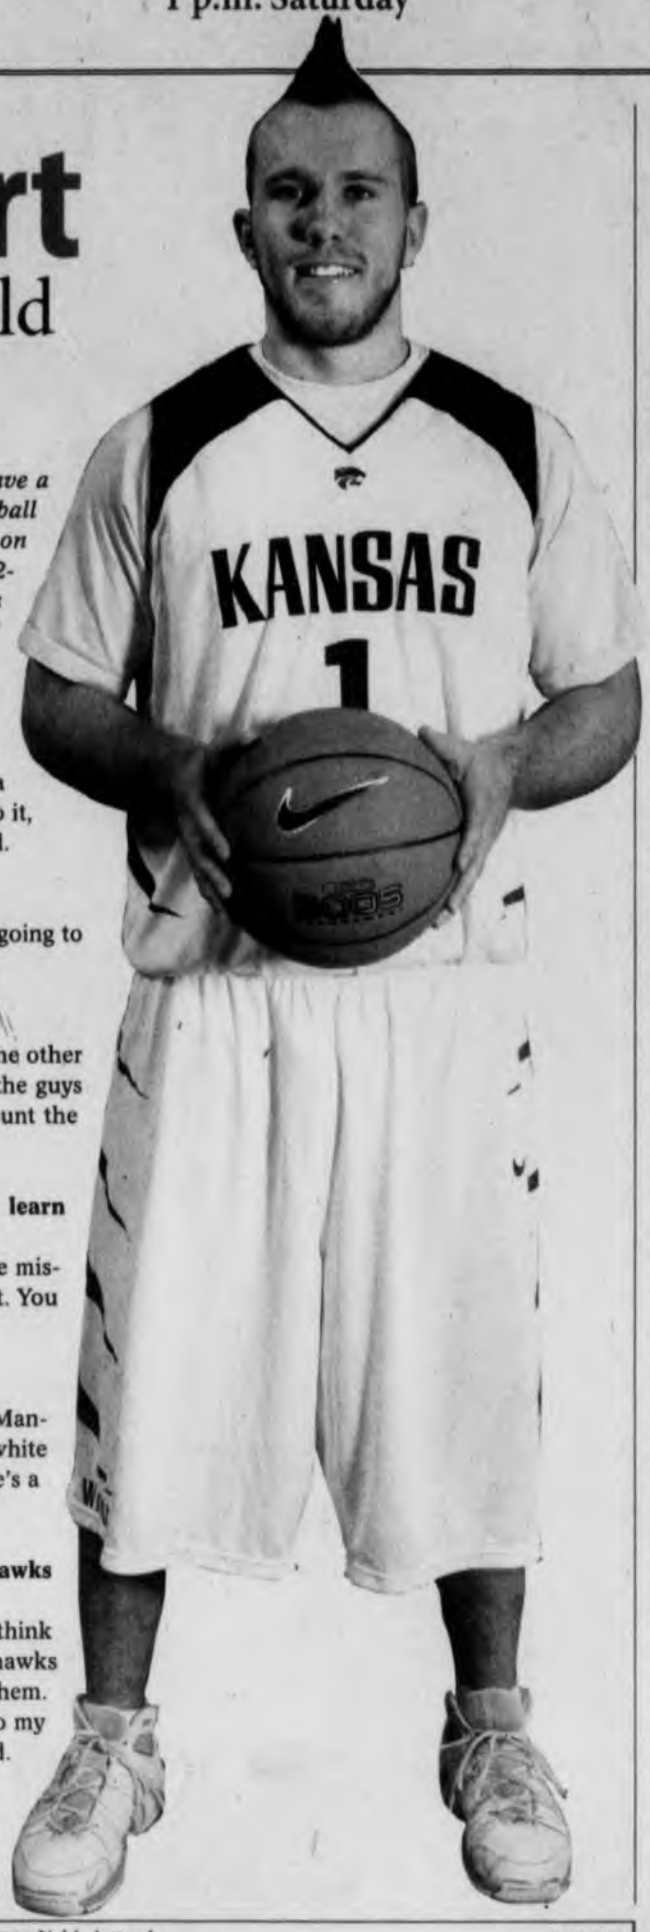

Photo by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Team leaders define identity, set tone

Leadership is defined as the ability of an individual to influence, motivate and enable others to contribute toward the effectiveness and success of the organizations of which he is a member.

SCHYLER THOMAS

Bob Huggins is the leader of this year's men's basketball team, but he needs an extension of himself on the floor and off the court.

"Coaches can't play the game for you," is a phrase I heard numerous times throughout my basketball career, and it couldn't be more true. Coaches can prepare you for everything the opposing team will do and call all the right plays at the right times, but ultimately, players win games.

A team leader is seldom an assigned position. It is a right earned through respect from coaches and teammates.

When there's a dispute in the locker room, guys aren't making the grades, or it's late in a close game and the team needs a basket, a stop or motivating words, a leader must step up. These players have to set the tone for how every other player on the team should play through their own consistent work ethic, attitude and play.

Usually the blueprint of a team's identity can be traced to the team leader's general demeanor.

Look for Cartier Martin to be the player who accepts this role in his final year. For the most part, he has been the go-to guy since his arrival at K-State, taking a position of leadership from the beginning.

"I'm trying to set the example for everyone, holding guys accountable when they make mistakes and help the team with whatever they need on and off the court," Martin said.

Another player who is ready to become a leader is junior forward David Hoskins. Coming off a good season last year, Hoskins has proven himself on the court and has earned credibility among team members.

"He's staying on top of everybody and being very vocal this year. He brings intensity every day at practice," sophomore Darren Kent said.

"I just try to be consistent every day and demand the same intensity out of everyone else," Hoskins said.

It's all a matter of buying into the system. If the leaders don't buy in, the rest of the team won't follow, creating dissension among players.

Martin and Hoskins have bought into Huggins' plan; the rest of the team will follow suit. This is the last go-around for Martin, along with Lance Harris, Akeem Wright, Serge Afeli and newcomer Jermaine Maybank, so these five should be hungry this year.

"We have a sense of urgency and a chip on our shoulders," Martin said.

I guess everyone's just going to have to wait and see.

Schyler Thomas is a fifth-year student in finance and management. He was a guard on the K-State men's basketball team in 2002-06. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Candlewood Shopping Center 785.776.8830
3204 Kimball Avenue
Studio 32 for Hair
Call for an appointment with
Allysa, Connie, Kelly, Tina, or Verna Lee

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

706 N. Manhattan Ave 537-7151
Porter's
20¢ WINGS
Hot, Mild, BBQ, Honey Mustard, Hot BBQ
4-9PM
$2.50 ALL FROZEN DRINKS
$1.50 COSMOPOLITAN MARTINIS
$2.00 DOMESTIC BIG BEERS
$1.50 WELLS
Open @ 4

539-5269
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
LIBRARY

PAT'S PAWN & GUN SHOP, INC.
WE BUY, SELL, AND TRADE
GUNS
SMITH & WESSON
HANDGUNS • RIFLES
COLT • RUGER
SHOTGUNS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.- 6 p.m.
SAT 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
506 Riley St • Ogden
539-0151

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
$2 DRINKS $2.25 BOTTLES
THURSDAY · NOV. 9TH
BLEU EDMONDSON
WITH SPECIAL GUEST FULL THROTTLE

Good Luck Wildcats
Delivery & Catering Available
PLANET SUB
708 N. Manhattan Ave. 537-8SUB

Their Customer | Our Customer

Our name is A Cut Above for a reason.
a Cut Above SALON
1800 Claflin Road 785-537-3200

discover
[gopowercat.com]
beLoud, bePround, bePurple

SAKE SAKE SAKE
Bomb!
$3.00 Sake Bombs
TRY OUR NEW ASIAN STYLE BUFFET & MONGOLIAN BBQ
HUNAN 539-8888
1304 WESTLOOP
$1.00 OFF BUFFET
w/ VALID KSU ID

Greenawalt ups standard of strength, toughness

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Bob Huggins took over the K-State basketball program, it was clear the Wildcats would need a new type of player – a player who could withstand Huggins' grueling practices and play the same swarming full-court press Cincinnati's defenses were known for.

But because the NCAA limits the amount of time Huggins and his coaching staff can interact with their team in the offseason, someone else had to work the players into shape for fall practices.

Before Huggins ever had a chance to run a practice, he handed the team over to Scott Greenawalt, K-State's new strength and conditioning coach. Greenawalt, who worked in Cincinnati's strength program from 1999 to 2006, said he knew what Huggins expected.

"He wants his players as strong, as big, as tough, as physical as you can possibly make somebody," Greenawalt said.

To do that, Greenawalt started immediately, initiating his program last spring after Huggins was hired. Greenawalt said early on his focus was developing strength and toughness.

It doesn't take long to figure out Greenawalt – a former college linebacker – knows his way around a weight room. He's built like a bodybuilder and looks like he probably could lift more than most of his players.

But the players insist he isn't intimidating; instead, several of them chose the word "intense" to describe him.

"He's not scary, but he gets the job done," sophomore Darren Kent said. "Especially with the guys who weren't that strong – the guys like me – he did a heck of a job at getting us where we need to be for the season."

During his time at Cincinnati, Greenawalt helped turn several Bearcats into professional athletes. He trained 13 future NFL players, seven future pro basketball players – including Kenyon Martin and Jason Maxiell – and Boston Red Sox first baseman Kevin Youkilis.

Huggins has called Greenawalt one of the best strength coaches in the country. Greenawalt trained five 20-win teams teams at Cincinnati.

Scott Greenawalt, K-State men's basketball strength and conditioning coach, was reunited with Bob Huggins this season. During workouts, Greenawalt has had players flip tires, drag sleds and haul kegs.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

But Greenawalt isn't just about bench presses, leg presses and squats. To keep the players on their toes, he also includes some alternative workout methods, including staging a strongman competition similar to those shown on ESPN.

"It was serious," freshman Chris Merriewether said. "Just like the ones you see on TV."

Well, not exactly like the ones on television. No one pulled fire trucks, but the players did have to drag sleds, flip tires and haul kegs across the indoor practice football field.

Junior David Hoskins won the competition. He said he let Greenawalt know who to bet on before the contest.

"I told him, 'I hope you got your money on me, because I'm winning this thing,'" Hoskins said.

While strong-man contests are a little out of the ordinary, Merriewether said the Wildcats have to do things differently to catch up to their competition.

"Everybody sees where the program is going, so we've got to have hard work," he said. "We've got to do things that people at Kansas and other people in the Big 12 aren't doing."

Walk-ons Johnson, Franklin officially added to Huggins' roster

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The last time Brady Johnson played on the floor inside Bramlage Coliseum, he was a sophomore from Ell-Saline High School in Salina, competing in the Kansas Class 2A State Championships.

Little did he know he would play on that same court four years later as a member of the K-State men's basketball team.

"That was like the highlight of my high school career, because I got to play in Bramlage," Johnson said. "I definitely didn't think I'd ever play on that court again."

Johnson was one of two players – along with James Franklin – to make the team after open tryouts on Oct. 16. He and Franklin officially were added to the roster Nov. 2.

The two made it through a competition of about 50 students. The tryout consisted mainly of individual drills but was finished off with a "sloppy" scrimmage, Johnson said.

K-State coach Bob Huggins didn't run the tryout, but he did watch from the stands.

"It was kind of one of those deals where if you made a good play, you'd look up and be like, 'Did Huggins see me do that?'" Johnson said.

Both players caught the eyes of the assistant coaches enough to earn consideration for a full-time roster spot. Johnson is a 6-foot-7, 220-pound junior forward. Franklin is a 6-foot, 190-pound junior guard from Kansas City, Kan.

"Brady was catching alley-oops and dunking on people, so I knew right off the bat that with his size and the things he was doing, he was going to be picked," Franklin said. "But as far as me, I thought a lot of guards were just as quick or could shoot just as good."

Johnson

Franklin

That might have been true, but not all of the other guards had as much experience as Franklin. This is his first year at K-State after playing for two years at Cowley County Community College in Arkansas City, Kan.

"I just tried to focus on defense more," he said. "Anybody can score the ball, but I think I worked a little bit harder and showed more effort on that end."

Since the tryout, life has been anything but routine for the newest additions to the team. A month ago, Johnson and Franklin were normal college students who focused on class and work.

Now things have changed, and Johnson had to quit his job at the Plasma Donation Center so he could get to practice every day.

"Instead of going to work and getting paid, now it's just going to work and having fun," Johnson said.

Rather than guarding other former high school players at Peters Recreation Complex, the two now are going up against the likes of center Jason Bennett and guard Blake Young.

"Jason is really tall," Johnson said of the 7-foot-3 Bennett. "He is really, really tall. That's another change going from high school to this is instead of being the tallest kid on the court every time you step out there, all the guys I have to guard are a lot taller than I am."

Franklin has a bit of basketball history in his family. His cousin Nick Williams played for Huggins at Cincinnati and now plays overseas in France. Franklin said he hasn't had the chance to talk to Williams, but will undoubtedly have a lot to talk about when he does.

"Practices have been real intense," Franklin said. "You hear of coach Huggins and his reputation, and I'm thinking there's going to be a lot of yelling and a lot of running. He really focuses on just getting better every day. It's a lot of fun being able to learn from him."

TUESDAY WEDNESDAY
69¢ Tacos
$2.50 Margaritas
$2.99 Taco Platter
BOBBY TS
3240 Kimball Ave 537-8383
$7.99 Steak Night
$2.50 Bottles
$3.00 Big Bobs
www.bobbyts.com
Karaoke @ 9pm

COME GET YOUR Shag on!
hi-lites • trendy hair styles
men's/women's hair cuts
612 N. 12TH • AGGIEVILLE • 539-2277
SHAGGIEVILLE

TIRED OF THE OLD AGGIEVILLE SCENE?
FRIDAY IS Ladies NIGHT @ BOWINKLE'S
featuring DJ LUIS women 18+ FREE
starts Friday the 13th
Free Prizes and Final Cash Prize
$3.00 32 Oz. Domestic Moose Beers
3034 W. Anderson Ave.

Everything you need for tailgating is in The FRIDGE
Wholesale Liquor
south of Blockbuster on Westport Dr.

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

EYECARE ASSOCIATES OF MANHATTAN, PA
Dr. Bullock
Dr. Stanley
Doctors of Optometry
Anderson Village • 1441 Anderson
Manhattan, KS 66502
• TRICARE & Most Insurances Accepted
• Convenient Appointment Times Available
• In-Office Eyewear Gallery
(785) 776-9461 • 1-800-432-0036
98% Of Contact Lenses Fit Same Day

COLLEGE PARK
UNIVERSITY CROSSING
NEW CLUBHOUSE
University Crossing
2215 College Ave.
Manhattan, KS 66502
789.539.0500 tel
collegeparkweb.com
coming in fall 2006
FEATURED
• fitness center
• computer lab
• game room
COLLEGE PARK

NOVEMBER DRY-CLEAN SPECIAL
$3.50 EACH
Wash Palace
"LARGEST AND CLEANEST FACILITY IN MANHATTAN"
• Coin Laundry
• Jumbo Computerized Dryers & Large Capacity Washers
• Wash, Dry & Fold Service
• Coin-op Open 24 Hours • Dry Cleaning & Drop off Monday - Saturday: 7am-7pm Sunday: 12pm-7pm •

Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

Huggins' arrival boosts both teams

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Despite coming off a win in the Women's National Invitation Tournament Championship, the K-State women's basketball team has not received the majority of attention around Manhattan.

That distinction belongs to the men's team, which received a revival of sorts since coach Bob Huggins was hired in March.

Season tickets have been sold out for men's home games, television deals with ABC and ESPN have been worked out, and the team has been placed in the national spotlight seemingly overnight.

With all the excitement about the men's team, does the women's team feel slighted?

Not according to sophomore guard Shalee Lehning, who said she doesn't feel any resentment toward the men's team. In fact, she said she believes the exposure the men's team is getting will help the women's program also.

"I definitely think we are going to reap the benefits from it," Lehning said. "Anybody that's excited about a basketball game is going to go over and watch women's basketball, too. Everybody is just excited about basketball in general."

The last time the women's team took the floor at Bramlage Coliseum was March 31, when it beat Marquette 77-65 and was crowned the WNIT champion.

That game was played in front of a sellout crowd of 13,340, the second-largest crowd in WNIT history.

Coach Deb Patterson said Huggins' hiring will continue to help the university gain exposure and also will increase the "great following" she said her team already has.

"He will bring attention to Kansas State, and that does nothing but make our institution better known, better understood and better appreciated," she said. "It will show off the incredible fans we have ... and the love we have for basketball here in Manhattan, and I hope we can build off of it here in the women's program."

Patterson said she also believes Huggins brings instant credibility to K-State basketball as a whole.

"You've got one of the best coaches in the history of the men's game walking into your gym every day and saying Kansas State is a legitimate place to play ... and you need to think about coming to play here," she said. "The television aspect and the draw that he has brought from the national side of things is going to be a great bonus for our basketball team as well."

The other effects of Huggins' hiring have been less noticeable, like the new uniforms and equipment the women's team has received in the last few months. Huggins was a big reason the university was able to strike a long-term deal with Nike, which supplies equipment for K-State intercollegiate sports, something junior forward Shana Wheeler said she is excited about.

"I think it's awesome," she said. "I'm really excited about our Nike contract and all the things we have gotten."

Men's basketball coach Bob Huggins leans on the scorers' table during the Wildcats' 94-90 triple-overtime win over Washburn on Nov. 4. Huggins and the men's basketball team has drawn most of the attention this season, but the WNIT women's basketball champions don't seem to mind being overshadowed by the men's program.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Wheeler returns in time to fill vacancy in the middle left by Hamlin

Junior forward/ center Shana Wheeler returns this season from an anterior cruciate ligament surgery she sustained last season. In her freshman year, Wheeler started 22 games for K-State at the center position. In the first nine games last season, Wheeler averaged four points and 3.9 rebounds in limited action.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Jessi Hernandez
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After the loss of sophomore JoAnn Hamlin over the summer, K-State women's basketball coach Deb Patterson said a question was raised as to who would replace the center.

One answer just might be junior forward Shana Wheeler.

At one time, Wheeler didn't have any questions about her role as a starter, seeing 22 starts her freshman season. Her sophomore season looked to be just as successful.

In the first nine games of the season, Wheeler averaged four points and 3.9 rebounds. After suffering an anterior cruciate ligament tear during the second half against Creighton on Dec. 19, however, those numbers became her season average.

"Of course, getting injured at the beginning of the season was something that I really didn't want to happen," Wheeler said. "But when it happened, I just made the decision to stay positive and work every day, really as hard as I could, to get better and encourage the team."

Wheeler underwent surgery in December 2005. She said the rehabilitation process was hard work, as it lasted about two hours every day. Still, she said, she only missed two games the entire season and certainly didn't miss out on the Wildcats' Women's National Invitation Tournament championship.

After seeing Hamlin step into Wheeler's role, her departure, Wheeler said, was not only sad, but also another motivator for her to get back into shape.

"It was something I did not expect to happen and something I didn't want to happen, but it happened," she said. "So the only thing I can do now is just be better, get better and just try to be a big presence down at the post and in the paint."

Before her injury, Wheeler, who underwent surgery on her other knee in August, said her defense was her strength, but becoming more offensively minded was always a goal.

Patterson said offensively, Wheeler has been as aggressive as she's ever seen her these past few months.

"She's playing right now like, honestly, like she did not take eight months off," senior Claire Coggins said. "That girl is focused, determined, she wants to score, she wants to play hard, and with a little bit more practice, she's going to be really good for this team."

Sophomore forward Marlies Gipson said Wheeler's return has helped fill the void left by Hamlin, and the team now has nearly returned to where it had been in the frontcourt.

"She's really been working hard in practice, and I'm really looking forward to hopefully getting to work high-low with her inside," Gipson said.

Even after losing an entire season to her injury, Wheeler is upbeat and said she isn't focused on the past as much as she is ready for the future.

"It went really fast," she said of the rehab process, "because here I am today, and I'm ready to play."

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, November 9, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 59

INSIDE

Forum Hall was packed Wednesday night with a variety of performances.

The Edge, Page 10

Rumsfeld resigns, lectures at K-State

U.S. Secretary of Defense gives resignation

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld resigned Wednesday after several years of heavy criticism.

President Bush said he had a series of thoughtful conversations with Rumsfeld about the resignation. Bush also said Rumsfeld's resignation was not affected by the outcome of Tuesday's elections, in which the Democrats gained control of the U.S. House of Representatives.

On Nov. 1, Bush said he wanted Rumsfeld and Vice President Dick Cheney to remain with him through the end of his presidency.

"Both those men are doing fantastic jobs, and I strongly support them," Bush said in an interview with The Associated Press.

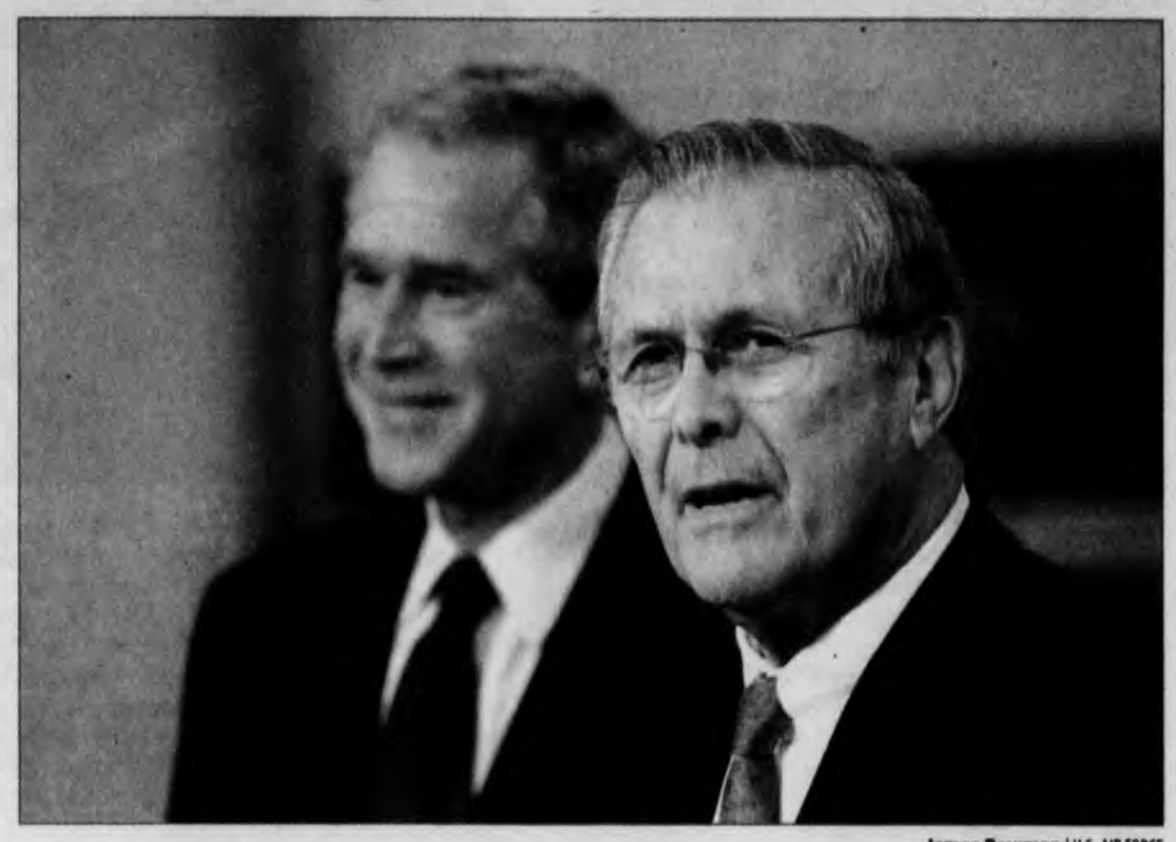
Ben Davis, president of College Republicans, said he was not shocked at Rumsfeld's resignation.

"I personally thought the same thing – I thought it was time for a change and new perspective," said Davis, junior in political science and pre-law. "It's time for a better perspective on the war in Iraq and trying to work toward that goal more effectively."

Members of College Republicans are planning to attend Rumsfeld's Landon Lecture today, Davis said.

"I'm thinking that everyone in the school would want to go whether you agree or not," he said. "It's a turning point in our society, and this is one of the men who helped shape history in the last three or four years. I hope that everyone would want to come and learn, regardless of political affiliations."

Aaron Apel, president of Young Democrats, said some of the club's members got tickets for the lecture and plan to ask Rumsfeld questions. Young Democrats also plan to protest about an hour prior to the lecture, he said.



"It's an honor to have someone like Donald Rumsfeld come to K-State and speak," Apel, junior in philosophy said. "But there are a lot of questions we have concerning accountability on his actions taken in Iraq."

Bush nominated Robert Gates Wednesday afternoon to replace Rumsfeld.

A Wichita native, Gates, 63, served as Director of Central Intelligence from 1991 to 1993. He has served as the 22nd president of Texas A&M University since August 2002.

In a letter on the Texas A&M

See RUMSFELD Page 8

James Bowman | U.S. AIR FORCE

President George W. Bush looks on as Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld addresses the nation during a news conference Nov. 8, 2006, from the East Room of the White House.

Related Stories

- Donald Rumsfeld also will attend and speak at the dedication of Gen. Richard B. Myers Hall at 1 p.m. today, Page 8
- Does Rumsfeld deserve a warm welcome? See Brett King's column, Page 4
- To The Point, an editorial by the Collegian Editorial board, takes a stand on recent statements by President George W. Bush, Page 4
- Test your knowledge of Donald Rumsfeld trivia with a quiz in Diversions, Page 2

Aditional coverage of both Rumsfeld's resigning and his lecture are availible online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

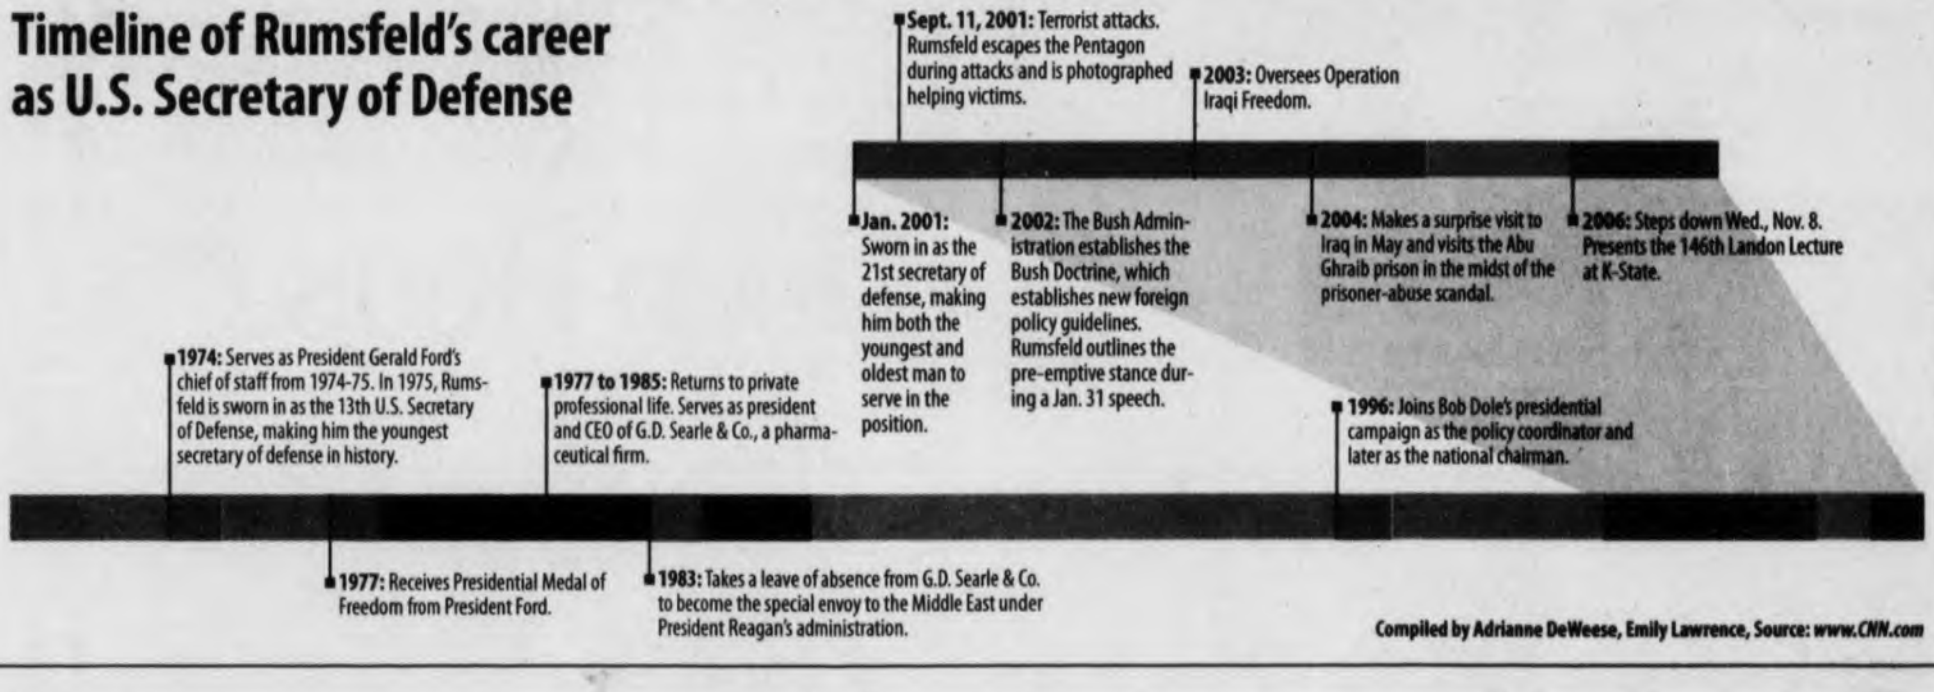
Rumsfeld will present Landon Lecture despite resignation

146th Landon Lecture
Donald Rumsfeld, standing U.S. Secretary of Defense
When: 11 a.m. today
Where: Bramlage Coliseum

- The lecture also will be broadcast live on Cox Cable's channel 8 in Manhattan and Junction City, and can be seen live on the Internet (http://www.k-state.edu/landon).

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Donald Rumsfeld's Landon Lecture will proceed as scheduled today.



Doors to Bramlage Coliseum will open at 10:30 a.m., and those attending must present their K-State ID at the northeast or northwest entrances, said Jim Muller, associate director of Athletic Operations.

Bramlage parking lots will open at 9:30 a.m., and parking is based on a first-come, first-served basis, Muller said.

Bramlage Coliseum officials, police officers and security workers with the U.S. Department of Defense worked Wednesday afternoon to ensure the safety of Bramlage, Muller said.

See LECTURE Page 8

Timeline of Rumsfeld's career as U.S. Secretary of Defense

Compiled by Adrianne DeWeese, Emily Lawrence, Source: www.CNN.com

Huggins secures No. 1 recruiting class for 2007 season

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Even before coaching a regular season game at K-State, coach Bob Huggins has already signed the nation's No. 1 recruiting class, according to Rivals.com and Scout.com.

Huggins announced on Wednesday the signing of Michael Beasley, Fred Brown, Jacob Pullen and Dominique Sutton to National Letters of Intent.

Beasley is considered the No. 1 high school senior in the nation by several recruiting services, and the other three players are rated as three-star prospects by Rivals.

Also included in K-State's 2007 recruiting class is Bill Walker, who is the No. 6 ranked player on Rivals.

Walker will join the Wildcats on Dec. 16 because he graduated high school early, signing a financial aid agreement with K-State on Nov. 3.

"All five of those guys are going to be great teammates," Huggins said. "I think they'll mesh faster than a lot of recruiting classes would just because of the kind of players they are and the kind of people they are."

Beasley, a 6-foot-10, 235-pound power forward from Notre Dame Prep in Fitchburg, Mass., averaged 20.1 points, 10.4 rebounds and 4.5 blocks as a junior in high school.

"Right now, his strength is on the perimeter," Huggins said. "When you watch Mike play, there will be days when he blocks six or seven shots and days when he'll play the perimeter, and he plays so unselfishly."

Walker will be eligible to play for K-State on Dec. 17 at home against Kennesaw State. He averaged 21.7 points and 10.1 rebounds in his final year at North College Hill High School in Cincinnati.

"Bill just has to develop confidence in his shot," Huggins said. "He really can shoot it, but he just has so much confidence in taking it to the goal."

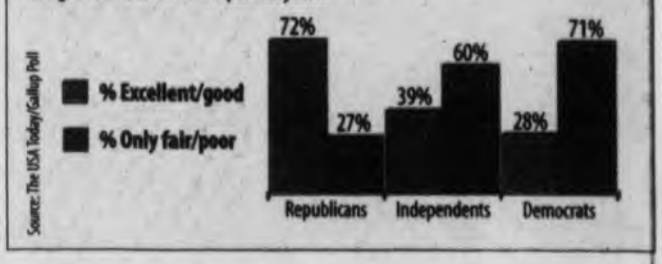
K-State still has one scholarship open for its 2007 class.

Huggins said he will be looking for another big player with the ability to score, or the best available player.

Today's forecast
Mostly Sunny
High:76 Low: 44

INSIDE

Religion through magic
The Maze Experience featured magic with a twist of religion to teach about the deceptions and illusions in life.
See story, Page 7



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Ebony Theatre
The Ebony Theatre is celebrating its 30th anniversary with the play "With Labor, Love and Laughter." It begins at 8 p.m. today through Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $5 for students and $8 for adults. Tickets are available in the McCain Box Office.

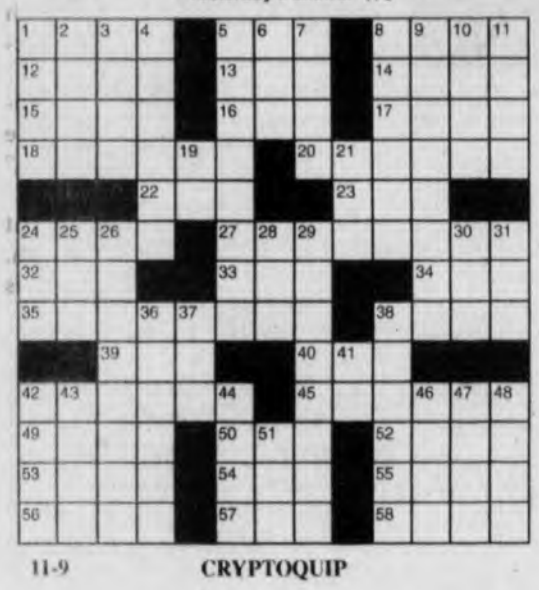
Vitamin A
Dr. Catharine Ross of the Department of nutritional sciences at Penn State University will speak at 4 p.m. today at 120 Ackert Hall. She will also have a colloquium at 9:30 a.m. in 137 Waters Hall. She will speak about "Vitamin A Status: Why it Still Matters."

Golf Scholarship
Daryn Soldan, graduate in landscape architecture, has won a $1,000 Golf Course Builders Association of America scholarship. The scholarship program offers summer jobs and internships to those who wish to work in construction-related segments of the golf course industry.

Is consumer confidence economics, or politics?
Behind the national consumer confidence numbers, Gallup finds strong partisan differences in economic views that help to explain the dearth of positive economic ratings seen for much of the past six years.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DRIVERS

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Monologue part
5 Played usher
8 Makes one's mind up
12 You could hear — drop
13 Spoonbender Geller
14 Mediocre
15 Venus de —
16 Butterworth or Paul's
17 Franc replacement
18 Render senseless
20 Stack in a barn
22 "Golly!"
23 Presidents Day mo.
24 Engrave
27 Garment industry (St.)
32 Lao-tzu's path
33 Detergent brand
34 Festive
35 Anthropological, in a way
38 Judicial garb
39 Coffee dispenser
40 "Land of the free"
42 Enticement
45 Artistic tilework
49 Actress Jessica
50 Cleo's killer
52 End of a song
53 Fill till full
54 Homer's interjection
55 Freshly
56 Simple
57 Commercials
58 Not as much

DOWN
1 Doorframe part
2 Mayberry moppet
3 Potter's oven
4 Sufficient
5 One who 29-Down
6 Mess up
7 Menu entry
8 Compliant one
9 Graphite
10 Poi base
11 Display
19 Yours truly
21 Sternward
24 List-ending abbr.
25 Greek cross
26 Famous explorer
28 Altar constellation
29 Treads clumsily
30 Brylcreem amount
31 CBS symbol
36 Pact
37 Family card game
38 Imp
41 "And I should care ... why?"
42 Actor Nicolas
43 Earthenware pot
44 Zilch, in Xochimilco
46 Top-notch
47 Fateful day in Rome
48 Cornfield chatter
51 Turf

Solution time: 25 mins.

C	A	G	E		O	W	N		A	M	O	S
A	L	E	X		R	O	E		G	A	M	E
M	A	T	C	H	B	O	X		O	T	I	S
O	S	S	I	E			T	E	N	E	T	S
			T	R	A	Y		S	Y	R
H	O	M	E		P	O	M	P		I	F	S
E	R	A		S	E	D	A	N		A	L	I
W	E	T		T	R	E	Y		S	L	U	R
		T	W	O		L	O	B	O
S	C	R	E	W	S			A	P	R	I	L
U	L	E	E		M	A	T	A	H	A	R	I
R	U	S	K		U	S	E		I	N	O	N
F	E	S	S		T	I	E		A	I	N	T

Yesterday's answer 11-9

11-9 CRYPTOQUIP

FTB SLJZFTB CPFC RZYTXR F ALC LT CYAYEURULT SLJJYKSUFAR SAYFKAB PFR F QKYFC FX-EFTCFQY.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF LIFE AT YOUR LODGING HOUSE IS ENTIRELY HUMDRUM, I'D SAY YOU'RE A BORED BOARDER.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: C equals T

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

Who is Donald Rumsfeld?

1. When was Donald Rumsfeld sworn in as U.S. Secretary of Defense for the second time?
a. Jan. 20, 2001
b. July 4, 2001
c. Feb. 2, 2001

2. When Rumsfeld was secretary of Defense the first time, whose administration did he work for?
a. Ronald Reagan
b. Gerald Ford
c. George H.W. Bush

3. What is Rumsfeld criticized for?
a. His various clothing styles
b. His involvement in the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks
c. His role in the Iraq war

5. What sport did Rumsfeld participate in while in college?
a. Wrestling
b. Cross country
c. Hockey

6. Where did Rumsfeld go to college?
a. Harvard University
b. K-State
c. Princeton University

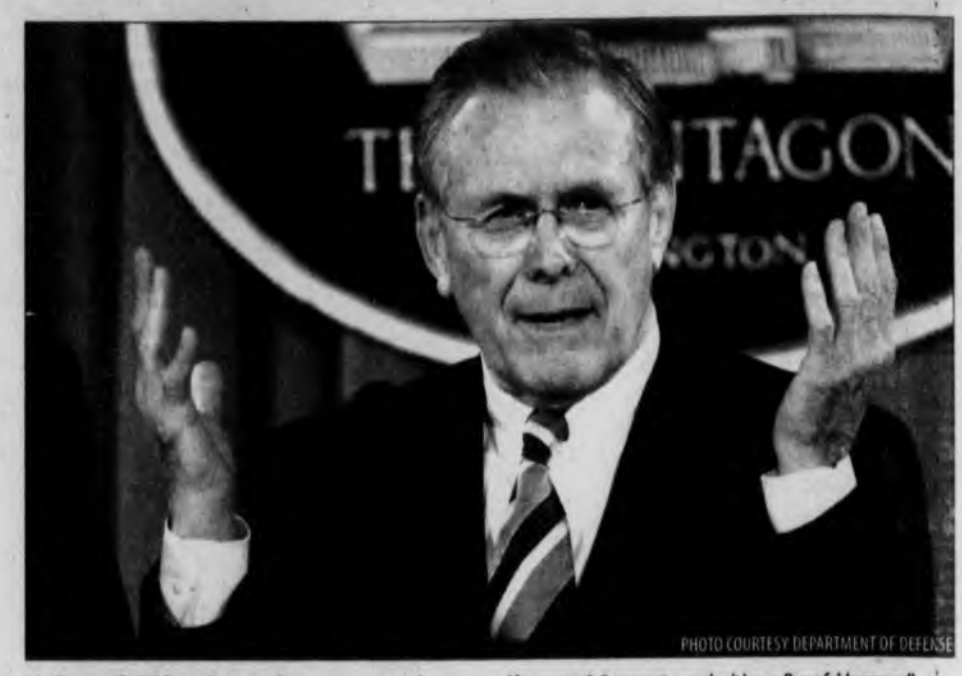


PHOTO COURTESY DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

7. Rumsfeld has been the _____ and _____ U.S. Secretary of Defense.
a. Wisest and dumbest
b. Lowest paid and highest paid
c. Youngest and oldest

8. What position did Rumsfeld serve while in the Air Force?
a. Control tower operator
b. Aviator and flight instructor
c. Cook

If you got 0-3 correct, you don't know Rumsfeld very well, but don't fret. You have an opportunity to learn more at today's Landon Lecture.

If you got 4-6 correct, good job. You know Rumsfeld, but you haven't gone overboard. Go see him at today's Landon Lecture to learn more about him.

If you got 7-8 correct, wow. You really know him. You've either done reports on him or you are very into politics. Go see him at the Landon Lecture. Maybe you'll learn a little more.

Source: www.defenselink.mil

Answers: 1. a, 2. b, 3. c, 4. b, 5. a, 6. c, 7. c, 8. b

Written by Kristen Roderick | COLLEGIAN

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ A Fair Trade Marketplace will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today in the Union Ballroom.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursdays through Nov. 16. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ Alpha Gamma Epsilon Student Gerontology Club will meet at 5 p.m. today in Leasure 103.

■ Career and Employment Services will have a dining etiquette workshop at 5:30 p.m. today in the Gold Room at the Derby Dining Center. Participants must have been registered by Nov. 3.

■ Sign up for the intramural swim meet by today in the office at the Peters Recreation Complex. The swim meet will be at 7 p.m. Nov. 16 and Nov. 20 at the Natatorium. The entry fee is $1.08 per person (including tax). For more information, call (785) 532-6980.

■ Rink Dickinson, cofounder and co-executive director of Equal Exchange, will present his lecture "A Taste for Justice" at 7 tonight in the Union Ballroom. The event is part of the Lou Douglas Lecture Series on Public Issues.

■ "The Global Assembly Line" will be presented as part of the Fair Trade Film Series from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in the library at K-State-Salina.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jill Bieker at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Practice Management Center in Trotter Hall.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Denise Guy at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Bluemont 368.

■ There will be a SafeZone Training Advanced Session titled "A View from Under the Rainbow GBLTQ Topics and Information" 5-6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. Check in is at 4:45 p.m.

■ "Not for Sale" will be presented as part of the Fair Trade Film Series 1:30-3 p.m. Tuesday in the library at K-State-Salina.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

dependable, quality service
√color copies
Claflin Books and Copies

Porter's
537-7151 706 N. Manhattan Ave
50¢ TACOS Hard & Soft
$3.00 Jager Bombs & Red Bull and Vodkas
$2.00 Import Bottles & Micros
$1.50 Any Pint
$3.00 Any Sandwich
11-2 (Open @ 11)

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

THURSDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 FISH BOWLS
$2.00 BOTTLES
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Open House Sun 1-6 pm
20% OFF
*EXCLUDES BRIGHTON
GREAT HOLIDAY GIFTS UNDER $20
PEGGY KARR CHRISTMAS WHITE CHOCOLATE POPCORN
ON DISPLAY VINTAGE SWAROVSKI CRYSTAL
Lilacs on the Prairie
327 POYNTZ 565-0900

Are you always the leader of those group projects?
We are going to pay you to be a leader on our team...
Your leadership skills are what we need. We're looking for strong individuals to help lead our sales teams for the spring semester. Working hours are in between classes.
Monday - Friday 9am-5pm
Collegian Advertising • K-State Phone Book
Manager and Asst. Manager Applications available in 103 Kedzie Hall
Applications and cover letter due in 103 Kedzie Hall, Friday, Nov. 10, 4 pm
For more information CALL 785-532-0723

Getting Started in Evening College
Working students and adults may apply and be admitted to a K-State Evening College program at anytime. Once admitted, you may enroll in courses during the next Evening College session. For K-State admissions, visit www.k-state.edu/admit.
Through 8- or 16-week night classes or a combination of night classes and distance education courses, you can earn a bachelor's degree or enhance your skills
ENROLL NOW FOR SPRING 2007 8- OR 16-WEEK TERMS
8-week term classes run from January 11 - March 5, 2007.
16-week term classes run from January 11 - May 11, 2007.
www.dce.ksu.edu/eveningcollege
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY EVENING College
For more information, call 1-800-622-2KSU or 785-532-5575 today.
informationdce@ksu.edu
Expanded Hours. Expanded Learning. Expanded Opportunities.

Wiccans use magick, ceremonies to heal, help

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Depending on who you ask, Wicca is either one of the world's new religions or the world's de facto old religion. Some, seeking middle ground, call it the world's oldest, new religion.

Mind-bending though it might be, it is difficult to pinpoint when the Wicca of today came into existence. According to religioustolerance.org, Wicca as a separate religion can be traced back to a form of witchcraft that originated in Britain during the 1940s, but many of the symbols, rituals and beliefs of Wicca date back to the formation of Celtic society, around 800 B.C.

The intervening three millennia have provided opportunities for the beliefs, traditions and misconceptions of Wicca to evolve, and all three were a topic at a class Wednesday in the K-State Student Union.

"We're trying to reach anybody who's ever heard of Wicca and the religion and have always wondered what it's about, but never thought to look into it," said Leota Boisclair, sophomore in bakery science and management.

Boisclair, president of the Alliance for the Understanding of Religious Alternatives, said the session has become something of a yearly tradition.

But, what exactly is Wicca? The answer, much like the history, avoids simple answers.

The religion lacks both a central hierarchy and a record of belief – like a bible. As a result the term "Wicca" refers to a variety of belief structures and practices.

Religioustolerance.org refers to Wicca as "a neopagan, earth-centered religion," but even this title misses some important aspects.

The most popularized version of Wicca involves the worship of a female goddess and a male god.

Other versions of the faith have only one god, however, with aspects both male and female. Some include many of the gods from the Greek and Roman pantheon, such as Zeus and Diana, and some variants believe in no god at all.

Past these divisions are yet more divisions. Some consider Wicca and witchcraft as one and the same, other consider them separate practices.

Some practice magic as an essential part of their religion, others concentrate on spirituality and do not practice magick. Some refer to themselves as neopagans, a term which includes all earth-centered religions such as Druidism, others refer to themselves simply as pagans, a term originally used to designate non-Christians.

Most agree that the religion, in its modern form, was brought about by occultist Gerald Gardner, who gave rise to what is still known as Gardnerian Witchcraft in the 1940s. Even this is contested though, and many claim a pedigree of sorts, saying their family has been practicing before the religions accepted foundation date, Boisclair said.

But the line in the sand all branches of Wicca agree to is the distinction between Wicca and worship of any sort of devil. In fact, most Wiccans reject any notion of a purely evil being.

Troubles arise in some areas though. Both Wiccans and Satanists use a five-pointed star as a religious symbol; both involve the use of magick in ceremonies, and some descriptions of the Wiccan god depict him as "The Horned One," a visualization that brings to mind traditional images of the Christian devil.

The religion and the ceremonies have made strides to distinguish themselves from black, or Satanic practices, which aim to harm or negatively influence someone.

Wiccans, instead, prefer to use magick and ceremonies for healing and helpful purposes, and follow the doctrine of the Wiccan Rede, which states Wiccans may do what they wish as long as they cause no harm, and the three-fold law, a mystic pronouncement that any magic actions, for good or bad, will return to the originator threefold.

In addition to general awareness, the religion itself has grown in the recent years. Much of the religion's draw is directed to those who have questions and beliefs that more prominent religions cannot answer, Boisclair said.

But, a downside to growing awareness is the sudden popularity of Wicca and the misinformation stemming from Hollywood and TV exploits such as "Charmed" and "Buffy the Vampire Slayer."

"In some ways, Wicca has suffered from its own success and spread," said Zachariah Starr, senior in horticulture and treasurer of AURA.

The sudden popularity has worried some that what was once a quiet, barely-known group has become flooded with half-truths, mass marketing schemes and pop-culture references.

"If you pick up a book and the first thing you see is a love potion that includes yogurt and strawberries, put the book back," Boisclair said.

Although there are publications and writers concerned with accurately portraying the intricacies of the religion, a growing number have moved into the field, hawking books with more an eye toward profit than honest depiction.

"Ninety percent of what you see on the bookshelves is garbage," said Robert Linder, distinguished professor of history.

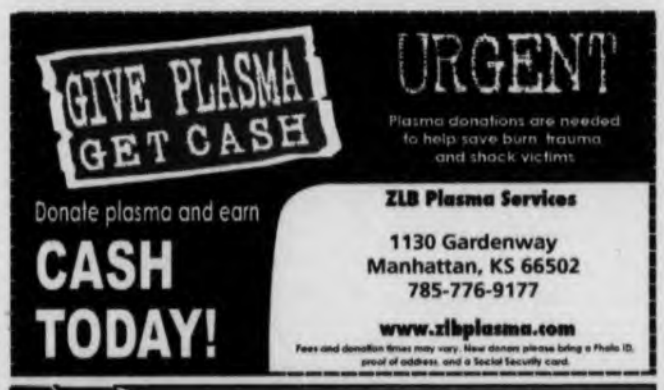
"You have to be very careful, very selective."

Linder, who teaches a course entitled "History of Witchcraft and the Occult," said traditionally witches have not drawn attention to themselves, often choosing to pass information down from generation to generation.

"The problem with that was real witches don't want to advertise themselves," he said.

Even those writers who are well accepted in the Wiccan and witchcraft community often find themselves targets of criticism for putting the public light on what many consider a private matter, Linder said.

Wednesday's class was hardly a matter of controversy, however. The leaders of the discussion, Boisclair and Starr, laughed with the audience about Harry Potter, whom neither were impressed by, and teased each other about varying practices.



"Its just like real life, unless you can communicate clearly it all gets garbled," Linder said.

"The one big umbrella that covers all of this is religion. There are all kinds of beliefs and practices."

Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

Zachariah Starr, senior in horticulture, and Leota Boisclair, sophomore in bakery science and management, speak about Wicca during the Aura Club meeting Wednesday evening at the K-State Student Union's room 212.

"We advertise in the Collegian every day because it provides a way for us to have contact with K-State students. The Collegian shows that Claflin Books and Copies is a part of the campus community."
--Kevin Snell
Claflin Books and Copies

WE'VE GOT 'EM, AND YOU WANT 'EM

Collegian Advertising
Your Number 1 source for reaching the K-State Community!

Reaching 23,000 Financial Aid recipients daily.
Let them know where to spend it
and where to get a job when they need more $!

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Bumper sticker ideology

Dr. Seuss statements like those on protest signs cannot compete in the marketplace of ideas

BRETT KING

The bottom feeders in ideological thinking emerge from the darkest pits of idiocy when government leaders come to our campus.

Within 24 hours of announcing the arrival of the former Secretary of Defense, Donald Rumsfeld, the party of the bumper sticker ideology was already out in full force to protest.

Even though he resigned from his post about 24 hours ago, he still deserves a warm welcome and our respect. According to the Defense Department Web site, Secretary Rumsfeld, a former Navy pilot, has an impressive résumé that includes previous experience as the White House Chief of Staff and Secretary of Defense under President Ford, a congressional representative and U.N. ambassador.

After his first stint in governmental service, Rumsfeld became the chief executive officer, president and chairman during his time with G.D. Searle & Co., a worldwide pharmaceutical company.

While there, Rumsfeld singlehandedly orchestrated one of the greatest turnarounds in American corporate history. That turnaround earned him the Chief Executive Officer of the year from both the Wall Street Transcript and the Financial World.

After his work in the private sector, Rumsfeld returned to public service in January 2001 to become the 21st Secretary of Defense in our nation's history under the Bush administration. Yet, even with this impressive background, there are those who thrash around like Linda Blair in the "Exorcist" at the very mention of his name.

By using the most important constitutional right – freedom of speech – liberals unleash their aggression against the government. Sadly, their version of speech is similar to that of a five-year-old, chock full of uneducated and incoherent thought.

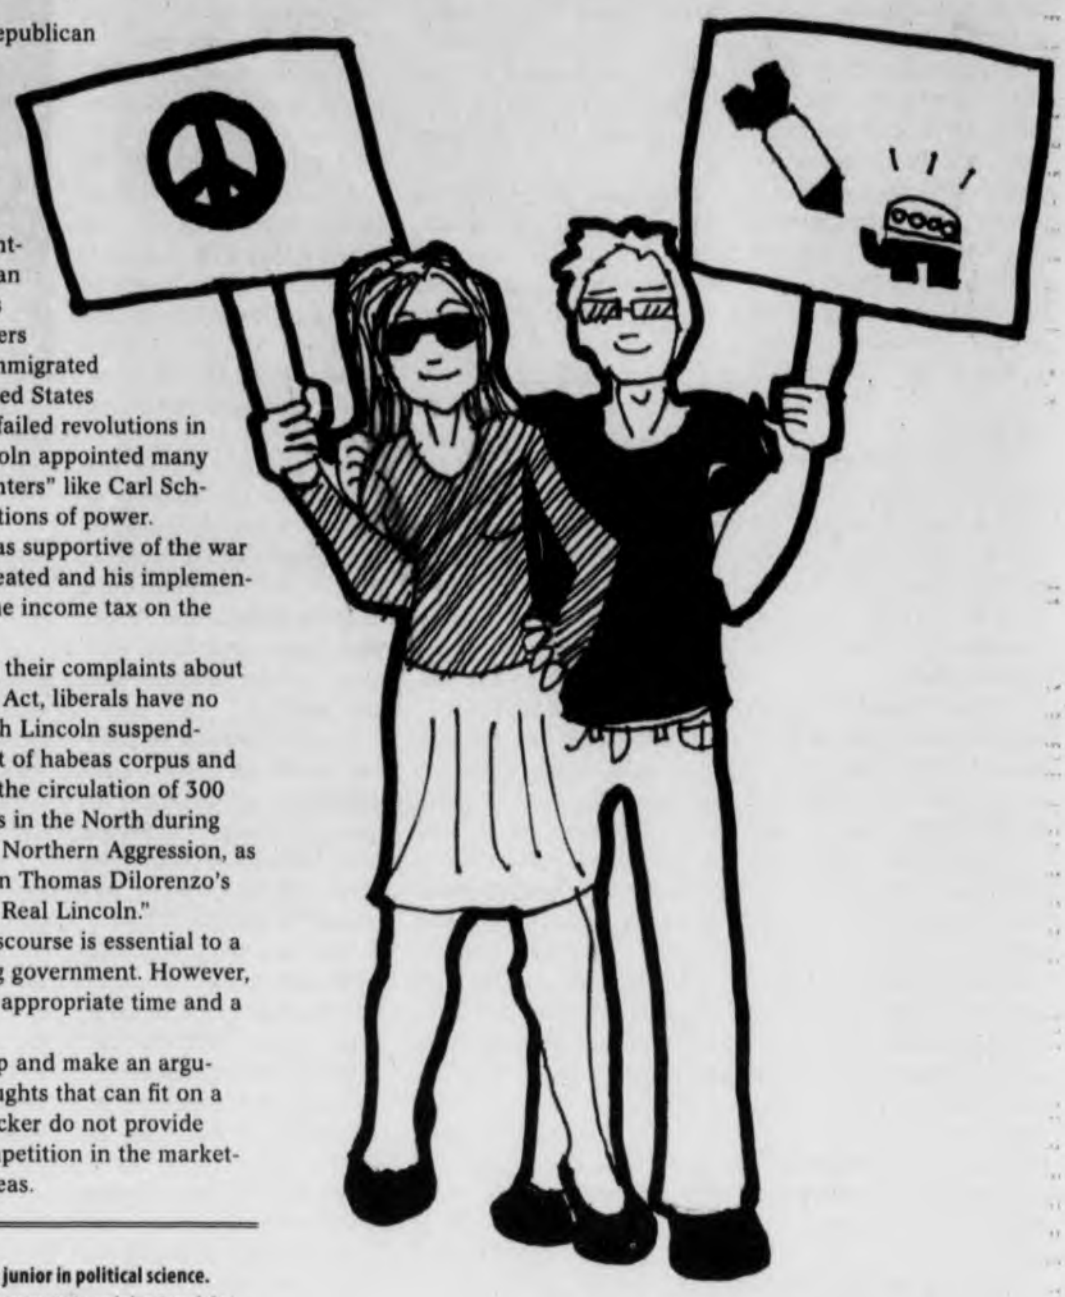
While campaigning for Democrats – like a former Republican carpet-bagger from Johnson County, Nancy Boyda – a table in the K-State Student Union was covered with signs in protest against the arrival of Rumsfeld.

"Don't nuke Iran. Nuke Rumsfeld," one sign declared.

How adorable, Dr. Seuss. This almost would be amusing if using nuclear weapons against Iran was on the table. What person actually believes the United States will use nuclear weapons preemptively again when we can't even use the amount of force necessary in Iraq?

Furthermore, we do not live in Hollywood. There are no aliens destroying U.S. cities. The idea of using nuclear weapons on our own soil, especially against a particular individual, is ridiculous.

A second sign that caught my eye was a picture of Abraham Lincoln with a statement stressing that he was what a Republican should be. Leave it to a liberal to support the only Republican that is to Karl Marx what peanut butter is to jelly.



The "Forty-Eighters," German immigrants and followers of Marx, immigrated to the United States after their failed revolutions in 1848. Lincoln appointed many "Forty-Eighters" like Carl Schurz to positions of power.

Marx was supportive of the war Lincoln created and his implementation of the income tax on the rich.

With all their complaints about the Patriot Act, liberals have no qualms with Lincoln suspending the writ of habeas corpus and restricting the circulation of 300 newspapers in the North during the War of Northern Aggression, as described in Thomas Dilorenzo's book "The Real Lincoln."

Civic discourse is essential to a functioning government. However, there is an appropriate time and a place.

Stand up and make an argument. Thoughts that can fit on a bumper sticker do not provide strong competition in the marketplace of ideas.

Brett King is a junior in political science. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

Democratic trio could be bad news for conservatives in Kansas

CHUCK ARMSTRONG

On the morning of Nov. 8, I woke up in a cold sweat.

I had just had a nightmare about the state of Kansas being engulfed in flames. Lucifer was standing on top of a rolling hill, laughing at me and my friends. On either side of him were demons in the form of Paul Morrison and Kathleen Sebelius.

As I looked closer at the trio, I realized that Lucifer was in the form of Nancy Boyda. They stopped laughing at my friends and me and began to give speeches of gratitude for all who voted for them, giving them all terms in office. This is when I woke up.

I knew this was merely a bad dream. I jumped out of my bed and sprinted to my computer. I frantically searched through FoxNews.com because I knew they wouldn't lie to me. What I found out was horrifying. The dream I had was no dream. Hell's Trio had taken over the state of Kansas.

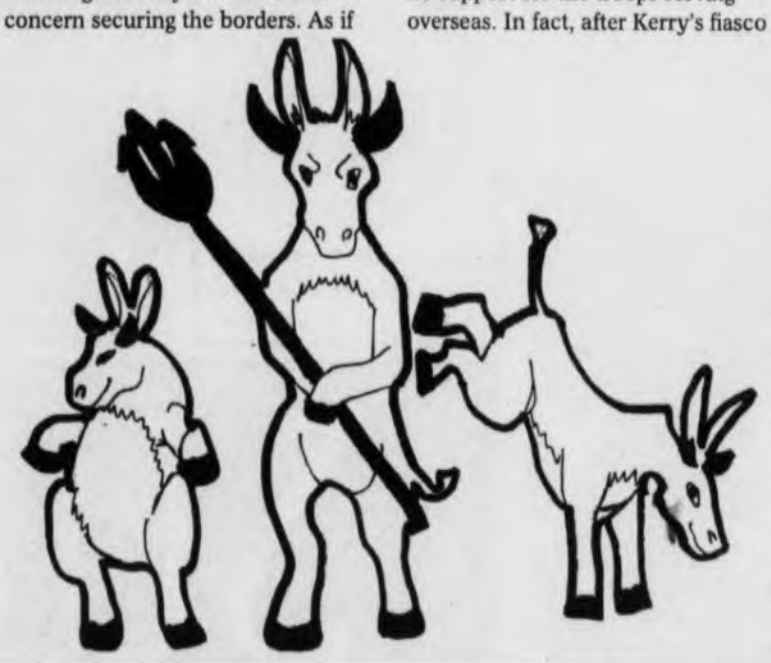
Now, don't get me wrong; while I am deathly terrified of this trio, I am most afraid of its leader: Nancy Boyda.

Kathleen Sebelius doesn't scare me. She is a typical Kansas Democrat. Sebelius is moderate in a lot of her beliefs. After all, she has yet to raise taxes as governor.

Paul Morrison hardly needs any discussion. A year ago he was serving the Republican party and for some unknown reason converted to the Democrat way of life. I have faith that he will repent of his sins and show his true inner elephant throughout his term as attorney general.

Boyda's two cronies do not worry me. What worries me is that Kansas is going to be represented by a John Kerry-loving liberal. I used to think Kansas was an agricultural, conservative state. If Boyda is such a good friend to the farmers, why is she so concerned with shutting down trade at the borders?

Speaking of borders, Boyda wants to open up the borders of the United States and invite all immigrants into the country. Boyda supports amnesty and is against any new laws that concern securing the borders. As if there isn't already an illegal immigrant problem in this state, Boyda wants to make that problem worse.



Another problem with Boyda is that the district she represents includes Fort Riley, yet she has shown no support for the troops serving overseas. In fact, after Kerry's fiasco last week, this anti-war protestor never asked for an apology. She just wanted to focus on her campaign.

Boyda needs a new plan.

Wait. What is Boyda's plan? If you search through her issues on her Web site, you will find that she has no plan for anything. What you will find, however, are pages and pages of empty, meaningless words.

What has happened to Kansans? My worst nightmare has finally come true: a liberal is representing Kansas in Washington, D.C. Perhaps this will all work out in the end, though. The citizens of this great state and this great country will realize not only Boyda's lack of intelligence, but also the lack of intelligence all Democrats have to offer.

All we need is Howard Dean talking for two years, and the Republicans will once again reign supreme.

Chuck Armstrong is a junior in English education. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Mosier | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTAION EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Rumsfeld's resignation comes with lies; needed to be announced prior to election

Yesterday Donald Rumsfeld resigned from his position as U.S. Secretary of Defense, and today he will visit K-State.

Despite the large quantities of media coverage we have seen in the last day, we still have a few questions.

Why did President Bush say he expected Rumsfeld to stay on for the remainder of his term when he was interviewing his replacement?

Bush answered that question yesterday by saying, "The reason why is I didn't want to inject a major decision about this war in the final days of a campaign."

He continued with, "The only way to answer that question and to get you onto another question was to give you that answer."

We think there was another way he could have answered, like perhaps telling the truth.

But wait, Bush continues to answer our questions by saying, "The other reason why is I hadn't had a chance to visit with Bob Gates yet, and I hadn't had my final conversation with Don Rumsfeld yet, at that point."

OK, we'll buy that. It makes sense, but what gets us is the last line of his response, where he states, "My point to you is that, win or lose, Bob Gates was going to become the nominee."

If that is true, it seems like he has, in fact, lied to us. For a person who used morality as a key component in his elections, we are offended.

Values shouldn't be sacrificed for party politics.

CAMPUS FOURUM 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Hello to the girl who just took off her shirt and bra in front of her window. You look like a retard.

Carlos O'Kelly's just gave us a quarter in our food. Maybe tomorrow we can get a dollar.

Red state no more.

Girls might as well shoot lasers out of their boobs.

You're so good. C'mon, Tot.

Lebron James is so money, he doesn't grow on trees.

If you steal my spot, I'll key your car. Life just kinda sucks that way.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

TO THE EDITOR

Academic advising necessary to connect students to campus

Editors,

I agree with the To The Point view that advising is a necessary part of the college experience. However, my recommendations for improvements differ from Friday's editorial.

Substantial research demonstrates that academic advising is an essential part of student learning and success. The effect of quality academic advising goes far beyond assisting students with course enrollment.

Academic advising is integral to fully engaging students on campus and in educational planning. Effective advisers teach students how to make sound educational and career decisions, how to use campus policies and procedures to support those decisions, and how to effectively connect with the myriad of campus resources.

Therefore, the changes, as described in Friday's lead article, are beginning on campus as we:

Clearly define academic advising as an integral part of the teaching and learning mission of our university – not just assisting with enrollment.

Articulate student learning outcomes for academic advising that include student and adviser responsibilities and their roles for achieving success in the advising partnership.

Provide comprehensive, focused professional development for all academic advisers so they can meet the expectations for advising as a teaching and learning process.

The National Academic Advising Association, with 9,000 plus members internationally, is housed at K-State. NACADA is committed to working with the university and our students to make K-State an exemplary model for academic advising excellence.

Charlie Nutt
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR
NATIONAL ACADEMIC ADVISING ASSOCIATION
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, DEPARTMENT OF COUNSELING AND EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY

Student atones for actions while drunk

Editor,

As a student at this university, I have come in contact with many others who enjoy going out and getting drunk with their friends. Upon arriving at K-State, I thought that was the life I wanted for myself, but I knew that, in all reality, I didn't want to spend the best years of my life partying, much less being drunk.

Months ago I decided to go out and drink, and in doing so, I became undeserving of the trust of anyone who knew me. I had preached to others that I didn't need alcohol to have a good time, but I let poor self-esteem get in my way. I was so concerned with what people thought of me that I nearly destroyed an amazing friendship.

It is with this letter that I am apologizing formally to my university, anyone who ever took my words to heart about being safe while partying, and my closest friend whose trust I nearly lost. It is also with this formal apology that I encourage fellow students to analyze their lives and ask themselves a few questions: Is this how I want to be remembered? What am I doing for the people I love? What am I doing for myself?

Joel Spedding
JUNIOR IN HOTEL AND RESTAURANT MANAGEMENT

Pedestrians problematic for cyclists, walking procedures necessary to avoid accidents

Editor,

Being an avid cyclist, and a regular campus commuter, I do not see any problem with the current system as it relates to cyclists. The problem lies elsewhere. I will admit I have come close to hitting several individuals on campus. But I tell you, never once was it my fault.

I cannot tell the number of times I have been forced to ride uncomfortably close to a group of people because the person(s) were on the wrong side of the sidewalk or were walking four abreast and did not allow space for faster moving traffic. I am very familiar with the legal bike routes on campus and do my best to follow them. Just yesterday, I rode past a girl and was well over two feet away from her. I was in the street, and she in the crosswalk. I did not see any problem with riding past her, yet she had a problem, because she exclaimed, "Jesus!" as I rode past.

I'm sure she then went to tell all of her friends she was near death because of a reckless biker. There are several people on bikes of whom I too am afraid, but more than that, I really get scared when a person attempts to jump out of the way and ends up hurting themselves and/or others around them. Yes, education on the legal bike routes needs to be put in place but so does education on walking etiquette.

If people on foot are not following the rules, it makes it that much more dangerous for them and for cyclists. I do my part to follow the rules, but if people can't walk on the correct side of the sidewalk, they can't complain when they almost get hit.

Tyler Whetstone
FRESHMAN IN INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERING

Reader asks Collegian to worry more about feedback received, less about minorities

Editor,

It has been some time now, but in the Sept. 29 issue of the Collegian, Logan Adams wrote a little note about the lack of minority feedback to the Collegian. I have been thinking about how to react to that train of thought for some time and decided I needed to say something, if not to be published, at least to be considered on his mind.

The article, or letter, was about how there are few minorities at "Yell" sessions. I started thinking: how does he know? Does he personally ask each person what their racial background is? What their ages or religions are? Does he interact with each person determining if they are a minority or not? Because, I promise you, if I were at a "Yell" session, he would just think I am another white girl. And I am clearly a pale woman. However, I am of Hispanic descent.

When I mark a box on a form, I am Hispanic. And, although I look like a normal college student, I am 26. This would probably make me a minority at the "Yell" sessions also, as most people that attend are probably between 18 and 22. My point here is, you are being prejudiced by assuming I am not a minority. By assuming because I am white-looking, I am just a plain-Jane, run-of-the-mill white college student when that is not the case at all. In conclusion, I think you should worry less about minorities contributing to the Collegian, and more about the feedback of all people who submit. More than likely, everyone you know is not what you really think they are.

Sarah E. Velasquez
GRADUATE STUDENT IN AG BUSINESS

2 Manhattan reps retain House seats

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two state representatives earned another term in office in yesterday's midterm elections.

Democrat incumbents Sydney Carlin and Tom Hawk, both of Manhattan, retained their seats, with comfortable victories over their Republican challengers.

In the 66th District, Carlin came away with 57 percent of the vote for a third term in office. The margin of victory was better this time than in her 2004 race against Paul Barkey.

Meanwhile, Hawk fared well in the 67th district, overcoming Dick Miller with 57.5 percent of the votes. In his first congressional run in 2004, he slipped by with only 89 more votes than his opponent, Joe McGraw.

Carlin commended her opponent for running a good campaign.

"I had a challenger who was eager to be a representative and ran an excellent, well-financed campaign," she said.

Carlin said that since Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, D-Kan., was re-elected and Democrats won several additional seats in the House, they might be able to follow through on some legislation they pushed during the past term. One of those items is health care.

Carlin said she pushed last year for a bill that would allow small businesses to participate in the state health care plan, giving them a lower cost, a plan that would automatically cover all children 0-5 years old.

"Young families, maybe those in college, would benefit," she said. "It would help you if you could keep your school insurance and the child would be covered."

Carlin said she also helped pass a bill that allowed public universities to shop around for student health insurance, which could mean lower rates for students.

"Universities having to buy insurance through the state is cumbersome," she said.

Final tallies in Riley County

• indicates the overall winner

U.S. House of Representatives, 2nd District
• Nancy Boyda	6,614
Jim Ryun	7,009
Kansas Governor
• Kathleen Sebelius	8,472
Jim Barnett	5,241
Kansas Attorney General
• Paul Morrison	8,086
Phill Kline	5,572
Kansas House of Representatives, 66th District
• Sydney Carlin	2,982
Bob Strawn	2,218
Kansas House of Representatives, 67th District
• Tom Hawk	4,304
Dick Miller	3,179

Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town:
59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.50 Michelob Family Pints
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
$1.99 Margaritas
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

Thursday Nights @
TUBBY'S
Sports Bar
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$2.00 Shots, Wells & Bottles
Mon-Tues 4pm-2am
Wed-Sun 11:30-2am

FALL into SAVINGS
SALON 1
$20 Any highlight or color and haircut
$10 Any highlight or color
$6 Men's Haircut, Eyebrow Wax, Lip Wax
3104 ANDERSON AVE. 785.539.3626 MANHATTAN, KS 66503
HURRY IN! APPOINTMENTS ARE LIMITED! EXPIRES 11.30.06

we're serious this time.
At 50, you'll want to show everyone what you looked like in college.
So, come get your free yearbook picture taken:
Today, Nov. 9
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Derby Dining Center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.
Friday, Nov. 10
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Vet Med 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
It will also prove that you actually did attend college.
royalpurple

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

VETERANS DAY CELEBRATION
"VETERANS: AMERICA'S HEROES"
Thursday, November 9, 2006
2:00 p.m. Plaque Dedication Train Depot
Friday, November 10, 2006
7:00-9:00 a.m. Veterans Day Breakfast
$6.00 Donation
VFW Post 1706, 212 South Fourth
9:00 a.m. State and Territorial Flag Display
Courthouse Lawn
9:30 a.m. Veterans Day Honor Parade
Immediately Following Parade
11:00 a.m. Commemorative Program - Wareham Opera House
6:30 p.m. Veterans Day Recognition Banquet
8:00-11:30 p.m. Veteran's Day Dance
Flint Hills Veterans Coalition/City of Manhattan

Too soon to criticize Huggins

AUSTIN MEEK

There's no textbook on how to build a winning basketball program. At last check, K-State does not offer a course on the subject.

So it's not accurate to say Bob Huggins doesn't go by the book, because there isn't one.

Every coach builds his team in his own way. Huggins' approach involves recruiting high-profile talent, and with high-profile talent, occasionally there comes high-profile drama.

Since he arrived at K-State, Huggins has stockpiled weapons faster than North Korea. First came Blake Young, Luis Colon and Jason Bennett, players who appear to be key components of this year's squad.

Wednesday, Huggins announced the signing of four players – top-ranked recruit Michael Beasley and a trio of talented guards. Factor in Bill Walker, who will join the team in December, and you've got the top recruiting class in the nation, according to Rivals.com.

No matter how much success he has, Huggins will always be hounded by questions about his recruiting tactics. At Cincinnati, he was branded a win-at-all-costs coach who doesn't care about pesky things like graduation rates and prison records.

Is this reputation deserved? Six months and one recruiting class are hardly enough to make a fair judgment.

Nationally, Huggins took some heat for the perceived "package deal" that brought Beasley to Manhattan.

Beasley originally committed to Charlotte, in large part because of his close relationship with former Charlotte assistant Dalonte Hill.

When Huggins took the job at K-State, one of his first moves was to hire Hill as an assistant coach. Once Hill came to Manhattan, Beasley wasn't far behind.

There's no rule against this type of deal, but that didn't stop critics from firing away.

But here's my point: as a coach, if you expect your players to do everything they can to win, you're obligated to do the same.

If Huggins didn't do everything in his power to bring the best players into his program, he'd be selling his team and himself short.

Other coaches don't have the clout to sign the recruits Huggins can, which makes him an easy target. But if another coach had the opportunity to sign the No. 1 recruit in the country, would he turn it down?

Huggins' recruiting tactics are unconventional and often controversial. But remember, there's no textbook on how to build a winning team.

Or maybe there is, and I was just too cheap to buy it.

Austin Meek is a senior in public relations. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

'DOIN' IT THE K.O. WAY

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Derek Berry, Manhattan resident, takes aim at a boxing target during training at the K.O. Boxing center. K.O. Boxing is located in the Blue Hills Shopping Center off of Tuttle Creek Blvd.

Trainees exercise boxing skills, self-confidence

By Eileen Laux
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

One. One, two. One, two, three.

These are a few of the things Lorissa Ridley-Fink shouts out on a given day. Ridley-Fink owns and operates K.O. Boxing, Gymnastics, Dance and Fitness at Blue Hills Shopping Center, and is trying to prove that boxing isn't just a man's sport.

Ridley-Fink has been boxing since she played an arcade game with a friend where a person had to hit a bag. She ended up hitting it so hard it made the bells go off. She then began training with a Golden Gloves trainer in 1996.

She has 25 years of experience in training athletes, which accompanies the fitness classes she teaches at the studio.

The former professional dancer began offering both credit and non-credit boxing classes through UFM in 2004. Students can take boxing for men or women and then move on to the intermediate class.

"I wanted to create a program that will appeal to men and women alike who have the desire to box," she said.

Wesley Duey, junior in kinesiology, is one of those students. While growing up, he wanted to learn how to box, he said.

"I always wondered how much it takes to be a boxer and how hard it is on your body," he said. "I also really enjoy watching the sport. I learned how to box around three months ago and box regularly around four times a week."

Duey said he has learned a lot, including how to spar, take punches and throw a combination of punches.

He said he was surprised when he walked into class and saw his trainer was a woman, because he thought the sport was predominately male. He has a great deal of respect for Ridley-Fink as an instructor, however.

Boxers spar in the boxing area during workout time at K.O. Boxing Monday evening. Boxers in the advanced level classes have the opportunity to spar with other members in the class.

"She has a lot of knowledge about the sport and what goes into it," he said. "She's great at working with boxers to fix any bad boxing form or style. She also knows how to work people and get them to push themselves to be as good as they can be."

Duey said he would recommend the class to current and future students because it's a great workout and challenges the person physically and mentally.

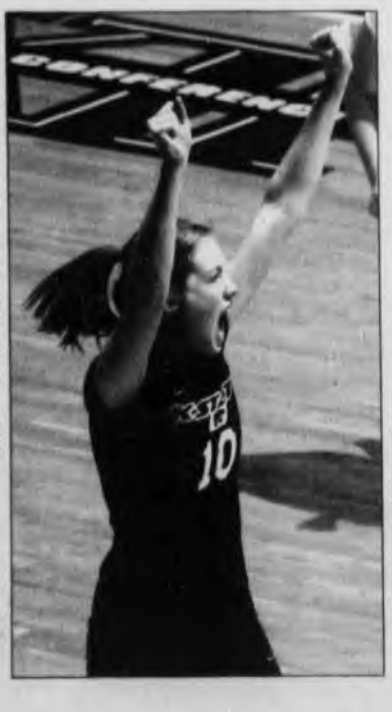
Laura Smith, a trainer at the studio, said her experience at the gym has been very postive.

Smith, senior in nutrition and exercise sciences and dietetics, originally enrolled in the boxing for women class through UFM and was later asked to help out. She now teaches or assists with classes and provides nutritional advice for members.

"Training at K.O. is the most rewarding job I have ever had," she said. "Lorissa is very knowledgeable about the skills she teaches and earns the trust of every member at her gym."

Smith said she thinks it is great that Ridley-Fink works with both men and women.

"She is proof that women don't have to just stick to traditional female sports," she said.



"In my experience, women actually catch on to the skills in boxing a little faster than men do. Some men are reluctant to have a female boxing trainer, but the men who have enrolled at K.O. quickly develop a high respect for Lorissa and what she is accomplishing with her business. They realize that the training they receive is much higher quality than what they would experience at most other boxing gyms."

Smith said boxing is the first sport she has been involved in since high school, and agreed with Duey that its students receive a confidence boost from the class.

Ridley-Fink said the boxers at her gym are training to make themselves better, not just to fight. She said hers is different from other training gyms.

"You get what you pay for," she said.

K-State women's volleyball defeats Baylor in first sweep

K-State's Jenny Jantsch celebrates after winning a point Wednesday evening in the Wildcat's 3-0 win over Baylor. The Wildcat's earned its first Big 12 Conference win since an Oct. 18 match against Texas Tech.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

All season, K-State women's volleyball coach Suzie Fritz has stressed the importance of serving aggressively.

Now her team knows why.

The Wildcats used 10 service aces to help defeat Baylor 3-0 (30-24, 30-20, 30-23) Wednesday night at Ahearn Field House, snapping a five-match losing streak and earning their first Big 12 Conference win since Oct. 18.

"We served awesome," Fritz said. "We had a lot of things clicking and a lot of things coming together at one time ... it was rewarding."

Sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker led the Wildcats (10-16, 2-14 Big 12) with 12 kills and a .429 hitting percentage. She said she was pleased with the way her team bounced back from a 3-0 loss on Saturday against Texas A&M.

"We just rocked it; we were well-rounded tonight," Kroeker said. "When we made a mistake, we came back with a kill a pass or a dig – something amazing."

In game one, the Wildcats took an early lead of 19-12, but Baylor's Anna Breyfogle registered seven kills to pull the Bears within two.

After a time out by Fritz, the Wildcats responded by going on a 5-1 run – capped off by a Lastra ace – to finish off the Bears 30-24.

The Wildcats picked up right where they left off in the second game, forcing the Bears into nine errors and several errant hits. The result was a lopsided 30-20 win.

Fritz said she was pleased with the fast start, because her team has played poorly under pressure this season.

"I don't think this team has played well under pressure for a good portion of the year, so we did a good job of keeping pressure on them this time and not putting ourselves in situations," she said.

After trailing 5-3 early on in game three, the Wildcats were able to regain the lead and cruised to an easy 30-23 win to take the match.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

BKW | 2 players commit to K-State sign letters of intent on 1st day

Wylie High School product Jackie Stanley and Shalin Spani of Metro Academy have signed letters of intent to attend K-State in the fall of 2007 and play women's basketball for coach Deb Patterson.

"We are thrilled with the addition of Jackie Stanley and Shalin Spani to our program," Patterson said. "Jackie and Shalin bring the combination of basketball talent, personal character, and work ethic that our Kansas State women's basketball program takes great pride in being built upon. These young ladies are tremendous student athletes in every sense of the word. I think one of the greatest attributes of each of these players is their commitment to being team players, in addition to the tremendous individual contributions they make to their teams."

Stanley, a 6-foot-2 forward, was a three-time first team all-district and two-time TABC all-region selection. She was also named TABC and TGCA all-state and 11-4A District MVP in 2006. Last season she averaged 20.5 points per game and 9.4 rebounds per game and was named team MVP all three seasons. Stanley earned Wylie High School athlete of the month five times and player of the week by Dallas Morning News six times in three years. She is ranked sixth among the class of 2007 in the state of Texas by National All Star Girls Report.

Spani, a 5-foot-11 guard product of Lee's Summit, Mo., led Metro Academy to NCHBC National Championship her junior year. A three time NCHBC All-American, earned 2005 Street & Smith's High School All-American honorable mention in 2006. She was also selected first team all-state in 2006 and first team all-region in 2004 and 2005. Spani averaged 24.0 points, 8.9 rebounds, 4.1 assists and 4.5 steal per game as a junior. She holds numerous school records including career points (2,467), points in a season (936) and points in a game (43).

RUN | Cross Country runner Bonds named to "Good Works" Team

K-State cross country's Morgan Bonds was named to the inaugural Big 12 Fall Sports "Good Works" Team on Nov. 2. The 12-member team is made up of one student-athlete from each Big 12 Conference school that participates in the fall sports of football, cross country, volleyball, or soccer.

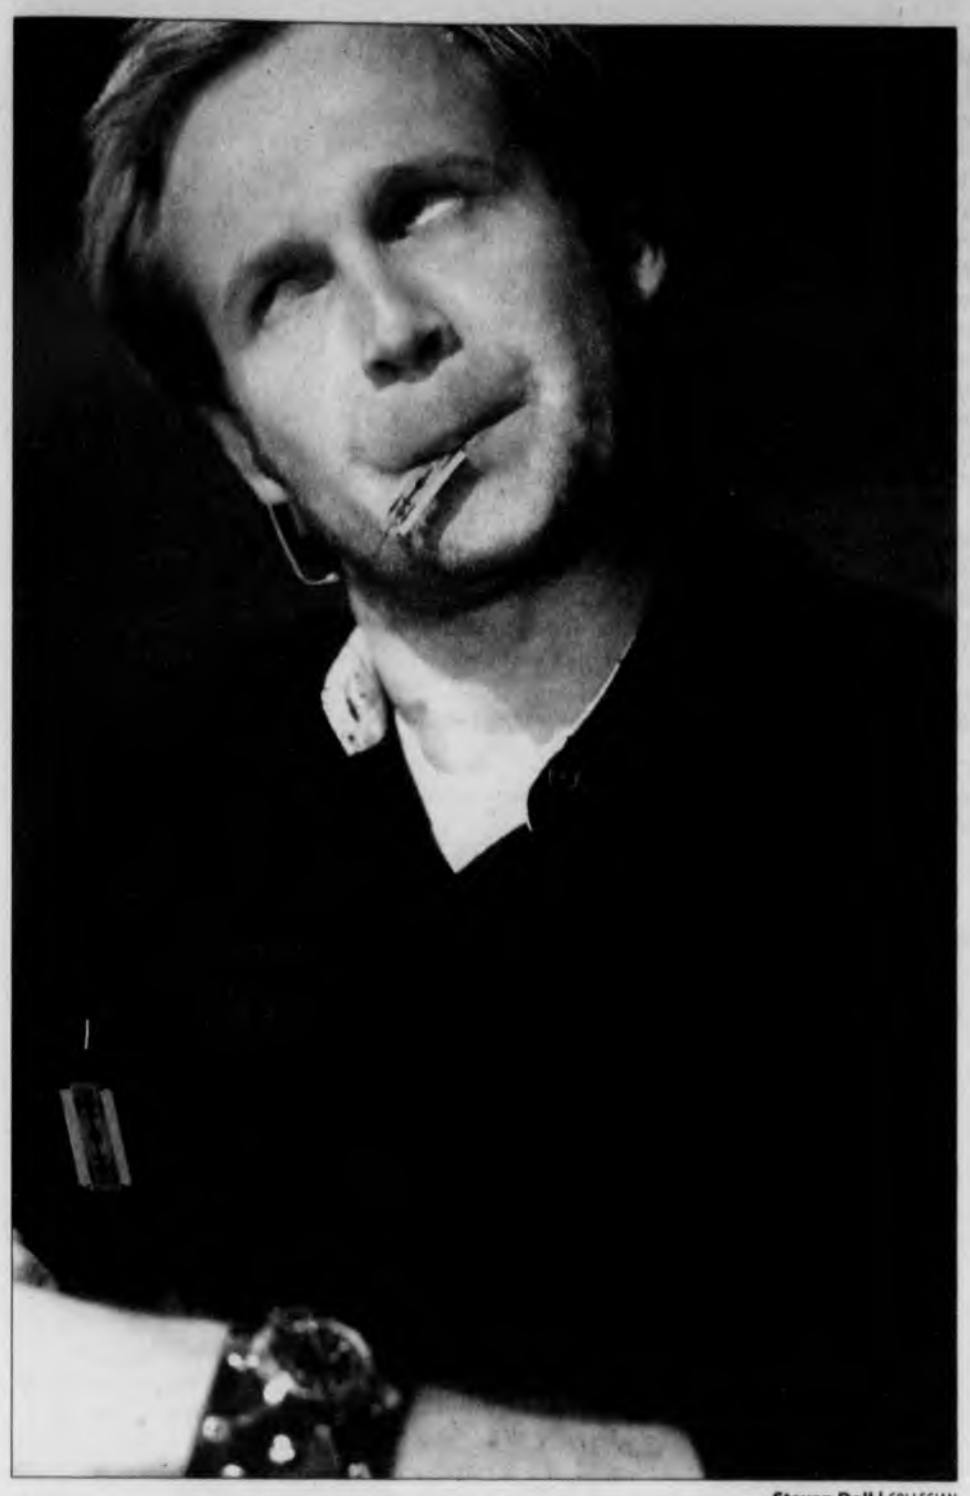
Bonds

Bonds, a native of Hutchinson, Kan., was selected by Kansas State coaches for recognition based upon significant community service, good academic standing and participation in a Big 12 sponsored sport.

Recently named a First-team Academic All-Big 12 member, Bonds serves as the captain of the 2006 cross country team. She has a pair of top-10 finishes this season, with her best finish coming at the Kansas State Invitational on Sept. 8, where she turned in a fifth-place finish.

Beginning this athletic year, the Big 12 will announce 12-person "Good Works" teams for fall, winter (men's basketball, women's basketball, swimming and diving, gymnastics, wrestling), and spring sports (golf, tennis, track and field, softball, baseball).

GLF | Former Wildcat golfers move 1 step closer to tour card



Former K-State golfers Matt Van Cleave and Aaron Watkins advanced to the PGA Tour's second stage of qualifying for membership on the 2007 tour.

Van Cleave tied for 23rd on the par-72, 7,147-yard Lantand Golf Club in Lantana, Texas, Oct. 24-27. He carded a 75-70-71-76—292 (+4). This is the second-consecutive year he will advance to the second round.

Aaron Watkins tied for 22nd following a 7-under par 281 performance. On the par-72, 7,133-yard San Juan Oaks Golf Club, Watkins shot a final-round 66 to advance to the second round.

The pair's next step towards gaining membership for the 2007 tour will come Nov. 15-18 at Southern Dunes G.C. in Maricopa, Ariz.

If the two are successful in the second frame, both will advance to the final stage of Q-School at the PGA West Golf Club in Palm Desert, Calif. The 6-round, 108-hole event will take place Nov. 29-Dec. 4. The top 30 players and ties at the final event become fully exempt on the PGA Tour for 2007.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

After separately swallowing a piece of string and several razor blades, magician Jim Munroe pulls the string and razor blades from his mouth while performing a magic trick.

Performers mix faith with magic

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A mix of religion and magic filled the Union Ballroom Wednesday night as students watched and participated in acts during Maze Experience.

Midwest Student Ministries and Chi Alpha Ministries sponsored the performance by Jim Munroe and Tennyson McCarty. The show featured different acts, ranging from card tricks to telepathy to the show's finale, the "bullet catch" where Munroe caught a bullet in his mouth that was shot from a gun fired by McCarty.

Dave Diefendorf, director of Midwest Student Ministries, said Munroe and McCarty were asked to perform to students for motivation.

"It was to get people to open up to a message about deception," he said.

Munroe and McCarty incorporated their faith into the show by performing tricks of illusion and deception and then talking about the illusions and deceptions that people can experience in life.

Munroe said the pair met six years ago and started doing magic two weeks later. He said the combination of magic and religion happened when they saw how people viewed illusions and what the Christian faith says about illusion.

He said the performance was inspired by magicians David Blaine and Chris Angel, and much of the magic performed was influenced by the magician pair Penn and Teller.

"We never wanted to do anything cheesy," Munroe said. "People always like gory and weird stuff."

Audience members were called onstage throughout the show to help with the acts. One woman was asked to show a $1 bill to to the audience while Munroe's eyes were covered by another volunteer. Even though he was temporarily blinded, Munroe was able to guess the serial number on the bill.

The show had a three-minute intermission where the magicians told the audience they were going to share their faith throughout the rest of the show and any audience members who felt they might be offended could leave.

Brandy Lehman, resident of Manhattan, said the "bullet catch" was her favorite part of the show, and she felt inspired after the entire performance.

"I thought it was very motivational and that a lot of people that weren't Christians would have been been motivated by tonight," she said.

Vendors sell coffee, jewelry

By Austin Apple
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K & S Ballrooms in the K-State Student Union have been transformed into a marketplace for products from many different parts of the world.

The Fair Trade Marketplace will continue from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today.

"Fair trade is a concept of getting a fair wage for the efforts that are put in," said Linda Teener, director at UFM Community Learning Center.

The displays are from home industries and individuals from around the world who are selling their projects so they can earn a living wage, Teener said.

The products are made primarily by women.

The Fair Trade Marketplace is part of Fair Trade Week, which is hosted by UFM, CrossRoads of Ecumenical Campus Ministry, K-State Women's Studies and the Manhattan Mennonite Church.

Equal Exchange, 10,000 Villages, MarketPlaceIndia and other small vendors have booths set up with products including coffee, chocolate bars, pottery, clothing and jewelry.

"Equal Exchange is a 100 percent fair trade coffee, tea and cocoa company," said Summer Lewis, representative for Equal Exchange.

Equal Exchange began in 1986 with its main office in Boston, Lewis said.

"We started small, and now we have a full range of products," Lewis said.

Equal Exchange works with small farmer co-ops around the world, Lewis said.

"Our coffee comes from Latin America – Central and South America, Africa and Indonesia," Lewis said.

Their tea comes from India, Sri Lanka and South Africa and their chocolate is made with products from Peru and Dominican Republic, Lewis said.

Another vendor, 10,000 Villages, was started through the Mennonite church, Cia Verschelden, professor of women's studies, said.

They go around the world and work with artisans to create products that can be sold in North America and Europe.

"The idea is to help poor people to be self-sufficient by making things that are indigenous to their culture," Verschelden said.

Examples include a soap stone, pottery from Peru and a wood carving with bright colors from El Salvador.

"10,000 Villages gets it here and into the market," Verschelden said.

Verschelden gave an example of how trade normally works.

"A purse bought at Wal-Mart might cost over $30, but the person who made it might have gotten $0.50 or $1," Verschelden said.

Fair Trade Week continues throughout the rest of the week, Teener said.

"Tonight the Lou Douglas Lecture will be focusing on fair trade issues and why it's important for people in the United States to be aware of what's going on in the rest of the world," Teener said.

It is important, whether you are in the United States or another country, to talk about fair wages, Teener said.

Theresa Melhem, freshman in pre-professional elementary education, and Emma Denner, freshman in early childhood development, belly danced at noon on Nov. 8 in the Bosco Student Plaza as part of Fair Trade Week.

This was the first year they have done this for Fair Trade Week, Melhem said.

"We have been dancing together for between one and 1 1/2 years," Denner said.

Veteran's day offers many events

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Veteran's Day festivities will begin Friday morning with a breakfast of biscuits and gravy from 7-9 at the VFW.

The cost is $4, and tickets are available at the Riley County Historical Museum or at the door. Proceeds from the meal support local Veteran's Day activities.

Following the breakfast will be the annual parade, which will begin at 9:30 a.m. at City Park and will proceed down Poyntz Ave. to Manhattan Town Center.

The procession will pass an eagle statue at the Veteran's Memorial in front of the Riley County Courthouse on Poyntz Ave., which officially will be dedicated after the parade.

The bronze plaque on the base of the statue reads, "In honor of all American veterans who, although separated by generations, share a common undeniable goal, to valiantly protect and defend our country's freedoms. The American veteran is forever the symbol of heroism, sacrifice, loyalty and freedom."

The plaque will be dedicated at a separate ceremony at 2 p.m. today at the Manhattan Train Depot on Fort Riley Blvd.

The Veteran's Coalition is sponsoring a ceremony at the Wareham Opera House following the parade and will feature speeches by local officials and officers from Fort Riley.

Veteran's Day will wrap up Friday with a dinner and dance at the American Legion. Dinner begins at 6:30 p.m. and is $12 per person. Organizers said they would like people to call ahead so they can plan on how much food to prepare. The dance starts at 8:30 p.m. and is $8 per person or $15 per couple.

RAMBLERS
Steakhouse & Saloon
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner- 2 complete dinners
$2.00 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

LONGHORNS SALOON
Aggieville 1115 MORO
Manhattan 776-8770
LIVE IN CONCERT TONIGHT
BLEU EDMONDSON
WITH SPECIAL GUEST
FULL THROTTLE

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

Have you ever had to convince everyone that working on the Homecoming Float would be "fun"?
Our paper is a lot more fun to work with than toilet paper.
Collegian Advertising Sales- We're not selling toiletries
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL OR EMAIL JHANSON@KSU.EDU
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

Secretary of Defense Donald H. Rumsfeld honors the presentation of the American flag during the Memorial Day wreath-laying and remembrance ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, Va., May 29, 2006.

Staff Sgt. D. Myles Cullen
U.S. AIR FORCE.

RUMSFELD | Gates declined opportunity 2 years ago

Continued from page 1

Web site Wednesday, Gates said he expects to remain president of the university until the completion of his confirmation process and U.S. Senate approval.

The letter also said Gates declined the opportunity two years ago to become the first director of national intelligence so he could remain at A&M. Gates said in a CNN.com report Wednesday that he accepted the nomination for secretary defense because "the United States is at war."

If Gates is appointed, Stephen Long, assistant professor of political science, said his biggest challenge will be crafting a new strategy for the war in Iraq and responding to Bush and the new Democratic Congress' expectations.

"I think the potential impact on American foreign policy is large," Long said. "This is also a good opportunity to rebuild the relationship between the Secretary of Defense and the various armed services because Rumsfeld had a very antagonistic relationship with them."

In February 2005, Rumsfeld said that he twice offered his resignation to President Bush after the Abu Ghraib prisoner-abuse scandal but was asked both times to stay in the job, according to an April 2005 ABC News Online report.

Charles Reagan, chairman of the Landon Lecture Series, said he was surprised at the timing of Rumsfeld's resignation.

"I thought he would do it before the election, if he was going to," Reagan said.

Long also said he was surprised at the timing of the resignation.

"It seemed a little bit strange, because President Bush has been pretty widely criticized for failing to respond to criticism and dissent, so it would have made more sense to ask for Rumsfeld's resignation before the election," Long said. "Bush could have answered some of his critics before elections."

—The Associated Press contributed to this report.

U.S. Secretary of Defense
— Roles and responsibilities

- Sixth in line of succession to the president of the United States
- Position was created in 1946 when the Navy, Army and Air Force merged into the National Military Establishment. During this same reorganization, the Secretary of War was replaced by the Secretary of the Army and — along with the Secretary of the Navy and the Secretary of the Air Force — became a non-Cabinet position under the Secretary of Defense.
- Appointed by the president and approved by the U.S. Senate
- By statute, the secretary must be a civilian who has not served in the active component of the armed forces for at least 10 years.

Source:
U.S. Department of Defense Web site

Military Science Building to be renamed Richard B. Myers Hall

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Military Science building will be renamed for Gen. Richard B. Myers today.

Charles Reagan, associate of K-State president Jon Wefald, said he came up with the idea of dedicating the building to Myers nine months ago and – along with the president – has been organizing the event. Reagan said it wasn't hard to get it approved by the Kansas Board of Regents.

"Do you know who Richard Myers is?" he said. "You can imagine that it's not difficult to rename a building after someone like that."

In a news release, Wefald said the event is a fitting tribute for a man who embarked on his successful military career in the building that will now bear his name.

"It is good to have an alum that carries a name in the nation," Ryan Moss, senior in social science, said. "If students interested in military science are deciding between different universities, they have a name on our campus they might have heard in the news and therefore choose to come to K-State."

Myers graduated from K-State in 1965 with a bachelor's degree in engineering.

After graduation, Myers joined the Air Force through the Air Force ROTC program. There, he earned an additional bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering, and moved on to command various Air Force operations in the United States. He became the 15th Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in 2001, serving from 2001-05.
He now serves as a professor of military history at K-State.

Emily Sims, senior in finance, said she thinks it is interesting that Myers returned to K-State after holding such high ranks in the military.

"By honoring him and naming the building for him, it will hopefully encourage other alumni to come back to campus to do things for students and the university," she said.

Myers helped design and install a military strategy to win the war on terror, while developing ties with allies to forge a coalition as well, before retiring in 2005.

If you go:
Richard B. Myers Hall dedication
1 p.m. today
Military Science Building

The ceremony will begin with an address from Wefald at 1:30 p.m. in front of the building, followed by a speech by former U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. Following the introduction, Myers will be asked to respond before he and his wife reveal the new name.

The building is home to K-State's Army and Air Force ROTC programs, and is the only building on campus that was built during World War II.

In addition to offices and classrooms for the ROTC program, the building also houses a gallery for rifle practice and contests through the Department of Military Science, as well as the Department of Aerospace Studies and the Air Force ROTC program.

LECTURE | Protest areas available to ticket holders

Continued from Page 1

Free-speech areas are available in the grassy areas on the east and west sides of Bramlage, and those protesting the lecture also must have a ticket to the lecture, Muller said. Those protesting will be informed of rules by Bramlage officials, and no signs or banners will be allowed into the lecture. he said.

Bags, backpacks and purses also will not be allowed upon entry to Bramlage, Muller said, and those attending the lecture will be subject to searches at security check-points.

Muller said additional tickets to the lecture are no longer available, and it is unknown how many tickets actually were distributed.

Rumsfeld's lecture was scheduled to coincide with the dedication ceremony for the renaming of K-State's Military Science Building to Gen. Richard B. Myers Hall, Charles Reagan, chairman of the Landon Lecture Series, said. Reagan said Rumsfeld will still come to K-State after resigning since he is still defense secretary until his successor is named.

"He also was coming for the renaming of the hall," Reagan said. "He's been thinking about doing a Landon Lecture for two and a half years because President Wefald and I talked to him about it."

While Rumsfeld's speech topic is unknown, Reagan said the lecture and question-and-answer time will be about one hour total.

Rumsfeld is the fourth U.S. Secretary of Defense to present a Landon Lecture in the series' 40-year history. Prior defense secretary lecturers include Caspar Weinberger in 1984, William Perry in 1995, and William S. Cohen in 1997.

There were about 3,000 tickets available for students, 900 available for faculty and staff, 200 for media, 1,000 for military and 800 for Landon patrons and special guests.

Reagan said that some additional press requests came in for the lecture Wednesday afternoon.

"I believe there will be a lot more press since it's going to be his first major speech after announcing his resignation," Reagan said.

Arthur DeGroat, director of military affairs at K-State, said about 1,000 military members and their families were invited to the lecture, including military members from Fort Riley and Fort Leavenworth, Kan., Army and Air Force ROTC, Junior ROTC Cadets, National Guard and Army Reserve members and local veterans.

"It's very appropriate that our nation's senior defense official be present to recognize the former senior military official (Gen. Richard B. Myers)," DeGroat said. "I think it's a great opportunity for people in and out of the uniform to hear a high-ranking government official speak on matters of defense – it's a very important and rare opportunity."

Balancing national security with civil liberties in a post-9/11 world

Judith Miller

Best-selling author and former investigative reporter for The New York Times

10:30 a.m.
Friday, Nov. 10, 2006
Forum Hall — K-State Student Union
Kansas State University

Free and open to the public

Miller is the keynote speaker for Community Readiness Communications: Accurate Messages in Times of Crisis, sponsored by the McCormick Tribune Foundation, the A. Q. Miller School of Journalism & Mass Communications and the Huck Boyd National Center for Community Media

free.
something all college students like.

So take advantage of free yearbook pictures because this is your last chance.

Today:
Union 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Derby Dining Center 4:30 p.m. - 6 p.m.

remember, you like free.

Your book. Your story. | royalpurple

Indian Students Association and SGA present

Kshitij

...The Horizon...

Nov 12, 2006

12:00 pm-1:00 pm : Cultural Exhibition (Union Courtyard)
1:30 pm-4:00 pm : Cultural Program (Forum Hall)
4:15 pm-5:15 pm : Cultural Exhibition (Free Henna)
5:30 pm-8:30 pm : Indian Dinner (Durland Atrium)

Free Entry to the cultural program and the interactive exhibition.

For Dinner tickets call 785 317 3477 , 352 235 4783.

Festival of Trees, treats kick off holiday season

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The third annual Festival of Trees, a week-long event that starts off the holiday season, will begin today at the Briggs Auto Lane Nissan Building at 2312 Stagg Hill Road.

The festival, which is put on by the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, will continue through Nov. 17, culminating in a Festival of Trees Gala.

Proceeds from the festival and activities will go to RSVP.

Lori Bishop, executive director of RSVP, said several trees will be set up today to commence a week of events. The 28 decorated trees have been donated by groups around the community, including several from K-State.

"They're going to be fabulous," Bishop said. "One tree is valued at $1,000."

Judging of the trees will begin at 7:30 tonight with awards given in six categories, including Fallen Heroes, Mayor's Choice, Most Creative, Judges' Favorite, Best of Show and People's Choice. The tree that receives the People's Choice award will be up for the rest of the week.

"They're going to be fabulous. One tree is valued at $1,000."

Lori Bishop
Executive Director of RSVP

Families with children will get to join in the festivities Saturday at the Santa City Children's Store. The store is for children only and will be open from 9 a.m. to noon.

Rebecca Andrews, student intern at RSVP, said children can purchase gifts valued at $10 or less with free gift wrapping. Items for sale include traditional and candied wreaths, K-State items and centerpieces. All items are handmade by RSVP volunteers.

"Santa City is a great event for the children because they will be able to come to this event without their parents help and get gifts for their families," said Andrews, senior in public relations,

"kind of have it as a surprise."

K-State's United Methodist Campus ministries will have a bake sale on-site from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

The Festival of Treats, with soups, sandwiches, bierocks and baked goods will also be available for lunch and dinner during the week-long events. A café area will be set up at Briggs Auto from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. from Thursday to Nov. 18. Proceeds will go to RSVP and the Home-school Network.

Even with the tradition behind the event, Bishop said she is slightly concerned about the attendance of Saturday's events because of the football and basketball games in Manhattan.

"We don't know what the crowd is going to be," she said. "You just don't know."

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

DOES YOUR student organization need a website? My web design class is looking for a project to complete. If you are interested, please contact Michael Barnes at barnesm@ksu.edu, or call 785-341-9483.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

LOST: LONGHAIR Jack Russell Terrier, lost on Bertrand. Brown patch over eye and scar under ear. Brown leather collar. Contact 785-230-9298.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed. Three-bedroom, two bath. Washer and dryer Included. No smoking. No pets. Call Danielle at 785-806-4324.

FEMALE ROOMMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

ROOMMATES WANTED: Five-bedroom house, January through May. Close to campus, washer/ dryer, $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 913-206-5289.

150 Sublease

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY one-bedroom apartment, 800 square feet, lease ends July 2007, off of Manhattan Avenue, $505 a month. 785-313-2751.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed January: One-bedroom in two- bedroom at 2215 College Avenue. Two full bathrooms. Furnished. $360. Call 785-479-1235.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. One block from campus. $300 per month plus one-half utilities. Call Alissa 913-593-5212.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for five-bedroom house. January through May. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 940-594-1481.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January in two-bedroom apartment one block from campus. Call 913-522-7094, ask for Megan.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted to share two-bedroom house. Pets ok. $350/ month plus one-half utilities. Call Ashley, 816-215-7474.

ONE TO Three subleasers needed spring 2007 for three-bedroom, one and one half bath apartment, one minute walk to campus. $780 per month or $260 per person plus electricity. Contact: dgray@ksu.edu or 913-481-1334.

150 Sublease

SUBLEASER WANTED $325 per month, plus utilities. Across street from campus, off street parking. Available January 2007- August 2007. 763-439-8926.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed for January. Two-bedroom apartment close to Aggieville and campus. $400 plus utilities. 816-668-9223, 913-709-8615.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour. plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the restaurant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school - websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HELP NEEDED with fall yard clean up. Includes cleaning out flower beds and raking leaves. Work your schedule. Call 785-539-1086.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

INFANT CHILD CARE at Manhattan residence close to campus. Will work with YOUR schedule. Looking for responsible and dependable person who loves babies and needs a little extra cash. Need help approx. 10- 20 hours per week. Hourly rate negotiable. Call 630-430-3323/ email angelbb19@hotmail.com.

INTERNET MARKETING outdoor travel booking agency www.adventure-soutdoor.com. Help needed with search engine optimization. Experience helpful. 5 - 10 hours per week. Good pay. Contact Mitch Trumpp 913-449-5830.

JOIN CAMP SOUTHWOODS AND HAVE THE BEST SUMMER OF YOUR LIFE! Southwoods is a co-ed residential camp in New York's Adirondack Mountains. Southwoods is seeking ENTHUSIATIC, ENERGETIC, AND FUN LOVING individuals to make an impact on a child's life. Positions/ internships are available in the areas of Counselors, Outdoor Adventure, Activity Coaches & Waterfront Staff. Benefits include salary, room & board, laundry, & the best summer of your life. For more information & to complete an application visit our website www.southwoods.com or please contact us, 1-888-449-3357.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEWSPAPER DISPATCHER The Manhattan Mercury is accepting applicaitons for the position of Newspaper Dispatcher. This is a part-time entry-level position. Shifts include weekdays 4:-30 p.m. to 7:30- 8:00 p.m. and Sunday 6:00 a.m. to 12 noon. Weekly hours and days scheduled vary. Successful applicants will possess a valid Kansas Drivers License and a dependable vehicle. Vehicle mileage is reimbursed. Apply at or send letter of application to: The Manhattan Mercury, 318 North 5th, Manhattan, Kansas. Manhattan Mercury is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.-ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

PERSONAL CARE Attendant needed in Manhattan to assist a person with a disability. For more information contact Christine at 1-800-569-5926.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast management. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

RANDALL'S FORMAL Wear is looking for a part-time sales person with outstanding customer service skills. Flexible hours great starting wage and commission program. If you would like to join our team stop by and fill out an application at 100 Manhattan Town Center Mall. 785-770-9011.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

SERVERS WANTED. Manhattan Country Club is now hiring servers for all shifts. Apply in person 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

VICTORIA'S SECRET in Manhattan Town Center, now hiring part-time seasonal help. Must be available most weekends now through January 15 and the weeks prior to and of Thanksgiving and Christmas. To join our team apply in the store this week.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

2004 CHEVY Cavalier, silver, 34,500 miles, $8500 under warranty, great student car. Sleeper sofa, $100, tan recliner, $50. Call 785-317-1985.

445 Music Instruments

IBANEZ ACOUSTIC/ Electric for sale. Includes hardshell case and guitar humidifier. Only one year old, very nice! Call 316-518-2846.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

FOR SALE 2002 Saturn Vue. $8,300 or best offer. 75,000 miles. Runs great. CD, power windows, doors, locks, sunroof. 785-341-1830.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low Prices Guaranteed. Group discounts for 6+. Book 20 people, get 3 free trips! www.Spring-Breakdiscounts.com or 800-838-8202.

IT Works
Advertise in the Classifieds
Call

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

Need a subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

Find a Job
Help Wanted Section

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
ADVERTISING DESIGN

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

		4				7
	5		9		1		2
	9			5			6
6			2		8			3
	3						7
9			3		5			8
	1			9			3
	6		7		4		1
		2				4

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail class@kspub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Minogue launches 1st perfume after cancer

Kristian Dowling | GETTY IMAGES

Kylie Minogue poses with a bottle of her first-time fragrance, Darling, on Wednesday in Sydney.

By Annette Lawless
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

While Kylie Minogue might be known as a "darling" around the world, now her scent can be, too.

The Australian singer was host to the global launch of her first fragrance, "Darling," Wednesday night in Sydney.

"Darling – it's such a warm word. I use it with my friends, my mother uses it with me, and it's a little bit showbiz," Minogue told the Associated Press.

This reportedly was her first major public appearance since her return to Australia on Sunday.

"The launch of my new fragrance coincides with a new chapter of my life," she stated in a release by Coty.

Ever since Minogue was diagnosed with breast cancer in May 2005, the pop princess had stepped out of the limelight, canceling her world Showgirl Homecoming tour.

The 38-year-old singer revealed that after having a partial mastectomy, she underwent a six-month chemotherapy course, which she described as a prison sentence.

She is now in remission.

After the treatment, Minogue returned to the entertainment scene, working on several projects, including the return to her tour.

Her agents said she took a break from tour rehearsals Wednesday to launch the fragrance, and admitted having a little help in designing the perfume.

"I did ask my boyfriend as we were testing the fragrance – he likes it," said Minogue, who is dating French actor Oliver Martinez ("Unfaithful," "S.W.A.T.," "Taking Lives").

Minogue's perfume is to smell of passionfruit, freesia, lychee and sandalwood.

Her perfume will be added to the collection of several other celebrities breaking into the fragrance industry, according to Sydney newspaper, The Australian.

Recent celebrities who also have joined the cologne-making bandwagon include Hilary Duff, the cast of Desperate Housewives, Sean "Diddy" Combs and many others.

From going through chemotherapy to releasing her first children's book in September, some might think Minogue is unstoppable. She said that through chemotherapy, she has been motivated to embrace life.

"I'm kind of pinching myself that we are here, we did it. It's like a dream to have your own fragrance," she said.

"To be here...to be able to enjoy the launch of this perfume...to get my show back on the road – that's what keeps me going."

— The Australian contributed to this report.

A Kansas State Idol

Contest shows off students' musical talents

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Caitlyn Cook, junior in apparel design and textiles, won K-State Idol in front of a packed house Wednesday night with her a cappella rendition of the song "His Eye is on the Sparrow."

The program, in Forum Hall, was sponsored by the Union Program Council.

With a $250 check in one hand and a trophy in the other, Cook said she was forced to audition for the competition by her sorority sisters from Delta Delta Delta. Cook said the evening was special, and she was happy to represent her friends and sorority.

Cook said the hardest part of her performance was keeping her voice controlled while the audience stayed hush during the song.

"I don't know – it was surreal," she said. "It was crazy."

What will she do with her $250 prize?

"Spring break," she said with a smile.

Participants of K-State Idol were scored by a four-judge panel, including Bradley Jepsen, disc jockey on KQLA-FM 103.5, Brad Hill, head coach of the K-State baseball team, and Mardell Maxwell and Donald Holliday, the evening's feature performers. K-State Idol performers were judged on stage presence, quality, precision and an overall score.

The panel of judges commented on each performance after its completion. After Cook's performance, Hill said Cook had an amazing voice and talent, and asked, "Will you sing another one?"

Courtney Hauser and Alex Wilson are committee chairs for the UPC's special events committee and were responsible for the evening's event.

Wilson, a junior in psychology, said the committee had 30 auditions for K-State Idol. Hauser, junior in mass communications and psychology, said the committee had a diverse group of acts from which to choose.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Caitlyn Cook, junior in apparel design and textiles, sings "His Eye is on the Sparrow" during her performance at K-State Idol Wednesday night in Forum Hall. Cook won K-State Idol with her performance.

The evening started out with an acoustic version of "Hey Ya" by Outkast performed by John Bostwick, senior in finance, and Griff Letch, senior in music. Rebecca Smith, junior in music performance and musical theatre, sang "Yesterday" by Mary Mary, and Meredith Holland, senior in women's studies, belted out the country favorite "Broken Wing" by Martina McBride.

Other performances included Kurt Krupp, junior in mass communications, and his finger-snapping, four-part backup singing "Naturally" by Huey Lewis and the News.

Donnie Hampton, freshman in business administration, played his guitar and sang "Collide" by Howie Day. Brother-sister duet Amanda Hoffman, senior in speech communication, and Jeremy Hoffman, freshman in construction science and management, mixed portions of Josh Groban's "You Raise Me Up" with the K-State Alma Mater.

Marty Boeschling, sophomore in business, played and sang his original piece "Worth It," and the evening ended with a contemporary Japanese folk dance by the K-State Japanese Yosakoi Dance Club.

In previous years, the event has had several winners in various categories, but Wilson and Hauser said the committee wanted to only have a big, grand prize instead.

"It definitely got people to come out and audition," Wilson said.

People should be realistic, not set high expectations for relationships like we do with celebrities

By Lauren Rohrer
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When I was little, I hosted the wedding of Ken and Barbie on many occasions.

LAUREN ROHRER

They were progressive ceremonies for their time. I had a female minister. At the age of six, I wasn't trying to make a religious or political statement, I just had only one Ken doll.

I had a lot of faith in that relationship because they had so much in common. Both had an affinity for pink accessories. Both come from similar backgrounds (Mattel, I think). And both had plastic heads. In short, they were a match in dream-house heaven.

The same could be said of Britney Spears and Kevin Federline.

OK, not really.

We all knew that one was doomed to failure. Every self-important entertainment news addict spent the better part of yesterday rambling off their I-told-you-so's to anyone who would listen, which is a shame, really.

If Brit and Kev would have stuck it out, they probably could have nailed some lucrative sponsorship from KFC and Cheetos for Kevin's upcoming album.

And then there's Reese Witherspoon and Ryan Phillipe, who had their own surprising split last week. She's an academy-award winning actress and he's her lesser known actor-husband. They famously met at her 21st birthday party before filming "Cruel Intentions" while I was still in high school.

Everyone thought Ryan was so dreamy and Reese was so cute. They had a nice, fried chicken-free (sorry, K-Fed) relationship and seemed relatively normal. If they couldn't make it work, who is next – Barbie and Ken?

Much is said about the fact that celebrity marriages don't work. Everyone has an ex. I happen to think too much is said about it. The truth is, normal people marriages don't work either. Half of all marriages, to be exact. But the divorce proceedings of the married couples we know aren't being talked about in the riveting pages of "Star."

If you had a 20-something friend who had a bit of a party-girl past and decided to marry a guy who already had two kids from a previous relationship, you wouldn't give the relationship a whole lot of confidence. (Again, my apologies to K-Fed.) People jump into these things too quickly. Divorce is looked at much more casually than it was 15 or even 10 years ago. In 1991, it was very big news in my small town that my parents were splitting up.

These days, you can't watch the E! Channel without discussing a split each week.

And then the next week, we celebrate when that divorcee moves on instantly with someone else and adopts a child from Zimbabwe, or something like that.

It's a dangerous direction we are taking. We can't expect people younger than us to respect and value the sanctity of marriage the same way we did when we were little if divorce – and all that goes along with it – is discussed with the same intensity used for discussing Lindsay Lohan's latest car crash.

I hope Barbie and Ken have stayed together. I haven't checked up on them since third grade. But it's not like Barbie could go run off with some other guy.

I only had one Ken.

Lauren Rohrer is a senior in music and theater. You can e-mail her at edge@spub.ksu.edu.

HOROSCOPES

Your humorous horoscope for the week

Scorpio

(Oct. 24 - Nov. 21) Ever since you can remember, you've always been the curious sort, forever asking about the accident you were in, how many months have passed since, and when, if ever, your long-term memory will return.

Sagittarius

(Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) It's been years since you last spoke to your father, but with the game going into double overtime you have no other choice but to wait a little longer.

Capricorn

(Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Confirming your suspicions, a study this week will reveal that 86 percent of all human suffering takes place while waiting in line.

Aquarius

(Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) Dead bodies, stumbled upon at regular intervals, will help you to keep track of your progress while hiking.

Pisces

(Feb. 19 - March 20) While your claims of being a self-made woman are valid, everyone's still a little distracted by all the purplish-black scars and amateurish stitching.

Aries

(March 21 - April 19) While your dream of opening your very own coffee shop will ultimately fail, you'll still succeed in doing what few ever could by opening your very own wrists.

Taurus

(April 20 - May 20) You've never really imagined yourself as the committed type, but a state-appointed psychiatrist will soon prove you wrong.

Gemini

(May 21 - June 21) You will fly into a blind, towering, destructive, psychotic and ultimately murderous rage this week over the excessive use of adjectives in today's popular writing.

Cancer

(June 22 - July 22) Although you often say that suffering a stroke is nothing to laugh about, the way your tongue swashes about helplessly as you struggle to form the words only hurts your case.

Leo

(July 23 - Aug. 22) Your paranoid ramblings will once again give the seven government agents who gather each morning at a subterranean, state-of-the-art civilian surveillance facility a good laugh.

Libra

(Sept. 23 - Oct. 23) You may be dishonest, deceitful and even untrustworthy, but the one thing you're not is someone who tells the truth.

Virgo

(Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Despite having certain doubts and nagging suspicions about the matter, you'd never go so far as to call yourself a Holocaust "denier."

Source: www.theonion.com

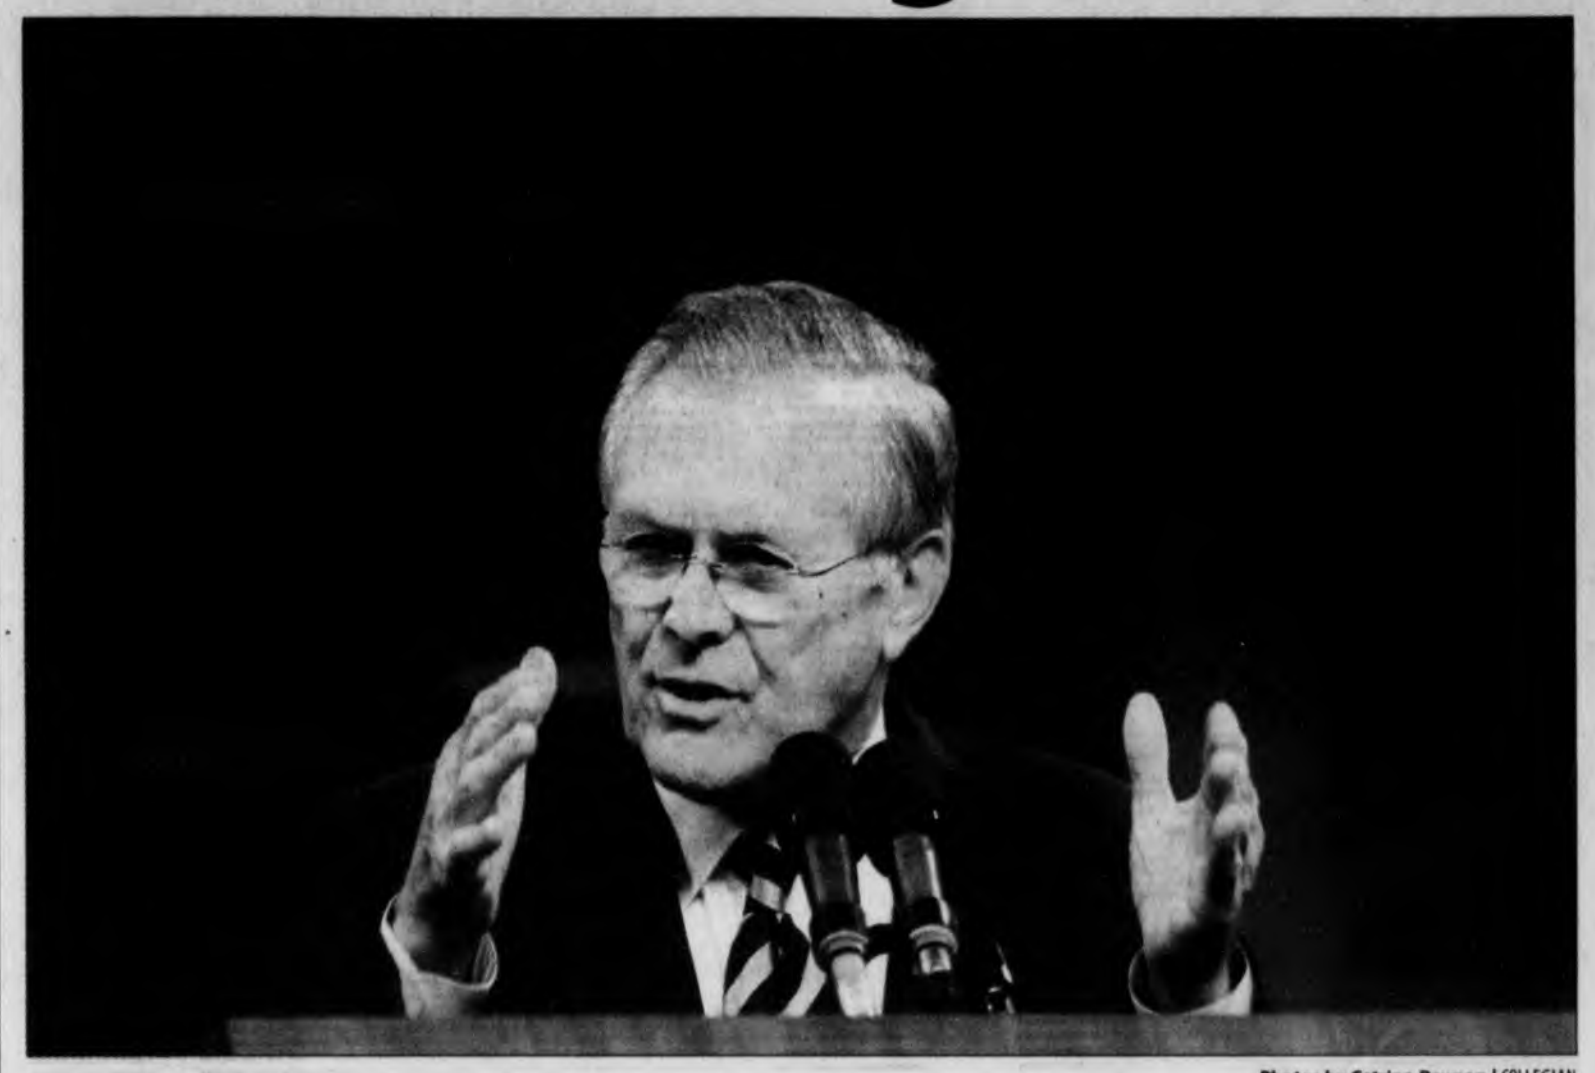
ON-THE-GO PASTA A TASTY ALTERNATIVE

Microwave Singles
Grade: B
Food review by Annette Lawless

Hamburger Helper's Microwave Singles go above and beyond your standard 7-minute microwave meal. When I finally caved in and spent my $2.79 at Dillons, I belive I have found my perfect late-night snack.

While it has little meat compared to standard Hamburger Helper, the 7-grams-of-fat Cheesburger Macaroni version is quite tasty for the student on the go – just add water, stir and microwave.

For those with little time or money, this product is a winner in my book. Or if anything, this meal quick-fix is a product definitely worth considering.



KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, November 10, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 60

SPECIAL SECTION
In Texas, football is more than just a Saturday afternoon activity, it's a way of life.

Defending a war

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Donald Rumsfeld, standing U.S. Secretary of Defense, speaks Thursday at Bramlage Coliseum during the 146th Landon Lecture. This was Rumsfeld's first large public speech since the announcement of his resignation.

Standing U.S. Secretary of Defense addresses future of Iraq, keys to win

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Wildcat 91.9
To hear Adrianne DeWeese discuss her coverage of Rumsfeld's Landon Lecture, listen to "Political Pork" at 5 p.m. Monday on KSDB-FM 91.9.

The United States is facing a time of peril in its principles, standing U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld said Thursday at Bramlage Coliseum in his first large public speech since announcing his resignation.

"Today, in the first war of the 21st century, we face an enemy that, in many ways is unlike any our country has ever faced in our long history," Rumsfeld said during the 146th Landon Lecture. "It's a struggle that will require all of us – our country, our government, our military and the American people – to think and act differently than we have in other conflicts."

Rumsfeld resigned as defense secretary Wednesday after several years of criticism. A former Navy pilot, Rumsfeld was sworn in as the 21st Secretary of Defense on Jan. 20, 2001. He also served as the 13th Secretary of Defense in 1975, as well as White House Chief of Staff, U.S. Ambassador to NATO, U.S. Congressman and chief executive officer of two Fortune 500 companies.

Gen. Richard B. Myers, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and K-State alumnus, introduced Rumsfeld prior to his lecture.

Rumsfeld laughs with Gen. Richard B. Myers Thursday at Bramlage Coliseum.

"If you go back and read a little bit about Abu Ghraib (prisoner-abuse scandal) and people wanting to place blame, it would have been easy for the Secretary of Defense to deflect it to a department, to individuals – he never did that," Myers said. "He sucked up all those arrows and he continued to lead the department in the way he knew was right."

Rumsfeld said the U.S. government cannot afford to have the CIA and its departments separated, and defense, diplomacy and development

See RUMSFELD Page 8

Arrests made in drug bust

By Rebecca Vitztum
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two arrests were made at a Blue Rapids, Kan., residence Wednesday in conjunction with an ongoing investigation into the distribution of methamphetamine.

Officers from the Riley County Police Department, Kansas Highway Patrol, Kansas Bureau of Investigation, Marshall County Sheriff's Office, and the Blue Rapids Police Department served a search warrant Wednesday morning and arrested Daniel and Jenny Thomas following a search of the home, according to a RCPD press release.

According to the release, Daniel Thomas was charged with five felonies and two misdemeanors. Jenny Thomas was charged with two felonies, including aggravated child endangerment, and one misdemeanor.

Half an ounce of methamphetamine, valued at about $1,000, was apprehended, along with prescription medication, approximately 30 guns consisting of shoulder and hand weapons, railroad explosives, one pick-up truck and two motorcycles. In addition, the Thomas' eight-year-old child was taken into protective custody and transported to Juvenile Intake.

Captain Gary Grubbs of the Riley County Police Department said there are no other suspects or people involved or under investigaion in the case. Daniel and Jenny Thomas posted a combined $80,000 bail as of Thursday morning.

Starbucks negotiating with K-State

By Regina Nowak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Starbucks could come to the K-State Student Union.

Negotiations began last spring to transform Chillie Willie's into a Starbucks, which could happen as early as this summer if an agreement is reached.

"Starbucks didn't care for the location in the Union Station," said Bernard Pitts, director of the Union. "They want Chillie Willies' location."

Teresa Shewman, regional marketing specialist for Starbucks, said she would like for Starbucks to come to K-State.

"We are always looking for great locations to better meet the needs of our customers and reach people who may not have had the opportunity to visit our coffeehouses," she said.

However, a setback to bringing Starbucks to the Union is cost.

While it isn't certain exactly how much the coffee shop would cost, it would be more than $180,000 for the coffee equipment, furniture and decorations, Pitts said. They would have to add extra money for the architectural changes of making Chillie Willie's into a Starbucks.

Another concern of putting Starbucks in the Chillie Willie's place is

See STARBUCKS Page 10

Ebony Theatre marks 30 years with 'Labor, Love, Laughter'

Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

Candace Feldman, senior in theater; Ryan Colvin, junior in mass communications; and Nick Uthoff, K-State graduate, rehearse for an upcoming play in the Purple Masque Theater Tuesday Evening.

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

One hundred fifty-five years ago, abolitionist Sojurner Truth gave a speech titled "Ain't I A Woman?" at a women's convention in Akron, Ohio.

"And ain't I a woman? I could work as much and eat as much as a man - when I could get it - and bear the lash as well! And ain't I a woman?"

Last night, she gave it again.

This speech and others have been incorporated into "With Labor, Love and Laughter – A 30th Anniversary Celebration," being presented at 8 p.m. today and Saturday by the K-State Ebony Theatre.

The performance is an amalgamation of history, speeches, well-known and original plays in celebration of the Ebony Theatre's 30 years as a K-State entity, and the only collegiate theater group in the Midwest that focuses primarily on producing works by black artists, said Candace Feldman, senior in theater and director of the play.

The first half of the play confronts many of the stereotypes that early black performers faced – stereotypes of big-lipped and wide-eyed villians, the most famous of which being actor Bert Williams, once remembered by fellow actor W.C. Fields as "the funniest man I ever saw, and the saddest man I ever met."

An actor during the play showed

See EBONY Page 12

Today's forecast
AM Showers
High: 51 Low: 27

INSIDE

More Rumsfeld
The standing Secretary of Defense's visit to K-State brought both excitement and protests. For full coverage of yesterday's Landon Lecture, see Pages 8, 9.

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

National issues forum
A forum to address issues of national security and what America should do to secure the future of the citizens will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in Union 207. The forum will start with a video about national security and attendees will then actively discuss the overall problem and possible approaches.

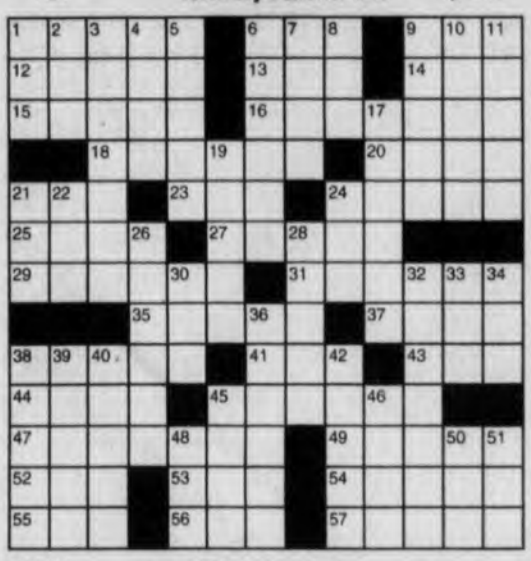
Kshitij — The Horizon
In lieu of Kshitij (the horizon), events sponsored by the Indian Students Association and SGA will take place Sunday. There will be an exhibition from noon to 1 p.m. in the Union Courtyard, a cultural program from 1:30 to 4 p.m. in Forum Hall, and a Free Mehendi exhibition in the Union Courtyard from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m.

Choir concert
KSU Men's Glee Club, Cadence and K-State singers will perform at 7:30 tonight at McCain Auditorium. It is the club's fall concert. For more information about the groups, visit www.ksu.edu/mensglee, www.ksu.edu/cadence and www.ksu.edu/kssingers.

United States vs. Chinese leadership: Africa decides
With nearly one in four African respondents undecided about America's leadership, and slightly more than one in three undecided about China's, both countries have much to gain or lose with respect to their images across the continent.

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERY

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 A deadly sin
6 Tool set
9 Uncle (Sp.)
12 Cecil B. De—
13 Pub order
14 Mork's home planet
15 Accordion feature
16 More grim
18 Ill will
20 Lawless character
21 Coop occupant
23 "A mouse!"
24 Links halves
25 News story
27 "Saturday Night Fever" venue
29 Again and again?
31 Follow orders
35 Quickly
37 — gin fizz
38 Rodeo prop
41 Literary collection
43 Schedule abbr.
44 Grad
45 Lee or Vaccaro
47 "Leave It to Beaver" surname
49 Flavor
52 Listening device
53 Freudian topic
54 Prepare clams
55 Meth.
56 More than -er
57 Gridiron stats

DOWN
1 Part of a roadie's load
2 Zero
3 One who gathers gradually
4 Vivacity
5 Tend a stubborn shoelace
6 Traditional Japanese drama
7 Misfortunes
8 Shirt type
9 Fare, at times
10 Vernon Castle's partner
11 Gumbo pods
17 Proverbs
19 Euripides drama
21 Smack
22 Biblical verb suffix
24 Sarge, for ex.
26 Corruptive atmosphere
28 Clapper board datum
30 Navy rank (abbr.)
32 Crowd- — (popular one)
33 Sodom evacuee
34 Verily
36 Treat for Bugs
38 Spikes the punch
39 Soothe
40 Litigants
42 Nervous
45 Pleads
46 Brent Spiner's "Star Trek" role
48 Churchill gesture
50 Slight amount
51 Type squares

Solution time: 25 mins.

J	O	K	E		L	E	D		O	P	T	S
A	P	I	N		U	R	I		B	L	A	H
M	I	L	O		M	R	S		E	U	R	O
B	E	N	U	M	B		H	A	Y	M	O	W
			G	E	E			F	E	B
E	T	C	H		R	A	G	T	R	A	D	E
T	A	O			E	R	A		G	A	Y
C	U	L	T	U	R	A	L		R	O	B	E
		U	R	N			U	S	A
C	O	M	E	O	N		M	O	S	A	I	C
A	L	B	A		A	S	P		C	O	D	A
G	L	U	T		D	O	H		A	N	E	W
E	A	S	Y		A	D	S		L	E	S	S

Yesterday's answer 11-10

11-10 CRYPTOQUIP

VY TQPSUQLB EZT IQ YQGPZK LGSTT JZIAT, V TCJJQTS BQC'L TZB AEZA ES KZFRT UKZFR TKZFRT.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: ANY COMPANY THAT SPENDS A LOT ON TELEVISION COMMERCIALS CLEARLY HAS A GREAT AD-VANTAGE.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: B equals Y

BEST BETS

Your social calendar for the weekend

10 Friday

UPC After Hours
10 p.m. Union Courtyard

This week's entertainment is comedian Andrew Kennedy. Kennedy is half-Colombian and half-British, and he uses his bi-cultural background to fuel his comedy. He will have a half-hour special airing on Comedy Central in January. Your best bet is to be early because UPC is giving out free pizza to the first 150 people.

Feature Film: "Idlewild"
8 p.m. Forum Hall*
Admission: $1

Starring both André 3000 and Big Boi from Outkast, this musical takes place in the South during Prohibition. It follows the story of Rooster, a club manager who must protect his club from gangsters, and his partner Percival, who has to make a choice between his true love or his father. As a bonus, Outkast penned the music for the movie as well.

*Movie also shows at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m Saturday and 8 p.m. Sunday. Admission for these showings is $2.

K-State vs. Wisconsin-Green Bay
7 p.m. Bramlage Coliseum

The women's basketball team begins the 2006-2007 season tonight. Come see how the women's team looks after its WNIT championship.

Saturation Patrol

The Riley County Police Department will conduct a saturation patrol into the early Saturday morning hours. The location is unknown, but police officers will be on the lookout for those showing signs of impaired driving and other traffic violations. Your best bet is to take a designated driver with you if you plan to spend any time in Aggieville tonight.

11 Saturday

K-State vs. William and Mary
1 p.m. Bramlage Coliseum

This is the men's basketball team's first official game of the 2006-2007 season.

Get there early, because this is sure to be a popular game as everyone wants to see if Huggins will be successful in his first year.

K-State vs Texas
7 p.m. Synder Family Stadium

Come see the Wildcats take on the fourth-ranked team in the nation. Spend the afternoon tailgating or attending the first men's basketball of the season before getting to the stadium early to get great seats for what is sure to be an interesting game.

12 Sunday

Psychostick
8 p.m. P.J.'s Bar

The heavy metal band from Phoenix makes a stop in Manhattan to promote their album, now in stores. With songs like "Jagermeister Love Song" and "Orgasm=Love," it's sure to be a fun experience to hear them play live.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jill Bieker at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Practice Management Center in Trotter Hall.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Denise Guy at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Bluemont 368.

■ There will be a SafeZone training advanced session titled "A View from Under the Rainbow — GBLTQ Topics and Information" 5-6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. Check-in is at 4:45 p.m.

■ "Not for Sale" will be presented as part of the Fair Trade Film Series from 1:30-3 p.m. Tuesday in the library at K-State-Salina.

■ The Department of Entomology is searching for a research associate in molecular entomology. Ph.D degree in biological science is required. The application deadline is Wednesday. For more information, call (785) 532-5763.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Adriana Chacon-Cascante at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Waters 342.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursday. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Huei-Lien Chen at 1 p.m. Thursday in Bluemont 339.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kelly Glodt at 1 p.m. Thursday in Bluemont 106.

Corrections and clarifications

Corrections and clarifications run in this space. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

dependable quality service
www.claflinbooks.com
Claflin Books and Copies

KSU 2005-06 Campus Phone Book
Get it in Kedzie 103
Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

auto Auction
Thursday, November 16
5:00pm
701 Enoch Lane - Manhattan, KS
Collector cars - modified trucks sports cars and more
PURPLE WAVE
www.purplewave.com

Get your Game on order
The BIG ASS
Largest Pie In Manhattan
$11.99 20" one topping
or 2 FUR $21.99
GUMBY'S Pizza
770-3333

20th Annual
German Mennonite Meal, International Craft & Bake sale
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 2006
NOON – 6:00 PM
POTTORF HALL – CICO PARK
– INTERNATIONAL CRAFTS –
FINE HAND-CRAFTED BASKETS, BRASS, WOOD, NATIVITY SETS, JEWELRY, HOLIDAY DECORATIONS, AND MORE (IN PARTNERSHIP WITH TEN THOUSAND VILLAGES)
– DINNER –
BORSCHT (CHICKEN & VEGETABLE SOUP – NO BEETS!), HOMEMADE BREAD, WHOLE HOG SAUSAGE, NEW YEAR'S COOKIE.
ONE DOLLAR FROM THE SALE OF EACH ADULT TICKET WILL BENEFIT OUR MISSION PARTNERS IN COLOMBIA AND ALSO THE MENNONITE ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AGENCY WHICH ASSISTS SMALL-BUSINESS WOMEN IN PAKISTAN
Adults $8.00 Children under 12 $4.50
Sponsored by the Manhattan Mennonite Church
539-4079 www.manhattan.ks.us.mennonite.net

Did you lead your team to victory?
You'll get more than your name in the paper...
Your leadership skills are what we need. We're looking for strong individuals to help lead our sales teams for the spring semester. Working hours are in between classes.
Monday - Friday 9am-5pm
Collegian Advertising • K-State Phone Book
Manager and Asst. Manager Applications available in 103 Kedzie Hall
Applications and cover letter due in 103 Kedzie Hall, Friday, Nov. 10, 4 pm
For more information CALL 785-532-0723

MMC
THE MANHATTAN MUSIC COALITION
THANK YOU!
TO ALL THE SPONSORS OF AGGIEFEST '06
AUNTIE MAE'S PARLOR • BLUESTEM BISTRO • THE DUSTY BOOKSHELF
TEXAS STAR • RADINA'S COFFEEHOUSE • THE PALACE
BALLARD'S SPORTING GOODS • PAT'S BLUE RIB'N BBQ • HIBACHI HUT
SHAGGIEVILLE SALON • ALLORICA • ROCK'A'BELLY BAR & DELI
PJ'S PUB & RESTAURANT • RUSTY'S LAST CHANCE • VARNEY'S
PIZZA HUT AGGIEVILLE • O'MALLEY'S ALLEY • STRAY CAT TATTOO
KRYSTALLO'S • ROCK STAR & ROGERS • OLSON'S SHOE REPAIR • DARA'S AGGIEVILLE FROM YOUR MANHATTAN MUSIC COALITION
WWW.MYSPACE.COOM/MMCLIVE

Sunita Parajuli, Manhattan resident, holds Samyak Thapa, 3, on her lap as he points to a Red-Eyed Tree Frog in its cage held by Elise Neuer, program assistant and a junior in wildlife biology, Thursday night at Frith Community Center. Animals were brought in from Manhattan's Sunset Zoo.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

Sunset Zoo shows reptiles, amphibians

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

There were gasps and whispers in many different languages as Mya, the Boa Constrictor, was taken out of her cage and presented to the crowd. It took two people from the Sunset Zoo staff to hold her because she was so large.

The Sunset Zoo showed reptiles and amphibians from around the world to residents of Jardine Apartment Complex at Frith Community Center Thursday night. Included were two tortoises, two snakes and two frogs.

"We tried to base some of them from where these people are from," Elise Neuer, junior in wildlife biology, said. "We show them how to save them and their environments. We have one Kansas native, some animals from India and Asia."

Neuer and her assistant educated the crowd about the animals, their different colorings and habitats.

This was a part of Jardine's monthly programs.

"I have seen this done before in the residence halls and thought it would be good here because we have a large international community," Dave Bartlett, resident assistant to Jardine, said.

Animals were brought around to each person in the crowd and they were able to touch each animal or look at them closely through a cage.

"It's cool because there's animals and you get to touch them," Priyanka Parajuli, 10, Jardine resident, said. "My favorite is the turtles."

Some were shocked as they were shown Mya, the boa constrictor.

"I've never seen or touched a snake before," Ashwini Kamath, graduate student in civil engineering, said.

The Sunset Zoo regularly puts on this program, called the Animal Ambassador Program, around Manhattan and shows between four to six animals per program.

"It's really neat how they brought the animals here," Kamath said. "I've lived other places and they don't have things like this."

Thefts at Jardine to be addressed

By Eric Davis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Residents of Jardine Apartment complex said there has been a problem with things disappearing on home-football game days.

Kathy Van Steenis, Plaza neighborhood area coordinator for Jardine, said some things do get stolen, while others are merely displaced.

"Most times when it is a bike that is stolen, people will take a bike from either the east or west end and ride to the other side and leave it." Van Steenis said.

She said people at Jardine are working to reduce crime.

"At the beginning of the semester, we had people stationed all across the complex to direct people walking," she said. "When we realized that more things were being stolen after the game, we increased the people who stood watch after the game and decreased the number before."

The guards also served as guides around the evolving construction areas.

"About 90 percent of the people who walk through here are respectful and stay on the paths," Van Steenis said. "It's those other 10 percent who make us worry."

She said the kicking over of plants also has been an issue.

With the redevelopment project in progress at Jardine, vandalism has been minimum because most valuable items are locked up or put behind fences, Van Steenis said.

Skyler Harper, assistant director of Housing and Dining Services, said the biggest problem is people who knock fences over in an attempt to get to the portable bathrooms.

The project manager, Greg Stueve from McPherson Contractors Inc., said none of his tools or equipment have been stolen from the site since the beginning of the project.

"We keep a pretty good tool inventory," Stueve said. "Having the police department next door sure doesn't hurt things either. We also have about 200 workers out here and if you aren't supposed to be here, you stick out."

Many residents said they keep belongings locked up. Jeff Taylor, junior in wildlife biology, said he will not keep anything of any value on the front porch of his apartment, for fear of it being stolen.

"We don't really have anything that could go on the porch," he said. "But if we did we would do all that we could to keep it inside."

ATTENTION
Faculty and Staff
Are you a faculty member that is having your provider eliminated in the Regents' Retirement Plan?
We give objective advice for the transition.
Kramer Capital Management

PREPARE FOR THE SEASON WITH carhartt
NOW 15% OFF!
LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
MON-FRI 9-6 • SATURDAY 9-5
8426 E. HWY 24 • 785.776.6715

ATTENTION
KSU Wildcat Fans
Your home away from home...
FIELDHOUSE
LUXURY CONDOMINIUMS
REECE & NICHOLS
CORNERSTONE REALTY, LLC
Where SOLD Means More
785-539-0855 (Manhattan)
785-210-2500 (Junction City)
Open House
Saturday, November 11 • 10-7
Sunday, November 12 • 10-4
Contact: Cindy Malinowsky
785-341-2417 • CindyMalinowsky.ReeceandNichols.com • www.cornerstonecompanies.com/mal

TO THE POINT

Rumsfeld lecture tickets poorly handled

K-State has been blessed as of late.

Two top-government officials have spoken at Landon Lectures in 2006: President George W. Bush and Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld.

TO THE POINT is an editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

While less hype surrounded the Rumsfeld lecture, many people wanted to attend, even if they didn't get a ticket during Monday's distribution times.

Those who arrived at Bramlage Coliseum by car were required to show tickets proving they had access to the lecture. Those who didn't have tickets were turned away by parking attendants.

This wouldn't have been so bad if those turned away had a second chance to get in, but many did not.

It's embarrassing to have people turned away from a lecture that was not sold-out, especially since the lecture was covered by both local and national media.

There should have been a process set up for patrons without tickets to be given a second chance at the doors.

We realize security is heightened for high-profile lecturers.

But this does not mean those who wanted to go but didn't have tickets in advance should have been denied that right.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

Letters can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555

CAMPUS FOURUM

395-4444 -or-
fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Why do I work at Target? Because I make red and khaki look good.

Butters died in our attic, and he smells.

Here's a crazy concept: maybe, just possibly, scooter girl has a name.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Good luck for now

Elections set tone for next 2 years, but conservative base will be back

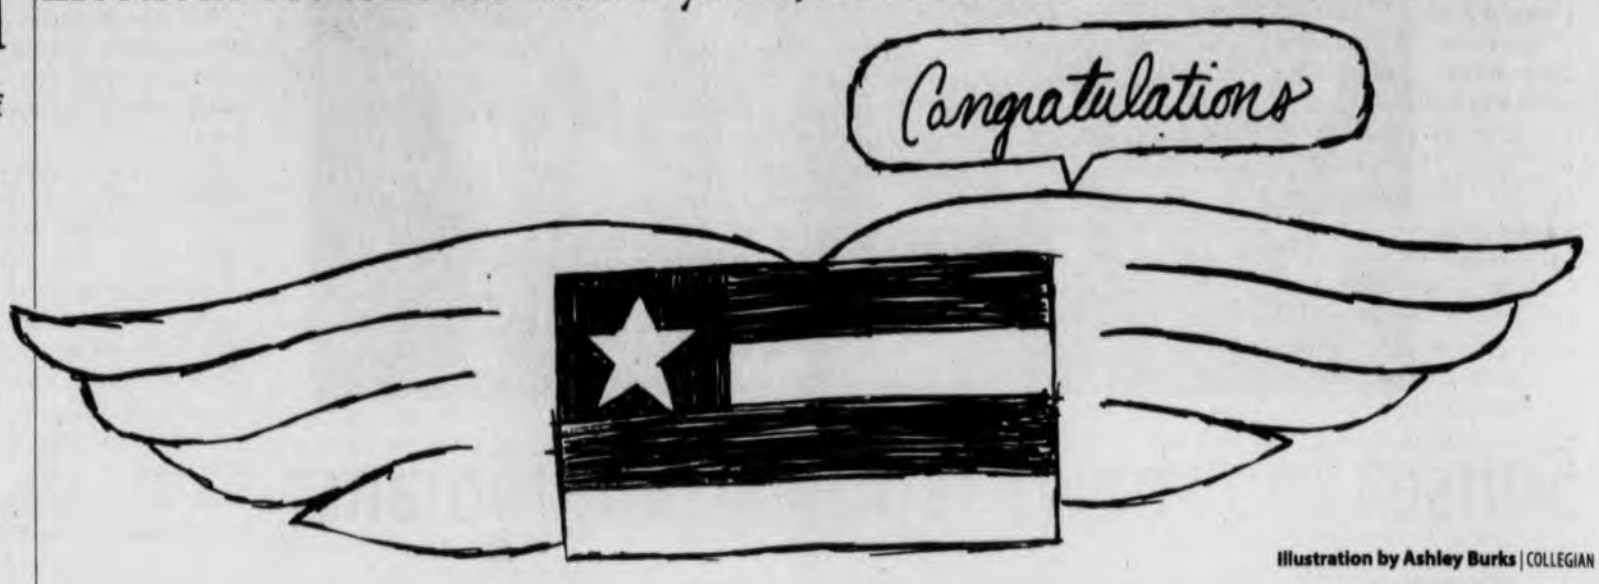

Illustration by Ashley Burks | COLLEGIAN

I told myself I wasn't going to get mad this week – it wouldn't be good for my blood pressure.

RYAN SPENCER

Instead of getting mad at this week's election results, I want to do something certain politicians can't do: say congratulations. No demand for lawyers, judges, media attention or recounts. Just a simple congratulations. You were able to repeat "A new course" enough times to give Americans the doubt they needed to bring in Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., and her gang of misfits. All I have to say is don't get too comfy.

There were some elections across the country that did not receive much attention. I feel as if this election has given the left a two-year credit and told it, "Here's your chance." The ballot issues I speak of show the true conservative nature of many in this country. First and foremost, there were the 11 states that added their names to the growing number that now have written gay marriage bans into law.

In heavily Democratic Missouri, the stem cell research proposition, which is no more than an inlet for cloning purposes if looked at closely, barely squeaked by.

Arizona, which has the highest illegal immigrant population in the country, overwhelmingly approved measures to cut back drastically on illegals' "rights." They also voted in favor of making English the official state language.

Democrats look to help out the working man, to whom I'm sure they can relate, by raising the minimum wage. Too bad many states already took that into their own hands this week. Arizona, Colorado, Missouri, Montana, Nevada and Ohio all approved at least a 15 cents/hour raise.

By the way, Kansas, congratulations are in order for you, too. You were somehow able to re-elect the woman in favor of both abortions and granting illegal immigrants in-state tuition all in one fell swoop.

That's right, your good buddy Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, the "friend of the Kansas student." She would rather give your tax dollars to criminals (because that's what you are when you break the law, no matter what country you're from) than to students living in Kansas City, Mo., who want to go to Kansas or Pitt State.

But I'm sure as informed voters, you already knew that. But I digress. The conservative base in this country has been thrown off.

These problems occur with an unpopular war, corruption (whether actual or created) and a general mistrust of politicians. These problems will be fixed by the GOP in the upcoming years. I acknowledge our newly liberal-controlled House, but I also see a silver lining in the future.

We have taken a hit, and the next couple of years will be interesting. But don't get too comfortable, because the right will be back.

The year 2008 will be one of the most intense political seasons this country has ever seen.

Ryan Spencer is a senior in hotel and restaurant management. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Group projects do not provide for the individual

"What time can you all meet today?"

Five pairs of eyes stare back at the group leader, followed by mumblings of the times they can and cannot meet.

"Ok, well, since we can't all meet today, how about tomorrow?"

Again, the stares and the same mumbled replies.

"Well, what about next week? This is due on Monday."

MEGAN GREEN

Ahh, the sounds of group projects. As a senior, 50 percent of my classes are group project oriented.

That means I get to work with a whole bunch of people who have a whole bunch of different schedules and never can meet at the same time. And, of course, there is always that one person who goes out of town.

This means it is close to impossible to get anything done. It also means, as we all know, it's more than likely one or two people out of the group will do the most work.

OK, at times, group work can be beneficial – like when I threw a party with my roommates, or when I need to move – but for the most part, group projects are not the best teaching method.

First, you have to scramble to put together a group that you will like – that is, if you get the choice of who you are to work with.

If you are assigned a group, all you can do is hope for the best.

Then, you have to work very closely with these people and try to get things done. Not as easy as it sounds. We are all busy and have so many activities and so much homework to do that finding a time to get things done is hard.

And if that doesn't work, and you can't find a time to meet, what do you do?

You can split the assignments among the group members, who are supposed to e-mail their part of the project to the group leader. This will only work, however, if everyone thinks exactly the same way and actually knows what assignment they are supposed to be completing. Then there are the stragglers who turn in their work late, or have to be called by the group leader to remind them the project is due.

So, after finally getting a group, finding out times you can meet and splitting up projects, you are now ready to start your work. Communication comes in very handy here, but often is not used. Therefore, a lot of projects require a lot of work done the night before the project is due.

That's when everyone gets cranky and points fingers about who did or did not do any work. By the end of the project, almost everyone doesn't want to talk to anyone else in their group for at least the next month.

I understand it's easy for teachers to assign group projects and I agree at times it is a good idea. However, for the most part, group projects should be a teacher's last resort.

It's hard to grade individuals on group projects, and a teacher can never tell if anyone in the group learned anything. It might have been that the group leader told everyone else what to do and they did as they were told, but still have no idea what they were doing.

I don't think students learn best from group projects. We need a more structured environment, where we can be graded as individuals.

Megan Green is a fifth-year student in mass communication. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

POLITICAL CARTOON | By Donnie Jay

TO THE EDITOR

Alumnus apologizes for being bandwagon fan, calls for support for Ron Prince, football team

Editor,

I want to apologize for being a bandwagon fan. To the university, the athletic department, and the coaching staff of the K-State football team, I apologize. Over the past two months, I have eagerly jumped on the bandwagon of negativity that has hounded our football team this season. Like many disgruntled fans, I have rushed to judgment, made snap assumptions that I know more than Ron Prince, and essentially represented my alma mater in an unattractive light. For that, I am truly sorry. The fact is, it is easier to be negative than to be positive.

It is easier to point out what is not working than what is. We live in an age where negative media and gossip prevail. The greatest shortcoming of our global society is that people just can't stop talking about each other ... and no one wants to say anything nice. Madonna is demonized for adopting an African child, Tiki Barber is actually criticized just for announcing his retirement, and loutish talk show hosts think victims of Parkinson's disease are fair game because they happen to be celebrities. Is it any wonder, given the current trend, that we fans want to pile on Ron Prince after a 4-4 start?

So I am hereby falling off the wagon ... the bandwagon of negativity, that is. As a proud alumnus of K-State, I am reverting to my old ways.

Henceforth, I will stand behind our coaching staff, represent the school in as positive a light as possible, and support our team through thick and thin. If anyone wants to join me, I have a new bandwagon warming up in the parking lot.

Matthew W. Krause
K-STATE ALUMNUS '94 MA ENGLISH

Professor calls for cultural names for minorities, encourages 'cross-group communication'

Editor,

Logan Adams makes many valid points in his editorial about the importance and the nature of diversity in media coverage. I wish to expand on one of his ideas. At the Thursday forum organized by Kim Baltrip, we discussed different terms that are appropriate to use with persons from different racial/ethnic groups, in an effort to reduce the negative effects in which such terms are sometimes couched. Racial (and therefore potentially racist) terms like white, black, and Caucasian are based on physical appearance alone and tell us nothing about the individual person. They can be terms of pride within a group, but confuse the issues outside the group.

Ethnic terms like African American, Latino/Hispanic, Asian American and Native American refer to one's culture, to all of our many ways of thinking and doing things. It is the latter – that is, learning how to view things from a number of cultural perspectives – that is so useful and powerful in the world of work, journalism and otherwise. As Adams states in his closing remarks, "journalism itself can teach us diversity." Indeed, but only if true diversity – that is, cross-group communication – is used in the positive ways I have mentioned. If we continue to see things from only one cultural perspective, the negatives will continue to outweigh the positives. K-State offers us many opportunities during the year to experience diverse perspectives and to enrich our lives and professions as a result.

Doug Benson
PROFESSOR OF SPANISH

From the Public Editor:

Readers want more comics

It appears the drunken rabbit and his turtle friend just aren't cutting it. The coeds under acorn assault aren't enough, either.

LOGAN C. ADAMS

These characters come from the Collegian's two comic strips, "Tabernacle Woods," by Donnie Jay, and "Buttered," by Jess Boatwright. Not that there's anything wrong with them – readers want more.

A request that has come up repeatedly this semester is for the Collegian to print more comics. As a rabid fan of several strips, I'm inclined to agree.

Benjamin Franklin made the famed "JOIN, or DIE" cartoon, known as the first one published, in 1754. More than two centuries have passed, and now almost all large metropolitan newspapers fill entire pages with them.

Readers love good comics for their humor, commentary and simplicity, and they certainly appeal to readers.

"They tell more of a story without having to read a whole story," John Wood, freshman in business administration, said.

Editor in chief Emily Lawrence told me she'd love to have more comics in the Collegian but doesn't have any cartoonists who can produce a daily strip.

Not just anyone can be a daily cartoonist. Coming up with a humorous idea and creating a good piece of art every day is difficult, and Lawrence said she'd prefer to run one or two good comics a week rather than five weak ones.

This begs the question: why don't we print syndicated comics?

The daily crossword puzzle and Cryptoquip come from King Features Syndicate, why not some cartoons?

Nothing is keeping the Collegian from running syndicated cartoons, it's just that the paper has never done it before and the staff prefers to keep things as local as possible.

Another option would be for advertisers to sponsor a daily strip the same way the puzzles are. Ad Manager Kelly Williams said he would consider it.

I think we need a blend, with staff artists working on campus-centered strips, while we print a few daily comics from syndicates.

The hard part is deciding which comics to print, and that's where you come in. If you want to see a certain comic in the Collegian, e-mail me at the address below.

Logan C. Adams is the Collegian's public editor and a senior in print journalism. Send comments to publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu or catch him in person 10 a.m. to 12 a.m. Wednesday in Bosco Student Plaza or in the K-State Student Union if the weather is bad. Also, listen to him at 3 p.m. Sunday on the Wildcat 91.9.

Once in a Lifetime engagements and weddings —Everyone's doing it.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

ROYAL PURPLE yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555.

Thank You
To the members of my family, everyone who displayed yard signs, those who worked on my campaign, all those who have opened their doors to me during this time and all who supported this effort.
SYDNEY CARLIN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE 66TH DISTRICT
www.sydneycarlin.com
Pd. for by the Committee to elect Sydney Carlin, State Representative 66th District, John E. Carlin, Treasurer.

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

FALL SAVINGS SALON
$20 $10 $6
3104 ANDERSON AVE. 785.539.3626 MANHATTAN, KS 66503
HURRY IN! APPOINTMENTS ARE LIMITED! EXPIRES 11.30.06

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Open House Sun 1-6 pm
20% OFF
*EXCLUDES BRIGHTON
GREAT HOLIDAY GIFTS UNDER $20
PEGGY KARR CHRISTMAS WHITE CHOCOLATE POPCORN
ON DISPLAY VINTAGE SWAROVSKI CRYSTAL
Lilacs on the Prairie
327 POYNTZ 565-0900

"Making Life Better"
Kansas City Kansas Community College
7250 State Avenue • Kansas City, KS
913-334-1100
"An Equal Opportunity Educational Institution"
Online Courses Spring 2007
http://www.kckcc.edu/schedule/index.psp
COURSE NAME
INTRODUCTION TO ADDICTIONS
COUNSELING THE ALCOHOLIC AND DRUG ABUSER
SPECIAL TOPICS IN ADDICTION
ADDICTION COUNSELING WITH SPECIAL POPULATIONS
GROUP DYNAMICS AND ADDICTIONS I
CLIENT MANAGEMENT PROCEDURES
FIRST AID
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
MEDICAL TERMINOLOGY
WOMEN'S HEALTH: A TEAM APPROACH
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL ANTHROPOLOGY
ARCHAEOLOGY
GENERAL PHARMACOLOGY
GENERAL BIOLOGY
THE LIVING BODY
ENVIRONMENTAL SCIENCE
HUMAN ANATOMY AND LABORATORY
NUTRITION
KINESIOLOGY
MICROBIOLOGY
HUMAN SEXUALITY
PHYSIOLOGY
PHYSIOLOGY LABORATORY
ACCOUNTING I
ACCOUNTING II
SMALL BUSINESS MANAGEMENT
PERSONAL FINANCE
HUMAN RELATIONS IN BUSINESS
BUSINESS MATH
MARKETING
OFFICE PRACTICUM
SUPERVISORY TECHNIQUES
INCOME TAX PROCEDURES
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I
COST ACCOUNTING
MANAGERIAL ACCOUNTING
BUSINESS LAW I
BUSINESS LAW II
INTRODUCTION TO BUSINESS
BUSINESS COMMUNICATIONS
INTRO TO ENTREPENEURSHIP
HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP I
PRINCIPLES OF MANAGEMENT
OCCUPATIONAL INTERNSHIP II
BASIC KEYBOARDING
DOCUMENT FORMATTING I
SPEEDBUILDING I
SPEEDBUILDING II
RECORDS MANAGEMENT
BUSINESS ENGLISH
PROOFREADING
OFFICE SIMULATIONS
BUSINESS ETIQUETTE
CUSTOMER SERVICE
GENERAL CHEMISTRY
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY I AND LAB
COLLEGE CHEMISTRY II & LAB
FORENSIC SCIENCE ANALYTICAL TECHNIQUES
COURSE NAME
ORGANIC CHEMISTRY II
BIOCHEMISTRY
FUNDAMENTALS OF EARLY CARE EDUCATION
INFANTS AND TODDLERS I
INFANTS AND TODDLERS II
PRESCHOOLERS I
PRESCHOOLERS II
CARE OF CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES
CHILD CARE ADMINISTRATION
"WELLNESS, HEALTH AND SAFETY FOR THE YOUNG CHILD"
INTRODUCTION TO THE INTERNET(U)
COMPUTER CONCEPTS AND APPLICATIONS
MICROCOMPUTER BUSINESS SOFTWARE
LOCAL AREA NETWORKING
HTML WEB PAGE DEVELOPMENT
COMPUTER OPERATING SYSTEM
WEB GRAPHICS AND MULTIMEDIA
JAVASCRIPT
INTRODUCTION TO INTERNETWORKING AND ROUTERS
SYSTEM MANAGER
MICROCOMPUTER APPLICATIONS I
VISUAL BASIC
ADVANCED WAN INTERNETWORKING
ADVANCED SYSTEM MANAGER
ADVANCED VISUAL BASIC
C++ PROGRAMMING
JAVASCRIPT II
OS FEATURES REVIEW
CGI PERL
INDUSTRIAL INTERNSHIP (COMPUTER)
POLICE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION
CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION II
TRAFFIC ADMINISTRATION AND CONTROL
CORRECTIONAL LAW
PRINCIPLES OF MACROECONOMICS
INTRODUCTION TO TEACHING
CAREER AWARENESS
COMPOSITION I
INTRODUCTION TO FICTION
TECHNICAL WRITING
MODERN AMERICAN LITERATURE
MAJOR ENGLISH WRITERS II
PRINT READING
COMPUTER AIDED DRAFTING
DRAFTING FIELD PROJECT I
FIRST AID
CURRENT TOPICS AND ISSUES IN EXERCISE SCIENCE
TECHNIQUES OF STRENGTH TRAINING
CAMPING AND OUTDOOR EDUCATION
INTRODUCTION TO EXERCISE SCIENCE
PERSONAL, SCHOOL, COMMUNITY HEALTH
LIFETIME FITNESS
PHYSICAL EDUCATION FOR THE ELEMENTARY TEACHER
SPORTS OFFICIATING
EXERCISE PHYSIOLOGY
EXERCISE TESTING AND PRESCRIPTION
ART HISTORY II
BUILDING CONSTRUCTION FIRE SERVICE
FIRE PROTECTION EQUIPMENT ALARM SYSTEMS
COURSE NAME
INTRODUCTION TO HOMELAND SECURITY AND WEAPONS OF MASS DESTRUCTION
FIRE ADMINISTRATION I
BUILDING FIRE CODES
CURRENT TOPICS AND TECHNOLOGY IN FIRE SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO CULTURAL GEOGRAPHY
UNITED STATES TO 1877
UNITED STATES SINCE 1877
BLACK HISTORY
THE BIBLE AS HISTORY
WORLD CIVILIZATION II
HUMAN SEXUALITY
INTRODUCTION TO HUMANITIES
HUMANITIES II
INTRODUCTION TO MASS COMMUNICATIONS
MATH ESSENTIALS
ELEMENTARY ALGEBRA
INTERMEDIATE ALGEBRA
COLLEGE ALGEBRA
PRE-CALCULUS MATHEMATICS
STATISTICS
MUSIC APPRECIATION
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL SCIENCE
INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY
INTRODUCTION TO ASTRONOMY LAB
INTRODUCTORY PHYSICS LABORATORY
INTRODUCTION TO METEOROLOGY AND LAB
TRANSITION CONCEPTS
PATHOPHYSIOLOGY FOR NURSES
INTRODUCTION TO PHILOSOPHY
ETHICS
FIRST AID
INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL THERAPY
AMERICAN GOVERNMENT
INTRODUCTION TO LAW
LEGAL RESEARCH I
LITIGATION I
REAL ESTATE LAW
LEGAL WRITING
CRIMINAL LAW FOR THE PARALEGAL
BANKRUPTCY
PSYCHOLOGY
THE GRIEVING PROCESS
CHILD DEVELOPMENT
HUMAN DEVELOPMENT
SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY
FUNDAMENTALS RESPIRATORY CARE
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS I
TECHNICAL DEVICES
TECHNICAL INTERVENTIONS II
INTRODUCTION TO PULMONARY FUNCTION TESTING
SOCIOLOGY
SOCIOLOGY OF FAMILY
CRIMINOLOGY
SOCIAL PROBLEMS
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL WELFARE
PUBLIC SPEAKING
VICTIMOLOGY
VICTIM SERVICES
LEGAL POLICY IN VICTIM SERVICES

Trent Green can blame Dick Vermeil

Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Trent Green might be the unluckiest player in professional football.

JEFFREY RAKE

His former coach, Dick Vermeil, can take the blame for it.

When Green played for Vermeil in 1999 with the St. Louis Rams, he was injured in a preseason game. He missed the season and watched as an unknown backup, Kurt Warner, led the team to a 13-3 record and a Super Bowl title.

Two years later, Green followed Vermeil to Kansas City, and once again became his starting quarterback. Green developed into one of the league's best at the position and flourished in Vermeil's high-powered, timing-based offense.

Though Vermeil retired last season, his offensive system has remained in Kansas City under new coach Herm Edwards. In the first game of the season, Green suffered a concussion and has been out ever since.

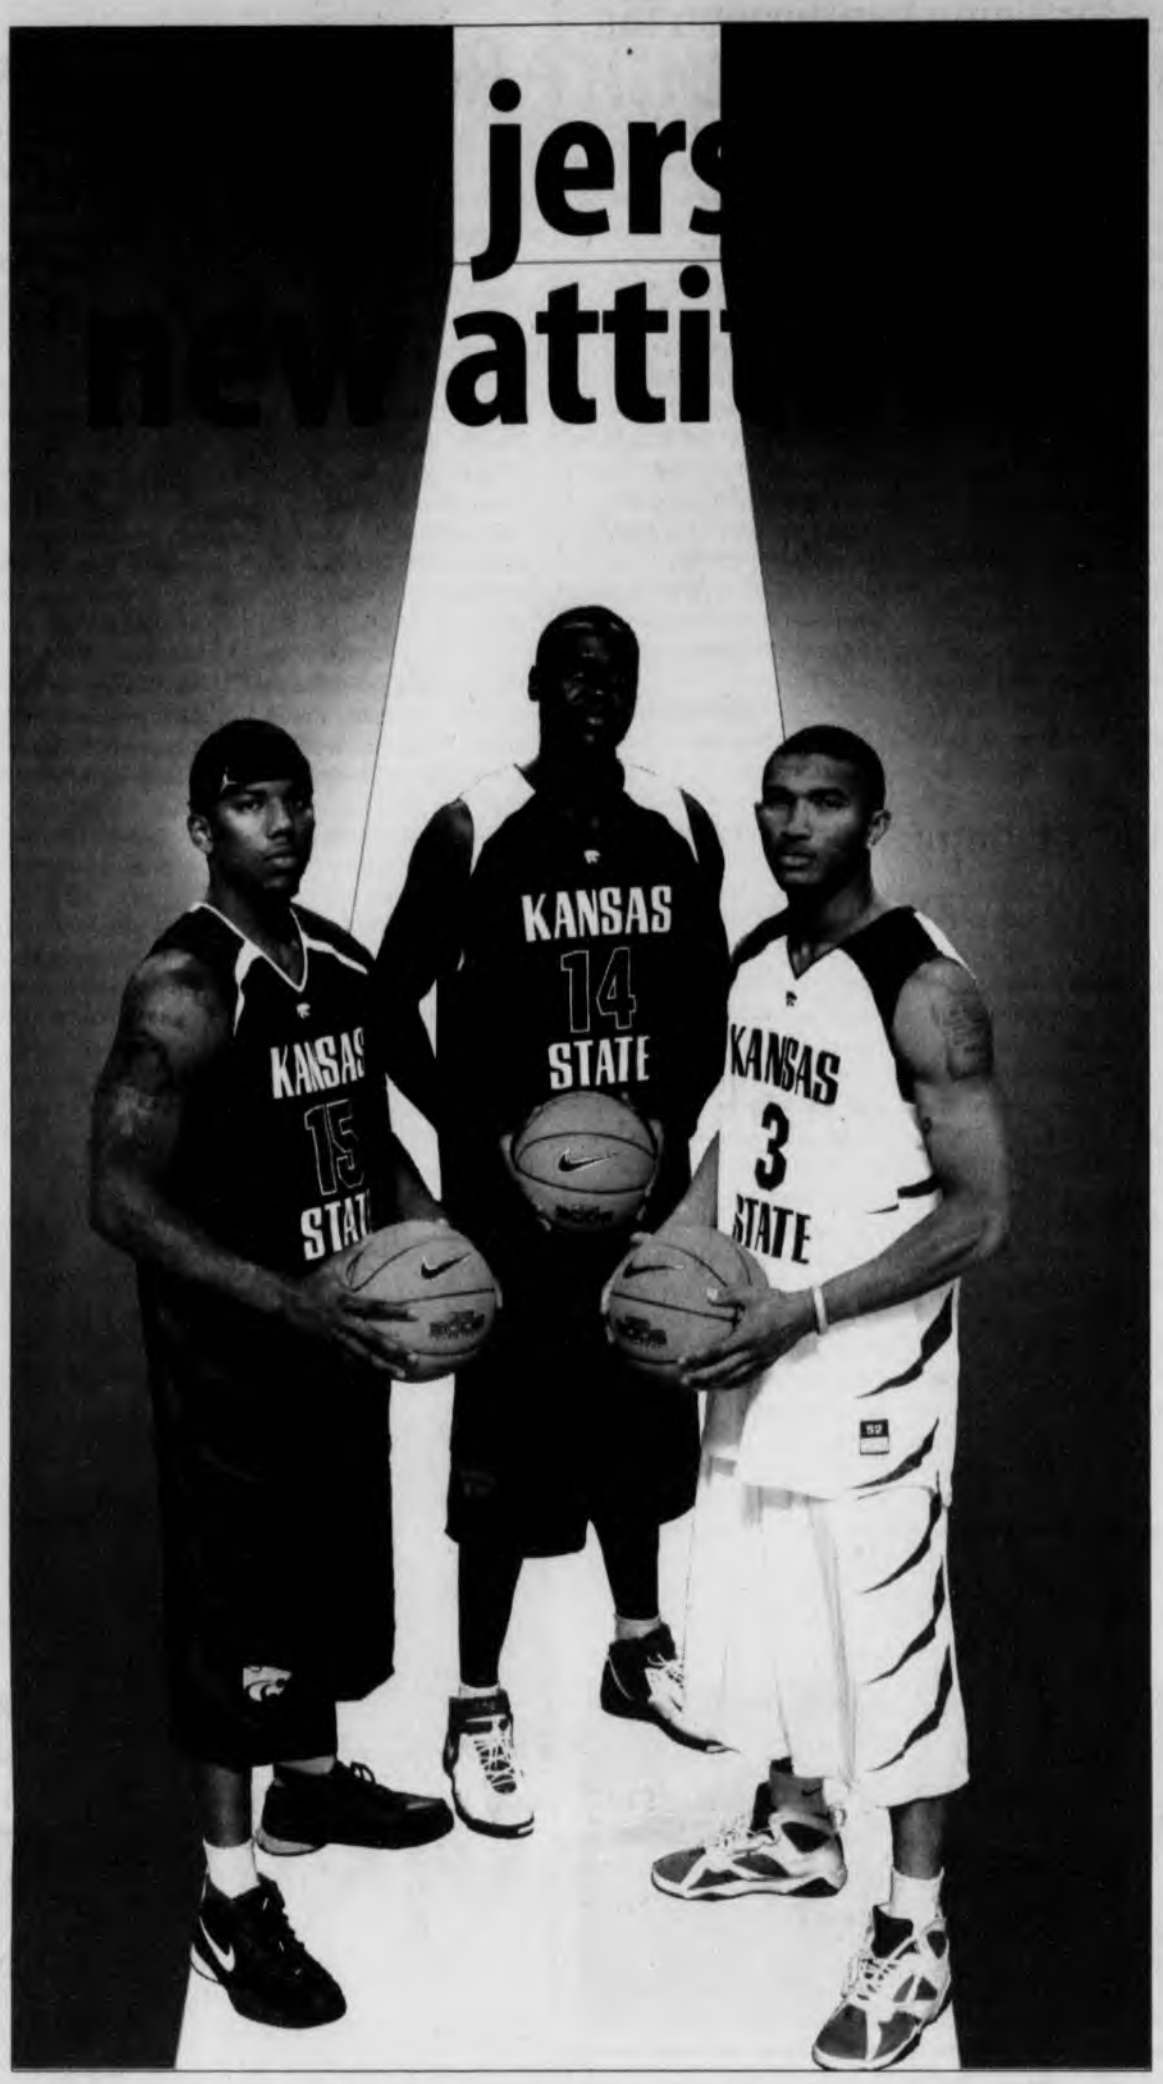
In his absence, Damon Huard – a career backup who almost was cut from the team in the preseason – has filled in admirably. Huard has led the Chiefs to a 5-3 record and is putting up incredible numbers: 11 touchdowns, just one interception and a QB rating of 105.

So why is this Vermeil's fault?

Green is in jeopardy of losing his job for the second time in his career to a player that's found success in his place. The reason has nothing to do with the skill levels of Warner and Huard and has everything to do with Vermeil's offensive system.

Warner and Huard are not great quarterbacks; rather, they are the product of a system that has made them look much better than they actually are. Look at Huard before he entered Vermeil's offense, and check out Warner after he left it. Anybody can play great in Vermeil's offense – heck, you probably can too.

If Green needs some sympathy, he should seek out Warner for some support. Just three years after stealing Green's job in St. Louis, Warner lost his to current Rams starter Marc Bulger.



Like Green, Warner missed time with an injury and watched helplessly as Bulger stole his job. That season, Bulger made the Pro Bowl and put up terrific numbers. Rams fans instantly forgot about all the success Warner had brought to the franchise, and many of them jumped on the Bulger bandwagon.

The same thing is happening in Kansas City, as many Chiefs fans want Huard to become the full-time starter, even when Green returns to full health.

Vermeil has made his name by making players appear better than they really are, and it's helped him get to two Super Bowls.

Can you blame him for that?

Jeffrey Rake is a junior in print journalism.
Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Men's basketball team gets new, more recognizable look

By Dayne Logan
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

With the signings of coaches Bob Huggins and Ron Prince, it is evident that an air of change is sweeping through Manhattan.

In that spirit, the men's basketball program decided to make another change for the upcoming season by unveiling new uniforms.

The unveiling came on Oct. 13, during the "Madness in Manhattan" festivities, which also included a slam dunk contest and intrasquad scrimmage.

Junior guard Clent Stewart said he felt the new jerseys – which come in three colors, the white home uniform, the purple road jersey and a new black alternative uniform – reflect the different mentality and swagger Huggins brings to the team.

"When you change jerseys, it changes the attitude of the team," Stewart said.

Junior forward David Hoskins said he thought the new uniforms might even help his play in some way.

"A lot of guys didn't like all the purple, but I think (the new jerseys) definitely look a lot better," Hoskins said. "And when you look good, you play good."

Other players weren't so convinced.

"The jerseys aren't going to make us play better," senior forward Cartier Martin said. "It's all up to us. We just have to go out there and be the best we can be."

One advantage to having new uniforms is that they make K-State more recognizable on a national level.

"These might be the best jerseys in the country," senior forward Akeem Wright said about the uniforms, which include the Powercat logo above the chest and scratch marks on the sides of both the jersey and shorts.

When asked about their favorite uniform, most players said the black alternate uniforms were the best, due to the fact that they are only going to be worn on special occasions.

Players had varying ideas on what those special occasions might be, however.

During "Madness in Manhattan," Huggins said they will be reserved for big games, "like Feb. 19, that's when the streak ends," referring to K-State's home game against Kansas, who they have not beaten in Manhattan since 1983.

However, sophomore forward Darren Kent said he would like to see the black jerseys unveiled on a night when K-State is playing on ESPN's Big Monday.

Wright said he would like to wear them when K-State travels to Rutgers because he plans on having a lot of his family in attendance.

Hoskins had even loftier aspirations.

"We want to go to the (NCAA) tournament," Hoskins said. "You'll see (the black uniforms) there."

Rowing team to compete in first 2K of the year against KU

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State women's rowing team will compete in its first 2,000-meter race Saturday in a duel against Kansas in the annual Sunflower Showdown.

Coach Patrick Sweeney said the team has been working on the change in starting. With a head race, which is all K-State has competed in so far this year, the boats have a staggered start. However, in a 2,000-meter race, the boats take off at the same time.

"We're just trying to speed things up," Sweeney said. "Getting off the starting line quickly is important."

K-State has competed in two head races prior to this meet. The Wildcats competed in the Head of the Oklahoma Sept. 30-Oct. 1 in Oklahoma City, and in the Head of the Iowa Oct. 29 in Iowa City, Iowa. This also will be the first 2,000-meter race for Kansas' rowing team.

They have competed this year in the Head of the Oklahoma, the Head of the Iowa and the Head of the Chattahoochee, which was Nov. 4-5 in Chattanooga, Tenn.

In the Head of the Oklahoma, Kansas' first varsity boat placed fourth in the Collegiate Eight, while K-State's placed eighth. However, in the novice eight, K-State got the better of the Jayhawks, placing first to their second and winning by 35 seconds.

At the Head of the Iowa, K-State's novice eight once again placed first. For the varsity, K-State placed 10th and Kansas placed seventh.

Sweeney said although the head races were a different style, this race will bring the competition back.

"I think when K-State and KU meet in any sport it's always a rivalry," he said. "They always pull out that little bit more when KU's concerned."

The main thing about racing, Sweeney said, is to enjoy the experience.

"I want them to enjoy racing and have fun with it," he said. "Some people compete just to compete. That should be half. Pushing yourself for the win should be something you just have to do."

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

BKW | K-State to hang banner, receive rings prior to game

The last time K-State took the floor at Bramlage Coliseum last season, the Wildcats defeated Maruqette to win the Women's National Invitational Tournament. At 7 tonight, they will host Wisconsin-Green Bay in their first regular season game. During a pregame ceremony, the Wildcats will raise their 2006 WNIT Championship banner and the players will receive their championship rings.

In their exhibition opener on Nov.5 against Divsion-II Emporia State, K-State had three players reach double figures, but lost 64-59.

The loss ended the Wildcats 14-game winning streak in exhibition play, which dated back to the 1998-99 season.

In the game, K-State was led by junior Kimberly Dietz and senior Claire Coggins with 17 and 16 points, respectively. Sophomore Marlies Gipson also was in double figures with 12 points and pulled down a team-high nine rebounds.

VOL | K-State will attempt to win 2 straight for 1st time this season

The K-State women's volleyball team has not won consecutive matches in Big 12 Conference play all season. Saturday afternoon against No. 15 Oklahoma, the Wildcats will have an opportunity to do just that.

K-State at No. 15 Oklahoma
Where: McCasland Field House
When: 1 p.m. Saturday
Live stats available at k-statesports.com

After sweeping Baylor 3-0 Wednesday at Ahearn Field House, the Wildcats (10-16, 2-14 Big 12) will look to make it two in a row against an Oklahoma (21-5, 12-3 Big 12) team that defeated them 3-2 on Oct. 14. In that match, the Wildcats were unable to hold on to a 2-1 lead, and lost the last two games.

However, coach Suzie Fritz said she believes her team has made progress since then.

"We're starting to play well and we're seeing some results of our work," she said. "It's not too late to be a great volleyball team."

The Wildcats have been led offensively by sophomore middle blocker Megan Kroeker, who has 261 kills and team-high's in both blocks (136) and hitting percentage (.307). Against Baylor, Kroeker registered 12 kills.

Sophomore Megan Farr also has been solid, surpassing double figures in kills in five of the Wildcats' last eight matches. The last time Farr played Oklahoma she had 15 kills, tying her career-high.

— Jeffrey Rake

RUN | K-State will try to qualify for NCAA Championships

The K-State cross country teams will finish their regular fall season this Saturday at the Midwest Regional Championships in Falcon Heights, Minn., at the Les Bolstad Golf Course.

The women's 6K race will begin at 11 a.m., followed by the men's 10K event at 12:15 p.m.

The women's team will once again look to sophomore Liliani Mendez after claiming All-Big 12 honors at the Big 12 Conference meet on Oct. 27. Mendez finished 15th at the Big 12 meet with a time of 21:47.48 on the 6K course.

The Wildcat men will look to a spectrum of young runners Saturday, as three different harriers have run in K-State's top spot throughout the fall season. Colin Swaney, Alex Umberger, and Kory Cool each have held the No.1 spot.

This will only be the second 10K race for the Wildcat men this season. K-State previously participated in the Chile Pepper Invitational 10K event, where they took home a 24th-place finish. Swaney was the Wildcats' front-runner that day with a time of 30:59.4.

The Wildcats should be familiar with the course this weekend after competing on the same course on Sept. 23 at the Roy Griak Invitational. The K-State women placed 20th as a team at the Griak, while the men took home a 30th-place finish.

Upon qualification, the Wildcats would compete at the NCAA Championships on Nov. 20, in Terre Haute, Indiana. The two top teams from each of the nine regions will automatically qualify for the NCAA meet. Along with them, 13 at-large teams will be announced along with four individual competitors from each region who were not part of the qualifying teams.

Simulations provide example of law enforcement requirements

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

About 20 people attended the Citizen's Police Academy Thursday evening.

"The purpose of the Citizens Police Academy is to help citizens understand law enforcement. It also helps us gain community backing," Brian Landon, Community Relations Officer, said.

The Academy is a series of classroom presentations as well as participation activities. This week's topic was use of force policy, which is the highest liability for police officers.

"During this session, we have a lecture and then show the Range 3000 Training Simulator," Landon said.

The Range 3000 Simulator consists of a computer LCD projector, multiple cameras, speakers and a floor-to-ceiling drop screen. The simulator portrays real-life scenarios that involve all regulation weapons and equipment, but instead of real ammunition, all equipment uses laser lights, which are necessary to interact with the simulator screen.

Officers can run through nearly any scenario they could encounter, with officers' reactions triggering responses from the simulator.

In one simulation, a suspect charged with aggravated assault is walking away from the officer.

The simulation has two different outcomes, and only the officer running the computer can control the outcome.

The officer being tested has to respond to either situation.

In one situation, the officer is fired upon by the suspect. In the second, the suspect puts his hands up and is arrested.

"The problem with this type of simulation is that you are still just shooting at a screen," said Lt. Tim Hegarty of the Riley County Police Department. "This is the reason for the new, real-life simulation."

For the real-life simulation, officers dress up in full-protective gear and are equipped with all the equipment necessary in a real-life scenario, including a handgun (with a modification kit that fires detergent-filled bullets), pepper spray, flashlights and a baton.

This simulation began last July, Hegarty said. The scenario involves one police officer and actors portraying suspects. If necessary, an officer may fire upon an actor the with detergent-filled bullets.

However, officers try to refrain from firing their weapons, he said.

"Most officers don't shoot people very often, which can be a negative thing in situations when faced with an armed suspect," Hegarty said. "This is why the real-life simulations are so important."

Students in the program expressed positive feedback about the presentation.

"This program is excellent," said Steve Greinke, Ogden, Kan., City Council member. "I was skeptical of the program at first but now I am very impressed. Most people don't know what goes on in law enforcement."

Kathy Anderson, who works at the Riley County Courthouse, said she works closely with law enforcement and felt the training session was a good opportunity to see what goes on.

"We also wanted to know what we need to do in different scenarios," Anderson said.

Senate commends Roberts, ambassadors

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Student Senate passed two commendations at its meeting Thursday.

The first was for K-State alumnus Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., after whom the new biosecurity research building has been named. The $54-million building was dedicated Oct. 27.

Senate also passed a resolution commending outgoing K-State Ambassadors Ashley Smit, senior in biology and pre-veterinary medicine, and Ryan Flickner, senior in agronomy and natural resources.

The two were commended for their year of dedication and service, according to the resolution.

Smit and Flickner served as ambassadors for the university during the 2005-2006 year and were replaced Oct. 28 by Katelyn Schmidt, junior in public relations, and Andrew Ellis, junior in political science.

Gavin Couvelha, senior in speech education, earned a senate seat for the College of Education after another senator resigned. Couvelha was approved for the seat because he had the next highest vote count in the election.

The College Council Allocations Committee will discuss College Council funding statute changes during a meeting at 9:30 p.m. Nov. 14 in Union 202.

The committee looks to allocate $300 per year to each council for budgetary issues, Matt Wagner, privilege fee chair, said.

Rather than allocating a larger amount and having the councils use those funds for events, he said the committee wants councils to request event funding separately.

Former investigative journalist to speak at K-State about civil liberties, security

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Judith Miller, best-selling author and Pulitzer Prize-winning former investigative journalist for the New York Times, will speak today as part of the Community Readiness Communications: Accurate Messages in Times of Crisis conference.

Angela Powers, director of the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications, said Miller has played a key role in reporting about the wars in Iraq. She said Miller has had a lot of good associations with high officials in the government, and has used that to her advantage. However, some critics have said she used the information she received to promote the war.

"It will be interesting to see how she counters all of the criticism she's received in recent years," Powers said.

She said Miller has written a number of books about the Middle East and about biological weapons.

"She's been a very controversial but influential figure in the news," Powers said.

Gloria Freeland, assistant professor in journalism and mass communications, said Miller's speech is free and open to the public, however there is a registration fee for the rest of the conference.

She said the school chose to have Miller speak because she is well-known and will likely draw a lot of students to her speech, "Balancing national security with civil liberties in a post-9/11 world."

"I think it's important for people to be ready for disasters, whether they're man-made or natural," she said, "but also to realize we shouldn't trample on civil liberties."

"Balancing national security with civil liberties in a post 9/11 world"
Who: Judith Miller
When: 10:30am today
Where: Forum Hall in the K-State Student Union

Powers said Miller also is well-known for her reporting on Valerie Plame, an undercover CIA agent.

According to the event handout, Miller spent 85 days in jail in 2005 because she refused to reveal her source for the story. Now she has been fighting for stronger shield laws for journalists.

Powers encouraged students to attend the lecture.

"I can't think of anyone more interesting than Judith Miller for students to come and hear," she said.

Got a News Tip or Story Idea? Call 532-6556 or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

78% of our readers Clip Coupons 532-6560 Collegian

Your professor may not always be there for you. Your roommates might not always be there for you. And your family, well you can't really trust them either. But the Collegian Crossword... Now that's something you can bank on.

Support the Cats with KSU Crocs!

Brown's Shoe Fit Co.
311 Poyntz Ave. 785-776-6612

SAKE SAKE SAKE Bomb!
$3.00 Sake Bombs
TRY OUR NEW ASIAN STYLE BUFFET & MONGOLIAN BBQ

HUNAN 1304 WESTLOOP 539-8888
$1.00 OFF BUFFET W/ VALID KSU ID

This time is the last time.

So, come get your free yearbook picture taken.
Today:
Union 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Vet Med 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
We said it before but we're serious this time.
Your book. Your story. | royalpurple yearbook.ksu.edu

Menu Mania
Every Monday look in the Collegian for the hottest deals from the hottest restaurants
To advertise in Menu Mania, Call 785-632-6560

Coming to the Manhattan Arts Center
November 5 - December 27

Wrap It Up
Art Exhibit and Sale
Monday– Friday 10-5
Saturday 10-4
Sunday 12-4
sponsored by: Jack & Jenney Ryan and David & Karen Seay
November 10-12 & 16-19
ALL I REALLY NEED TO KNOW I LEARNED IN KINDERGARTEN
Based on Robert Fulghum's best selling books
Adapted by Ernest Zulio, Music & Lyrics by David Caldwell
Directed by Carolyn Mayo
Performances Thurs 7:30 pm, Fri & Sat 8 pm, Sun 2 pm
Afterglow reception following opening night performance

Sponsored by Bartlett and West
December 1 8 pm

Swing City Jazz series
KSU Students Combos
December 2 8 pm
Bird House acoustic music series

singer/ songwriter Mark Erelli
Sponsored by: Meadowlark Hills
For more information or to ORDER YOUR TICKETS ONLINE!
www.manhattanarts.org
Manhattan Arts Center 1520 Poyntz 537-4420

Left: K-State president Jon Wefald speaks to attendees Thursday at the Landon Lecture, introducing Gen. Richard B. Myers, who later introduced Rumsfeld.

Below: Donald Rumsfeld, standing U.S. Secretary of Defense, speaks to attendees at the 146th Landon Lecture Thursday at Bramlage Coliseum.

Photos by Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

RUMSFELD | Uses historical Cold War example to help Americans identify with Iraq war

Continued from Page 1

must work together.

"There's some similarities between the Cold War and the struggle we face today, but this long war represents and presents unprecedented challenges for us, wholly unlike any the United States have ever faced," he said.

Charles Reagan, chairman of the Landon Lecture Series, said there were between 4,500 and 5,000 people in attendance.

"For an 11 o'clock lecture, I was very pleased with the turnout," Reagan said. "It could not have gone more perfect, from my point-of-view."

Reagan said while in Kansas, Rumsfeld also visited the Eisenhower Center in Abilene, and troops at Fort Riley.

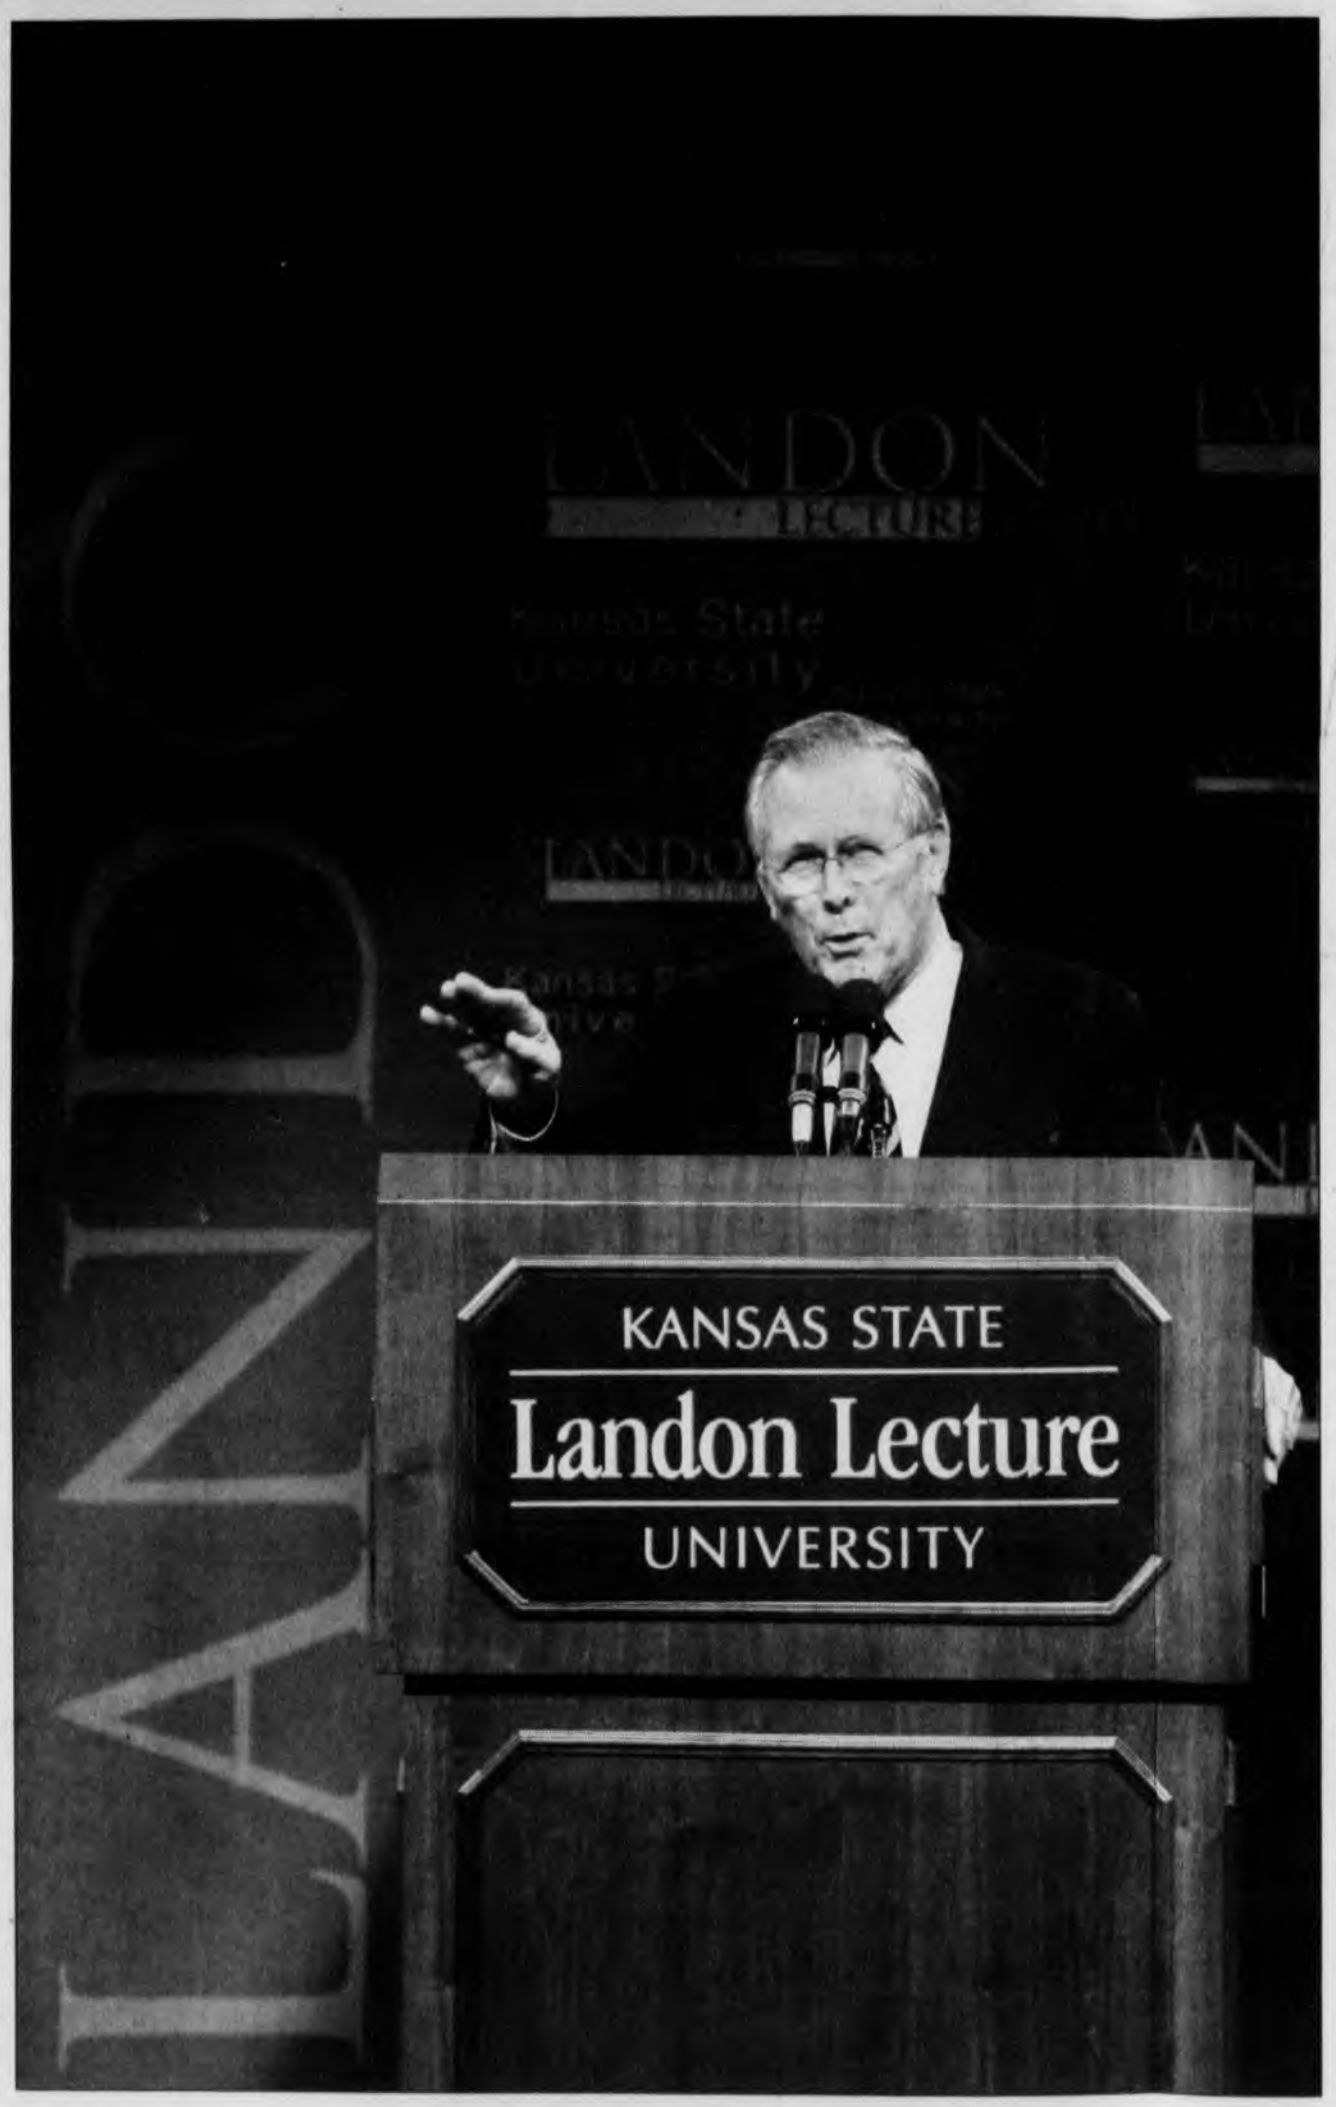
During the 25-minute question-and-answer period, Rumsfeld was asked what challenges the new defense secretary might face. Despite advancements made in Iraq like establishing a stock market and free press and Iraqis voting in elections, Rumsfeld said there is work to be done.

"It is very clear that the major combat operations were an enormous success. It is clear that in phase two of this, it has not been going well enough or fast enough," he said.

In his lifetime, Rumsfeld said he has seen the United States triumph over dictators and tyrannies and is convinced the country's leaders will make the correct choices.

"As we look back on those crucial years during the Cold War, so too our grandchildren will one day look back on this time as a defining moment in American history," Rumsfeld said. "History will judge whether this generation did all we could to defeat a vicious, extremist enemy that threatens our security, our freedom and our very way of life."

Ben Davis, president of College Republicans, said he thought Rumsfeld's lecture was intelligent and articulate.



"I think he did an excellent job of articulating where our country stands in the global War on Terror," said Davis, junior in political science and pre-law. "He brought up a lot of history, which is good, and knowing where we came from can help solve potential problems in the future."

Aaron Apel, president of Young Democrats, said while he enjoyed Rumsfeld's references to the Cold War during the lecture, he also wondered why Rumsfeld didn't use history to develop an in-depth plan for reconstruction in Iraq.

"At the same time, it seems like he's just kind of sticking by what he's always said and isn't offering any new solutions or lines of what should be done," Apel, senior in philosophy and political science, said. "I don't think he really wants to speak his mind on issues, but I think it's better that he doesn't. They should let the new Secretary of Defense develop that new line of thought."

McKenzie Grace, freshman in pre-nursing, also said she was impressed overall with Rumsfeld's lecture.

"I came because it's important to see someone who is making decisions for our country," Grace said. "It's awesome that K-State has these opportunities for students."

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
As Gen. Richard B. Myers applauds, K-State president Jon Wefald presents Rumsfeld with a personalized K-State sweatshirt after the conclusion of his speech.

Students express expectations, responses to Rumsfeld's talking points

Audience members line up for a chance to ask Rumsfeld a question during the question-and-answer portion of the lecture following his speech.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

By Eric Davis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Many students expressed excitement as they walked into the 146th Landon Lecture Thursday at Bramlage Coliseum.

Jared Dukes, junior in architecture, said he was interested in the lecture because of how important Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld is.

"I think that it is pretty cool that such a high-ranking political figure is here," Dukes said as he sat waiting for the event to begin.

Some students said they were anticipating what Rumsfeld had to say about the status of the global economy.

"I am most interested to see if he will discuss what will happen when the catalyst for the global economic collapse occurs. I mean, it could happen at any time," Kyle Arsen, freshman in animal science, said. "I do think that it is cool that he is coming because he is a major political figure for our government."

Arsen said he was not too interested in Rumsfeld's resignation because he felt both Rumsfeld and President Bush made the right decision for the situation.

The Armed forces also were represented at the lecture, filling the north side of the section set aside for the Landon Lecture in Bramlage.

"I think that this is a great opportunity for people to hear an intelligent person give a lecture," Major Tim Payment said of Rumsfeld's arrival.

He said he would have liked for Rumsfeld to say while war is ugly, the alternate is much worse.

Arsen said getting tickets for the event did not seem to be as big of a problem as he had thought.

He expected to wait at least a short time, but when he went after class, there was no line and he got his tickets right away.

"There was never a large line, like in the case of President Bush's lecture," Arsen said.

tate president Jon peaks to attendees at the Landon ntroducing Gen.
. Myers, who later
ed Rumsfeld.

onald Rumsfeld,
U.S. Secretary of speaks to attendees
5th Landon Lecture
at Bramlage

Steven Doll

Wefald, Rumsfeld speak at Myers Hall dedication

By Jonas Hogg
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Gen. Richard B. Myers reveals a new sign named in his honor Thursday during the dedication for the renaming of the Military Science Building. Myers is the former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and currently a professor at the university's Institute of Military History and 20th Century Studies.

He's ridden in fighter jets, Air Force One, limousines and armored cars, but when Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld arrived at the dedication ceremony for Richard B. Myers Hall he rolled in style – on the K-State shuttle bus.

Rumsfeld, along with Myers, a former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Kansas Rep. Jerry Moran, R-Kan., and a host of other dignitaries all were on hand for the renaming of the Military Science Building in honor of Myers, a 1965 K-State graduate in mechanical engineering and K-State's Air Force ROTC program.

"General Myers, I've seen you in action many times, but your introduction to the Secretary was so personal and so touching and so relevant, it was beautiful," K-State President Wefald said.

The ceremony was a patriotic fanfare for a man who devoted his life to the military. Those in uniform snapped salutes as the Big Red One band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner," punctuated by the occasional quiet singer, and Walter Ehlers, who earned the Congressional Medal of Honor during World War II, received his second standing ovation of the day.

"This is certainly a thrill for me," Wefald said.

"I think this is definitely a high honor for Kansas State University, that we are able to dedicate this military science building in your honor."

Wefald's speech focused on the circular path of Myer's professional life, beginning as a K-State student and ROTC cadet and returning as a Foundation Professor of Military History. But Myers is more than a feather in the university's cap. With a ceremonial role, the former head of the U.S. military involves himself with classes and even leads discussions.

"I can't tell you how thrilled I am that he's actually working for me now," Wefald said.

Following Wefald's comments, an animated and lively Rumsfeld described life at the Pentagon with the retired general and expressed his honor at being invited to the occasion.

"There are a lot of things one can do in their life," he said.

"But the opportunity to honor a friend and a great American is a particular pleasure."

During his short speech, Rumsfeld recalled the poignant "Faces of the Fallen" ceremony held at Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, Va.

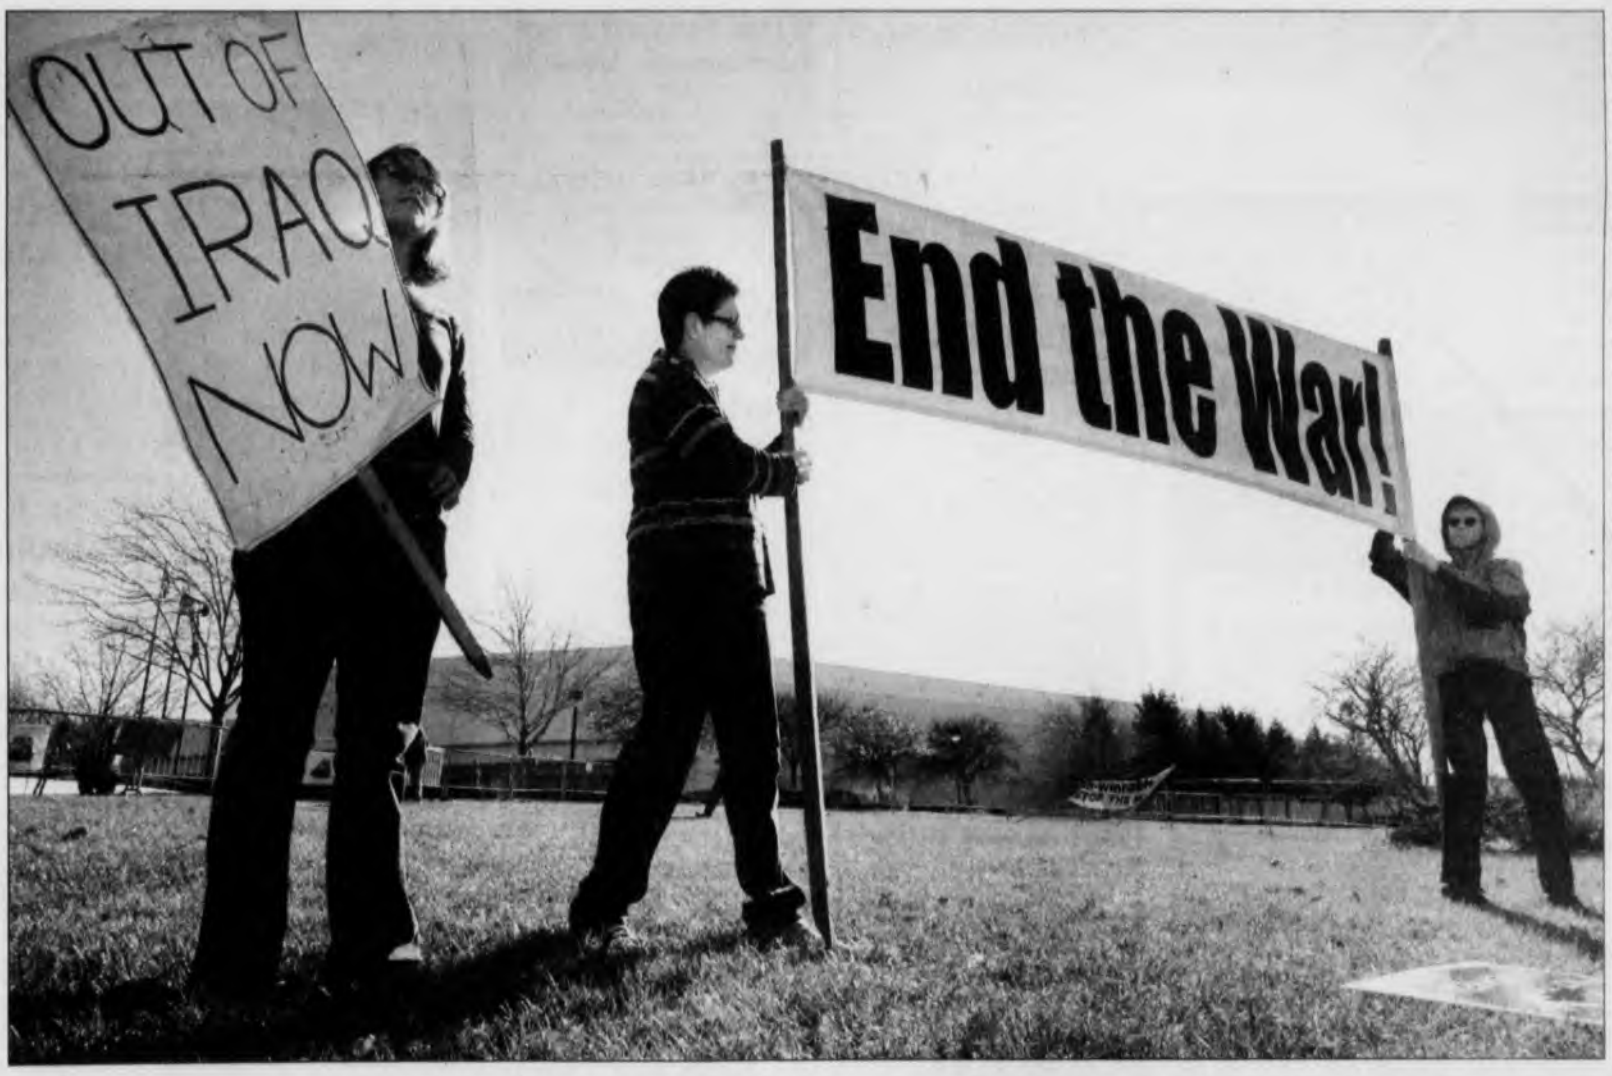
"Long after remarks were over and a lot of people had left, General Myers was still there, talking to family members who wanted to have a word with him," he said. "There was nothing more important in his life than standing there visiting with each family member who wanted to talk."

Myers said after his first difficult semester as a student, no one – not even his parents or himself – could have predicted his astounding achievements.

"I had no idea that the circle of my last phase of life would be complete by naming a building after me – I thought you had to be dead," he said.

Myers said despite the challenges of his career he has kept in touch with former classmates and fraternity brothers, and occasionally would even receive notes from former K-State football head coach Bill Snyder and his wife Sharon.

But Myers' largest praise was reserved for the assembled ROTC cadets.



"Of all the people I'm honored to be with most today, it's the young men and women who are circling around here wearing the Army and the Air Force (uniform)," he said.

For the cadets, seeing one of their own who rose to the top was an exhilarating experience.

"It gives you an idea as to what it takes to make it in the world," said Air Force Cadet Darran McEuen, senior in electrical engineering. "If you're one of those cadets that aspire to be a life long military member you've got inspiration."

Inspiration, and the ability to rib the Army cadets that the building is named for a die-hard Air Force officer.

"I'm sure once in a while – a little jabber going on – we'll break that one out," McEuen said.

Left: Kate Boysen, junior in spanish and sociology; Cia Verschelden, associate professor in women's studies; and Alley Stoughton, Manhattan resident, hold signs in protest Thursday in front of Bramlage Coliseum.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Below: Protesters demonstrate in front of Bramlage Coliseum before the start of Thursday's Landon Lecture by standing U.S. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Groups express support for troops, displeasure with war

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A small group of protesters lined the sidewalk outside of Bramlage Coliseum Thursday as people streamed into the building to listen to the Landon Lecture presented by Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld.

Majka Janowiak, a Manhattan resident, said she was out to protest the war and her frustration with what U.S. politicians have, and have not, been doing.

Janowiak stood beside Gayle Doll, a Manhattan resident, during the protest. Both women are members of Manhattan Alliance of Peace and Justice.

During the protest, Doll said she did not want people walking into the lecture see her and think she was not supporting the troops when she was upset about the war.

"We are in support of the troops, and people get the perception that we're not because we're against the war," Doll said. "So, that would be a message I would want to get out loud and strong is that I have nothing against the troops."

With three sons of a similar age to many soldiers who are fighting abroad, Doll said her heart goes out to the soldiers' families.

"That's what breaks my heart about this whole thing is other mothers losing their sons," she said.

With Rumsfeld's resignation, Doll said the protest at the site of his first appearance after the resignation was different than she thought it would be.

"I thought about not coming today because I don't know what message I have right now because, obviously, I wanted Rumsfeld out, and he is," Doll said.

While Katie Gatlin, junior in public relations, stood outside of Bramlage to protest with K-State's A Campus Taking Initiative on Nonviolence (ACTION), she said she got a ticket to go inside and listen to Rumsfeld.

"I want to hear what he has to say," she said.

"I wish I had gotten a ticket," added Kristina Kramer, senior in sociology and protester with Progress Coalition.

In another barricaded area, Shirley Phelps-Roper, daughter of Fred Phelps, led a scattered group of people in singing "God Hates America."

"Rumsfled is going to be here, and we need to be sure that everyone going in here understands that you can swap up Rumsfeld for Gates or Mickey Mouse or Donald Duck or anything other thing you can think of to swap him up," she said. "It's like rearranging the deck chairs on the Titanic – America is doomed."

Gatlin and Kramer said they were frustrated with having been placed in close proximity of Phelps-Roper's group, and explained they thought other people would associate the groups as one.

"It reflects bad on us because we're right there," Gatlin said. "It's not our message at all, obviously."

oints

sted in Rumsfeld's
sfeld and President
situation.
esented at the lec-
on set aside for the tunity for people to re," Major Tim Pay-

msfeld to say while rse.
event did not seem nought.
t time, but when he d he got his tickets

in the case of Presi-

Group provides for injured vets

By Katelynn Hasler
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A soldier wounded in duty will be present for the coin toss of nearly every college football game for Veteran's day Saturday.

Lonnie Moore, a 2000 K-State graduate who lost his leg while serving in Iraq, was chosen for the coin toss in K-State's game against Texas.

Moore also is the president of the board of directors for the Wounded Warriors Project, an organization that helps troops injured in duty transition back to civilian life.

The Wounded Warriors Project organized the presence of injured soldiers at the football games in collaboration with the National Athletic Coordinators and Directors Association.

"We want to have a soldier at as many games as possible to spread the message of the Wounded Warriors Project – to get out there and get recognized," Moore said. "Being at K-State, my alma mater, is a very humbling experience, and I am honored to do it."

Moore participated in ROTC while at K-State, and was assigned to Fort Riley as a commissioned officer after graduation.

After serving in Iraq for eight months, he lost his leg when his vehicle was hit with a grenade.

He returned home in April 2004 to medical retirement and a long recovery, he said.

One of Moore's instructors at K-State, Arthur DeGroat, director of K-State's military affairs, said Moore has a lot of military knowledge and experience.

"He's just a good Kansas guy and a good K-Stater trying to make a difference in the world," DeGroat said. "It's pretty powerful testimony to the graduates of K-State."

After his rehabilitation, Moore worked as a spokesperson for the Wounded Warriors Project.

The organization provides backpacks to hospitalized soldiers that contain clothing, toiletries and other necessities.

It also offers counseling, as well as adaptive sports and recreation programs.

An important part of its work, Moore said, is the unified legislative voice it provides to injured soldiers.

In a recent lobby to Congress, he said, it won an addition to the current life insurance plan for soldiers.

This plan will provide soldiers returning from war with serious injuries between $25,000 and $100,000 to smooth their transition to civilian life.

Moore said he was chosen to be president of the organization by a group that included a press adviser, a former secretary for the United States Department of Veterans Affairs and other veterans because he represents this generation of wounded soldiers.

"It's an honor to serve your country, especially for those who enter the service after the war," Moore said. "That really shows a love of country and of family and of God. For those that were in before the war, we really appreciate the sacrifices that they've given and that they continue to give in service."

Will LaChance, senior in secondary education and member of K-State's ROTC program, said he is glad K-State will recognize the Wounded Warriors Project on Saturday.

"When we think of war, we have a tendency to think only about the operations and such," LaChance said. "We don't necessarily focus on the aftermath. For this to make people who have made sacrifices in the forefront, then that is a great thing."

STARBUCKS | Some dislike idea of coffee establisment in Union

Continued from Page 1

taking away the ice cream. Pitts said Starbucks would not permit the Union to bundle with K-State products, so they would not sell Call Hall ice cream there.

"Call Hall ice cream is a product we made a commitment to be an outlet for," Pitts said. "We will facilitate Call Hall ice cream in the Union as well."

Pitts said the Union does not have enough money to install both a Starbucks and a new place for Call Hall ice cream.

Leshia Hansen, senior in life science, said she would rather have ice cream than coffee.

"I think it's important that we keep the access to Call Hall ice cream," she said. "If the installation of a Starbucks would not allow for this, then I don't think we should bring one in."

The Union Governing Board and the corporate board have asked Pitts about the possibility, so he has begun negotiations with Starbucks.

"Like everything else, it comes down to money," he said. "It depends on how much it costs in the end. The Union has limited funds."

At this point, it is unclear where negotiations will be in a month. Pitts said he would like to have an agreement by the end of November. He said it would take 193 days from the agreement until the grand opening of the new Starbucks.

"In order for us to open up for the new freshmen coming in June, we would have to have an agreement by Dec. 1," he said. "Everything has to happen within this month."

Sarah Pritchard, an employee at Union Station, said she didn't want a Starbucks in the Union.

"I personally don't like the idea of them putting Starbucks upstairs," she said. "It takes away the coffee shop feeling that we have here."

Even so, Union Station sells Starbucks coffee, but it isn't a full Starbucks coffee shop.

Regardless, Manhattan will still get one soon. A Starbucks location will open late this winter at Bluemont and Manhattan, Shewman said.

The 2,000 square-foot coffee shop will have a drive thru, upholstered furniture, café tables and chairs and an outdoor patio.

Hansen said she is against having a one in Manhattan.

"I don't think Starbucks really has a place in Aggieville," she said. "We have two coffee shops in that area already. I wouldn't want them to have to compete. I think it is important that we work to preserve our smaller businesses."

ADVERTISE YOUR CHURCH HERE
CALL 785-532-6560

MANHATTAN JEWISH CONGREGATION
Worship: Fri. 7:30 pm
1509 Wreath Ave, Manhattan
Everyone welcome!
www.manhattanjewishcong.org
In association with HILLEL the Jewish student organization
www.k-state.edu/hillel

Celebration Service
First Presbyterian Church
801 Leavenworth
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-537-0518
Pastor: R.C. McConnell
Associate Pastor: Anne Scheiber
"Sing to the Lord a new song, his praise from the ends of the earth..."
Contemporary Worship Service
Sundays at 11:45 a.m.
Everyone is Welcome
College Fellowship Dinner to follow service
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
2121 Blue Hills Road
539-8691
9:45 am Sunday School
11:00 am Sunday Worship
Praise Team Twice Each Month
www.centeredinchrist.us
1801 Anderson Ave 539-3051
Baptist Campus Center

Agape Family Church
121 S. 4th—Downtown
An Affiliate of RHEMA Bible Church aka Kenneth Hagin Ministries
Sunday 9:30 a.m. School of the Bible
Sunday 10:30 a.m. Worship
Sunday 7:00 p.m. Evening Worship
Wednesday 7:30 p.m. Hour of Power
Youth, Children's and Nursery Services
STERLING HUDGINS - PASTOR
Office: 121 S. 4th Suite 205
www.agapefamily.org
Monday Nite Lite 7:15 p.m.
College Fellowship 207 Union
(785) 539-3570

Faith Evangelical Free Church
• Worship at 8:00,10:30, 10:40
• Sunday School at 9:15
Steve Ratliff, Senior Pastor
Brian Anderson, Assoc. Pastor
1921 Barnes Rd
1.6 Miles North of Kimball
776-2086
N W E S Barnes Kimball Bluemont Tuttle Creek Blvd

CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Avenue
539-4281
ecm@ksu.edu
www.ksu.edu/ecm
David Jones, Pastor
Sunday
5:30 pm Table Fellowship
Monday
7 pm Prayer and Motion
9 pm Money Matters
Explore • Discover • Belong • Serve

Christian Science Society
Sunday 10:30 a.m.
Danforth Chapel
KSU Campus
Wed. 7:30 in Reading Room
Reading Room open Tues.-Thurs. 11-1
105 N. 4th St.

First Presbyterian Church
9:15 a.m. Worship Service
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Service
10:45 a.m. Children's Church
11:45 a.m. Contemporary Worship Service
Fellowship meal to follow service
Rev. Anne Scheiber, Assoc. Pastor
Rev. R.C. McConnell, Pastor
801 Leavenworth • 537-0518
www.firstpresmanhattan.com

Services & Events:
Sunday Morning Service @ 10:30 a.m.
College Ministry (Happy Hour)
Sunday Evening Service @ 7 p.m.
Free Meal @ 6 p.m.

Welcome to FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Saturday Service 5:30 p.m.
Sunday Worship 8:30 and 11 a.m.
Church School for all ages 9:45 a.m.
www.firstlutheranmanhattan.org
10th & Poyntz 785-537-8532

newhope CHURCH
Pursuing relationships that change the world
WORSHIP SERVICE 10 AM
Small groups for teens, women & married couples
College and Family Ministries
www.newhopeks.org
3905 Green Valley Rd.

Unitarian-Universalist Fellowship of Manhattan
481 Zeandale Road. (Where reason and intuition guide our personal journey)
Program Sunday at 10:45 a.m. Religious education classes for youth.
Child Care Provided.
A Welcoming Congregation.
Rev. Michael Nelson
For information call (785) 537-2349
www.uufm.net

Muslim Student Association (MSA)
785.776.1033

St. Isidore's Catholic Student Center
MASS SCHEDULE
Tuesday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.
Friday 12:10 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Sunday 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m.
Sun. 4:30 p.m., 6 p.m.
Father Keith Weber, Chaplain
711 Denison 539-7496

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

ECKANKAR:
The Religion of the Light and Sound of God
Everyone Invited
Worship Service:
Sunday, Sept. 10th
1 p.m. ECM Building
1021 Denison
www.eckankar.org
www.eckankar-ks.org

Grace Baptist Church
2901 Dickens - 2 blks. E. of Seth Child
◆ Sunday Worship ◆
8:00, 9:30, 11:00 a.m.
Collegiate Bible Hour Class 11:00 a.m.
Evening Service or Care Cells 6 p.m.
785-776-0424
www.gracebchurch.org

Trumpeters of God Ministries
P.O. Box 772, Manhattan, KS 66505-0772
Vision:
Gospel of Christ, Power of God, Salvation for Believers
Worship Service @ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
Sunday School: 9:30-10:15 a.m.
Sunday Service: 10:15-12:00 Noon
Good Morning Jesus @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Monday: 5:30-6:30 a.m.
Bible Study @ Danforth Chapel, KSU
Thursday: 7:00-8:30 p.m.
Prayer Vigil @ CrossRoads of ECM
1021 Denison Ave.
Friday: 10:00-12:00 Midnight
Monthly Holy Ghost Conference @ All Faiths Chapel, KSU
First Friday of every month @ 7:00-10:00 p.m.
Quarterly Fasting & Prayer Meeting
First Seven days of every quarter. Venue varies
Contact
Pastor Ebenezer Ogunyinka
Phone: 785-317-3103
Web page: www.ksu.edu/trumpeters
Email: trumpeters@ksu.edu

All Welcome to Worship!
Sunday Evening 6p.m. Danforth Chapel
Your Invited!
Tuesday 7-8pm
Bible Study @ Luther House
Good vs. Evil with the Chronicles of Narnia
Thursday 6pm
Meal and Conservation
Sunday 5pm
Spaghetti Meal @ Luther House
Worship 6pm with Holy Communion
Danforth Chapel
•On Campus•
Everyone is Welcome!
www.ksu.edu/lcm-elca
lcmelca@ksu.edu
Any Questions? 313-3895 or 539-4491
LUTHERAN CAMPUS MINISTRY
1745 Anderson
•SE Corner of Denison & Anderson•
ELCA

MANHATTAN MENNONITE CHURCH
1000 Fremont 539-4079
Worship: 10:45 SS: 9:30
Richard & Barbara Gehring, Pastors
K-State Student Group
www.manhattan.ks.us.mennonite.net
Potluck 1st and 3rd Sunday after worship

Peace Lutheran Church
P·E·A·C·E
Worship Sundays 8:30 and 11:00 Contemporary Service 5:00 p.m.
Pastor Michael Ide
2500 Kimball
539-7371
www.peace-to-you.org
With Christ . . . Gather . . . Grow and Go Forth!

You are welcome at...
First Assembly of God
REACHING THE COMMUNITY • TOUCHING THE WORLD
Weekly Services
Sunday
Traditional Service 8:00 am
Sunday School 9:30 am
Contemporary Service 10:45 am
Prayer Meeting 6:00 pm
Wednesday
Bible Study 7:00 pm
Youth Group (grades 7-12)
Royal Rangers (Boys Clubs)
Missionettes (Girls Clubs)
Chi Alpha Campus Ministries 7:00 pm (KSU Little Theater)
Gary Av Candlewood Dr. Seth Child Rd Kimball Av
Nursery Provided for All Services
Rev. Todd Weston, Pastor
2310 Candlewood Dr. Manhattan, KS 66503
(785) 537-7633 www.manhattanag.org

First United Methodist Church
612 Poyntz Ave
Manhattan, Ks 66502
785-776-8821
www.fumcmanhattan.com
www.ksu.edu/umcm
Traditional Worship:
Sun 8:30 & 11am
Sanctuary
Contemporary Worship:
Sun 8:45am - Harris Activity Center
Casual dress, free donuts
Sunday School - 9:45am
Communion Service
5:30 pm Wed

COLLEGE CONNECTION
Jammin' 4 Jesus
Tuesday 7:00 pm
at Manhattan Free Methodist Church
1231 Poyntz Ave,
Across From City Park
www.living4one.org
785-776-4029
Experience God's Presence

Did you sell more magazines than anyone else in your 6th grade class?
We'll give you more than a turn at the pencil machine...
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling magazines.
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL, FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

N R C R . Call 532- 5 0.

Play based on kindergarten experiences to open tonight

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Kindergarten – where children learn to count, finger paint and read. It also might be where children learn all they ever need to know.

The play "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten" will be performed at 8 p.m. tonight and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday at the Manhattan Arts Center. Additional performances will be November 16 through 19.

An after-glow party with childhood foods and classic movies will be provided after tonight's performance.

Tickets are $13 for adults, $11 for military, $10 for students and $6 for children. Student walk-ins can get in for $5 for Thursday and Sunday performances.

Tickets can be purchased at the arts center box office or online at www.manhattanarts.org.

The play draws from several works by Robert Fulghum, author of "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten."

Carolyn Mayo, the show's director, said Fulghum takes everything back to the most simple things people learn.

"He goes back to the fundamentals of us as children, and we were learning all these things for the first time," she said.

These transitions are mirrored in the play, Fulgham said, as the characters go through all aspects of life.

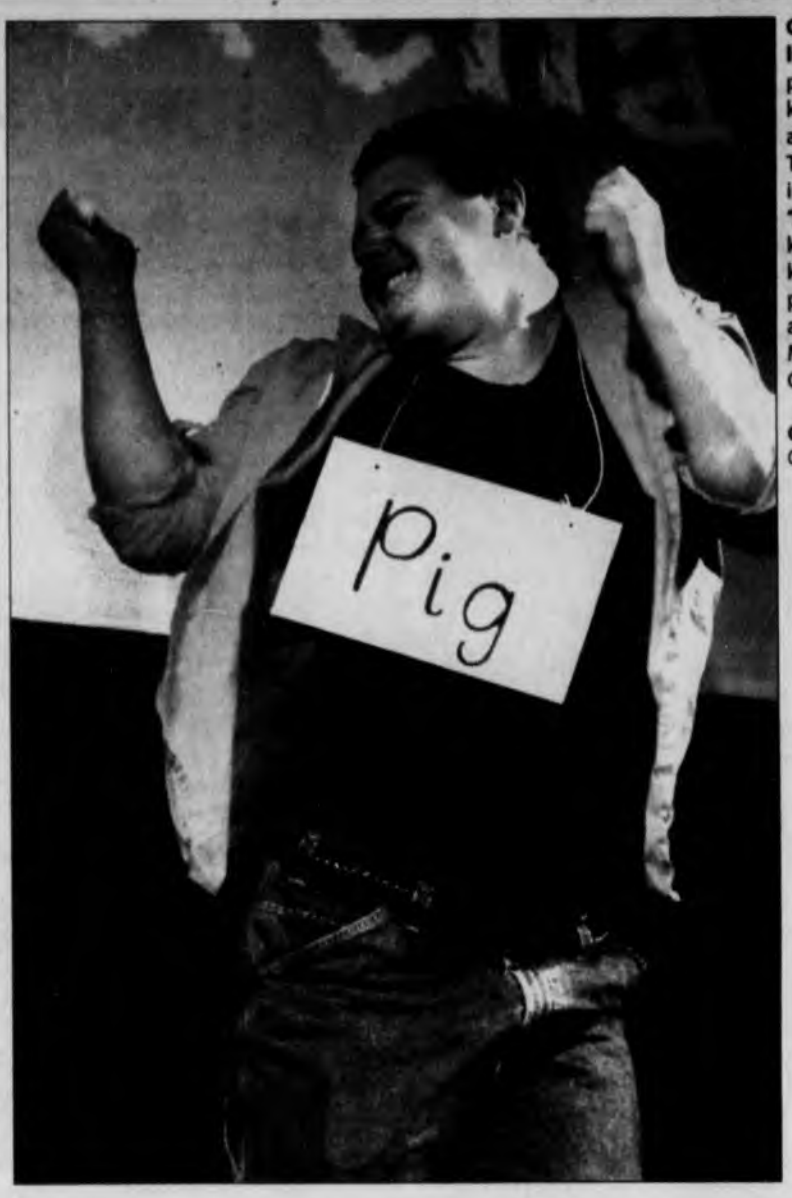
The play, originally written for five actors, will be performed by 12 people, Mayo said.

Mayo said she wanted to reflect a large age group, and the ages of actors ranges from early twenties to those in their seventies.

Mayo said one of the most exciting parts of working on the play has been capturing the creativity and vitality of people in their childhood years and throughout life.

Tess Purvis, program and marketing director for the arts center, said the play follows all aspects of life, intertwined with humor.

"It's one of those when you laugh and cry," she said.



The play has something for everyone, Purvis said, making it a good family-night outing.

"If you don't see yourself, you'll see someone else you know in the characters," she said.

Several families and groups of teachers have already purchased tickets, Purvis said, making the evening a strong family night.

Overall, Purvis said the play is a time for people to sit back, relax and laugh.

"It's just nice to have none of your worries and just sit there and enjoy for a couple of hours," she said.

Chris Davis, Hale library assistant, plays the part of a kindergarten student acting as a pig Thursday evening in the rehearsal for "All I really need to know I learned in kindergarten." The play opens tonight at 8 p.m. at the Manhattan Arts Center.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Doe's to offer live music weekly

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Doe's Eat Place now offers live music performed by Mikey Needleman, senior in social science. Needleman is scheduled to play from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. every Wednesday through December, except during Thanksgiving and winter breaks.

"We have always been fans of live music," said Tony Mallean, owner of Doe's. "Our place here is set up well to do something like that."

Mallean said he hopes the music and drink specials will attract more students to his restaurant.

"It's a promotion thing for us," Tyler Adcock, bartender at Doe's, said.

Adcock said Needleman was the first person he thought of when the idea for live music came up.

"The reason why we decided to have Mikey play is his acoustics are amazing and the way he works the crowd," Adcock said.

Adcock first heard Needleman play this summer at O'Malley's Alley in Aggieville.

"I played over the summer and all fall on the patio at O'Malley's," Needleman said. "I kind of developed a following there."

Adcock was one of the fans he acquired while playing at O'Malley's.

Needleman said he is looking forward to playing.

"I'm really excited because I think it's something different than the typical Aggieville bars," Needleman said. "The situation there is people come to the bars and there happens to be music. "At Doe's, I think more people will be coming to listen to live music."

Needleman said this gives him the opportunity to experiment with his music and play songs people have not heard before.

Needleman has been performing for more than six years and professionally for three.

"This is basically what is putting me through college," Needleman said. "I'm always looking for a new opportunity to play."

The audience at Doe's can expect a mix of alternative pop and acoustic rock. According to his Web site, Needleman sounds like Sister Hazel and Vertical Horizon meets 311 and Incubus.

Adcock said he has high hopes for Needleman's performances.

"I'm hoping everyone loves it," he said.

Tonight's Poetry on Poyntz open to seasoned, amateur poets

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Lovers of verse will gather at 7 tonight for Poetry on Poyntz.

The biennial event at Strecker-Nelson Gallery is an opportunity for amateur poets to take the microphone and read their works before an audience.

Jay Nelson, owner of the gallery, said most of those who read are in the creative writing program at K-State, but all are welcome.

"Some of them are seasoned poets, some are beginners, but it's a very animated evening," he said. "You might think of a poetry reading as dull, but these are poetry performances."

Nelson said the gallery has been host to Poetry on Poyntz for the past four years.

He said 50-60 people normally attend, so there is standing room only, and it usually lasts a couple of hours. The event is free, and light refreshments will be served.

One of the perennial favorites, Nelson said, is a satirical piece about James Brown, written and read by Matt Groneman, staff assistant in education and personal development. Nelson said Groneman is a former creative writing student, and is not sure he will perform the piece again this year.

The audience is supportive of all the poets, Nelson said.

"Yes, nobody makes fun of you," he said.

"There's everything from satire and kind of ribald humor – funny stuff, being loud – to quiet, thoughtful pieces."

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

First Amendment
U.S. CONSTITUTION

COOKIES ... and other tasty treats
Blue Valley Cookie Walk
Saturday, November 11
10 am - 2 pm
(or until they're gone)
Pick your favorites and pay by the pound.
For the best selection come early!
Blue Valley Memorial United Methodist Church
835 Church Ave., Manhattan
Call 539-8790 for info.
Directions: Just northeast of the Kimball and Turtle Creek Blvd. intersection. Turn east onto Northfield then an immediate right onto Church.

TALENT Competition
$Cash Prizes
1st Place: $500
2nd Place: $300
3rd Place: $200
4th Place: $100
sing...dance...play an instrument!
Open to ANYONE age 14-20. If you are interested, email roberthedley@hotmail.com for an application and mail it to PO Box 938, Manhattan, KS 6650.

ATTENTION SENIORS
Watch for the 2006 SENIOR SURVEY, via email. Complete the survey to be eligible for FABULOUS prizes, donated by Varney's Bookstore.
~ K-State Office of Assessment

This SPOT is reserved just for you.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
118 Kedzie 785-532-6560

321 Acres Wabaunsee Co.
AUCTION
Nov 16, 2006 7:00 PM
Com Ctr: 244 E 11th, Alma Ks
181 acres north of Alma Kansas on Hwy 99 of rolli grassland that will be offered choice of 4 tracts.
Also selling a 140 acre "Hunter's Paradise" just east Alma which is a tree filled tract of land on Mill Cree Could also be that secluded country estate you' dreamed of! See www.SimnittAuction.com
Darrell E. Simnitt, C.A.I. 785-231-0374 Countywide Realty, Inc.
Terry L. Simnitt, C.A.I. 785-231-7568 Griffith & Blair Realtors, Inc.
AUCTIONS BY:
SIMNITT BROS.
www.SimnittAuction.com
www.rtsimnitt.com

Think You can Do Better?
SPRING 2007
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Executive Position
Editor in chief
• Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 10
• Interviews will be conducted Nov. 15
News Staff Positions
• Managing Editors
• Photo Journalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
• News Editors
• Desk Editors
• Reporters
• Designers
• Copy Editors
Applications due 4 p.m. Nov. 17
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103

KSU Ebony Theatre presents: A 30th Anniversary Celebration
With Labor, Love and Laughter
November 8, 9, 10 and 11 - 8:00 P.M.
November 12 - 2:00 P.M.
The Purple Masque Theater
WARNING: contains adult language
Tickets: McCain Box Office
11:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M.
Phone: 532-6428
$8.00 General
$5.00 Student/Senior

Got a News Tip or Story Idea?
Call 532-6556 or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

Local charities request community support , help

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Charities that help many people in and around Manhattan are asking for community support to prepare for the holiday season.

THE FLINT HILLS BREADBASKET

The Flint Hills Breadbasket is holding Adopt a Family sign-ups for families that cannot provide gifts for their children at Christmas.

"Donors who adopt a family adopt the whole family," said Natascha Phillip, executive director of the Breadbasket. "Parents come in and fill out forms with the children's sizes. If they meet the income guidelines, the list is given to the donor, who does the shopping."

Families are not the only ones who benefit from this program.

Phillip said foster children also are included in the program.

"Last year Famous Dave's adopted 50 foster kids," she said.

Even college students on a tight budget can help the program, Phillip said.

"We have a Christmas store in the back of the Breadbasket building," she said. "This is for families that miss the initial sign-up times. They can come in and pick out gifts for their children in the Christmas store."

She said the gifts from the store come from people who want to donate, but can't donate for a whole family.

Anyone who would like to donate a gift can contact the Flint Hills Breadbasket at 537-0730.

THE RILEY COUNTY HUMANE SOCIETY

The Riley County Humane Society provides winter straw to be used for additional warmth in a pet's outdoor shelter during the cold season.

The straw is provided free of charge, but donations are greatly appreciated, according to a press release. The event has already happened; however, there are still opportunities to pick up straw.

"We still have straw available," said Courtney Smith, Humane Society director. "Just call or stop by the humane society to pick up straw for pets," Smith said.

THE SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army is providing two annual charities, the angel tree and the coat drive, this holiday season.

The Salvation Army provides coats for families and others in need each year.

"For one more week, you can drop off coats at local dry cleaning businesses," Robert Buttrey, Salvation Army representative, said.

He said Ideal Cleaners, 1206 Moro St.; Perfect Stitches, 219 S. Fourth St.; Stickels Cleaners, 714 N. 12th St.; and Dry Clean City, 427 E. Poyntz Ave., are all accepting donations.

"After this week, we will still be taking donations at our Manhattan location, 310 Poyntz Ave., between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.," Buttrey said. "Coats are always available."

The Salvation Army also is beginning angel tree registration. Parents who need help with holiday gifts can register Nov. 6-13 at 310 Poyntz Ave. Angel trees can be found at many businesses around Manhattan.

"People wishing to donate toys or items instead of picking an angel may drop off toys at our offices downtown right above the Salvation Army thrift store," Buttrey said. "We are also looking for volunteers for bell-ringing in front of businesses to collect donations for various programs throughout the year."

EBONY | Diversity issues underscore success

Continued from Page 1

the transition Williams undertook to play his roles. Though black, Williams still donned blackface makeup and lipstick to become the caricature he is remembered for.

"This makeup covers more than just the face, it's a mask."

But, Williams is only one of a litany of acts which includes slavery, slam poetry and Truth's famous monologue.

"I think it's a little different," Serge Tubene, senior in geography, said. "Through the act I can see the the pain. I can see the hatred, the struggle."

The second act was a menagerie of scenes, dealing with issues like AIDS, violence, stereotypes and war.

But there is no one moral to the story, only an exhibition of the various types and difficulties in black theater. Additionally, Feldman is attempting to bring to the spotlight a difficult time in Ebony Theatre's history.

"The reason why I make it a pretty strong statement, that black theater is alive, it is vital, it is important, it is just not funded," she said. "Ebony is going through a transition phase where the future of Ebony is still very much up in the air, we don't really know what's going to happen."

Problems stem from several sources – money, time and resources – but Feldman said the largest obstacle is the lack of attention, and even more challenging, a lack of black artists at K-State.

"It's black people. If you look around, K-State isn't the best at having retention rates," she said. "You only get a certain amount of minorities, and even fewer who are interested in theater."

Additionally, Feldman said a lack of coverage for an award-winning program creates disillusionment and a feeling that the university's priorities are off-kilter.

"Ebony Theatre was at the Kennedy Center in April," she said. "This is the biggest thing that's ever happened to this department, but because it's not Big 12 (Conference) sports it doesn't get coverage."

Even addressing the issues presents a logistical challenge. Feldman said drawing people's attention to issues affecting a theater group focused on racial works without presenting the dilemma simply as a race issue is a complex challenge.

"The reason why I care about Ebony so much is because Ebony's mission is to put controversial issues on stage," she said. "Because sometimes that's the easiest way to deal with things."

But through her efforts Feldman dislikes the use of the word education, preferring instead to provoke her audience into examining issues critically.

"I'm just trying to put it out there. I want people to think," she said. "I don't know if they'll learn anything, but as long as they're thinking about it, they'll come to their own conclusions."

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Advertise in the Kansas State Collegian's
Gameday
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 532-6560

Post 17 AMERICAN LEGION
WIN $$$
Progressive Bingo
Come play....
Sundays at 2:00
Wednesdays at 7:30
...and win BIG!
114 McCall Rd.

Basketball in Manhattan is here!
STOP
Join the fun & be responsible!
Basketball Shuttle
11-3
Jump on in Aggieville or at the Union
Football Shuttle
Starts at 5pm
Returning after the game
Varney's, the official outfitter of the K-State fan.

free.
something all college students like.
Take advantage of free yearbook pictures because this is your last chance.
Today:
Union Courtyard 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Vet Med 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
remember, you like free.
Your book. Your story. | royalpurple

THE BEST K-STATE FOOTBALL COVERAGE IN THE LAND... PICK ONE UP TODAY!
GAMEDAY2006

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call
785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

DOES YOUR student organization need a website? My web design class is looking for a project to complete. If you are interested, please contact Michael Barnes at barnesm@ksu.edu, or call 785-341-9483.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

LOST: LONGHAIR Jack Russell Terrier, lost on Bertrand. Brown patch over eye and scar under ear. Brown leather collar. Contact 785-230-9298.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed. Three-bedroom, two bath. Washer and dryer included. No smoking. No pets. Call Danielle at 785-806-4324.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share 3 bedroom apartment near campus. $250 per month plus 1/3 utility. Available January 1st. 785-537-1746.

FEMALE ROOMMATES wanted. Close to KSU, fenced yard, swimming pool, washer/ dryer. $400 a month. Utilities paid. 309-303-6021.

ROOMMATES WANTED: Five-bedroom house, January through May. Close to campus, washer/ dryer, $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 913-206-5289.

150 Sublease

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY one-bedroom apartment, 800 square feet, lease ends July 2007, off of Manhattan Avenue, $505 a month. 785-313-2751.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed January: One-bedroom in two- bedroom at 2215 College Avenue. Two full bathrooms. Furnished. $360. Call 785-479-1235.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. One block from campus. $300 per month plus one-half utilities. Call Alissa 913-593-5212.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for five-bedroom house. January through May. Close to campus. Washer/ dryer. $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 940-594-1481.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January in two-bedroom apartment one block from campus. Call 913-522-7094, ask for Megan.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted to share two-bedroom house. Pets ok. $350/ month plus one-half utilities. Call Ashley, 816-215-7474.

ONE TO Three subleasers needed spring 2007 for three-bedroom, one and one half bath apartment, one minute walk to campus. $780 per month or $260 per person plus electricity. Contact: dgray@ksu.edu or 913-481-1334.

SUBLEASER WANTED $325 per month, plus utilities. Across street from campus, off street parking. Available January 2007- August 2007. 763-439-8926.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed for January. Two-bedroom apartment close to Aggieville and campus. $400 plus utilities. 816-668-9223, 913-709-8615.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

Find a Job
Help Wanted Section

310 Help Wanted

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

AROY THAI CUISINE located at 3003 Anderson Avenue in Plaza West by Alco, looking for part-time or full-time workers in the positions of cooks and/or dishwashers. Apply in person at the restaurant or call Joe at 785-313-0922.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataen-trytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HELP NEEDED with fall yard clean up. Includes cleaning out flower beds and raking leaves. Work your schedule. Call 785-539-1086.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

INFANT CHILD CARE at Manhattan residence close to campus. Will work with YOUR schedule. Looking for responsible and dependable person who loves babies and needs a little extra cash. Need help approx. 10- 20 hours per week. Hourly rate negotiable. Call 630-430-3323/ email angelbb19@hotmail.com.

INTERNET MARKETING outdoor travel booking agency www.adventure-soutdoor.com. Help needed with search engine optimization. Experience helpful. 5 - 10 hours per week. Good pay. Contact Mitch Trumpp 913-449-5830.

310 Help Wanted

JOIN CAMP SOUTHWOODS AND HAVE THE BEST SUMMER OF YOUR LIFE! Southwoods is a co-ed residential camp in New York's Adirondack Mountains. Southwoods is seeking ENTHUSIATIC, ENERGETIC, AND FUN LOVING individuals to make an impact on a child's life. Positions/ internships are available in the areas of Counselors, Outdoor Adventure, Activity Coaches & Waterfront Staff. Benefits include salary, room & board, laundry, & the best summer of your life. For more information & to complete an application visit our website www.southwoods.com or please contact us, 1-888-449-3357.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791:

NEWSPAPER DISPATCHER The Manhattan Mercury is accepting applicaitons for the position of Newspaper Dispatcher. This is a part-time entry-level position. Shifts include weekdays 4:-30 p.m. to 7:30- 8:00 p.m. and Sunday 6:00 a.m. to 12 noon. Weekly hours and days scheduled vary. Successful applicants will possess a valid Kansas Drivers License and a dependable vehicle. Vehicle mileage is reimbursed. Apply at or send letter of application to: The Manhattan Mercury, 318 North 5th, Manhattan, Kansas. Manhattan Mercury is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.-ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

PERSONAL CARE Attendant needed in Manhattan to assist a person with a disability. For more information contact Christine at 1-800-569-5926.

PLAY DIRECTOR: Eisenhower Middle School. Salary $2,440.00. Responsibilities: Script selection, auditions, rehearsals, set design, and cast managment. Manage play budget and works with parents and school faculty and staff to secure props and other essential items for successful presentation of the production. Play performances will be mid-to late spring. Send resume and letter of qualifications to Manhattan-Ogden USD 383, 2031 Poyntz Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502. 785-587-2000. Equal Opportunity Employer.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

310 Help Wanted

RANDALL'S FORMAL Wear is looking for a part-time sales person with outstanding customer service skills. Flexible hours great starting wage and commission program. If you would like to join our team stop by and fill out an application at 100 Manhattan Town Center Mall. 785-770-9011.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

SERVERS WANTED. Manhattan Country Club is now hiring servers for all shifts. Apply in person 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

VICTORIA'S SECRET in Manhattan Town Center, now hiring part-time seasonal help. Must be available most weekends now through January 15 and the weeks prior to and of Thanksgiving and Christmas. To join our team apply in the store this week.

400 Open Market

410 Items for Sale

2004 CHEVY Cavalier, silver, 34,500 miles, $8500 under warranty, great student car. Sleeper sofa, $100, tan recliner, $50. Call 785-317-1985.

ADVERTISE.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS • 785.532.6555

445 Music Instruments

IBANEZ ACOUSTIC/ Electric for sale. Includes hardshell case and guitar humidifier. Only one year old, very nice! Call 316-518-2846.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

FOR SALE 2002 Saturn Vue. $8,300 or best offer. 75,000 miles. Runs great. CD, power windows, doors, locks, sunroof. 785-341-1830.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low Prices Guaranteed. Group discounts for 6+. Book 20 people, get 3 free trips! www.Spring-Breakdiscounts.com or 800-838-8202.

Got old stuff?
GET RID OF IT!
in the
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
785.532.6555

ADVERTISING Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 Internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M.
FOR MORE INFORMATION.

785-532-6555 Advertise here!

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

5		2	6
9			8			7
	8				3		6
	4				2			3
7			9				8
	5		1				4
		1			4			7
					7	5		9

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

Not just a voice in his head

"Stranger than Fiction" | PHOTOS COURTESY OF COLUMBIA PICTURES

IRS agent Harold Crick (Will Ferrell) chooses the guitar that suits him best with the help of a female voice narrating his every action, thought and feeling in alarmingly precise detail in the movie "Stranger than Fiction."

Ferrell rebounds from hit-and-miss performances, nails serious role

"Stranger than Fiction"
Grade: B+
Movie review by Brendan Praeger

At best, Will Ferrell's career could be described as hit-and-miss.

After some great cameos and minor roles in films like "Austin Powers," "Jay and Silent Bob Strike Back" and "Zoolander," he finally struck box office gold as a middle-aged frat boy in "Old School." It was his shining moment, and he's never topped it.

Sure, arguments could be made that "Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy" is Ferrell at his best.

It's definitely funny, but it's too random and insincere to shake off the impression that everyone was trying just a little too hard.

It was mostly downhill from there. "Kicking and Screaming," "Elf," "Bewitched," and a cameo in the vastly overrated "Wedding Crashers" had me worried that maybe Ferrell wasn't overused.

He was just over.

Luckily, I was wrong.

In "Stranger Than Fiction," Ferrell proves he has more up his sleeve than gimmicky characters who rely on their over-the-top personalities to entertain.

In fact, his character, Harold Crick, hardly has a personality at all.

Crick is an IRS agent who lives a dull existence.

He carries out an excruciatingly dull routine every morning, goes to his monotonous job every day and falls asleep alone at the same time every night.

It's sad but interesting to see Ferrell play a shy, subdued character.

Harold Crick doesn't drink, he can't talk to women, and he definitely won't be streaking across the quad anytime soon.

It's all highlighted by graphs and charts that pop up to explain his routine.

It's an interesting artistic device that could easily have been overused. Luckily the filmmakers showed some restraint.

Fortunately for the viewer, his dull life only lasts a few minutes into the film.

One morning he starts his usual routine with a small twist. He has a narrator – a narrator who speaks accurately and with a better vocabulary.

The narrator isn't a paranoid creation spawned from years of boredom. She's author Karen Eiffel (Emma Thompson). She's writing a book, and Crick is the main character.

At first it's awkward, but her narration doesn't provide anything more than a distraction to Crick's uneventful life. Then she reveals events set in motion that will lead to his death.

From this point on, the film moves in multiple directions, but director Marc Forster ("Finding Neverland," "Monster's Ball") carefully avoids this dangerous opportunity to confuse and alienate the audience.

Crick begins meeting with a literature professor (Dustin Hoffman) in an attempt to find the author of his increasingly morbid life story.

He struggles to avoid screwing up a promising but potentially illegal relationship with the target of an IRS audit (Maggie Gyllenhaal), and he tries to live a fuller life to deal with his impending death.

Queen Latifah shows up as an assistant to Karen Effiel as well.

With so many things going on, it would be easy to leave the viewer behind, but the director lets everything unfold with marvelous pacing.

There's rarely a dull moment, but it never feels like information is dumped out simply to keep the plot moving.

Even with a great supporting cast, the movie still rests on Ferrell's shoulders, and he carries everything beautifully.

His awkward social demeanor and impending confrontation with mortality make him more lovable and relatable than any character he's previously played.

Some people might see "Stranger Than Fiction" as a clever commentary on free will or destiny.

Dustin Hoffman even seems to play the same character he played in "I (heart) Huckabees," another existential comedy.

While these connections are understandable, it would be better to take this movie at face value.

It's not a masterpiece, but it is successful for a comedy with aspirations of emotional relevance.

It's smart, funny, and even the most jaded moviegoers should leave with a smile on their face.

When it comes to a couple hours of entertainment, is it really fair to ask for much more?

MAGGIE GYLLENHAAL

In the movie "Stranger than Fiction," Gyllenhaal plays Ana Pascal, Crick's (Will Ferrell) love interest. Gyllenhaal got her first big-time movie break as the lead in "Secretary," released in 2002, although she's been acting since 1992. She has been in 28 movies, including many independent films.

Facts About Maggie

- She earned a bachelor's degree in English from Columbia University in 1999.
- She studied briefly at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London.
- The first six movies she appeared in were directed by her father. They were "Waterland" (1992), "A Dangerous Woman" (1993), "Shattered Mind" (1996), "The Patron Saint of Liars" (1998), "Homegrown" (1998), and "Resurrection" (1999).
- She was born in New York City but grew up in Los Angeles, where she and her brother attended the prestigious Harvard-Westlake prep school.
- Her mother is a Golden Globe-winning, Oscar-nominated scriptwriter. Her father is an Emmy-nominated director, her grandmother is a doctor and her uncle is an acclaimed historian at Columbia, the college she attended.
- She ranked as No. 58 in FHM's "100 Sexiest Women in the World 2005" special supplement.
- She and brother, actor Jake Gyllenhaal, attended Camp Walt Whitman, an outdoors summer camp in Western New Hampshire.
- Maggie and her fiancé, Peter Sarsgaard, became the parents of a baby girl named Ramona on Oct. 3, 2006, in New York City.

Source: Internet Movie Database

Crick starts a promising but potentially illegal relationship with auditee Ana (Maggie Gyllenhaal).

MOVIE TIMES

- Times for today through Sunday.
- () denotes times playing Saturday and Sunday only.
- ★ New movies at Seth Childs Cinema this week.

"A Good Year" | Courtesy art

★ "A Good Year," PG-13, 118 min.
(1:20), 4:10, 7:10, 9:45

When investment expert Max Skinner (Russell Crowe) loses his job at a London financial firm, he moves to Provence to manage a small vineyard he inherited from his late uncle. However, shortly after his arrival a beautiful Californian appears on the scene, claiming the land is hers.

★ "Stranger than Fiction," PG-13, 113 min.
(1:25), 4:05, 7:15, 9:55

After ten years of painstaking work, novelist Karen Eiffel (Emma Thompson) is nearing completion on her latest, and potentially finest, book. Her only remaining challenge is to figure out how to kill off her main character, Harold Crick. Little does she know that Harold Crick (Will Ferrell) is inexplicably alive-and-well in the real world, and suddenly aware of her words.

"Borat: Cultural Learnings of America for Make Benefit Glorious Nation of Kazakhstan," R, 84 min.
(1:05, 3:05), 5:05, 7:20, 9:30

Kazakhstani TV personality Borat is dispatched to the United States to report on the "greatest country in the world." With a documentary crew in tow, Borat becomes more interested in locating and marrying Pamela Anderson than on his assignment.

"Flushed Away," PG, 85 min.
(1:00, 3:00), 5:00, 7:15, 9:20

The story of an uptown rat that gets flushed down the toilet from his penthouse apartment, ending in the sewers of London, where he has to learn a whole new and different way of life.

"The Santa Clause 3: The Escape Clause," G, 98 min.
(1:00, 3:10), 5:20, 7:35, 10:00

Santa (Tim Allen), aka Scott Calvin, is faced with double-duty: how to keep his new family happy, and how to stop Jack Frost (Martin Short) from taking over Christmas.

"Saw III," R, 107 min.
(1:30), 4:15, 7:00, 9:25

A doctor is kidnapped and taken to an abandoned warehouse where she meets Jigsaw (Tobin Bell), bedridden and on the verge of death. Racing against the ticking clock of Jigsaw's own heartbeat, Lynn and a man struggle to make it through each of their vicious tests, unaware that he has a much bigger plan for both of them.

"Flags of our Fathers," R, 132 min.
(1:15), 4:10, 7:05, 9:55

Clint Eastwood's adaptation of the non-fiction book "Flags of Our Fathers" concerns the lives of the men in the famous picture of soldiers raising the American flag over Iwo Jima during that historic WWII battle.

"The Prestige," PG-13, 130 min.
(1:10), 4:00, 7:05, 9:50

From the time they first met as young magicians on the rise, Robert Angier (Hugh Jackman) and Alfred Borden (Christian Bale) were competitors. However, their friendly competition evolves into a bitter rivalry making them fierce enemies-for-life and consequently jeopardizing the lives of everyone around them.

"Man of the Year," PG-13, 115 min.
7:10, 9:40

Acerbic performer Tom Dobbs (Robin Williams) has made his career out of skewering politicians and speaking the mind of the exasperated nation on his talk show. He cracks scathing jokes at a fractured system night after night. . . until he came up with a really funny idea: why not run for president himself?

"The Departed," R, 149 min.
(1:00), 4:00, 7:00, 10:00

Young undercover cop Billy Costigan (Leonardo DiCaprio) is assigned to infiltrate the mob syndicate run by gangland chief Costello (Jack Nicholson). His cover is jeapordized by hardened criminal Colin Sullivan (Matt Damon), who has infiltrated the police department as an informer for the syndicate.

"Open Season," PG, 86 min.
(1:05, 3:05), 5:05

In the tranquil mountain town of Timberline, Boog, (Martin Lawrence), a grizzly bear with no survival skills, enjoys an idyllic existence. He spends his days as the star of the town's nature show and his nights living a life of luxury in the garage of Park Ranger Beth (Debra Messing), who raised him since he was a cub.

Source: For movie times, www.carmike.com. For movie descriptions, www.aol.com. Call (785) 776-9886 for show times.

GAMEDAY
GUIDE
www.kstatecollegian.com | Friday, Nov. 10, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 60

FRIDAY NIGHT HEROES

High school football is more than just a game in the Lone Star State. It's a way of life for the athletes, fans

See story Page 4

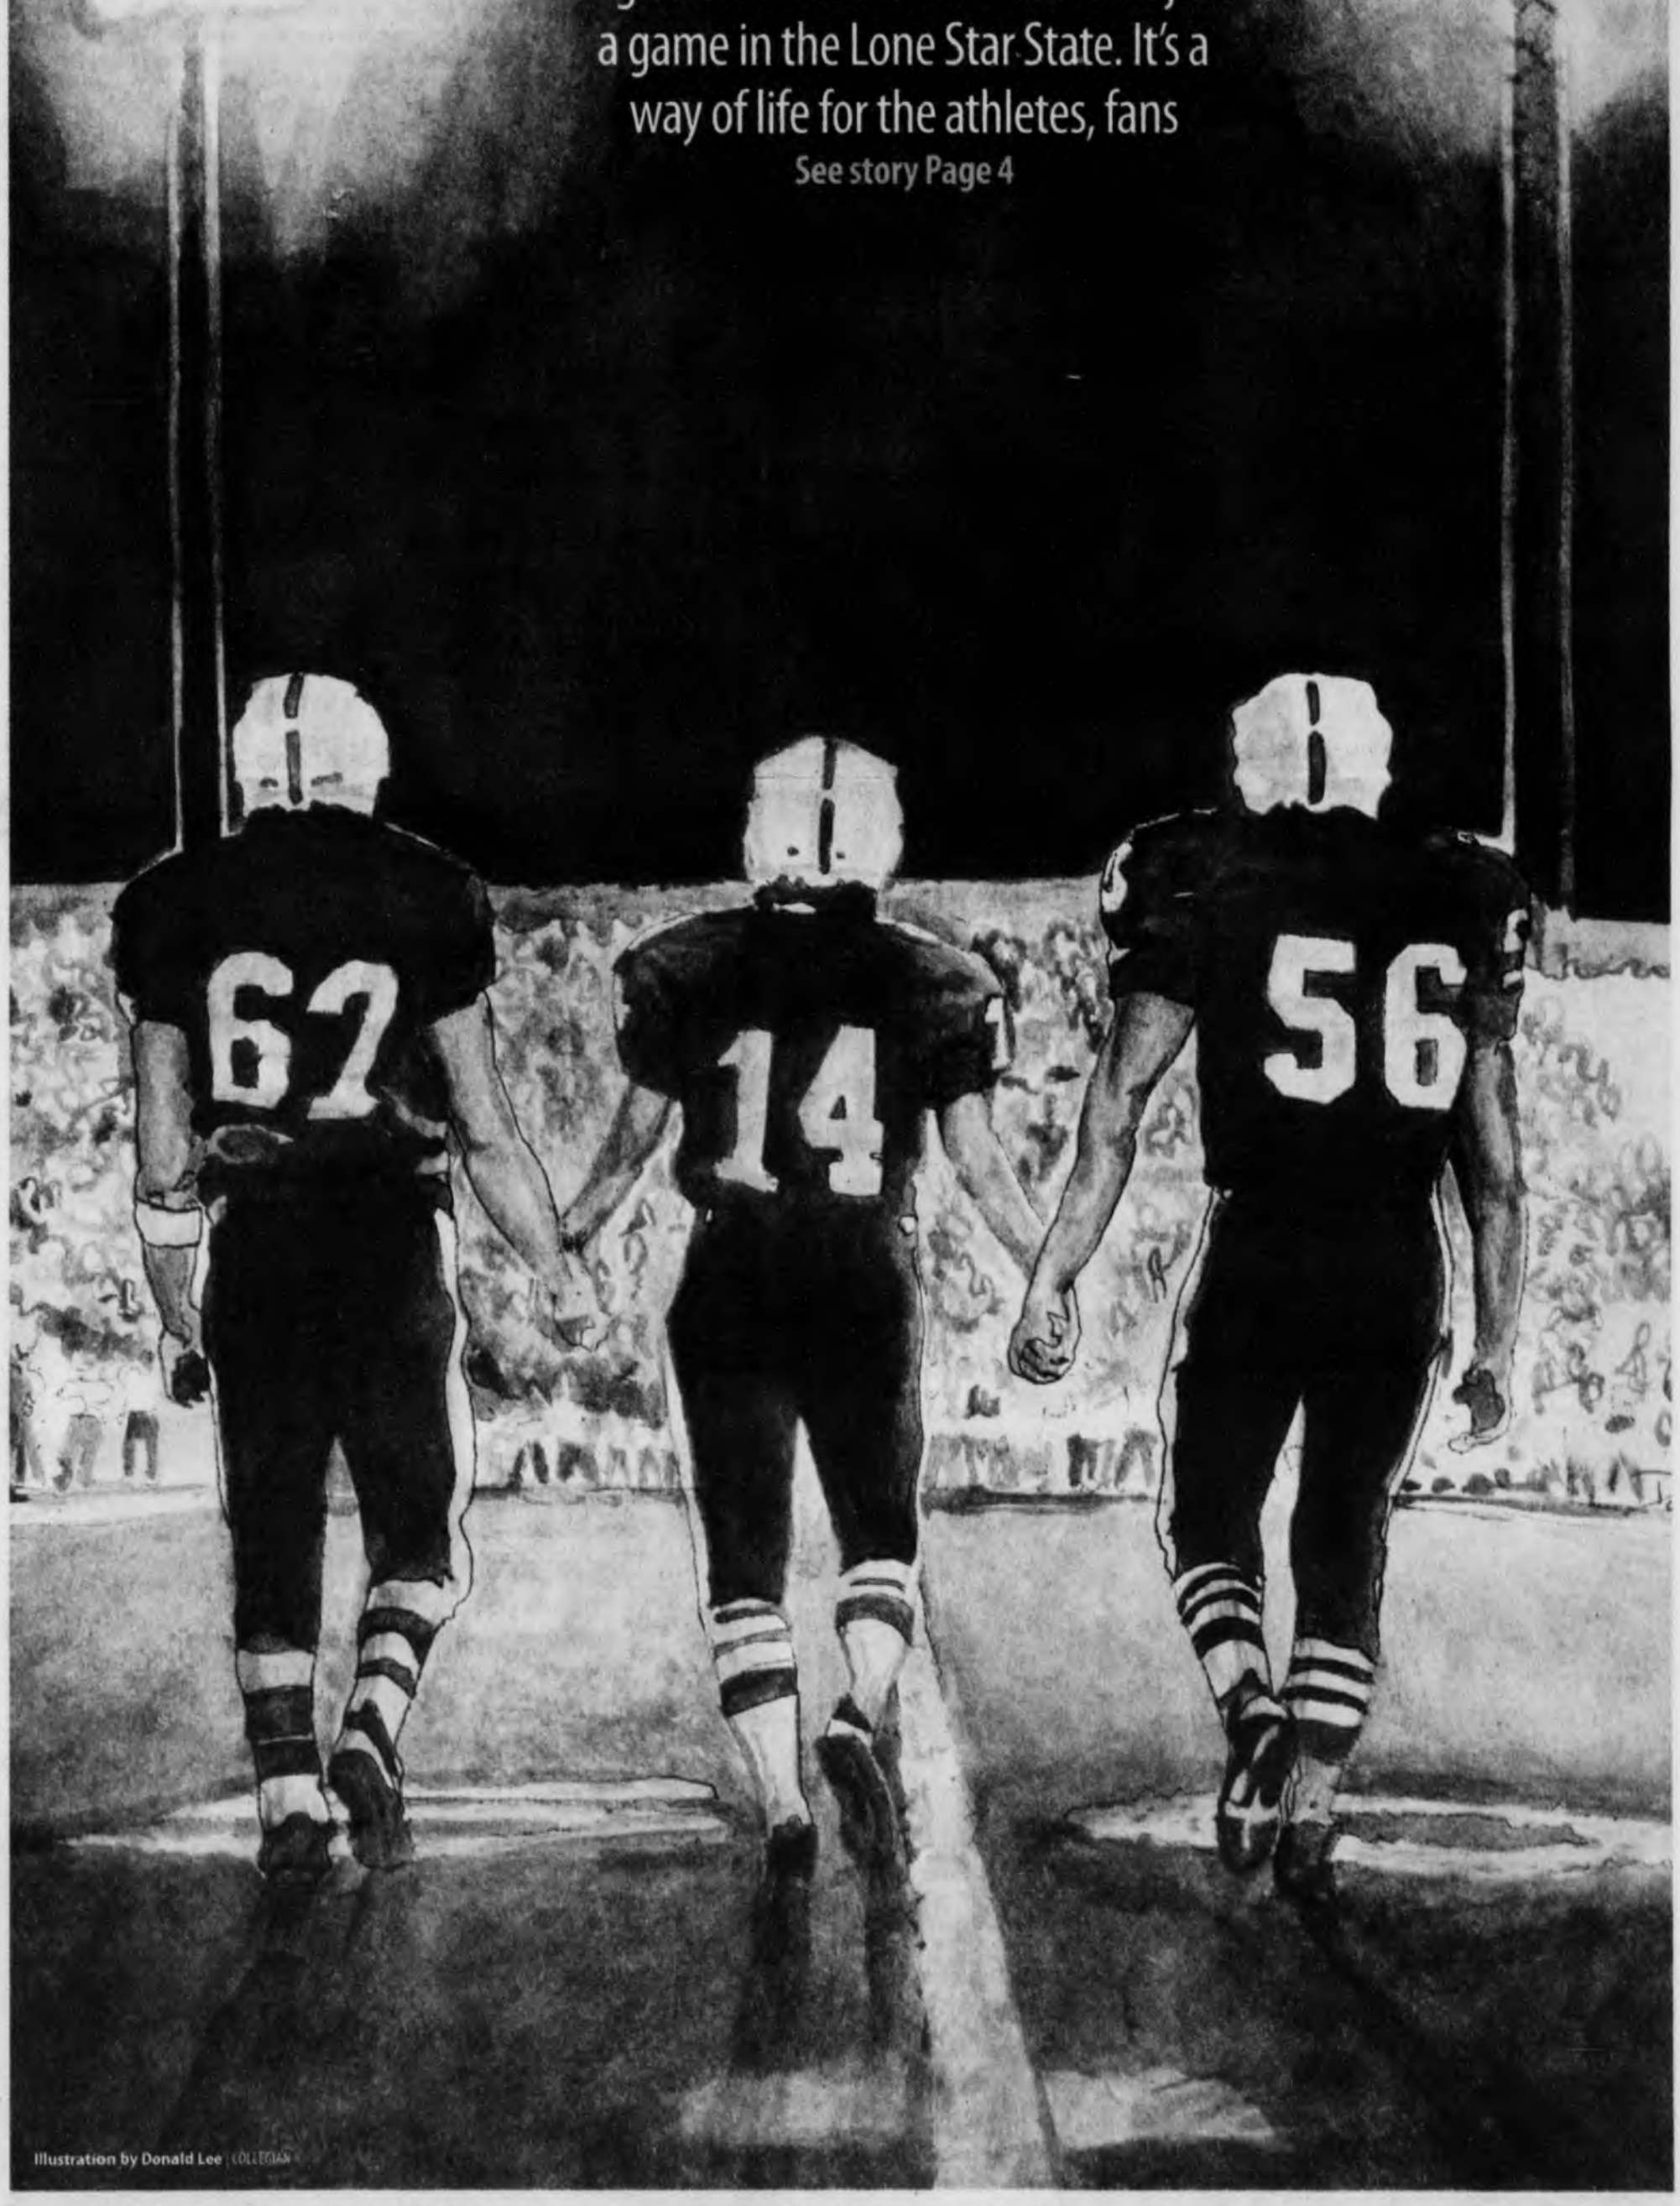

Illustration by Donald Lee | COLLEGIAN

Off the field Page 2 | Colt McCoy Page 3 | Senior send-off Page 5 | Mack Brown Page 6 | The bowl picture Page 8

Gameday forecast

Partly cloudy, morning showers
High: 50 Low: 28

K-State vs. No. 4 Texas
7 p.m. Saturday
History: Texas leads the series 5-3
TV/Radio: ABC/K-State Sports Network

Player to watch

Texas has the second best rushing defense in the nation, allowing less than 45 yards rushing per game. That means K-State will need quarterback Josh Freeman to lead the offense if K-State has any shot of knocking off the highly-ranked Longhorns.

Off the Field with Logan Robinson

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Logan Robinson is a large man. At 6-foot-8, 335 pounds, he might be an intimidating force on the field, but he is far from that off the field. The Second Team All Academic Big 12 selection started his first game at right guard against Colorado. The junior from Agra, Kan., recently answered questions ranging from who would play him in a movie about his life to his favorite music to listen before a game.

Q. Where is Agra (Kan.), and explain it in a few sentences.

A. It's on Highway 36. If you know where Philipsburg and Smith Center, Kan. are, it is right between the two. If you don't know that, it is an hour and a half north of Hays. It has one paved road, about four stops signs and the school is the center of everything for them. That's about it. Our gas station closed and our grocery store was a gas station.

Q. Is it true you were forced not to practice with the rest of your team in high school?

A. My junior year, the first day of padded practice we were doing a tackling drill and I broke a player's leg, so my coach told me I was not allowed to do that for the rest of the season. Whenever we were running plays, the person I was supposed to block had to hold an arm shield or a dummy and I would go up and hit the dummy instead of them. I wasn't allowed to do tackling drills or things like that for fear of hurting my other teammates.

Q. What was it like coming from eight-man football straight to Big 12 caliber play?

A. It was extremely difficult, as far as the rules of the game. I didn't have very good knowledge of the game, and I was way behind on fundamentals. It was a huge, huge difference, which is probably why I am just getting my shot in the starting lineup now.

Q. Who would play you in a movie about your life?

A. First of all, no would make a movie about me. Everyone would leave in the first five minutes. If I had to choose, I'm a screwball, so I would have to probably say Vince Vaughn or someone like that.

Q. Do you like to listen to any music before a game to get ready?

A. I definitely like to listen to music before the game. I'm kind of weird. I have a playlist on my on my iPod that's a compilation of movie music like "Gladiator" and "Pirates of the Caribbean."

K-State vs. Texas

OFFENSE

☐ The K-State offense erupted last week against one of the best defenses in the Big 12. Quarterback Josh Freeman was 22-of-26 passing for 251 yards. Add to that 188 yards on the ground and it seems the Wildcat offense could finally be putting it all together. If that's the case, the Longhorns might be in for more than they expected.

☑ The Texas offense might be the biggest test K-State has had all season. Quarterback Colt McCoy has been extremely efficient, throwing 27 touchdowns compared to only four interceptions. If the Wildcat defense wants to keep Texas from running up the score it will have to find a way to disrupt McCoy.

DEFENSE

☐ The Wildcat defense can take away a lot of positives from last week's game in Boulder, such as shutting out the Buffaloes for the entire first half. Unfortunately, there were some negatives as well. Colorado ran all over the K-State defense in the second half and added some tension to what should have been a comfortable win. The defense will have to be more consistent this week.

☑ Texas is second to none in the Big 12 when it comes to stopping the run. The Longhorns have held the opposition to a mere 41.2 rushing yards per game and have allowed just three rushing touchdowns all season. Texas' pass defense, however, is quite the opposite, allowing more than 250 passing yards per game. K-State will look to take full advantage of this on Saturday.

SPECIAL TEAMS

☑ The only place K-State has an advantage this week is in the special teams. With solid kicking and punting games and speedy, experienced return men, the Wildcats always have a chance to get points from unexpected places. If the rest of the team proves it can hang with Texas, the Wildcat special teams could be enough to give K-State the slight advantage and the upset.

☐ Special teams is the only area Texas has consistently struggled with this season. The Longhorns have made just one field goal from beyond 30 yards despite having four attempts from that range. Additionally, the Texas return men have yet to return a kickoff for a touchdown. Fortunately, the Longhorns' special teams haven't cost them a game yet, but it might just be a matter of time.

PREDICTION

Were it not for the Wildcats' offensive explosion last week, it would be easy to write them off against Texas this Saturday. While chances of an upset are still slim for K-State, the players and coaches have shown they are capable of putting it all together, and should be confident in their abilities. The talent of Texas is not to be underestimated, however, and it will take a near perfect game for the Wildcats to play spoiler to the Longhorns' BCS bid.

Texas 35, K-State 21

2003 Toyota Corolla
4 Cyl., Auto Air
$6,995

1999 Jeep Grand Cherokee
6 cyl. Auto. Leather
$7,495

2002 Isuzu Rodeo LS
4 Wheel Drive
$7,995

2001 Escort
4 cyl. Auto Loaded
$4,995

'02 Saturn L200
4 Dr. Auto, 74K $6,995
'00 Ford Ranger
4 Cyl. 5 Spd $4,795
'00 Dodge Grand Caravan Sport
Quad Captains, Loaded $4,995
'99 Ford HiTop Conversion
Great Tailgate Vehicle $4,995
'97 Bonneville SS EI
4 Dr., Leather, Loaded $3,995
'98 Toyota Sienna
V6, Auto $6,495
'99 Jeep Wrangler
2 in. lift, 4cyl, 5 Spd $9,495
'97 Chrysler LHS
V-6, Leather $2,995

Southside Auto Sales
425 Yuma, Manhattan, KS
785-776-2170 800-837-2170

Purple Pig
Watch Party
Don't have a ticket? Come watch
KSU vs. Texas
@ 7:00 pm

Customized coverage. Quick claims response.
Auto Insurance
Call today for a free, no-obligation quote.

Chan Stowell
FARM BUREAU FINANCIAL SERVICES
2630 Farm Bureau Rd
Manhattan
(785)537-0339
Auto Home Life College Retirement

Collegian xplore it!
kstatecollegian.com

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Friday Specials
$2.50 Pounders
$4.00 Absolute Bombs
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$5.50 Booze Burger
3 Projection Screens
$3.00 Miller Lite & Bud Light Pounders on Game Day!
Mon - Tues 4pm - 2am
Wed - Sun 11:30am - 2am
Saturday Specials
$4.25 Sobe Bombs
$4.50 Big Boys
$6.50 Chili Cheese Burger
16 Flat Screens
- ON GAMEDAY -
Patio open @ 3:00 pm
GO CATS!
Sunday Specials
$2.50 Drinks, Amp Bombs
$2.00 Tall Boys & Shots
$3.00 Big Boys
$5.50 Guac Burger
1/2 Price Appetizers
100 Free T-Shirts
NFL Ticket - Catch all your favorite games!

The real McCoy

Texas' freshman quarterback Colt McCoy has helped Longhorn fans move on after losing Vince Young

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It was one of the most memorable performances in recent college football history. Vince Young – the quarterback for the Texas Longhorns last season – almost single-handedly led his team to a 41-38 victory over Southern California in the national championship, passing for 267 yards and rushing for 200 yards and three touchdowns.

Young was an instant college football icon. The image of him crossing the goal line for the winning touchdown with 19 seconds remaining has been played on countless highlight reels since that Jan. 4 game.

It was widely believed that Young – then a junior – would stick around for his senior year. However, after receiving instant star status as a result of his Rose Bowl performance, he opted to take the money and bolt for the NFL.

"(Texas coach) Mack Brown will tell you that even after the Rose Bowl, he thought Vince was coming back," said Joseph Duarte, a Texas beat writer for the Houston Chronicle. "He had no idea. They had to make a lot of adjustments on the fly when Vince left. He kind of left them in a bad situation."

Enter Colt McCoy, a small-town kid from west Texas who redshirted last year and learned from Young.

McCoy arrived at Texas in 2005 after an outstanding high school career in Tuscola, Texas – a town of about 700 people. Coached by his father, Brad McCoy, at Class 2A Jim Ned High School, McCoy had a 34-2 record as a quarterback.

He compiled 9,344 yards and 116 touchdowns in his career and ranks as the all-time leading passer in Texas 2A history. Perhaps all of his accomplishments were overshadowed by what he did off the field. McCoy had a 98.2 GPA on a 100-point scale and – among other things – spent three days a week for two years tutoring underprivileged children.

Whatever McCoy accomplished in high school, there were still a lot of doubts that his small-town success would transfer over to big-time college football.

"We knew Colt had a lot of ability, we knew he would be a good player, but we just didn't know when," Brown said. "He's handled all the attention so well – and usually freshman quarterbacks have a setback somewhere – but he's keeping his head in the game and deflecting a lot of the attention to his teammates."

Vince Young left a hole to fill, but whoever took over for him was set up for success with so many returning starters from the national championship squad. McCoy entered the season in a tight race with another Texas high school stud – true freshman Jevan Snead.

McCoy earned the starting job and has never looked back. He's led his team to a 9-1 record – the only loss being to No. 1 Ohio State – throwing for 27 touchdowns and only four interceptions. It's almost inevitable that he'll break the record for touchdown passes by a freshman – Nevada's David Neill set the record with 29 in 1998.

K-State coach Ron Prince has seen his share of good quarterbacks, and he compared McCoy to one of today's best – three-time Super Bowl champion Tom Brady.

"I try not to make outlandish statements, but I see a lot of the same things in McCoy that I see in Tom Brady," Prince said. "He is very poised, very calm. Everybody else seems to be comfortable in this spread offense, and he has shown to be nothing less than spectacular."

Probably the greatest sign of McCoy's poise and maturity took place in the Longhorns' game at Texas Tech on Oct. 28. Texas trailed the Red Raiders 21-0 after the first quarter, but the team didn't panic. McCoy calmly led Texas back to a 35-31 victory, throwing for 256 yards and four touchdowns.

"We decided and told him we were going to trust him and turn him loose," Brown said. "Now we're throwing the ball nearly 30 times a game, so we're giving him more opportunities."

McCoy's production so far this season has been so good he's now being mentioned in the race for the Heisman trophy. At the beginning of the season, that might have seemed absurd, but his statistics are comparable to the rest of the Heisman frontrunners.

"I'd put his numbers up against some of the other candidates any day," Duarte said.

"Why not? I think this kid at the very least deserves a trip to New York among the finalists. What a great story that would be – there'd probably be more people on his hotel floor than there were in his hometown."

McCoy's tactics are a little out of the ordinary. He begins every game by asking everyone in the huddle who stole his Snickers, just to get a laugh out of his teammates. His runs, however awkward they might look, almost always get enough yardage for the first down.

McCoy is no Vince Young. Word around Texas is there will never be another Vince Young. But McCoy is doing as good a job as anyone could in Young's footsteps, and he's won over his teammates in the process.

"They like him, they believe in him, and they follow him," Duarte said. "They would take a bullet for Vince Young, and now they'll take a bullet for him."

Colt for Heisman?

Colt McCoy is just now gaining consideration for the Heisman trophy. A freshman has never won the trophy, but McCoy's statistics so far this season are comparable to the other quarterback candidates.

- Troy Smith - 158-of-237 (66.7 percent), 2,006 yards, 22 TD, 3 INT, 165.9 rating, 206 yards rushing, 1 TD, 10-0 record
- Brady Quinn - 216-of-338 (63.9 percent), 2,579 yards, 25 TD, 4 INT, 150.0 rating, -37 yards rushing, 2 TD, 8-1 record
- Colt McCoy - 170-of-246 (69.1 percent), 2,051 yards, 27 TD, 4 INT, 172.1 rating, 180 yards rushing, 1 TD, 9-1 record

Photo Illustration by Anthony Mendoza | COLLEGIAN

a Cut Above SALON
785.537.3200
walk-ins welcome!
1800 Claflin Road • Suite 110 • Manhattan, Kansas 66502

Celebrations of the Heart
K-State Trivia
Where was Coach Prince born?
How many Bowl games has K-State played in?
Go On-Line For a Once In a Lifetime Opportunity!
find the answers at www.shopcelebrationsoftheheart.com

Good Luck Wildcats from
Car Clinic Inc.
83 Combined Years of Experience
"We Care About You AND Your Car"
M-F 7:30 - 5:30
VISA MasterCard Discover AAA Approved Auto Repair NAPA ASE
785-539-1040

CASH FOR THE GAME?
Pawn Loans • Payday Loans
Also a wide selection of:
• Guns • Music Equipment
• Used Games • Electronics
AMERICAN CASH EXCHANGE
CASH ADVANCE & PAWN LOANS
501A Fort Riley Blvd.
785-537-1803

Beat Texas!
Do it right for the last game of the year!
Come see us for all your adult beverage needs this Saturday.
Candlewood Wine, Spirits & Beer Retail Liquor
785-539-6533 3256 Kimball Ave.

GO K-STATE BEAT TEXAS
Pizza Hut

ALORICA®
The Power Behind Service
Flint Hills Area Employer
!!NOW HIRING!!
CUSTOMER SERVICE AGENTS FOR cingular WIRELESS
$ COMPETITIVE WAGES WITH PAID TRAINING
$ PAID VACATIONS, HOLIDAYS, SICK DAYS
$ STUDENT/FAMILY FLEXIBLE SCHEDULES
$ FAST, FUN, FRIENDLY ATMOSPHERE
$ ADVANCEMENT OPPORTUNITIES
$ TUITION REIMBURSEMENT
$ EXCELLENT BENEFITS
APPLY AT:
5970 SYKES BLVD.
MANHATTAN, KS 66503
IN THE TECH PARK NEXT TO THE MANHATTAN REGIONAL AIRPORT
ONLINE: WWW.ALORICA.COM/CAREERS
OR CALL 785 564-4400
YOU MAY ALSO APPLY AT: Manhattan Workforce Center

Free Side Order of Chez Breadstix With Purchase of Any Large Specialty Pizza
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
• Not good with any other special offer • Offer good only on Pan, Thin, or Handtossed Pizza Crusts • 1/20 cent cash redemption value • Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. 8/2006 • Expires: Nov. 30, 2006

$10.99 "Purple Pride Special"
1-Topping Large Big New Yorker Pizza, Side Order of Breadstix, 2-Liter of Soda
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
• Not good with any other special offer • 2-12oz refillable drinks substituted for 2-liter on dine-in orders • 1/20 cent cash redemption value • Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. 8/2006 • Expires: Nov. 30, 2006

Large Pizza For the Price of a Medium Pizza
Aggieville "World's Oldest Pizza Hut" 1121 Moro 539-7666
Westloop 2931 Claflin 539-7447
3rd & Moro 231 Moro 776-4334
• Not good with any other special offer • 1/20th cent cash redemption value • Pizza Huts of Manhattan, Inc. 8/2006 • Expires: Nov. 30, 2006

Texas obsession

Everything is, 'bigger in Texas,' but nothing is bigger in the state than high school football

Football is more than just a game in Texas. It's a way of life.

With so much emphasis put on the athletes, it's no surprise numerous football-themed films take place in the Lone Star State.

Here are a few of the best:

1. "Friday Night Lights," (2004)

Based on the book by H.G. Bissinger, "Friday Night Lights" portrays the season of the 1988 Permian High School football team in Odessa, Texas. When the team loses its star tailback in the first game of the season, hopes seem dashed, and the community lets coach Gaines (Billy Bob Thornton) know in many not-so-subtle ways that nothing short of a state championship is a failure.

2. "North Dallas Forty," (1979)

"North Dallas Forty" is the story of a 1970s era professional football team based in Dallas, which closely resembles the Dallas Cowboys. Nick Nolte plays the aging wide receiver, Phillip Elliott, who is struggling to stay competitive and relies heavily on the use of painkillers. Backed up by quarterback Seth Maxwell, both players give insight into the drug, sex, and alcohol fueled party atmosphere of teams of this era.

3. "Man of the House," (2005)

Texas Ranger Roland Sharp (Tommy Lee Jones) is assigned to protect the only witnesses to the murder of a key figure in the prosecution of a drug kingpin — a group of Texas cheerleaders. Sharp must now go undercover as an assistant cheerleading coach and move in with the young women. It is the first movie to have the permission from the University to use well-known UT symbols.

4. "Varsity Blues," (1999)

In his 35th year as head coach, Bud Kilmer (Jon Voight) is trying to lead his West Canaan Coyotes to their 23rd division title. When star quarterback Lance Harbor (Paul Walker) suffers an injury, the team is forced to regroup under the questionable leadership of John Moxon (James Van Der Beek), a second-string quarterback with a less serious approach to the game.

5. "Necessary Roughness," (1991)

After a few NCAA sanctions, the Texas State University Fightin' Armadillos recruit football players from their actual student body, with no scholarships to help. Using a 34 year old quarterback the team finds their way into a game against their top-ranked rivals: the Texas Colts. I haven't watched this one since grade school, but Kathy Ireland was pretty hot in 1991, so it's probably a safe bet for male football fans.

— Compiled by Brendan Praeger

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

On Friday nights in the fall in Texas, there's only one thing to do.

It doesn't matter where you are. Whether it's a small town in west Texas of about 500 or a booming metropolis with 4.5 million people, high school football is on the mind of many Texans on Friday nights.

According to TexasHSFootball.com, as many as one in 15 Texas residents are attending, playing, coaching or taking part in activities at a high school football game. In rural areas, this number is much greater.

Every year the University of Texas recruits almost all of its players from within the state – a statement that the quality of football there is top-notch. In fact, 107 of the 118 players on the Longhorns' roster are from Texas, leading some to believe Texas coach Mack Brown has somewhat of an advantage.

Remember former Longhorn quarterback/current NFL star Vince Young? He was a Houston native. Once he was gone, Brown replaced him with another Texas high school stud – Colt McCoy from tiny Tuscola, Texas.

"Mack Brown was called 'Coach February' before the Longhorns won the national championship (last season)," said John McClain, a sports columnist for the Houston Chronicle. "In other words, he was an outstanding recruiter who couldn't win the big game. Then he did. We've said for years that if players from Texas stayed in Texas, our top college programs would all be ranked in the top 10. One reason Bill Snyder was able to turn around the K-State program was his ability to recruit in Texas."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Just how crazy is high school football in Texas? Consider this: at Carroll High School in Southlake, Texas, tickets are sold out for the next 20 years. Part of that is probably because Carroll has won three of the last four Class 5A State Championships.

Mary Conley, owner and operator of "The Barber Shop" in Odessa, Texas, has a different perspective on football in her town.

Conley's kids played football in Odessa almost 30 years ago, but she still follows the local teams.

"It really is pretty intense," Conley said. "This last Friday, Odessa High played Permian, so pretty much everybody was going. Everybody in town was there. The whole town pretty much shuts down."

Odessa is where the 2004 movie "Friday Night Lights" took place. The movie focused on Odessa-Permian High School, and Conley said the movie was quite accurate, except for a few things.

"When they took that boy to the hospital in Midland, they said it was the best hospital around," she said. "Everybody here laughed about that, but that's just little stuff."

"Friday Night Lights" was just one of the many movies and television shows that have been produced about Texas high school football, and most of them are pretty inaccurate, McClain said.

"'Varsity Blues' was so stereotypical it was laughable," he said. "A fat Billy Bob type, women with overblown accents. Usually, movies about football in Texas are made by Hollywood people who aren't from Texas and haven't been to a football game in this state."

At "The Barber Shop," high school football usually is the topic of discussion, especially on Fridays. After the games, the players typically come in every Saturday to get a haircut.

"They're usually still really pumped up," Conley said.

K-State defensive tackle Quintin Echols is one of many players on the Wildcats' roster who is familiar with Texas high school football. A few years ago, Echols played at O.D. Wyatt High School in Fort Worth, Texas.

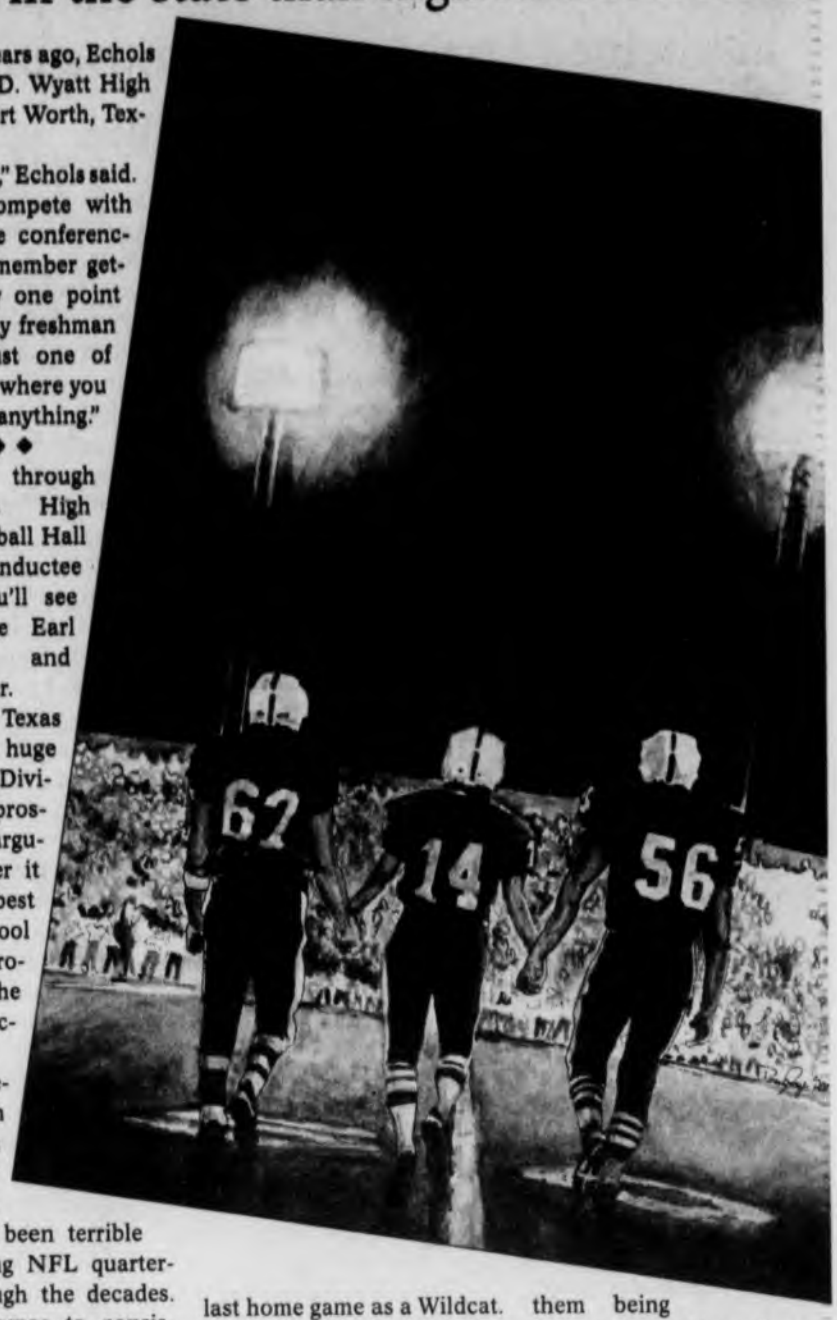
"It's crazy," Echols said. "It could compete with some college conferences. I still remember getting beat by one point by a team my freshman year. It's just one of those things where you don't forget anything."

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

Browse through the Texas High School Football Hall of Fame inductee list and you'll see legends like Earl Campbell and Doak Walker.

Although Texas produces a huge amount of Division-IA prospects, it is arguable whether it houses the best high school football programs in the nation, McClain said.

"It depends on what you base it on," he said. "Texas has been terrible at producing NFL quarterbacks through the decades. When it comes to consistently producing big-time NFL players, I imagine Florida and California have been better."



Texas might not have the best NFL prospects, but there's no doubt among Texas natives that football is king in the state.

"Friday night football is a way of life in Texas," McClain said. "Friday night heroes are such a big part of our culture because we're a football-mad state. We're not necessarily the best in the country at playing high school football, but we know there's no state more passionate about it."

Echols knows Saturday's game against Texas will be a special one for him.

As a senior, it will be his last home game as a Wildcat. Add to it that he's playing against some old high school enemies, and Echols said he'll be more than fired up in time for kickoff.

"It's bragging rights," he said. "Being from Texas and them being the national champions, it just psyches me up a lot. I have friends that play at Texas, and winning this game could mean, 'Hey, you beat us in high school, but we're bragging now.'"

discover
[gopowercat.com]
beLoud, bePROud, bePurple

Candlewood Shopping Center 785.776.8830
3204 Kimball Avenue
Studio 32 for Hair
Call for an appointment with
Allysa, Connie, Kelly, Tina, or Verna Lee

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

PAT'S PAWN & GUN SHOP, INC.
WE BUY, SELL, AND TRADE
GUNS
SMITH & WESSON
HANDGUNS • RIFLES
COLT • RUGER
SHOTGUNS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.- 6 p.m.
SAT 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
506 Riley St • Ogden
539-0151

Sick 'em, CATS!
$5 OFF for New Clients
607 N. 11TH • AGGIEVILLE • 565-0612
BARK AVENUE CANINE DESIGNS

Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

Anderson Village • 1441 Anderson
Manhattan, KS 66502
EYECARE ASSOCIATES OF MANHATTAN, PA
Dr. Bullock
Dr. Stanley
Doctors of Optometry
• TRICARE & Most Insurances Accepted
• Convenient Appointment Times Available
• In-Office Eyewear Gallery
(785) 776-9461 • 1-800-432-0036
98% Of Contact Lenses Fit Same Day

Pepsi 12-packs $3.99
Natty Light 30-packs $12.79
SHORT STOP
2010 Tuttle Creek Blvd

LONGHORNS SALOON
1115 Moro 776-8770
FRIDAY & SATURDAY
$2.50 MILLER LITE POUNDERS
FRIDAY, NOV 18
JACKSON TAYLOR BAND
$10 • On Sale Now

Diles living up to status as No. 1 Spring Game pick

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Zach Diles has started all year for K-State and ranks second on the team in tackles with 75 and second in sacks with three. Diles did not start a game in 2005 but still ranked fourth on the team in tackles with four.

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It didn't take long for first-year defensive coordinator Raheem Morris to figure out who would be playing middle linebacker for K-State.

He knew shortly into spring practices that senior Zach Diles had all the necessary physical and mental abilities to play in the Cover 2 defense. Morris showed how much he valued Diles by taking him with the first overall pick in the 2006 Purple-White Spring Game Draft.

"Raheem jumped on the Zach Diles membership committee right away," coach Ron Prince said. "He was a big fan as soon as he got here. He said, 'He (Diles) is going to be our mike (middle) linebacker.'"

Diles has started all 10 games for K-State. He ranks second on the team in tackles with 75 and second on the team in sacks with three.

Prince said one of the most important jobs of the middle linebacker is to be the defensive signal caller. Diles relays the play calls from the K-State sideline to his teammates and then makes sure they are all in the right position.

"They trust me, and I trust them," Diles said. "It's a good relationship out there.

"We all have fun with each other, and I think I've taken a pretty big leadership role."

But despite his role on the team now, Diles admits he's learned a lot since graduating from Tulare Union High School in Tulare, Calif. Academically, he did not qualify for a Division I-A university after high school, so he went to Fresno City College instead.

"It was pretty difficult, because I knew I messed up my opportunity," Diles said. "I was just being lazy in the classroom and wasn't working hard. I screwed up."

After starting 22 games in two years at Fresno City, Diles said Utah, K-State, Colorado State and several Pacific-10 Conference teams recruited him. He originally committed to Utah, but didn't qualify academically in January 2005 so he had to find another university.

Diles said his remaining choices were Colorado State and K-State. He committed to K-State in May 2005.

"My junior college coach called me and told me Kansas State wanted to talk to me," Diles said. "(The coaches) liked what they saw on film and offered me a scholarship."

Diles was forced to watch from the sidelines a lot last year as Ted Sims' backup. Diles finished fourth on the team in tackles with 50, despite not starting a game in 2005.

"It was difficult, but I knew the situation I was getting into," Diles said. "Coming here, Ted was a senior and produced here, and I had to wait my time and not get frustrated with it."

Diles said he has plans to pursue business in Los Angeles if an NFL career doesn't work out. According to ESPN NFL Draft analyst Mel Kiper, Diles is one of the most underrated college linebackers and a legitimate NFL prospect.

"I definitely think I have the game to play at the next level, but you just have to keep working hard because good things will eventually happen," Diles said.

— Jeffrey Rake contributed to this article

K-State seniors to play final game at Snyder Family Stadium

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Quintin Echols is searching for 25 tickets to Saturday's game against Texas.

Echols, who is from Fort Worth, Texas, has a lot of family planning to come see his last home game as a Wildcat. This Saturday will be the final time Echols or any of the other 20 K-State seniors will play at Snyder Family Stadium.

"Right after the Colorado game on the plane ride I thought about it and said, 'Man I've been here for five years, and it seems like it's been forever,'" Echols said. "But now it's my last game coming up, and it's going to mean a lot to me to perform to the best of my ability."

K-State's senior class has experienced plenty of ups and downs. They were part of the only Wildcat team in the history of the program to win a Big 12 Conference Championship in 2003, but they also were part of the back-to-back losing seasons in 2004 and 2005. After coach Ron Prince was hired, they had to adjust to a whole new coaching staff, knowing they only would be around for a year.

Echols found out how hard transition can be when he was held out of the starting lineup during spring and fall practices for being out of shape. He didn't help his case when he was one of the last players to pass the preseason conditioning test, either.

"I was in the dog house," Echols said.

Since that time, Echols has gotten himself in better shape. Prince said when they do their conditioning drills every Tuesday, Echols is among the first linemen to finish.

"I've been very impressed with the mental discipline of some of these players, in particular guys like Quintin Echols," Prince said. "He's a leader by example, not just in word."

When K-State beat Colorado 34-21 last weekend, the Wildcats became bowl eligible for the first time since 2003. The win caught the attention of several bowl game committees. The Insight Bowl will send a representative to Saturday's game with Texas, and the Texas Bowl and Independence Bowl both plan to send representatives to the Wildcats' game against Kansas.

Prince said the seniors' experience from being part of a Big 12 title team was valuable in teaching younger players how to conduct themselves.

"These seniors have a very interesting perspective, because they were a part of the Big 12 Championship, and that's been something we've tried to lean on," Prince said. "To have them be able to share their experiences and see how challenging it really is to win and how important it is to work on winning."

Echols said if there was one thing he could pass on to his younger teammates, it would be the energy he has on the field.

"If you can teach a younger person that no matter what, to be excited or have fun, then that can go a long way," Echols said. "That's what a lot of the older guys told me when I got here, because it goes quick."

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our advertising sales representatives by calling...
532-6560

Need something to do?
Try SuDoku
Located on the classified page
sudoku

THE PARTY Starts Hair
Help Shaggieville celebrate their 1 year anniversary!
Call for celebration specials
612 N. 12TH • AGGIEVILLE • 539-2277

NOVEMBER DRY-CLEAN SPECIAL
Wash Palace
$3.50 EACH
"LARGEST AND CLEANEST FACILITY IN MANHATTAN"
• Coin Laundry
• Jumbo Computerized Dryers & Large Capacity Washers
• Wash, Dry & Fold Service
• Coin-op Open 24 Hours • Dry Cleaning & Drop off Monday - Saturday: 7am-7pm Sunday: 12pm-7pm •

COLLEGE PARK
UNIVERSITY CROSSING
NEW CLUBHOUSE
University Crossing
2215 College Ave.
Manhattan, KS 66502
785.539.0500 tel
collegeparkweb.com
coming in fall 2006
FEATURED
• fitness center
• computer lab
• game room
COLLEGE PARK

Mustang
Gentleman's Club
Open 8 pm to 2 am • 7 days a week
HOME OF THE ULTIMATE GUYS NIGHT OUT
18 & Over
GROUPS OF 10 OR MORE
CALL AHEAD AND RESERVE A TABLE.
WEDNESDAY
AMATEUR NIGHT
$50-$100 Cash Prize
You keep the tips!
THURSDAY
$1 Wells
$1.75 Pitchers 48 oz
Small Hours Big Money
HIRING NEW GIRLS
785.238.7571
1330 Grant,
Junction City,

Brown finally meets lofty expectations of UT faithful

When Mack Brown took the coaching job at Texas in 1998, he knew all about the lofty expectations, high standards and unrealistic goals he would have to attain.

JEFFREY RAKE

After seven years on the job, Brown had led the Longhorns to an overall record of 70-19. That was good enough for seven straight bowl games (including four wins), two appearances in the Big 12 Conference Championship game (1999 and 2001) and a trip to the hot seat.

Despite turning in three 11-win seasons from 2001 to 2004, the Texas faithful wanted Brown fired. He was attacked from all angles.

But Brown understood the criticisms and knew he would continue to feel pressure until he came through, because to coach at Texas you must meet three criteria:

1. Beat Oklahoma

2. Win a National Championship

3. Do it all over again

From 2000 to 2004, Brown's Longhorns couldn't get past step one. Not only did they lose five straight games to rival Oklahoma, but many of the games weren't even close. Two of their losses were by 49 points and 52 points. The Longhorns failed to score more than 14 points four times, and twice gave up more than 60 points. Their average margin of defeat: 27 points.

The problem wasn't the players. Brown had some of the best recruiting classes in the nation, pulling gifted athletes out of the talent-rich state of Texas and stockpiling depth at all the skill positions. No, the problem was Brown.

Texas beat inferior teams and unranked non-conference opponents. They beat a majority of the teams in the Big 12. When it came to playing a Top-10 team however, the Longhorns took a Texas-sized tumble, and were a lousy 3-10 in those games.

That was until Vince Young came along and saved Brown's career. He helped Brown change a coaching philosophy that simply did not work. Brown's old-school, business-like approach was falling flat with his players. In the weeks leading up to big games (like Oklahoma), Brown pressured his players to perform and overworked them – both physically and mentally. Then, come game day, he would tell them to relax and play with poise.

It didn't make sense.

Young reminded Brown he had to loosen up a little; he had to have more fun. He made Brown understand it's OK to be crazy at times, and the game is more enjoyable when you can appreciate the positives rather than dwell on the negatives.

Brown listened to his star quarterback and began to take an interest in his players' lifestyles. He learned what an iPod was, listened to rap music, and was even caught dancing a few times. The pressure was lifted, and soon enough the results would follow.

The Longhorns beat Oklahoma in 2005 and finished with an unbeaten record and a national championship. Heading into their game against K-State on Saturday, the Longhorns are 9-1 this season and have an outside shot at advancing to the BCS Championship Game.

With a fan base that's finally behind him and a lengthy long-term contract, Brown is reaching his potential.

Needless to say, he is enjoying the ride.

Jeffrey Rake is a junior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
in the COLLEGIAN, the first friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

Catering or Delivery for the Game?
PLANET SUB
708 N. Manhattan • 537-8SUB
GOOD LUCK CATS!

539-5269
BEER WINE & SPIRITS
LIBRARY

Student Escape Night
Sundays after 4pm
only at Valentino's on 3003 Anderson Ave.
Dinner Buffet only $4.99
with valid University Student ID.
Save over $50 No Coupon Necessary
* Some restrictions apply. Limited time only. Dine-in only. One offer per person, per visit. Not good with any other offer.
3003 Anderson Ave. 785-539-6444
Valentino's Grand Italian Buffet
• Mon. - Sat. 11am-9pm
• Sun. 10am-9pm
• Sun. Brunch 10am-2pm

Fat's
BAR & GRILL
Go CATS!
Saturdays $2.75 Miller Pounders
Free T-Shirts
Sundays
1/2 Price Drinks
$2.25 Big Beers
$1.50 Wells
$3.50 Fishbowls & Labrats
12th & Laramie Aggieville

EKART'S "SINCE 1965"
Motor Inn, Inc.
209 Sarber Lane
Dependable Auto Service
776-9058
•Oil Changes
•Brake Service
•Tire Rotation
•Computer diagnostics
•30-Pt. System Check
•Complete automotive repair
Go Cats!

GALLERY
Glenn Theodore
FOR HAIR
Free Basic Manicure with a $40 Spa Pedicure
785-776-5632
3266 Kimball Ave. Candlewood

Jupiter String Quartet
Presented by McCain Auditorium
November 17, 7:30pm
Pre-performance lecture by Professor Cora Cooper at 6:30 pm in room 204 McCain
The Jupiter String Quartet, based in Boston, has performed to critical acclaim across the United States and abroad.
Call the McCain Box Office at 532-6428 or order online at www.ksu.edu/mccain
Sponsored in part by The Kansas Art Commission, a state agency; The National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency; The K-State Fine Arts Fees and The Friends of McCain

Everyday Low Prices
If You Didn't Buy It At Classic You Probably Paid Too Much!!!
Best 30 Pack Cans -$11.45
Natural Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Keystone Light 30 Pack - $12.80
Miller High Life 30 Packs - $12.85
Busch and Busch Light 30 Packs - $14.10
Miller Lite and MGD 30 Packs - $15.99
Bud and Bud Light 30 Pack Cans - $15.99
Coors Light 30 Pack - $16.30
Celebrate Our Win With
Andre Champagne 750ML - $3.99
Be The Prince of Your Tailgate
On Sale This Week
Barton, Viaka, and Nova Vodka 1.75L $8.99
Kentucky Deluxe 1.75L $10.99
UV Flavored Vodka Liters $11.49 and 750ML $8.99
Classic Wine and Spirits
347 South Seth Child - Next to Home Depot 537-9463
For more info Go to www.537wine.biz

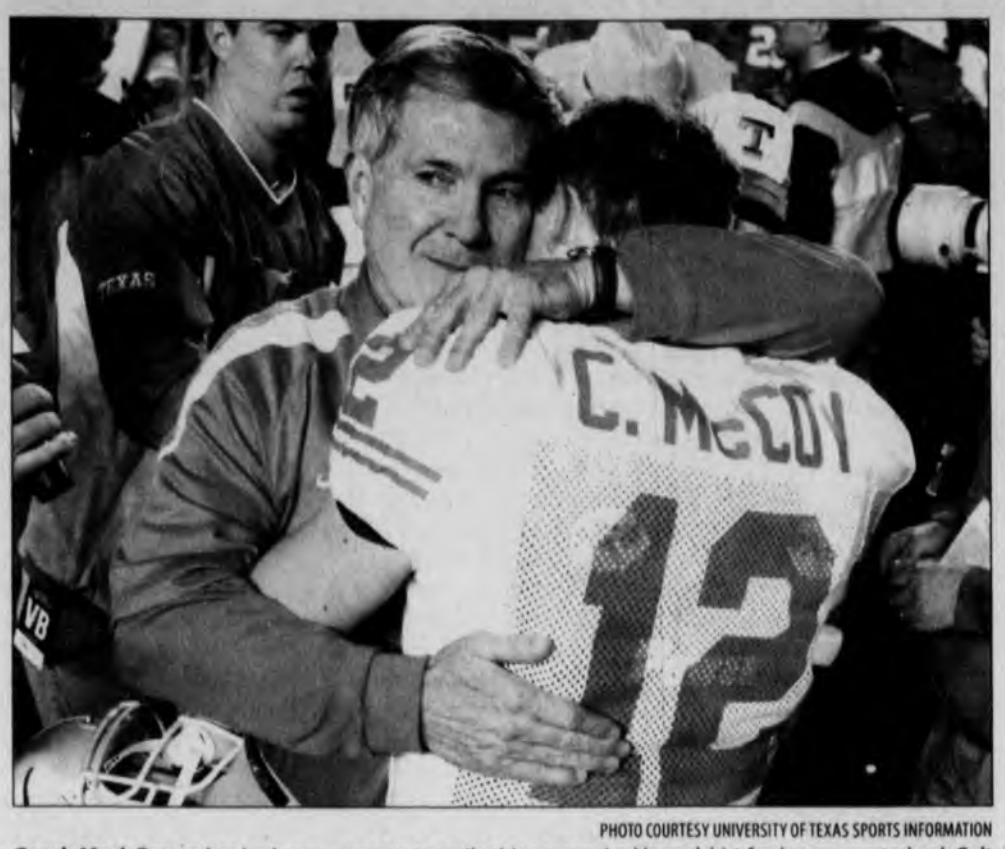


PHOTO COURTESY UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS SPORTS INFORMATION

Coach Mack Brown has had many reasons to smile this season. Led by redshirt freshman quarterback Colt McCoy, the No. 4-ranked Longhorns still have a chance of making it back to the National Championship.

Texas roster full of playmakers on both sides of the football

By Cedrique Flemming
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Try to find a weakness on the Texas Longhorns' depth chart.

It's almost impossible, as the No. 4-ranked team in the country is simply loaded with playmakers.

Texas comes to Snyder Family Stadium with one of the most balanced attacks in the country, and it will be on display Saturday night when the Wildcats play host to the Longhorns at 7 p.m. The offense puts up 39.2 points per game, which is fifth in the nation, and it is third in the conference with 409.7 yards per game.

Texas' defense also is extremely talented. The Longhorns have the second best rush defense in the country, allowing only 45.1 yards rushing per game. The defense has also only allowed three rushing touchdowns all season.

The defense isn't completely flawless, and it suffers in pass defense. During Big 12 Conference play, the Longhorns are last in the conference in pass defense, allowing 295.8 yards per game.

LONGHORN OFFENSE

Freshman quarterback Colt McCoy has taken over as the leader of the team after Vince Young went to the NFL last year. He has thrown for 2,051 yards this year and has 27 touchdowns. He also is second in the country in pass efficiency.

K-State football coach Ron Prince said McCoy is one of the best quarterbacks the Wildcats will face this season, but one reason for his success is because of the numerous threats he has around him.

"He has a really fine option in No. 4 (wide receiver Limas Sweed)," Prince said. "I don't know if we faced someone quite like this wide receiver. It puts you in a dilemma. If you try to do too many things to double-cover him, their running game is significant enough to really hurt you. Between the quarterback being very accurate and poised, having an option that most people can't defend one-on-one, and a running game that can hurt you if you don't have eight people in the box, that explains why this team is where they are statistically."

Sweed averages 71 yards receiving per game during conference play, and has 10 touchdowns through 10 games. The running back tandem of Jamaal Charles and Selvin Young average a combined 117.3 yards per game. Together, they have punched the ball into the end zone nine times. Charles alone is third in the conference with his 75.3 yards on the ground per game.

"Texas' offense is really good," defensive tackle Quintin Echols said. "After watching them on film, they deserve all the props and pubs that they're getting. It's just up to us as a defense to work hard in practice all week and put a game plan together to stop them. I don't think anybody on our team is intimidated by them. We are a big-time team, and it's time for us to show that."

LONGHORN DEFENSE

The defense is anchored by defensive end Tim Crowder, who is second in sacks with 5.5 during conference play. He is third in the Big 12 with 12 tackles for loss and he also has added 15 quarterback pressures.

"They have a defensive end, No. 80 (Crowder), who is in an elite nature," Prince said. "By himself, he could wreck the game. They've got a number of players like this on the roster. This team is very impressive on tape, very well coached. With that said, I like our chances. We like playing here. We expect to play well. If we can play well, I think we'll win the game. We're not coaching different – it's just that the challenges are different."

Most of the other game-changers are in the secondary.

Cornerback Aaron Ross leads this experienced bunch, and is tied for first during conference play with his four interceptions. The two safeties are twin brothers – Michael and Marcus Griffin. Michael is the better player statistically, right behind Ross with his three interceptions during Big 12 play. He also averages 7.2 tackles per game, which is the sixth best in the conference among defensive backs.

"After watching them on tape, I definitely think they are some of the biggest and strongest guys we've faced all year," offensive lineman Logan Robinson said. "We've played teams that have really good defensive ends or a really good linebacker, but this is a good team all around. They've got good players at every position and it's just something that we have to concentrate on for our practices and for the game."

Collegian vs. KSDB 91.9

5 Games to watch

Collegian football picks

Team record: 138-62 K-State record: 27-13	 Nick Dunn (36-14)	 Jonathan Garten (33-17)	 Austin Meek (35-15)	 Jeffrey Rake (34-16)
K-State vs. No. 4 Texas	Texas 24-20	Texas 28-10	Texas 31-21	Texas 41-18
Nebraska at No. 24 Texas A&M	Nebraska 30-26	Nebraska 24-20	Texas A&M 24-22	Texas A&M 27-23
Texas Tech at No. 17 Oklahoma	Oklahoma 23-16	Oklahoma 23-17	Oklahoma 30-14	Oklahoma 31-20
Iowa State at Colorado	Colorado 4-2	Colorado 23-20	Colorado 28-18	Colorado 10-7
No. 21 Oregon at No. 7 Southern California	USC 40-29	Oregon 35-10	Oregon 32-29	USC 34-28

KSDB 91.9 football picks

Team record: 155-45 K-State record: 34-6	 Heath Fanning (40-10)	 Kyle Finley (40-10)	 Scott Miller (37-13)	 James Westling (38-12)
K-State vs. No. 4 Texas	Texas 28-17	Texas 31-16	Texas 31-21	Texas 27-16
Nebraska at No. 24 Texas A&M	Texas A&M 24-21	Texas A&M 28-24	Nebraska 24-20	Texas A&M 30-24
Texas Tech at No. 17 Oklahoma	Oklahoma 31-17	Oklahoma 35-31	Oklahoma 21-17	Oklahoma 28-27
Iowa State at Colorado	Colorado 17-10	Colorado 24-10	Colorado 14-10	Colorado 21-6
No. 21 Oregon at No. 7 Southern California	USC 28-27	USC 27-17	USC 35-31	USC 37-31

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7151
Lunch Special
$3 BIG BOULEVARDS
$3 Any Sandwich & chips, 11-2
$2 Enchilada Plates all day
Open at 11am

Enjoy The Game
8 TVs
and some room to move
Finn's Pub
317 Poyntz Ave. • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 776-2119

get AHEAD of the COMPETITION by ADVERTISING with us.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie(785)532-6560

BOBBY T's
WILDCAT REPLAY
4:30PM 6:30PM 8:30 PM
TUESDAY
3240 KIMBALL AVE. · 537-8383

Are you paying too much for auto insurance?
American Family rates are more competitive than you might think. Call me today to find out.
AMERICAN FAMILY INSURANCE
American Family Mutual Insurance Company and its Subsidiaries
Home Office – Madison, WI 53783
amfam.com
© 2006 002098 – Rev. 4/06
Tim Engle Agency, Inc.
3320 Anderson Ave
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 539-9200 Bus
(785) 537-8696 Fax
tengle@amfam.com
Jon Harper Agency
1814 Claflin Rd Ste 220
Manhattan, KS 66502
(785) 776-1855 Bus
(785) 539-2577 Fax
jharper@amfam.com

SALON ESSENTIALS
Salon • Spa • Tanning Resort
½ PRICE FACIALS & MASSAGES
• Includes Glycolic Peels
• Microderm Abrasion
• All Spa Facials
Exp. 11/30/06
FROM 9AM-1PM MON.-FRI.
121 S. SETH CHILDS 539-5752

Saturday Night Salsa
with DJ Luis
$2.50 • Sangria • Margaritas • Coronas
$2.75 • Pounders
BOWINKLE'S
N Anderson W E Seth Childs S
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022
Sports Bar
College Football Package
ESPN Game Plan:
Catch all your major games on our 120" TV's!
Ask for our GREAT daily food and drink specials

Bring in this coupon and SAVE $1
on any regular 16 oz. BLIZZARD
Offer good only 11/10, 11/11, 11/12
DQ
2 Locations!
1015 N. 3rd St.
3116 Anderson Ave.
Consumer must pay any sales tax. Limit 1 per coupon and 1 coupon per cust
Redeemable only on items selling at regular price. Good only at Manhattan

The bowl possibilities

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State became bowl eligible for the first time since 2003 when it beat Colorado 34-21 last Saturday.

Even though the Wildcats are not ensured a bowl spot, there still has been plenty of speculation. ESPN analyst Ivan Maisel projected K-State to play South Carolina in the Independence Bowl and ESPN analyst Mark Schlabach predicted the Wildcats will play Rutgers in the Texas Bowl, according to their bowl projections on Nov. 6.

The Big 12 Conference is connected to nine bowl games and guaranteed eight bowl game spots. Here are a few of the bowl games K-State has a realistic chance of going to.

Independence Bowl
City: Shreveport, La.
Stadium: Independence Stadium (48,947)
Date: Dec. 28
Time: 3:30 p.m.
Tickets: $30-$35
Television: ESPN
History: First played in 1976 in honor of the United States' 200th birthday
K-State history: In 1984, K-State played Wisconsin and lost 14-3.
Selection process: Missy Setters, executive director of the Independence Bowl, said it would be sending a representative to K-State's game against Kansas.

Texas Bowl
City: Houston
Stadium: Reliant Stadium (70,000)
Date: Dec. 28
Time: 7 p.m.
Tickets: $25-$75
Television: NFL Network
K-State history: This is the Texas Bowl's first year.
Selection process: Bowl Manager David Brady said officials already have sold 32,000 tickets, mostly to Houston residents. The bowl is connected to the Houston Texans. He also said bowl officials would be sending a representative to watch K-State's game at Kansas next week.

Insight Bowl
City: Tempe, Ariz.
Stadium: Frank Kush Field (56,000)
Date: Dec. 29
Time: 7 p.m.
Tickets: $20-$80
Television: NFL Network
History: It was first played in 1989 and was originally called the Copper Bowl.
K-State history: In 1993, K-State played its first bowl game in nearly 10 years in front of a record crowd of 49,075. K-State beat Wyoming 52-17, in front of at least 16,000 Wildcat fans. K-State returned in 2001 to play Syracuse and lost 26-3.
Selection process: Gina Chappin, director of public relations, said the bowl sent a representative to K-State's games against Louisville and Colorado and plans to send someone to Saturday's Texas game.

Poinsettia Bowl
City: San Diego
Stadium: Qualcomm Stadium (66,000)
Date: Dec. 19
Time: 7 p.m.
Tickets: $35
Television: ESPN 2
History: This will be the second year of existence for the Poinsettia Bowl.
K-State history: The Wildcats have never played in the Poinsettia Bowl, but they did play twice in the Holiday Bowl, which is affiliated with the Poinsettia Bowl, and is also played in San Diego.
Selection process: Mark Neville, director of communications for the Poinsettia Bowl, said they would have selected Army if it became bowl eligible. K-State is one of the at-large teams that has been considered for the game. However, the Wildcats will not be chosen if they only have six wins and a seven-win team is available.

5 Keys to Victory

Balanced defense, good start, key to stopping Longhorns on Saturday

By Austin Meek
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Coach Ron Prince won the games he was supposed to win and guided the Wildcats to bowl eligibility in his first season. Now, Prince has a chance for a signature win against the No. 4 Texas Longhorns. Here's what the Wildcats must do to pull off the upset.

1. GOOD AVERAGE START

OK, here's a math lesson involving the average-start statistic, one of Prince's favorites. Against Colorado, K-State's average starting position was its own 37 yard-line (37.167, to be exact). Colorado's average start was its own 24, a difference of 13 yards. Extrapolate that over the course of a game (11 possessions, let's say), and Colorado needed to outgain the Wildcats by almost 150 yards to score the same number of points. K-State will need that kind of average-start differential against Texas' high-powered offense.

2. CHARLES IN CHARGE?

Jamaal Charles, a high-school teammate of K-State's James Johnson, has racked up 678 yards while splitting carries with Selvin Young. K-State will need to slow down the speedy sophomore, who also is an All-American sprinter for the Texas track and field squad.

3. PLAY BALANCED DEFENSE

That said, K-State can't sell out against the run, because Texas quarterback Colt McCoy is more than capable of winning a game through the air. "I don't think we can go into the game and take one aspect of their offense away, because the other one can beat you," Prince said. "I think we need to be very balanced from a defensive standpoint, so they have to execute whatever play they have called and diagnose it on the snap."

4. LOST IN THE CROWD

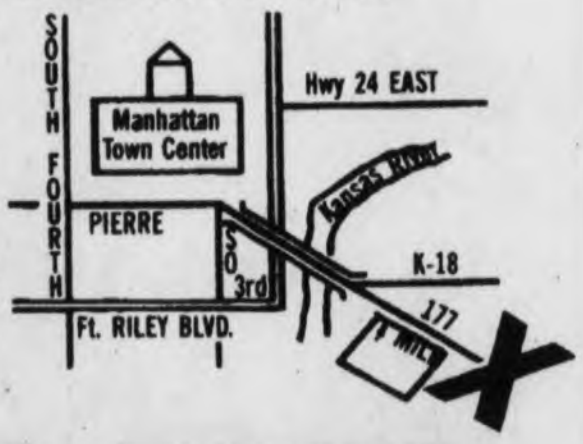
For the second week in a row, K-State faces a dominant defensive end. Texas' Tim Crowder ranks fifth in the Big 12 Conference in sacks and third in tackles for loss. K-State neutralized Colorado's Abraham Wright by passing on first down and avoiding third-and-long situations, and the Wildcats likely will look to do the same against the Longhorns.

5. SENIOR SEND-OFF

Brandon Archer, Zach Diles, Quintin Echols and 17 other seniors will play their final game at Snyder Family Stadium on Saturday. These seniors have seen the good (2003 Big 12 championship) and the bad (back-to-back losing seasons), and will be determined to go out on a good note.

ROYAL PURPLE yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555.

RC McGraws
776.9588
Wildcat headquarters before & after the game
Open at 3pm
LIVE FRIDAY & SATURDAY
ROUTE 66
Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound
Food & Drink Specials ALL Weekend Long!
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)



BRIGGS AUTO LANE
Is Cheering On The Cats

'06 JEEP GRANDE CHEROKEE
• 3 available 4WD systems
• Standard with 3.7 L V6
• Available 330 Horsepower 5.7 Hemi with MDS
• Best in class track management system

'07 G6 Pontiac
• 2.4 L 4 cylinder ECOTEC
• 23/34 MPG+
• 167 Horsepower
• Dualstage frontal, driver & passenger air bags

Over 850 residential rentals in the Manhattan/JC area
McCullough Development
785.776.3804
mdiproperties.com

Alan Clark BODY SHOP INC. SINCE 1967
"WHEN QUALITY COUNTS, COME SEE US"
• COMPLETE BODY REPAIR
• ESTIMATES
• INSURANCE CLAIMS WELCOME
• PAINTLESS DENT REPAIR
• RECEIVER HITCHES & 5TH

776-5333
2160 PILLSBURY DR. • 177 HWY SOUTH • MANHATTAN

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Monday, November 13, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 61

INSIDE
Lance Harris led the Wildcats with 22 points in K-State's 70-60 win
See story Page 5

INCREDIBLE

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGAIN

K-State fans celebrate on the football field at Snyder Family Stadium after the Wildcats' 45-42 win over No. 4-ranked Texas. This is the first win the Wildcats have earned over a highly-ranked opponent since beating No. 1-ranked Oklahoma in the 2003 Big 12 Championship game.

Fans rush field after K-State knocks No. 4 Longhorns out of championship contention

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

After Jordy Nelson fought for the final first down in K-State's 45-42 upset over No. 4 Texas, a sea of purple-clad fans flooded onto the field at Snyder Family Stadium.

Fans of all ages celebrated after the Wildcats' first win over a Top-10 opponent since they beat No. 1 Oklahoma 35-7 in the 2003 Big 12 championship game.

Children were propped up on their fathers' shoulders so they could see everything taking place. Fans held up cell phones and cameras to take pictures of at least 15 people climbing on top of the north end zone goal post in an attempt to tear it down.

It never fell, but that didn't ruin the celebration, especially for the players.

The team gave out high-fives and hugs as players made their way through the mob of purple.

Sophomore offensive lineman Brad Rooker even stopped to take a picture with a couple of fans before he headed into the locker room.

It's possible, though, that no one was as excited as coach Ron Prince.

Many people questioned the first-year head coach, especially when the Wildcats were 4-4 after a 41-21 loss to Missouri three weeks ago. But now, Prince's team has a three-game winning streak and a victory over the defending national champions.

"This is one really good win, and we're going to absolutely make the most of it," Prince said. "I'm really fired up about it. I'm about as excited as I can be."

See UPSET Page 7

Former reporter says balancing civil liberties, security difficult

By Adrianne DeWeese
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Journalists and U.S. citizens face tension in times of war between protecting national security and defending civil liberties, a former investigative reporter for The New York Times said Friday.

Miller
FORMER NEW YORK TIMES REPORTER

"I believe now more than ever that such demands for journalists' sources must be resisted if the free and independent press is to continue to exist in America," Judith Miller, a best-selling author and Pulitzer Prize winner, said during her lecture in Forum Hall.

Miller was the keynote speaker of "Community Readiness Communications: Accurate Messages in Times of Crisis."

The three-day workshop, sponsored by the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications and the Huck Boyd National Center for Community Media, was funded by the McCormick Tribune Foundation.

Miller spent 85 days in jail in 2005 after refusing to reveal a source in the Valerie Plame case – twice as long as any other American reporter has ever spent for the same reason. She left The New York Times in November 2005, shortly after her release from jail.

The U.S. Congress should quickly pass a federal shield law that protects journalists from revealing their confidential sources, Miller said.

"While this is an issue that we journalists are forced to obsess about, by and large, the public does not yet understand that its access to information and their freedom may be jeopardized by the onslaught against the press," she said. "We in the press, once again, need to do a better job at making citizens understand what's going on and why they should care about it."

Miller said while the Bush administration took necessary steps after the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks to enhance the nation's security, some key press freedoms still are in danger of violation.

The U.S. government spent $7.2 billion in 2004 on stamping 15.6 million documents as top secret, secret or confidential, she said.

"Civil liberties, and in particular, some essential press freedoms, are in danger now of being sacrificed at the altar of national security without visibly strengthening our collective safety and our security," she said. "The pendulum, the balance between national security and civil liberties, I think, may be swinging too far towards security and away from our precious freedoms."

In addition to addressing press freedoms, Miller also said Internet blogging has blurred the lines of professional journalism.

"We are glad to welcome them into our community as long as they agree to abide by certain hard-fast rules of journalism," she said.

Angela Powers, director of the journalism school, said Fred Brock, assistant professor of journalism and mass communications, suggested Miller as a speaker for the workshop because she co-authored "Germs: Biological Weapons and America's Secret War." The book, discusses Sept. 11, 2001, and anthrax-letter attacks.

Miller's lecture also correlated directly to the workshop in its address of coverage of sensitive issues, Powers said.

"The fact that she talked about journalists being able to quote information and withhold sources when needed was important," Powers said. "Our students need to know they need to fight for the need for confidential sources."

Today's forecast
Mostly sunny
High: 57 Low: 38

ONLINE

Pike dedicates flagpole
Pi Kappa Alpha dedicated two flagpoles, to their members who have died in battle, at a ceremony on the front lawn of their house Saturday.
See story online at www.kstatecollegian.com

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Founders/Service Week
Omega Psi Phi Fraternity will have "Attack on Lack" Founders/Service Week today through Saturday. To celebrate, members will have a blood drive from 11:15 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 17 in Union 212 and a coat drive. For information, visit the group's table from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the K-State Student Union.

Traditions of India
Children worked with sand, and women sat on the floor and cut up vegetables in the Union Courtyard Sunday as a part of Kshitij, or "the horizon." The celebration aimed to educate people on the Indian culture and way of life.
See complete story online at www.kstatecollegian.com

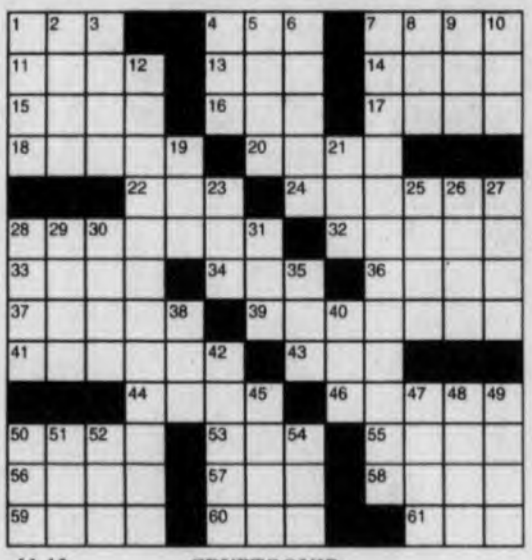
Engineering food drive
The College of Engineering will have a food drive today through Friday. The drive is a competition between the engineering departments and is sponsored by Tau Beta Pi, the National Engineering Honor Society. The food will be donated to the Flint Hills Breadbasket.

Big 12 football Coach of the Year?
Though he trailed coach Bill Callahan of the University of Nebraska for a majority of the season, Ron Prince's performance against Texas Saturday had boosted his ratings in the www.Big12Sports.com poll as of Sunday afternoon.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Dress (up)
4 Will Ferrell movie
7 Wine area of California
11 Egg
13 Kilmer who played Batman
14 Oklahoma city
15 Rani's wrap
16 Literary collection
17 Notion
18 Wet snow
20 Olympic champ Louganis
22 Vat
24 Pertaining to a people
28 Small bunch of flowers
32 Mistreat
33 Operator
34 — Mahal
36 Valhalla VIP
37 Trumpet sound
39 Least wealthy
41 "Bye"
43 "Humbug!"
44 Paraphernalia
46 Martin's comedy partner
50 Capri or Wight
53 Cow's call
55 Columbus' place
56 Mast
57 Under the weather
58 Prank
59 Periodicals, for short
60 Actor Beatty
61 Fellow

DOWN
1 Pitch
2 Office shape
3 Mentor
4 Longoria of "Desperate Housewives"
5 Singer k.d.
6 Signal light
7 Place for 12-Down
8 Moreover
9 Slapstick missile
10 Computer language
12 Longtime PBS figure
19 Embrace
21 Greek vowel
23 Cudgel
25 Undressed
26 Egyptian fertility goddess
27 Penny
28 Tiny protuberances
29 Norway's capital
30 Close up tight
31 Puppy's cry
35 Occupation
38 Away from WSW
40 Scull prop
42 Street urchin
45 Portrayal
47 Caprice
48 Verdi opera
49 Midday
50 Doctrine
51 Health resort
52 Trail the pack
54 Anti-quated

Solution time: 27 mins.

A	N	G	E	R		K	I	T		T	I	O
M	I	L	L	E		A	L	E		O	R	K
P	L	E	A	T		B	L	E	A	K	E	R
		A	N	I	M	U	S		X	E	N	A
H	E	N		E	E	K		N	I	N	E	S
I	T	E	M		D	I	S	C	O
T	H	R	I	C	E		C	O	M	P	L	Y
			A	P	A	C	E		S	L	O	E
L	A	S	S	O		A	N	A		E	T	A
A	L	U	M		B	R	E	N	D	A
C	L	E	A	V	E	R		T	A	S	T	E
E	A	R		E	G	O		S	T	E	A	M
S	Y	S		E	S	T		Y	A	R	D	S

Yesterday's answer 11-11

11-13 CRYPTOQUIP

HK G IWRFVL WK AHCZ GTGINCHQ FGTGPHALP ULTL AW PFLGE, UWRVQ ZWR IGVV ANGA AHIE AGVE?

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF SOMEBODY HAS NO FORMAL DRESS PANTS, I SUPPOSE YOU'D SAY THAT HE LACKS BLACK SLACKS.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: Z equals Y

CAMPUS CHRONICLES

Headlines from other universities

ROOMMATE AGREEMENTS HELP TO RESOLVE ISSUES

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. – Roommates are a fact of life for University of Alabama students who live on campus.

Sharing a space with another human being can take some adjustment, and some people make the change quicker than others.

To help with this situation, the university has implemented a new system to help ease some of the tensions that occur between roommates this year.

Roommate agreements have been an informal way for roommates to resolve issues in residence halls at the Capstone for many years, according to Holly Hallmann, an assistant community director in Julia Tutwiler Hall. Hallmann said, starting this year, the agreements were given more significance.

U. MARYLAND KAZAKHS AVOID 'BORAT'

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – While many students flock to local theaters to see Sacha Baron Cohen mock American stereotypes as clueless, bigoted Kazakh journalist Borat Sagdiyev, two students you might expect to have an extremely personal interest in the movie won't even buy tickets.

"It's not a movie about Kazakhstan," explained junior Saule Kassengaliyeva, who came to the university from Kazakhstan to study women's studies in spring 2005.

U. KANSAS OFFICIAL FINDS CAMPUS' 1ST COMPUTER

LAWRENCE – Earl Schweppe, founder of the University of Kansas computer science program, credits an e-mail with leading him to embark on what he calls "an archeological dig."

The e-mail informed Schweppe that the remains of a computer believed to be the first on campus had been found in the basement of Learned Hall.

The machine, an IBM 650, was an important part of the development of computing in the United States.

Schweppe called the IBM 650 the first mass-produced computer in the world, with about 2,000 made.

Source: www.copyboy.com.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The KSU Save Darfur group will begin its Darfur Commodity Drive and Awareness Campaign from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. today in the Union Courtyard. The event includes a panel discussion by students from Africa from noon to 1 p.m.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jill Bieker at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the Practice Management Center in Trotter Hall.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Denise Guy at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Bluemont 368.

■ "Examining cases of legal liability —Or why I always win" will be presented by Seattle-based attorney Bill Marler as part of the Food Safety Network seminar series at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Forum Hall.

■ There will be a SafeZone Training Advanced Session titled "A View from Under the Rainbow: GBLTQ Topics and Information" 5-6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Union 212. Check-in is at 4:45 p.m.

■ The Native American Student Association will have a reorganizational meeting 5-6 p.m. Tuesday in the Multicultural Student Office in the K-State Student Union.

■ "Not for Sale" will be presented as part of the Fair Trade Film Series 1:30-3 p.m. Tuesday in the library at K-State-Salina.

■ The Department of Entomology is searching for a research associate in molecular entomology. A doctorate in biological science is required. The application deadline is Wednesday. For more information, call (785) 532-5763.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Adriana Chacon-Cascante at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Waters 342.

Corrections and clarifications

If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

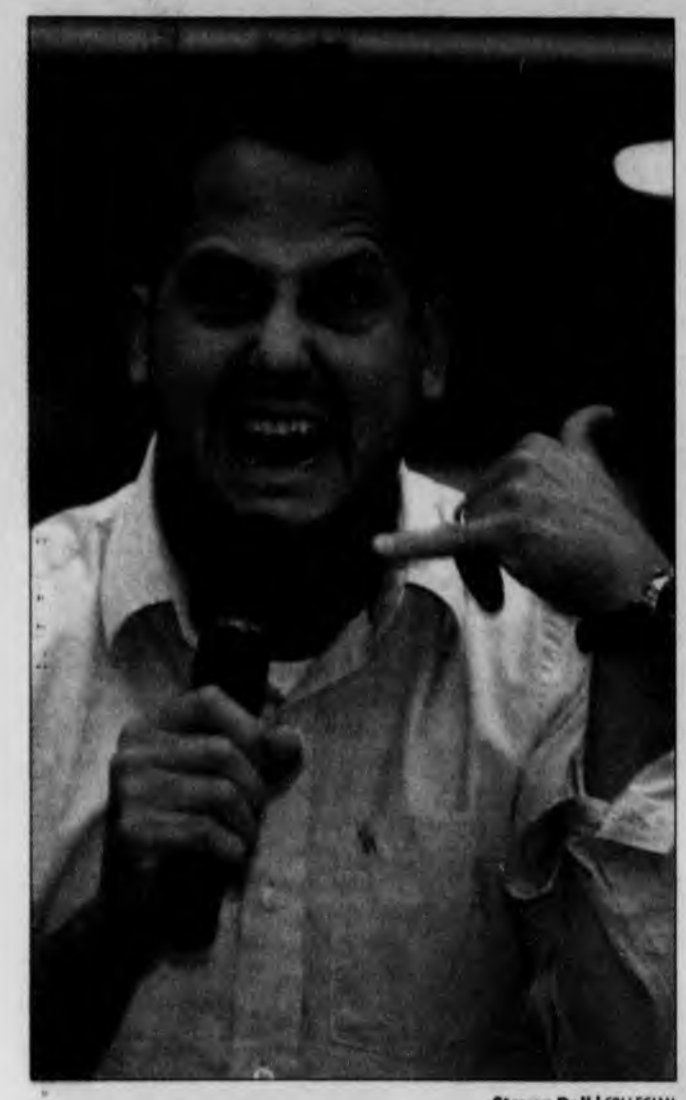
The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

SPORTS MASSAGE
BODY FIRST
2308 ANDERSON
587-8300
www.bodyfirst.com

Collegian Explore it!
kstatecollegian.com

FALL INTO SAVINGS
SALON 1
$55 Highlights $70 Highlight & Haircut
$9 Men's Haircut $6 Eyebrow Wax
3104 ANDERSON AVE. 785.539.3626 MANHATTAN, KS 66503
HURRY IN! APPOINTMENTS ARE LIMITED! EXPIRES 11.30.06

auto Auction
Thursday, November 16
5:00pm
701 Enoch Lane - Manhattan, KS
Collector cars - modified trucks
sports cars and more
PURPLE WAVE
www.purplewave.com



Little Caesars
HOT-N-READY PIZZA
LARGE PEPPERONI PIZZA $5.00 AVAILABLE EVERY DAY
1150 WESTLOOP CENTER
MANHATTAN

Did you sell more Girl Scout cookies than anyone else in your troop?
You'll make more than cookie crumbs working for us...
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling cookies.
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL
or email jharmon@kstate.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL, FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions

Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

WHEN YOU'RE DONE READING ALL THE ARTICLES, DON'T FORGET TO WASTE MORE TIME IN LECTURE BY DOING THE
SUDOKU
LOCATED IN THE COLLEGIAN'S CLASSIFIEDS SECTION

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Comedian Andrew Kennedy performs before a crowd of about 60 people Friday in the Union Courtyard of the K-State Student Union. His performance was part of Union Program Council's After Hours.

Comedian mixes news, personal history

By Megan Molitor
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Current events collided with sexual humor Friday evening in the K-State Student Union.

Andrew Kennedy gave a comedic performance in the Union Courtyard to a crowd of about 60 people. It was part of the After Hours program and was sponsored by the Union Program Council.

Kennedy began with his impression of K-State.

"You guys have bowling right downstairs, so this must be a big school," he said. "What is there to do here on weekends? Are you all drunk right now? I saw beer being dispensed downstairs quite regularly."

Kennedy spoke about the recent mid-term elections and gave an impression of President Bush.

He compared Bush to former presidential candidate Al Gore and explained what it might be like to be former president Bill Clinton.

"How much fun would it be to be him?" he said. "Life is about living, growing old and then talking about what you've done," Kennedy said. "Bill Clinton would always win those conversations. They should make a musical about his life, with solos by Monica Lewinsky and Janet Reno."

Kennedy said he is half Colombian and half English.

"I'll talk in Spanish to somebody, and they will talk back in English, because they're offended that I assumed they spoke Spanish," Kennedy said. "I'm the whitest-looking person ever."

Kennedy said he moved multiple times as a child, living in Columbia, Puerto Rico, the United States, Hong Kong, among other places.

"I had a really cool childhood, getting to grow up in Hong Kong," he said. "All your toys are made where you're living. Everything is always in stock. It's awesome."

From his time spent in the area, Kennedy said he also speaks Cantonese, a language that can get confusing at times.

"Even though it's the same word, when you say it in different tones, it has a different meaning," he said. "For example, 'yes' and 'vagina' are the same word."

He has three brothers, all of whom look totally different.

"If you look at a photo of my family, it looks like a bunch of random people just gathered at a bus stop," he said.

Continuing on family, Kennedy spoke about what it was like to become a parent.

"It was the greatest thing to ever happen to me," he said. "I never knew I could love someone so much that I would eat food off their face. I have all their music in my cars, and so it's been four years of not listening to normal music. I sing theme songs with the voices now."

Many students said they enjoyed the presentation.

"I'm a big fan of the After-Hours program," Chris Miller, sophomore in elementary education, said. "I got here a little late, but it was really good. I thought (Kennedy) related well to the audience and got them involved."

Lexi Janezie, freshman in graphic design and UPC member, said UPC arranged Kennedy's visit through a regional organization that suggests possible events for UPC.

"It was really funny, but we already knew he would be good," Janezie said.

Kennedy said he doesn't make up the things in his comedy.

"Everything I say is true," he said. "That's what makes it funny. Sure, I embellish it, but the foundation is always true."

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn
CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

$2 OFF IN NOVEMBER
REPAIRING
•Shoes & Boots
•Purses & Luggage
•Harness
•Back Packs
•Birkenstocks
•Leather Coats
•Satin Shoe Dying
ULTRA GRIP
for ice and snow.
reduce slipping.
$15.99
MANHATTAN SHOE REPAIR

TUBBY'S Sports Bar
Aggieville • Manhattan, KS
MONDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 Bud & Bud Light Pitchers
$2.00 Wells & Shots
Watch Monday Night Football Here:
on the Big Screen

Menu Mania

Soup & Sandwich Combo $5.50
We Deliver
PLANET SUB
708 Manhattan Ave. 537-8SUB

Early Bird Lunch Special
$3.99 Macho Meal
11am-12pm only!
Available at both locations
Dairy Queen
539-5389

$4.99 Buffet
w/ Student ID
Sunday & Monday after 4 p.m.
Valentino's
3003 Anderson Ave
539-6444

BUY 1ST COMBINATION PLATE and get the 2ND HALF OFF
½ price Margaritas good mon-wed only
The Pavilion
420 Tuttle Creek Blvd

HUNAN
Newly Renovated
$1.00 off All You Can Eat Buffet & Mongolian BBQ
with valid KSU student ID
FREE Local Delivery with $9.99 min. purchase
Enjoy the Best New Asian Style and Mongolian BBQ in Town
•Sunday Night Specials 25% off
1304 Westloop • 539-0888 • 539-8888

Kramer Quik Cats
Convenience Store
Buy 1 made-to-order pizza, and get the 2nd half price!
(second pizza must be of equal or lesser value.)
Located in the Kramer Dining Center
6:30 p.m. - Midnight
Expires 12/15/06

Monday Mania
$3.99 Large Cheese Pizza
Dine in or carry out
Delivery Hotline 770-3333
GUMBY'S Pizza
Open Late

get one The 4th Street Cafe
"the best brew downtown"

$1 off Any Pita
The Pita Pit
We Deliver • 1131 Moro • 537-3993

25¢ HOT WINGS
"BIGGER THAN AGGIEVILLES"
$5 DOMESTIC 64 OZ PITCHERS
BOWINKLE'S Sports Bar
3043 Anderson Ave
776-1022

HUNAN EXPRESS
$3.99 LUNCH BUFFET 11:00-2:30
$4.99 DINNER BUFFET 5:30-9:00
VALUABLE COUPON
RECEIVE ONE OF THE FOLLOWING FREE
FOR DELIVERY ORDER OF $15 OR MORE
ONE SOFT DRINK (2 LITER)
TWO EGG ROLLS
FOUR CRAB RANGOONS
TEN FRIED DONUTS
PURCHASE OF $25 OR MORE SELECT ONE ORDER FROM MENU.

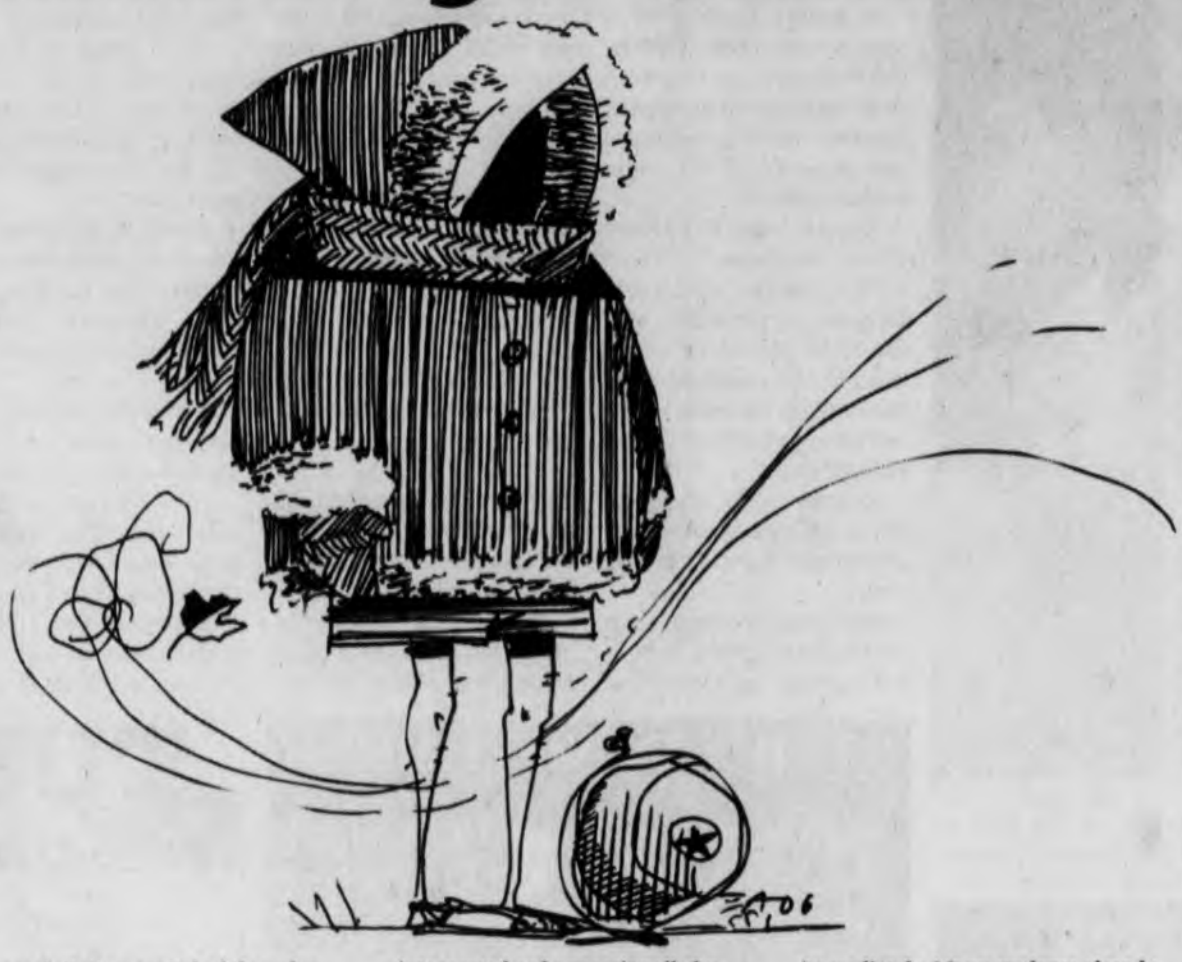
Porter's
Mini Monday
20¢ mini corndogs
$1.00 mini bottles
$1.00 off all drinks

SUBS N SUCH
785.537.2411 Wildcat Landing, MANHATTAN
$1 OFF ANY 6-INCH SUB
We Deliver
Mon-Thurs. Valid the week only (Dine-in only)

$2.00 ANY DRAW OR BOTTLE
Pete's Blue Ribbon BarBeQue
Aggieville
1/2 PRICE Smoked WINGS

Small Sub

Climate changes confuse co-eds



BECKY STEINERT

It's November, and I don't know whether to slap on the earmuffs or the sun block.

There is a noticeable inconsistency in day-to-day climate here in our modest, landlocked portion of the country. One day, students/pedestrians are chivalrously escorted around campus by the sun's warm, invigorating rays. The next day, they are met with wind and Kansas' apparent impersonation of Antarctica. In the midst of winter. In the middle of a solar eclipse. During the Ice Age. After a visit from Mr. Freeze.

A quick glance at the Weather Channel Web site can verify that conditions in our area change more quickly than a nerd in the locker room. A forecast indicates that within the span of one week, the high temperature in Manhattan ranges from 40 degrees on one day to 80 on another. That's a 40-degree difference, quite a switch in only half a fortnight.

Other parts of the country, like New York City, Los Angeles and Seattle, endure only a few deviations of Fahrenheit at a time. Their weather changes only about as often as Donald Trump's hairstyle.

Granted, Seattle is arguably the precipitation capital of the solar system, but at least those citizens know what to expect. It can't even rain properly here, since typically, 24 hours of overcast skies and echoing thunder will reach a zenith of a four-minute downpour, followed by a long stretch of gray nothingness, interrupted only occasionally by several small, 30-second psych-out drizzles.

It's impossible to predict Mother Nature's next mood when she's in high-maintenance mistress mode, so what recourse to take?

Clothing is a factor to consider immediately. Many students already have discovered solutions of their own. Ever see a person wearing a T-shirt and long sleeves at the same time? A girl wearing a skirt with leggings underneath? These are not fashion statements. These are evidence of individuals being dizzied by guessing what items will be weather-appropriate for the day, then finally giving up and wearing both at the same time. The next trend: bathing suits and mittens.

Find comfort wherever possible. For example, be glad not to be a snake – always a good way to gain perspective, but especially in this case.

Despite the irregular climate and changing external comfort, our internal body temperatures remain constant. Our cold-blooded reptile friends cannot boast the same. And, when there is nothing else count on, take security in the fact that with the newly arrived season and Daylight Savings Time, the sun will set at the same time every night, though earlier than it does during the summer. Perhaps some don't like it, but everyone needs structure, even if it comes in the form of dusk at promptly 4:30 p.m.

Every day is a regular barometric lottery here. However, rather than focusing on how confusing it is that yesterday's walk to class was a sunburn risk, and today it's liable to give everyone frostbite, think about the benefits of being a mammal and the beautiful pre-dinner sunset to be enjoyed later in the day. Just don't forget the mittens.

Becky Steinert is a freshman in psychology. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Women need to accept fallacy of happily-ever-after fantasy

KELSEY CHILDRESS

When the announcement that Britney Spears finally is divorcing Kevin Federline hit the airwaves, thousands of girls and women sighed with relief.

Although we might not know Britney on a personal level, we certainly know her on a kind of girl-level. This is a place where girls believe they know what is best for the woman, even though they don't really know her situation or circumstances.

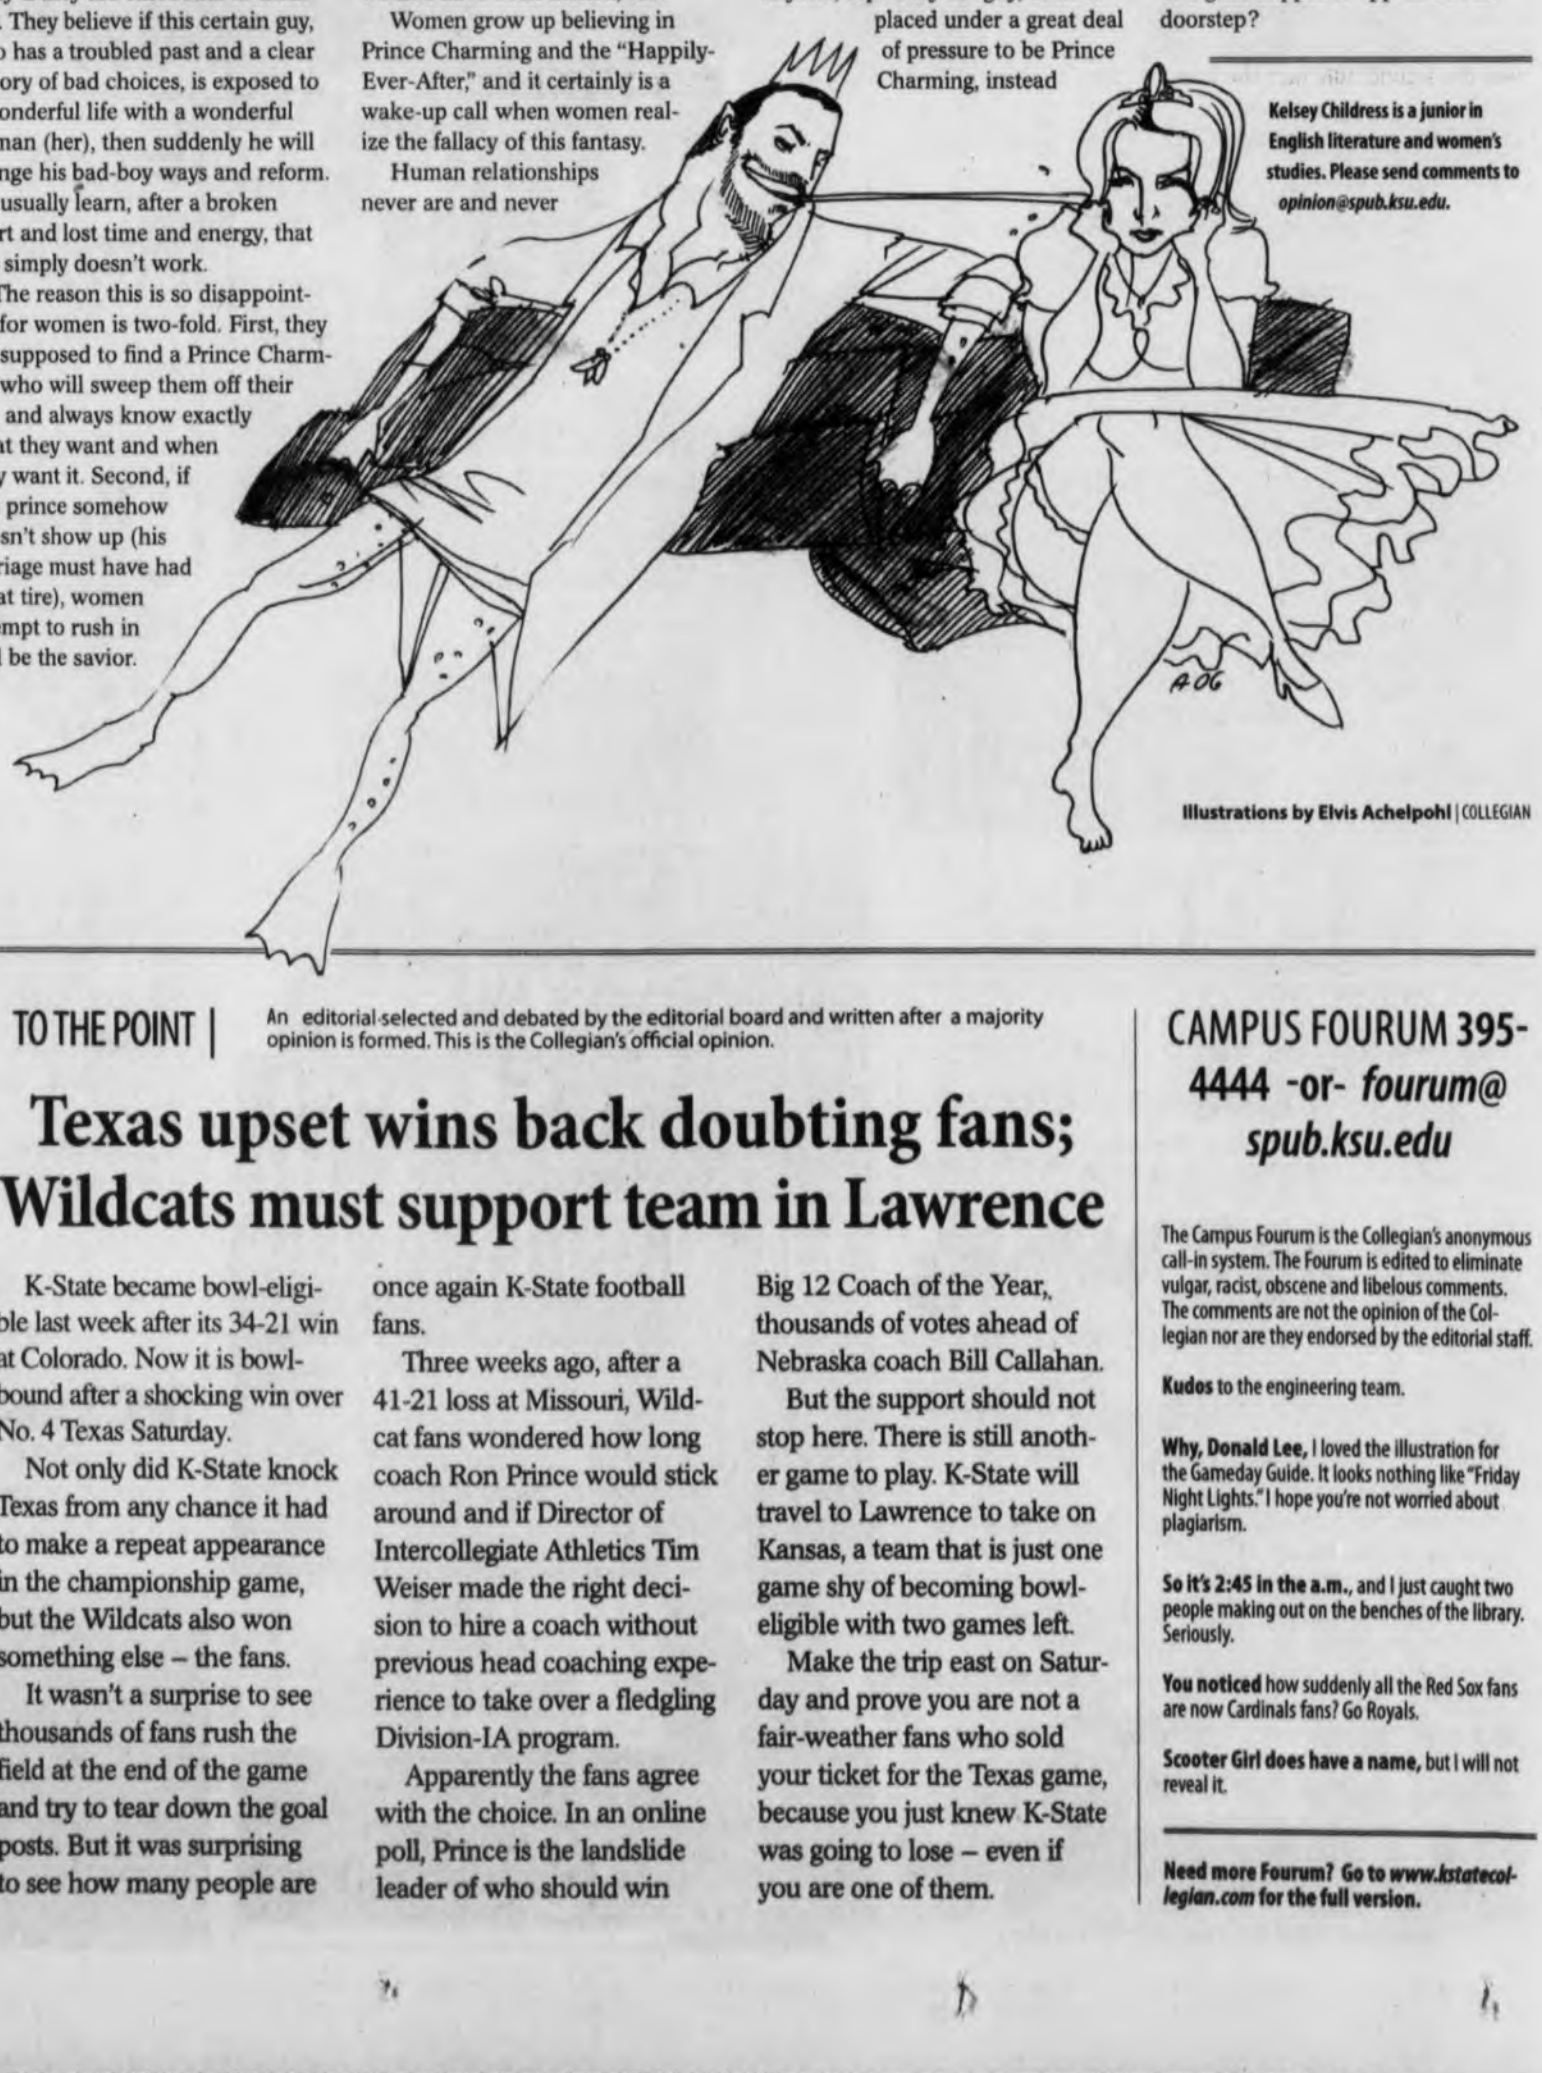
Without truly knowing Kevin, we automatically assume he is a gold digger who only married Britney for her money, especially since he was living in a small apartment with several people when he ran into her at a dance club in Los Angeles.

Maybe the reason women are so protective of their own is that we've all been there. We've all dated a guy who makes us cringe when our friends remind us of our failed endeavor. (For some reason, they make sure to remind us at least annually, as if they have a reminder sticker on their calendar telling them to do so.) The real problem, however, usually lies with the women, not the sketchy men out there. At least guys are, for the most part, honest about who they are.

Women believe it is their duty to fix a man who has problems, especially if they are emotional or financial. They believe if this certain guy, who has a troubled past and a clear history of bad choices, is exposed to a wonderful life with a wonderful woman (her), then suddenly he will change his bad-boy ways and reform. We usually learn, after a broken heart and lost time and energy, that this simply doesn't work.

The reason this is so disappointing for women is two-fold. First, they are supposed to find a Prince Charming who will sweep them off their feet and always know exactly what they want and when they want it. Second, if this prince somehow doesn't show up (his carriage must have had a flat tire), women attempt to rush in and be the savior.

However, as honorable as this might seem to some, a lot of women are manipulative and try to trick men into changing their habits, which isn't fair. On the other hand, maybe women have been tricked, too.



Women grow up believing in Prince Charming and the "Happily-Ever-After," and it certainly is a wake-up call when women realize the fallacy of this fantasy.

Human relationships never are and never will be perfect. Until we learn to accept this fact and make a promise never to expect it, we will continue to be disappointed.

Denying this fact is not fair to anyone, especially the guy, as he is placed under a great deal of pressure to be Prince Charming, instead of just himself, which is all he really can be.

Think about it this way – guys don't expect us to be Ariel or Cinderella, so why should we expect Eric or a glass slipper to appear at our doorstep?

Kelsey Childress is a junior in English literature and women's studies. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Elvis Achelpohl | COLLEGIAN

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Mosier | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Texas upset wins back doubting fans; Wildcats must support team in Lawrence

K-State became bowl-eligible last week after its 34-21 win at Colorado. Now it is bowl-bound after a shocking win over No. 4 Texas Saturday.

Not only did K-State knock Texas from any chance it had to make a repeat appearance in the championship game, but the Wildcats also won something else – the fans.

It wasn't a surprise to see thousands of fans rush the field at the end of the game and try to tear down the goal posts. But it was surprising to see how many people are once again K-State football fans.

Three weeks ago, after a 41-21 loss at Missouri, Wildcat fans wondered how long coach Ron Prince would stick around and if Director of Intercollegiate Athletics Tim Weiser made the right decision to hire a coach without previous head coaching experience to take over a fledgling Division-IA program.

Apparently the fans agree with the choice. In an online poll, Prince is the landslide leader of who should win Big 12 Coach of the Year, thousands of votes ahead of Nebraska coach Bill Callahan.

But the support should not stop here. There is still another game to play. K-State will travel to Lawrence to take on Kansas, a team that is just one game shy of becoming bowl-eligible with two games left.

Make the trip east on Saturday and prove you are not a fair-weather fans who sold your ticket for the Texas game, because you just knew K-State was going to lose – even if you are one of them.

CAMPUS FOURUM 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Kudos to the engineering team.

Why, Donald Lee, I loved the illustration for the Gameday Guide. It looks nothing like "Friday Night Lights." I hope you're not worried about plagiarism.

So it's 2:45 in the a.m., and I just caught two people making out on the benches of the library. Seriously.

You noticed how suddenly all the Red Sox fans are now Cardinals fans? Go Royals.

Scooter Girl does have a name, but I will not reveal it.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Runners end season at Regionals

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State cross country team's season ended Saturday at the Midwest Regional Championships in Falcon Heights, Minn.

Liliani Mendez placed 28th in the 6K race with a time of 21:54. This was the sixth time Mendez has paced the women. Mendez received All-Big 12 honors for her performance in the Big 12 Championships at Rim Rock Farm in Lawrence on Oct. 27.

"The one who struggled was Liliani," coach Michael Smith said. "That was disappointing."

However, Smith said he was pleased with the women's performance overall.

"That's our best team performance of the year," he said.

Lindsay Pierson finished behind Mendez at 63rd with a time of 22:42. This was Pierson's first appearance at a Midwest Regional Championship. As a team, the women took 14th.

Women's results:
28. Liliani Mendez 21:54
63. Lindsay Pierson 22:42
80. Morgan Bonds 22:59
116 Megan-Anne Perrin 23:43
117. Meg Gentry 23:46
166. Emily Dittemore 25:22
Team: 14th

Men's results:
63. Alex Umberger 32:45
68. Colin Swaney 32:56
85. Kory Cool 33:16
116. Danny Schneider 34:13
131. Arnold Sirorei 34:51
143. Tyler Fennema 35:33
Team: 15th

On the men's side, Alex Umberger led the team for the second time this season. He finished 63rd in the 10K race, with a time of 32:45. This was the second 10K race the men have run this season; the first was at the Chili Pepper Invitational on Oct. 14.

Colin Swaney finished second for the K-State men, placing 68th with a time of 32:56.

"The men competed well," Smith said. "They did what they could do. We didn't go in there expecting to qualify. We wanted to give them experience. That's what they're going to need in track and a year from now."

The men placed 15th overall.

This was the team's second time on the course. It ran at the same place earlier this year at the Roy Griak Invitational on Sept. 23.

To qualify for the NCAA Championships, the Wildcats would have had to be one of the top two teams in the region. Among the remaining teams, 13 at-large teams were announced.

Individually, Wildcats would have had to be in the top four runners from each region who weren't part of qualifying teams.

Smith now is looking to recruit for next year's team to improve the results.

"Recruiting is the key," he said. "We need to add more personnel. If that happens, we'll raise the bar for everyone on the team."

K-State 70, William & Mary 60

Ice cold

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
In his K-State men's basketball coaching debut, Bob Huggins disagrees with a call Saturday afternoon in the Wildcats' 70-60 win over William & Mary.

Despite poor shooting from field, Wildcats capture narrow season-opening victory over William & Mary

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Maybe Bill Walker will help the K-State men's basketball team more than everyone thought.

After K-State's season-opening 70-60 victory over William & Mary to tip off the Bob Huggins era, Walker – the highly-rated recruit who will join the team in December – came onto the court at Bramlage Coliseum and did something every current Wildcat struggled to do during the game.

Walker calmly drained jump shot after jump shot, a welcome sight for those who hung around after the Wildcats' 24-of-80 field-goal shooting performance.

The 80 field-goal attempts were one short of the Bramlage record of 81 set in 1990. Only one K-State player shot 50 percent – freshman forward Luis Colon's was 1-of-2.

Huggins said the problem wasn't his team taking bad shots. The ball just wouldn't go in the basket.

"They weren't even guarding us," he said. "They were packing it down low, so we couldn't drive it at them. I thought we had tons of good shots."

Senior guard Lance Harris paced the Wildcats with 22 points, but even he shot a mediocre 8-of-19 from the field.

All the missed shots allowed the Wildcats to grab 32 offensive rebounds and score 28 second-chance points. K-State out-rebounded the Tribe 59-37 for the game.

"It's better than what it was, but it's not good enough," Huggins said. "We didn't go rebound every ball. Our effort is too inconsistent."

Junior guard David Hoskins, who led K-State with 29 points in the exhibition win over Washburn, finished the game with 15 points on 4-of-15 shooting.

"I can't remember the last time I missed that many lay-ups in one game," Hoskins said. "That was pretty frustrating. I think guys got really excited. We were just shooting it too hard."

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN
Senior guard Lance Harris dunks the ball during the first half of Saturday's game against William & Mary at Bramlage Coliseum. At the time, K-State was trailing 18-7, but went on a 12-0 run, ignited by Harris' dunk to take a three-point lead.

K-State fell behind 18-7 early in the game, but used a 14-0 run to take a 21-18 lead it would never relinquish.

"We pressed them a little bit," Harris said of the key run. "That was taking time off the shot clock, so they had to get shots off late in the shot clock."

Led by guard David Schneider, who finished with 18 points, William & Mary closed the gap to 63-57 late in the second half, but the Wildcats responded by scoring eight straight points to seal the victory.

K-State had four players score in double figures; junior guard Blake Young scored 11, and senior forward Akeem Wright finished with 10 points and 13 rebounds.

Freshman center Jason Bennett made his debut in front of the 11,390 in attendance with four blocks and three rebounds.

"I was kind of nervous," Bennett said. "I've never played in front of that many people."

Although his K-State career began with a win, Huggins made it clear this team has a long way to go.

"I've learned from doing this so long that it's a marathon, not a sprint," Huggins said. "We didn't play very well. You have to play every day."

Gipson's 18 points ignite K-State in 1st victory

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Marlies Gipson had a career-high 18 points and finished with 13 rebounds, leading K-State to a 72-67 victory over Wisconsin-Green Bay Friday night at Bramlage Coliseum.

It was the fourth double-double of Gipson's career, and it earned coach Deb Patterson her 200th career victory.

"(Gipson) hurt us. We didn't know where to help from, because we're so small," said Wisconsin-Green Bay coach Kevin Borseth. "For them, she was very big ... she hit a couple of nice turnarounds in the lane, and she hit them at key times."

The Phoenix jumped out to an early 13-8 lead that didn't last long.

The Wildcats turned to its inside game, led by Gipson, building a double-digit lead at the half, 38-26.

"In every game we want to come in and establish a post presence, whether it's me or as a team," Gipson said. "We have to establish a presence and pride to help out the guards on the outside."

Because of the pressure the Phoenix placed on the Wildcats' inside game, things opened on the perimeter for junior Kimberly Deitz, who was able to capitalize from behind the arc.

Dietz was able to convert on 3-of-10 shots from beyond the arc, including two in the second half, one of which put an end to a 12-4 run by the Phoenix, who pulled within six points with 10:14 left in the game.

Dietz finished the game with 15 points.

Freshman Ashley Sweat finished with 10 points on 5-of-11 shooting from the field in her Wildcat debut.

"It's really nice to get a win," Sweat said. "We worked really hard on mechanics this week in practice. I thought we played really well as a team for most of the game."

Before the game, players received their championship rings and displayed a banner celebrating last year's Women's National Invitation Championship title.

K-State plays Creighton at 7 tonight at Bramlage.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
K-State's Marlies Gipson goes up for a rebound against UW-Green Bay defenders Friday evening in the Wildcats' 72-67 win at Bramlage Coliseum.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | Streak reaches 9 matches with loss at No. 15 OU on Saturday

The K-State women's volleyball team lost to No. 15 Oklahoma 3-0 (30-24, 30-24, 30-17) Saturday afternoon at McCasland Field House in Norman, Okla., extending its Big 12 Conference road losing streak to nine matches.

K-State (10-17, 2-15 Big 12) could not build off its 3-0 win against Baylor on Wednesday night, as it struggled throughout the match and was beaten in just about every statistical category. The Sooners (22-5, 13-3 Big 12) out-hit the Wildcats .307 to .116 and finished the match with 10 more kills (49-39) and 10 fewer errors (24-14) than K-State.

Junior Angie Lastra was the only Wildcat to register double-digit kills — finishing the match with 12 on a team-high .184 hitting percentage. Lastra also recorded eight digs, which puts her within 21 digs of passing Laura Downey for second in school history on the all-time digs list.

Junior Stacey Spiegelberg led the team with 35 assists.

The match marked the first time K-State has lost a season series to Oklahoma since the 1997 season.

K-State returns to action when it takes on No. 8 Texas 7 p.m. Wednesday at Ahearn Field House.

FBC | K-State makes 1st showing in AP poll in more than 2 years

It's been more than a year since K-State last received votes in the USA Today Coaches' poll and more than two since the Wildcats had their ballot punched for the Associated Press Top 25.

Prince

That all changed after K-State's dramatic 45-42 win over No. 4 Texas.

The Wildcats (7-4, 4-3 Big 12) picked up enough votes to rank No. 28 in Sunday's AP poll and No. 34 in the USA Today Coaches' poll.

K-State also made its debut in the Harris Interactive College Football Poll Sunday, earning enough votes to check in at No. 31.

It marked the first time K-State has received votes in the AP poll since the Oct. 3, 2004, ranking. The Wildcats last received votes in the USA Today Coaches' poll on Sept. 25, 2005, and had never earned votes in the new Harris poll before Sunday.

Associated Press

NFL | Miami jumps out to lead, holds on to beat Chiefs 13-10

MIAMI — The Miami Dolphins harried Damon Huard, stymied Larry Johnson and overcame their own sputtering offense.

Kansas City was denied a first down until almost halftime, and a trick play set up the Dolphins' lone touchdown to help them beat the Chiefs 13-10.

The Dolphins took an early 13-point lead, but they missed chances to build an even bigger cushion because of a sputtering attack. Questionable playcalling by Miami helped keep the outcome in doubt until the final moments.

With the Dolphins nursing a 13-3 lead midway through the fourth quarter, they tried a reverse, but the result was the lone turnover of the game, with receiver Chris Chambers failing to come up with the handoff from running back Ronnie Brown.

The ball bounced to defensive end Jared Allen, who ran 20 yards to the 20. Kansas City scored four plays later on a 2-yard run by Johnson.

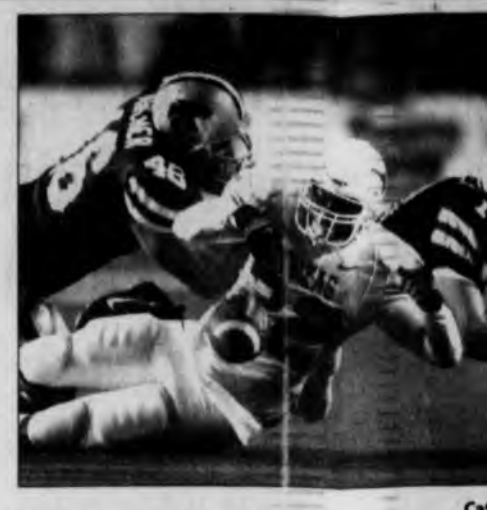
Kansas City got the ball back at its 14 with 3:10 left, but Miami made one final defensive stand, and Huard's incompletion on fourth-and-12 at the Chiefs' 36 sealed the outcome.

SOC | Houston beats New England in penalty kicks to win MLS title

FRISCO, Texas — Brian Ching scored the tying goal for Houston a little more than a minute after New England's Taylor Twellman struck what appeared to be the game-winner in overtime, and the Dynamo won 4-3 on penalty kicks Sunday to win the MLS Cup.

Faced with a must-goal in the fifth and final set of penalty kicks, Houston goalkeeper Pat Onstad blocked Jay Heaps' line drive to the left side of the net to give the Dynamo a championship in their first year in Houston.

The loss was the third defeat in the league championship for the Revolution, who lost 1-0 in overtime to Los Angeles last year. New England also made the final game and lost in 2002.



Key plays that led to K-State's win over

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Quarterback Colt McCoy scores from 1 yard out in the first quarter to put the Longhorns up early. McCoy was injured on the play and did not return.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Wide receiver Yamon Figurs catches a 36-yard pass from quarterback Josh Freeman in the first quarter to even the score at seven.

Ca
Safety Andrew Erker's (right) hit caused running fumble, which was recovered by Ian Campbell at the T

Coach Prince delivers his signature win

Ron Prince stood at the podium, a Texas-sized grin plastered across his face.

The question was something to the effect of, "Do you realize you're the first coach in the history of the universe to run a wide receiver pass and a halfback pass on consecutive plays?"

AUSTIN MEEK

Prince scanned the room full of reporters and gave his answer.

"I'm not going to say 'bold and daring,' because you all will laugh," he said.

See, Prince has used that phrase about 12,000 times in the last three months (not that anyone's counting). He probably has coffee cups and bath towels that say "bold and daring." It's just who he is.

Prince's bold and daring philosophy has been discussed, dissected and maligned since K-State's first play of the season, a deep pass that was intercepted.

Now, after an improbable 45-42 upset of No. 4 Texas, the last laugh is Prince's.

First, let's make it clear that this was a truly remarkable football game.

Sometimes, in the rosy afterglow of postgame celebrations, games grow like tall tales. Exciting games become epics by the time last call rolls around at Rusty's.

But this game was the real thing. Each team won and lost about five times.

- Texas converted a fourth down, scored a touchdown and lost its starting quarterback – all on the same play.
- The Wildcats, who said all week they needed a perfect game to beat Texas, gave up 14 points on two disastrous special teams plays.
- Four Wildcats attempted passes, and it would have been five if punter Tim Reyer hadn't been sacked on a fake punt.
- Texas gained more yards, picked up more first downs, ran 21 more plays than K-State – and still lost.

In this topsy-turvy game, the only constant was Prince. He never let up and never went conservative, even when Texas mounted the inevitable fourth-quarter charge.

"We knew they were going to go on a run. That's just how it is," Prince said. "They have too many good players, terrific coaches.

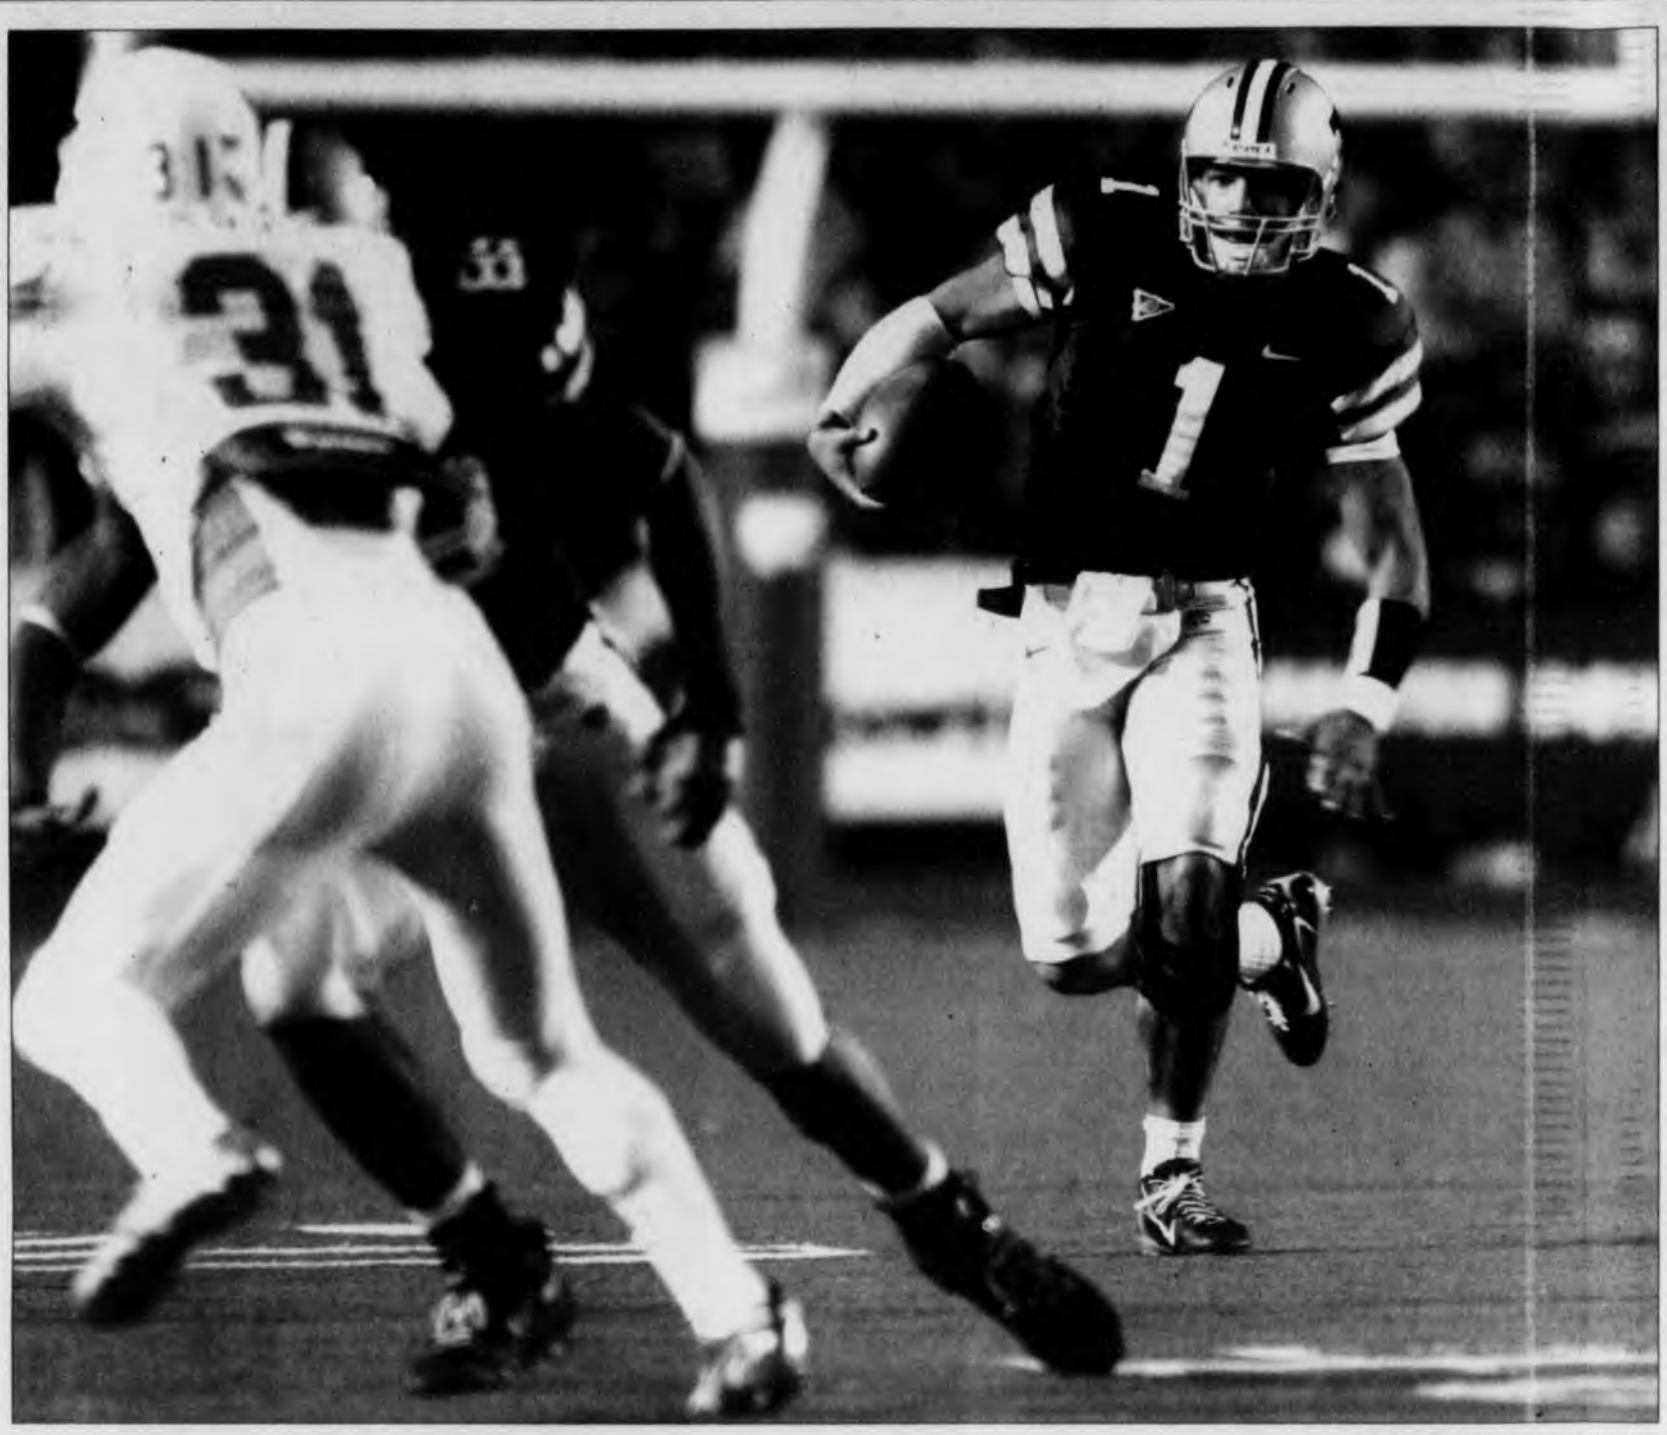
"We were going to respond. We were going to stay aggressive and pass the ball if we needed to."

The proof came with 53 seconds remaining and K-State facing third-and-6. Another coach would have run the ball, milked the clock, put his defense back on the field. But that's not Prince.

It all goes back to a lesson he learned from Al Groh, his old boss at Virginia.

"He told me something I'll never forget. He said, 'Think players first, then plays,'" Prince recalled.

"Those were my words before we went out there. I told Josh (Freeman), 'Don't throw to anybody but Jordy Nelson. He's our best player.'"



Sure enough, Freeman avoided a sack, dumped the ball to Nelson, and K-State fans began their assault on the Snyder Family Stadium goal posts.

A few weeks ago, K-State was mired in a losing streak, and former coach Bill Snyder begged fans to support Prince.

Now Prince has put his stamp on the program by pulling off one of the biggest upsets in K-State history. He might even be Coach of the Year in the Big 12 Conference. It's a bold prediction, but that's what Prince is all about.

And that's no joke.

Austin Meek is a senior in public relations. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Photos by Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
K-State quarterback Josh Freeman drives down the field Saturday in the Wildcats' 45-42 win over Texas. Freeman threw for 269 yards and three touchdowns and ran for another touchdown in Saturday's win over the No. 4-ranked Longhorns.

UPSET | Freeman finishes game with 269 yards passing, career-high 3 touchdowns

Continued from Page 1

True freshman Josh Freeman responded to all the national exposure with one of his best performances of the season. His three touchdown throws were a career high, and the 269 passing yards was his second-highest mark of the year.

On Sunday, Freeman was named the Walter Camp Football Foundation National Offensive Player of the Week and is one of four players nationally to be nominated for the Cingular All-America Player of the Week.

"I feel like the game is slowing down for me," Freeman said. "I feel like I'm improving every week, and that's my goal."

Freeman threw one touchdown and rushed for another during a three-minute span in the third quarter when the Wildcats scored three touchdowns and went ahead of the Longhorns 42-21.

The first touchdown pass during K-State's 21-point outburst was not thrown by Freeman, however. Running back Leon Patton completed a halfback pass to wide receiver Cedric Wilson for an 18-yard touchdown. The play call was even more shocking, because on the previous play, Freeman threw a backward pass to Nelson who then found tight end Rashaad Norwood with a 28-yard throw.

"We're going to try to make a little of our own luck, and we're going to try to make a little of our fortune," Prince said. "We'll force the issue if we have to."

Texas responded with touchdowns on two of its next three possessions to cut K-State's lead to 42-35. However, the game was all but over after kicker Jeff Snodgrass hit a 51-yard field goal to put the Wildcats up by 10 with about three minutes left on the clock.

"(Coach Prince) has always had a lot of faith in me, and I thank him for that," Snodgrass said. "We always joke around, and he always talks about how we're going to go for it when we cross mid-field. It is one of those things that I am glad he has enough confidence."

K-State football coach Ron Prince cheers on his team Saturday win over Texas. The Wildcats improved their record to 7-4 and 4-3 in Big 12 Conference play.

Jake Maurer, sophomore in construction science, waves a K-State flag in Aggieville after the Wildcat football team beat the then No. 4-ranked Texas Longhorns. Many students and fans flocked to Aggieville after the win.

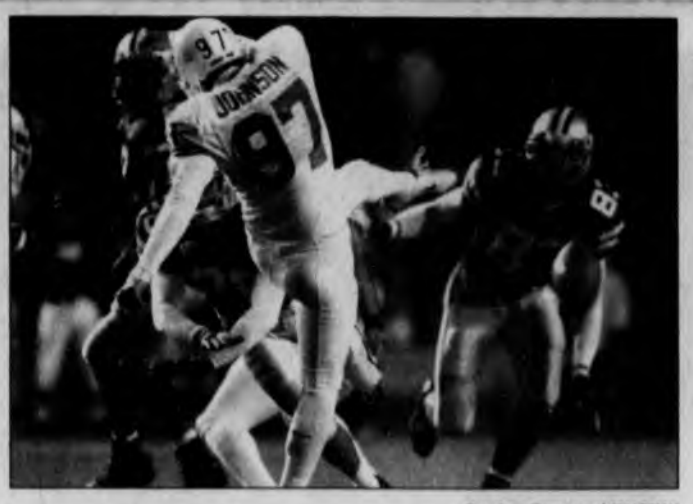
Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

Jubilant students

By Jessi Hernandez
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Terry Jenkins didn't expect Saturday's football game against Texas to be exciting. In fact, Jenkins, a Manhattan resident, thought K-State was in for a beating – a rough one.

"But then we just came out strong and kept taking it to them," he said. "I was really impressed with our offense, but our defense had its moments, too. It was a great game to watch."



Jenkins said he felt confident K-State had sealed the win when it scored in the third quarter to lead by three touchdowns. He had one thing on his mind – celebration.

"My first th was official, 'A gieville,'" he sa
Jenkins was a thought. Fro ended, fans slo tan's notorious a.m., Aggieville
There was of fans down
main artery –
were unable t had something spite the difficu
K-State fans fo outside the do
bars, waiting to
"I think it's

e's win over No. 4 Texas on Saturday

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
t) hit caused running back Selvin Young to by Ian Campbell at the Texas 30-yard line.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
John McCardle (left) blocks Greg Johnson's punt in the third quarter. Daniel Gonzalez (right) recovered the ball, leading to another Wildcat touchdown.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN
Wide receiver Jordy Nelson's extra effort on third-and-6 gave the Wildcats a first down and sealed their win over the Longhorns.

awson | COLLEGIAN
an for another

downs

over Texas. The one of those e has enough

Analysis

3 'bold and daring' play calls alter course of game

Prince uses unheard-of pattern of consecutive trick plays in win

By Nick Dunn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Coach Ron Prince has sounded like a broken record throughout the season, always talking about how he wants to be "bold and daring" in his game strategy.

His play calls drew criticism earlier in the season, but the coach brought out all of his tricks for Saturday's 45-42 stunner over Texas.

The game almost turned into something you could only see on a video game.

There were fake punts and halfback passes.

Even the Longhorns got in on the action when they tried a wide receiver reverse pass in the third quarter that star receiver Limas Sweed dropped.

"I'm not going to say 'bold and daring,' because you all (media) will laugh," Prince said. "It was one of those, 'What the heck? You're playing the No. 4 team in the country.' And they didn't wake up this morning thinking they were going to give us this game. We were going to have to go snatch it."

K-State used a variety of crazy play calls to "snatch" the victory, but there were three in particular that changed the course of the game.

"I'm not going to say 'bold and daring' because you all (the media) will laugh. It was one of those, 'What the heck? You're playing the No. 4 team in the country.' And they didn't wake up this morning thinking they were going to give us this game. We were going to have to go snatch it."

Ron Prince
COACH

FAKE PUNT

With the game tied 7-7 at the beginning of the second quarter, the Wildcats faced a fourth-and-7 from their own 30-yard line. Instead of simply punting the ball away, Prince set the tone early and called a fake punt pass.

The play didn't exactly go as planned. Punter Tim Reyer was sacked and then fumbled, and Texas picked up the ball at the K-State 4-yard line and scored three plays later to take a 14-7 lead.

– Grade: D+

WIDE RECEIVER PASS

The game was tied 21-21 midway through the third quarter when the madness really began. At the Texas 46-yard line, quarterback Josh Freeman dropped back and fired the ball to wide receiver Jordy Nelson.

Nelson caught it and immediately hurled it down the field to tight end Rashaad Norwood for a 28-yard gain.

The timing and execution were perfect; Texas was caught completely off guard.

– Grade: A

HALFBACK PASS

Just when you thought the tricks were over, Prince surprised everyone in the stadium. On the ensuing play, running back Leon Patton took a pitch from Freeman and hit wide receiver Cedric Wilson for an 18-yard touchdown.

The fact that it is almost unheard of to call back-to-back trick plays is precisely why it worked. It required a great throw from the running back, and Patton delivered.

"I was confident in Patton," Wilson said. "We practiced it all week, and he was on the money."

– Grade: A+

Although Prince was aggressive throughout the game, he still had the sense to kick attempt a 51-yard field goal when the Wildcats had a fourth-and-1 in the fourth quarter.

Kicker Jeff Snodgrass nailed it, and those three points proved to be the difference in the game.

"Coach has a lot of confidence in me, and I'm thankful for that," Snodgrass said. "I'm glad he had enough confidence."

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN
Wide receiver Cedric Wilson catches an 18-yard touchdown pass from running back Leon Patton in third quarter. The play was part of back-to-back trick plays called by coach Prince to give the Wildcats a 28-21 lead.

udents, fans pack into Aggieville bars to celebrate stunning victory

"My first thought after (the victory) was official, 'All right, I'm going to Aggieville,'" he said.

Jenkins wasn't the only one with such a thought. From the moment the game ended, fans slowly trickled into Manhattan's notorious bar district, and by 12:45 a.m., Aggieville was in full swing.

There was never a big procession of fans down Moro Street, Aggieville's main artery – the goal posts students were unable to tear down might have had something to do with that. But despite the difficulties, hundreds of raucous K-State fans formed lines that stretched outside the doors of several Aggieville bars, waiting to join in the celebration.

"I think it's awesome; we're ecstatic," said Dexter Deeds, sophomore in pre-professional architectural engineering.

Deeds was headed with friends to Rusty's Last Chance Restaurant & Saloon.

"Yeah, we owned. We pretty much owned," John Leonard, sophomore in open option, said.

Deeds, Leonard and Brent Swart, sophomore in open option, said they were shocked and excited by the Wildcats' play and repeated more than once that they were thrilled about the win.

"Now we're going to the bars," Leonard said. "You know, to socialize. We're socialites."

With what presumably would become a larger-than-normal influx of people, safety in the area was a concern, but the Riley County Police Department didn't expect any significant problems, Officer Dequaan Simmons said.

"People (are) coming down, doing what they need to do to have fun, and we're just going to be watching out, making sure nobody gets hurt," he said. "We've got some extra patrolmen coming out just to make sure everybody's safe and taken care of and to make sure everybody just has fun instead of getting into any crazy stuff."

Michelle Edwards, Manhattan resident, said she was excited to celebrate in Aggieville but didn't know if the festivities would be as thrilling as the game.

"It was iffy – I thought we were gonna get clobbered at first," Edwards said. "But then (K-State) turned it around, and I was like 'Oh, that is right!' I was yelling the whole time.

"With (Texas quarterback Colt) McCoy out, I was thinking maybe we had a fighting chance, but I'm telling you, second half, I knew it. In the third quarter, how could you not know? We had it in the bag."

People make their way in and out of the patio area behind Rusty's Last Chance on Saturday night after K-State's three-point victory over Texas.

Steven Doll
COLLEGIAN

Actors share childhood anecdotes, life lessons in play

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A walk down memory lane was coupled with lessons about life at the performance of "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten."

The opening-night performance played to a full house Friday evening. The play, given at the Manhattan Arts Center, included a 12-person cast performing scenes and musical numbers from various works by author Robert Fulghum.

Theme music to "The Dick Van Dyke Show," "The Andy Griffith Show" and "I Dream of Jeannie" kept audience members humming and reminiscing before the performance. Comments like "I remember watching this when I was little" floated around as the canned music played.

The play was a mixture of anecdotes from young children in school plus stories from various life experiences – everything from wedding calamity to struggle with aging.

The theme of past childhood memories was tied into all aspects of the evening, including childhood photos of cast and crew members in the programs as well as an after-glow party of cupcakes, crispy-rice treats and old videos.

Penny Senften, executive director of the arts center, said she thought the evening went well, and she heard positive comments about the event. Senften said she also was pleased with the variety of ages of cast members, including veterans of the art center's stage in addition to newcomers.

"We had a lot of talented people," she said. "It was a good mix."

Carolyn Mayo, director of the show, said the performance went well. Thursday night's dress rehearsal required a little extra time for actors to get into character, Mayo said, but everything clicked on Friday.

"Tonight, I felt like they got on the track right away," she said.

Mayo said her favorite part of the play is "Reflect the Light," a piece that addresses the meaning of life and how humankind is a reflection of light and goodness.

At the end of the performance, the company held small mirrors toward the stage lights, letting light bounce around the room and into the audience to illustrate the principle of humans' perpetuation of goodness.

At Friday's performance, Mayo said she enjoyed listening to the audience's response to the piece titled "Spider." The piece was the story of a woman who walked into a spider's web outside her house, acting out both the position of the woman and that of the spider. During this piece, the company also entertained the audience with the classic children's tune, "The Itsy, Bitsy Spider."

While the crowd was quick to giggle and laugh, Mayo said she was just as pleased to watch audience members lean forward in their seats, intently listening to an actor's monologue.

"I love the silences, too," she said.

Robert Copeland, Manhattan resident, and Nancy Rumley, graduate student in marriage and family therapy, said they came to the performance to see a friend act.

When Copeland heard the production would incorporate several musical numbers, he said he expected more music and singing, after seeing musicals in which every piece is sung.

"It was a lot different than I thought it would be," he said. "A lot of life's lessons."

Rumley said she thought the performance was heartfelt with good costuming and acting.

"I thought all of them are doing a great job getting into the character," she said.

Catrina Rawson | COLLEGIAN

Actors rehearse for the play "All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten" at the Manhattan Arts Center. The play included a 12-person cast performing scenes and musical numbers from various works by author Robert Fulghum.

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Inventory
COUNT on us
For a Great Opportunity
RGIS Inventory Specialists
Is currently accepting applications for:
Inventory Takers
•Weekday, evening and weekend hrs.
•Paid training
•10-key experience helpful
•No experience necessary
•Competitive wages
Call Now!
24HRS
To pre-qualify
1888-242-7447
www.RGISINV.com
An equal opportunity employer

ATTENTION Faculty...Staff
Ask why discerning faculty members have us manage their Regents' Retirement Plan Accounts
Kramer Capital Management
601 Leavenworth - Manhattan
785-539-0110
www.rickkramer.com
email with subject: "Regent Plan" to rgkramer@cox.net

PAT'S PAWN & GUN SHOP, INC.
WE BUY, SELL, AND TRADE
GUNS
SMITH & WESSON
HANDGUNS • RIFLES
COLT • RUGER
SHOTGUNS
MON-FRI 9 a.m.- 6 p.m.
SAT 9 a.m.- 5 p.m.
506 Riley St • Ogden
539-0151

dependable, quality service
√5¢ self-serve copies
Claflin Books and Copies

DON'T FORGET TO CHECK OUT
MENU MANIA
LOCATED ON PAGE 3 OF YOUR K-STATE COLLEGIAN
To Advertise In Menu Mania Call 532-6560

$1.50 Wells
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL Aggieville

Support the Cats with KSU Crocs!
Brown's Shoe Fit Co.
311 Poyntz Ave. 785-776-6612

SEPTEMBER 15 – OCTOBER 15 ONLY!
OLD CHICAGO'S
30TH ANNIVERSARY
30 UNFORGETTABLE DAYS OF NEW FLAVORS AND FREE DOUGH!
WIN $30,000 IN OUR ANNIVERSARY SWEEPSTAKES!
See rules for details. Must be 21 or older to enter.
DELICIOUS NEW TASTES
★ STARTING AT JUST ★
$7.99
110 BREWS OLD CHICAGO PASTA & PIZZA
100 Manhattan Town Center
3rd St and Poyntz Ave
785.537.3322
www.oldchicago.com

Call 776-5577 PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Car Clinic, INC.
Before you roll out for the holidays,
Roll by to make sure you get there.
We're right on your way out of town!
• Tune ups, electrical repairs
• Heater & A/C service
• Computer engine analysis
• Transmission services
• Mon.-Fri. 7:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
AAA Approved Auto Repair
NAPA AutoCare Center
ASE CERTIFIED
214 Colorado 539-1040

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

150 Sublease

SPRING SUBLEASE - three-bedroom, one and one-half bath apartment, spacious, ample parking, good Landlord, walk to campus! $795/ month. 785-539-5429.

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

DOES YOUR student organization need a website? My web design class is looking for a project to complete. If you are interested, please contact Michael Barnes at barnesm@ksu.edu, or call 785-341-9483.

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

CAMERA FOUND at City Park. 785-564-1197.

LOST: LONGHAIR Jack Russell Terrier, lost on Bertrand. Brown patch over eye and scar under ear. Brown leather collar. Contact 785-230-9298.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

135 Sale-Mobile Homes

14X70 NEWLY remodeled, two-bedroom, two bathroom home, reasonable lot rent, 6228 Sparrow Lane #61, Rocky Ford Trailer Court. 785-565-0525.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed. Three-bedroom, two bath. Washer and dryer included. No smoking. No pets. Call Danielle at 785-806-4324.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share 3 bedroom apartment near campus. $250 per month plus 1/3 utility. Available January 1st. 785-537-1746.

ROOMMATES WANTED: Five-bedroom house, January through May. Close to campus, washer/ dryer, $290 plus one-fifth utilities. 913-206-5289.

150 Sublease

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY one-bedroom apartment, 800 square feet, lease ends July 2007, off of Manhattan Avenue, $505 a month. 785-313-2751.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. Four-bedroom, two bath. Close to campus. $300 plus one-fourth utilities. Call Jake 913-378-3395.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed January: One-bedroom in two- bedroom at 2215 College Avenue. Two full bathrooms. Furnished. $360. Call 785-479-1235.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed January: one bedroom in two-bedroom, two full bathroom at University Crossing. $375, furnished. 913-744-9994. emthomas@ksu.edu for pictures.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted to share two-bedroom house. Pets ok. $350/ month plus one-half utilities. Call Ashley. 816-215-7474.

ONE TO Three subleasers needed spring 2007 for three-bedroom, one and one half bath apartment, one minute walk to campus. $780 per month or $260 per person plus electricity. Contact: dgray@ksu.edu or 913-481-1334.

SUBLEASER NEEDED, spring 2007 semester. $350/ month. Nice, newer, three-bedroom house, built 1997. 785-221-2282.

SUBLEASER WANTED $325 per month, plus utilities. Across street from campus, off street parking. Available January 2007- August 2007. 763-439-8926.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed for January. Two-bedroom apartment close to Aggieville and campus. $400 plus utilities. 816-668-9223, 913-709-8615.

TWO-BEDROOM apartment. Close to campus/ aggieville. Fireplace and deck. January 1st or sooner. $600/ month. Call 785-341-5683.

Find a Job
Help Wanted Section

Call 785-532-6555 to advertise here

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HELP NEEDED with fall yard clean up. Includes cleaning out flower beds and raking leaves. Work your schedule. Call 785-539-1086.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

310 Help Wanted

INFANT CHILD CARE at Manhattan residence close to campus. Will work with YOUR schedule. Looking for responsible and dependable person who loves babies and needs a little extra cash. Need help approx. 10- 20 hours per week. Hourly rate negotiable. Call 630-430-3323/ email angelbb19@hotmail.com.

INTERNET MARKETING outdoor travel booking agency www.adventuresoutdoor.com. Help needed with search engine optimization. Experience helpful. 5 - 10 hours per week. Good pay. Contact Mitch Trumpp 913-449-5830.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEWSPAPER DISPATCHER The Manhattan Mercury is accepting applicaitons for the position of Newspaper Dispatcher. This is a part-time entry-level position. Shifts include weekdays 4:-30 p.m. to 7:30- 8:00 p.m. and Sunday 6:00 a.m. to 12 noon. Weekly hours and days scheduled vary. Successful applicants will possess a valid Kansas Drivers License and a dependable vehicle. Vehicle mileage is reimbursed. Apply at or send letter of application to: The Manhattan Mercury, 318 North 5th, Manhattan, Kansas. Manhattan Mercury is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.-ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

PERSONAL CARE Attendant needed in Manhattan to assist a person with a disability. For more information contact Christine at 1-800-569-5926.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

SEASONAL WORKERS needed for bell ringing from November 10 - December 23 in Manhattan and Junction City. Starting pay $6.50. Come to 310 Point in Manhattan or 117 West 7th in Junction City to fill out an application.

SERVERS WANTED. Manhattan Country Club is now hiring servers for all shifts. Apply in person 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

TECHNICAL SUPPORT positions available for K-State student with a variety of skills. Must have good interpersonal problem solving skills. Experience with PCs and popular software packages such as Microsoft Word, Microsoft Excel, WordPerfect, QuattroPro and Windows applications desired. Must have understanding of Microsoft Windows and Dos Commands. Windows networking and computer hardware knowledge preferred. Applications available/ accepted through Friday, November 17, 2006, in 211 Umberger Hall. (Department of Communications, Information & Educational Technology.)

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

VICTORIA'S SECRET in Manhattan Town Center, now hiring part-time seasonal help. Must be available most weekends now through January 15 and the weeks prior to and of Thanksgiving and Christmas. To join our team apply in the store this week.

400 Open Market

445 Music Instruments

IBANEZ ACOUSTIC/ Electric for sale. Includes hardshell case and guitar humidifier. Only one year old, very nice! Call 316-518-2846.

500 Transportation

510 Automobiles

FOR SALE 2002 Saturn Vue. $8,300 or best offer. 75,000 miles. Runs great. CD, power windows, doors, locks, sunroof. 785-341-1830.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low Prices Guaranteed. Group discounts for 6+. Book 20 people, get 3 free trips! www.Spring-Breakdiscounts.com or 800-838-8202.

Got old stuff?
GET RID OF IT!
in the
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie
532-6555

ADVERTISE IN THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS.
785
532
5555

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
ADVERTISING DESIGN

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Need Some Help?
Advertise it in the Collegian.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie 785-532-6555

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

		3	4		1			7
5		1		9			8
7				2	5	3
		6				2	3
9	5		8		2		6	1
	1	2				9
		7	5	6				3
	6			7		4		9
2			9		4	8

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

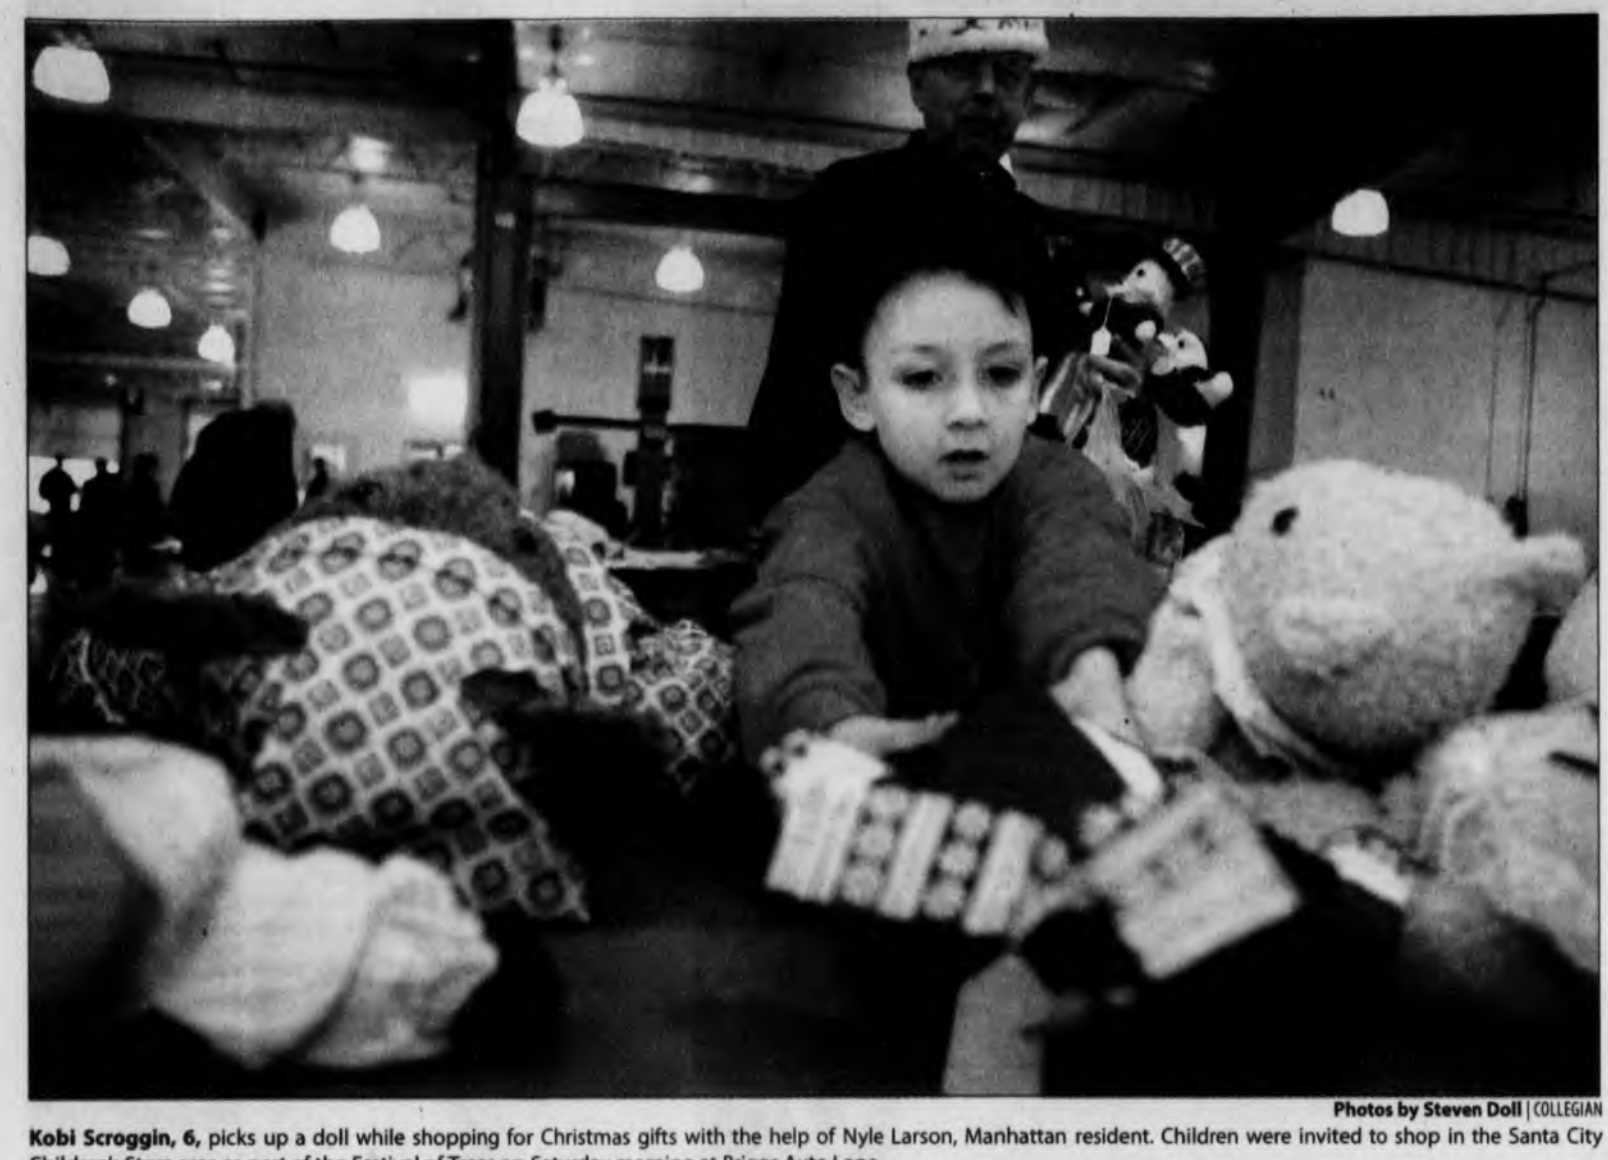
As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.



Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Categories

000 Bulletin Board
100 Housing/Real Estate
200 Service Directory
300 Employment/Careers
400 Open Market
500 Transportation
600 Travel/Trips

Season's start

Photos by Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Kobi Scroggin, 6, picks up a doll while shopping for Christmas gifts with the help of Nyle Larson, Manhattan resident. Children were invited to shop in the Santa City Children's Store area as part of the Festival of Trees on Saturday morning at Briggs Auto Lane.

Decorated Christmas trees, children's shopping add to holiday festivities

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Decorated trees stand on display in Briggs Auto Lane's front room Saturday afternoon. They will remain on display until they are auctioned off at Friday night's Festival of Trees Gala.

A circle of Christmas trees, glittering with lights, ornaments and presents, brightened Briggs Auto Lane Saturday at the Festival of Trees.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program began its annual week-long festival Thursday, and more events and activities were available for families Saturday.

While strolling through the line of Christmas trees, Lori Bishop, executive director of RSVP, pointed out several of the favorites.

"You should see them at nighttime," she said. "They are so different and unique."

Bishop showed off one tree created by Wamego High School students with hand-painted egg ornaments.

"I would love to see more high school groups involved," she said.

After last year's gala, the first at Briggs Auto Lane, Bishop said people began planning trees for this year's festival. This year's trees included several first-time donations.

"This just blows last year out of the water," she said.

Five trees already have received awards.

The Mayor's Choice was "Vintage Manhattan," donated by the New Boston Creative group. The tree was covered with large red and gold balls, vintage photos and ribbons.

The Fallen Heroes award went to a tree boasting an assortment of flags and red, white and blue ornaments. The tree, titled "Season of Service," was donated by the American Humanics Student Association.

"The Tooth about Christmas" was decorated with small tubes of toothpaste and garland accented with ornamental teeth. This tree won the Most Creative category. It was donated by Errol Remsing and Ellen Remsing, two Manhattan dentists.

The Judge's Favorite award was given to Briggs Auto Group's donation. Titled "Cruising Manhattan," the tree was decked with car ornaments.

"Preserving the Holidays," donated by Big Lakes Developmental Center Retirement Group, won Best of Show. It was decorated in warm holiday colors.

All of the trees at the festival will be auctioned off Friday night at the Festival of Trees Gala.

Due to K-State games and other local events, Bishop said there were not as many visitors as she had hoped.

But even a slow stream of people could not keep the holiday spirit away.

The Festival of Treats Cafe, a place where people could buy sandwiches, soups and baked goods, was in full force. Bishop said the cafe made almost $500 in sales on Friday.

By 10 a.m., Bishop said many of the gifts at the Santa City Children's Store, a section of the festival that allowed children to purchase gifts for parents and family members, was already picked through. Gifts at Santa City included handmade jewelry, vases, notebooks, hot cocoa mix, doll clothes, K-State signs and wreaths.

No parents were allowed in the store, and members of the Junior League wrapped the gifts to preserve the surprise.

Devan Garcia, 5, son of a Briggs Auto Lane employee, stood over a box overflowing with Christmas gifts.

"I shopped for everybody," he said with a smile, "and I forgot who I shopped for."

Additionally, K-State's United Methodist Campus Ministry set up a table of baked goods at the festival.

Kandace Harken, senior in elementary education, said the group had seen several people come through to buy sweets, which were all made by students. Harken said the profits from the baked goods would go to a missions trip the UMCM will take to Costa Rica during spring break.

Bishop said she hopes people will continue to visit the festival and vote for a tree for the People's Choice award.

"I would really have a hard time picking one," she said. "We want the community to come out and vote for their favorite."

SOAP NEWS

Luke, Laura wed again on General Hospital after 25 years

NEW YORK (AP) — It's been an eventful 25 years for Laura Spencer since marrying Luke in a fairy-tale wedding seen on television by 30 million people.

She died and was brought back to life. She killed her stepfather. She gave birth to a son by an adulterous affair, and now Nikolas is a single dad after the baby's mother died of a virus. Her other son, Lucky, is addicted to painkillers. Her daughter, Lulu, recently aborted a child after being impregnated by a stepbrother.

Oh, and Spencer spent the last four years in a catatonic state — waking up just in time to marry Luke again this Thursday on "General Hospital," 25 years to the day after their first wedding.

This is a soap opera, after all. Nothing is easy, including ABC's attempt to relive the show's glory days, which has a bittersweet feel because of the actors' conflicted feelings and the slow decline of daytime drama as an institution.

There had never been a more influential soap opera moment than Luke and Laura's wedding. And there never will be again.

"You could walk down the hallway and talk to anyone on our daytime staff and they could tell you where they were when Luke and Laura got married," said Brian Frons, president of daytime TV for the Disney-ABC Television Group.

Carolyn Hinsey was among the crowd around the television set at her Indiana University sorority house. Spencer — like the actress portraying her, Genie Francis — was only 19 at the time and leading a much more glamorous life than the girls in Indiana could imagine, said Hinsey, now editor of Soap Opera Weekly.

The relationship had creepy overtones, since Luke had raped Laura two years earlier, yet it captured the imagination. Francis and her TV husband, Anthony Geary, landed on the cover of Newsweek. Elizabeth Taylor appeared on their show. Another fairy-tale bride of the time, Princess Diana, reportedly sent champagne.

"I didn't really understand how big it was," Francis said. "I really enjoyed all my time at work. The hard time was when I was not working. Fortunately, there were not many of those hours."

She was still a teenager, idolized by her peers. Yet, she was lonely.

Geary had an even tougher time.

"It just wasn't anything that I was prepared to deal with as an actor, because I was in daytime," he said. "We were international celebrities but still considered small-screen. People didn't take it seriously, and those that did took it too seriously. It was a very, very odd place to be."

Seeking a place where he could freely walk unrecognized, he moved to Amsterdam, where he still lives today.

"He'd go to events and women would come up to him and go, `rape me, Luke,' which I guess is a bit disorienting," Hinsey said.

Neither Francis nor Geary were enthusiastic when ABC suggested revisiting the time with another wedding. Producers, writers and other actors didn't like it, either, Geary said.

There were complicating factors, like Luke being married to another woman, but that's barely a distraction when you've already resurrected a dead character (a soap opera, remember?). The actors came around to appreciating the new story, and Francis was coaxed into returning after having been away from the show for four years.

Geary said he liked how "General Hospital" uses the wedding to draw unfamiliar viewers into the ongoing stories of their TV children.

That's the ultimate goal: to revive a television format that time seems to have passed by.

"General Hospital" averaged 3.4 million viewers last season, less than a third of the 11.8 million who typically tuned in during the year of the wedding, according to Nielsen Media Research. The most popular soap, "The Young and the Restless," has seen its audience drop from 10.3 million during the 1991-92 season to 5.3 million last year, while "All My Children" tumbled from 8.2 million to 3.1 million during the same period, Nielsen said.

THIS WEEK... A look at events that occurred during this week in history, other bizarre holidays, happenings

TODAY — 1907: Katharine Hepburn born in Connecticut

Katharine Hepburn was born in Hartford, Conn. The daughter of New England intellectuals who stressed rigorous exercise and independent thinking, Hepburn studied at Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania. She then became a stage actress.

Her first movie, "A Bill of Divorcement" with John Barrymore, was a hit. She went on to win three Oscars, for "Morning Glory" (1933), "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" (1967), and "The Lion in Winter" (1968).

TUESDAY — 1991: Credit card interest caps considered

In 1991, the American economy was in the throes of a slump. On this day, the press reported that President George H.W. Bush and the U.S. Senate considered a move to place limits on credit card interest rates to reverse these woes. Needless to say, this notion didn't sit well with Wall Street; a day of panicked trading ensued, and the Dow posted a hefty 120-point loss.

WEDNESDAY — America Recycles Day

Celebrate America Recycles Day by starting your own recycling tradition — reduce, reuse, recycle. Items like paper, aluminum and plastic are among the most popular items to recycle, and several places in Manhattan provide recycling options (and some places even give you a little cash just to be Earth-friendly).

THURSDAY — 1970: Ky defends South Vietnamese operations

South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, speaking at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, said Cambodia would be overrun by communist forces within 24 hours if South Vietnamese troops operating there were withdrawn.

Ky described the Cambodian operation of the previous spring (the so-called "Cambodian Incursion," in which former President Nixon had sent U.S. and South Vietnamese soldiers into Cambodia to destroy North Vietnamese base camps) as the "turning point" of the war. As a result of that operation, Ky said the enemy was forced to revert to low-level guerrilla warfare.

Ky also reported that his government was concerned the Nixon administration might yield to the "pressure of the antiwar groups" and pull out the remaining U.S. troops too quickly.

FRIDAY — 1994: Sony Pictures writes off Columbia

Sony's move to purchase Columbia Pictures in 1989 sounded like a great idea. The $5 billion acquisition enabled the electronics hardware giant to spread its tentacles into the world of entertainment software, thus creating lucrative opportunities for product synergy.

However, Columbia proceeded to release a string of flops, including the "The Last Action Hero," and Sony's dream quickly turned sour. Faced with staggering losses, including $3.2 billion in the second quarter of 1994, Sony officials decided on this day in 1994 to swallow a bitter financial pill and take a $2.7 billion write-off on the studio, since renamed Sony Pictures.

Source: History Channel; Photos: courtesy art.

Kansas State University Libraries
SHORT CUTS

Nothing is a waste of time if you use the experience wisely.
– Auguste Rodin

Do You "GET IT"? by J. Brooks-Kieffer

K-State Libraries released a new service recently. The service's name is Get It, and we know you like what it does. Since August 21, the first day of the semester, you've used GET IT over 14,000 times. Very impressive.

In case you haven't yet, here's how you can GET IT, too:

1. Search your favorite Library database: (http://www.lib.ksu.edu/db/index.html)

2. Pick an article with a giant purple GET IT button.

3. Click the button.

4. A pop-up window will show you what services are available.

5. Follow GO to the service you want, and watch GET IT do the work for you:

- Get full text from another database.
- Get a print copy in K-State Libraries.
- Get it from another library.

6. Smile at a friend and say, "Now I GET IT!"

Look for GET IT in K-State Libraries' databases you already use. It's big, purple, and convenient. What's not to like?

GET IT

As proud as we are to offer GET IT, we literally could not have done it without you. Last year K-State students awarded us a grant to purchase the technology behind GET IT.

To say it was "electrifying" does not capture the effect; it was more like being struck by lightning.

from The Shakespeare Wars: Clashing Scholars, Public Fiascoes, Palace Coups
by Ron Rosenbaum

Google and Beyond by J. Coleman

Tired of wading through 1,023,415 results every time you ego surf or want to look up the population of Montenegro? Wondering whether there are any search tools that are fresher, cooler, or more effective than Google? If so, you should attend K-State Libraries' Effective Web Searching Class. The 60-minute class will show you some simple, yet powerful techniques for improving the quality of your Google searches and will also introduce you to eight search tools that do things Google doesn't. Don't worry: the instructor won't endeavor to turn you into a master searcher or endow you with super geek powers. His goal is merely to make you a bit wiser, a tad happier, and a wee bit more Francophilic. The class is free, open to everyone, and does not require sign-up. Just show up at any of the following times and places:

Monday, Nov. 20th
(2:30pm-3:30pm) Hale 408

Thursday, Dec. 7th
(1:30pm-2:30pm) Hale 408

A streaming video of this presentation is available at:
mms://wms.oznet.ksu.edu/techbytes/Fall2005/TechBytes_SearchEngine.wmv

mrsapo
Clusty
Answers.com exalead
grokker

Subscribe to the Short Cuts blog feed: http://ksulib.typepad.com/shortcuts/index.rdf

November 2006
Basic Library Classes
Reception Desk
Nov. 1 Wednesday 11:30am-12:30pm
Nov. 2 Thurs. 11:00am-12:00 noon
Nov. 3 Friday 11:30am-12:30pm
Nov. 5 Sunday 3:30-4:30pm
Nov. 6 Monday 2:00-3:00pm
Nov. 6 Monday 7:30-8:30pm
Nov. 7 Tuesday 8:00-9:00pm
Nov. 8 Wed. 11:30am-12:30pm
Nov. 9 Thursday 2:00-3:00pm
Nov. 10 Friday 1:30-2:30
Nov. 12 Sunday 3:30-4:30pm
Nov. 13 Monday 7:30-8:30pm
Nov. 14 Tuesday 11:00am-12:00 noon
Nov. 14 Tuesday 8:00-9:00pm
Nov. 15 Wed. 11:30am-12:30pm
Nov. 16 Thursday 1:30-2:30pm
Nov. 17 Friday 2:30-3:30pm
Nov. 19 Sunday 3:30-4:30pm
Nov. 20 Monday 10:00-11:00am
Nov. 26 Sunday 3:30-4:30pm
Nov. 27 Monday 1:30-2:30pm
Nov. 27 Monday 7:30-8:30pm
Nov. 28 Tuesday 1:30-2:30pm

Science & Technology
Classroom 408
Nov. 8 Wednesday 2:30-3:30pm
Nov. 29 Wednesday 3:00-4:00pm

How to Find a Journal Article
Classroom 408
Nov. 1 Wednesday 1:30-2:30pm
Nov. 8 Wednesday 1:30-2:30pm
Nov. 15 Wednesday 9:30am-10:30am
Nov. 20 Monday 11:30am-12:30pm

Topic Research
Classroom 408
Nov. 2 Thursday 9:30-10:30am
Nov. 7 Tuesday 10:00-11:00am
Nov. 16 Thurs. 12:00 noon - 1:00pm
Nov. 28 Tuesday 10:30-11:30am

RefWorks
Nov. 2 7:30-8:30pm - Derby 1338
Nov. 9 Thursday 9:30-10:30am
Nov. 27 Monday 3:00-4:00pm

Effective Web Searching
Classroom 408
Nov. 7 Tuesday 1:30-2:30pm
Nov. 20 Monday 2:30-3:30pm

24/5 by K. Whitehair

Starting October 3rd after Fall Break, Hale Library has new building hours. Hale Library opened at 7:30am that Tuesday morning and the building will stay open until 8:00pm the following Friday evening (October 6th) . After this, the Hale Library building will be open on Sundays at 1:00pm and will remain open until Friday's closing time of 8:00pm. There are some exceptions for University holidays. The Anita C. Lehner 24-Hour Study Area will be open as it is now, 24/7.

Check out and help hours for Hale Library will remain the same. This means that at 3:00 on an early Thursday morning you can use library computers, copiers, printers, books, and journals in the building, but you won't be able to check out items and service desks will not be staffed.

To take a look at the hours for Hale Library or any of K-State's other libraries, go to the Libraries' homepage (http://www.lib.ksu.edu) and click on "Hours."

News of the World by T.L. Coleman

Looking for a different perspective on the news? Peruse the newspapers in the DOW Multicultural Resource Center (http://www.lib.ksu.edu/depts/dowmrc/index.html) (DOWMRC), like El Chicano, The People's Korea, Taiwan Journal, La Raza, and Native American Times. The DOWMRC collects resources like books and reference items that discuss the many cultures in the United States and around the world. Located on the 3rd Floor of Hale Library, the DOWMRC also has journals and magazines. As with all other current issues of journals and magazines, you can't check them out, but you are welcome to read them in Hale, and, if needed, make photocopies.

Top Ten Things to Find in K-State Libraries When You are Lost by S.K. Kearns

10. A heliodon and a courtyard can be found in the behemoth Seaton Hall. Weigel Library with its "This isn't retro, it's just the furniture we never got rid of" look is on the 3rd Floor of Seaton Hall.
9. Check out the arrows and directions painted on the floors in Hale Library's Stacks. One arrow on Stack Level G leads you to Stack Level H . . . that doesn't exist.
8. Room 123 in Hale Library is open for studying if something isn't scheduled in there. Check the calendar to the right of the door to see if you have time to study before someone boots you out.
7. Historic Farrell Library: an entire library is hidden in Hale Library.
6. The bathrooms. Sorry, all bathrooms in Hale Library are on the east end of the building.
5. An exit. The signs that say EXIT in red (in Hale Library) are emergency exits. If there is a fire, run like hell towards one. Otherwise, exit through the gates on the 2nd Floor (you had to walk through them to get in here).
4. Are you so eager for your Algebra lecture in Cardwell Hall that you arrive early and have time to kill before class? There's a planetarium around the roof and a model EN Tandem Van de Graaff from High Voltage Engineering Corporation (EN-27) (I do not have a clue what this is) in the James R. Macdonald Laboratory. You'll find the Math/Physics Library down a long narrow hallway on the 1st Floor. Since it doesn't have a cool name, you are welcome to donate a whole bunch of money to name it in honor of your dog, BooBoo.
3. "No Smoking" signs in Hale Library Stacks. Note that there is no smoking in University buildings or within 30 feet of signed entrances.
2. Fiedler, Durland, Rathbone. Sure, they're all in the flashcube building, but which is which? My guess is that Fiedler Engineering Library is in Fiedler, but you're on your own after that.
1. 9 public stairwells in Hale Library. Not all stairs lead to all floors.

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com · Tuesday, November 14, 2006 · Vol. 111, No. 62

INSIDE
Marlies Gipson leads basketball team to 94-79 win over Creighton.
Sports, Page 6

Wal-Mart expands $4 prescription drug plan

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Wal-Mart Stores Inc. announced Oct. 26 the extension of its $4 generic prescription program to 12 more states, including Kansas.

The program, which originally was slated for 15 states last month, will allow all Wal-Mart, Neighborhood Market and Sam's Club stores in the 27 participating states to offer $4 prices on 312 generic prescription drugs.

Available prescriptions:
For a complete list of available drugs, visit Wal-Mart's pharmacy or visit the Web site at www.walmartfacts.com.

"We are very proud to be leading this effort to make sure our nation's seniors, working families and uninsured get the medications they need at a price they can afford," said Lee Scott, Wal-Mart president and chief executive officer, in a Wal-Mart press release.

According to the release, generic drugs cost 30 to 60 percent less than brand-name drugs and represent more than 25 percent of current prescriptions. People will not have to show proof of insurance to be part of the $4 generic prescription program.

"Our goal is to respond to customer demand, but to do so in a way that doesn't hamper our ability to serve our customers," said Bill Simon, executive vice president of Wal-Mart's Professional Services Division.

The program will save consumers millions of dollars on common drugs like Fluoxetine and Amoxicillin. Based on September retail prices, Wal-Mart estimates nearly $23.2 million on Fluoxetine and $15.5 million pm Amoxicillin will be saved annually.

Although people will be able to buy generic drugs for less, several

See WAL-MART Page 5

Photo illustration by Zachary T. Eckels | COLLEGIAN

Gov. Sebelius' success comes from ability to pull votes from both sides

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

If a politician was given a box of crayons and a map of the United States, it would come as no surprise if only two colors were used: blue and red.

When that politician colors Kansas, chances are red would adorn the Sunflower State. The Republican party has an overwhelming advantage in Kansas, as 47 percent of the population is registered as Republican, in comparison to the 20 percent registered as Democrat.

However, Kansas re-elected a governor last Tuesday who hails from the Democratic party.

Gov. Kathleen Sebelius won the election by a considerable margin, garnering 58 percent of votes, while her Republican opponent, Jim Barnett, managed 41 percent.

"The economy was doing well, and the state was headed in the right direction," said Joe Aistrup, head of the Department of Political Science. "Usually under those circumstances, an incumbent tends to have a lot of good fortune."

Sebelius is considered by many political analysts to be one of the rising names in U.S. politics. In her first term as governor, Time magazine honored her as one of the nation's top five governors.

"In terms of Kansas politics, she's been a very shrewd governor, and she's done a lot of things that are smart politically," Aistrup said.

The first daughter of a governor to later earn the same job, Sebelius came to Kansas via Ohio. Her father, John J. Gilligan, was elected as Ohio's governor in 1970, but lost a close re-election race in 1974. Although Sebelius said she considered her father her childhood hero, their roles have switched.

"I'm enormously proud of her," Gilligan said in an interview with The Topeka Capital-Journal. "I've been around politics for the better part of 50 years, and I've seen candidates of all shapes and sizes win and lose, and she is a star."

Sebelius began her political career in 1986 in the Kansas House of Representatives. After serving four terms, she served two terms as insurance commissioner before seeking the governor's office. Now a second-term incumbent, she plans to continue her key mission of education.

"We've got a lot of work to do,"

See SEBELIUS Page 7

No verdict issued in 1st Amendment case

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In an appellate court case Monday, judges made no decision regarding a First Amendment lawsuit filed by former Collegian editors.

The case was heard in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 10th Circuit in Denver. Each side was given 15 minutes to present its position.

The court made no ruling but will issue a written opinion, said Pat Doran, the plaintiffs' attorney.

Doran said he does not know what the opinion will say or when it will be issued.

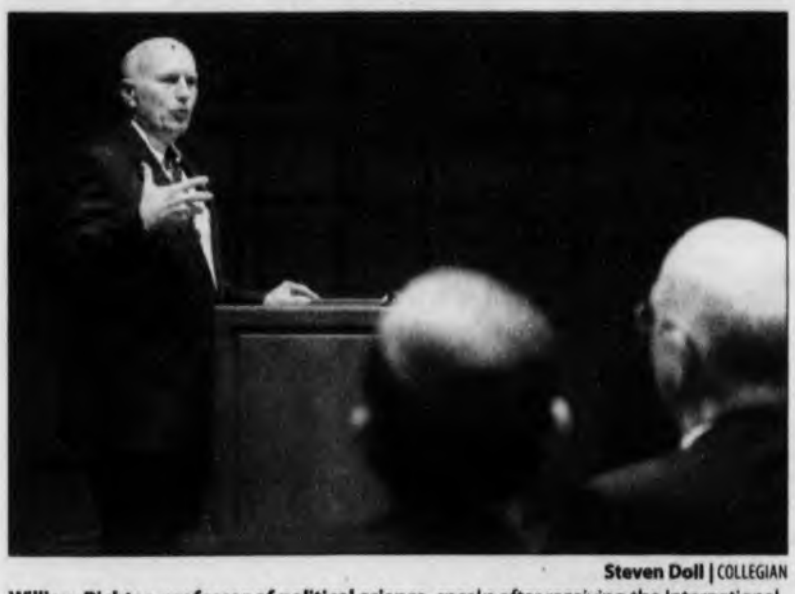
"My guess is that we'll definitely be looking at something in 2007, based upon the usual time it takes to issue a written opinion," he said.

The case, Lane v. Simon, began in June 2004 when Katie Lane, former Collegian editor in chief, and Ron Johnson, former Collegian adviser, filed a lawsuit against Todd Simon, former director of the A.Q. Miller School of Journalism and Mass Communications, and Stephen White, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, following Johnson's reassignment. Sarah Rice, former Collegian managing editor, joined the case in July 2004.

Simon said the reassignment was because of an overall decline in the quality of the Collegian. Lane and Rice, however, maintain the dismissal was due to questions about the newspaper's diversity coverage.

In June 2005, U.S. District Court Judge Julie Robinson said Simon and White did not violate Johnson's and student editors' First Amendment rights. Rice and Lane filed an appeal, but Johnson removed himself from the case. Simon and White later filed a cross appeal in July 2005.

Lane and Rice have received awards because of the lawsuit for their support of collegiate press freedom.



Depending on the appellate court ruling, the court could affirm or reverse the previous ruling. There also is a possibility of further proceeding in the lower court, Doran said.

Doran said a brief was filed on behalf of friends of the court, someone who wasn't a party to the proceeding, but supported Rice's and Lane's position. The friends of the court included College Media Advisers.

"It argued that the action taken by the university administrators constituted the violation of the First Amendment and triggered a chilled environment in the newsroom with regards to the First Amendment right and the freedom of the press," Doran said.

Lane, Simon and White were unable to be reached, and Johnson declined to comment.

Political science professor honored with International Educator Award

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

William Richter, professor of political science, speaks after receiving the International Educator Award Monday afternoon in the Hemisphere Room at Hale Library.

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It was a celebration for William Richter, professor of political science, as he accepted the International Educator Award Monday afternoon in the Hemisphere Room at Hale Library.

Richter was the first associate provost for international programs and has been a part of K-State for more than 40 years.

"He's someone everyone would consider a good friend," said Stephen White, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

As the first associate provost from 1991 to 2002, Richter coordinated the Office of International Programs and expanded international opportunities for K-State students.

He brought in a wide variety of international studies and focused on recruiting international students, strengthening study abroad programs and raising funds for the International Student Center.

"We've seen an increase in the offering of teaching different languages," White said.

K-State President Jon Wefald said Richter's efforts marked the university as a leader in higher education.

Richter also was the head of the Department of Political Science, chair of the Landon Lecture series and director of the South Asia center.

He has made trips around the world as a Fulbright professor, research scholar, consultant and public lecturer.

Wefald said Richter always is ahead of everyone else with his ideas to combinine K-State with international studies and culture.

"You certainly are richly deserving of this award," Wefald told Richter.

Richter said he was honored and surprised to receive the award.

"This is a great honor and very humbling," he said. "It's humbling because I know the people who have won this in the past, and they're amazing."

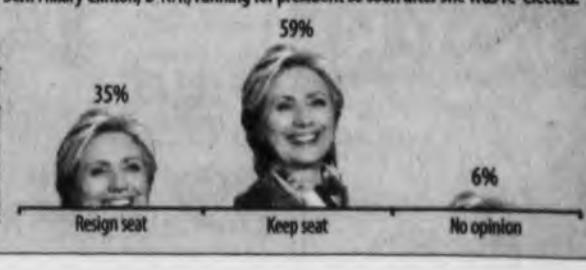
Richter thanked many people, but he said it was his wife Linda who really started all of his

See EDUCATOR Page 7

Today's forecast
PM showers
High: 61 Low: 35

INSIDE

Doggie daycare
A new daycare for dogs has opened in Manhattan where dogs can socialize, play and learn.
See story Page 3



CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Education week
As a part of International Education Week, Dr. Susan Adamchak will speak about meeting women's reproductive needs in the age of AIDS from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. today in the Ramada Plaza Ballroom. For a complete schedule of events for International Education Week, visit www.k-state.edu/oip/events/IntlEdWk.htm.

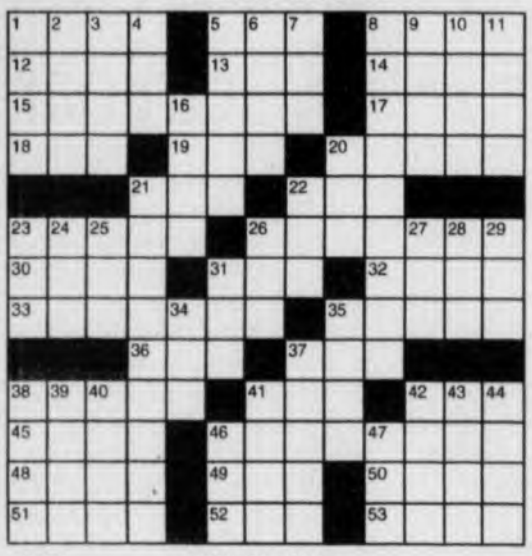
Geography speaker
Isaac Brewer from Pennsylvania State University will give a geography special presentation at 4 p.m. today in Union 207. His lecture is titled "Exploring the Intersections of Emergency Management Intelligence Analysis and GIScience: A Cognitive Systems Engineering Approach Using Nightmare Scenarios."

30 join honor society
The Multicultural Student Honor Society gained about 30 members who were recognized for their academic achievements. Students inducted into the Multicultural Student Honor Society are required to have a cumulative K-State grade point average of 3.0 or above. Transfer students with sophomore standing are eligible to join.

Running so soon?
Although it is common for elected officials to seek the presidency without resigning their seat, there has been debate about how New Yorkers would respond to the idea of Sen. Hillary Clinton, D-N.Y., running for president so soon after she was re-elected.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Cogitosum link
5 Male sib
8 Tropical island
12 Emblem on Canada's flag
13 Listener
14 Grandscale tale
15 Photos of hunky guys
17 Existence, to Antony
18 The Musketeers wanted this ...
19 ... for this
20 Place
21 Tarzan's son
22 Jongg preceder
23 Fencing equipment
26 Witty reply
30 Unembellished
31 Upper limit
32 Conceited
33 Capistrano flier
35 Worked for the ILGWU
36 Menagerie
37 Midmorning
38 Threaded nail
41 Puncturing tool
42 Enjoy the slopes
45 Moby's pursuer
46 Straight paths
48 Diner's card
49 Beluga product
50 Hamilton-Burr event
51 Mop
52 Additionally
53 Look leeringly

DOWN
1 "... ere I saw —"
2 Stagger
3 Highlander
4 Vacationing
5 Cecil's pal
6 Croupier's prop
7 Tramcar contents
8 Schroeder's idol
9 Church section
10 Bart and Maggie's sister
11 On the rocks
16 Doves' remarks
20 Fool
21 The devil
22 Blend
23 Midsummer trio?
24 Worshippers' bench
25 Historic time
26 Uncooked
27 Got a glimpse of 28 Cravat
29 Remnant
31 Barnyard noise
34 Depressed
35 Hawk
37 Tammany Hall boss
38 Snead and Spade
39 Masticate
40 Frog genus
41 Many millennia
42 Cuddled up cozy
43 Main part of a ship's structure
44 Gilligan's home
46 Underwear with underwire
47 Bachelor's last utterance

Solution time: 21 mins.

T	O	G			E	L	F		N	A	P	A
O	V	U	M		V	A	L		E	N	I	D
S	A	R	I		A	N	A		I	D	E	A
S	L	U	S	H		G	R	E	G
			T	U	B		E	T	H	N	I	C
N	O	S	E	G	A	Y		A	B	U	S	E
U	S	E	R		T	A	J		O	D	I	N
B	L	A	R	E		P	O	O	R	E	S	T
S	O	L	O	N	G		B	A	H
			G	E	A	R		R	O	W	A	N
I	S	L	E		M	O	O		O	H	I	O
S	P	A	R		I	L	L		D	I	D	O
M	A	G	S		N	E	D			M	A	N

Yesterday's answer 11-14

11-14 CRYPTOQUIP

J L F V Q L E M I T F T E W E J U Z Y T E J K V L F I Z F Q L ? O Z Y L F O Q L Z E M W L V V E O M I I V L Z O M W E U K V .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: IF A COUPLE OF TINY ARACHNID PARASITES WERE TO SPEAK, WOULD YOU CALL THAT TICK TALK?

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: J equals W

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

What do professors really mean?

Everyone has bad days when they have too much work to do and not enough time to do it. Professors are no exception. Read on for the "real" meanings of what professors tell you when you have a question or when they make announcements during class.

Illustration by Donnie Lee | COLLEGIAN

"This needs some minor revision." = "I never actually got around to reading this."

"My office hours are by appointment only." = "I like to get out of here early."

"Ten percent of your grade is based on class participation." = "I'll be fudging your grades."

"This won't be on the test." = "Nap time."

"Talk to the department secretary." = "Get lost."

"The tests will all be multiple-choice." = "I take questions directly from the study guide and have grad students do all my grading."

"Don't come in late during my lecture." = "I have the attention span of a fruit fly."

"There are two TAs available to help you." = "I can't be bothered."

"Let's break into quiet discussion groups." = "I have a hangover."

"Let's have class outdoors today." = "I had beans for lunch."

"Please note the last day to withdraw." = "The midterm's going to suck."

"I haven't had a chance to make up the syllabus for this course yet." = "The stupid department chair stuck me with teaching this course at the last possible minute."

"Well, it was on the syllabus." = "I'll hold you responsible for this, even though I forgot about it myself."

"Read chapters five through 10." = "I'm not coming in at all next week."

"We'll have to cover this chapter quickly." = "I screwed up on the lecture schedule."

"Let's go over the exam." = "Half of you failed."

"It was in the textbook." = "I pulled it out of my rear."

Source: www.bored.com

The planner
Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jill Bieker at 10 a.m. today in the Practice Management Center in Trotter Hall.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Denise Guy at 10:30 a.m. today in Bluemont 368.

■ "Examining cases of legal liability — or why I always win" will be presented by Seattle-based attorney Bill Marler as part of the Food Safety Network seminar series at 10:30 a.m. today in Forum Hall.

■ There will be a SafeZone training advanced session titled "A View from Under the Rainbow GBLTQ Topics and Information" 5-6:30 p.m. today in Union 212. Check-in is at 4:45 p.m.

■ The Native American Student Association will have a reorganizational meeting 5-6 p.m. today in the Multicultural Student Office in the K-State Student Union.

■ "Not for Sale" will be presented as part of the Fair Trade Film Series 1:30-3 p.m. today in the library at K-State-Salina.

■ The Department of Entomology is searching for a research associate in molecular entomology. A doctoral degree in biological science is required. The application deadline is Wednesday. For more information, call (785) 532-5763.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Adriana Chacon-Cascante at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in Waters 342.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursday. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Huei-Lien Chen at 1 p.m. Thursday in Bluemont 339.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kelly Glodt at 1 p.m. Thursday in Bluemont 106.

■ Dr. Stephen Greb from the Kentucky Geological Survey and the University of Kentucky will present "Future of Coal in the U.S." as part of the Geology Seminar Series at 4 p.m. Thursday in Thompson 213.

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

Corrections and clarifications

There was an error in Monday's Collegian. The Omega Psi Phi blood drive will be on Nov. 27. The Collegian regrets this error. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

Mathews Alley
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2
ALL DRINKS
PREMIUMS, CALLS, DRAWS, SHOTS, BOTTLES
$3.50
BELFAST & ENERGY BOMBS
FREE POOL
NOW HIRING ALL POSITIONS!

TALENT $ Competition
Cash Prizes
1st Place: $500
2nd Place: $300
3rd Place: $200
4th Place: $100
sing...dance...play an instrument!
Open to ANYONE age 14-20. If you are interested, email robertlhedley@hotmail.com for an application and mail it to PO Box 938, Manhattan, KS 6650.

Post 17
AMERICAN LEGION
WIN $$$
Progressive Bingo
Come play....
Sundays at 2:00
Wednesdays at 7:30
...and win BIG!
114 McCall Rd.

We Deliver Late
770-3333
GUMBY'S Pizza
Don't Forget Tonight's
Live Karaoke
Free Giveaways
$1.75 Bud/Bud Light
$2.75 Widmer Wheat
$4.00 Long Island
Buy one get one free Pokey Stix
All Day Today

The Salty Rim
1204 Moro 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$2.50 Domestic Pitchers
$4 Blue Moon Pitchers
1/2 Price Margaritas
$2 Import Bottles
1/2 Price Salsas
Patio Is Open
Now Taking Applications

TUBBY'S
Sports Bar
Tuesday Specials
$2.00 Wells & Shots
$3.00 Energy Drinks & Big Boys
Nip/Tuck Tuesday
Come enjoy the show... at 9pm
On Big Screen
Mon-Tues 4pm -2am • Wed-Sun 11:30am -2am

Union Program Council
upcoming events
Wednesday, November 15
Lunchtime Lounge: Musician Cary Judd
Union Courtyard, ground floor • noon - 1 pm
Friday, November 17
Film: Clerks II - Little Theatre, first floor • 8 & 10:30 pm, $1
Also showing: Saturday, November 18 • 7 & 9:30 pm, $2
Sunday, November 19 • 8 pm, $2
After Hours: Grocery Bingo
Union Courtyard, ground floor • 7 pm - midnight
William T. Kemper Art Gallery
Liz James, Ceramic exhibit, November 13 -28
Upcoming Events
After Hours: Poker Tournament, December 1
Pre-register by November 29
Email your name to upc@ksu.edu or call 532-6571.
upc
301 K-State Student Union • UPC phone - 532-6571 • www.k-state.edu/upc • UPC hotline - 532-6572

A LOT CAN BE SAID ABOUT A LITTLE BIT OF SPACE.....
IT WORKS
To give it a try, call or stop by Collegian advertising
103 Kedzie
785-532-6560

FALL INTO SAVINGS WITH SALON 1
$55 Highlights
$70 Highlight & Haircut
$9 Men's Haircut
$6 Eyebrow Wax
3104 ANDERSON AVE. 785.539.3626 MANHATTAN, KS 66503
HURRY IN! APPOINTMENTS ARE LIMITED! EXPIRES 11.30.06

Local daycare for dogs gives pets play, learning time

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Kelly Neel's daycare is unlike most in Manhattan.

Her day consists of playing ball and feeding her clients, who have names like Slider, Queenie and Buddy. Her four-legged friends are of all sizes and breeds and are members of her daycare for dogs.

Neel, owner of Howl-a-Dayz Inn and Daycare said the business, which opened Sept. 7, stems from her love of dogs and the enjoyment she gets from playing with them and giving them belly rubs.

Neel said she takes care of five to 15 dogs a day and does not accept pit bulls due to insurance issues.

"The facility we have can handle up to 35," she said. "It's going really well considering we're just getting started."

The cement-floored room that serves as the dogs' play area has basketballs and tennis balls and plastic playground equipment. The dogs play and lounge together on a couch that sits in the corner of the room.

Neel said the dogs sometimes have "disagreements," but there haven't been any big fights.

She attributes this to the evaluation dogs have to pass before they can attend the daycare.

"All dogs have to pass a temperament evaluation where they spend a couple of hours introducing themselves to the group," she said. "It's making sure they don't have any aggression issues and that they're nice dogs and that they listen to me – and also to make sure they enjoy it."

Neel said only a few dogs haven't passed the evaluation.

When the dogs need discipline, Neel said she reprimands them with words and a squirt water bottle, which has worked well so far.

Kathleen Blair, senior in elementary education, brought her dog Loki to the daycare after she saw a flyer about the business in a pet store.

"I'm student teaching, and our dog is really energetic. He doesn't do very good by himself," she said.

Loki went to a different daycare before, but Blair said she wasn't happy with the care he received.

Now Loki goes to Howl-a-Dayz two or three times a week.

Neel said she has about 35 dogs enrolled in her daycare, and people bring in their pets as they need to. While some dogs come just for the day, others stay for boarding in the kennels if their owners are out of town.

"It just depends on the dog for the maximum stay of time," she said.

Queenie, a long-haired German Shepherd, rested on the couch while waiting for her owner, Jeanne Yang, to pick her up.

Yang, Manhattan resident, said the daycare has helped Queenie settle down. She said Queenie used to try to run after other dogs at City Park, but now she is more calm because she is around other dogs all day at the daycare.

"She loves this. The socialization is wonderful," Yang said. "I've never seen a place where they have that much playtime."

Neel said she works with the dogs on her own and constantly monitors them.

She said her husband helps her with different jobs so she has time to spend with her kids.

However, once daily attendance averages about 15 dogs, Neel said she will hire someone to help her.

Evening obedience classes are offered at an extra cost. Dogs work with a certified trainer during these classes. For the dogs that just attend the daycare, Neel tries to reinforce what they learn at home, she said.

Before she started the daycare in Manhattan, Neel worked at a dog daycare in Colorado Springs, Colo. She said there are a lot of daycares for dogs there. At the business she worked with, there were about 45 dogs each day.

"It definitely is popular, and I think it will be the same here as soon as it catches on," she said.

Lyndsey Born| COLLEGIAN
Kelly Neel, dog care specialist and director of Howl-A-Dayz Inn and Daycare, cares for many different sizes and breeds of dogs daily.

Seattle attorney to address legal liability at food safety seminar

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

An attorney from Seattle will open the Food Safety Network seminar at 10:30 a.m. today.

Bill Marler's speech, "Examining Cases of Legal Liability – Or why I always win," will cover production of food, research and public information, and Marler will discuss how he handles his cases. This is the seminar's first series.

Marler is a partner with the law firm Marler Clark, where he is known as the nation's leading foodborne illness attorney, said Douglas Powell, associate professor of diagnostic medicine pathobiology.

"He's coming because Kansas State has a unique emphasis on food safety and security, and the threat of litigation by Marler is one of several factors improving the safety of food and those who serve food," Powell said.

The company has received $250 million in settlements from cases dealing with contaminated meat, apple juice, sprouts, cantaloupe, tomatoes and more. Some of the businesses Marler has sued are Odwalla, Wendy's, Chili's, ConAgra Foods Inc., AFG and Dole.

"(Bill) Marler is a great influence, because he knows his law, and he knows how to get the best science. Together that is a powerful force for change."

Douglas Powell
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF DIAGNOSTIC MEDICINE PATHOBIOLOGY

"Marler is a great influence because he knows his law, and he knows how to get the best science," Powell said. "Together, that is a powerful force for change."

Powell said Marler also represents about half, if not more, of the victims from the September E. coli outbreak.

"He actually filed a lawsuit before the U.S. Drug Administration issued a drug advisory," Powell said.

Although he recently has dealt with many E. coli cases, Marler also deals with Salmonella, Shigella, hepatitis A and other foodborne pathogens.

Marler and Powell are in the same field of study, but they approach food poisoning differently.

"Bill and I have known each other for years because we are interested in the same thing – how to reduce the impact of foodborne illness, which sickens 76 million and kills 5,000 each year in the U.S.," Powell said. "Bill does it through law. I do it through human behavior research and advocacy."

Royal Purple yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Buy your copy in Kedzie 103 or call 532-6555

ATTENTION Faculty and Staff
Ask why discerning faculty members have us manage their
Regents' Retirement Plan Accounts
Kramer Capital Management
601 Leavenworth - Manhattan
785-539-0110
www.rickkramer.com
email with subject: "Regent Plan" to rgkramer@cox.net

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

½ Price Drinks
$2.25 Big Beers
$3.50 Jager Bombs
Fat's BAR & GRILL Aggieville

LONGHORNS SALOON
$2.00 DRINKS
$2.50 DOMESTIC PITCHERS & DOMESTIC BOTTLES
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18TH
JACKSON TAYLOR BAND
TICKETS $10

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

2006 Principal/Counselor/Student Conference

Kansas State University

Wednesday, Nov. 15, 2006

LIST OF HIGH SCHOOL LOCATIONS

10-11:15 a.m.

(All table and room assignments are in the Union Ballroom.)

Andover Central HS - Ballroom Table #24
Atchison Co. Comm. HS- Ballroom Table #1
Axtell HS - Ballroom Table #2
B & B - Ballroom Table #3
Baldwin HS - Ballroom Table #4
Bern HS - Ballroom Table #5
Bishop Carroll HS - Ballroom Table #6
~~Bluestem HS - Ballroom Table #7~~ CANCELED
Buhler HS - Ballroom Table #8
Central HS - Ballroom Table #9
Chase County HS - Ballroom Table #10
Clifton HS-Ballroom Table #11
Derby HS - Ballroom Table #12
Douglass HS - Ballroom Table #13
Fredonia HS - Ballroom Table #14
Goddard HS - Ballroom Table #15
Hartford HS - Ballroom Table #16
Haven HS - Ballroom Table #17
Herington HS - Ballroom Table #18
Hiawatha HS - Ballroom Table #19
Highland Park HS - Ballroom Table #20
~~Hill City HS - Ballroom Table #21~~ CANCELED
Hillsboro HS - Ballroom Table #22
Holton HS - Ballroom Table #23
JC Harmon HS - Ballroom Table #68
Jefferson Co. North HS - Ballroom Table #25
Jewell HS - Ballroom Table #26
Maize HS - Ballroom Table #27
Manhattan HS - Union Room 207
Marysville HS - Ballroom Table #28
McLouth HS - Ballroom Table #29
Mill Valley HS - Ballroom Table #30
Miltonvale HS - Ballroom Table #31
Mission Valley HS - Ballroom Table #32
Northern Valley HS - Ballroom Table #33
Olathe East HS - Union Room 204
Olathe North HS - Union Room 205
Osawatomie HS - Ballroom Table #34
Oskaloosa HS - Ballroom Table #35
Otis-Bison HS - Ballroom Table #36
Pawnee Heights HS - Ballroom Table #37
Piper HS - Ballroom Table #38
Plainville HS - Ballroom Table #39
Pretty Prairie HS - Ballroom Table #40
Quinter HS - Ballroom Table #67
Remington HS - Ballroom Table #41
Rock Creek HS - Ballroom Table #42
Rockhurst HS - Ballroom Table #43
Rossville HS- Ballroom Table #44
Royal Valley HS - Ballroom Table #45
Sabetha HS - Ballroom Table #46
Salina Central HS - Union Room 208
Salina South HS - Union Room 209
Scott Co. Community HS - Ballroom Table #47
Seaman HS - Ballroom Table #48
Shawnee Heights HS - Ballroom Table #49
Shawnee Mission West HS - Union Room 206
Sterling HS- Ballroom Table #50
Stockton HS - Ballroom Table #51
Sublette HS - Ballroom Table #52
Sumner Academy - Ballroom Table #53
Sylvan Grove HS - Ballroom Table #54
Thomas More Prep HS - Ballroom Table #55
Tonganoxie HS - Ballroom Table #56
Troy HS - Ballroom Table #57
~~Valley Falls HS - Ballroom Table #58~~ CANCELED
Valley Heights HS - Ballroom Table #59
Wabaunsee HS- Ballroom Table #60
~~Wakefield HS - Ballroom Table #61~~ CANCELED
Waverly HS - Ballroom Table #62
Wellsville HS - Ballroom Table #63
Wichita NW HS - Ballroom Table #64
Wetmore HS - Ballroom Table #65
Wyandotte HS - Ballroom Table #66

Seeing color

Affirmative action called into question in Michigan, but race still plays role on all sides

JONAS HOGG

Our most holy of academic controversy, affirmative action, is headed for a showdown. Michigan's Proposal 2 put the kibosh on any and all admission programs based on race, gender or ethnicity.

This is, to put it lightly, a big whopping deal. People on both sides of the bill agree this one is headed for the U.S. Supreme Court. The entire affirmative action system is getting ready to go on trial.

Affirmative action is a grisly issue, swollen on both sides by the militantly and profoundly ignorant. The pundits will embrace the grrr-woof-woofery these debates often take. The intelligent will push for an honest and candid re-evaluation of race and its effect in the 21st century.

This we most certainly will not get. Not when, from the jump, University of Michigan president Mary Sue Coleman belches forth such pearls as, "We will find ways to overcome the handcuffs that Proposal 2 attempts to place on our reach for greater diversity." This is not an academic position, it is simpletons' rhetoric. It is bumper-sticker logic.

To be fair, I oppose affirmative action for a variety of reasons. Yet, admittedly, I have met people who argue effectively and intelligently that affirmative action is vital. There are no easy answers here, and this is not, pardon the phrase, a black or white question.

We could claim race is no longer an issue, just as we could claim coach Ron Prince has a full and thick mane of hair. Race matters on all sides.

Being white, I have encountered racism, and in this I am not alone. One Halloween I was out with a friend who is black. He was told to be careful – the cars couldn't see him.

It has been scarcely 40 years since the civil rights movement. My mother still remembers being chastised for drinking from the "colored" fountain as a child.

For many, race is not merely an issue; race is the issue.

Hatred and prejudice exist and are not confined to one social class or location. My friend and I were trick-or-treating in an upper-middle class neighborhood in Denver.

To counterpoint, we must ask ourselves how much we want race to matter. We are told, repeatedly, that we are all the same – skin color is, after all, simply pigment. If race does not matter, surely it is time to remove it as a consideration from official applications.

Where is the first, cautious step we must take to say race is irrelevant? If not now, when?

Though racism exists and always will, it is not the social pandemic it formerly was. No one truly can believe that if affirmative action were overturned, K-State would abandon its nearly century-long commitment to inclusion.

We also must recognize preference toward one group over another, no matter how well-intentioned, is unfair. Once upon a time, this unfairness was needed to drag a reluctant country forward, but we cannot forever perpetuate unfairness in the name of equality.

These are only a few of the dilemmas we face. What we must decide first is whether we will succumb to name-calling and head-bashing, or if we will take the more difficult route and delve into the untouchable subject of race in a highly polarized society. In this, I am not hopeful.

Jonas Hogg is a senior in sociology, international studies and Russian. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Weird news makes for better conversation than celebrity gossip

ALEX PEAK

As humans, we seem to be painfully attracted to gossip.

Whether it's who's dating whom in class or at work or who's having a baby or getting a divorce in Hollywood, we feed on rumors.

After exploring the BBC, Google, Yahoo! and CNN news Web sites and perusing the "top stories" lists, I realized a majority of news readers look more for news about Britney Spears, Kylie Minogue and King of Pop Michael Jackson than about current events.

I'm not saying everyone in the college-age group only reads news pertaining to entertainment, but there are enough of us who do. I wish people our age would realize there's a lot better news out there than celebrity gossip. When pop stars take drugs or movie stars sleep around, it doesn't affect any of us. Or at least, it shouldn't affect any of us.

If you check out any news Web sites' odd or off-beat news sections, you'll be able to read about much more interesting topics.

For example, there are hospitals in Japan that are in the news for considering starting "baby hatches" where mothers can drop off unwanted babies for adoption just as you would drop off a movie at Blockbluster Video.

Another interesting piece is about a zoo in Thailand, where employees are creating what is basically a porn video to teach the male pandas how to mate. The leader of the project, Prasertsak Buntrakoonpoontawee, said 6-year-old panda Chuang Chuang would be shown the video at the most comfortable and intimate time for him, perhaps after dinner, according to Yahoo! News.

Some more odd news recently released is that a 16-year-old Singaporean student is now in the Guinness Book of World Records for the fastest text messaging. He typed a 160-character message in less than 42 seconds, according to Yahoo! News.

In Toronto this past week, more than 500 competitors from across the world gathered for a rock-paper-scissors tournament. The grand prize, along with the title of world champion, was $10,000 (Canadian).

There's a lot of unusual stuff going on around the world. Some of it is relevant, and some only matters to a few people. Even though most of the happenings listed in this article won't affect you, neither will prying into the lives of celebrities. My advice: read weird news – it makes for better conversation.

Alex Peak is a senior in mass communications. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg | COLLEGIAN

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTATION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Editors recall favorite childhood books

Owen Kennedy: "Just Me and My Dad" by Mercer Mayer. It was the first book I ever learned how to read.

Annette Lawless: I learned how to read when I was four because of my favorite Disney joke book. I memorized the words after my dad read it over and over.

Kristen Roderick: Nothing can compete with "The Polar Express." My family and I would go downstairs in our pajamas and sit around the fireplace while my mom read the book.

Kerry Fischer: I was always a huge fan of Dr. Seuss books. The rhyming made it easy for me to read them aloud. My absolute favorite is "Green Eggs and Ham." How could you not love Sam I Am?

Leann Sulzen: I loved the "Little House on the Prairie" series. I was always excited to go to the library and check out a new one.

Steven Doll: My favorite book as a child was "If You Give a Mouse a Cookie." I always wanted to read it when I was in preschool. It is such a great book, and I've passed it on to both my nieces.

Abby Brownback: There were so many series I loved: the Boxcar Children, Nancy Drew, Sweet Valley, and the American Girl and Thoroughbred books. I'm sure all the other little kids cursed me for monopolizing our library's offerings.

Zachary T. Eckels: One word: "Goosebumps."

Emily Lawrence: I think my Grandma got my copy of "Pickles the Fire Cat" at a garage sale for $0.25. It might even be a first edition, but I would never sell it.

Anthony Mendoza: "Berenstain Bears." I would get them from the library.

Megan Moser: One of my favorite books to this day is Lois Lowry's "The Giver."

CAMPUS FOURUM 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

Sorry, dude I almost hit in the crosswalk. You were in my blind spot. Kinda feel bad about that. Wave your arms around or something next time.

Can you guys please put the Blotter back in the paper? I like to laugh at the felons when I'm in class, and I don't like to have to look for that. And it's probably the best part of the paper, too.

Those people smell.

Scotty J, will you marry me?

What is Scooter Girl going to do in the winter? Put chains on her wheels?

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Student team collects funds for Sudanese refugees

By Adam Monroe
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The K-State Save Darfur Team, a collaboration of K-State students, gathered Monday to collect goods and spread awareness of the crisis in the Darfur region of Sudan.

"We have two goals today," said Kevin Champion, senior in American language and culture. "One, to spread awareness, and two, to collect goods."

The team set up a table for people to ask questions, receive information and drop off donations. The group also had scheduled a panel discussion that was supposed to involve Sudanese and Kenyan citizens. The discussion didn't take place, but the donation box will be located outside of the Office of Student Activities and Services Office in the K-State Student Union for the remainder of the month.

"Its unfortunate that we couldn't have our panel today, these things happen sometimes," said Sarah Mitts, senior in management and K-State Save Darfur Team founder. "We are planning on rescheduling it for another date, though."

The organization was started as a way to promote awareness of global issues, and developed into an active donation program. K-State students are working with an organization called International Relief and Development, which delivers the goods to the refugees.

"We just wanted to find out if it was possible to transport some of the excess things that we have laying around to people that need them," Mitts said. "Then we found the IRD, started an organization and even received some assistance from the SGA."

Danvas Mabeya, graduate student in sociology, said the primary conflict in Darfur is about land. Mabeya is a citizen of Kenya, and has spent time doing research in the Dadaab refugee camp in northeastern Kenya, which is home to more than 200,000 refugees from Sudan, Ethiopia and Somalia.

"The conflict is all about the land and its resources," Mabeya said. "Even the word Darfur means 'lands of the chiefs.'"

Danvas said this conflict has been escalating since the 1920s.

"In the 1920s, there was an act passed that allowed tribal chiefs to possess land, and all unclaimed land then became property of the government," Mabeya said. "In the 1970s, this act was revoked. To solve the Darfur problem, we must start with the land problem. If we don't, the problem will not be solved in the near future."

The team organized a goods drive involving the efforts of more than 20 churches and several student organizations. It will collect items including clothing, hygiene products and school supplies.

"This is our kick-off campaign, and we have already received several donations," Mitts said. "(On) Dec. 3, we will be mobilizing the church drives, and Varneys will be having a Darfur day where they will be offering discounts to donators."

Library matches children, senior citizens for national reading week

By Megan Moser
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Librarians across the state hope "Bunny Cakes" will help young children read.

Nov. 13-17 is Kansas' Read to Preschoolers Week, and the state library has selected "Bunny Cakes," a book by Rosemary Wells, as the week's featured book.

This is the second year for the event, which is part of National Children's Book Week, said Jennifer Adams, children's services manager at the Manhattan Public Library.

She said Kansas decided to name the event Read to Preschoolers Week to emphasize the importance of reading to prepare children for school.

"One of the reasons is right now people are trying to help parents and teachers become more aware of the importance of sharing books with children at very young ages," Adams said.

"It's called early literacy. Parents who read aloud to their kids, kids who read books and look at books when they're little will then excel at higher rates when they get into school."

Adams said the state library probably chose the book because it appeals to both younger and older children. In the story, characters Max and Ruby attempt to make a birthday cake for their grandmother.

The Manhattan Public Library will have readings of the book at each of its regular story times this week, with a special "intergenerational story time" at 7 p.m. Thursday.

Adams said the library invites grandparents and senior citizens to come, even if they don't bring grandchildren. Children and senior citizens who attend separately can be matched up for the story reading.

The Manhattan Library Association will give away copies of the book, and children will be able to decorate a cookie after the reading.

Children's Book Week first started in 1919, according to the Children's Book Council Web site. Educators, librarians, booksellers and families have celebrated the week before Thanksgiving with parties, readings, author appearances and other events ever since.

"Taking time to read to our kids is one of the best things we can do to help stimulate their interest and creativity," said Gov. Kathleen Sebelius, D-Kan., honorary chair of the event, in a press release.

"I'm honored to once again serve as chair of this endeavor encouraging more adults to read to children."

For more information on storytimes, visit www.manhattan.lib.ks.us. For more information on Kansas Read to Preschoolers Week, visit www.kansasreads.org.

WAL-MART | Local pharmacies fear prescription mix-ups when patients opt to buy drugs through program local pharmacies might be in danger of losing business. Some said they are not worried, though.

Continued from Page 1

"I think it's a marketing technique to get people in the store," pharmacist Tim Parsons said. "It is very limited compared to the other generic drug choices."

Parsons, who works at Barry's Drug Center, said he does not think there will be big changes because of the drug plan. He is worried about the possibility of prescription mix-ups, though. Parsons said if people get all of their prescriptions at a certain pharmacy and decide to get one drug from Wal-Mart, the stores will have no way of knowing if the drugs interact harmfully.

"A lot of people don't know the medications they are on," Parsons said.

Wal-Mart Stores Inc. media relations said this will not be problem, as all customers are required to have a prescription from a licensed pharmacist.

"This is just Wal-Mart doing what we do best. Our focus is mainly to provide cheaper drugs to the public," a media-relations spokesperson said.

Paul Hayen, owner of the Medicine Shoppe Pharmacy, said his pharmacy already offers a cheaper price plan than Wal-Mart. He said he charges $10 for three-month prescriptions, while Wal-Mart will charge $4 for a one-month prescription.

"I've explained to most of my customers that they are already getting a better deal here," Hayen said.

Hayen said the list of 312 generic prescription drugs available through the program includes several different strengths of the same drugs, making the list seem more extensive than it actually is.

Wal-Mart executives said they encourage all customers to confer with their doctors before they join the $4 generic prescription program.

"We are listening to our pharmacists and looking at our supply chain management management and in-store operations so that we can figure out how we can continue to make this program available to as many people as possible," Simon said.

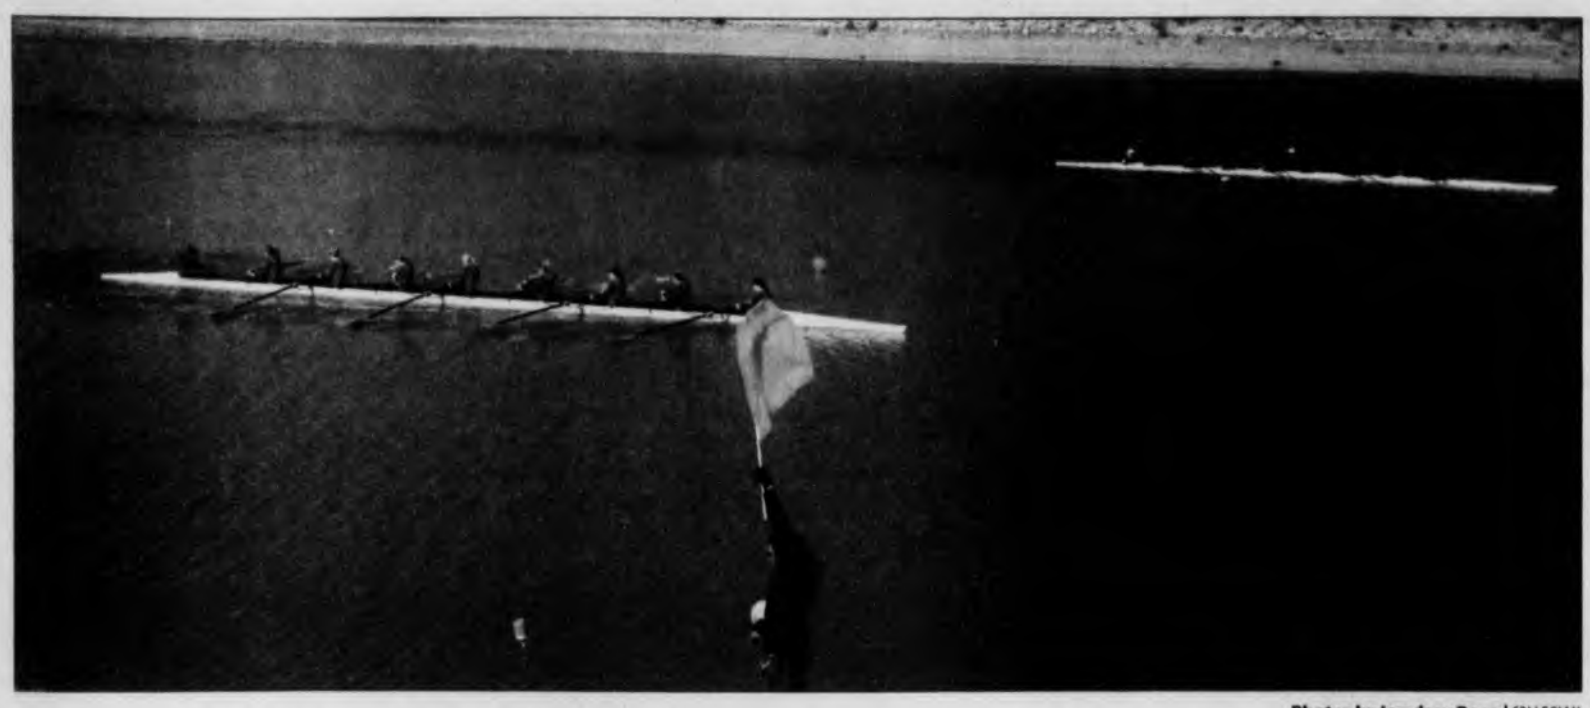
Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
"She was a beautiful bride."
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

Got a News Tip or Story Idea?
Call 532-6556
or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

TUESDAY: 69¢ Tacos; $2.50 Margaritas; $2.99 Taco Platter
WEDNESDAY: $7.99 Steak Night; $2.50 Bottles; $3.00 Big Bobs
BOBBY Ts
3240 Kimball Ave
537-8383
www.bobbyts.com
Karaoke @ 9pm

COLD STONE CREAMERY
"College Night"
Buy 1 Get 1 for 25¢!
any size creation
Every Tuesday
from 7-10p.m.
Subject to change at any time
(WITH KSU STUDENT ID)

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword. . .
Now that's something you can bank on.



auto Auction
Thursday, November 16
5:00pm
701 Enoch Lane - Manhattan, KS
Collector cars - modified trucks
sports cars and more
PURPLE WAVE
www.purplewave.com

SAKE SAKE SAKE
Bomb!
$3.00 Sake Bombs
TRY OUR NEW ASIAN STYLE BUFFET & MONGOLIAN BBQ
BENIHANA
1304 WESTLOOP 539-8888
$1.00 OFF BUFFET w/ VALID KSU ID

Why YOU should get a Campus Phone Book
• The Greek Guide
• Only Phone Book with Students' Cell Phone Numbers
• Coupons with the Greatest Deals
• A Menu Guide with local restaurants' menus
Purchase Yours in Kedzie 103

Advertise in GAMEDAY
Comprehensive pregame coverage Fridays before home games.
118 Kedzie • 785-532-6560

Have you ever had to convince everyone that working on the Homecoming Float would be "fun"?
Our paper is a lot more fun to work with than toilet paper.
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling toiletries
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL
or email jharmon@ksu.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL, FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

Photos by Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

K-State women's second Novice 8+ rowing team reaches the the finish line ahead of Kansas Saturday morning during the Sunflower Showdown at Tuttle Creek Dam and Reservoir.

Rowers fall in Sunflower Showdown

By Wendy Haun
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State's rowing team faced off against Kansas in its first 2,000-meter races of the year on Saturday and eventually fell 14-11 in a series of six races at the Sunflower Showdown at Manhattan's Tuttle Creek Dam and Reservoir.

In the first two races, the Varsity 8+ races, Kansas dominated the Wildcats, beating them by four seconds in the first Varsity 8+ race and by six seconds in the second Varsity 8+ race.

Coach Patrick Sweeney said figuring out the right mix of crew members will be a focus in the offseason.

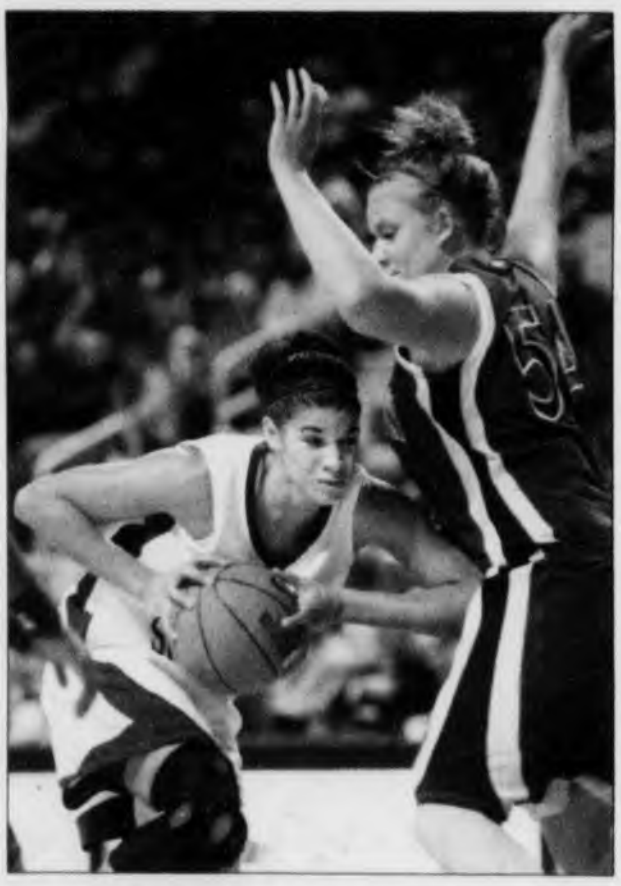
"It's getting the right combination with all of the boats between now and spring," he said. "We'll be going through and trying different combinations of all the crews."

K-State pulled out its first win of the day in the first Novice 8+, beating Kansas by 13 seconds. The second Novice 8+ yielded the same result, beating the Jayhawks by four seconds. The varsity squad pulled together a four boat, which defeated both of Kansas' boats in its first competition of the year.

The third Novice 8+ race was the final of the day, and Kansas' A boat defeated K-State's boat by one second.

Last year, K-State lost the Sunflower Showdown to Kansas, but came back at the Kansas Cup in the spring in Lawrence, winning three of the four races.

"We lost last year in the fall, but come spring time, we were beating Kansas," Sweeney said.



"If you have a team that wants to race, you've got a good chance of doing something later on."

Members of the Varsity 4+ crew relax after their win against two of Kansas' crews during the Sunflower Showdown Saturday morning at Tuttle Creek Dam and Reservoir.

Although K-State fell in total points, Sweeney said he was satisfied with the outcome Saturday.

"I was pleased with the team. They really went out to race," he said. "If they get beaten by a faster crew, so be it. We learned a lot from the races we won and the races we lost. They like racing. As long as you've got athletes that like to race, you can work with it."

K-State's Marlies Gipson tries to drive Creighton's Kristina Voss Monday evening in the Wildcats' 94-79 victory over the Bluejays. Gipson was the leading scorer with 17 points for the game.

Catrina Rawson
COLLEGIAN

K-State rolls to 94-79 win over Creighton

By Scott Girad
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State shot better than 57 percent from the field, with five players scoring in double figures in its 94-79 win over Creighton Monday night at Bramlage Coliseum.

Sophomore forward Marlies Gipson led the Wildcats (2-0) in scoring with 17 points on 8-of-11 shooting from the field.

All nine players coach Deb Patterson played scored at least seven points, except senior Naytanda Smith, who finished without a basket.

"I was pleased at the fact that we were able to utilize everyone again tonight, and it gave opportunities for players to get quality minutes in the framework of our system," Patterson said.

Freshman Ashley Sweat and junior Shana Wheeler combined for 21 points.

Sweat finished with a career-high 12 points in her second game at K-State.

Junior Kimberly Dietz and senior Claire Coggins each finished with 15 points, while sophomore Shalee Lehning had 11.

K-State started the second half sloppy, committing three turnovers in the first two minutes of the second half.

Creighton (0-2) took advantage, going on a 5-0 run to cut the lead to single digits for the first time since K-State led 24-15 with 11:55 remaining in the first half.

"We just didn't have the assertiveness and the aggressiveness on the offensive end that we need to have at the start of the second half, and teams are going to exploit that," Patterson said.

Creighton eventually pulled to within six points, but the Wildcats went on a 6-0 run to increase their lead back to double digits with less than 15 minutes remaining in the game.

Ally Thrall led Creighton with a career-high 22 points and extended her streak to 32-straight games in which she has made a three-point basket.

Fans must be patient as Bennett develops, polishes court skills

NICK DUNN

It's time to make something clear. A polished 7-footer is a rare find in college basketball. You were a lot more likely to come across a sober person in Aggieville after K-State's upset of Texas than you are to find a skillful, young, big man.

This year a lot of attention has been given to Ohio State's freshman center Greg Oden. The new NBA rule, which prohibits 18-year-olds from entering the draft, is the only thing that kept the 7-foot Oden from likely being the No. 1 pick in the 2006 NBA draft. Oden is injured now and should be out until December, but when he comes back, he surely will be a force.

Oden is an exception.

K-State's Jason Bennett is not.

Bennett will take time to develop, and fans need to be patient with him during the process.

It's time to get over the belief Bennett will be the savior of the Wildcat basketball team this season. Just because he is 7-foot-3 does not mean he can grab every rebound and block all of the opponents' shots, like a lot of people expect.

Bennett entered the season as K-State's most highly regarded recruit in recent memory. He was a five-star recruit, according to Rivals.com. Apparently that meant he was supposed to dominate from day one.

He did not play in K-State's exhibition against Washburn – much to the dismay of many who came to the game – but he did make his first appearance as a Wildcat in K-State's season-opening victory over William & Mary.

Bennett was not overly impressive, but he did block four shots and grab three rebounds in 20 minutes of action. Bennett also provided some comic relief when you watched him guard players who are so much shorter than he is. William & Mary didn't exactly have any Shaquille O'Neals down low, so all Bennett had to do was stick his hands straight in the air and wait for the player to shoot right into his arms.

But that wasn't enough. A lot of people seemed to want more. Maybe Bennett was supposed to have Hakeem Olajuwon-like moves in the post. I'd like to see how coordinated you or I would look inside a 7-foot-3, 265-pound body.

It's not realistic to expect Bennett to provide a lot on offense this early in his career. He is not capable of getting 15 rebounds per game. But one thing is sure – he needs some time.

Most 7-footers take time to mature, and I'm confident in coach Bob Huggins' ability to develop talented players, especially big men. A lot of times fans grow too impatient with 7-footers and drive them off or shatter their confidence.

I'd hate to see that happen with Bennett.

He will be a force in time. For now, all he needs to do is keep improving every day. As far as being savior of the team, let's see if Bill Walker can handle that one.

Nick Dunn is a senior in print journalism. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

FBC | Figurs, Freeman named Conference Players of the Week

K-State quarterback Josh Freeman picked up his second Big 12 Offensive Player-of-the-Week honor in as many weeks, and wide receiver/return specialist Yamon Figurs (above) was named the league's co-Special Teams Player of the Week for their performances in the Wildcats' 45-42 win over Texas last weekend, conference officials announced Monday.

Freeman

It is the third straight week K-State has produced at least one of the league's players of the week.

Freeman becomes just the second Big 12 player to win the award in back-to-back weeks this season — Oklahoma's Adrian Peterson did it back in early September — and the first Wildcat to do so since Josh Scobey was selected on Oct. 27 (Kansas) and Nov. 3 (Iowa State) of the 2001 season.

The weekly award is the first of Figurs' career and marks the third time this season a Wildcat has been voted as the Big 12's top special team performer.

Freeman passed for three touchdowns and ran for a fourth in the win over Texas. He finished the game 19-for-31 passing for 269 yards, including touchdowns of 36, 32 and 30 yards.

Figurs had a career receiving night with six catches for 123 yards and two touchdowns, but he was equally as impressive on his lone punt return of the night.

Taking the ball at the K-State 40 with the game tied at 14 in the second quarter, Figurs broke up the middle and raced 52 yards down the right sideline before being stopped just 8 yards shy of the end zone. Leon Patton scored on the next play to give K-State a 21-14 lead with 6:17 to go before the half.

With the selections of Freeman and Figurs, K-State now has had six Player of the Week winners, the most for the Wildcats since 2000, when K-State captured seven weekly awards.

Associated Press

BBO | Ramirez, Verlander named NL, AL Rookies of the Year

NEW YORK — Hanley Ramirez of the Florida Marlins won a tight race for NL Rookie of the Year, and Detroit Tigers pitcher Justin Verlander took home the AL award Monday.

Ramirez beat out Washington Nationals third baseman Ryan Zimmerman by only four points in balloting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. The speedy shortstop got 14 of 30 first-place votes and finished with 105 points. Zimmerman received 10 first-place votes and totaled 101 points.

Three of the top four NL finishers were Marlins. Second baseman Dan Uggla came in third, getting the other six first-place votes, and pitcher Josh Johnson was fourth.

Verlander easily won the AL honor after his closest competitors in a race dominated by pitchers were sidelined late in the season because of injuries. The hard-throwing right-hander, who helped the Tigers reach the World Series, was listed first on 26 of 28 ballots for a total of 133 points.

Boston closer Jonathan Papelbon came in second with 63 points, and Minnesota lefty Francisco Liriano finished third.

OLY | San Francisco pulls bid for 2016 Summer Olympic games

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco abandoned its bid to host the 2016 Summer Olympics after plans for a new bayfront stadium collapsed when the San Francisco 49ers said they intend to move to Silicon Valley.

Los Angeles and Chicago are now the remaining U.S. candidates to play host to the games after Monday's announcement by the San Francisco 2016 Bid Committee.

John York, owner of the 49ers, told city officials last week he was breaking off negotiations for a new stadium at Candlestick Point and was considering a move to Santa Clara, Calif.

The city's Olympic organizing panel was stunned by the news last week and said it would try to find a new location for the marquee events, including the opening and closing ceremonies and track and field competition.

The International Olympic Committee will select the host city in 2009.

SEBELIUS | White House names governor as possible '08 candidate

Continued from Page 1

Sebelius said. "Education will continue to be a centerpiece. It's got to be. It's the most important work we do."

Sebelius said she wants to continue an expansion of early childhood education opportunities while making it easier for Kansans to afford a college education. The 2006 Kansas Legislature passed a three-year, $541 million funding increase to elevate spending on kindergarten through 12th grade throughout the state.

Political experts have different ideas as to why Sebelius continues to thrive in the Kansas political arena. In response to her recent re-election, Aistrup blamed the Republican loss to the split between conservatives and moderates in the same party.

"She fits into the pattern of politics where when the Republicans are split, the Democrat tends to creep in," Aistrup said.

Others believe Sebelius' ability to pull rank-and-file Republican votes across party lines was her key to victory. In her televised political advertisements during her re-election campaign, Sebelius opted not to identify her party, instead hoping voters would judge on her record and character.

"She comes across as a person, not a puppet of the party," Michael Molloy, sophomore in open option, said.

"I liked how she took the high road. She made sense to a lot of people."

The momentum of Sebelius's first term and easy victory last week has caused many political analysts to contemplate her next move. Some have suggested she might seek the vice presidency, a seat in the U.S. Senate or a position as a Cabinet secretary.

In February, the White House selected Sebelius as one of its "8 in '08," a group of eight female politicians who possibly could run for president in 2008.

"I think the only reason she isn't mentioned more often is the fact she is from Kansas," Molloy said. "I think more people would support her than Hillary Clinton, but (Clinton) has the advantage being from New York."

As for Sebelius, she said there is no place like home. She said she plans to serve her full four-year term rather than seek higher office.

"I ran for governor to be governor of this great state," she said.

"I intend to be right here."

EDUCATOR | Professor says award celebrates globalization initiatives and is a significant part of who he is today.

Continued from Page 1

"I've been very fortunate to be involved in many different things with a lot of wonderful people," he said.

Guest speaker Nelson Galle, chair of the Kansas Board of Regents, spoke at the ceremony. He said studying abroad is crucial for students. And, as a member of the Board of Regents, he has the responsibility to establish rules for higher education.

Galle is proposing a policy that students in all four-year traditional colleges in Kansas must have a living, working or studying abroad experience before they graduate.

"It isn't only important to have an international experience but to realize how fast the world changes," he said. "It is our responsibility to teach our graduates to be global citizens."

White said Richter and other faculty members are working on courses in places like Turkey to increase K-State students' interaction with other countries.

Richter said his award celebrates the university and its globalization.

"What this award means primarily is this university is a very different university from what it was 30 years ago," he said.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

Advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

118 KEDZIE • 785-532-6560

120 Rent-Houses

FOUR- BEDROOM, two bath. Fenced yard, garage. Pets ok. 785-317-7713.

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

CAMERA FOUND at City Park. 785-564-1197.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

ONE-BEDROOM, Duplex-style Apartment. $350/ month. Available January 1st. Dates are flexible. Sunset West Apartments. 1917 Anderson Avenue. 785-250-7949, or 785-249-4793.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking. Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

135 Sale-Mobile Homes

14X70 NEWLY remodeled, two-bedroom, two bathroom home, reasonable lot rent, 6228 Sparrow Lane #61, Rocky Ford Trailer Court. 785-565-0525.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed. Three-bedroom, two bath. Washer and dryer Included. No smoking. No pets. Call Danielle at 785-806-4324.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share 3 bedroom apartment near campus. $250 per month plus 1/3 utility. Available January 1st. 785-537-1746.

150 Sublease

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY one-bedroom apartment, 800 square feet, lease ends July 2007, off of Manhattan Avenue, $505 a month. 785-313-2751.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January. Two-bedroom, one bath apartment. No smoking. Must love animals. $275 plus one-half utilities. babygoth@ksu.edu

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. No smoking. $275 per month plus one-half of cable/ internet and utilities. Call Crystal 785-550-9797.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed January: one bedroom in two-bedroom, two full bathroom at University Crossing. $375, furnished. 913-744-9994, emthomas@ksu.edu for pictures.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. Four-bedroom, two bath. Close to campus. $300 plus one-fourth utilities. Call Jake 913-378-3395.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted to share two-bedroom house. Pets ok. $350/ month plus one-half utilities. Call Ashley, 816-215-7474.

FURNISHED APARTMENT. One-bedroom. One bathroom, washer/ dryer. Rent $375. Trash and cable paid. 785-317-6313.

150 Sublease

MALE SUBLEASER needed in January. $300 per month, plus one-third utilities. Three-bedroom, two bath. Call 785-342-2932.

SUBLEASER NEEDED, spring 2007 semester. $350/ month. Nice, newer, three-bedroom house, built 1997. 785-221-2282.

SUBLEASER WANTED $325 per month, plus utilities. Across street from campus, off street parking. Available January 2007- August 2007. 763-439-8926.

TWO SUBLEASERS needed for January. Two-bedroom apartment close to Aggieville and campus. $400 plus utilities. 816-668-9223, 913-709-8615.

TWO-BEDROOM apartment. Close to campus/ aggieville. Fireplace and deck. January 1st or sooner. $600/ month. Call 785-341-5683.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVES WINE BAR, now hiring bartenders, servers, weekend dishwashers and day and night cooks. Apply in person, 3033 Anderson Ave., Manhattan.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

ADVERTISE HERE 785 532 6555

310 Help Wanted

HARRY'S DAYTIME DISHWASHER NEEDED. Shifts 10am - 3pm on Mon-Wed-Fri and/ or Tues-Thurs. Some night and/ or weekend availability. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz Ave. Good Pay.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

NEWSPAPER DISPATCHER The Manhattan Mercury is accepting applicaitons for the position of Newspaper Dispatcher. This is a part-time entry-level position. Shifts include weekdays 4:30 p.m. to 7:30- 8:00 p.m. and Sunday 6:00 a.m. to 12 noon. Weekly hours and days scheduled vary. Successful applicants will possess a valid Kansas Drivers License and a dependable vehicle. Vehicle mileage is reimbursed. Apply at or send letter of application to: The Manhattan Mercury, 318 North 5th, Manhattan, Kansas. Manhattan Mercury is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

PERSONAL CARE Attendant needed in Manhattan to assist a person with a disability. For more information contact Christine at 1-800-569-5926.

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SERVERS WANTED. Manhattan Country Club is now hiring servers for all shifts. Apply in person 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

310 Help Wanted

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

TECHNICAL SUPPORT positions available for K-State student with a variety of skills. Must have good interpersonal problem solving skills. Experience with PCs and popular software packages such as Microsoft Word, Microsoft Excel, WordPerfect, QuattroPro and Windows applications desired. Must have understanding of Microsoft Windows and Dos Commands. Windows networking and computer hardware knowledge preferred. Applications available/ accepted through Friday, November 17, 2006, in 211 Umberger Hall. (Department of Communications, Information & Educational Technology.)

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

Call 785-532-6555 to advertise here

310 Help Wanted

Inventory
COUNT on us For a Great Opportunity
RGIS Inventory Specialists
Is currently accepting applications for:
Inventory Takers
•Weekday, evening and weekend hrs.
•Paid training
•10-key experience helpful
•No experience necessary
•Competitive wages
Call Now!
24HRS
To pre-qualify
1888-242-7447
www.RGISINV.com
An equal opportunity employer

400 Open Market

445 Music Instruments

IBANEZ ACOUSTIC/ Electric for sale. Includes hardshell case and guitar humidifier. Only one year old, very nice! Call 316-518-2846.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low Prices Guaranteed. Group discounts for 6+. Book 20 people, get 3 free trips! www.SpringBreakdiscounts.com or 800-838-8202.

looking for a job?

CHECK THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

Quiznos Sub
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

				4	5	2
	7	4		6		3	1
6	3		7				8
7			5		1	4
2	9						5	7
		3	9		6			8
	8				2		3	1
	4	5		8		9	6
		7	6	9

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF any regular or large sub

Advertising Design Practicum/Newspaper MC 385

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Salvation in darkness

5 Rue Christine | COURTESY PHOTO

Band uses confrontational music styling to shake listeners from complacency

"The Air Force"
Grade: A-
Album review by Mark Sibilla

Few bands are as esoteric as Xiu Xiu. It is simply not a band that allows for complacent listening. Leader Jamie Stewart and his cohorts aim to shake the paradigm of what constitutes music.

To see what I mean, look no further than the cover of Xiu Xiu's latest album, "The Air Force." It contains an atypical picture of Christ. This is the Christ of Mark's Gospel: the Christ whose final words were "Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani." ("My God, My God, why have you forsaken me?") Yet even at Christ's darkest hour, there was still hope – the promise of eternal redemption from his sacrifice.

The image is appropriate for this album by Xiu Xiu (pronounced "shoo-shoo"). Almost all of the characters Stewart paints with his perverse poetry are in the same condition as the Christ on the album sleeve: angst-ridden, dispirited and isolated. Stewart's songs show us extreme opposites in life – love and hate, beauty and ugliness, random noise and music – aren't always mutually exclusive.

Xiu Xiu's music is best described as lullabies to your nightmares. It is discordant and challenging, and the most pop-like moments are sabotaged by a cacophony of jarring sounds.

A perfect example is album opener, "Buzz Saw," which draws listeners in with an alluring, yet ominous, piano melody before Stewart's barely whispered vocals enter. But soon we are jerked alert by heavy snare drum hits and ponderous synthesizer buzzing. Halfway through the song, we are treated with clanging percussion, an inharmonious choir of voices and a piano that hasn't been tuned in years. The song ends with haunting wind chimes and Stewart whispering to his friend/lover that he is nothing like people think/expect him to be. The narrator's own self-hatred pushes away those who want to love him.

Xiu Xiu continues its contradictory style on "Hello from Eau Claire." Caralee McElroy, a long-time Xiu Xiu collaborator, performs the vocals, and the results are one of the sweetest songs in the band's catalogue.

However, the song's pop structure is undermined by the ambiguous vocals and the song's bridge, which takes an innocent hook and sends it through a meat grinder with other instruments and random bits of noise for maximum dissonance.

The vocals perfectly fit the album's style of contradiction. McElroy sings of dreams of becoming a man, yet her declarations of "manliness" are not all that manly. Women do tasks listed in the song like buying cigarettes, plucking body hair, paying bills and even wearing ties. So is the song about actually being a man or is it some sort of twisted feminist empowerment?

Xiu Xiu never tells, as McElroy matter-of-factly ends the song with the couplet, "I can humiliate myself to your face/I can weep through my own midnights." Extremely obtuse yet sorrowfully heartrending – this is Xiu Xiu's music.

Album highlight, "Vulture Piano," runs along on a quasi-jungle/drum 'n' bass beat with occasional clattering percussive outbursts that sound like hoards of children throwing tempertantrums and banging sticks on any household item they can find. Stewart releases all the forward momentum created by the song in one long whooping outburst before a hailstorm of clattering percussion closes the song.

"The Air Force" displays Xiu Xiu's more morose moments, too. "Bishop, CA," rides along on an increasingly menacing bed of synths, harmonium and a subtle touch of banjo; it tells of a young man who hears of his brother's death in a mining accident, and the grief only brings back childhood memories of his father raping him. Stewart leaves the character with his head against the refrigerator hating the world. Then, out of left field, Stewart enters with a pop-like refrain of "Walla walla walla hey," ending the song on a discomforting high-note.

Even more powerful is Stewart's beautiful reflection of the suicide of his father in "The Pineapple vs. The Watermelon." It contains only Stewart's fabulous guitar work held aloft by a bed of stately percussion and humming bass. In a state of desperate sadness undercut by a spiteful rage, Stewart sings, "It's obscene why you missed what (we) saw in you... can I pray for your return?"

"The Air Force" ends with Xiu Xiu's most cryptic song: "The Wig Master." Over Stewart's fractured poetry, a double bass and string samples are the only things to support the deranged observations. It sounds like a string quartet tediously playing free jazz. However, one of the most profound statements on the album emerges from the mire: "Loneliness isn't being alone. It's when someone loves you, and you don't have it in your heart to love them back."

Even at his most enigmatic, Stewart forces a response from his audience. He makes music about life, and he refuses to gloss over any ugliness in his pursuit of beauty.

This is imperfect music for an imperfect life For many, it can be a difficult listen. With "The Air Force," Xiu Xiu lets the listener know, just like Christ on the album's cover reminds us, salvation sometimes comes during life's darkest hours.

FACTS ABOUT XIU XIU

Where it started
San Jose, Calif., but the band often makes appearances in Seattle.

Who's in the band
Ches Smith and Caralee McElroy are the lead band members, though the band continuously has guest members, including Jamie Stewart (The Punks), Nick Hennies (The Weird Weeds), Jason Albertini (Duster), Greg Saunier (Deerhoof, Nervous Cop) and John Dieterich (Deerhoof, Natural Dreamers, Gorge Trio).

"The Air Force" | XUI XUI

What it is about
Many of Xiu Xiu's lyrics revolve around dark topics like suicide, AIDS and war.

Where the band got its name
The band's name is taken from the 1998 Chinese film, "Xiu Xiu: The Sent Down Girl."

Source: 5 Rue Christine

Boy Scouts talent show offers prizes, exposure

By Ericka Brunson
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

To Enter
Contestants must be between the ages of 14 and 20, available to tryout on Dec. 3 and e-mail roberthedley@hotmail.com for an application.

Almost everybody wants to be a star these days.

For those who want to show off their talent, there's one group in Manhattan looking for it.

The Boy Scouts of America Pawnee District will have a talent competition for anyone between the ages of 14 and 20.

Tara Doerfler, an intern for the Boy Scouts of America, is coordinating the talent competition this year.

Doerfler took second place with a vocal performance in the first talent show organized by Boy Scouts of America three years ago.

"It's a good opportunity not only to get out and get to know the community, but to learn about the Boy Scout program and what we do," she said.

Doerfler said the talent show is a great chance for performers to get publicity.

"There are a lot of connections to be made. A lot of prominent people attend these events," Doerfler said. "If nothing else, it's a great way to earn a little cash."

Tryouts are Dec. 3. They are free and open to everyone in the age group.

The top four talent competition finalists from the auditions will advance to perform at the annual Eagle Scout Badan Powell Awards Banquet in February.

On Feb. 11, the banquet will take place at the Riley County Fair Building-Pottorf Hall at Cico Park.

Finalists are guaranteed a cash prize of $500, $300, $200 or $100 cash for first, second, third and fourth places, respectively.

Performance categories include solo or group vocal performance, instrumental performance, dramatic performance and dance performance.

Organizers said they hope to receive a large number of applications.

"We are looking to get as many applications as we can," said Robert Hedley, the local director of Boy Scouts Pawnee District.

Hedley said anyone who applies for the competition will be eligible for a prize.

"Whether there are 10 applicants or 50, they will all have a chance."

The talent show will be used not only as a chance to perform, but also as a gateway to other opportunities, Hedley said.

"We want to help people move along in what they like to do," he said.

For those interested in participating in this year's competition, please e-mail roberthedley@hotmail.com for an application.

BUTTERED | Dry County Blues

By Jess Boatwright

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com Wednesday, November 15, 2006 Vol. 111, No. 63

INSIDE

Get ready for the next saga of James Bond 007 this week

See The Edge, Page 10

Commission considers canine ban

By Natasha Meyers
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

City commissioners discussed an ordinance that would ban pit bulls and other threatening breeds in Manhattan at a work session Tuesday.

Officials proposed three ordinances, ranging in severity from a ban of all dogs of certain breeds to amending the existing ordinance to make the seizing of dangerous dogs and the prosecution of their owners easier.

Tammy Smith, Manhattan resident and owner of two pit bulls, was among the many citizens who came to defend the ban.

She said she has one child and another on the way. Smith said she never has had a problem with her dogs because she thinks attacks are caused by the environment in which the pit bulls are raised.

Smith said one of her dogs is 8 years old.

"Anybody who has ever met him says he's the nicest dog," she said. "You could come in my house, take my child, and my dog wouldn't care as long as you reached down and pat his head."

See DOGS Page 8

Students to study the Galapagos

By Dustin Sanborn
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State students will make a trip to the Galapagos Islands at the end of the spring semester as part of a two-credit-hour class.

Twelve to 15 students can attend the trip. The class will cost about $3,200 and will last 12 days. Students will spend eight days and seven nights traveling to eight of the more than 20 islands that make up the Galapagos.

"During the daytime we will be hiking, snorkeling and exploring," said Srini Kambhampati, professor of insect genetics and evolution. "At night we will be traveling between the islands by boat."

Each day will consist of observing aspects of the Galapagos-natural history and threats to the islands' evolutionary treasures, according to the course description. There will be lectures some evenings on topics in conservation and evolutionary biology relevant to the day's activities.

"The Galapagos are famous for their wildlife," Kambhampati said. "Charles Darwin found his inspiration to develop his ideas on the origin of species and the theory of natural selection."

Kambhampati and Jack Cully, associate professor of biology, will teach the class together. They also teach a graduate level course in evolution and have done extensive work as field biologists.

"The Galapagos have a huge

See GALAPAGOS Page 9

For the love of bugs

Left: Kiffnie Holt, coordinator in entomology, works with Jessica Sivertsen, 4, left, and Clara Levy, 3, at the Insect Zoo and Gardens. Holt was a volunteer before becoming the outreach coordinator in July 2005.

Below: Holt has a scene with various insects tattooed on her back. It took more than two years and 35 hours to complete her tattoos.

Photos by Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

Insect zoo employee, former student displays devotion through artwork

By Scott Girard
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Few people show the same level of devotion toward one subject like Kiffnie Holt, and they certainly do not usually show it the same way.

Holt, a December graduate of the master's program at K-State, is the director of the K-State Insect Zoo. The zoo, located just north of the campus greenhouses, features several exhibits of live insects including bees, tarantulas, cockroaches and other insects in their natural environments. Holt said the zoo attracts more than 10,000 customers a year. At least half of them are tour groups from as far away as 100 miles.

She is the only full-time employee at the zoo, so she said it is not easy to maintain the insects and facilities. Fortunately, several students and professors volunteer to clean exhibits and lead tour groups. One of those volunteers is David Margolies, professor in entomology.

Margolies was the co-adviser for Holt during her time in graduate school. Holt came back to earn a master's degree after working in a lab following her 2001 graduation from K-State.

"Sometimes it was difficult," Margolies said. "Sometimes she was a little rough on her research, but she knew what she wanted to do and made it through."

While she was in the graduate program, the director job at the Insect Zoo opened. Margolies said it was a perfect fit.

"It was very nice how she got involved," Margolies said. "I think we were just really lucky to get her at the insect zoo."

ANYTHING BUT USUAL

Holt has had an interest in insects since her childhood. When she was 8 years old, Holt was assigned a project to collect, examine and classify various insects.

"In collecting them and identifying them, you just learn how amazing they are," Holt said. "That is when it all got started."

Between the time she graduated from K-State and entered the graduate school, she looked for ways to show her love for all insects. That is when she thought of getting tattoos. Several people show their interests and love through tattoos, but not many people sport tattoos of a small insect habitat. She has 10 tattoos that run together on her

See HOLT Page 8

Upcoming school year brings uncertainty

By Megan Molitor
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

When Lily Colburn buys school supplies next year, she could be toting them to a different school.

Lily, a six-year-old Manhattan resident, is one of many young students whose school bus could be making a different stop next year.

Lily Colburn, 6-year-old Manhattan resident, attends first grade at Lee Elementary, but due to the reopening of Bluemont Elementary, could attend a different school next year.

Joslyn Brown
COLLEGIAN

"The student population was growing, and classrooms were overcrowding," said Dave Colburn, Lily's father and school board member. "They actually had passed a bill to build a new school, but as soon as that happened, the Big Red One military unit moved to Germany, and the student population dropped greatly, causing them to close the school."

Despite the decision to reopen, the school board has yet to decide new district boundaries to dictate which students will attend Bluemont.

Dave, a former member of the Bluemont Elementary School, which closed five years ago due to declining enrollment, will reopen its doors next year to students.

redistricting committee, said this decision might be made by December and possibly brought to the school board by January. This means many students and parents do not know whether they will be affected.

Lily is one of these students whose location places her as a possible candidate for a transfer.

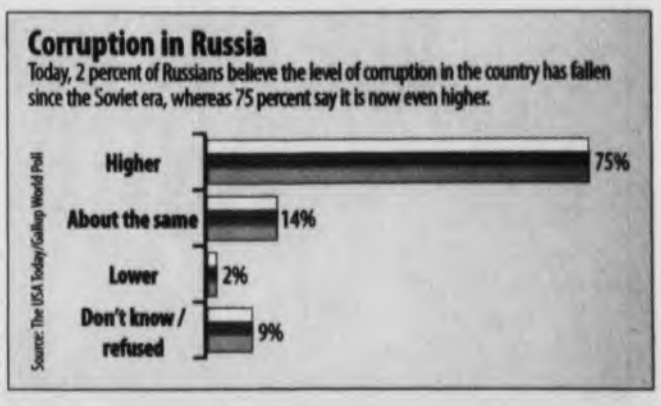
"If there is a change, and Lily has to change schools, we will try and take the philosophy of making the best of whatever we need to do," Dave said. "As a board member, I would not advocate for or against my daughter staying or leaving schools. My decision as a member will be based on what is best for the kids."

However, this does not mean

See SCHOOL Page 8

Today's forecast
Mostly sunny
High: 52 Low: 32

INSIDE



Bulletproof vests
Police departments across Kansas will receive $238,000 in grants to purchase bullet-resistant vests for law enforcement officers.
See story Page 8

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Education week
As a part of International Education Week, Fulbright scholar Ela Mukherjee will speak at 11:30 a.m. today at the Chapman Gallery in Willard Hall. Study abroad students will speak of their time in India and Kenya at 2:30 p.m. today in the Little Theater. For a complete schedule, visit www.k-state.edu/oip/events/IntlEdWk.htm.

Graduate Fair
Deadline to register for the graduate fair is today. The graduate fair will be Friday and Saturday. It is for undergraduate students considering attending graduate school. It is also for master's students who want to enroll in doctoral programs. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/grad/gspeopleorg/gradfair/index.htm.

Poster presentation
K-State public health nutrition students will present posters about nutrition- and health-related issues from 1 to 3 p.m. today in the Hoffman Lounge in Justin Hall. Students have assessed various Kansas counties and will discuss their findings during the presentations. Fifteen posters will be available.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Somewhere out there
5 Bush league?
8 Towel designation
12 Lawrence Berra's nickname
13 Kanga's kid
14 Watermelon shape
15 Blackmailer's doing
17 Nibble
18 Damascene, e.g.
19 Tripped the light fantastic
21 Sister
22 Coin aperture
23 Ram's mate
26 Ess follower
28 Tolerate
31 Tab
33 Lair
35 Turn, in a sense
36 Censorship sound
38 Long. crosser
40 Born
41 Twine
43 Droop
45 Shackle
47 Enrobe
51 Met melody
52 Pilot's escape method
54 A-line designer
55 Trinity member
56 See to
57 Fax
58 Solidify
59 Clumsy craft

DOWN
1 Favorable votes
2 Sly
3 Culture medium
4 Castor-bean poison
5 Smiled like the Cheshire cat
6 Tic-tac-toe win
7 Fishing sites
8 Rubs elbows
9 Tenant's dread
10 Assessment
11 Coaster
16 Lacking slack
20 Carte lead-in
23 Undergo recession
24 Actor Wheaton
25 November event
27 Conger, for one
29 Payable
30 Before
32 Ballet-class wear
34 Coming into existence
37 Opposite of "post-"
39 Body powder
42 Complete a salad
44 Must, slangily
45 Crazes
46 Canal zone
48 Wedding-cake feature
49 Gridlock noise
50 Tackles' teammates
53 Montana or Namath

Solution time: 21 mins.

E	R	G	O		B	R	O		B	A	L	I
L	E	A	F		E	A	R		E	P	I	C
B	E	E	F	C	A	K	E		E	S	S	E
A	L	L		O	N	E		S	T	E	A	D
			B	O	Y		M	A	H
E	P	E	E	S		R	I	P	O	S	T	E
M	E	R	E		M	A	X		V	A	I	N
S	W	A	L	L	O	W		S	E	W	E	D
			Z	O	O		T	E	N
S	C	R	E	W		A	W	L		S	K	I
A	H	A	B		B	E	E	L	I	N	E	S
M	E	N	U		R	O	E		D	U	E	L
S	W	A	B		A	N	D		O	G	L	E

Yesterday's answer 11-15

1	2	3	4	■	5	6	7	■	8	9	10	11
12				■	13			■	14
15				16				■	17
18						■	19	20
■	■	■	21			■	22				■	■
23	24	25	■	26		27	■	28			29	30
31			32	■	33		34	■	35
36				37	■	38		39	■	40
■	■	41			42	■	43		44	■	■	■
45	46					■	47			48	49	50
51				■	52	53
54				■	55			■	56
57				■	58			■	59

11-15 CRYPTOQUIP

XSLY WEZ SIHL KSL AIGG KE XOUKL UY IY EGM LAWRKUIY GIYAZIAL, U'M NIGG KSIK KSL NERKUN' YLOHL.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHAT SHOULD A DOG OWNER DO WITH A LEASH? PERHAPS HE OUGHT TO PULL THE PUG ON IT.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: K equals T

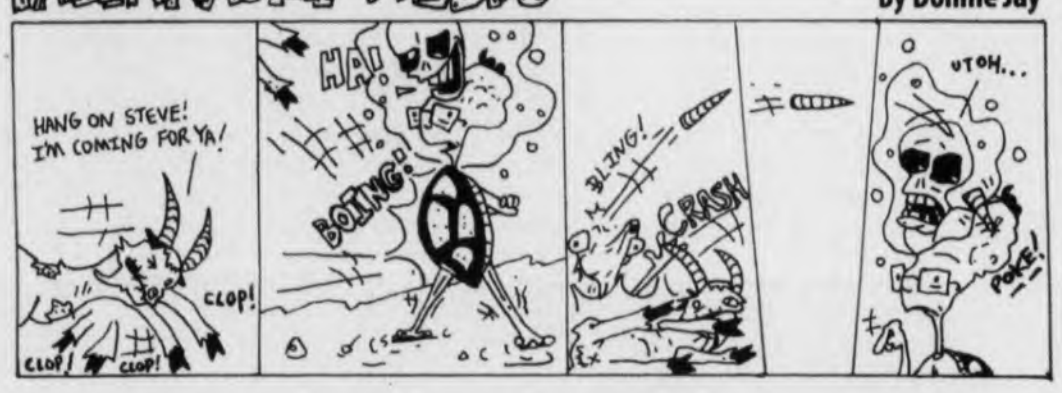
ON THE WEB

Like the Collegian, but doesn't leave ink on your fingers

Your picks for Photo of the Week

1st: "Hello, Huggie," 75 votes, 39%

2nd: "Shooting for the Moon," 38 votes, 20%



3rd: "Living on the Edge," 36 votes, 19%

Don't forget to vote for this week's photos at www.kstatecollegian.com

TABERNACLE WOODS

By Donnie Jay

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ The Department of Entomology is searching for a research associate in molecular entomology. Ph.D. degree in biological science is required. The application deadline is today. For more information, call (785) 532-5763.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Adriana Chacon-Cáscante at 1:30 p.m. today in Waters 342.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. on Thursday. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Huei-Lien Chen at 1 p.m. Thursday in Bluemont 339.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kelly Glodt at 1 p.m. Thursday in Bluemont 106.

■ Dr. Stephen Greb from the Kentucky Geological Survey and the University of Kentucky will present "Future of Coal in the U.S." as part of the Geology Seminar Series at 4 p.m. Thursday in Thompson 213.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jeffrey Bartel at 10:30 a.m. Friday in Bluemont 487.

Corrections and clarifications

There were errors in Tuesday's Collegian. Those wishing to be contestants in the Boy Scout Talent Show should e-mail robertthedley@hotmail.com. The appellate court issues written opinions. The Collegian regrets the errors. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

ATTENTION SENIORS

Watch for the 2006 SENIOR SURVEY, via email. Complete the survey to be eligible for FABULOUS prizes, donated by Varney's Bookstore.

~ K-State Office of Assessment

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:

Free Consumer & Tenant Advice

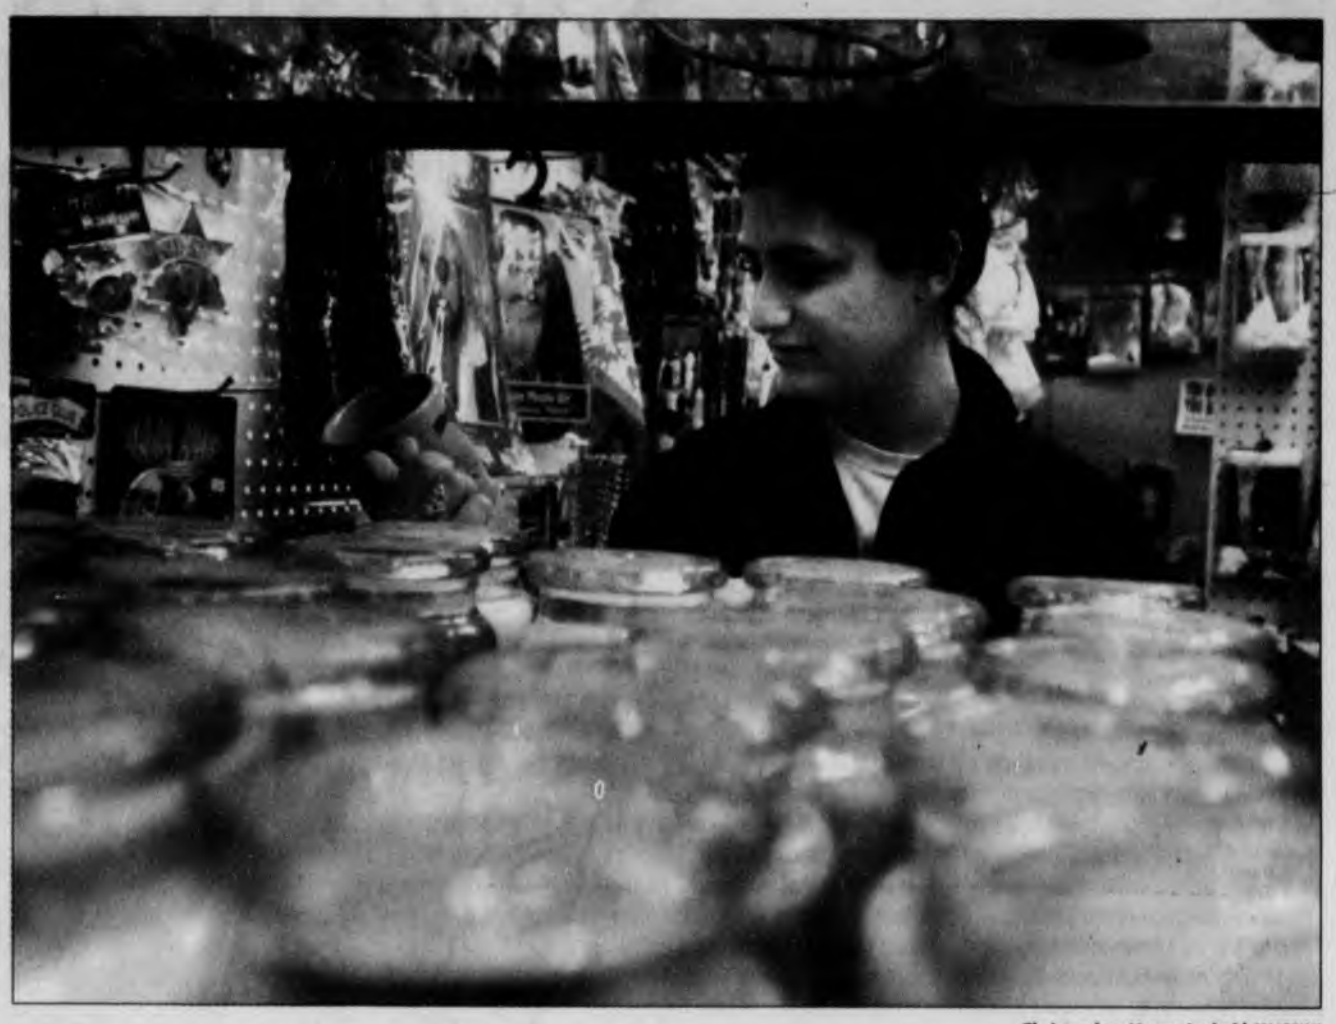
for more information visit the website at: http://www.ksu.edu/osas/cta.htm

The Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office provides information on landlord/tenant rights and responsibilities and aids in the resolution of consumer complaints regarding products and/or services. Brochures regarding landlord/tenant and consumer issues are also available.

Consumer and Tenant Affairs Office
Appointments Available Daily
Call 532-6541 to make an appointment.

$10 OFF
MONTH UNLIMITED
Bronze Image
Tanning Salon
785.539.3742 • 1122 LARAMIE • HANDI CORNER

GUMBY'S Pizza
We roll ours fatter...
We are talking about our
50¢ pizza rolls
All Day
sauce extra
$1 Bud & Bud Light Draws
50¢ Pool All Day



PETE GILE Live Thursday
$1.75 Domestic Bottles
$3.00 Monster Bombs
BOWINKLE'S Sports Bar
N Anderson W E S Seth Childs
776-1022
3034 Anderson Ave.
Catch all your games on our 120" TVs

OUR PIGS DON'T GET ADDED GROWTH HORMONES, ANTIBIOTICS OR VALET PARKING.

HONEST INGREDIENTS. Chipotle

IN AGGIEVILLE

Local store offers more than costumes

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Beth Diliberto, senior in family studies and human services, looks at a mug while shopping at R&R Costumes and Clothing Tuesday afternoon. The store has been located on 12th street for one and a half years.

By Mark Sibilla
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In just three short years and three separate locations, Rockstar and Rogers Clothing & Costume has evolved from a small store selling used clothing to what the owners now describe as atypical and alternative.

The store was originally located in a small building on Fifth Street and exclusively used clothing was sold, said Rebecca Christensen, co-owner of the store with her sister Sarah.

Rebecca said the name Rockstar and Rogers was her sister's idea. She said the duo was looking for a play on the idea of yin and yang.

"The 'Rogers' refers to characters like Buck Rogers or Mr.. Rogers, and their wholesome images are contrasted with the rock star lifestyle," Rebecca said. "We wanted to create a store where someone like a rock star could find something and someone like Mr. Rogers could find something."

When Sarah and Rebecca began the business, Rebecca said she worked the third shift at a factory so she could support the business without taking out a loan.

"I recommend this business tactic to those who wish to start their own business so they don't have to begin the business in debt," Rebecca said.

After a few months, the store moved around the corner to Poyntz Avenue.

Sarah decided to leave the business, and Becca Craig, part-time student in business management, bought out her half of the store, Rebecca said.

The store then expanded to selling costumes and costume accessories in addition to used clothing.

Rebecca said this was due to Craig's interest in costuming. The store remained on Poyntz for about a year, she said.

Rockstar and Rogers moved to its third and current location in Aggieville in the building previously occupied by J & I's Gifts and Ceramics, Rebecca said. The business has been located in Aggieville for one year and four months, she said.

"When the building became available, (Craig and I) thought it had a lot of character, so we decided to move in," Rebecca said. "The larger store has allowed us to expand our inventory and divide the store into several sections."

The store's largest customer base is college women who are often in search of costumes for date parties, Rebecca said.

"But the largest buyers of accessories are guys, because they tend to make their own costumes," she said.

In addition to selling costumes and costume accessories year-round, the store also sells things like jewelry, incense, T-shirts, funky purses and many products that support fair-trade organizations, Rebecca said.

The store has more than 100 different styles of posters and art prints, she said.

Craig said she doesn't want the store to fit into any specific genre.

"We're really a store that is a jack of all trades," she said.

Craig and Rebecca said they constantly are trying to expand the store by offering items they think will fit their customers' needs.

"If it seems cool, we'll order it and see how it goes over," Craig said. "That is the advantage of having a local store compared to big corporations.

"We are able to listen to the customers, so we know the people who we are selling to, and if people embrace the new products, and they continue to sell, we'll expand the section."

In January, the store added a section for tobacco accessories that has been a success with customers, Rebecca said.

The store becomes involved with local university and community activities when possible, Rebecca said.

On campus, Rockstar and Rogers has been involved with Students for Environmental Action, and the store donated items to sell during the Fair-Trade Fair in the K-State Student Union, Rebecca said.

"We try to support the university and worthwhile philanthropy causes around town," she said. "When we have the means, we give back what we can."

Rockstar and Rogers also has helped outfit costumes for plays at Manhattan High School.

"During the summer production of "Oklahoma!," we outfitted the school with about half the costumes," Craig said.

As far as the store's future is concerned, both Rebecca and Craig said they would like to see the store expand when they have the means.

"I would like to eventually open a couple more locations and manage the stores from home," Rebecca said. "I would like to make it a living."

Craig said she would like to gradually increase clientele and learn more about the market in Manhattan.

She also said she would like to get to the point where the owners don't have to worry about paying bills, and to eventually have more than enough money to make more orders and take more risks with ordering.

"It's been a hard three years, but it has been worth the fight," Craig said. "We are slowly going where we want to go."

Rebecca also remained optimistic about the future of the store and offered some advice to Manhattan residents about shopping locally.

"It is important to shop locally and keep the money in the community," Rebecca said. "People must remember that there are plenty of local businesses in the 'Ville that won't last if people take their business to the big box stores.

"Plus you can often find things locally that you won't be able to find elsewhere."

ROYAL PURPLE yearbook
we've got the stories you've got to read.
Get your Royal Purple yearbook in Kedzie 103, or call 532-6555.

Campus Phone Books
you can finally Buy A Book WORTH ITS PRICE on sale NOW in Kedzie 103 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

$1.50 Drinks
$2.00 Shots
$2.00 Bottles
Fat's BAR & GRILL

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

auto Auction
Thursday, November 16
5:00pm
701 Enoch Lane - Manhattan, KS
Collector cars - modified trucks sports cars and more
PURPLE WAVE Auction Company
www.purplewave.com

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Alpha Chi Omega
Congratulates our new Executive Officers
President - Lindsey Swoyer
VP CRSB - Liz Johnston
VP Finance - Courtney Graham
VP Fraternity Relations - Katie Beye
VP Education - Sarah Butler
VP Intellectual Development - Kelly Kyndesen
VP Communications - Libby Connell
VP Membership Development - Becca Dowell
Panhellenic Delegate - Becca Spexarth
VP Recruitment - Deidre Burnett
VP Risk Management - Bailey Raaf

McCain Auditorium Presents
The Hollywood Nutcracker
Holiday Event
December 1 2006
at 7:30 pm
Call the McCain Box Office at 532-6428, or order online at www.ksu.edu/mccain

The end of a dictator

With Fidel Castro out of power, Cuba's future is up for grabs

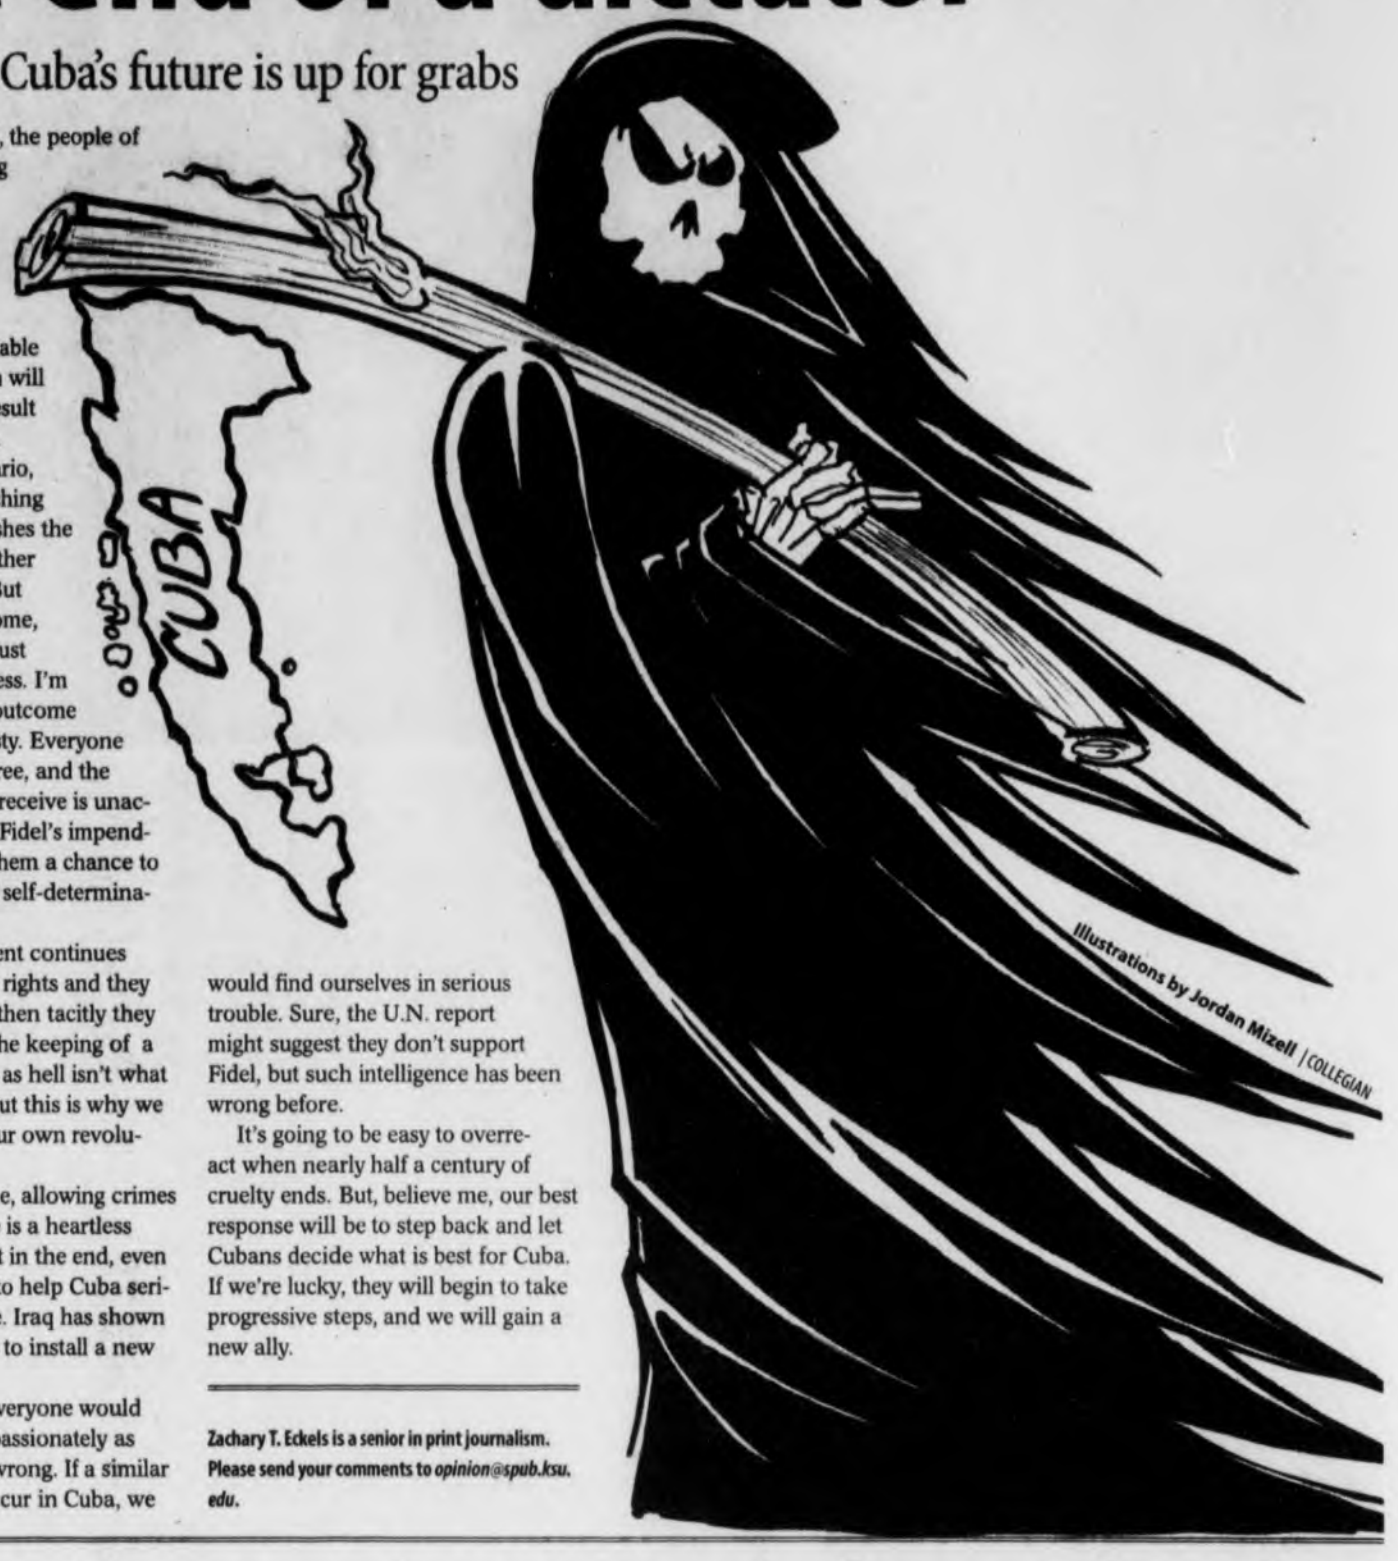
ZACHARY T. ECKELS

Soon, nearly 48 years of tradition could end with the death of a man. Few in America will mourn the loss of this man, and some even will call for the United States to oversee the end of his tradition. Although Cuban officials have yet to comment on Fidel Castro's looming demise, the dictator's death can't be far off. According to an Associated Press article, U.S. officials say the 80-year-old man most likely has cancer of the stomach, colon or pancreas.

If this is true, chemotherapy could only retain his life for up to 18 months. Without it, he's most likely looking at three to eight months. But either way, cancer would be a good explanation as to why he is no longer planning to return to power in early December. But since Fidel "temporarily" handed over the power to his brother Raúl Castro, the country's future has looked promising. According to the Miami Herald, Raúl already has begun to address the flaws in the repressive government.

Focusing on corruption, he has replaced two cabinet members. Best of all, instead of leading large protests condemning us Yankees, Raúl has gone so far as to signal he is willing to work with the United States. However, no one can be sure how Cuba will respond to Fidel's passing. Maybe Raúl will be the answer to Cuba's prayers. It's possible he's just waiting to make radical changes when Fidel is no longer around to object.

On the other hand, according to a recent report by the U.N. Human Rights Council, the people of Cuba have no strong allegiance to their country – or to Fidel. With Cubans being denied democratic elections for so long, the unstable conditions his death will bring could easily result in a new revolution.



Worst-case scenario, Raúl simply is preaching fluff until he establishes the power his older brother was able to attain. But even with this outcome, the United States must stay out of the process. I'm not suggesting this outcome wouldn't be a travesty. Everyone has the right to be free, and the oppression Cubans receive is unacceptable. However, Fidel's impending death will give them a chance to practice the right of self-determination.

If their government continues to refuse them their rights and they remain submissive, then tacitly they have consented to the keeping of a dictatorship. It sure as hell isn't what we would choose, but this is why we stood up and had our own revolution.

I realize, for some, allowing crimes like this to continue is a heartless thing to suggest. But in the end, even our best intentions to help Cuba seriously could backfire. Iraq has shown us how difficult it is to install a new government.

Our belief that everyone would accept freedom as passionately as we do was proven wrong. If a similar situation were to occur in Cuba, we would find ourselves in serious trouble. Sure, the U.N. report might suggest they don't support Fidel, but such intelligence has been wrong before.

It's going to be easy to overreact when nearly half a century of cruelty ends. But, believe me, our best response will be to step back and let Cubans decide what is best for Cuba. If we're lucky, they will begin to take progressive steps, and we will gain a new ally.

Illustrations by Jordan Mizell / COLLEGIAN

Zachary T. Eckels is a senior in print journalism. Please send your comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

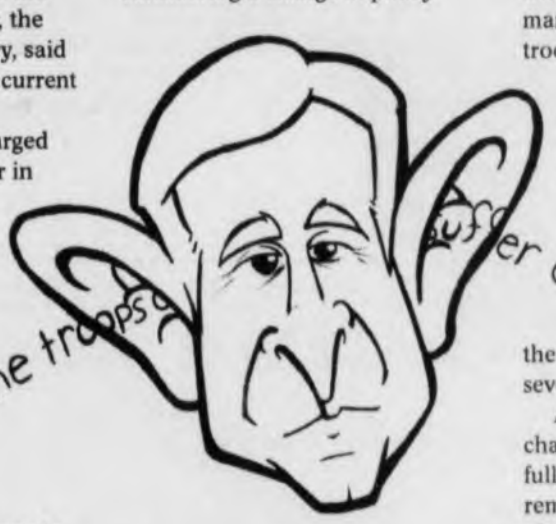
Bush should accept at least a minor removal of troops from Iraq

SCOTT GIRARD

It took three and a half years, nearly 3,000 U.S. military deaths, and one horrible day for Republicans on Nov. 7, but the Bush administration finally is listening to other opinions about the plan in Iraq.

According to Reuters, President Bush sat down Monday with several important members of a bipartisan group charged with exploring different options for promoting peace in Iraq.

The group, which included former Secretary of State James Baker and former Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., also met with other members of the cabinet, British Prime Minister Tony Blair and several Democratic leaders.



After the meeting Monday, Bush praised the group for asking good questions, but vowed pulling the troops out now is not an option.

What I would like to know is what those good questions were, and why those questions were either not asked, which I am sure they were, or why they have not been answered. Tony Snow, the White House press secretary, said the discussion outlined the current situation in Iraq.

I am glad the person charged with the title of commander in chief finally has decided to talk to a specialized group of political insiders. By the time he leaves office, Bush might even make the effort to change some of the plans for Iraq.

It has taken the administration far too long to address the issue of war in Iraq. With the overall death toll near 150,000, the Muslim sects of Iraq still fighting and an Iraqi cabinet that plans to drastically change its cabinet, I guess Bush thought it was as good a time as any to look into Iraq.

Bush is not the only person considering a change in policy.

Blair has suggested Syria and Iran should be encouraged to control the situations in Iraq, according to the Washington Post. He and his cabinet also are looking for a "reassessment" of the strategy in Iraq.

Maybe it is just me, but I would have "reassessed" the strategy a while ago when, no matter how many insurgents we killed, more troops and citizens were dying.

As much as I abhor President Bush, I do commend him for assessing his current policy in Iraq, albeit much too late. His newfound openness and the recent Democratic takeover of the Senate and House may lead to several advances in Iraq.

Although it would take a huge change in his stance, Bush hopefully can accept at least a minor removal of troops. Why not? Our plan for peace in Iraq has backfired; there are far more terrorists and more violence in Iraq than when we entered.

Some things still need to be accomplished and the Baker-Hamilton group will address those. The group will confront Bush and others involved in the Iraq strategy with plans to train more soldiers, possibly increase soldier deployment to establish order quickly, and also request help from Syria and Iran, according to the New York Times. All of these plans hopefully will lead to the withdrawal of most of the troops.

Bush finally has ceded his immobile position on Iraq at least a little bit, and the seeds of positive progress in Iraq are set. Hopefully the administration and the Democratically ruled House and Senate can find a common ground to remove the troops from possibly the most dangerous place on earth. More troops do not need to die in a place that has proven over and over that it will not stop fighting.

Scott Girard is a sophomore in mass communication. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTAION EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Owners responsible for training of dogs; breed ban would not address full issue

Beware of dog.

Or dogs, in this case. A problem with dog attacks has led the city commission to look into banning the owning of certain types of dogs. However, it is usually the owner, not the dog, who causes the problem.

According to a statement by the American Veterinary Medical Association, a dog's tendency to bite depends on six factors: heredity, early experience, socialization and training, physical and behavioral health, victim behavior and environment.

Banning certain breeds addresses only one of those factors.

While many people think of pit bulls as threatening, the American Temperament Test Society quotes 83.3 percent of pit bulls passed the temperament test, which was more than the 81.2 percent of all dogs that passed.

Many breeds usually considered family-friendly, like the Jack Russell Terrier, Cocker Spaniel and the Border Collie, also posted lower scores.

Owners often get dogs as puppies but lack the time, knowledge or ability to train and confine their dogs correctly.

Therefore, the institution of dog bite prevention training and additional penalties for chronically irresponsible owners might be a more effective strategy for dog control.

We recommend a policy be instituted requiring such owners to simply post a sign: Beware of dog owner.

CAMPUS FOURUM 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

To the parking Nazi who let me get away without a ticket today: you are no longer a parking Nazi to me, you are a parking angel.

Will you marry me, Nancy?

Seeing the column on the University of Michigan made me wish I was still there.

So I crowd-surfed, and I got to storm the field. K-State football is my new love.

I heart Phi Delt pledges.

Oh, how I hate Ohio State. Go Blue.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

TO THE EDITOR

Student says new athletic jerseys, colors don't properly represent K-States' tradition

Editor,

It's come to my attention in my few years here at K-State that people just don't care about the spirit of K-State. One perk of my attending K-State is that I get to boast my favorite color – purple.

It's not why I'm here, but it certainly makes it that much more enjoyable. To this end, there is something I can't let go by without bringing attention to it, and that's the fact that sports teams should be clad almost entirely in purple. It is, after all, our one and only school color.

Yes black, silver and white often are paired with it to create a pleasing appeal to the eye, but that does not make them school colors. The men's basketball team has new uniforms, and they are sharp indeed. Yet I'm worried about one in particular, the "black alternative" they say they'll wear for special occasions, like when K-State is playing on ESPN's "Big Monday" or when we "end the streak" against KU. These are going to be huge, nationally viewed and recognized events, and we'll be wearing black.

I remember two years ago when the basketball team got new warm-ups that were black. Just warm-ups, and alumni didn't like it at all because they weren't purple.

"They look like a bunch of (darn) Missouri Tigers," said Lori Lamb, K-State 1982 alumna and avid purple lover.

I believe (coach Bob) Huggins will do everything he says and K-State will make it far in the season this year, but it saddens me that when we're back in the national spotlight we won't be showing people what K-State's all about – purple.

Matthew Garcia
JUNIOR IN HOTEL RESTAURANT MANAGEMENT

Reader praises columnist's use of sarcasm, advises him to keep 'strong, conservative voice'

Editor,

I want to start by sincerely thanking Kody Cooper for your article exposing partial-birth abortions. No doubt you're going to hear about it and probably already have possibly from your editor or the other writers. I had to read parts of the article a couple times, but sarcasm is such a great stretch of imagination/humor. That takes a lot of guts and heart to publish something like that, but it's a message we all (especially women) need to hear more often. I think your actions are all the more praiseworthy because, obviously, you're a guy. If more men spoke up on the matter, abortion and women's "rights" probably wouldn't be where it is today.

My only real comment on your article is this: If you're going to throw punches then come out swinging and don't pull back. Like my bumper sticker says, "As a former fetus, I oppose abortion." The term fetus that the liberals have taken a liking to is literally translated from Latin to mean "filled with young, pregnant, breeding, with young" as well as "bringing forth, bearing, hatching, producing." It's so much easier to kill something that isn't alive in the eyes of the pro-death campaign. Ironic how the term they've coined and has become synonymous with abortion is really an old admission of the life they seek to destroy.

Keep up the good work, buddy, and continue your strong conservative voice! Whatever happens I'll keep reading.

Mitch O'Reilly
JUNIOR IN FISHERIES AND WILDLIFE BIOLOGY

Columnist should look deeper into party lines, consider why voters are realigning affiliations

Editor,

Chuck Armstrong is a sore loser. He asserts that Nancy Boyda lacks intelligence.

Well, she was smart enough to defeat an entrenched Republican incumbent. Instead of bashing Nancy Boyda, perhaps Armstrong should ask himself why so many Kansas Republicans are leaving the party and becoming Democrats, and why so many Republican moderates and independents are voting for Democrats.

John Fliter
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF POLITICAL SCIENCE
FACULTY ADVISER OF KSU YOUNG DEMOCRATS

Columnist should acquire more knowledge, approach topic of abortion with more logic

Editor,

Kody Cooper's article on Nov. 8, "Sarcasm Exposes Gruesome Reality of Partial-Birth Abortions" offended me – not because of the gruesome nature of the procedures described, but because of Kody's apparent total lack of knowledge of the issue at hand.

The first thing that caught my eye was that the first procedure that Kody described is not even the procedure that the Supreme Court is debating.

The first procedure is completely legal under all legislation and not under scrutiny by the Court. The second procedure is the one under question.

While this second procedure is indeed gruesome, outlawing it with poor language (such as the Nebraska law under question in Stenberg v. Carhart did) would outlaw nearly all abortion after the first trimester. In 2000, this procedure was not declared constitutional by the court either.

The entire Nebraska law was declared unconstitutional because of its poor language effectively outlawing all abortions after the first trimester, and its lack of an exception to protect the mother's health and life. Partial-birth abortions were not declared a constitutional right; the Nebraska law was declared unconstitutional.

Another thing I noticed was when Kody "rhetorically" asked the Supreme Court, "What signify 40 million lives lost in a decade or two?" A sentence that is barely intelligible for one, it gruesomely misrepresents partial-birth abortions.

Partial-birth abortions account for a few thousand of the approximately 1.65 million abortions performed annually in the United States. If Kody wants to argue against partial-birth abortions, he should do it. If he wants to argue against abortion (which would make much more sense), he should do it.

What he has presented here is neither. I would appreciate an article about abortion that was rationally and logically written with correct facts. Whether you disagree with abortion is irrelevant. No one benefits from reading false statements and articles that are so poorly written.

Jay Aber
SENIOR IN CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

Student accuses reporter of fabricating quote, demands higher standards from the Collegian

Editor,

I am writing in response to the article titled "Voice of K-State football, pets headline Family Day events" in the Nov. 6 edition of the Collegian.

I feel those in charge of the Collegian should know that as an interviewee, I was quoted as making a statement that is a complete fabrication.

Neither the words "the dogs are really just a shameless ploy to get people to stop by our table" nor any words similar to them, ever left my mouth.

The interviewer completely missed the point of the College of Veterinary Medicine's participation in the event and never wrote down a single word I said throughout the interview, save for my name and my dog's name.

Additionally, I told the interviewer that I was a second-year veterinary student of the class of 2009, yet I was described as a fifth-year veterinary student.

Such falsehoods are what speak for the Collegian as a newspaper and K-State as a university.

This letter is intended to inform those involved with the Collegian of this problem and encourage them to act to ensure that this does not become a recurring issue.

The reputation of K-State and its newspaper are at stake, and I hope that in the future, reporters become more aware of that fact.

Leah Wellman
K-STATE COLLEGE OF VETERINARY MEDICINE
CLASS OF 2009

you can finally buy a book
WORTH ITS PRICE
CAMPUS PHONE BOOK
On sale in Kedzie 103
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mon.-Fri.

advertise with the COLLEGIAN
532-6560

he did.

Porter's
706 N. Manhattan Ave
537-7151
20¢ WINGS 4-9 PM
Hot, Mild, BBQ, Honey Mustard, Hot BBQ
$2.50 ALL FROZEN DRINKS
$1.50 WELLS
$1.50 COSMOPOLITAN MARTINIS
$2.00 DOMESTIC BIG BEERS
Open @ 4
Now Taking Applications

AGGIE LOUNGE
712 12th St. 537-8585
$2 YOU CALL IT
(premiums, bottles, wells, calls, shots)
$2 Redbull & Vodkas
Grape, Cherry, Jager Bombs

Call 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE DELIVERS

Just let it out...
YELL
at the Public Editor

Logan C. Adams, Public Editor of the Collegian, will be available today from 10am - 12pm to hear your thoughts.
Good Weather: Bosco Student Plaza
Bad Weather: Union First Floor
Until then, e-mail him at publiceditor@spub.ksu.edu

2006 Principal/Counselor/Student Conference

Kansas State University

Wednesday, Nov. 15, 2006

LIST OF HIGH SCHOOL LOCATIONS

10-11:15 a.m.

(All table and room assignments are in the Union Ballroom.)

Andover Central HS - Ballroom Table #24
Atchison Co. Comm. HS- Ballroom Table #1
Axtell HS - Ballroom Table #2
B & B - Ballroom Table #3
Baldwin HS - Ballroom Table #4
Bern HS - Ballroom Table #5
Bishop Carroll HS - Ballroom Table #6
~~Bluestem HS - Ballroom Table #7~~ CANCELED
Buhler HS - Ballroom Table #8
Central HS - Ballroom Table #9
Chase County HS - Ballroom Table #10
Clifton HS-Ballroom Table #11
Derby HS - Ballroom Table #12
Douglass HS - Ballroom Table #13
Fredonia HS - Ballroom Table #14
~~Goddard HS - Ballroom Table #15~~ CANCELED
Hartford HS - Ballroom Table #16
Haven HS - Ballroom Table #17
Herington HS - Ballroom Table #18
Hiawatha HS - Ballroom Table #19
Highland Park HS - Ballroom Table #20
~~Hill City HS - Ballroom Table #21~~ CANCELED
Hillsboro HS - Ballroom Table #22
Holton HS - Ballroom Table #23
JC Harmon HS - Ballroom Table #68
Jefferson Co. North HS - Ballroom Table #25
Jewell HS - Ballroom Table #26
Maize HS - Ballroom Table #27
Manhattan HS - Union Room 207
Marysville HS - Ballroom Table #28
McLouth HS - Ballroom Table #29
Mill Valley HS - Ballroom Table #30
Miltonvale HS - Ballroom Table #31
Mission Valley HS - Ballroom Table #32
Northern Valley HS - Ballroom Table #33
Olathe East HS - Union Room 204
Olathe North HS - Union Room 205
Osawatomie HS - Ballroom Table #34
Oskaloosa HS - Ballroom Table #35
Otis-Bison HS - Ballroom Table #36
Pawnee Heights HS - Ballroom Table #37
Piper HS - Ballroom Table #38
Plainville HS - Ballroom Table #39
Pretty Prairie HS - Ballroom Table #40
Quinter HS - Ballroom Table #67
Remington HS - Ballroom Table #41
Rock Creek HS - Ballroom Table #42
Rockhurst HS - Ballroom Table #43
Rossville HS- Ballroom Table #44
Royal Valley HS - Ballroom Table #45
Sabetha HS - Ballroom Table #46
Salina Central HS - Union Room 208
Salina South HS - Union Room 209
Scott Co. Community HS - Ballroom Table #47
Seaman HS - Ballroom Table #48
Shawnee Heights HS - Ballroom Table #49
Shawnee Mission West HS - Union Room 206
Sterling HS- Ballroom Table #50
Stockton HS - Ballroom Table #51
Sublette HS - Ballroom Table #52
Sumner Academy - Ballroom Table #53
Sylvan Grove HS - Ballroom Table #54
Thomas More Prep HS - Ballroom Table #55
Tonganoxie HS - Ballroom Table #56
Troy HS - Ballroom Table #57
~~Valley Falls HS - Ballroom Table #58~~ CANCELED
Valley Heights HS - Ballroom Table #59
Wabaunsee HS- Ballroom Table #60
~~Wakefield HS - Ballroom Table #61~~ CANCELED
Waverly HS - Ballroom Table #62
Wellsville HS - Ballroom Table #63
Wichita NW HS - Ballroom Table #64
Wetmore HS - Ballroom Table #65
Wyandotte HS - Ballroom Table #66

Your health | Heart disease

Heart Smart

What you do today can affect heart health in the future. Making minor changes can affect future heart function.

By Melissa Haug
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Heart disease is not something you catch because you forgot to wash your hands or because you shared a beverage with a thirsty friend.

Heart disease, instead, is brought on by several health conditions that relate to the heart and blood vessels, onset by daily events.

Although you might feel immune to this condition and its devastating effects for the moment, it's likely you're already at risk for a heart attack or stroke in the future. The good news is modifiable risk factors outnumber those you can't change.

Prevention starts with your decisions today.

As the leading cause of death in America, heart disease is no laughing matter. According to the Centers for Disease Control, deaths from heart disease in 2004 outranked the second-leading cause of death, cancer, by a whopping 103,822 deaths.

With so many annual deaths from this disease, why do we continue to turn the other cheek?

How do we not take it upon ourselves to protect our health for now and the future?

Keep in mind high-risk factors do not guarantee you a heart attack or stroke, but the more risk factors you choose not to control, the greater your statistical chances for heart disease and hardships later in life.

UNCONTROLLABLE HIGH-RISK FACTORS

According to the American Heart Association, if your father or brother experienced heart disease before age 55, or if your mother or sister experienced heart disease before age 65, you are at a higher risk to contract the disease. According to American Dietetics Association, blacks with high blood pressure, Mexican Americans, Native Americans, Native Hawaiians, and some Asian Americans have shown greater prevalence for heart disease.

CONTROLLABLE RISK FACTORS

Smoking cigarettes, cigars and pipes and secondhand smoke causes high blood pressure or hypertension, according to the American Heart Association. This forces the heart to work harder, causing enlargement of the heart muscle, which eventually weakens it.

Lack of exercise proves to be a precursor for several risk factors. Not taking part in the regular recommended physical activity – 30 to 60 minutes a day on most days of the week – might lead to weight gain and possibly obesity.

Being overweight or obese, especially with excess abdominal fat, puts additional strain on the heart, raises blood pressure, raises blood cholesterol and lowers HDL cholesterol levels (the "good" cholesterol), all of which are risk factors for heart disease.

Diabetes, even in situations when it is under control, can increase the risk of dying from a heart attack.

Excess alcohol intake can also lead to increased blood pressure, which might cause an irregular heartbeat, heart failure or stroke.

To manage and decrease your risk factors, practice healthier lifestyle habits: exercise regularly, consume more natural nutrient-rich foods (fruits, vegetables and whole grains) and get regular heart screenings.

Melissa Haug is a senior in public health nutrition and dietetics and a nutrition consultant and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

Cardiovascular disease an issue across nation

When I grow up, I want to be a cardiologist. I want to work on peoples' hearts, and, thanks to a majority of Americans today, I am going to make a lot of money doing it.

TRENT SCOTT

Yes, I'm going to be a very rich man, and it won't be because you have some rare heart condition, but because you made the conscious decision to not eat healthy and be physically active. You will instead choose to develop cardiovascular disease.

Cardiovascular disease is a broad term that encompasses many diseases that affect the heart, lungs, arteries and veins, and includes heart disease.

According to the American Heart Association, about 910,000 Americans died from cardiovascular disease last year, making it the No. 1 killer of people in this nation. It accounted for more than 40 percent of the deaths in the United States.

Of the 910,000 Americans who died from cardiovascular disease, one-third of them did because of a poor diet and lack of physical activity.

According to the American Heart Association, 24 percent of U.S. adults age 18 and older are not physically active at all.

For something a little closer to home, the 300,000 Americans who died last year from the disease due to poor dieting and a sedentary lifestyle is greater than the populations of the Kansas cities of Topeka, Manhattan, Salina and Hutchinson combined.

That means more people die each year from bad life choices than the number of Kansans who live in four of the ten most populated cities of the Sunflower State.

Put down your extra large value meal and think about this for a second.

It's called quality of life, and unless you want your grandchildren to remember grandpa as that fat guy who sat in his chair all day and died early, you need to get out and start making healthy life choices.

The good news is, according to the American Heart Association, even low to moderate activities like walking, climbing stairs and dancing can have a positive effect on your cardiovascular health. More vigorous aerobic activities are even better.

So I am begging you to please think about the choices you make when it comes to your health.

Trent Scott is a junior in nutrition and exercise science and American Council on Exercise certified personal trainer at Peters Recreation Complex. Please send comments to sports@spub.ksu.edu.

News & Notes

Figurs questionable for Saturday's game at Kansas

By Jonathan Garten
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It looks like K-State's troubles at the wide receiver position will continue.

Coach Ron Prince announced at Tuesday's press conference that senior wide receiver Yamon Figurs' status is questionable for Saturday's game at Kansas.

"It's hard to lose guys like that but we have great other receivers and those other guys are all going to step up," senior defensive lineman Quintin Echols said. "When you have football, and then it's taken away from you, it makes you think about how much you appreciate it."

Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN
Senior wide receiver and return specialist Yamon Figurs was named co-Big 12 Special Teams Player of the Week on Sunday.

All three of the Wildcats' top receivers – Figurs, Jermaine Moreira and Jordy Nelson – have suffered injuries this season. Daniel Gonzalez and Cedric Wilson have received more playing time because of the injuries.

TEXAS-SIZED LETDOWN

After upsetting the No. 4 team in the nation and the defending national champions, one might think it would be hard to get ready for the next opponent. However, Prince said K-State will have no trouble focusing on this weekend's game.

"I think this is a game that we've been looking for all season," Prince said. "Our opponent is well known to our players and our organization. So they have our full attention."

The game will be at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Memorial Stadium in Lawrence, Kan. The Jayhawks lead the all-time series 61-37-5.

FREEMAN EARNS MORE HONORS

True freshman quarterback Josh Freeman won the Big 12 conference's Offensive Player of the Week award for the second time in a row for his performance in K-State's 45-42 win over Texas. Freeman is just the second player to win the honor in consecutive weeks this season – Adrian Peterson, Oklahoma running back, did it in September.

"Josh is a very poised young man.," Prince said. "His expectations for what he wants to accomplish are much higher than even what's happened."

Freeman won the award the first time after completing 22 of 26 passes for 251 yards and two touchdowns in a 34-21 win over Colorado. He followed up that performance with 269 yards through the air, three passing touchdowns and a rushing touchdown against Texas.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

BKC | Huggins, men's team head to New Jersey, take on Rutgers

Immediately after K-State (1-0) beat William & Mary 70-60 on Saturday afternoon, coach Bob Huggins warned his team about tonight's road game with Rutgers. Huggins said to expect the Rutgers crowd to be extra hostile because of its recent big win.

But he wasn't talking about basketball. Huggins was talking about the Scarlet Knight football team's 28-25 victory over No. 3 Louisville last Thursday. It was Rutgers' first win over a Top 15 opponent in university history.

"The crowd is going to be riled up," senior guard Lance Harris said. "Some of these guys have never been on the road so we got to take them under our wing and just let them know what needs to be done."

Harris' teammates would be smart to try to match his performance against William & Mary. In a game where it seemed like no one could make a shot, Harris led all players with 22 points while making eight of 19 shots.

Junior forward David Hoskins, K-State's second leading scorer from last year, didn't have as much success as Harris. Hoskins scored 15 points but needed 15 shots to reach that total.

Hoskins said K-State's game at Rutgers would show just how much better the Wildcats have become with Huggins and his new coaching staff.

"We know it's going to be a live atmosphere," he said. "It's going to be fun, but it's going to test us to see where our heart is at."

— Jonathan Garten

VOL | K-State takes on Texas, the No. 8 ranked team in nation

Are two Texas upsets too much to ask? K-State volleyball coach Suzie Fritz doesn't think so.

Fritz

The Longhorns are ranked eighth in the country heading into their 7 p.m. match tonight at Ahearn Field House, but Fritz said her team has reason to hope.

When the two teams met in Austin on Sept. 30, K-State (10-17, 2-15 Big 12 Conference) pushed Texas to five games.

"I think what we took from it is that should we play well," Fritz said. "We have an opportunity to play with them."

That said, the Wildcats face a tough task. Texas (19-5, 14-3 Big 12) brings a seven-match winning streak into Manhattan.

"They're one of the most physical teams in the league. Athletically, they're very gifted," Fritz said. "They're big and physical, and that will certainly pose some challenges."

The Longhorns are led by freshman right-side hitter Ashley Engle, who ranks seventh in the Big 12 in kills per game. Senior outside hitter Dariam Acevedo ranks second on the team with 290 kills, and junior setter Michelle Moriarty has tallied 1,296 assists.

However, Fritz said her team can't pay too much attention to what is across the court.

"We're still — as evidenced by the kind of year we're having — very concerned with what's happening on our side of the net," Fritz said. "Our ability to put together a combined effort at all positions, on both the offensive and defensive sides of the ball, will be the biggest focus."

K-State is mired in its worst season in more than a decade, but Fritz said her team still has the opportunity to accomplish something positive.

"We've tried to stress that we're going to play as hard as we can for as long as we get the opportunity," Fritz said. "With only one senior, we want Sandy to go out on a positive note."

— Austin Meek

BBN | Arizona's 16 game winner, Webb, wins NL Cy Young Award

NEW YORK — Brandon Webb of the Arizona Diamondbacks won a wide-open race for the National League Cy Young Award, beating out San Diego closer Trevor Hoffman on Tuesday.

One of six pitchers who tied for the league lead with a pedestrian total of 16 wins, Webb received 15 of 32 first-place votes and 103 points in balloting by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

St. Louis Cardinals ace Chris Carpenter, last year's winner, finished third with two first-place votes and 63 points. Houston's Roy Oswalt, who led the NL with a 2.98 ERA, got the other three first-place tallies and came in fourth.

Students support monument to honor civil rights leader

By Nicole Johnston
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Students and members of Alpha Phi Alpha are joining together to raise money for the Martin Luther King Jr. monument that will be built in Washington D.C.

"The idea to build the monument came from Alpha Phi Alpha, because Dr. King was a proud member of Alpha Phi Alpha," said Brandon Clark, a graduate student in college student personnel and chapter adviser. "We thought it would be fitting to pay honor and tribute to him by building a monument for him."

Clark said the monument is scheduled to be completed by 2008, so all members who have recently contributed will be able to see what their work has earned. The ground breaking for the monument took place Monday, after 20 years of planning and raising money.

There are specific regulations to have a monument built including the obtaining of permission from Congress, planning and organization, Clark said.

Abdul Yahaya, senior in civil engineering and president of the chapter, said he was excited for the ground breaking.

"The monument is very significant in that it is the first of it's kind. It's going to be the first monument built to honor the African Americans' leader in America," Yahaya said.

People have been raising money for the past 20 years to be able to build the monument. There has been about $65 million raised so far toward the $100 million needed to finish the project.

The program that the K-State chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha is using to raise money is called "One more for the King." The goal of the program is to get people in the K-State Student Union to donate at least $1 to help build the monument.

"Instead of using that one dollar to waste on a soda, you can give a dollar to help build a lasting memorial in our nation's capital," Clark said.

So far this year, the members of the K-State chapter have raised more than $1,500.

Clark said the chapter will continue to help raise money until the $100 million mark has been reached.

Clark said anyone who wishes to see plans, designs and pictures for the monument should visit www.mlk-memorial.org.

Kansas receives grant to protect secure areas

By Megan Molitor
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Kansas recently has received a $378,000 grant to help guard against terrorist attacks.

The money was given by the Homeland Security Buffer Zone Protection Program in July 2006 through the Infrastructure Protection Program, which is part of the Department of Homeland Security.

According to the DHS Web site, the goal of the IPP is to strengthen the nation's ability to prevent, protect against, respond to and recover from terrorist attacks, major disasters and other emergencies.

The Buffer Zone Protection Program is one of four programs inside the IPP that funds are allocated to.

"The Buffer Zone Protection Program provides grant funding to build security and risk-management capabilities at the state and local level to secure critical infrastructure," according to the DHS Web site. "This includes chemical facilities, nuclear and electric power plants, dams, stadiums, arenas and other high-risk areas."

The BZPP's goal is to help by providing funds to support planning and equipment acquisition.

In fiscal year 2006, this program awarded approximately $48 million in grant funds to state and local authorities, according to the Web site.

"Kansas can do a lot with this money," said Molly Mueller, press secretary for Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan. "It will help them to be much better protected."

The BZPP provides funds to support the implementation of buffer zone plans outside the perimeter of identified critical infrastructure or key resource sites, Mueller said.

"These plans are intended to develop effective preventative and protective measures that make it more difficult for terrorists to conduct surveillance or launch attacks within the immediate vicinity of high priority critical infrastructure targets," she said.

To effectively carry out all existing programs, buffer zone plans should accomplish many steps.

These steps include developing an appropriate buffer zone that extends outward from the facility in which protective measure can be employed to make it more difficult for terrorists to conduct site surveillance or launch attacks.

Other steps involve devaluing a target by making it less attractive or too costly to attack, and deterring an event from happening through warning signs and physical barriers.

The grant is in addition to the 2005 allocation of $1 million for equipment that will extend the zone protection beyond the gates of critical facilities, Mueller said.

Many local areas have the possibility to be affected by this grant, one of which is the Tuttle Creek Dam.

Brian McNulty, operations manager, said while he has not heard of this program, it does not mean that the dam will not be affected.

"If it is a grant, it would probably go through the state government, and our team would not be involved in it." McNulty said.

While he could not discuss the security measures enforced at the dam, he said that many are in place because dams are high-risk areas.

"Some are used for water supply, and terrorists could look to contaminate them, but that isn't the case at ours," he said. "There are several small locally owned lakes that are used for this, and these possibly could be affected by this program."

McNulty said that a major risk at a dam like Tuttle Creek is that it involves stored water, which could possibly be used to create floods.

Students provide outlet for soldiers to practice answering questions

By Ben Hedges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

FORT RILEY, Kan. – A platoon of soldiers lay hidden on the edge of a clearing waiting for their commander to give them the order to begin their mission. Their goal: a heavily fortified trench. At the sound of artillery shells blasting, the platoon leader gave the order to attack. The men, moving with quick precision, cleared the trench with minimal casualties.

One obstacle they didn't expect, however, was a group of K-State students armed with cameras and tape recorders watching every move they made.

In early September, four K-State journalism students took part in a training exercise with the First Battalion, 28th Infantry Regiment, also known as the Black Lions. It was the students' job to confront a platoon of soldiers who had just completed a trench-clearing exercise and ask them a series of questions ranging from procedure to politics. The platoon, mostly made up of privates, was expected to answer questions truthfully and within their own range of experience.

Maj. Kirk Luedeke, a Public Affairs officer with the Fourth Infantry Brigade Combat Team, discussed how a soldier should respond to questions from the media.

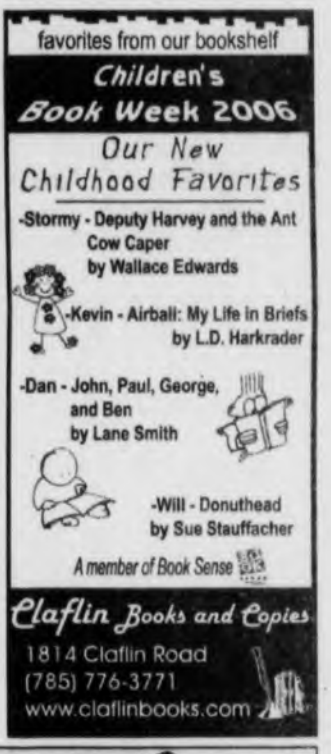
"Junior soldiers should not know bigger picture ideas," Luedeke said. "They should stay in their lanes."

Luedeke said a machine gunner should be able to tell a reporter about the weapon he uses and his role in the unit but should not give his opinions on procedure and strategy. Privates and generals alike are expected to stick to what they know and go no further.

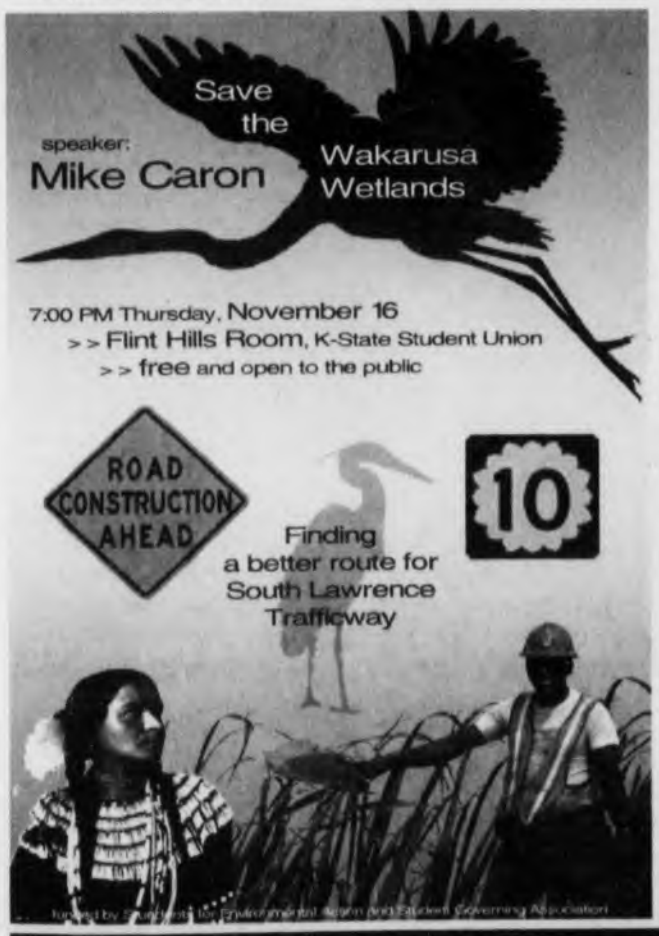
April Blackmon, a community relations officer on Fort Riley, organized the September exercise and is working to include more students in future exercises.

"I think it's a great learning experience for both students and military personnel," Blackmon said. "Soldiers need more exposure to media before they deploy, and students need more hands-on experience in reporting."

Luedeke said he wants this training to give soldiers the confidence to speak to media without fear of consequence from their commanding officers, and he wants to continue to use students for these exercises to give them that comfort.



"As we progress as a unit, we want to do more intensive and complicated training events," Luedeke said, "and we want to implement media into these events."



He said he anticipates using students for exercises on a bigger scale and for longer periods of time. He also said he hopes to actually embed a reporter with a platoon and have them follow soldiers into a combat exercise, all while firing questions at them to test their answers under stress.

Military and media relations have been jump-started ever since the beginning of the war in Iraq. Luedeke, as well as other public affairs officers, sees this as a step in the right direction, in terms of getting the story out to the American people.

"We owe it to the American public to tell the story," Luedeke said. "We are overcoming a culture of distrust through the media, and we overcome that through training."

Kansas police departments to receive bulletproof vests

By Lacey D. Mackey
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Kansas police departments will receive $238,000 in grants to purchase bulletproof vests.

The funding is from the U.S. Department of Justice's Office of Justice Programs.

According to the U.S. Department of Justice Office of Justice Programs Web site, the Bulletproof Vest Partnership (BVP), created by the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act of 1998, allows state and local law enforcement to receive protective vests.

The Riley County Police Department received $6,855, which will help to buy 35 vests.

Molly Mueller, Sen. Roberts' press secretary, said for communities with a population of 100,000 or fewer, 50 percent of the vests are paid for. Communities with more than 100,000 people have 11 percent of the vests covered.

Mueller said it's based on population.

"The smaller districts get more money," she said. "They give preference to the smaller communities. That's just how the program is set up."

The program is important for Kansas because of the communities who can't afford the vests on their own, Mueller said.

"I've only heard pretty much good things," she said.

Mike Watson, director of the Riley Police Department, said the department has been participating in the program since 1999.

Because the government pays for 50 percent of the cost of the vests, Watson said the department appreciates the help.

"Obviously, it's been helpful anytime we can get financial assistance," he said.

Watson said the grants buy regular vests and specialty vests for SWAT teams.

The vests are guaranteed for about four to five years depending on the wear on the vests, and Watson said the vests are purchased on a time schedule to replace vests.

The vests cost hundreds of dollars, Watson said, which is why the department is happy for the help.

"It's getting more difficult to take care of all the needs of a police department," he said. "It helps us help the officers and bring them back safely."

Joslyn Brown | COLLEGIAN
During a guided tour, Clara Levy, 3, looks at a wandering leaf insect, the leaf equivalent of a walking stick insect.

HOLT | Students familiar with biology can be guides

Continued from Page 1

back and shoulders and plans to add more to the artwork.

"I did it just so people would understand how excited I am about entomology," Holt said. "That is my advertisement of how much I love what I do."

People have noticed the advertisement.

"I think what attracted my attention to her was the tattoos," Robert Clark, associate professor of French, said. "They are very unusual and very well done."

Clark said he did not understand the tattoos initially, but he was drawn by the elaborate design of the ink work.

"I just had never gotten to know people that expressed it her way," Clark said.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

Holt is working on several new exhibits at the Insect Zoo. It will not be easy to do alone, but that will not stop her from spreading the knowledge of insects.

"It's challenging," Holt said, "but it keeps you on your toes."

The zoo receives funds from several campus organizations and surrounding businesses and also receives profit from admittance fees established earlier this year. Holt hopes to receive funds by next year and add on to the zoo. Her main goals are to build a learning center and a butterfly exhibit on the second floor of the building, but those are still only ambitions.

"We are still trying to see our funding increase so we can get more help," Holt said. "Next year we need to come up with ways to become more self-sufficient."

The zoo, which is open year-round, has a variety of insects and arthropods, including a large tank of walking sticks, honeybees working tirelessly on their honeycombs, and even an interactive display of lifeless insects. Customers can even buy tubes of different flavored honey made directly at the zoo.

Holt said although she has two student assistants, she is always looking for more help from students and faculty.

Assistants do not just have to be from the entomology department. Holt said, in the last year, she has had a student from architecture and a student from park management and conservation help take care of the tarantula exhibit. She also said students with a background in biology can easily be trained to guide tours of the insect zoo.

Insects are not always looked at with respect, but Holt – tattoos and all – hopes to change that.

"My goal is to shape how children view the world of insects," Holt said. "I want them to understand that they should be respected but not feared."

SCHOOL | Building may be educational showpiece

Continued from Page 1

Dave and his family do not recognize advantages and disadvantages to each situation.

"Transitions are always difficult," Dave said. "There is proof that moving children around causes dips in test scores and ample evidence that it is hard on kids. On that level, I'm not excited about it.

"On another level, she could make lots of new friends. It's a little closer to work for me, and Lee Elementary School, where Lily attends now, can be a little less convenient."

When Bluemont closed, the families attending wanted it to stay open, Dave said.

It didn't have a lot to do with the building itself, but with the team of teachers, staff and culture of the building.

"A lot of people assume that since I advocated against the closing, when it reopens, I will be thrilled for my kids to go back," he said. "But what I advocated for originally isn't there anymore."

Many parents are concerned with how modern the building's technology will be, but Dave said he and his family are not.

"The building went through a renovation shortly before it closed," he said. "The district is currently working on putting wireless in all the school buildings, and I would assume Bluemont would be included in that."

Dave said there has been discussion on making Bluemont the most wired building in the district, and in fact was the most up-to-date before it closed, and that honor now belongs to Ogden.

"There is talk about making it a technology showpiece," he said. "It could be a possible hook to draw families back."

There is no specific plan yet, as the board is worried about the cost of such updates, Dave said. He said grant money and other funds would help, but as of yet, the board has not allocated funds to make it any different than other schools.

Dave and his wife, Sandy Nelson, are parents of two other children; Allison, 15, and Katherine, 11. Katherine previously attended Bluemont before it closed.

Sandy said the possibility of switching schools doesn't bother her. Lily will be OK.

DOGS | Residents contend irresponsible ownership root of violence

Continued from Page 1

Although she said her dogs are nice, Smith said they would be protective of her and her family in certain situations.

Lynn Schumacher, Manhattan animal shelter supervisor, said people have been misled with animal control's decisions.

"A lot of them watch these police dog shows where they just go in and take the dogs," Schumacher said. "What they don't see is all the ground work they do prior. Those people have to do all the ground work that we do too. That is necessary to keep the public safe. So the image we have is that we simply don't care."

Kevin Dorritie, one of two animal control officers in Manhattan, said he patrols different parts of Manhattan during the day.

"My experience has been irresponsible ownership, and (controlling animals is) not an easy job to do, especially when you only have a couple of people," Dorritie said.

He said he is in favor of whatever decision the city makes.

Though she has been attacked on the job, Chelsea Allen, a veterinary technician at the Veterinary Medical Teaching Hospital, agreed with Smith that most pit bulls are gentle, caring dogs.

"They're usually more of the friendlier dogs," Allen said. "They are usually very happy to have someone to pay attention to them."

Allen said the dog that attacked her was trained to do so, and she believes most attacks are the result of poor ownership.

Schumacher said she thinks it is good for the commission and the public to debate this issue.

"Well, you can tell that there is an irresponsible owner when there is poor fencing and they let their dog stand at large, making it so that you can't even go out in your own backyard and use it," Schumacher said. "That's why I'm so glad that this is coming in front of city commission because some people are afraid to come out of their houses, walk the streets, and so we need an ordinance that is easy to understand, not only for the law enforcement, but also for the public."

The commission will have a first reading of the proposed ordinances at its meeting Nov. 21.

Online
■ For a list of Kansas cities with breed-specific bans, proposed ordinances for dangerous dogs and breeds considered dangerous.
www.kstatecollegian.com

Need help with your resume?
Got a couple of quick questions?
WALK-IN WEDNESDAYS
Come in between 12 Noon - 4 pm and meet with a career advisor.
No appointment necessary!
Career and Employment Services
Kansas State University
100 Holtz Hall
785-532-6506
ces@k-state.edu
Guiding You from College to Career

Did you sell more magazines than anyone else in your 6th grade class?
We'll give you more than a turn at the pencil machine...
Collegian Advertising Sales-
We're not selling magazines.
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING
K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL
or email jharmon@ksu.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

The Office of Student Activities and Services offers:
FREE LEGAL SERVICES FOR STUDENTS

Student Legal Services Attorney:
SARAH BARR
785-532-6541
Call now for an appointment
office hours
Monday - Friday
9:00 - 11:00 am & 1:00 - 4:00 pm
Other appointments available upon request
for more information visit the website at:
http://www.ksu.edu/osas/legal.htm

TUBBY'S
Sports Bar
Wednesday Specials
$2 any pint & wells
$2.50 uv blue bombs
$3.50 flavored long islands, carbombs & summerbeer

Holiday Open House!!!
Saturday, Nov. 18 & Sunday, Nov. 19
25% off
ENTIRE STOCK XMAS
Ornaments!!!
Try the goodies in our NEW 2006 KANSAS Gift Boxes Brochure!!!

FROM THE LAND OF KANSAS
Eastside & Westside Market
E. Hwy. 24 or W. Ft Riley Blvd., Manhattan

Engineering honor society sponsors food drive competition, takes donations for charity

By Nicole Johnston
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The members of Tau Beta Pi, the national engineering honor society, are having a food drive to raise money for charity.

The food drive began Monday and will run through Friday. The drive is a competition among the chapters of Tau Beta Pi.

Each year a member of the chapter is randomly selected to be in charge of the food drive.

Elizabeth Voigt, junior in mechanical engineering, was elected by the vice president of the organization to be in charge of the food drive.

She said the competition has strict rules.

Members only are allowed to collect for one week, to advertise from one week up until the end and cannot work with anyone else to sponsor it.

All the money collected will be given to the Flint Hills Bread Basket.

Not only is the chapter competing with other chapters, but they also are using the food drive as a task in initiation for new members.

"There are a couple of different service tasks they have to do while being initiated," Voigt said. "Mostly we accept cans, but we accept cash donations too."

She said 50 cents is equivalent to a can, and $1 equals a boxed good.

At the end of the week the chapter will tally up all the items and cash they receive.

Voigt said once they have the numbers, they will take the total amount collected and divide it by the number of students in the department.

The winner of the competition will be announced the week after the competition.

GALAPAGOS | Conservation problems created by people influx diversity of animals and plants that come from the mainland and develop into different species.

Continued from Page 1

It's like a natural lab for evolution," Kambhampati said.

People are moving to the island, which is creating conservation problems.

According to www.gct.org, there are two key problematic issues on the island: control of introduced species and over-exploitation of natural resources.

"By the end of the course students are expected to learn about the principles of underlying evolution and conservation, the uniqueness of the Galapagos, and the role of humans in altering environment," Kambhampati said.

The course is offered through Entomology or Biology.

There will be an informational meeting at 2 p.m. Thursday in Waters 129.

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

120 Rent-Houses

FOUR- BEDROOM, two bath. Fenced yard, garage. Pets ok. 785-317-7713.

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/kstc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

CAMERA FOUND at City Park. 785-564-1197.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

ONE-BEDROOM, Duplex-style Apartment. $350/ month. Available January 1st. Dates are flexible. Sunset West Apartments. 1917 Anderson Avenue. 785-250-7949, or 785-249-4793.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

135 Sale-Mobile Homes

14X70 NEWLY remodeled, two-bedroom, two bathroom home, reasonable lot rent, 6228 Sparrow Lane #61, Rocky Ford Trailer Court. 785-565-0525.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed. Three-bedroom, two bath. Washer and dryer included. No smoking. No pets. Call Danielle at 785-806-4324.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share 3 bedroom apartment near campus. $250 per month plus 1/3 utility. Available January 1st. 785-537-1746.

ROMMATE WANTED. Three-bedroom house. $350, utilities included. Washer/ dryer, fenced yard, full kitchen, off street parking, close to campus. 785-313-4730.

150 Sublease

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY one-bedroom apartment, 800 square feet, lease ends July 2007, off of Manhattan Avenue, $505 a month. 785-313-2751.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January- July four- bedroom house $300 per month plus one-fourth utilities. Washer/ dryer, dishwasher included.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed immediately. Close to campus, off-street parking. $400 a month utilities included. 913-961-0673.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed January: one bedroom in two-bedroom, two full bathroom at University Crossing. $375, furnished. 913-744-9994. emthomas@ksu.edu for pictures.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. Four-bedroom, two bath. Close to campus. $300 plus one-fourth utilities. Call Jake 913-378-3395.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January. Two-bedroom, one bath apartment. No smoking. Must love animals. $275 plus one-half utilities. babygoth@ksu.edu

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted to share four-bedroom/ two bath apartment. First month free, $315/ month. Available now through July 2007. 907-232-4601.

FURNISHED APARTMENT. One-bedroom. One bathroom, washer/ dryer. Rent $375. Trash and cable paid. 785-317-6313.

150 Sublease

MALE SUBLEASER needed in January. $300 per month, plus one-third utilities. Three-bedroom, two bath. Call 785-342-2932.

SUBLEASER NEEDED, spring 2007 semester. $350/ month. Nice, newer, three-bedroom house, built 1997. 785-221-2282.

SUBLEASER WANTED $325 per month, plus utilities. Across street from campus, off street parking. Available January 2007- August 2007. 763-439-8926.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for three- bedroom apartment. One and one- half bath. $240/ room close to campus and Aggieville. Available January. Contact 785-537-7810, 316-214-4745.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVE'S Wine Bar now hiring lunch cooks. Flexible hours, competitive pay. Apply in person 3033 Anderson Avenue.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

310 Help Wanted

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.-com.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

HARRY'S DAYTIME DISHWASHER NEEDED. Shifts 10am - 3pm on Mon-Wed-Fri and/ or Tues-Thurs. Some night and/ or weekend availability. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz Ave. Good Pay.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.-ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

310 Help Wanted

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@-civicplus.com.

SERVERS WANTED. Manhattan Country Club is now hiring servers for all shifts. Apply in person 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

TECHNICAL SUPPORT positions available for K-State student with a variety of skills. Must have good interpersonal problem solving skills. Experience with PCs and popular software packages such as Microsoft Word, Microsoft Excel, WordPerfect, QuattroPro and Windows applications desired. Must have understanding of Microsoft Windows and Dos Commands. Windows networking and computer hardware knowledge preferred. Applications available/ accepted through Friday, November 17, 2006, in 211 Umberger Hall. (Department of Communications, Information & Educational Technology.)

Need a Subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.-com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

VARNEY'S BOOK Store is now taking applications for temporary part-time and temporary full-time positions in the textbook department to assist with textbook buyback. Possible employment dates are Nov 28 - Dec 15. Daytime, evening, and weekend hours are available. $6.00 per hour. Involves helping customers, moderate lifting, and cleaning/ pricing books. All positions require diligence and a pleasant, service-oriented attitude. College experience is strongly preferred. Apply in person upstairs in the Textbook Dept at Varney's Book Store, 623 N. Manhattan Ave, Manhattan, KS. Deadline for applications is Tuesday, November 21.

WEB DESIGNER. Award winning advertising agency, Imagemakers, seeks full-time web developer/ web designer. Some training provided. Apply at www.wamegowork.com.

Inventory
COUNT on us For a Great Opportunity
RGIS Inventory Specialists
Is currently accepting applications for:
Inventory Takers
•Weekday, evening and weekend hrs.
•Paid training
•10-key experience helpful
•No experience necessary
•Competitive wages
Call Now!
24HRS
To pre-qualify
1888-242-7447
www.RGISINV.com
An equal opportunity employer

Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required. No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m. - 2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
ADVERTISING DESIGN

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low Prices Guaranteed. Group discounts for 6+. Book 20 people, get 3 free trips! www.SpringBreakdiscounts.com or 800-838-8202.

Reach more readers
www.kstatecollegian.com
Ads scheduled to be printed in the Collegian can be published online for an additional dollar.
Place your classified ad online
Get more bang for your buck

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

su|do|ku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

6				9	2			4
				8		1		9
	4				5
	6	9		3	1			5
4								2
5			8	4		9	7
			9				8
3		2		5
8			4	2				1

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.
CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@pub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less
$10.50
each word over 20
20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less
$12.95
each word over 20
25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less
$15.65
each word over 20
30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less
$17.90
each word over 20
35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less
$20.00
each word over 20
40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

What's new with 007

When it was announced Daniel Craig would be the sixth actor to play James Bond, many fans didn't embrace him as a breath of fresh air to a franchise that had grown stale. Some Web sites begged for a replacement, while others threatened to boycott the Bond franchise until the lead role was recast.

While a boycott might be extreme, there's no denying that Craig isn't the typical Bond. He's blond, and, at 5 feet 11 inches, he's the shortest Bond yet. He's also the first actor to play Bond who was born after the franchise began.

Luckily, those involved in the film have spoken out in his defense.

"Daniel is giving to this James Bond something else we never saw before," co-star Caterina Murino told the Associated Press. "When he's going to kill someone, he looks like a real killer, when he kisses me, when he makes love, he's so sexy. You never saw a James Bond like this."

"Casino Royale" marks a return to the beginning of the Bond story line. It follows his first mission, where he must stop a banker from winning a casino tournament and using the prize money to fund terrorist activities, and it's reportedly the bloodiest Bond film yet.

"That's the thing with this Bond," Craig said. "He bleeds. It's more about the fact that he bleeds, goes down and gets up again."

Brendan Praeger | Illustrator

"Casino Royale" | MGM PICTURES

New cast, theme changes in 'Casino Royale'

Bond

Daniel Craig, pictured at left, is regarded as one of Britain's finest actors, securing a variety of roles in theatre, television and film. He recently appeared in "Munich" and "Layer Cake."

Villian

"Casino Royale" villian Le Chiffre is played by Mads Mikkelsen, one of Denmark's most accomplished leading men. "Casino Royale" is his second English language film following his role in "King Arthur."

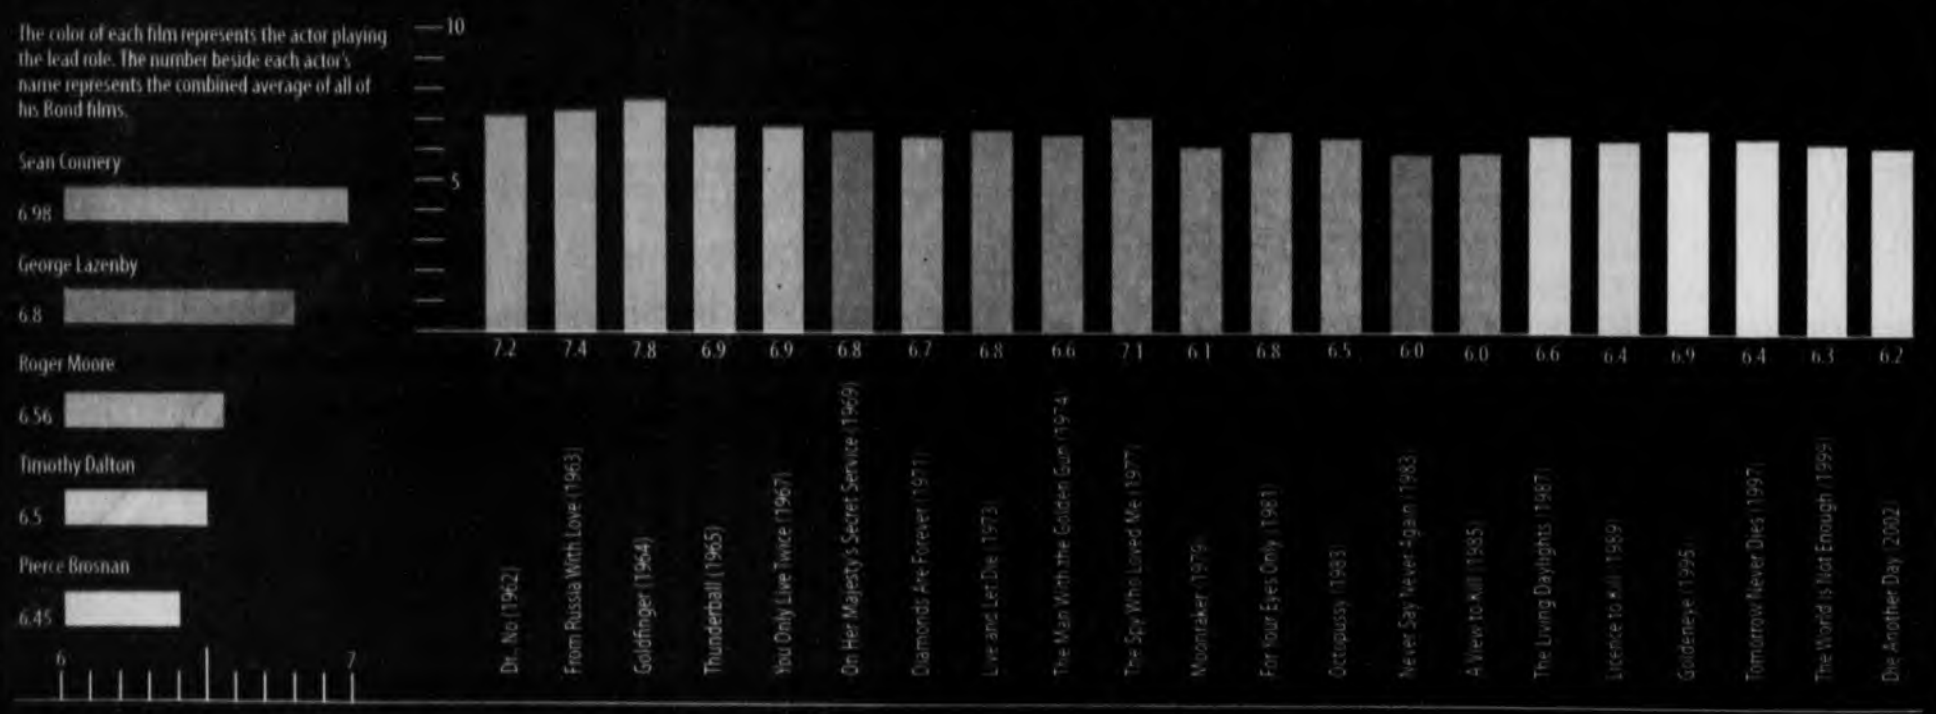
Bond girls

Vesper Lynd, one of the two Bond girls, is played by the young and stunningly attractive Eva Green. Green (pictured left) was discovered by Bernardo Bertolucci in "The Dreamers" and cast by Ridley Scott in "Kingdom of Heaven."

Solange, the second Bond girl, is played by striking Mediterranean actress Caterina Murino, who is well known on screen in France and her native Italy. Murino (pictured right) makes her English-language film debut in "Casino Royale."

Car

Ford Motor Company will unveil its all-new Ford Mondeo in "Casino Royale" as part of a product placement deal with Sony/MGM. Although Bond will still drive an Aston Martin in the film, he'll be seen in the Mondeo at the beginning of the film.



Song

"You Know My Name," by Chris Cornell

Source: Sony Pictures

Bond's Best?

After 21 previous James Bond films, debate continues about which movies deserve a "Licence to Kill" and which ones dropped the ball. Disagree? Cast your own vote at www.imdb.com so movie geeks everywhere can know where you stand.

A closer look at the 5 James Bond actors before Daniel Craig

SEAN CONNERY

Thomas Sean Connery found fame and fortune as the suave, sophisticated British agent James Bond.

After six Bond films, Connery yearned to break from the Bond image, and eventually earned an Oscar as veteran Chicago cop Jimmy Malone in "The Untouchables" (1987).

A genuine movie star, his co-stars often compliment his professionalism. Connery continues to be at his best when he plays no-nonsense characters.

This Scotland native has been an actor, director and producer in more than 90 films since his acting debut in 1954. Among his accomplishments include an Oscar, three Golden Globe Awards, an MTV Movie award and many others.

GEORGE LAZENBY

George Lazenby was born Sept. 5, 1939, in Australia. He moved to London in 1964, after serving in the Australian Army.

Before becoming an actor, he worked as an auto mechanic, used car salesman, prestige car salesman, and male model in London, England.

In 1968, Lazenby was cast as James Bond, despite his only previous acting experience being in commercials and his only film appearance being a bit-part in a 1965 Italian-made Bond spoof. Lazenby won the role based on a screen-test fight scene and the strength of his interviews, fight skills and audition footage. A chance encounter with Bond series producer in a hair salon in 1966 in London had given Lazenby his first shot at getting the role.

ROGER MOORE

Perhaps he will always be remembered as the guy who replaced Sean Connery in the James Bond series, arguably something he never lived down.

Roger Moore was born in Stockwell, London, in 1927. He first wanted to be an artist, but got into films full time after becoming an extra in the late forties. He came to America in 1953.

He was offered and accepted the role of James Bond, and once audiences got used to the change of style from Connery's portrayal, they also accepted him. "Live and Let Die" (1973), his first Bond movie, grossed more outside of America than "Diamonds Are Forever" (1971) — Connery's last outing as James Bond. He went on to star in another six Bond films, ending the role at age 57 — looking a little old for Bond.

TIMOTHY DALTON

At a consistently lean 6'2", green-eyed Timothy Dalton may very well be one of the last of the dying breed of swashbuckling, classically trained Shakespearean actors who have forged simultaneous successful careers in theater, television and film.

He has been comparison-shopped roundly for stepping into roles played by other actors, first following Sir Laurence Olivier in "Wuthering Heights" (1970), then as James Bond in "The Living Daylights" (1987) and "Licence to Kill" (1989), and even more brutally as Rhett Butler in "Scarlett" (1994).

However, Dalton's interpretation of Bond in this film received critical acclaim in some quarters as being the closest to author Ian Fleming's literary "Bond."

PIERCE BROSNAN

Pierce Brosnan was born in Drogheda, County Louth, Ireland, May 16, 1953, and lived in Navan, County Meath, until he moved to England some time later.

His father left the household when Brosnan was a child and although reunited later in life, the two have never had a close relationship.

His most popular role is that of British secret agent James Bond. The death, in 1991, of Cassandra Harris, his wife of 10 years, left him with three children — Christopher and Charlotte from Cassandra's first marriage and Sean from their marriage. Since her death, he has had two children with his second wife, Keely Shaye Smith.

Source: Internet Movie Database

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

www.kstatecollegian.com | Thursday, November 16, 2006 | Vol. 111, No. 64

INSIDE

WinterDance 2006 includes tap, ballet and modern dancing

See Page 3

2 students describe time spent abroad

By Hannah Sanders
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Two K-State students spoke to a small audience Wednesday about their experiences studying abroad.

Hilary Hilton and Sarah Mitts traveled to Kenya and India, respectively. They spoke as a part of International Education Week.

Hilton, senior in family studies and human services, began her presentation by discussing the issues that influenced her decision to travel to Kenya. Involvement in programs like AIDS week and Bono's one.org spurred her interest in service programs in Africa.

Hilton was presented with an opportunity through New Hope Community Church to travel abroad to Kenya and work with families involved in non-government organizations, and she took it.

Planning the trip alone and in a short period of time, Hilton said she had to deal with issues like making up school work and raising the funds necessary to pay for the trip.

Despite the legwork required and her fears about the poverty and cultural differences she would encounter, Hilton said she was prepared for the trip. She spent three weeks abroad, mainly in Nairobi, Kenya, in the middle of spring 2006.

Hilton said she was surprised the language barrier wasn't a problem. She also was surprised by the people's contentment.

"People were so happy and at peace with their lives," Hilton said.

Hilton said she learned three ways to have a successful study abroad experience.

"Interact with the nationals, step outside your comfort zone and buy bottled water," she said.

Mitts, senior in business management and international studies, spoke to the group about her travels to India.

See STUDY ABROAD Page 7

60th in class

SEXUAL HEALTH REPORT CARD

		Score	Web site	Avail. Condoms	Contraception	HIV & STI Testing	Sex Assault Services	Advice column, Q&As	Lectures & Outreach
1	26. University of Nebraska at Lincoln	2.6	B	F	A	A	B	F	A
2	32. University of Colorado	2.4	C	F	A	A	C	C	B
3	36. University of Oklahoma	2.3	B	F	A	C	C	B	C
4	39. Texas A&M University	2.3	D	A	A	A	B	F	F
5	53. University of Texas	2.0	B	F	C	A	A	D	F
6	60. Kansas State University	1.9	B	F	A	C	B	F	D
7	69. Iowa State University	1.4	D	F	C	A	D	F	D
8	79. University of Kansas	1.1	C	F	C	C	D	F	D
9	94. Texas Tech University	0.7	D	F	F	F	C	F	C
10	97. Oklahoma State University	0.1	F	F	F	F	D	F	F

K-State rates low on availability of condoms, testing

By Sheila Ellis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State is on academic probation when it comes to sexual health awareness on campus, according to the Trojan Sexual Health Report Card.

The report card comes from a survey of 100 universities that examined the level of student access to sexual resources. The survey was conducted by the makers of Trojan condoms and Bert Sperling, president of research for Sperling's Best Places, an Internet publication, that specializes in comparing and ranking various places and institutions.

K-State ranks 60th out of 100 universities surveyed in a sexual Health Awareness Report Card. This leaves K-State with a 1.9 grade point average, which is below K-State's 2.0 academic probation for a cumulative GPA.

The report card has sparked controversy at several universities across the nation. Some universities' officials said they were happy with their scores, while officials from other schools like K-State and the University of Kansas thought the grading was unfair.

Bill Smith, public health educator student services at the Watkins Memorial Health Center at KU, said the grading criteria is ridiculous.

Michael Bruno, a Trojan representative, said the researchers found it frustrating they could not contact university officials for survey questions, so he decided to use the Internet, because that is where most students look for information.

Smith said the problem with the report is that it fails to take a student's view. Instead, the results are from an outsider's view with the Internet as a main source.

Lindsey Hicks, president of K-State's Sexual Health Awareness Peer Educators, said the report card does not accurately represent the work being done to make K-State a sexually healthier campus.

"This report card is a misrepresentation of the campus. Lots of people have heard about SHAPE. What is on the Web site is not as important as what we do on campus," Hicks said.

GRADING PROCESS

Bruno said the idea was to gauge the level of information available to students just as students would be graded with letter grades.

This was the first year for the report card.

"In 2005, Trojan participated in many college media round-table sessions to talk about sexual health on campuses across the U.S.," Bruno said.

He said students were frustrated on the varying amounts of information available on campus. This frustration helped to generate the idea of the sexual health report card.

Sperling initially tried contacting about 25 colleges on the survey but found the process frustrating, Bruno said.

See SEXUAL HEALTH Page 7

Illustration by Emily Lawrence | COLLEGIAN

Great American Smokeout encourages quitting for a day, for good

Lyndsey Born | COLLEGIAN

Larry Douthit, Ogden resident, marks numbers while playing "Early Bird" bingo Wednesday evening at the American Legion Club. Smoking was not allowed during play as part of the annual Great American Smokeout.

By Mike Kelly
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

According to famous American author Mark Twain, quitting smoking isn't difficult.

"Quitting smoking is easy; I've done it a thousand times," Twain once said.

Breaking the habit of smoking is considered by many to be one of the hardest tasks to accomplish. To help those hoping to quit, the American Cancer Society is sponsoring its annual Great American Smokeout today in cities and at universities nationwide.

The Great American Smokeout is a nationally recognized event in which smokers are challenged to quit smoking for one day. The ACS hopes the event will be the incentive for smokers to quit permanently, thereby reducing their risk of developing lung cancer and other diseases.

"We want to encourage smokers nationwide to quit for the day, and hopefully, for good," said Marcia Locke, outreach coordinator for the Terry C. Johnson Center for Basic Cancer Research at K-State. "Most smokers want to quit, but they are addicted, and it is very hard to do so."

According to the ACS, smoking is the nation's most preventable cause of premature death. Smokers who quit before the age of 50 halve their risk of dying in the next 15 years, as compared to those who continue to smoke.

The ACS hopes smokers will make a dedicated effort to quit today, as well as feel supported in their quest to do so.

"In a national movement, we believe people feel like they're not alone and can feel support from others going throught the same thing," Locke said. "One thing we've learned is their chances (of quitting) are better if they plan ahead."

In Manhattan, Locke said events, like smoke-free bingo Wednesday night at the American Legion Club, have been planned to honor those who

See SMOKEOUT Page 7

Today's forecast
Sunny
High: 54 Low: 33

INSIDE

Breaking boundaries
K-State Spanish professor Alberto Domingo Valdés wrote a bilingual play set in Cuba. The majority of the play is in English with a few Spanish lines. See story, Page 5

CAMPUS NEWS HIGHLIGHTS

Education week
As a part of International Education Week, the College of Education will have its International Education Week Celebration beginning at 10 a.m. today in Bluemont 21. There also will be a study abroad fair beginning at 11 a.m. today in the Union Courtyard. For a complete schedule, visit www.k-state.edu/oip/events/IntlEdWk.htm.

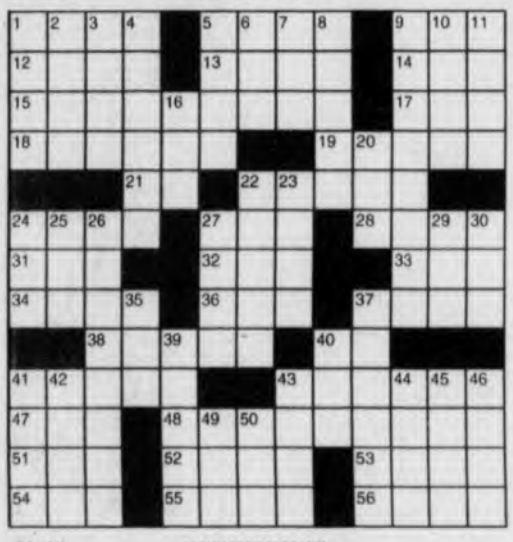
Outstanding service
Lome Render, director of the Marianna Kistler Beach Museum of Art, was awarded the Presidential Award for Outstanding Service to regional and Kansas museum communities. He was given the award at the Kansas Museums Association annual conference. Render has been the director of the art museum since 1999.

Kemper Art exhibit
The Kemper Art Gallery in the K-State Student Union features Elizabeth James, graduate student in fine arts, until Nov. 28. James got her inspiration for her ceramic exhibit from her time growing up in the Northwest. The gallery is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information visit www.ksu.edu/upc.

Democratic leaders for 2008
Although Hillary Clinton is the current front-runner, at this early juncture, it is impossible to rule out anyone rising through the primary process and winning at the Democratic National Convention.

Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Rd. (785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com Fax: (785) 776-1009

Puzzles | Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Post-bath application
5 Attract
9 Third degree
12 Hodge-podge
13 John-Rice collaboration
14 Corn spike
15 Pulpy fruit
17 Genetics abbr.
18 Tar
19 Somewhat dark
21 Meditator's mantra
22 Vise
24 Track circuits
27 San Diego attraction
28 Swine
31 Census stat
32 B&B
33 Wardrobe malfunction
34 String
36 Maiden name lead-in 37 Vast
38 Impudent
40 One of the Kettles
41 Crabby type
43 Sweater fabric
47 Meadow
48 Employees
51 On in years
52 Needle case
53 Sicilian spouter
54 Tournament freebie
55 Sitarist's genre
56 Much of the "Sesame Street" audience

DOWN
1 A-one
2 Sheltered
3 Trevi toss, once
4 Carl Sagan series
5 Rhett's shocking word
6 Edge
7 Fuss
8 "A Fish Called —"
9 Sweat
10 Williams or Snow
11 Strong wagon
16 "— the Walrus"
20 Diamond arbiter
22 — Island, Brooklyn
23 Unrivaled
24 Fond du —, WI
25 Past
26 Convince
27 Galvanizing agent
29 Show-biz job
30 Hot tub
35 Weir
37 Lodestone
39 Northern, in a way
40 6 on a phone
41 Amorphous mass
42 Hinge (on)
43 One side of the Urals
44 Aware of
45 "Seasons of Love" musical
46 Reaction re Yorick
49 Timetable abbr.
50 Bad hairpiece

Solution time: 25 mins.

A	F	A	R		G	O	P		H	E	R	S
Y	O	G	I		R	O	O		O	V	A	L
E	X	A	C	T	I	O	N		B	I	T	E
S	Y	R	I	A	N		D	A	N	C	E	D
			N	U	N		S	L	O	T
E	W	E		T	E	E		A	B	I	D	E
B	I	L	L		D	E	N		S	O	U	R
B	L	E	E	P		L	A	T		N	E	E
		C	O	R	D		S	A	G
F	E	T	T	E	R		C	L	O	T	H	E
A	R	I	A			E	J	E	C	T	I	O	N
D	I	O	R			S	O	N		T	E	N	D
S	E	N	D			S	E	T		A	R	K	S

Yesterday's answer 11-16

11-16 CRYPTOQUIP

BD P VZPR BN RAPUNJZARBUQ RSBUQN NTIS PN QPN PUX IZPY, RSPR IZTYX VM P NSBJ ZD DTMYN.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WHEN YOU HAVE THE GALL TO WRITE IN AN OLD EGYPTIAN LANGUAGE, I'D CALL THAT THE COPTIC NERVE.

Today's Cryptoquip Clue: D equals F

DIVERSIONS

A waste of time — but you might learn something

How much do you know about campus buildings?

By Kristen Roderick
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

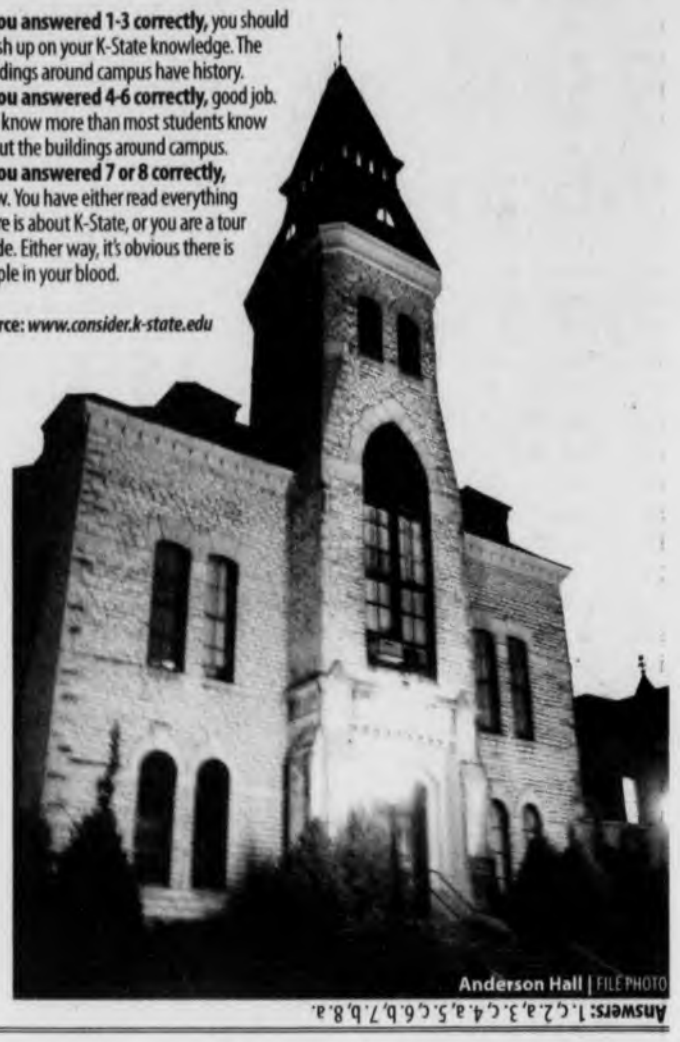
1. Which building was the first on campus to have central air-conditioning?
a. Anderson Hall
b. K-State Student Union
c. Justin Hall

2. How many square feet did Fiedler Hall add to the engineering complex?
a. 75,700 square feet
b. 70,700 square feet
c. 80,700 square feet

3. Sheep grazed the front lawn of which building in 1917 to control the dandelions for commencement?
a. K-State Student Union
b. Hale Library
c. Anderson Hall

4. When this building burned, there was only one sheet of music saved — "The Wabash Cannonball."
a. Nichols Hall
b. McCain Auditorium
c. Vanier Complex

5. Which building includes a 450-seat auditorum?
a. Kedzie Hall
b. Fiedler Hall
c. Umberger Hall



6. How many K-State presidents have lived in the president's home?
a. seven
b. six
c. three

7. Which is the oldest building on campus?
a. Weber Hall
b. Seaton Court
c. Kedzie Hall

8. Which building has a fully equipped planetarium?
a. Cardwell Hall
b. Ward Hall
c. Ackert Hall

If you answered 1-3 correctly, you should brush up on your K-State knowledge. The buildings around campus have history.
If you answered 4-6 correctly, good job. You know more than most students know about the buildings around campus.
If you answered 7 or 8 correctly, wow. You have either read everything there is about K-State, or you are a tour guide. Either way, it's obvious there is purple in your blood.

source: www.consider.k-state.edu

Anderson Hall | FILE PHOTO

Answers: 1. c, 2. a, 3. c, 4. a, 5. c, 6. b, 7. b, 8. a.

The planner

Campus bulletin board

The planner is the Collegian's campus bulletin board service. Items in the calendar can be published up to three times. Items might not appear because of space constraints but are guaranteed to appear on the day of the activity. To place an item in the Campus Calendar, stop by Kedzie 116 and fill out a form or e-mail the news editor at collegian@spub.ksu.edu by 11 a.m. two days before it is to run.

■ Walk-in flu vaccine clinics will be 8:30-11:30 a.m. and 1:30-4 p.m. today. The vaccine costs $14 for students and $19 for faculty and staff. For more information, visit www.k-state.edu/lafene.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Huei-Lien Chen at 1 p.m. today in Bluemont 339.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Kelly Glodt at 1 p.m. today in Bluemont 106.

■ Dr. Stephen Greb from the Kentucky Geological Survey and the University of Kentucky will present "Future of Coal in the U.S." as part of the Geology Seminar Series at 4 p.m. today in Thompson 213.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jeffrey Bartel at 10:30 a.m. Friday in Bluemont 487.

■ The Institute for Civic Discourse and Democracy presents a public debate on human rights and foreign policy 2-3:30 p.m. Friday in Union 212.

■ Coffee Hour will be presented 4-5 p.m. Friday at the International Student Center. The title is "Kyrgyzstan: Greetings from 40 Girls."

■ There will be a Women's Art Exhibit 6-9 p.m. Friday at S.O.S. Music. This exhibit will feature K-State women artists and is open to the public.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Mudessar Shah at 8:30 a.m. Monday in Cardwell 119.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Neeraj Nepai at 11:10 a.m. Tuesday in Cardwell 119.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Jincheng Gao at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Ackert 324B.

■ The Graduate School announces the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Xin-yan Li at 4:20 p.m. Tuesday in Throckmorton 4031.

Corrections and clarifications

There was an error in Wednesday's Collegian. The Manhattan City Commission has not announced what will be on its next agenda. The Collegian regrets the error. If you see something that should be corrected, call news editor Leann Sulzen at (785) 532-6556 or e-mail collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

Kansas State Collegian

(USPS 291 020) The Kansas State Collegian, a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506. The Collegian is published weekdays during the school year and on Wednesdays during the summer. Periodical postage is paid at Manhattan, KS 66502. POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, circulation desk, Kedzie 103, Manhattan, KS 66506-7167.

© Kansas State Collegian, 2006

The blotter | Arrests in Riley County online at www.kstatecollegian.com.

hungry? check out the Menu Guide in back of the Campus Phone Book Available in Kedzie 103 Mon. - Fri. 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.

FREE Lotion Sample
Bronze Image Tanning Salon 1122 Laramie • 539-3742 expires: 11-1-06

LONGHORNS SALOON
1115 MORO · 776-8770
$1.50 DRINKS & DRAWS
SATURDAY • NOV. 18TH
JACKSON TAYLOR BAND
TICKETS $10

Pete Gile TONIGHT
$1.75 Domestic Bottles
$3.00 32 oz. Monster Bombs
BOWINKLE'S Sports Bar
N Anderson W E S Seth Child Rd.
776-1022
3034 Anderson Ave.
Catch all your games on our 120" TVs

GIVE PLASMA GET CASH
URGENT
Plasma donations are needed to help save burn, trauma, and shock victims
Donate plasma and earn CASH TODAY!
ZLB Plasma Services
1130 Gardenway
Manhattan, KS 66502
785-776-9177
www.zlbplasma.com
Fees and donation times may vary. New donors please bring a Photo ID, proof of address, and a Social Security card.

auto Auction
Thursday, November 16
5:00pm
701 Enoch Lane - Manhattan, KS
Collector cars - modified trucks sports cars and more
PURPLE WAVE
www.purplewave.com

RC McGraws
776.9588
Wildcat headquarters before & after the game
Open at 3pm
LIVE FRIDAY
JARED PETE GILE
WITH TRUE NORTH
Appearing 9 -Close
Come check out our new 13x9' projection screen with surround sound
Food & Drink Specials ALL Weekend Long!
2317 Tuttle Creek Boulevard
(In the Blue Hills Shopping Center)

RAMBLERS
Steakhouse & Saloon
Every Thursday night is Steak Night
$8.95 12oz USDA Top Sirloin with all the trimmings
$17.45 Couples Dinner- 2 complete dinners
$2.00 All Domestic Bottles
8711 E Hwy 24
(785) 539-4989

Ad It Up!
Talk with one of our advertising sales representatives by calling...
785-532-6560
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

WinterDance debuts tonight with pieces by students, guests

By Allison Voris
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Nichols Theatre will be filled with an array of costumes, dance styles and music tonight as performers present WinterDance 2006.

The show, which has been in the works since August, will consist of a number of different performances using a variety of dance styles.

"It is a collaboration of faculty, guest artists and a couple of student pieces," Monette McKeeman, fifth-year student in kinesiology, said. "There are solos, duets and group work. There's even a dance that involves speaking parts."

The students performing will dance tap, ballet, jazz and modern, as well as do belly dancing and tumbling. The audience should expect to see pieces unlike those from WinterDance 2005.

"I like to try different things," said Julie Lin Pentz, instructor in speech communication, theater and dance.

Pentz, who is the choreographer of three pieces in WinterDance, said she steered away from dark dances like those that appeared in last year's performance. This year she tried to choreograph lighter and more fun dances.

The students performing are dance majors, minors or not in the dance program at all, Pentz said. Auditions for WinterDance were open to all students.

One piece choreographed and written by David Ollington, instructor in speech communication, theater and dance, combines dance with dialogue. The piece, "Student Rite," has performers making their own music on instruments like a guitar and drum, while telling "the story of cousin Karen."

There also will be a piece choreographed by special guest artist Laura Donnelly, who was the first K-State graduate in dance. Donnelly spent two weeks at K-State this semester teaching classes and bringing ideas to the dance program.

"She's been in different dance companies and has really presented different techniques," McKeeman said. "She brought in new concepts and fresh ideas."

Pentz said bringing in guest artists is something the Department of Speech Communication, Theatre and Dance tries to do each semester.

WinterDance also features two pieces choreographed by K-State students and chosen by the dance faculty for the performance. McKeeman, co-choreographed one of these pieces with Vicky Henning, fifth-year student in elementary education. The duo began in the dance program at the same time and became friends through dance classes.

"This is both of our first experiences choreographing for K-State," McKeeman said. "In the past I have been a dance coach, so I've choreographed dance team-type pieces before, but that dance style is totally different than what you'd expect out of a production."

Dance styles weren't the only differences the pair had to work through while choreographing. Nichols Theatre's circular stage posed a challenge, because there are audience members watching from three sides, not just one.

"We had to kind of play with and tweak the different formations we made, making sure we weren't standing in a straight line," McKeeman said. "We wanted to make sure the shape was interesting from every direction and not just from one direction."

In addition to choreographing their piece, McKeeman and Henning also designed their own costumes, combining one black and one white outfit.

"We brought it to the costume shop here at K-State," McKeeman said. "They cut the different united and sewed them together, so it's different zing sags of different colors."

WinterDance will be McKeeman's fifth production at K-State. Since this is her last year at K-State, McKeeman said being in this production was high on her priority list, but it still has been a challenge to find time for all the responsibilities in her life.

"Time management is a huge challenge," McKeeman said. "I'm taking 17 hours, then I'm in three pieces. Trying to find time to practice and go to class and get all your work done can wear down on you."

McKeeman is not the only person giving a lot of time to WinterDance. The whole cast and production staff has put in many hours of work.

"It has taken all semester," said Neil Dunn, instructor in speech communication, theater and dance and production coordinator for WinterDance.

"But it is coming together nicely. The costumes look great, and the lighting is falling in place."

McKeeman is looking forward to seeing her work pay off tonight at the first showing.

"I'm excited to show my friends and family what I've been working on," McKeeman said.

WinterDance will be at 8 p.m. today through Saturday, with a matinee at 2 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are available at the McCain Box Office, at the Little Theatre Box Office, or online at www.ksu.edu/sctd.

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Dancers Melinda Von Elling, Alex Zolnerowich and Jacquelyn Young perform the Overture portion of "The Nutcracker" during the dress rehearsal for WinterDance 2006 Wednesday evening in Nichols Theatre.

O'Malley's ALLEY
1210 Moro
537-0775
$2 Boulevards Blue Moon Killian's Widmer Wheat and Domestic Bottles
$1.75 Domestic Draws
LIVE MUSIC ON THE PATIO
Mikey Needleman

The best K-State Football coverage in the land is in your campus paper.
GAMEDAY 2006
Coming at you every Friday this football season.

SAFE RIDE
NEW: AGGIEVILLE PICK-UP STATION
(Calling for cab from Aggieville not necessary)
Two ways to get a ride home!
• Aggieville Pick-up Station
at the 12th & Bluemont Willie's Car Wash
• Call 539-0480 if not in the Aggieville area
Every Weekend!
Thursday, Friday, and Saturday
11pm - 3am
A free service provided by the K-State SGA.

Gillette Venus
PLAY to WIN
THE ULTIMATE SPRING BREAK ESCAPE
Text VENUS to 41414 to Start Playing
Also Play at www.gillettevenusbeach.com
VENUS BEACH
spring break '07
You and 5 friends
Penthouse suite
Panama City Beach
Round Trip Airfare
$500 spending cash!
No Purchase Necessary. Promotion Ends 12/28/06
For Official Rules, Visit www.gillettevenusbeach.com Offer Valid for U.S. Residents Only.

School Spirit
crocs
Collegiate women's XS-L & men's M-XL, $34.99; Kids' 7-3, $29.99
Dillard's
TOWN CENTER
Colors may vary by gender
For Your Convenience We Accept Your Dillard's, Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Discover, Carte Blanche, Or Diner's Club Card.
SHOF MONDAY THROUGH SATURDAY 10 A.M. - 9 P.M. SHOP SUNDAY 12 Noon - 6 P.M.

Bunch of garbage

Recycling programs only vital for government, don't save money or protect environment

CHUCK ARMSRONG

Why do people recycle?

There's something about recycling that gives people that special feeling inside, as if you are a part of something bigger than yourself. You're saving money and – more importantly – the environment.

I will prove recycling (in most cases) does not save any money and it does not protect the environment.

In 1989, Jay Winston Porter, then assistant administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, wrote and mass-distributed "An Agenda for Action" phamphlet, saying "recycling is absolutely vital." Vital for whom?

Daniel Benjamin, professor at Clemson University and political economist, said the government uses subsidies – read: tax dollars – to fund recycling programs.

How much exactly are taxpayers paying to recycle? According to Sean Hannity's Web site, it's about $8 billion a year.

Porter said it costs your local municipality $150 per ton to pick up recyclables, whereas it only costs $50 per ton to pick up your normal trash.

The American Metal Market publication states Imco Recycling Incorporated, a Texas-based company, posted a net loss of more than $58 million from its recycling program in the first quarter of 2002.

I guess recycling is vital for some – the government.

Don't fret, though. There is one thing you can recycle. Recycling aluminum does save money. It costs less to make a new aluminum can from an old one than it does to produce it from raw materials. That is why people rifle through your trash for your aluminum cans, not plastic or paper.

But aluminum is only one aspect of recycling. Paper, cardboard and plastic all cost more to recycle than to produce brand new. Raw materials are cheaper – it is that simple.

That in itself might not be enough to convince you, because recycling still saves the environment, right? And we have trees to worry about.

Here is a little known fact: There are tree farms where trees are specifically grown to be cut down for paper. The trees our evil capitalist government so maliciously destroys to produce more and more paper are on this planet for one reason and one reason only: to be turned into paper.

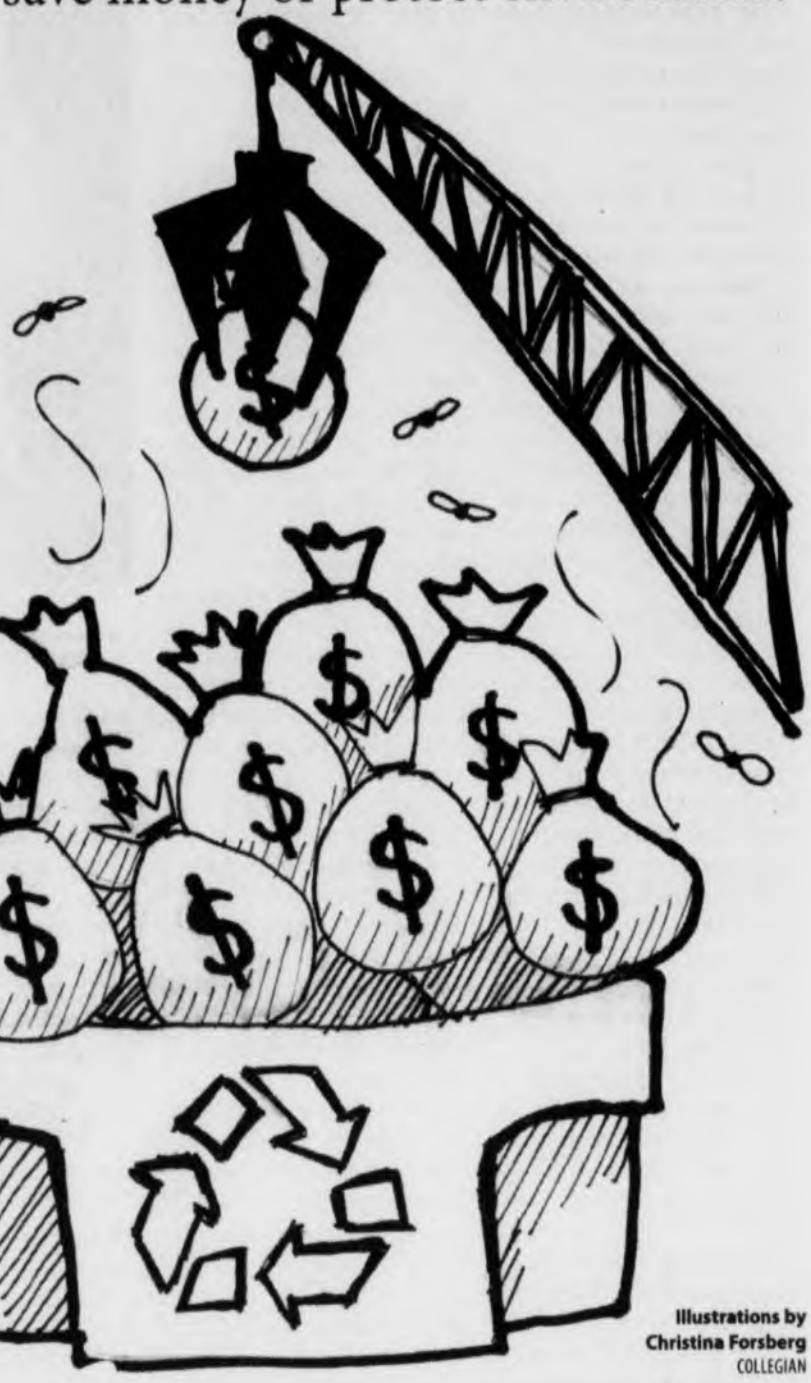
It's like planting a carrot to eat it. That makes sense, right? What this means is that the more paper we produce, the more trees we plant. Want more trees to wrap your big arms around? Start wasting more paper.

So recycling doesn't destroy trees; thus, it doesn't save the environment.

What if it actually hurts the environment? Think about it: garbage trucks don't pick up your recyclables, so this means a second smog-producing truck comes to your house to pick up your paper and plastic. Then these items are taken to a recycling center where air pollution is produced during the process of recycling.

Trash picked up by the first truck is taken to a landfill instead of to a recycling factory. But wait, aren't landfills evil, polluting masses of garbage that produce deadly, explosive methane gas and leak deadly poison into the ground?

Before a landfill is built, it must meet specific details. For instance, it must be layered with protection between the garbage and the soil, which usually means a few feet of clay and sometimes a rubber diaper, according to Dr. Craig Freudenrich, who received a bachelor's degree in biology and a doctorate in physiology. Landfills also have to be isolated from groundwater, so they don't pollute the water.



Additionally, landfills harvest the methane gas they produce, keeping the landfill from exploding and emitting deadly gas. Actually, a landfill in Whittier, Calif., even uses the methane gas it produces to create electricity, powering nearby homes.

After a landfill's garbage is covered, plants are planted on top, and usually the landfill is turned into a park or a golf course.

You say that recycling feels good, saves money and protects the environment?

That, my friends, is a bunch of garbage.

Chuck Armstrong is a junior in English education. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

Illustrations by Christina Forsberg
COLLEGIAN

Democrats' call for retreat from Iraq will have consequences

BRETT KING

Every night people sleep soundly, believing they are safe from the threats – threats that are developing outside of our borders.

These Americans hope we have risen above the image first described by Mao Zedong in 1956:

"In appearance, it is very powerful, but in reality, it is nothing to be afraid of – it is a paper tiger. Outwardly a tiger, it is made of paper, unable to withstand the wind and the rain. I believe the United States is nothing but a paper tiger."

Since the Democrats' red revolution in the U.S. House and Senate, comrades Harry Reid, Carl Levin and Joe Biden stated that – with their new Congressional power – they will push for troop reductions in Iraq.

"We need to begin a phased redeployment of forces from Iraq in four to six months. ... The people have spoken in a very, very strong way that they don't buy the administration policy," Sen. Levin said Sunday on ABC's "This Week" when discussing the new Democratic plan to retreat from Iraq with our tail between our legs.

The greatest mistake the United States neglected to address was facing an enemy that knows us better than we know ourselves. The enemies of America understand how to manipulate our media and how to demoralize our soldiers and citizens.

News organizations like the Crescent News Network (aka CNN) broadcast insurgent propaganda films of American soldiers being killed. After viewing these films, one might have trouble discerning the true answer to the question, "Does the media want the United States to lose this war?"

Levin said again on ABC, "The point of this is to signal to the Iraqis that the open-ended commitment is over and that they are going to have to solve their own problems."

Before Democrats seriously consider forcing the retreat of U.S. troops out of Iraq, they need to play their plan forward. The Middle East region is a powder keg waiting to explode. When it does, the Middle East's problems will become our problems rather quickly once again.

On Tuesday, an Associated Press article in the Washington Post reported that the Iranian nuclear program was nearly complete. During the Iranians' pursuit of nuclear weapons, Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki of Iraq has become quite chummy with Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.

People come together especially when part of a minority group. Iraq and Iran are the only Muslim countries with a Shiite majority, thus planting the seed for the two of them to join together.

Even with the problems in Iraq, American troops are acting as a stabilizing force. If troops leave now, secretarian violence by the Mahdi Army, militarily supported by the Iranians and led by radical Shiite cleric Moktada al-Sadr, will increase. The amount of violence between Shiites and Sunnis in Iraq could reach genocidal levels, and Iran will have its second holocaust against Israel.

If our forces left today, we would be back in the region in less than two years fighting an enemy whose strength and intensity would increase immensely.

Global jihad against western nations is not going to disappear. We have a choice in our struggle against Islamofascism – face it now or face it later.

What has happened to the citizens of my country? The time has come to take the chains off the pit bulls and allow them to run free. Americans need to stop looking for the easy way out of all situations and start meeting challenges of our world head on.

Brett King is a junior in political science. Please send comments to opinion@spub.ksu.edu.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Emily Lawrence | EDITOR IN CHIEF
Kerry Fischer | MANAGING EDITOR
Leann Sulzen | NEWS EDITOR
Abby Brownback | COPY CHIEF
Megan Moser | CITY/GOV EDITOR
Kristen Roderick | CAMPUS EDITOR
Anthony Mendoza | SPORTS EDITOR
Annette Lawless | THE EDGE EDITOR
Owen Kennedy | OPINION EDITOR
Steven Doll | PHOTO EDITOR
Zachary T. Eckels | PRESENTAION EDITOR
Logan C. Adams | PUBLIC EDITOR
Royce Haynes | ONLINE EDITOR
Kelly Williams | AD MANAGER
Courtney Sleypen | ASST. AD MANAGER

WRITE TO US

The Collegian welcomes your letters to the editor. They can be submitted by e-mail to letters@spub.ksu.edu, or in person to Kedzie 116. Please include your full name, year in school and major. Letters should be limited to 250 words. All submitted letters may be edited for length and clarity.

CONTACT US

Kansas State Collegian
Kedzie 103 Manhattan, KS 66502
Display ads.....(785) 532-6560
Classified ads....(785) 532-6555
Delivery .....(785) 532-6555
Newsroom.....(785) 532-6556
news@spub.ksu.edu

TO THE POINT | An editorial selected and debated by the editorial board and written after a majority opinion is formed. This is the Collegian's official opinion.

Collegian rates low on sex coverage, prepares to address issue tastefully

The results of the Trojan Sexual Health Report Card were shocking.

While K-State ranked high on some aspects of sexual health awareness, the Collegian received an F in its coverage of sex.

It's true. The Collegian hasn't had much sex in the paper for the past few years. We have columnists, but they tend to focus on relationships more than sex.

We have had a few articles about sex and health issues. We have had stories about the morning-after pill and how to prevent rape. Our stories have sexual content, but they aren't focused on sexual relationships.

So we are preparing to work on our sexual awareness coverage.

K-State is a seemingly conservative campus, so sometimes it can be hard to know where the boundaries stand. People have been upset about ads in our paper, and as the student newspaper, we strive to please our readers. Many student newspapers have a lot more sex coverage than the Collegian does, but their campuses aren't nearly as conservative.

We are going to strive to address sex in the paper in a tasteful way. We will push boundaries, but we are going to aim not to cross them.

K-State needs to be more sexually aware, and the Collegian will attempt to provide students with sex news.

What do you think? Does the Collegian need more sex? Let us know by e-mailing collegian@spub.ksu.edu.

CAMPUS FOURUM 395-4444 -or- fourum@spub.ksu.edu

The Campus Fourum is the Collegian's anonymous call-in system. The Fourum is edited to eliminate vulgar, racist, obscene and libelous comments. The comments are not the opinion of the Collegian nor are they endorsed by the editorial staff.

I saw Scooter Girl walking on campus today. No scooter anywhere in sight. I must say I was shocked and appalled.

Gremlin, swamp donkey, marshmallow, Amish, fetus. What is happening to the KSU biology department?

The best way to spread Christmas cheer is singing loud for all to hear.

You should get some kind of medal or award for navigating that parking lot by the library. It's a war zone.

Need more Fourum? Go to www.kstatecollegian.com for the full version.

Professor's bilingual play aims to break barriers

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Spanish professor Alberto Domingo González Valdés wrote a bilingual play, "Breaking Color Boundaries – rompiendo límites en colores."

Much of the play is in English, but sometimes the translation from Spanish to English changes the meaning, so Valdés decided to keep some lines in Spanish.

"Sometimes it's better to say it in the original language," Valdés said.

Valdés wrote the play in Spanish, and it was translated by a group of students and faculty.

"The play was inspired by a process coming from my everyday teaching, because I used my role-playing as a method of teaching, and by using physical representation, students learned better," he said. "I was surprised in one of my classes when they started to perform."

Valdés said he was surprised to see how well his students could act, and four students from his classes, Spanish Composition and Grammar, Structure of the Spanish Language and Hispanic Readings, volunteered to be in the play. Also in the play are five Spanish instructors.

"We are from different countries, working as a team, breaking boundaries," he said. "We are showing we can be human beings working together."

The play is set in Cuba in the Tropicana with cabaret dancers. The cast goes through the traditional Cuba and shows the reality of the problems there today.

"This play shows the actual Cuba – people trying to leave the country, tourists and things like that," Valdés said. "It's a tragedy and a comedy."

According to the program, "... very complicated personal situations are represented through different characters living in a social environment that is still today both real and mystical."

The play centers on Billillo, who "pines hopeless for the vain and beautiful Mayeya."

Members of the audience are given programs with translations of the script in both English and Spanish.

Valdés said he hopes to accomplish several goals by producing and directing this play.

"One is to help students understand language and the culture, and another thing is to share my experience as a teacher and a Cuban," he said. "It's a very particular case of study, and I just wanted to give my point of view artistically."

Valdés said he hopes to break culture barriers and the boundaries that exist between people of different ethnicities. He wants to encourage "the magical appreciation of the world."

"The last goal is seeing the importance of the population in the U.S., particularly in this area, to understand the Spanish culture and language," he said.

"Language is a communication tool. You get tradition, culture and the way of life. It's a useful tool to be successful in society."

The play will be performed at 8 tonight in the K-State Little Theater. It is free and open to everyone.

"Cubans, we do things for love," Valdés said. "Thanks to my destiny for being here in this department, and they encourage me in this idea."

USDA grant funds K-State study of water conservation practices

By Austin Apple
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

K-State recently received one of five United States Department of Agriculture grants for $650,000 to study the implementation of conservation practices at the Cheney Reservoir.

The reservoir is located west of Wichita and south of Hutchinson, Kan., Nathan Nelson, assistant professor of agronomy, said. All of the water in this area drains to the Cheney Reservoir, and this watershed provides Wichita with 70 percent of its drinking water.

The study of the 633,000-acre watershed received funding for three years, which should be enough time to complete the project, said Howard Miller, public relations coordinator for the Cheney Lake Watershed. The project, which is part of a nationwide series of 33 watershed studies, aims to determine if water quality has improved and if there are ways to improve it.

Cheney's large watershed offers opportunities for a large number of potential conservation practices, Lisa French, project coordinator, said.

"The Conservation Effects Assessment Project grant awarded to KSU this fall will be used to help us gain a better understanding of the effects of past conservation work in our watershed and across the nation," French said. "Specifically KSU will be studying the water quality trends since the beginning of our project in the early 1990s."

Conservation practices are used by farmers to protect water quality, Nelson said, including specific measures, management and ways they reduce nutrient, sediment, pesticide and any other loss to the water.

This study will provide the best place for conservation practices to be implemented to have the greatest effect on water quality, Nelson said.

Researchers will use a tool to strategically target locations in the watershed rather than attempt to install conservation practices elsewhere.

The grant also will help the USDA and the watershed board increase the efficiency of future work, French said.

K-State researchers will use computer modeling to help determine the most effective placement for conservation practices in order to protect water quality, French said.

There are seven K-State faculty, three non-K-State collaborators – one from the U.S. Geological Survey – and five graduate students working on the grant, Nelson said.

Got a News Tip or Story Idea?
Call 532-6556
or e-mail: collegian@spub.ksu.edu

Check Out sudoku in the Classifieds

The Salty Rim
1204 MORO 537-8910
SALSA & MARGARITA BAR
$1 SPIKES
1/2 PRICE MARGARITAS
$2 MICROS & IMPORTS
$2 DOMESTIC BOTTLES
PARTY PIC NIGHT

THURSDAY SPECIALS
$3.50 FISH BOWLS
$2.00 BOTTLES
Fat's BAR & GRILL

Pregnancy Testing Center
"Empowering women with real options, real help, real hope." 539-3338
Free pregnancy testing
Totally confidential service
Same day results
Call for appointment
Located across from campus in Anderson Village
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

INTERSESSION

January 2007
December 27, 2006 - January 10, 2007

Time is running out. Enroll today! To enroll and/or obtain an Intersession schedule with complete course descriptions and prerequisites, visit http://www.dce.ksu.edu/. If you prefer, call (785) 532-5566 or 1-800-432-8222 or visit the Division of Continuing Education at 131 College Court Building, 1615 Anderson Ave., Manhattan, KS.

Tuition for on-campus coursework will be $164 per undergraduate resident credit hour and $227 per graduate resident credit hour, plus $1 per day special and health fees. A student services fee and/or materials fees may be required for some courses. A $14 per credit hour fee is assessed for Engineering and Architecture courses.

Course Title	Course #	Ref#	Credit	Dates	Times
Agriculture
Practicum in Bakery Technology	GRSC 701	94100	1 UG/G	1/4-1/10	MTWUF 8:00 AM-4:30 PM
Architecture, Planning, & Design
Topics in Architectural Design Methods: The Expressive Line	ARCH 710	94107	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 12:30 PM-4:15 PM
LEED for Professional Accreditation	ARCH 715	94108	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 12:00 PM-5 PM
Beginning Airbrush	IAPD 406	94138	3 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 1:00 PM-4:45 PM
Portfolio Design Studio	IAPD 406	94137	3 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-12:45 PM
Portfolio Design Studio	IAPD 830	94139	3 G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-12:45 PM
Design Graphics and Visual Thinking	LAR 310	94109	3 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 1:00 PM-5:00 PM
Problems/Advanced Design Graphics/Visual Thinking	LAR 741	94110	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 1:00 PM-5:00 PM
Computer Applications in Planning and Design	PLAN 630	94150	1,2 UG/G	1/3-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-1:45 PM
Arts & Sciences
Understanding Islam	AMETH 560	94105	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-12:45
Forensic Medicine and the Investigation of Death	ANTH 684	94103	3 UG/G	12/27-1/9	MTWUFSa 9:00 AM-5:00 PM
The History of the American Intelligence Community	HIST 200	94117	3 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 6:00 PM-10:15 PM
Sport and Exercise Personality	KIN 592	94123	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 8:30 AM-12:30 PM
Jazz in Kansas City and the Southwest	MUSIC 424	94124	3 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 1:00 PM-4:45 PM
From Metropolis to the Heartland: Immigrant Experiences in America	SOCIO 500	94125	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-1:00 PM
Social Construction of Serial Murder	SOCIO 562	94126	3 UG/G		MTWUF 1:00 PM-5:00 PM Sa 9:00 AM-5:00 PM
Ethics in Drama Therapy	THTRE 630	94128	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-5:00 PM
Topics in Technical Theatre: Scene Painting	THTRE 711	94130	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-1:00 PM
Women and Environmentalism: The Ecofeminist Perspective	WOMST 500	94134	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 9:00 AM-1:00 PM
Business
Introduction to Total Quality Management	MANGT 300	94157	1 UG	1/5-1/8	MF 5:00 PM-10:00 PM Sa 1:00 PM-5:00 PM
Achieving Career Success	MANGT 497	94140	3 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 8:15 AM-12:00 PM
Education
Stress Management	EDCEP 502	94163	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 3:30 PM-6:30 PM
Stress Management for Teachers, Counselors, and Administrators	EDCEP 802	94162	3 G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 3:30 PM-6:30 PM
Early Field Experience	EDSEC 230	94160	1 UG	12/27-1/10
Engineering
CAD in Engineering and Construction	ARE 311	94165	2 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 8:00 AM-12:00 PM
Introduction to LEED	ARE 720	94111	1 UG/G	1/3-1/10	MTWUF 1:00 PM-4:00 PM
Introduction to Information Technology	CIS 101	94146	1 UG	12/27-12/29	WUF 8:00 AM-12:10 PM
Introduction to Microcomputer Spreadsheet Applications	CIS 102	94147	1 UG	1/2-1/4	TWU 8:00 AM-12:10 PM
Introduction to Microcomputer Database Applications	CIS 103	94148	1 UG	1/8-1/10	MTW 8:00 AM-12:10 PM
Topics in Construction Management: Tilt-Up Concrete Structures in Construction Mangt	CNS 644	94145	2 UG/G	1/2-1/10	MTWUF 8:00 AM-12:00 PM
Introduction to Total Quality Management	DEN 300	94164	1 UG	1/5-1/8	MF 5:00 PM-10:00 PM Sa 1:00 PM-5:00 PM
Problems/Eng and Tech: Hazwoper Training	DEN 398	94166	3 UG	1/2-1/30	TWUF 8:00 AM-7:00 PM
Human Ecology
Understanding Death, Dying, Grief and Loss	FSHS 300	94167	3 UG	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 8:30 AM-12:30 PM
Introduction to Marriage and Family Therapy	FSHS 704	94171	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 8:30 AM-12:15 PM
Topics: Premarital Education and Counseling	FSHS 708	94172	3 UG/G	12/27-1/10	MTWUF 6:00 PM-10:00 PM
Seminar in Long-Term Care Administration	GERON 610	94180	3 UG/G	12/28-1/10	MTWUF 5:00 PM-9:00 PM

www.dce.ksu.edu/intersession

Manning might get another shot at a ring

CEDRIQUE FLEMMING

The National Football League is a week past the halfway point.

With less than two months to go until the postseason, I have noticed there are a number of teams that are not living up to the preseason hype, and some others that are exceeding expectations.

Here is a list and brief descriptions of teams from both sides of the spectrum.

We'll start with the 9-0 Indianapolis Colts. They are the first team in NFL history to be undefeated this late in the season two years in a row.

They haven't been winning by much (see the 17-16 victory over the Buffalo Bills last week), but they continue to find ways to win, which is all that matters in this league.

The Colts were the No. 1 seed in the playoffs last season, but they lost in their first game to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

This year, they will again have home-field advantage throughout the American Football Conference playoffs, and quarterback Peyton Manning will have yet another chance to get to the Super Bowl and quiet the critics who say he can't win the big game.

The Cincinnati Bengals are struggling mightily this season.

Last year, quarterback Carson Palmer led his team to an AFC North title and a playoff berth, but now the team sits at 4-5 and will need to get lucky in the second half in order to either catch the division-leading Baltimore Ravens (7-2) or get in position for a wildcard berth into the playoffs.

Also in the AFC North is the defending Super Bowl champion, the Pittsburgh Steelers.

This team accomplished so much last year, but it is quite possibly the most underachieving team this season.

At 3-6, the Steelers sit in a tie for last place in their division and will need to go at least 6-1 in the final two months of the season if they want to have any chance of making a return trip to the postseason.

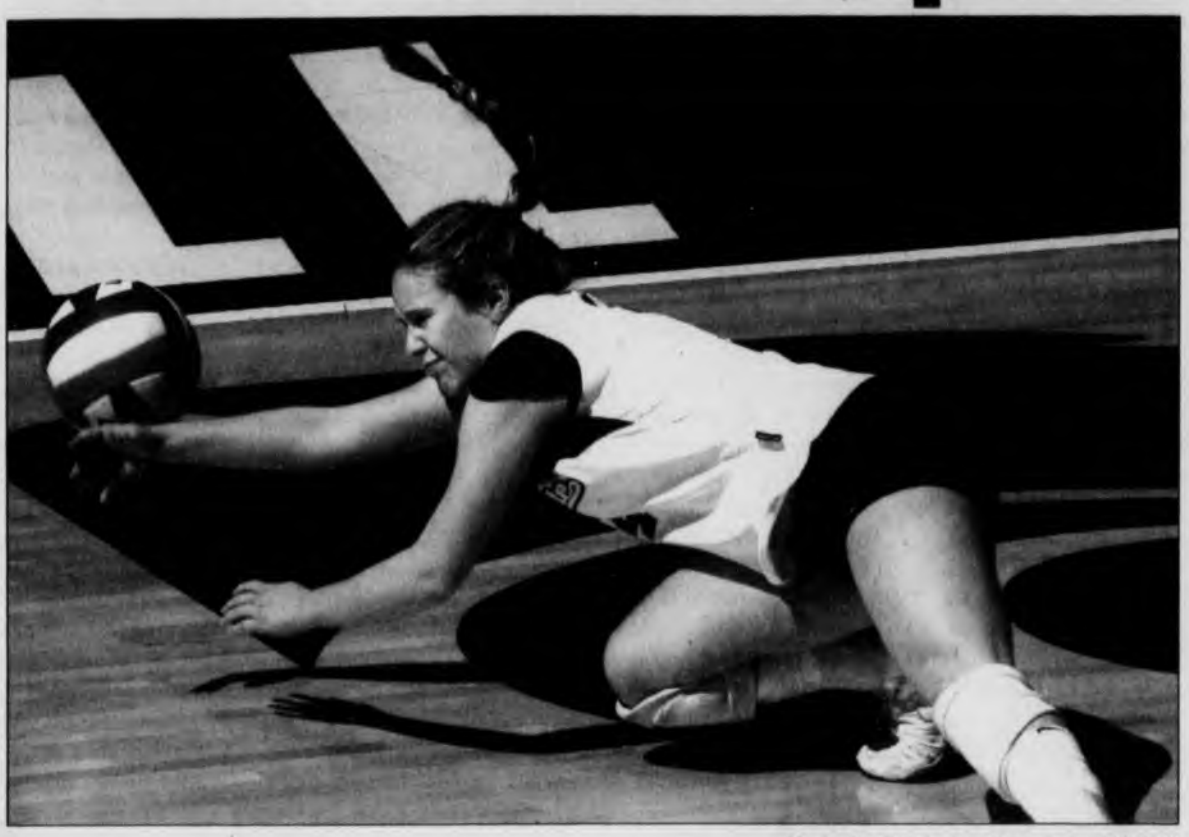
The Arizona Cardinals are definitely not who most people thought they would be.

Many believed this team would contend for a playoff spot this season, but they are only 1-8 and are riding an eight-game losing streak.

This team has arguably the best tandem of wide receivers in the game today with Larry Fitzgerald and Anquan Boldin.

It also has a talented young defense and rookie quarterback in Matt Leinart who has shown flashes of brilliance in only a few weeks in the league.

The running game has been the biggest problem this season, as running back Edgerrin James is averaging a career-low 64.9 yards per game.



The problems in the running game fall squarely on the offensive line.

It has been terrible in blocking all season, and the Cardinals are going to continue to lose games if this problem isn't corrected soon.

Surprises are always a part of the NFL, and I can't wait to see what happens in the second half of the season.

Cedrique Flemming is a senior in print journalism and business. Please send comments to sports@spab.ksu.edu.

Season swept

Photos by Christopher Hanewinckel | COLLEGIAN

Sophomore defensive specialist Leslie Townsend misses on a dive to save a ball during the third game against Texas Wednesday evening. The Wildcats fell to 2-16 in Big 12 play with the 3-1 loss.

K-State takes 1 before falling to No. 8-ranked Texas

By Jeffrey Rake
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Just four days after the K-State football team pulled off an upset against No. 4 Texas, the K-State women's volleyball team tried to tap into some of the magic in hopes of beating another ranked Texas team.

"Our assistant coach made a small video and put some highlights of us hitting, and he also put when the football team won against Texas ... it got us fired up," junior Angie Lastra said.

It didn't, however, get the Wildcats a winning result.

No. 8 Texas (20-5, 15-3 Big 12) defeated the Wildcats 3-1 (30-26, 30-22, 23-30, 30-26) Wednesday night at Ahearn Field House, extending its winning streak to eight matches and giving the Longhorns the season sweep against K-State (10-18, 2-16 Big 12).

It was the 17th loss in 19 matches for the Wildcats, who are in last place in the Big 12 Conference with two matches remaining. Still, coach Suzie Fritz was upbeat after the game and said she saw plenty of positives from her team.

"I thought the effort level, the intensity level was good," Fritz said. "That's the accepted level of intensity and enthusiasm and energy we have to play with all the time."

K-State sophomore middle blocker Megan Farr recorded a career-high 18 kills on a .417 hitting percentage in defeat. She has surpassed double-digit kills in six of K-State's last 10 matches and has become one of the team's most consistent players at the net, Fritz said.

"She's just this little itty bitty thing in there, and she is just very fast and up early and getting on the ball," Fritz said. "I was excited for Megan. She had a terrific night."

In the opening game, K-State stayed close with the Longhorns and never trailed by more than four points. Farr led K-State with seven kills on a .700 hitting percentage to help keep the Wildcats within striking distance at 27-26. But the Wildcats gave up three straight points to lose 30-26.

Fritz said her team didn't come out with the proper mindset early on.

Junior Lauren Rosenthal responds after missing a hit during K-State's 3-1 loss Wednesday.

"I was a little disappointed that we weren't a little bit more aggressive earlier in the match," she said.

Texas and K-State split the next two games, with seven-point and eight-point results, respectively.

In the fourth game, K-State trailed by as many as five at 24-19 and was unable to get much closer. The Longhorns had seven more kills, out-hit the Wildcats .286 to .265, and won 30-26 to take the match.

Sophomore Megan Kroeker finished with 15 kills and senior Sandy Werner chipped in with 14 kills. Junior Stacey Spiegelberg had a team-high 54 assists for the Wildcats.

K-State shoots poorly from field, still tops Rutgers in 1st road test

By David Porter
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PISCATAWAY, N.J. – At one point during the second half of K-State's win over Rutgers Wednesday night, the public-address announcer began to signal a timeout with the words, "Cincinnati calls time," before catching himself and correcting it to "K-State."

It might take awhile to get used to Bob Huggins coaching the Wildcats after 16 seasons at Cincinnati. It won't take nearly as long to recognize his trademark high-pressure defense.

David Hoskins scored 14 points to help K-State defeat Rutgers 55-41 Wednesday night and spoil the debut of Scarlet Knights coach Fred Hill. The Wildcats shot 32 percent from the field but were able to win easily because they held Rutgers to 19-percent shooting (9-for-47).

"That was a score from before the shot clock," Huggins cracked after his team improved to 2-0. "I try to tell them they're going to have days when they don't shoot well, but they can still win, and you do that by guarding and by rebounding the ball."

J.R. Inman led Rutgers with 17 points. The game was Rutgers' season opener, but it evened Hill's career record at 1-1. Last season, the longtime assistant coached the Scarlet Knights to a victory over Marquette when head coach Gary Waters was unable to return from Ohio due to a snowstorm.

Without shooting guard Quincy Douby, who left a year early for the NBA, Rutgers' lack of an outside game was glaring. Outside of Inman, the Scarlet Knights shot 4-for-39, including 1-for-10 by returning leading scorer Marquis Webb.

"Last year Quincy was double-teamed, and that opened up looks for other guys," Hill said. "They're not going to get those looks any more. They're going to have to find ways to score in the offense."

Whether due to K-State's defensive pressure or their own ineptitude, Rutgers' players never seemed to get into the flow of the game.

"I think we got them moving a little faster than they wanted to move and made them make decisions they didn't want to make," Hoskins said. "The ball either goes in or it doesn't, but you can always play defense and rebound."

Rutgers overcame a brutal first 20 minutes in which it shot 4-for-24 to trail by nine on Inman's 3-point play early in the second half. But Lance Harris scored eight of his 11 points on two 3-pointers and a baseline jumper to spark a 12-6 run that opened a 40-25 lead for K- State. The lead eventually reached 19 (47-28) with 8:48 left.

Inman landed awkwardly and left the game with a left leg injury with 10:26 left but returned with 4:44 left. He was the only Rutgers player to make more than one field goal.

1-MINUTE DRILL

Staff Reports

VOL | Werner, 7 teammates garner 2006 Academic All-Big 12 honors

K-State volleyball placed eight student-athletes on the 2006 Academic All-Big 12 Volleyball Team, the Big 12 announced Tuesday afternoon. This is the second consecutive year K-State has tied for the most selections, this season with Nebraska.

To qualify, student-athletes must maintain a 3.00 grade point average or higher, either cumulative or the two previous semesters, and must have participated in 60 percent of her team's scheduled matches. Freshmen and transfers are not eligible in their first year of academic residence. Senior student-athletes who have participated for a minimum of two years and meet all the criteria except percent of participation are also eligible.

Wildcats reaching the Academic All-Big 12 first team were senior Sandy Werner (nutrition and exercise science), junior Angie Lastra (life sciences/pre-med), junior Stacey Spiegelberg (life sciences/pre-nursing), junior Lauren Rosenthal (architectural engineering), sophomore Megan Farr (general management), sophomore Jenny Jantsch (accounting) and sophomore Leslie Townsend (finance and accounting).

The honor for Werner is her third career citation for the Topeka native and her second straight first-team selection. Jantsch, Lastra and Spiegelberg each earned first-team honors for the second time in their career.

Since the formation of the Big 12 in the fall of 1996, K-State has seen 34 student-athletes earn 72 Academic All-Big 12 citations, including 42 first team choices.

FBC | Master Coaches Survey tabs Freeman as Player of the Week

The honors continue to roll in for freshman quarterback Josh Freeman as he was given the "MCS Nike Game Ball" and was named the Offensive Player of the Week after his performance in K-State's 45-42 win over No. 4 Texas last week, the Master Coaches Survey announced on Tuesday.

Freeman

The Kansas City, Mo., native set a new K-State freshman passing mark for a season Saturday and now has 1,407 yards on the year. In his last three games, all conference wins, Freeman is 55-of-77 for 681 yards and six touchdowns.

Each week during the 2006 college football season, the 17 Master Football Coaches award an MCS Nike Game Ball to the respective schools for an offensive, defensive and special teams player of the week.

The Master Coaches also present a game ball to the offensive and defensive coordinator whose game plans had the biggest effect in their respective teams' victory.

In addition to Freeman, the Master Football Coaches also awarded MCS Nike Game Balls to Georgia safety Tra Battle, Florida defensive end/special teamer Jarvis Moss, Wake Forest offensive coordinator Steed Lobotzke and Arkansas defensive coordinator Reggie Herring.

GLF | K-State women's team adds another golfer to recruiting class

The K-State women's golf program announced the signing of Woodlands Park, England native Ami Storey on Wednesday. Storey will join the Wildcat recruiting class for the 2007-08 season, which includes Manhattan natives Elise and Emily Houtz.

Knight

"I am pleased to sign Ami Storey," coach Kristi Knight said. "Ami is a great addition to our program. She brings an excellent work ethic and vast amount of competitive experience. Her game will continue to develop in college, and she is looking forward to getting to K-State and getting started."

Storey was the Under-18 Player of the Year for her county and was the 2006 Ladies County Champion, the youngest winner in the last 75 years of the tournament. Storey was the Junior County Match Play champion, Junior County Stroke Play champion and the Northumberland High School Champion in 2004, 2005 and 2006.

She was the first person to win both the County Junior and County Ladies Championship in same year, 2006. She is also a two-time winner of the High School Outstanding Achievement Award.

SEXUAL HEALTH | K-State tops KU in rankings

Continued from Page 1

There were seven categories used to rate universities.

The categories are Web site navigation, condom availibility, contraception options, HIV and Sexually Transmitted Infection testing, sexual assault services, advice column, Q&As in the student newspaper, and lecture and outreach programs.

HOW K-STATE SCORED

In the first category of campus health center Web sites and how easily they can be navigated, K-State scored a B.

"Our Web site is really comprehensive, because you can search for various topics, and it will pop right up," Hicks said.

She said although K-State has a good Web site, it is being improved.

On the level of condom availability, K-State scored an F. Schools received an A for free and easily available condoms, a C for condoms with a price, and an F for no availablity.

"SHAPE hands out free condoms at every presentation they give around campus. Also, they are in the (K-State Student) Union every week handing out free condoms," Hicks said.

K-State scored an A on contraception availability other than condoms, like birth control and the morning-after pill.

Hicks said contraception, including the morning-after pill, can be easily obtained through Lafene Health Center.

"All students have to do is call and make an appointment with a nurse. The nurse will tell you all about your options to see what will work best for you," she said.

In the category of HIV and STI testing, K-State earned a C.

K-State could have scored better if testing information was made more clear on the Web site, Bruno said.

Hicks said Lafene offers all STD and HIV testing, and students can get appointments for testing in fewer than two days.

K-State received an A on sexual assault counseling and availability.

Between University Counseling Services and the Women's Center, K-State has programs to assist students in need and increase awareness of sexual issues, Mary Todd, director of Women's Center said.

K-State received an F for sex advice in the student newspaper.

Collegian editor in chief Emily Lawrence said it is hard to find legitimate sex advice columnists.

"We've had sex and relationship columnists, but being on a conservative campus, it's hard to find people who are open about sexual experiences," Lawrence said.

K-State received a D in lecture and outreach programs.

Hicks said SHAPE conducts presentations on sexual health across campus and brings nationally known speakers to students every year.

"At least half of the student population has heard a presentation or know someone who has. We reach over 2,000 students a year, which are mostly freshmen," Hicks said.

K-STATE VS. KU

While K-State ranked low on sexual health awareness, KU finished lower, at No. 79 of 100, with a 1.1 GPA, according to the study.

Smith said KU's more liberal atmosphere affects the amount of funding they receive.

"We are very fortunate to be providing student health services in conjunction with national health programs such as the Clean-N-Safe campaign for awareness and testing for Chlamydia and Gonorrhea," Smith said.

Hicks said even though K-State is considered a conservative campus, she thinks it does not affect the funding SHAPE receives for campus presentations.

KU also has a comparable sexual peer educator program called Peer Health Educators, Smith said.

KU was a testing site for the new HPV vaccine, Gardasil, and was one of the first universities to receive the vaccine.

Lafene also has the HPV vaccine available to students, Hicks said.

Hicks said SHAPE stresses students' need to determine if their health insurance covers this vaccine.

In the category of condom availability, K-State and KU are both failing.

Smith and Hicks said condoms are fairly easy for students to get on KU's campus.

KU's health clinic has a punch card program that allows students living in residence halls, fraternity and sorority houses and scholarships houses to get free condoms for their entire living communities.

"Students get a free condom favor bag, which includes 50 condoms, 10 packs of lubrication and literature about safe sex," Smith said.

The first bag is free, then the second, third and fourth bags come with the price of giving a presentation about safe sex to their living communities, Smith said.

Smith said KU's health clinic also offers condoms at a price of three for $0.50.

"Lafene has condoms that are affordable for students and cheaper than going to Wal-Mart," Hicks said.

Hicks said SHAPE is working hard to educate students on the risks of sexual behavior and how to protect themselves.

When it comes to sexual resources on campus, Smith said the information is out there for students.

"Ultimately, it is the students' responsibility to take advantage," Smith said.

STUDY ABROAD | Students visited Kenya, India

Continued from Page 1

"I wanted to challenge myself," Mitts said as she discussed the reasons behind picking an unconventional destination for studying abroad.

As a volunteer with Cross Cultural Solutions, Mitts stayed for several months, traveling through the Himalayas and working at a summer camp teaching English and math.

Mitts described India as a land of contradictions, addressing the juxtaposition of the corrupt government and the deeply religious people.

In India, Mitts stayed at a 24-hour temple and interacted with Tibetan refugees in mountain villages. Mitts also worked with Mobile Crutches, a group that provides daycare for people in poverty-stricken areas. She taught children basic hygiene and social skills.

"I learned I didn't have to have all the extra stuff in life," she said.

Both women said they recommend a service-orientated study abroad program, because it fosters experiential learning and real interaction with people in the culture, not just the elite.

Yuko Funkunaga, sophomore in Spanish, attended the event to learn about different study abroad opportunities.

"I read about it in the Collegian and am going to Mexico next semester, and I want to do something like this," she said.

SMOKEOUT | Realistic expectations key for quitters

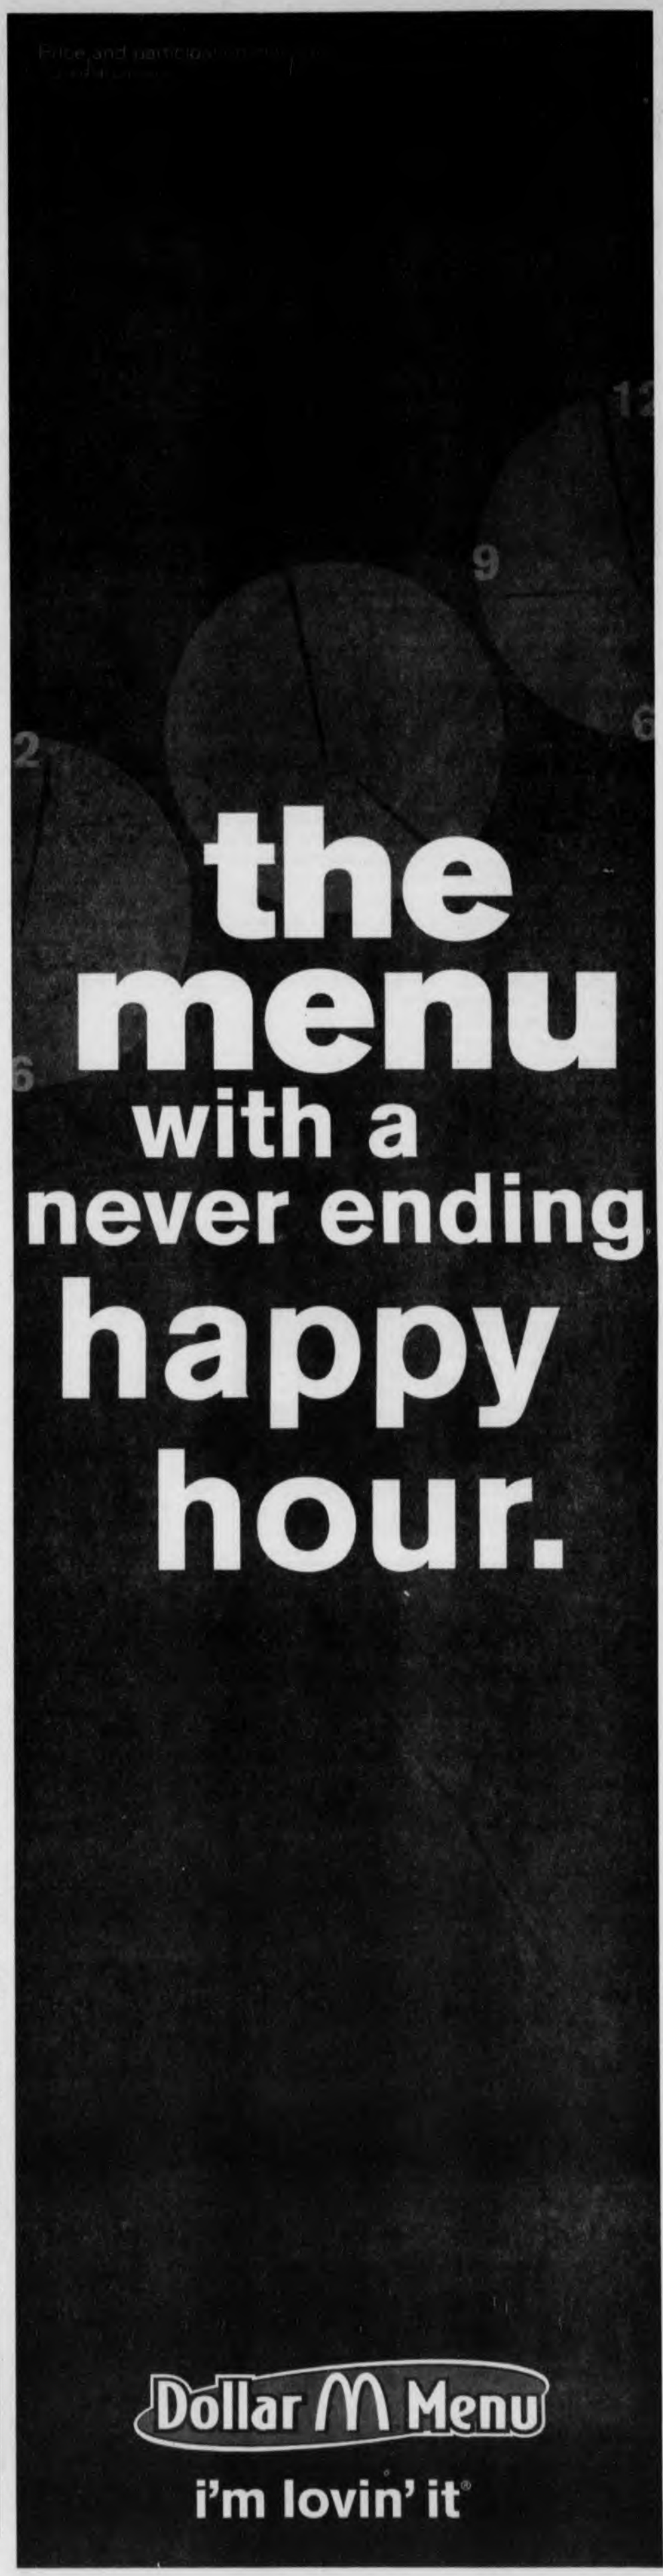
Continued from Page 1

encourage smokers who choose to quit. Some restaurants, including El Cazador Authentic Mexican Food & Cantina, will be honored for choosing to be smoke-free regardless of the city's smoking policy.

"The smoking ordinance never happened, but some restaurants decided on their own to go smoke-free," Locke said. "Its nice to have those places in the community."

College is an ideal time to quit smoking, according to the ACS. A study at the University of Rhode Island found 28.5 percent of college students are smokers. The same study also found that nearly half of college-age smokers have tried to quit at least once.

"Quitting is hard, emotionally and physically," Kyle Jacobs, sophomore in industrial engineering, said. "I don't really know anyone that has quit, cold turkey, on their first try."



Having a plan and sticking to that plan is helpful to quitting. Students are encouraged to contact a physician or talk to a psychiatrist to help their effort.

"Helping students to develop realistic expectations about smoking and to find other ways to cope with negative feelings may be helpful in reducing dependence upon smoking," said Michael Fiore, director of the University of Wisconsin Center for Tobacco Research and Intervention.

"This is critical, since we know that half of those who become daily lifetime smokers will be killed prematurely by a disease directly caused by their smoking."

For more information on the effects of smoking and tips for quitting, go to the American Cancer Society Web site at www.cancer.org.

Once in a Lifetime
engagements and weddings
Need to know if he's single?
Once in a Lifetime, in the Collegian the first Friday of the month.
To announce your milestone, visit Kedzie 103. To advertise, call 532-6560.

Tall task

Steven Doll | COLLEGIAN

Lisa Rockley, executive director for Downtown Manhattan Inc., and Jenny Miller, designer at Steve's Floral, decorate the large Christmas tree in front of the Manhattan Town Center with large ornaments, lights and ribbons Wednesday afternoon.

Ornament sales for Light of Life tree benefit hospice, honor loved ones

By Kristin Hodges
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

In memory of loved ones, people can purchase holiday ornaments to be displayed on trees in different communities.

The Light of Life memorial is an annual fundraiser by Homecare and Hospice that raises funds for home health, hospice and support services for the community, said Christina Nolte, director of foundation development for Homecare and Hospice.

Nolte said people can buy dove, star or angel ornaments in memory of a loved one who has died. That person's name is written on the ornament, which is later placed on a Light of Life tree in Manhattan or the nearby Kansas cities of Wamego or Junction City. The ornaments range in price from $25 to $100.

"They're hung throughout the holiday season so that people can see them," she said. "It's a memorial for those who have passed away."

Nolte said there will be a Light of Life tree in Manhattan Town Center in the J.C. Penney courtyard. On Nov. 30, there will be a reception at the Homecare and Hospice office, followed by a candlelight processional leading to the tree for a dedication.

She said the other trees will be at Lincoln Perk in Wamego and at Waters True Value in Junction City. People can choose the community in which they would like to have their ornament displayed.

The ornaments will be taken down at the end of the year, and then buyers can keep their ornaments.

Nolte said Homecare and Hospice is a nonprofit organization in Manhattan that provides services to people in a 30-mile radius.

Julie Swanson, owner of Lincoln Perk, said the coffee shop will have one of the Light of Life trees on display during the holiday season to let people know more about hospice services.

"It's just to get people more aware that the hospice does serve the Wamego area, too," she said.

Multicultural poetry event showcases 5 languages

By Eric Davis
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Mike Luckett, senior in sociology, performs a war chant, haka, during the multicultural poetry reading put on by Sigma Lambda Beta fraternity Wednesday evening in the K-State Student Union. German, Mandarin, English and Spanish were some of the languages spoken during the poetry reading.

Lyndsey Born
COLLEGIAN

At least five languages were spoken at Wednesday evening's multicultural poetry reading in the K-State Student Union.

The event, put on by Sigma Lambda Beta fraternity, aimed to give students a taste of the poetry of other languages, particularly German, Mandarin, Maori, English and Spanish.

Mike Luckett, senior in sociology, had his face painted before reading a haka, or a war chant. The Maori, a tribe from New Zealand, often performed such chants to get energized before a battle.

Clinton Donkers, senior in business management, read one of his favorite poems, "Gefunden" by Johan Wolfgang von Goethe. "Gefunden" is written in German and performed in English, but for the purpose of the evening, Clinton recited it in German.

"I was really looking for a peaceful poem, a poem that rhymes pretty well," Donkers said. "German is not a language that rhymes easily. I also wanted to choose one that everyone who comes can enjoy."

Donkers said he chose German because he lived in Germany for 13 years. He is not fluent in the language, but he said he can speak it well.

The evening was organized by Andrew Leslie, senior in advertising.

"We wanted to pick cultures that you don't really hear a lot about," Leslie said. "When was the last time you heard a Maori war chant?"

Check Out sudoku in the Classifieds

favorites from our bookshelf
Children's Book Week 2006
Our New Childhood Favorites
-Stormy - Deputy Harvey and the Ant Cow Caper by Wallace Edwards
2006 Kansas Notable Book Winner
-Kevin - Airball: My Life in Briefs by L.D. Harkrader
2006 Kansas Notable Book Winner
-Dan - John, Paul, George, and Ben by Lane Smith
-Will - Donuthead by Sue Stauffacher
2006 William Allen White Award Winner
A member of Book Sense
Claflin Books and Copies
1814 Claflin Road
(785) 776-3771
www.claflinbooks.com

ATTENTION Faculty and Staff
Get professional objective advice regarding your Regents' Retirement Plan.
Have it professionally managed by a local registered investment advisor
Kramer Capital Management
601 Leavenworth - Manhattan
785-539-0110
www.nickkramer.com
email with subject "Regent Plan" to rgkramer@cox.net

We Kick Ads!
532.6560

CATCH! CATCH! CATCH!
Collegian Gameday every Friday before home games.

RC McGraws
Manhattan's #1 Premier Country Night Club
Best Tacos in Town: 59¢ (hard or soft)
$1.50 Coors Light Pints
$1.50 Michelob Family Pints
Thursday is Karaoke Night!
$1.99 Margaritas
2317 Tuttle Creek Blvd. • 776-9588
In the Blue Hills Shopping Center

Thursday Nights @ TUBBY'S Sports Bar
$1.00 Jell-O Shots
$2.00 Shots, Wells & Bottles
Mon-Tues 4pm-2am
Wed-Sun 11:30-2am

Your professor may not always be there for you.
Your roommates might not always be there for you
And your family, well you can't really trust them either.
But the Collegian Crossword...
Now that's something you can bank on.

Save the Wakarusa Wetlands
speaker: Mike Caron
7:00 PM Thursday, November 16
>> Flint Hills Room, K-State Student Union
>> free and open to the public
ROAD CONSTRUCTION AHEAD
10
Finding a better route for South Lawrence Trailway

We're Looking For YOU!
Newsroom Staff Positions
Spring 2007
• Managing Editors
• News Editors
• Desk Editors • Reporters
• Copy Editors • Designers
• Photojournalists
• Graphic Journalists
• Graphic Artists
• Online Journalists
Applications due 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.
Pick up applications in Kedzie 103.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

Did you sell more Girl Scout cookies than anyone else in your troop?
You'll make more than cookie crumbs working for us...
Collegian Advertising Sales- We're not selling cookies.
If you answered yes to the question above, you know what it takes to be in sales. Come be a part of our team during the spring semester. We're looking for good communicators, we'll teach you the rest. Working hours are in between classes, Monday through Friday, 9am-5pm.
COLLEGIAN ADVERTISING K-STATE PHONE BOOK
SALES POSITION APPLICATIONS AVAILABLE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL or email jhamm@kstate.edu
APPLICATIONS AND COVER LETTER DUE IN 103 KEDZIE HALL FRIDAY, NOV. 17, 4PM.
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL (785)532-0723

Alumnus to open bar with island, dance floor, mascot

By Megan Green
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

A new addition to the bar scene will be coming to Aggieville by the end of January 2007.

Tanks Tavern, a new bar owned by K-State alumnus Brett Allred, has been under construction for the past six months to prepare for its trendy bar debut.

"This will be kind of upscale for Manhattan," Allred said. "More like the bars around the KC area. It's going to be really high-energy. You'll be able to move around easier and not get bumped and be able to get a drink."

There is about 80 feet of bar space, he said, and Tanks will have the only island bar in Manhattan.

"It'll be really easy to get to the bar," he said. "And it'll be very open."

Allred said he plans to have a large dance floor and to create an atmosphere more like that of a dance club. He also plans to have the tavern's mascot, Tank, a pitbull mix, at the bar at all times.

Tank will be in an area where he will not bother people who don't want to talk to him, Allred said.

Allred has been working in Aggieville for three years and said he loves the bar business. He said he has been saving for this opportunity for four years.

"Everyone who works in a bar wants to own a bar," he said. "I'm the only one who is dumb enough to actually do it."

Because he is only 23 years old, Allred said he has a better idea of what people want.

"Waiting is a common thing in bars," he said. "But I don't think you should wait. It'll be really open and really easy to get a drink."

Maureen Thomsen, senior in mass communications, said she is excited about the bar's opening.

"I can't wait for it to open," she said. "It's something new, and we need something new like this in Manhattan."

Businesses near the future location of Tanks Tavern did not have much to say about the bar, because they said they have no idea what to expect.

"I don't think it's something I can worry about, because I have no control over it," said Rich Markle, manager of Rock-A-Belly Bar and Deli. "All I can do is focus on the things I can control – our good service – and if I do that, there's not a whole lot more I can do."

Allred said he is excited about his building and has done a lot of work to get it to meet his standards.

"About two dozen people have done the demo work," he said. "I have to thank all of my good friends."

Allred isn't new to opening his own business. He used to own the hot tub business Captain Wildcat Hot Tub rental, which he has since sold.

"I really enjoy the bar business," he said. "My goal is to offer the fastest speed of service in Manhattan, and the only line at my bar will be at the door to get in."

Collegian Explore it! kstatecollegian.com

CLASSIFIEDS

To place an advertisement call 785-532-6555

LET'S RENT

CLASSIFIED ADS
LET THEM WORK FOR YOU
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
103 Kedzie • 785-532-6555

120 Rent-Houses

FOUR- BEDROOM, two bath. Fenced yard, garage. Pets ok. 785-317-7713.

000 Bulletin Board

010 Announcements

LEARN TO FLY! K-State Flying Club has five airplanes and lowest rates. Call 785-776-1744, www.ksu.edu/ksfc

020 Lost and Found

Lost and found ads can be placed free for three days.

100 Housing/Real Estate

105 Rent-Apt. Furnished

Manhattan CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

110 Rent-Apt. Unfurnished

MANHATTAN CITY Ordinance 4814 assures every person equal opportunity in housing without distinction on account of race, sex, familial status, military status, disability, religion, age, color, national origin or ancestry. Violations should be reported to the Director of Human Resources at City Hall, (785)587-2440.

ONE AND two-bedroom apartment, 700 Fremont. $450 and $600. One month deposit, no pets. 785-556-0713.

ONE-BEDROOM, CLOSE to campus in newer complex. No pets. 785-313-7473.

TWO-BEDROOM/ ONE bath townhouse $850.00, new construction. Also two-bedroom/ two bath apartment near the mall, call Wildcat Property at 785-537-2332.

UNFURNISHED APARTMENT. Quiet, large two bed-room near KSU. Laundry, garage. $650. Water, trash paid. No pets. Available December 15. 785-537-7431.

120 Rent-Houses

ONE-BEDROOM, walk to class. No drinking, Smoking, or pets. 785-539-1554.

TWO-BEDROOM HOUSE. Available January 1, 2007. Close to campus. No pets. Call 785-539-1975 or 785-313-4465.

Need a subleaser
Advertise
785-532-6555

135 Sale-Mobile Homes

14X70 NEWLY remodeled, two-bedroom, two bathroom home, reasonable lot rent, 6228 Sparrow Lane #61, Rocky Ford Trailer Court. 785-565-0525.

145 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed $258/ plus one-third utilities. Pets negotiable, washer/ dryer. Within walking distance of Aggieville. Contact Randi 785-215-9028.

FEMALE ROOMMATE needed for four-bedroom house. $350/ month plus electricity, gas, SBC. Quiet, nice house, major appliances included. (785-587-9207) (785-230-3008).

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share 3 bedroom apartment near campus. $250 per month plus 1/3 utility. Available January 1st. 785-537-1746.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted. Share three-bedroom private home. Serious students only. $325 plus one-third utilities. Prefer lease through summer. 785-539-5762.

ROMMATE WANTED. Three-bedroom house. $350, utilities included. Washer/ dryer, fenced yard, full kitchen, off street parking, close to campus. 785-313-4730.

150 Sublease

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for two-bedroom two bath apartment. Contact Colista at 785-543-4258. Available January 1.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed January: one bedroom in two-bedroom, two full bathroom at University Crossing. $375, furnished. 913-744-9994. emthomas@ksu.edu for pictures.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed in January. Four-bedroom, two bath. Close to campus. $300 plus one-fourth utilities. Call Jake 913-378-3395.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January- July four- bedroom house $300 per month plus one-fourth utilities. Washer/ dryer, dishwasher included. 620-271-2956.

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed for January. Two-bedroom, one bath apartment. No smoking. Must love animals. $275 plus one-half utilities. babygoth@ksu.edu

FEMALE SUBLEASER needed immediately. Close to campus, off-street parking. $400 a month utilities included. 913-961-0673.

FEMALE SUBLEASER wanted to share four-bedroom/ two bath apartment. First month free, $315/ month. Available now through July 2007. 907-232-4601.

FURNISHED APARTMENT. One-bedroom. One bathroom, washer/ dryer. Rent $375. Trash and cable paid. 785-317-6313.

150 Sublease

MALE SUBLEASER needed in January. $300 per month, plus one-third utilities. Three-bedroom, two bath. Call 785-342-2932.

SUBLEASER NEEDED, spring 2007 semester. $350/ month. Nice, newer, three-bedroom house, built 1997. 785-221-2282.

SUBLEASERS NEEDED for three- bedroom apartment. One and one- half bath. $240/ room close to campus and Aggieville. Available January. Contact 785-537-7810, 316-214-4745.

300 Employment/Careers

310 Help Wanted

THE COLLEGIAN cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment/Career classification. Readers are advised to approach any such business opportunity with reasonable caution. The Collegian urges our readers to contact the Better Business Bureau, 501 SE Jefferson, Topeka, KS 66607-1190. (785)232- 0454.

4 OLIVE'S Wine Bar now hiring lunch cooks. Flexible hours, competitive pay. Apply in person 3033 Anderson Avenue.

ACCOUNT SERVICE REPS needed to start full-time, on choice of either mid-Nov. date or late Dec. date, at Security Benefit, Topeka, KS. All degree programs welcome for this entry-level career opportunity. After comprehensive training, ASR's provide information and service (no selling or solicitation) relating to financial products. Competitive salary and benefits package for this opportunity in our dynamic, technology-based business, se2. Apply via our online application at www.securitybenefit.com or phone (785)-438-3732. Equal Opportunity Employer.

APPOINTMENT SETTER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of City, County and School websites. We have full and part-time positions in Manhattan with significant income potential for the right individual. This position involves calling potential clients to setup webinar appointments. Pay is $10/ hour plus $40 for each webinar appointment you setup. Full - time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

BARTENDING! $300 a day potential. No experience necessary. Training provided. Call 1-800-965-6520 ext. 144.

Advertise Call 785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

CLEANING CREW - Flexible Night Hours- Farm Bureau is seeking a Building Services Attendant to perform routine night maintenance and general cleaning in and around our building and grounds. Hours are flexible (part - time, 4 hour shifts or full - time, 8 hour shifts.) All shifts occurring between 10:30pm and 7:00am Sunday through Thursday. Benefits provided for full-time candidates. High school diploma or equivalent, extensive physical effort required. To apply and view our other opportunities, please email your resume to bill.pinegar@fbl-financial.com.

EARN $2500+ monthly and more to type simple ads online. www.dataentrytypers.com

EARN $800 - $3200 a month to drive brand new cars with ads placed on them. www.AdDriveTeam.com.

GRAPHIC ARTS designer assistant. Part-time position, $10.78 hourly. Submit by: November 22, 2006. This entry level position creates posters, fliers, brochures, and similar materials. Eligible for sick/ annual leave accrual, 401K, retirement, and health/ life insurance benefits. Requirements: degree in graphic design, art or related field which involves artistic creativity or work experience performing the duties described above. Must be knowledgeable of Adobe InDesign, Photoshop, and Illustrator software. Send resume to: CPAC/ NAF Branch Fort Riley, KS Brenda Switzer, 319 Marshall Ave, Fort Riley, KS 66442. Fax resume to: 785-239-3635, phone: 785-239-2134.

GRAPHIC DESIGNER CivicPlus is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Both full-time and work-at-home (contract) positions are available. Full-time benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume and design samples to jobs@civicplus.com

310 Help Wanted

HARRY'S DAYTIME DISHWASHER NEEDED. Shifts 10am - 3pm on Mon-Wed-Fri and/ or Tues-Thurs. Some night and/ or weekend availability. Apply in person at 418 Poyntz Ave. Good Pay.

HELP WANTED: KSU Beef Cattle Research Center. Contact Matt Quinn at 785-539-4971 or mjq@ksu.edu.

MYSTERY SHOPPERS. Earn up to $150. Experience not required. Undercover shoppers needed to judge retail and dining establishments. Call 800-722-4791.

PAID SUMMER Internships - EPA National Laboratory in Las Vegas, Nevada. Visit www.engext.ksu.edu for position and application information. Apply now!

PROGRAMMER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. Full - time position in Manhattan, Microsoft ASP or SQL experience required. $14.50/ hour plus health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SALES CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position in Manhattan has significant income potential for the right individual. $24,000 base plus aggressive commission schedule. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com.

SERVERS WANTED. Manhattan Country Club is now hiring servers for all shifts. Apply in person 1531 N. 10th. No phone calls please.

SO LONG Saloon. Now hiring waitresses. Apply in person, 1130 Moro, Manhattan, KS.

STUDENT HELP Wanted. We need outgoing, energetic students to sell advertising for the K-State Phone Book and the Kansas State Collegian during the spring semester. Advertising Sales reps are trained and given a proven sales territory. No experience necessary. Must be available to work when not in class, Monday - Friday, 8:-30am - 5:00pm. No evenings or weekends. Applications for advertising sales positions available in Student Publications or email jharmon@ksu.edu, Kedzie 103. Completed applications and a cover letter must be in Kedzie 103 by 4:00pm, Friday, November 17th.

310 Help Wanted

TECHNICAL SUPPORT positions available for K-State student with a variety of skills. Must have good interpersonal problem solving skills. Experience with PCs and popular software packages such as Microsoft Word, Microsoft Excel, WordPerfect, QuattroPro and Windows applications desired. Must have understanding of Microsoft Windows and Dos Commands. Windows networking and computer hardware knowledge preferred. Applications available/ accepted through Friday, November 17, 2006, in 211 Umberger Hall. (Department of Communications, Information & Educational Technology.)

TRAINER CIVICPLUS is the nations leading provider of city, county and school websites. This full-time position involves training end-users at both our Manhattan office as well as at our client sites across the US. Position requires the ability to speak in front of small groups and a good understanding of MS Word. Benefits include health, dental, paid holidays, paid vacation and 401(k) matching. Email resume in Microsoft Word or text format to jobs@civicplus.com

TUTOR: RILEY County High School (USD 378) is accepting applications for a tutor for structured study/ at risk students. $10-12/ hour. Contact Becky Pultz at bpultz@usd378.org or 785-485-4000 as soon as possible.

VARNEY'S BOOK Store is now taking applications for temporary part-time and temporary full-time positions in the textbook department to assist with textbook buyback. Possible employment dates are Nov 28 - Dec 15. Daytime, evening, and weekend hours are available. $6.00 per hour. Involves helping customers, moderate lifting, and cleaning/ pricing books. All positions require diligence and a pleasant, service-oriented attitude. College experience is strongly preferred. Apply in person upstairs in the Textbook Dept at Varney's Book Store, 623 N. Manhattan Ave, Manhattan, KS. Deadline for applications is Tuesday, November 21.

WEB DESIGNER. Award winning advertising agency, Imagemakers, seeks full-time web developer/ web designer. Some training provided. Apply at www.wamegowork.com.

Advertise in the Classifieds 785-532-6555

310 Help Wanted

Inventory
COUNT on us For a Great Opportunity
RGIS Inventory Specialists
Is currently accepting applications for:
Inventory Takers
- Weekday, evening and weekend hrs.
- Paid training
- 10-key experience helpful
- No experience necessary
- Competitive wages

Call Now!
24HRS
To pre-qualify
1888-242-7447
www.RGISINV.com
An equal opportunity employer

Looking for a job?
CHECK THE COLLEGIAN CLASSIFIEDS

SEARS
Now Hiring for regular and Seasonal Positions
- Flexible Hours
- Great Benefits
- Opportunity for advancement

Currently Seeking:
- Commission Sales Associates for Appliances and Hardware
- Footwear Associates
- In-Store Marketing Associates
- Soft-lines Merchandise Customer Assistants
- Receiving Associates
- Customer Service Associates and Tech 1 for Sears Auto Center
- Sears Photo Center Associates
- Applicants with daytime, nighttime, and weekend availability

Apply Online Today at www.sears.com
Sears is an EOAA Employer

QUIZNOS SUB
MMMM...TOASTY!

sudoku

Fill in the grid so that every row, every column, and every 3 x 3 box contains the digits 1 through 9 with no repeats.

	2		5		3	6
9	1		7					5
				8		1
	3	4	6
5								4
					8	2	1
		6		2
8					4		3	2
		3	8		1		5

Solution and tips at www.sudoku.com

$2 OFF
any regular or large sub

600 Travel/Trips

610 Tour Packages

#1 SPRING Break Website! Low Prices Guaranteed. Group discounts for 6+. Book 20 people, get 3 free trips! www.SpringBreakdiscounts.com or 800-838-8202.

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN 103 Kedzie 785.532.6555

graphic design internship
ADVERTISING DESIGN
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
If you are a graphic design major & would like an on-campus SPRING 2007 Internship for credit, stop by for an application.
Your art department adviser's permission is required.
APPLICATION DEADLINE IS 4 P.M. FRIDAY, NOV. 17
STOP BY 113 KEDZIE FROM 8A.M. - 2P.M. FOR MORE INFORMATION.

ADVERTISING Design
Practicum/Newspaper MC 385
Earn class credit working with the ad design/production staff on the Kansas State Collegian during spring semester 2007.
Limited enrollment. The instructor's permission is required.
No prerequisites are necessary.
Stop by 113 Kedzie from 8 a.m.-2 p.m. for an application.
Application deadline is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 17.

Deadlines

Classified ads must be placed by noon the day before you want your ad to run. Classified display ads must be placed by 4 p.m. two working days prior to the date you want your ad to run.

CALL 785-532-6555
E-mail classifieds@spub.ksu.edu

Classified Rates

1 DAY
20 words or less $10.50
each word over 20 20¢ per word

2 DAYS
20 words or less $12.95
each word over 20 25¢ per word

3 DAYS
20 words or less $15.65
each word over 20 30¢ per word

4 DAYS
20 words or less $17.90
each word over 20 35¢ per word

5 DAYS
20 words or less $20.00
each word over 20 40¢ per word

(consecutive day rate)

To Place An Ad

Go to Kedzie 103 (across from the K-State Student Union.) Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

How To Pay

All classifieds must be paid in advance unless you have an account with Student Publications Inc. Cash, check, MasterCard or Visa are accepted. There is a $25 service charge on all returned checks. We reserve the right to edit, reject or properly classify any ad.

Free Found Ads

As a service to you, we run found ads for three days free of charge.

Corrections

If you find an error in your ad, please call us. We accept responsibility only for the first wrong insertion.

Cancellations

If you sell your item before your ad has expired, we will refund you for the remaining days. You must call us before noon the day before the ad is to be published.

Headlines

For an extra charge, we'll put a headline above your ad to catch the reader's attention.

Technology release

Gamers ready to buy PlayStation3 for enhanced graphics

By Alex Peak
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

It's almost here. Gamers across the United States will wait in lines for hours or even days, some predict, to get their new Sony PlayStation3 systems on Friday.

John Callay, general manager of Best Buy, said he doesn't know how many Playstations the store will have available for sale Friday.

"We don't know how many we're getting," Callay said. "All we do know is it will be a fairly low quantity. I wouldn't be surprised if we sold out within the first 10 minutes."

Ross Duffey, who works in loss prevention at Best Buy, said before the store opens, the staff will pass out vouchers to people in line.

"We'll start with the first person in line and go until we run," Duffey said. "I expect we will have a lot of people in line."

Erica Cain, senior in microbiology, said she doesn't plan on getting the new PS3 anytime soon because of the system's high cost.

"It makes me want to cry a little bit," Cain said with a laugh. "I want one really bad."

Cain said she likes PlayStation the best of all gaming systems, because she mostly plays role-playing games.

"I like the whole Final Fantasy series," she said. "Final Fantasy VII on original PlayStation is probably my favorite, though."

Cain said she plays for an average of 10 hours per week during the school year.

"It's like my reward for getting all of my homework and stuff done," she said. "I usually play at night before I go to bed for an hour or so. It helps me relax and forget about school stuff and work stuff."

Cain said she has played video games since she was 7 or 8 years old, and she owns at least 20 games, a Sony PlayStation2, XBox and Nintendo GameCube.

Although she said buying a PS3 doesn't fit into her budget, she said she understands why the game system costs what it does.

"I can see why it's so expensive," she said. "The technology and graphics have expanded so much."

Cain said she is more likely to purchase a Nintendo Wii if she buys a new gaming system this year. She said she would like to receive the new PlayStation as a graduation gift from family or friends in the spring.

"It just makes me sad, because I used to be one of the those people who always had the next new gaming system, but now I won't," she said.

Kevin Pereira, host of G4 TV's "Attack of the Show," said even though PlayStation3 has advanced technology, it is still a bit expensive.

"There's so much hype," he said. "And to be honest, it's unwarranted hype. If you don't own an HDTV, there's very little reason to own a PS3. It's just basically piggy-backing off the PlayStation2," Pereira said. "Anything that is branded PlayStation or Sony will sell, even if it's a $600 console."

Pereira said Sony claimed it would send out many more systems than it actually will. Because of hardware problems and defects, Sony will release only a fraction of what was planned.

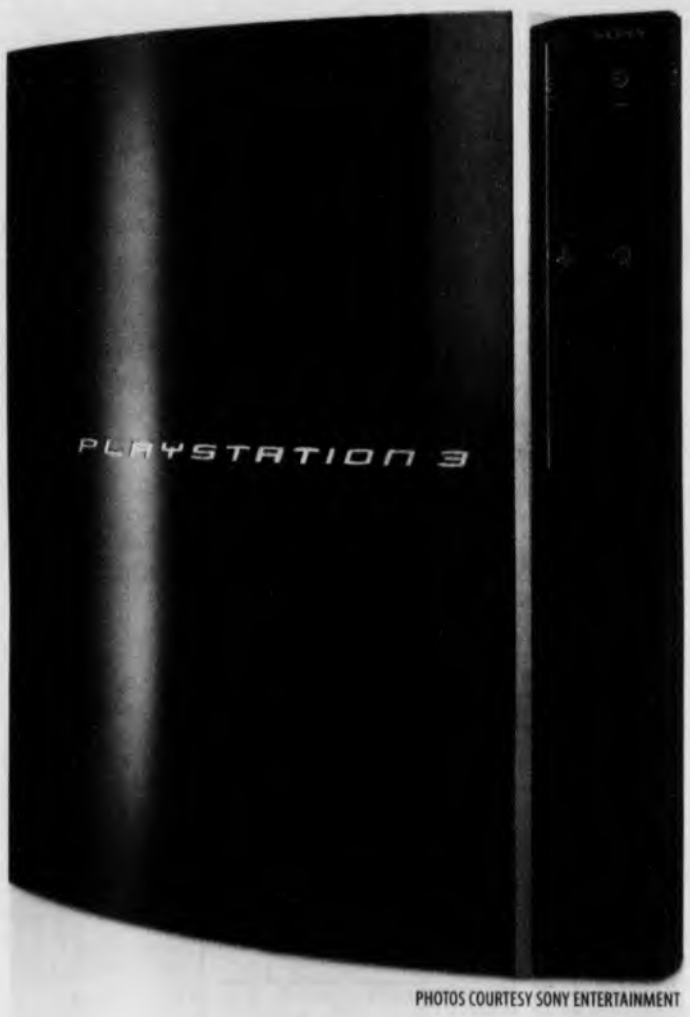
"They were telling people they would have upwards of a million systems released," he said. "They'll be releasing 120,000, maybe 200,000 units at the most, which means your local stores will have six to 12 systems. A lot of people will be looking to eBay."

Although Pereira said the system is over-priced, he said the graphics, technology and hardware will be the most powerful in its generation.

Unlike students like Cain who say they probably will not get a new PlayStation soon, Conner Smith, senior in architectural engineering, said he plans to get two.

"I think you can only buy one," he said. "So my mom is going to get one for me, and I'm trying to get my brother to get one, too."

Smith said he and his brother plan to sell the extra gaming system online.



"We're going to sell it on eBay," Smith said. "There's going to be some parent out there whose kids only wants a PlayStation for Christmas."

With the help of gift cards, Smith said purchasing his PS3 will be fairly inexpensive.

"My brother and I had saved up a bunch of Best Buy gift cards," he said. "We almost have all of the money to get one with gift cards."

Smith said a lot of his friends also plan to buy the new system.

"I feel bad for those who aren't getting one," he said.

PHOTOS COURTESY SONY ENTERTAINMENT

The following titles should be available on day one:
(game-company-genre)

Call of Duty 3 - Activision - Shooter
Marvel: Ultimate Alliance - Activision - Action RPG
Tony Hawk's Project 8 - Activision - Action Sports
Untold Legends: Dark Kingdom - Sony Online Entertainment - Action RPG
Blazing Angels: Squadrons of WWII - Ubisoft - Flight
Full Auto 2: Battlelines - SEGA - Racing Combat
Mobile Suit Gundam: Crossfire - Bandai - Action
Madden NFL 07 - Electronic Arts - Sports
Fight Night Round 3 - Electronic Arts - Sports
College Hoops 2K7 - 2K Sports - Sports
Sonic the Hedgehog - SEGA - Platformer
Need for Speed Carbon - Electronic Arts - Racing
The Elder Scrolls IV: Oblivion - Bethesda Softworks - RPG
Ridge Racer 7 - NAMCO BANDAI Group - Racing
F.E.A.R. - Vivendi Games - Tactical Shooter
Resistance: Fall of Man - Sony Computer Entertainment - Shooter
NBA Live 07 - Electronic Arts - Sports
Genji: Days of the Blade - Sony Computer Entertainment - Action
Tiger Woods PGA Tour 07 - Electronic Arts - Sports flOw (PS3 Hub Download) - Unknown - Action
Tom Clancy's Rainbow Six Vegas - Ubisoft - Shooter
NHL 2K7 - 2K Sports - Sports
NBA 2K7 - 2K Sports - Sports
Souce: www.about.com; Photos, www.amazon.com

Additional features:

Music & audio
- Play music CDs
- Connect to the internet to obtain detailed album information, including album title, artist, length of album
- Copy CDs directly to your hard disk drive (HDD)
- Store and listen to other formats of audio/music file

Movies & videos
- Play Blu-ray Discs (BD) and DVDs
- Connect your digital video camera directly to your PLAYSTATION®3 with a USB cable
- Store and watch your own videos
- Download exclusive video content from PLAYSTATION®Store and the PLAYSTATION®3 Portal

Photo
- Store your personal digital photo albums
- Use any of the various slideshow options to view

Internet
- Surf the Internet with the PLAYSTATION®3 Internet Browser and the SIXAXIS™ wireless controller. You're free to choose your own online destinations.

Source: www.playstation.com

TOP ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

O.J. TO RELEASE BOOK REGARDING WIFE'S MURDER

NEW YORK (AP) — O.J. Simpson created an uproar Wednesday with plans for a TV interview and a book titled "If I Did It" — an account the publisher pronounced "his confession," and media executives condemned as revolting and exploitive. Fox, which plans to air an interview with Simpson Nov. 27 and 29, said Simpson describes how he would have committed the 1994 slayings of his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman, "if he were the one responsible."

SIMPSON
AUTHOR

Denise Brown, sister of Simpson's slain ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, lashed out at publisher Judith Regan of ReganBooks for "promoting the wrongdoing of criminals" and commercializing abuse. The book goes on sale Nov. 30.

NFL PLAYER SMITH WINS 'DANCING' COMPETITION

NEW YORK (AP) — Emmitt Smith, three-time Super Bowl champion, was named the winner of ABC's "Dancing with the Stars" Wednesday night. The NFL's all-time leading rusher beat out actor Mario Lopez.

The hunky, dimpled Lopez was generally regarded as the series' most dynamic celebrity dancer, but the public's vote, the deciding factor after the contestants tied in the judges' tally at Tuesday's final dance-off, brought Smith the victory.

"It is awesome! It is awesome!" declared Smith, after hugging his professional dance partner Cheryl Burke. "We came a long way. We really have."

Burke won last season, too, on the arm of singer Drew Lachey.

Smith had kind words for Lopez, who was gracious in his defeat. He called the former "Saved by the Bell" star a "true gentleman" and said he and partner Karina Smirnoff "raised the bar" during the competition.

GEORGE CLOONEY VOTED 'SEXIEST MAN ALIVE' AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) — George Clooney has been named the "sexiest man alive" for the second time by People magazine. The 45-year-old actor is pictured on the cover of People's annual issue, on newsstands Friday. Clooney, who first took the title in 1997, is now tied with his good friend Brad Pitt.

CLOONEY
ACTOR

"This is one that's going to be hard for Brad since he's been `sexiest man alive' twice," Clooney tells the magazine. "I'd say `sexiest man alive' to him, and he'd go, `two-time.' So that's been taken away."

"Brad's been working out a lot," he adds. "After `Troy,' he thought he'd be named it a third time — pull the hat trick, as we called it. But for me, I'll tell him, `This is my last hurrah.'"

BEATTY TO RECEIVE AWARD FROM GOLDEN GLOBE

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actor, director, writer and producer Warren Beatty will receive the Cecil B. DeMille Award for lifetime achievement at the 64th annual Golden Globe awards, the Hollywood Foreign Press Association said Wednesday.

Beatty will add the award to a collection that includes five other Golden Globes, one Oscar and the Irving G. Thalberg Award, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences' highest honor. The 69-year-old filmmaker also has won honors from the Directors Guild, Producers Guild, Writers Guild, National Board of Review and the Kennedy Center.

Beatty will receive the award at the Golden Globes ceremony on Jan. 15, 2007.

Meanwhile, Lorraine Nicholson, daughter of Jack Nicholson and Rebecca Broussard, was named Miss Golden Globe. The honor traditionally goes to the daughter of a well-known celebrity.

HOROSCOPES

Digest for Nov. 12-18 birthdays

First impressions are important today, and you dress for the occasion. Many people want your attention this evening — do not become involved with the planning, but go with the flow. Your career can end up at right angles on Thursday, so pay attention. There are new discoveries in the communication industry on Friday. This could mean some real breakthrough for the long-distance carriers. You find the physical, emotional, mental and spiritual parts of you are running quite well on Saturday. You will enjoy the attention others give you today. You might be celebrating into the wee hours — Happy birthday!

Scorpio
(Oct. 24 - Nov. 21) This is a good day — one when much progress is gained. Your assertiveness in some job-related situation could be well received. In fact, others could learn from the way you handle yourself.

Sagittarius
(Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) This might be a tough day to solve problems or to look for insights and solutions. You might feel your originality and independence are stifled or just not available to you for now.

Capricorn
(Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your attitude about your work is commendable. If there is a job, you can do it. As an unusual worker, you pour yourself into any task with absolute determination. You are responsible to the extreme.

Aquarius
(Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) Your sales might break records today. You have an inner urge for order and organization and a great sense of responsibility. You are competent, ambitious and cool. This marks the coming of good times in your career and social life.

Pisces
(Feb. 19 - March 20) This is a great time to be with others and to work together. You might look for better ways to be of service in the work place. It could be time to change or upgrade to a more challenging position.

Aries
(March 21 - April 19) Daring to be different gets you noticed — you get ahead in ways you never expected. Big changes affecting your career, status and reputation are likely at this time. Today seems to be a time of reaping rewards for your hard work.

Taurus
(April 20 - May 20) Your ambition is strong. Things seem to fall in place, and progress is easy. Outer circumstances and the flow of events make it easy for you to make clear decisions, see the road ahead and move forward.

Gemini
(May 21 - June 21) There are categories in your life that have yet to be established, and you might think seriously about these things today. You might ask yourself what you have accomplished and where you are going with your life.

Cancer
(June 22 - July 22) Your work efforts are not wasted today — staying away from emotional issues is a wise plan, however. Just stick with the facts, and the outcome will be most positive.

Leo
(July 23 - Aug. 22) Compromise is the order of this day where professionalism is concerned. The power of organization on a social scale — business, political and such — seems to take on importance for you.

Virgo
(Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) You are at your most practical when it comes to dealing and working with others today. You know just what to do and can act without haste and emotion. You could be working with groups of people or children.

Libra
(Sept. 23 - Oct. 23) Problem-solving opportunities come to your attention today. You take the initiative to solve these problems and help others to learn in the process. This is a great time to be with others and to work together.

Source: www.dailyhoroscopes.com